UI names new health protection director

James Walker will take over as director of the UI Health Protection Office on July 1. Walker was appointed to the position on May 25 by UI President Bruce Babbitt.

Walker has been with the UI since 1982 and has served in administrative and support roles within the UI Libraries, including as the head of the Business & Library Information Center and the Patent Policy Laboratory.

Walker will develop and direct comprehensive health and safety programs for the campus.

UI employees will earn $7,000 per year.

HIV-infected Haitians begin airlift to United States

MAAG AIR Base — Twelve-year-old James, unidentified in age or to his school, has just spent 14 months in a place where he had nothing to do, a dull U.S. detention center in Cuba called the "V.H.I. prison camp.

On Monday, he was one of 27 Haitian political refugees, including his children, who left the detention center at Guantanamo Bay Naval Base and began their journey.

Most of the adults carry the virus, the same that causes AIDS. His parents, speaking before he left, said they and his 10-year-old sister, Carol, are HIV-positive.

Carol plans to be with the UI Health Protection Office Departmental libraries will also be on a summer schedule. Users should consult individual library hours for specific hours of operation during this period.

Defeat this evil, and you will help save thousands of lives. For we shall not rest until we have achieved our goal. And we shall overcome America."

The violence is the worst since the end of the war with Indonesia in 1949, said one of the UI Health Protection Office's key figures, Dr. T. W. O'Connor.

"We shall never be defeated by the violence of those who are determined to destroy our country," he said.

We shall overcome America."

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa state Board of Regents is holding its monthly public forum on Monday. The forum will be held in the Union Commons in the Student Union at the University of Iowa in Iowa City. The board will receive reports from students, faculty, university and other stakeholders as well as open discussion from the public.

In a letter to the board, students who attended the board meeting on April 5 said they were concerned about the lack of diversity in the student body and the need for more opportunities for students of color. They also expressed concern about the lack of funding for student activities and the need for more resources for student organizations.

The board will also receive reports from the university's president, the provost, and the vice president for student affairs. The board will also receive reports from the university's chancellor, the provost, and the vice president for student affairs.

The forum will be held from 4 to 5 p.m. and will be streamed live on the university's website. The forum will be open to the public and will be held in the Union Commons in the Student Union at the University of Iowa in Iowa City.

Beau in town, and he's in top form. The worrying really started for him when he kicked the gas pedal and realized that the official trailer for 'Jurassic Park' makes real dinosaurs look like small children. But now, finally, something is starting to come together. Before the worries set in, the film was a box office success. The film has a $200 million budget and is expected to earn at least $250 million. Spielberg redeemed himself with this film and proved that he can still make a good movie.

Reynolds flicks prove actor has more than bad toupee

Ian Carmel

Oh, everyone knows he's been bad this year, for the third of fortunate enough to have spent the last few months in the wonderful world of Los Angeles, with temperatures that would make any New Yorker wish they could stay there all the time.

For every season there's a mood, and for every mood there's a flick. Reynolds has a new romantic comedy that he has been shooting for over a year. "Three Men and a Baby" is a sequel to the 1987 hit, and it has been in the works for several years. Reynolds is starring as a man who has three children and is trying to figure out how to raise them on his own. The film has been met with mixed reviews, but Reynolds is hoping that it will be a hit.

The worrying really started for Reynolds from all angles in this one. Jeff And don't be surprised. The book is a self-mocking reminder of on cute and precocious ambition bit of personal vision in the best and stay there.

But now it's warming up. The sun is shining on us for the first time of year. For those of you fortunate enough to have spent the last few months in the wonderful world of Los Angeles, with temperatures that would make any New Yorker wish they could stay there all the time.

Jordan, Bulls vow to play Game 4 better

Westphal, coach, wins in triple OT

Howard Udman

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan was sizzling and the Chicago Bulls were scorching as usual in the first regulation period. Then, Jordan hit the showers.

"I felt like I had a lot of weapons to bat him, but my weapon wasn't working last night," Jordan said Wednesday. "I don't know what happened. I don't know."

But he understands why the game wasn't over. "I was just blowing an 11-point lead in the fourth," Jordan said. "We just didn't make the big plays."

"I feel like people remember that game," he said. "I feel like the first quarter of the overtime game was the best game I've ever played in the NBA Finals."

Jordan had an ineffective scoring record during the remaining 5 hours, 19 minutes and 30 seconds of the night. He shot 6 for 20.

"I was just tired," Jordan said. "I thought the ball was too cold, too wet, too much." He added, "I thought the game was too much. I'm not the only one."

The Bulls had 18 turnovers in the first game of the title series. So they were feeling high.

"I haven't had this kind of confidence in a long time," Jordan said. "I've never felt like this."

Bulls in 5, no thanks to Phoenix

If the Phoenix Suns' triple-overtime triumph over the Chicago Bulls in Monday's NBA Finals was anything more than a memorable once-in-a-generation moment for the franchise, Sunday's game was another opportunity for the Bulls to show their mettle in the championship round.

The 115-108 win in Game 4 sent the Bulls to the brink of their second NBA title in three years, and with the series tied 2-2, the Bulls' chances of claiming the championship in Phoenix appeared to be slipping away.

Bulls coach Phil Jackson, who watched his team struggle to a 104-99 loss in Phoenix on Saturday, said his team had to get back to basics.

"We've got to do what we do best," Jackson said. "We've got to be a good defensive team, and we've got to be able to make the key shots when they count."

Bulls guard Scottie Pippen, who had just 11 points and six rebounds in the loss, said the team needed to get more out of its bench players.

"We need to get more from our bench," Pippen said. "We can't rely on just a few players to carry us."
