U.S. Japan food over trade agreement

WASHINGTON D.C. - The United States and Japan appear to have reached an agreement on a limited trade agreement that would allow Japan to sell food to the United States.

A trade official said that the agreement would allow Japan to sell food to the United States, but that details of the agreement have not been finalized.

Rep. Charles Young, D-Iowa, said: "We are committed to working with Japan to ensure that fair trade agreements benefit both countries."

Rep. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said: "We need to focus on creating a strong, fair trade relationship with Japan, which is crucial for our economy."

Rep. Bill Thomas, R-Calif., said: "This agreement is a positive step towards achieving our goals in the trade negotiations."

ANTIOCH UNIVERSITY, Iowa City - The university announced today that it will be implementing a new policy on student conduct.

The new policy will be effective immediately.

A spokesperson for Antioch University said: "We believe this policy will help ensure a safe and respectful environment for all students."
Students bullish on stock market

Experts say investing in stocks can be a good bet, despite recent steep drops in some U.S. students from investing.

Thomas Warnet

The Daily Iowan

For some of those students, these flush years and millions running across the bottom of the screen means you can buy anything and everything — from ski equipment to little letters and numbers. For some, though, it means years of studying and figuring that it’s never too early to invest their money.

"I told my parents when I was 16 that I was going to be a senior law major. Overall, they said, ‘Well, why don’t you just study law a lot and make a lot of money?’" Warnet said.

"I was a little bit discouraged, so I didn’t say anything about it before. But I think it’s a good idea. I’m sure that when I’m older I’ll be able to contribute a lot more to my parents and maybe be able to buy them a boat or something like that."

Warnet, a senior Law major, said he is now interested in investing in the Paramour Communications Foundation, which has a lot of money in it. He hopes that he and his parents can use it to invest in their own future.

"I think it’s a good idea to have a little bit of money for a rainy day," Warnet said.

"The more money you have, the more you can do with your life."

INTRODUCTION

Anna Rice's "Vampire with a Gun" is a novel of interest and if you're a fan of the horror genre, you'll surely enjoy it. The novel is set in modern-day New Orleans, where the vampire community is currently having a bit of a problem with a young man named Thomas. He's the first vampire in over a century to have been born in the city, and he's causing quite a stir among the local vampires.

The Vampire with a Gun

The novel follows the story of Thomas, a vampire who has just recently been born in New Orleans. He's a bit of a mystery to the other vampires in the city, as no one knows exactly what kind of power he possesses. Some fear him, while others are drawn to him. However, one thing is certain: Thomas is here to stay, and he's not going to be easy to get rid of.

The Haunting of Bourbon Street

As Thomas begins to make his mark on the city, he encounters a young woman named Victoria. She's a vampire hunter who's been assigned to track down and eliminate Thomas. But as she gets to know him, she begins to question her own beliefs about vampires and the way they're treated.

Conclusion

"The Vampire with a Gun" is a thrilling and suspenseful read. If you're a fan of the horror genre, you'll surely enjoy it. And even if you're not, it's still a well-written and engaging story that will keep you on the edge of your seat. So if you're looking for a new read, be sure to check out "The Vampire with a Gun."
Group tours east Iowa zoo idea

President Rachelle Jerrad J.

"It's pretty tough to raise funds for land and then go shopping," she said.

The society doesn't plan to have the zoo near Cedar Rapids, but if you have it on the horizon, you have a new possibility to preserve and protect the native habitat.

The Cedar Rapids-based organization is attempting to purchase land and create a zoo somewhere between Cedar Rapids and Iowa City.

"We are just a family thing," President Barb Hallo said. "We can go to the park, but you have to be on the road."

The group was formed when some of the original members decided they weren't staying enough to have meaningful recreational activities in the area.

There is more of a base for donations and attention today than there ever has been, according to Hansen. The feasibility research the society has done shows that there is a large enough population in support.

"We want people to see that the animals are not being cramped," Hansen said.

In the local-habitat zoo, routes and high rock walls tamed tigress enclosures allowed to be visible to the public. These enclosures were similar to the same habitats instead of dividing them into separate areas.

Hansen said this approach is more interesting and educational to the public than the small and separate enclosures.

"It's more useful to see that an animal lives in its natural way if you know what it requires for its life," Hansen said.

Iowa judge reimburses for belittling witnesses

Mike Gliner

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A judge has reimbursed $4,890 to women who said they were belittled by a judge.

"Flamboyancy in dress and demeanor is not only unbecoming to judges but also unbecoming to attorneys," Iowa Supreme Court Justice Michael J. Winter wrote in his ruling.

It issued a formal reprimand to Judge Marsha Banks, who said she needed to buy about $4,890 worth of new wardrobe.

U.S. economy has advantages

WASHINGTON -- Ruth Bader Ginsburg, the senior Democrat on the Supreme Court, has already achieved what the European Community is striving for.

"The United States has already achieved what the European Community is trying to do," Ginsburg said in an interview with The Associated Press.

Ginsburg, 76, who has long been an advocate for women's rights, said she was surprised to learn that the European Union was considering a similar approach to women's rights.

"I had no idea that the European Union was even considering a similar approach," she said.

"But it's not a surprise now," she added.

Ginsburg said she was encouraged by the progress that has been made in the United States, where women have made significant gains in the work force and in politics.

"I think it's remarkable," she said.

"And it's something that we need to build upon."
COMMERCIAL CITY, Colo. — An 11-year-old boy and his mother were killed by a Burmese python while television cameramen photographed it during a news conference Wednesday. Authorities believe the family pet strangulated the 11-year-old Derek Romero in his home Tuesday.

Family python suspected in slaying

Linda DePristo Associated Press

Los Angeles — A pet python kept as a family pet is suspected of killing a 11-year-old boy, whose body was found inside the family's home. The family's termite exterminator, who noticed the boy's body, said the mother told him that she had seen a python in the room before.

An autopsy will determine if the snake was the killer, he said, but added: "I have no reason to believe anything else happened." Exterminators examined the home and said the python was not owned by the family. The exterminator, who went to the home to remove a python, said the mother told him that she had seen a python in the room before.

MADE "TOP 10" LIST

Man arrested while buying tools for mass homicide plan

Rain World

Green Cove Springs, Fla. — Police arrested a man they said made "a top 10 list" of potential homicide victims and was starting to carry out his scheme.

James Donovan, 21, and his father, Joseph Gallardo, were arrested Thursday after they were found carrying a large amount of weapons and a list of names.

Donovan, 21, was arrested while shopping Monday for a three-page list of potential victims and they planned to use a knife to kill a woman they said was an "obstacle." The victim was 21-year-old Margarita, 37, and her husband, 40, who were living in a small apartment near the victim's home.

A police officer assigning the case of convicted rapist Joseph P. Gallardo, 35, was placed across the street from his home which was burned in the general morning fire.

Eight of the offenders, no matter how dispassionate the crime.

"We don't want vigilante, that's for sure," prison chief Richardson said. "This man was convicted of one single offense, with no one to keep. He is not rehabilitated and we don't need to keep him in prison to make him a law-abiding citizen."
