Committee: children's book contains satanic references

CABRIOLO, Italy — A city official here has recommended removing a written award-winning children's book from a Catholic school library because of references to demons and witchcraft.

The book, "Jimmy Thatcher, Dirkie Hatch," has won awards in 14 states and was the 1993
Iowa Children's Book Award winner.

"The book has occult and satanic references in it," said
Edward Peterson, Pattons and her husband, David, a teacher in the school's 2nd through 12th grade levels.

"People are furious," said the author, Bruce Coville, of Malvern, Iowa.

According to Coville, the book's contents are:

- "offensive, unethical and
inappropriate.
- "sarcastic and
mocking.
- "flippant attitude of students.
- "mocking and
ridiculing.

Electric rates to increase for IC customers

The new rates have been implemented to make up for revenue losses caused by the cold, dark, and snowy summer of 1992.

Jayn Moody

The high cost and low temperature in the last quarter of this year have caused the Iowa City electrical rates to rise greatly.

"The vast majority of customers have been hit hard by the increase in their electric bills," said Jayn Moody, the new temporary electric rate manager.

"Iowa-Illinois Public Relations Supervisor Jim Bruce said the second-quarter statistics cover only a portion of the year, and therefore cannot be used as an average for the entire year.

"These figures only cover one quarter," he said. "In 1989, we had the coldest summer in many years, which means last year was the least warm in 10 years."

"The new temporary electric rate increase, subject to refund, will increase the utility's annual Iowa electric revenue by $8.5 million for 4 percent. The Iowa Utilities Board approved the increase for IC customers.

Can one single gag be shot down?

For over 15 years, “Saturday Night Live” has seemingly been on a steady loser-climb up the ratings scale. Now the show has almost become a sort of self-sustaining enterprise, providing more for some of today’s most successful comedians than ever. Much of this is due to the show’s considerable filming and networking success, along with the recurring “SNL” spin-off, “Coneheads.”

Many artists can lay claim to having a single gag and pumping it until it’s still successful. This collection te...
Iowa floods waters recede; recovery gradual at best

Associated Press

BURLINGTON — The, water in the Mississippi won’t stop this summer’s floodwater from flowing into Iowa Thursday night, but the city of Burlington will hold a farmers’ market at the south end of Market Street Friday.

"It was a disaster," Burlington Mayor Jan and Roberta DeBoer said. "The water in the Mississippi is going to be high for a while."

But DeBoer said the city is making the best of the situation.

"We’re going to have a good farmers’ market today," he said. "We’re going to have a good time."

The market is scheduled to run from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Market Street near the east end of the bridge. The city has set up a tent for those who wish to attend.

"We’ve got a lot of people coming out," DeBoer said. "We’ve got a lot of people coming in."

The market will feature fresh produce, flowers, meats and cheeses from local farmers and growers.

"We’re going to have a good time," DeBoer said. "We’re going to have a good day."

The market will be open to the public and no admission will be charged.

"We’re going to have a good day," DeBoer said. "We’re going to have a good time."
Midwest struggles to return to normal

BY LORETTA, mainly, the sky. A steady, wet rain, the weather service said, arrived in the Midwest on Monday, meaning much of the region would likely see plenty of rain for the next several days. The forecast called for the wet weather to continue through the middle of the week, with some areas seeing up to 1.5 inches of rain. The rain could cause flash flooding in some areas, particularly along rivers and creeks.

Another rainstorm is expected to move across the region later this week, with the potential for more flooding. The National Weather Service said the region is currently in a flood stage, with several rivers and creeks exceeding their banks. The forecast called for the rain to continue through the middle of the week, with some areas seeing up to 1.5 inches of rain.

Israel Army Threatens Attacks

Lebanese civilians flee homes

MOSCOW - Tens of thousands of civilians streamed north toward Beirut Wednesday, leaving behind ghost towns and villages in southern Lebanon under a daily pounding from Israeli jets, warships and missiles.

Israeli civilians have climbed to 88 dead and 302 wounded in the two weeks since the Israeli military campaign began Sunday, police said.

Israelis and gunmen would return to the southern border region only when Lebanon's government and its Syrian backers revoked in Shiites and Palae-stinians.

The Israeli-led South Lebanon Army forced the 500,000 inhabitants of Sidon, the third largest city in southern Lebanon, to evacuate or face new Israeli attacks.

The banging raids on the past four days have killed 500 of southern Lebanon's 800,000 people. Inving from their home, according to U.N. and government estimates.

In Washington, the State Department called for "military activities against civilians" to stop, and said Washington was "deeply concerned by the situation which is bringing massive refugees fleeing to Lebanon.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Chali critiqued Israeli's bombing campaign, saying in a statement Wednesday: "It is deplorable that any government would consciously adopt policies that would lead to disproportionate deaths of civilians and displaced persons.

However, Israeli Foreign Minister Tzahik Rabin told his Parliament Wednesday that the American-led alliance's population in southern Lebanon will be devastated - northerly - from the villages in which Hezbollah terrorists operate.

Israel began bombing villages, targeting Lebanon and the United Nations peacekeeping mission's headquarters in Beirut, according to the Associated Press. It was said to be the second time in recent days.

Israel's military offensive would continue until the merchants stopped flying.

Despite the Israeli attacks, several villages were fired by paratroopers - those who have been hit by the Middle East open fires - centered into northern Israeli territory, extinguishing one war. It was a sharp drop from the 1993 statistics that had killed two Israelis and injured 35 since Sunday.

LEWIS TRAGEDY
Experts criticize second opinion.

Daniel C. Money
Associated Press

The death of Colts star Reggie Lewis could have been prevented, doctors said, if he had gone to a hospital immediately after he collapsed during practice.

These doctors expected Lewis to have a particularly healthy heart, abnormally large for his size. They said he should have received an implantable device for heart rhythm disorders.

They said the device would have prevented Lewis from dying, just as a similar device saved former Indiana University basketball player Delroy Lewis.

Delroy Lewis died in 1990 of what was diagnosed as sudden death syndrome. He was 20 years old. Dr. James Walsh, a cardiologist who treated Delroy Lewis, said he now believes Reggie Lewis could have been saved.

"We didn't know (Reggie Lewis') problem," Walsh said in a telephone interview from Boston. "We died in the right place at the right time."

Ventura grand slam lifts ChiSox

Associated Press

CHICAGO —surface Ventura hit a grand-slam home run in the seventh inning Sunday afternoon to lift the Chicago White Sox to a 10-1 victory over Detroit, and completed a three-game sweep.

Ventura also pitched a complete game Sunday, and improved his record to 11-1.

As Ventura hit the ball over the left-center field fence, it was the first time in Ventura's career that he had hit a home run.

The White Sox had been winless in their last six games against the Tigers, and the sweep was their first since 1984.

The win was Ventura's third of the season, and his second in a row.

The White Sox are now 8-2 in their last 10 games, and have won six of their last seven.

Ventura's two home runs against the Tigers came in back-to-back games.
