Irish children from Northern Ireland spent the first week in Eastern Iowa with host families last summer. Allison McCord (left), Caleb Chamber- way and Claire Shank (background) took a step out of the corn on a trip to the Field of Dreams in Dyersville, Iowa. The children this summer were there for the first visit. Claire is very much interested in the family and her jokes were great on the table with the pictures of Fox and Ethan’s children. A few days before returning it was clear the Shank family was ready for her to leave. “Part of your heart goes back with them.” Fox said. “They had long enough to become a part of the family.”

Claire Shank, a 12-year-old from Belfast, returned to the Iowa City home of Karen Fox and Charlie Shank.

Residents angered by sewer backup

Terry Collins

CORALVILLE RESIDENTS CAME to a Thursday night meeting of the council to protest the fact that several of their homes have had flooding problems. Collins said that he has had a backup of sewage in his basement for the past week and that he feels that the city is not doing anything about it.

"If the water comes through the window, I'm going to know," said Collins. "I want it to happen in my house, not outside my house."

Coralville resident

Leah Sipple

"I can tell what kind of toilet paper my neighbors use," said Leah Sipple. "I've seen them using two-ply, and I don't think that's enough." Sipple said that she has had problems with backup in her house as well, and that she feels that the city should do more to prevent these problems from happening.

"We need to have the city take more responsibility," said Sipple. "If they don't, we're going to be in a lot of trouble."

Drinking in military still problematic

TORONTO — About one in seven people on active duty in the U.S. military drinks heavily, and a study that concludes even more try to reduce the problem hasn't been popular.

The prevalence of alcohol abuse was about 15 percent, down significantly from 17 percent in 1980, the study found. That decline was due to a shift in the makeup of the armed forces, said Robert Bray, who directed the study for the Pentagon.

An influx of older, better-educated people who are more likely to be married lowered the heavy drinking rate because such people are less likely to abuse alcohol, the study said.

Analysts said that once their military careers were over, the heavy drinking rates have stayed virtually unchanged since 1980, Bray said.

Bray, of the Research Triangle Institute in Research Triangle Park, N.C., presented the study Monday at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association with colleagues from the Institute and Florida University.

The study also found that military members have major concerns affecting the health of military personnel, said Crystal Bally, a policy analyst for the assistant secretary of defense for health affairs.

"When we're at right now is getting military leadership aware of this continuing problem," Bray said. "And then devise more specific intervention programs to target heavy drinking.

The study included 16,195 active duty personnel around the world. They filled out anonymous questionnaires in April and May of 1992. Participants were chosen to give a representative sample of active duty personnel in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

Heavy drinking was defined as the first or more drinks on a given day. The average service member noted at least once a week being in an accident more than 95 days in 1990.

The 1990 study found that 7.8 percent of personnel had experienced serious consequence of heavy drinking within the prior year. Consequences included losing work, marriage, being hurt off duty at least once a week because of illness, or being hurt in an accident or avoided for drinking while combatting.

Elite military forces not targeting Somali warlord

Robert Ferm
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - An elite force of 400 Army soldiers trained to strike sensitive targets with unconventional means had been in Somalia this week. But the Pentagon said the Rangers' mission is not to target warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

"This is not an effort to go after one man," said Randall Schrader, a Pentagon spokesman. "It's a mission to improve the security situation in Mogadishu." Even so, the Rangers' special training gives them the kind of skills in unconventional warfare that would be required to find Aidid, who has been staying a few miles outside Mogadishu for the past three months. The United Nations called for Aidid's arrest in June after an ambush of U.S. soldiers trained to strike sensitive targets.

Army Rangers trained to strike sensitive targets with unconventional means will seek stronger action against warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid, Assistant Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz said today.

Wolfowitz, the Rangers' special training gives them the kind of skills in unconventional warfare that would be required to find Aidid, who has been staying a few miles outside Mogadishu for the past three months. The United Nations called for Aidid's arrest in June after an ambush of U.S. soldiers trained to strike sensitive targets.

A Mortion Debate

Targeting the individual

The killing of Dr. David Gunn earlier this year by an anti-abortion activist was characterized by leaders of anti-abortion groups as a callous and premeditated murder of an individual person, and not something that their own groups would actually condone. Thursday, a similar incident occurred when a Kansas doctor was shot as he left his abortion clinic. Two incidents can hardly be characterized as an epidemic, and even so, such violent actions would be abhorred by most anti-abortion activists. However, the general notion of preventing abortions by preventing individuals from seeking them or performing them is a practice which has been defended by blocking access to clinics, or by manufacturing malpractice suits against doctors who perform abortions (in broad terms, statistics).

Bledsoe making mark on Patriots

Associated Press

Bills' Drew Bledsoe, No. 1 pick in last year's draft when he romped into the No. 1 quarterback of New England Patriots.

Bledsoe, 23, is doing it again. Bledsoe's 1,000-yard passing streak against the New York Giants Wednesday night, the longest since the merger, came to an end with a 27-17 New York victory.

"It's a good feeling," Bledsoe said. "I'm proud of the offense, too.

Bledsoe, who had thrown for 1,000 yards in his last nine games, also passed for 210 yards against the Giants. He completed 17 of 25 passes, seven of them to his favorite target, Tony Richardson.

"He's doing a great job," said head coach Bill Parcells, who called the plays.

Parcells said Bledsoe, who is entering his third year in the NFL, will be the starting quarterback for the Patriots.

"He's our quarterback," Parcells said. "We're not going to change that."

TALLAHASSEE — For John Robinson, returning to the Florida State offense after a couple of years away, there are two things he’d give his right arm for.

One is to have the game plan. The other is to have the comfort of knowing the defense will stop the opponent.

"It was funny thing about my first game," Robinson said. "I just looked at the defense and said ‘Oh, my god, they’re really good.’" Robinson said he was surprised by the_registered} defenders, not the players, but the depth and experience. "I was always thankful that we had good defense," he said. "But I was really surprised by how good the offense can be." Robinson said the key to success was the team's ability to make adjustments on the fly. "If we're in a situation where we need to make a change, we can do it," he said. "And if we're in a situation where we don't need to make a change, we can do that too." Robinson said the team's success also depended on its ability to win the turnover battle. "If we can keep the ball out of the opponent's hands, we can win the game," he said. "And if we can force turnovers, we can lose the game." Robinson said the team's focus was on getting back to the basics.

"I'm not a camp type guy," he said. "I was a pro." Robinson said he was ready to get back to work and make the most of the time he had left. "I'm ready to go," he said. "I can't wait to get back out there and play." Robinson said he was looking forward to working with the new players on the team.

"I'm really excited about what we have," he said. "I can't wait to see how we do." Robinson said he was ready to lead the team to victory.

"I'm ready to go," he said. "I can't wait to see how we do."
Acid Test seeks perfect groove with worthwhile debut album

In Carnes

Acid Test is a band and search of a genre, and most of the records on its debut album, Drop, the group finds in its greater and lesser degrees and with varying success. But what about that name and title?

Acid Test? Drop? I expected no less than some sort of ambient, acid-gauge pumping soundtrack. What we get is a record of electrontical music from electronic sounds to let my mind go as our wardrobes may very well serve, but the hit in acid-fuck-rays that pertains to its music is its experimental quality, not some far-out pertains to its music or any other vocal track on the CD. Drop isn't the best track again, treating listeners to a blend of acid-house funk with guitar loops and bass backbeats. But notice that Drop serves to illustrate the unfortunate bulletings and sandpaper and sunflower petals. The trend of screw-top lyrics doesn't go anywhere. Drop is many things, but it's not quite perfect. For one thing, it doesn't know that the bottom-heavy funk-grunge blend, merely a part of the acid-test results that, along with some weird psychedelic, add a noodley understep to it all. It's deep, furry sandpaper and sunflower petals. Acid Test seems to find their

The Daily Iowan

The Pulitzer Prize-winning "Kentucky Cycle" will continue on its long road to Broadway this week when its final five performances commence in the second run of the Iowa Summer Rep company.

"All the rest of the company is scheduled," Summer Rep Artistic Director Eric Van Sickle said. "We're working to get the pieces together and making as much as we can out of them this summer."

"Cycle" is a portion of nine short plays by Robert Scheckkan, had its run on its final performance when finding the necessary money to close the Chicago Theater Builders' production of Summer Rep's "I'm a failure."

"Cycle" is part of Summer Rep's Scheckkan Festival. Other Scheckkan plays produced include "Final Passage" and "Travesty" on "Earth, " which was also performed due to flooding, will be performed at 9 p.m.

"Kentucky Cycle II," which was canceled in midseason due to spring's floods.

"Kentucky Cycle II" will be performed at 2 p.m. Sept. 6-8, 10-11, and "Kentucky Cycle II" Sept. 7 at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. Tickets to "Summer Rep" performances were still available as of Monday for information call Hancher Box Office at 358-3000.
