PLO, Israel 'cooking an agreement'

Neil MacFarquhar
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israel is on the verge of recognizing the PLO, a key step toward resolving decades of conflict, senior Israeli Cabinet members and Palestinian officials said Sunday.

Both sides could sign within days an agreement in principle to implement Palestinian autonomy in the occupied territories, starting with the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho, sources said.

"At this time all parties are cooking an agreement," said Azmi Shoaibi, a member of the Palestine Liberation Organization committee that supervises the negotiations. "It will include direct negotiations between Israel and the PLO to discuss details of Gaza-Jericho First."

Israel has refused to recognize the PLO, and has branded it a terrorist group. But informal contacts have stepped up since the

Israel radio said that in exchange for Israeli recognition of the PLO, the group would renounce terrorism and delete references in its charter that Israel interprets as supporting the Jewish state's destruction.

The reports of possible recognition brought immediate howls of protest from Israel's right wing and from Islamic activists opposed to PLO leader Yasser Arafat. Both threatened to respond with violence.

Arafat has backed the deal despite opposition from Palestinians who demand outright independence in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. They say the PLO leader is making too many concessions to hold on to his power, which is being challenged by a growing number of fundamentalists in the occupied territories who reject any deal with Israel.

UI RANKS 17TH

Research brings in record funding

Maria Hickey
The Daily Iowan

UI faculty members received a record $167.5 million in funding for research and development for fiscal year 1993, UI officials announced Friday.

UI President Hunter Rawlings called it a "banner year" for the UI and praised faculty and students for their hard work in securing grants, gifts, and contracts.

"This is a recognized measure of the university's increasing national stature, and we are proud of what these new figures say about Iowa," Rawlings said. "More importantly, this level of external support allows faculty investigators to step up the pace of discovery and bring more new ideas into the classroom."

Last year the UI received $152.7 million from external sources. The funding increase resulted from a 17 percent rise in federal funding and more than a 30 percent increase in state money.

The awards will serve undergraduates in the Mathematics and Computer Science departments by funding both the Robotics Lab and the Accelerated Calculus Lab, both in McLean Hall. Each lab provides students with access to state-of-the-art computer technology.

Obtaining funding has become much more competitive in recent years, making the increase more impressive, UI Vice President for Research David Skorton said. Faculty members and researchers wrote over 2,300 applications last year. Their hard work is what made the year prosperous, Skorton said.

Warning signs posted after recent attack on woman

Signs warning "A woman was attacked here," have been popping up around Iowa City neighborhoods as a reminder to what remains a mysterious assault case.

According to police records, a woman reported being jumped by a man as she entered her unlit apartment at the 700 block of East College Street at 2:04 a.m. on Aug. 24.

Sgt. Craig Lihs of the Iowa City Police Department said the woman was able to gouge her attackers eyes, forcing him to run out the door. Police are still investigating the case but have no solid description of the attacker.

The signs have been posted at various spots in a five-block radius, centering around College, Dodge and Lucas streets.

Sunday: 708.8 feet

The Corps of Engineers cut the outflow of the Coralville Dam by nearly 3,000 cfs after Sunday morning rains pelted the area.

"We wanted to keep the river below 28 feet at the Burlington Street gauge," park ranger Terry Escher said. "The water rose about half a foot Sunday."

The water behind the dam fluctuated throughout the day and stood at 708.08 feet at 6 p.m. Sunday.

LATE NIGHT DEBATE RAGING

Dave, Chevy or Jay? This is war

Tory Brecht
The Daily Iowan

As the late-night talk-show battles heat up in anticipation of the fall season, a small civil war over who is the true voice of the night is being waged between UI students.

David Letterman

The results of an informal Daily Iowan poll show David Letterman is still the favorite among students, with a fair number of votes for Chevy Chase's new show and a unanimous vote of no confidence for Jay Leno.

best by a mile," UI freshman Steve Hefel said. "He's got the best quick comebacks."

Like the original war between the states, the late-night civil war can create dissension among families.

Sisters Ronee and Carrie Funkhauser, UI freshmen, have split into opposing camps over their nighttime viewing habits.

"I think Chevy Chase will be funny," Carrie said. "The movies he's been in are slapstick, he can probably ad-lib real well."

Carrie, in a terse defense of Letterman, disagreed. "From previous experience, I think his humor is better than the others," she said.

Krissy Hiatt, Mindy Dlugobscher and Mary Mueller were aligned as a pro-Letterman bloc, while their friend, Amy Houghton, stuck by Chase.

"I'd like to watch Chevy," Houghton said. "He's awesome."

The three others were unswayed by Houghton's opinion.

"Letterman has a lot of faithful fans," Hiatt said. "And I like his top 10 lists."

Some students seemed so confused by the network jumping, time changes and personalities that they didn't know who they wanted to see.

"I wouldn't mind watching Chevy Chase," UI junior Aaron Lee said. "When Harry Caray was sick he filled in and he was hilarious. Oh, the battle can even cause friends to gang up on one another."

CHARLESTON, S.C. — Waves along the shore weren't big enough to interest surfers Sunday, but Hurricane Emily was on a blustery path toward land, and coastal residents rushed to stock up on food and supplies.

Late in the afternoon, the National Weather Service declared a hurricane watch from Cape Romain, about 20 miles north of Charleston, to Fenwick Island on the Delaware-Maryland line. North Carolina officials also ordered an island campground evacuated Sunday.

A watch means hurricane conditions pose a threat. A warning means hurricane conditions with sustained wind of more than 74 mph are expected within 24 hours.

Some, remembering 1989's deadly Hurricane Hugo, made plans to leave. "I wouldn't want to go through the fear again. It's easier to get out than to stay," said William Holden, who left his North Myrtle Beach condominium to return to his home in New Jersey.

The storm smashed into Charleston in September 1989. From the Caribbean islands to the Carolinas, it caused at least $5.9 billion in damage and killed 85 people.

At 5 p.m. Sunday, Emily was located near latitude 31.2 north and longitude 70.1 west, or about 420 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Emily was moving west-northwest at 9 mph. Its top sustained wind speed was about 80 mph with some strengthening expected. A National Hurricane Center advisory projected the storm could make landfall Tuesday, possibly in North Carolina or even much farther north.

North Carolina officials ordered the evacuation of the National Park Service campground on Ocracoke Island on Sunday. Officials in North Carolina's Dare County, where much of the chain of fragile barrier

BURIAL CEREMONY HELD

Donors are remembered by UI, loved ones

The UI Deeded Body Program provides human bodies to students in various health-care studies so classes may examine them for several months.

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

Students, friends and family members gathered last weekend to honor and remember those who donated their bodies to the UI anatomy department.

"These persons stand out from others in their courage and concern for humankind," said John Long, interim head of the department, speaking to the almost 200 gathered in Oakland Cemetery Friday.

"They are great humanitarians and have assisted valuably in our studies," Long said.

The UI Deeded Body Program provides human bodies to students in various health care studies, allowing classes to examine them extensively over several months.

Second year medical student Anand Devaiah was one of five students to speak about the significance of the donors.

"The loved ones we honor here today are heroes in the greatest sense of the word," he said. "Their actions were motivated out of contribution, not recognition."

UI dentistry student Christine Heinig expressed gratitude on behalf of her colleagues, adding that textbooks cannot offer the learning a real body can.

"The donors gave us a greater respect for the complexity and intricacy of the human body," she said.

George Paterson, coordinator of the UI Hospitals and Clinics pastoral services department, delivered the homily and committal.

"Indeed death has no dominion over those we honor today," he said.

The ceremony honored 88 people from Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska. Joining UI students and faculty, many friends and relatives of the donors came to honor them and take home their mortal remains.

Loren Spence, coordinator of the Deeded Body Program, thanked the families for their support.

"We're very grateful to the people who agreed to be donors, and to their families," he said.

People over the age of 18 may donate their bodies for medical education and research. Studies are completed on the donors between 12 and 18 months following their deaths.

Number of kids living in poverty doubles

Associated Press

DES MOINES — A 5-year-old girl wears torn, stained dresses to school. A 12-year-old boy is taunted by schoolmates and called "Scrounge." Two brothers and a sister sleep on the floor to avoid neighborhood gunfire.

The number of such children living in poverty in Iowa increased at nearly twice the national rate between 1982 and 1991, The Des Moines Register reported Sunday.

A report this year by a nonprofit group, Iowa Kids Count Initiative, shows that one in seven of Iowa's children in 1990 — 98,463 — lived in poverty-level families. During the 1980s, the rate of Iowa children living in poverty increased by nearly 22 percent. The national rate of increase was 12 percent.

Iowa Kids Count used the federal government's definition of poverty — $8,343 or less annual income for a family of two, or under $12,674 for a family of four.

Nearly 9,000 of Iowa's 16,111 homeless people are children, according to a study based on 1992 figures and released this year by Drake University sociology Professor Dean Wright. When it's time to go home from school, many return instead to shelters, abandoned buildings or cars. Some sleep on the sofas or floors of friends and relatives.

The odds against children in single-parent homes are especially great. In 1990, 64 percent of Iowa households headed by women with children younger than 5 were living in poverty, up from 51 percent in 1980.

A few mothers interviewed by the Register expressed little interest in working. But most said they want self-sufficiency. They cringe when paying for groceries with food stamps, and they realize the children also feel the glares of the cashiers.

"It bothers me to go through the checkout," said Susan Savala, 30, a mother of three in Clarinda who works part-time as a dietary aide.

Scott Shafer, a psychologist at the Des Moines Child and Adolescent Guidance Center, said children need to feel they're part of the mainstream. Instead, he said, they feel the growing disparity between the haves and the have-nots.

"Other children have nice tennis shoes and name-brand clothes. Theirs are ratty," Shafer said. "Children in families without money tend to move a lot, which is disruptive to their schooling. I think it affects the ability to make friends later in life."

"If children aren't brought into mainstream society, as adults they won't be either. We'll be supporting them on public assistance or for criminal behavior. Children in poverty tend to feel alienated from society, and that continues into adulthood. They don't think they have a stake in society."

Beyond the sting of shabbiness, there is physical damage.

"Parents are being forced to choose between getting shoes and immunizations," said John Holtkamp, executive director of the Iowa chapter of the National Committee to Preserve Child Abuse. "Only 42 percent of Iowa's children are fully immunized at age 2."

"What do you do on the weekend? You might camp or take in a show. They all cost money. A poor family is a pressure cooker. How many things are available that don't cost money?"

HUNDREDS ATTEND SERVICE

South Africa mourns death of U.S. student

Amy Biehl, 26, was stabbed to death last week by a mob of black youths.

Associated Press

GUGULETU, South Africa — Hundreds of blacks from the squalid township of Guguletu outside Cape Town attended a church service Sunday for Amy Biehl, the American woman stabbed to death on their streets last week.

The regular service at St. Gabriel's Catholic Church was dedicated to Biehl, who was killed Wednesday by a mob of black youths two days before she was to return to the United States.

The 26-year-old Fulbright scholar from Newport Beach, Calif., had been conducting research in South Africa for 10 months, and had been involved in developing voter education programs for Guguletu township.

A procession at the service included a girl holding a picture of Biehl.

Six girls did a dance in Biehl's honor, while others read a poem and told how the slain woman's dedication to the disadvantaged inspired them.

The Rev. Basil van Rensburg also spoke in his homily of Biehl's commitment to helping township residents.

Two teen-age suspects are to appear in court today, and police say they expect further arrests.

The racial attack was the first of three in three days in South Africa. Political violence and racial attacks have increased since black and white negotiators last month set April 27 as the date for the nation's first multiracial election.

The United States Information Service provided a book at the service for people to sign and write messages. The book will be sent to Biehl's family in California.

Neo-Nazi gathering disbanded

Associated Press

BONN, Germany — Police detained 36 neo-Nazis who tried to stage a rally in southern Germany and arrested two other extremists who carved swastikas at a former concentration camp near Berlin, authorities said Sunday.

Authorities in the southern city of Stuttgart had rejected a request by neo-Nazis for a rally permit, and rounded up 36 militants at a roadblock outside the city Saturday night.

Clubs, knives, flags bearing swastikas and neo-Nazi songbooks were confiscated, Stuttgart police said.

In a separate action, police in the Oranienburg arrested two men and accused them of carving swastikas into statues at a former concentration camp.

Altar boys lead a procession into St. Gabriel's Church in Guguletu township, South Africa, on Sunday for a service dedicated to slain American student Amy Biehl, whose picture is held aloft in the procession. Biehl was stabbed to death last week in the township by a mob of black youths.

DEADLINE FOR BOSNIA PLAN CONCLUDES

Muslim government requests U.S., U.N. support to end war

Mark Porubcansky
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Any agreement to end Bosnia's 17-month war must come with U.N. Security Council guarantees and direct U.S. participation, the Muslim-led government said Sunday.

Delegates from the warring sides were due back in Geneva on Monday to try to resolve remaining differences over a plan to partition Bosnia into three ethnic states.

Parliament President Miro Lazovic told reporters on Sunday that the government will return to Geneva to try to win more land at the bargaining table. But without offering specifics, he said the government, which controls only 10 percent of the country, would not sign any deal unless the Security Council is prepared to back it up and NATO and the United States promise support.

"Without the active involvement of the United States of America, it (the settlement) will not be respected," he said. "We are asking for their political or military support, if necessary."

Lazovic wouldn't say whether the government was seeking direct involvement of U.S. troops.

He said the government would seek more territory in eastern Bosnia, an area where Muslims held the majority before Serbs seized it.

The Muslims say the current plan rewards Serb aggression and the expulsion of Muslims by occupying forces.

Bosnian Serbs and Croats have said they will compromise no more, and their assemblies accepted the plan on Saturday.

International mediators have set today as the deadline for accepting their proposal, which gives the Muslim-led government 31 percent of Bosnia. Serbs would get 52 percent, down from the 70 percent of Bosnia they now control, and Croats 17 percent. The republic would have a weak central government.

In southwestern Bosnia, U.N. officials were negotiating with Croats and Muslims to establish a safe corridor for aid convoys into Mostar and arrange an exit for 53 U.N. peacekeepers trapped in the city's eastern Muslim sector.

Cedric Thornberry, the U.N. Civil Affairs chief in former Yugoslavia, strongly condemned the Muslims for preventing U.N. personnel from leaving. The Muslim population fears the departure of the peacekeepers would lead to renewed Croat attacks.

The convoy that arrived in Mostar on Thursday brought 175 tons of food and medicine to the 55,000 trapped Muslims. After the trucks unloaded, the Muslims refused to let the convoy, with 113 personnel, depart.

The civilian and humanitarian workers were allowed to leave Saturday, but 53 Spanish peacekeeping troops remain trapped in Mostar, according to Cmdr. Ides-bald Van Biesebroeck, a U.N. spokesman in Sarajevo.

Associated Press

"The Muslim side is asking for U.N. protection, which goes beyond (our) mandate," Thornberry told reporters in Medjugorje, just south of Mostar.

"It was a very dangerous thing for the Muslims to take a convoy hostage," he said. "I am afraid it could undermine both peacekeeping and humanitarian activities."

U.N. officials are currently negotiating with Bosnian's Croats and Muslims to establish a 30-mile safe corridor for aid convoys from Metkovic, on the Croatian coast to Mostar, and then beyond to central Bosnia and Sarajevo.

Such a route is critical for getting aid into the region, particularly as winter approaches. Currently, some aid convoys reach the area through difficult mountain routes that skirt embattled Mostar but that must close in winter.

Three convoys reached central Bosnia from Metkovic on Sunday using such a mountain route, said Manuel De Almeida e Silva, a U.N. spokesman in Zagreb, Croatia.

Opening a safe corridor for convoys would also test the stated willingness of Bosnian Serbs besieging Sarajevo to open a route from the capital to the south.

China accused of planning end to Tibet's individuality

Clare Nullis
Associated Press

GENEVA - Followers of the Dalai Lama accused China of planning to flood Tibet with ethnic Chinese settlers to try to stifle opposition to Beijing's rule Sunday.

The Tibet Bureau said the plans worked out at a secret meeting in May will end Tibet's unique culture, resulting in "cultural genocide."

"In order to counter the growing resistance inside Tibet against the Chinese occupation, the meeting decided to transfer large numbers of Chinese settlers into Tibet with the aim of making it demographically impossible for Tibetans to rise," a statement from the Tibet Bureau in Geneva said.

Pope makes ready for 1st visit to former Soviet Union this fall

Associated Press

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy - The people of the Baltics should struggle against "indifference and secularism," Pope John II said Sunday in advance of his trip to the area.

The pope will travel in Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia Sept. 4-10. It is the first papal trip to the lands of the former Soviet Union.

Addressing pilgrims at his summer vacation home outside Rome, the pontiff said the Baltic states ing near the central Chinese town of Chengdu also decided to "undermine the growing Tibetan movement in exile ... and to manipulate renowned international figures and religious personages in Tibet for propaganda purposes."

"These measures will destroy the cultural and national identity of the Tibetan people and amount to a form of cultural genocide," it said.

The Tibet Bureau is made up of representatives of the Dalai Lama, regarded by Tibetans as a god-king.

The Tibet Bureau said the secret meeting proposed stepping up lobbying of Asian and African countries to win support for Chinese policies in the face of Western criticism.

had "left the tunnel of forced atheization" with the overthrow of Communism, and that their people can "newly express and cultivate the faith."

But now, "They must struggle to preserve it from the perils of indifference and secularism," John Paul said.

Roman Catholicism is by far the largest religion in Lithuania; in Latvia it is large but not dominant. It has only a tiny following in Estonia, where most churches are Lutheran or Orthodox.

islands called the Outer Banks is located, said an evacuation would probably be ordered overnight for all or part of the county.

"Right now, you wouldn't even know if anything is going on," said

Andy McCann, owner of the Nags Head Pier. "The ocean is flat. There aren't even any surfers out there."

Some appeared not to heed the advice of Dare County officials, who asked vacationers with plans to visit the Outer Banks in the next few days to reconsider.

Liz Koester of Atlantic Realty in Kitty Hawk said people continued to check into beach cottages.

Meanwhile, Kellogg Supply Company in Kill Devil Hills, normally not open on Sunday, opened at noon to sell sheets of plywood.

city of Iowa competing with Ivy League schools 20 years ago, Skorton said.

"The UI ranked 17th in the nation for federal funding. This is the seventh year in a row that the university has attracted more than $100 million for research and development.

External support is extremely important for research, bringing in almost $135 million last year in awards, said Brian Harvey, UI Director of Sponsored Programs. The awards pay for over 80 percent of research done at the UI.

The three largest supporters were:

- Public Health Service, $81.1 million, an increase of 12.4 percent.
- Department of Education was second, $13.4 million, an 81 percent increase.
- The National Science Foundation, $10.2 million, a 36 percent increase.

Funding from the National Aeronautics & Space Administration, Corporate funding, and other various foundations decreased.

Reservoir," she said. "As soon as Dubuque Street is clear, the procedure to clean up and repair can begin."

"According to a newsletter published by the UI Housing Office titled, Temp Times, the opening of Mayflower may not occur until late September.

"The newsletter also states that before students move back into Mayflower, the UI Department of Residence Services wants to make sure that any further flooding will not cause the residence hall to close again.

"Students who want to know more information about Mayflower can attend meetings this Wednesday at 7 p.m. at Rienow Residence Hall, 8 p.m. at Slater Residence Hall and Thursday at 8:30 p.m. at Stanley Residence Hall.

The latest estimates of the damage to Mayflower were reported at $4.5 million.

To help alleviate crowding in temporary housing, approximately 28 UI faculty, staff and Iowa City residents have volunteered to take in displaced students as part of the "Adopt a Student" program, George Droll, director of the UI Department of Residence Services, said.

The program encourages interested students to check a bulletin board inside the Housing Office in Burge Residence Hall for names and numbers to make a match. The program could last from three weeks to the remainder of the fall semester.

"Students need to be wary about concerns like whether where they may be staying is on line with a bus route," Droll said.

Rhodes is taking two UI freshmen in as a part of the program and said she is looking forward to it.

"I'm really excited about it and my three little girls are as well. They even picked up their toys they usually have laying around the house," she said.

In other UI news, faculty, staff and students will be able to return to the Music Building for classes today, provided the air-handling equipment that supplies fresh air to the building is back in operation.

Scheduled classes in the Music Building were canceled last week instead of relocated, due to the flooding that has affected most of the UI arts campus.

"Faculty and staff were not comfortable with bringing in students without quality air," Rhodes said.

The Israeli Cabinet is expected to vote tonight to let the Israeli negotiating team pursue the autonomy plan. Foreign Minister Shimon Peres is expected to fly to Washington this week to sign it, Israel radio and the Palestinians said.

Rabin might also seek a Cabinet vote today on whether to recognize the PLO, which recognized Israel in 1988.

Arafat adviser Yasser Abed-Rabbo, asked on Israeli army radio about the possibility of a Rabin-Arafat summit, said "I don't exclude the possibility in the near future."

The change comes after months of quiet exploratory meetings between PLO and Israeli officials that culminated last week in Scandinavia with the outline of an autonomy plan by Peres and Mahmoud Abbas, the No. 2 PLO leader.

"If the people of the PLO will contribute to peace, we will talk with them," Health Minister Chaim Ramon said after a Cabinet meeting Sunday night that focused on the details of the autonomy plan.

Rabin's office declined comment on recognition. Rabin has argued that negotiating with the PLO would raise Palestinian demands for statehood and the return of millions of refugees. But he has come under increasing pressure from the liberals who make up a majority of his Cabinet to start direct negotiations with the PLO.

Full details about the autonomy plan have not been released, but officials have given the following accounts:

• In Gaza and Jericho, the Israeli army would withdraw from population centers to security locations.

• Palestinians in Gaza and Jericho would be given full control over their internal affairs.

• Israel would maintain control over entry points to the autonomous areas.

• Israel would remain in charge of Jewish settlements.

• Negotiations on problematic issues, such as the status of Jerusalem, would be postponed until talks on the final status of the occupied lands begin within two to three years.

• No changes on the ground are expected for months.

LATE NIGHT

wait, that was Bill Murray. But they're the same anyway."

The only thing all the students seemed to agree on was Jay Leno's lack of talk-show talent.

"Leno's too conservative," graduate student Tim Loehrke said. "Only the college Republicans like him."

Lee's assessment of the "Tonight Show" host was even harsher.

"Leno is a wash-up," he said. "He sucks."

UI junior Jonathon Schaller was more diplomatic in his criticism.

"Leno's not as respected as Carson, and Letterman has a bigger following," he said.

Law student Jon Wagner spoke for two of the smaller combatants lost in the heat of battle.

"What about Conan O'Brien?" he asked, referring to the host taking Letterman's place on "Late Night." "What else is on at 11:35? Arsenio? Arsenio's gonna be gone in eight months."

CIVIL RIGHTS MARCH

Invitation to America

Thirty years ago, a quarter of a million alienated people demanded equal rights to participate in the society into which they had been born and by which they had been denied the most essential benefits of citizenship: dignity, opportunity, justice. Their collective voice, a cry ignored and silenced during decades of struggle, was finally heard clearly and by the whole nation. The March on Washington illustrated the real scope of the civil rights movement. It was an event beyond race: an appeal to justice for all people of every group, a condemnation of the discrimination that keeps people hopelessly poor, and an invitation to America to acknowledge and destroy its anachronistic power system.

The 1963 March succeeded because no one could rationally deny that the participants were right. Had they somehow failed to articulate the passion and sincerity of their cause, the golden age of civil rights development in this country could have had a very different end. Saturday's re-created March on Washington was itself an indication of the effect of the original.

Things are not all well in the politics of 1993, but that is not due to a blind continuation of past policies. In fact, the most bizarre aspect of Saturday's march is that it was not a March on Washington at all. There is something about watching Jesse Jackson and Janet Reno walking together amid an estimated 75,000 nostalgic demonstrators that spoils the enlivening sense of confrontation so evident in 1963. It seems more like a large (but comparatively puny) photo-opportunity, already fading fast from public memory, an attempt to clone the spirit and power of a truly historical moment. Why gather a messy crowd to demand justice when the attorney general is standing beside you? Why preach peace and economic empowerment to the converted while a few blocks away the really violent of Washington's neighborhoods are attacking the really poor in an atmosphere of real oppression?

The time is past when social change can only be achieved through public protest. If government leaders participate willingly in a gathering designed to influence the same government, then we may have reached a point where mainstream political action is at last more effective than demonstrations. The tools of public dissent will never be abandoned, but there is no reason to waste energy making speeches outside the castle gates when the gates have been opened to discussion. Rather than insisting that Janet Reno express her commitment to the disenfranchised of America by spending a day out of the office, insist that she simply do her job.

Last romantic gets mad at biology

This column must begin with me tossing a bone to scientists. Here it is. My favorite high-school teacher was the one who taught biology. It was an unlikely subject to do much for a bleak fatalist like myself, a woman addicted to Salinger and Twinkies. Nonetheless, biology was the sleeper course of my high-school career. It's true, the teacher was very handsome and witty, which traits never torpedoed anybody's teaching style in the eyes of an adolescent, but the class was damned fine.

Now I'm all grown up. I study only what interests me. I write columns on whatever topic du jour claws its way to the top of the clutter in my junk shop of a brain. I can't be pushed around.

Lately, however, I've felt the odd sensation of jostling elbows, the elbows of biologists. Biologists think they have figured something out. To my way of thinking, biologists are supposed to figure things out. It's what they get paid to do, so they should just do it and keep quiet about it. When discovery looms, unfortunately, the behavior of biologists is not what one would expect of people accustomed to figuring things out. They hold press conferences. Suddenly the evening newscast that was supposed to show more pieces of St. Louis floating away in dank dilapidation becomes a platform from which biologists hold forth on what they figured out that day. I find this unseemly.

Recently, biology claims to have discovered that sexual orientation is dictated by chromosomes. It figures. Biologists have a stake in chromosomes. They would not flock to attribute sexual orientation to the color of an infant's bassinet, now would they? Everyone knew it was going to be a chromosome, some blood cells running a little more pink than red, or a gland pulsating amok, five times bigger than the equivalent organ in a heterosexual.

Apparently the X chromosome, mom's contribution to our genetic heritage, contains some markers that may be the magic ingredient that makes men gay. (Biologists aren't worrying much about what goes on with women. Give it a decade.)

Some people are pleased by this news. It is certainly a tidy piece of information, capable of putting the kabosh on numerous heated moral debates. It should wrest from holy rollers all reason to rail against "lifestyles" and "choices," and thus remove a lot of the ammunition used to condemn homos. Still, I'm not very happy about it. Whence this bitterness? From what nether corners of an old-fashioned woman's psyche comes this displeasure with scientific certainty?

Call me a radical. Call me impetuous. Call me mad, darling, if you must, and call me mad again! But I believe in love and romance. Even if it makes me the last — and therefore the most forlorn — romantic, I must stand and declare that I prefer to have a sexual preference. I have good taste, after all. I know what's important in life: coveting with a dangerous woman who is at least 40 and won't take "no" for an answer. Most importantly, I refuse to let some biologist tell me that I fall in love because a particular brand of microscopic critter assumed squatter status in what is now known as genetic region Xq28.

No, no, no! It was the perfume, I swear. It was her eyes, those incredible brown eyes, eyes the color of Amaretto in candlelight. We like the same music. We hate the same music. She, too, thinks Wrigley Field is the greatest spiritual mecca on the North American continent. She wants Candice Bergen. I want Catherine Deneuve. (This is important because it means we would not squabble over our dream date.) I love to cook. She thinks cooking means putting butter and apricot jam on a piece of toast. Occasionally she uses a knife — rather than the wrong end of a spoon — to accomplish this, which to her is haute cuisine. The preceding was brought to you by love, ladies and gentlemen. Chromosomes were not responsible for a single word of this paragraph.

If that doesn't convince you, let's carry it a bit farther. Let's say it is a bitter night in February. The wind has come up. With its help, the temperature sinks farther below zero every hour. We are warned not to leave our homes unless we must.

Chromosomes would certainly be your indoors on a night like that, wouldn't they, Mr. Scientific? Ah, but chromosomes ain't got nothin' on love, and love has me walking for a good 25 minutes to get to someone's home. She is waiting for me, aching for me. I am hatless, because I think I look bad in a hat. My ears have fallen off somewhere between Muscatine Avenue and Van Buren Street, but I don't worry: She'll think that I look really cute without ears, because I've lost them making my way to her.

It is so cold my eyes fill with tears. Into the wind I march, and as I march I whistle a song: Can you guess what it might be? A hint: It does not have the word "chromosome" in its title. I am whistling "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart." Pretty soon I begin to sing but since I'm frozen near to death, it's wordless, jazzy scatting. "Buh-buh-buh, Buh-buh-BUH! (long pause) Buh-buh-buh, Buh-buh-BUH! (long pause) BUH-buh-buh-buh, Buh buh BUUUU-UH!"

This is a true story, the tale of a wonderful, simple thing nobody has the answer to. So keep your chromosomes. I have a bitter cold night to walk through, and chromosomes won't get me from here to there. For that I need to be sustained by a force that speaks to my heart, not my DNA. I have a preference, all right, and it is for love and romance. But hey — thanks for looking into it.

DAVID M. MASTIO

Is this a case of murder or justifiable homicide?

Our country is suffering a serious case of denial, when two abortionists are killed and a third is wounded in a short span of time and no one wants to discuss the real issues raised by these attacks. There is more to these attacks than will allow me to fit in with the crowd and offer a blanket condemnation of violence against people who are not breaking any law. Killing is not always wrong and sometimes it's even a moral imperative. This is the idea that all concerned with the abortion debate are afraid to confront in any detail and with any level of honesty.

The pro-life leadership's denunciations of these killings and attacks are the most intellectually dishonest reactions I have heard in the whole debate. To a pro-life advocate, life begins at conception and all the doctors killed and wounded have taken the lives of these children and planned to continue killing. If you believe that the lives these men have taken were indeed human lives with value exactly the same as our own, then how can you say that deadly force is not justified in their defense? I believe that the life of a newborn infant is as valuable as my own, and would not hesitate to defend an infant with deadly force if necessary.

The abortionist in Kansas, Dr. Tiller, who was wounded by a pro-life advocate outside of his clinic, is a case where deadly force is justified. Dr. Tiller is one of only a few doctors who will perform third trimester abortions for reasons other than to save the life of the mother. The children killed in these abortions are capable of living outside the womb. Women who have these late-term abortions must either have a C-section or induced labor to remove the dead child from their uterus. It is undeniable that a fetus developed to the point where it can survive in the real world is human and deserving of the state's protection. For the woman's part, I don't understand why she would choose to kill her child when she has to go through the rigors of labor or surgical delivery anyway. It is particularly mind boggling when you consider the fact that thousands of childless couples would gladly pay the huge medical expenses necessary for taking care of a preterm baby. Is our society so sick that mothers find it easier to kill their unborn children rather than give them to an adoptive home even when there is little difference in the medical procedures and time necessary for either choice?

Dr. Tiller is not only responsible for the deaths of viable babies. According to a nurse who worked at his clinic, Dr. Tiller was dishonest with women about the development of their children to the point that he told women that their fetus was in the second trimester, when, in fact, it was in the third trimester. There is little difference between forcing a woman to have an abortion and providing false information that leads to her choosing to have an abortion. At two to three thousand dollars per operation, it isn't hard to understand his motivation.

Those who disagree with me may claim that I have no right to choose who should live and who should die, particularly when we live in a democratic society. I don't claim to have the right to make that choice, but civil disobedience is a moral imperative that must be exercised when the proper legal methods for preventing an injustice have failed or do not exist. I hold those who failed to act to prevent the Nazi atrocities during WWII responsible for their lack of action. Our country has a long history of allowing injustices to fester because they were legal and few had the moral strength to oppose those laws. Slavery and wife abuse were both legal and widely practiced in the United States. It is now becoming a settled point of law that when a woman is abused by her husband over a long period of time, killing her abuser is not a crime, even if her abuser is not threatening her at the time he is killed.

Our founding fathers also understood that even in a democracy the majority can be tyrannical towards the minority. That is why we have the Bill of Rights: to protect the rights of the minority from the tyranny of the majority.

Unborn children are the ultimate minority, faceless, voiceless and powerless. The majority and even the Supreme Court are not always right.

Pro-choice advocates have made a spectacularly stupid argument throughout the whole abortion debate and particularly of late regarding the role of killing in our society. Their argument has been to point out that many pro-lifers also believe in the death penalty, and that this is horribly inconsistent. To believe the argument of these abortion advocates, you would have to believe that there is no difference between convicted murderers and unborn children. The real question is, how do the many pro-choicers who disapprove of the death penalty justify the killing of innocents accused of no crime while defending the lives of convicted criminals guilty of only the most heinous crimes?

The real reason that abortion opponents have begun to take the law into their own hands is that their legal and legitimate methods of getting their message across are being slowly taken away. The first amendment is being crucified with overly broad stalking laws that have landed people in jail for eating at the same restaurant as an abortionist, restraining orders that prevent legal and constitutionally protected protest, and expensive legal suits that try to fine anti-abortion protesters for restricting interstate commerce. All of these, when used against civil rights protesters, were decry by the same liberals using them today against the pro-life movement.

I do not feel at all comfortable condoning violence of any kind in a democratic society, but each individual within it must decide for himself when an injustice has become too great and the legal system has failed. Even if only one-twentieth of 1 percent of all abortions that take place in the United States every year are third-trimester elective abortions, the death of a few abortionists is not too high a price to pay for protecting the 75 human lives that would have been needlessly taken.

GUEST OPINION

Taking back the phone lines

As we plummet toward the 21st century and fin de siècle pressures mount, causing a collective breakdown of our social fabric, we face a foe so relentless, so gruesome, that it makes German nihilism look like a church bake sale. It undermines the security of the home, opening up great chasms of disagreement between spouses; it saps the individual of his or her confidence; it introduces a chaotic element of randomness into the decision-making process. I'm talking, of course, about long-distance company price wars.

make at least 60 minutes of long-distance phone calls a month), or is it cheaper to call a number that is not in my calling circle but that gives me a 20-percent discount off the normal rates if I call after 9 p.m. on week nights, or 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Saturday, and then cash in my credit coupon?" Watson, come here; I want you.

So to save myself the embarrassment of saying, "Look, I have no idea whether I should switch to your plan because I can't do the quantum math," I've devised a few simple strategies for stopping these salespeople in their tracks.

First, you can say, "Your plan sounds great, but I'm telepathic and do all my long-distance communication

As for me, I must have been either Genghis Khan or the inventor of polyester, because at least twice a week some customer-service representative is calling my wife and me and grilling us with questions about our long-distance calling habits ...

If you don't know what I'm talking about, then either you never answer your phone or you were a saint in a previous lifetime and enjoy exceptional karma. As for me, I must have been either Genghis Khan or the inventor of polyester, because at least twice a week some customer-service representative is calling my wife and me and grilling us with questions about our long-distance calling habits: How many times a month do we call long distance? Do we call primarily within the state, out of state or internationally? Is there one particular number we call most frequently? Do we call during full moons mostly, or during the waxing or waning stages?

Usually I answer two or three questions before saying, "Look, we really aren't that interested." Of course, I end up feeling really bad about it, but I always manage to extricate myself with at least one shred of dignity. The thing is, we are interested in saving money, but quite honestly I have no idea whether calling plan X is any better than calling plan Y. I've been thinking about this for quite awhile, and from what I can tell, it all comes down to one simple question: "Is it cheaper for me to call a member of my calling circle between the hours of 8 and 10 p.m. while also enrolled in the EZ rate plan (provided that I by ESP." Or, if that's a little too Shirley MacLaine for you, try this simple rejoinder: "Well, to be quite honest, saving money really isn't a priority for me right now." If they try to riposte by stressing the higher quality of their phone service, shout into the receiver, "Whazzat? I can't hear you. You seem to be breaking up." Then hang up. Or — and this is my favorite — you can instill in them the same kind of doubt they try to instill in you. All you do is say mischievously, "Well, I've found a clever way to get all my long-distance service absolutely free. Hee hee." Then hang up quickly. Or, if you're a student, you can give an answer that probably is closer to the truth than any of the above: "I always call collect." Any of these should do the trick.

I don't suppose these solicitors ever will go away, but if we educate ourselves about what to do, if we stop viewing ourselves as victims, if we stand up for ourselves and take back the phone lines, then we will have made at least one small step back in the direction of sanity. (And if you ever figure out which plan is cheapest, let me know — but don't call collect.) Douglas E. Fishback submitted this guest opinion for publication.

Environmentalists, secular humanists will bring on judgment!

To the Editor:
Because these environmentalists have blocked desperately needed infrastructure projects on the grounds that these projects would cause a supposed or actual risk to some animal species, can the present flooding problems in the Midwest be laid directly at their feet?

Have they, in their new list of values on the species of nature, taken man from the top of the list and placed him last so that every species declared endangered, even vermin, can be protected without regard to man's survival? Aren't we headed in that direction? According to the testimony of these Earth Firsters, yes.

These environmentalists have put the proverbial cart before the horse. The Almighty created the earth for man's benefit, not man for the earth's benefit. If the policies of these people are carried out as presently planned, it will lead to the deaths of several billion people in the world and 200 million in the United States (see the May 1, 1987 issue of Earth First!, Page 32). They are the wolves in sheep's clothing mentioned in the New Testament, the most heinous murderers of all time. Will you be one of their victims? Yes.

Have both the Catholic and Protestant clergy in our beloved country been flagrantly violating the first commandment by replacing the God of love in their lives with the pagan god, Gaia?

Is the reason we are facing extinction due to the massive violation of the first, fifth and sixth commandments by our beloved people, the churches and our governments?

If these environmentalists are successful in the establishment of the Post Industrial Society, will this kill off the goose that lays the golden eggs? Yes.

Will culpable flooding in the Midwest be the straw that breaks the camel's back? Will that slumbering giant, the American people, finally awake? If we, the people, can't prevail on the governments of the world to abrogate these Malthusian environmental laws, these most heinous mass murderers of all time will bury us all.

O Lord, may we finally bring these terrible people down, for their own good as well as ours, before they destroy our beloved country and the world? May your truth that has been crushed to earth rise again.

The glory of the Almighty shines through the eyes of the innocent little children. How can we expect the generosity of the Almighty to continue when we reject and slaughter His gifts to us? The fact that in every election we continually elect well over 90 percent of these satanic helper incumbents testifies to what a perverse people we are. We not only sacrifice the unborn on the altar of the golden calf of secular humanism, but we condemn our youth to fight international bankers' wars around the globe.

Is the avenging angel that scourged ancient Egypt for their terrible transgressions doing the same in an unrepentant America today? (Particularly for the killing of 100 million children by abortion since Roe vs. Wade.) Will no one speak on behalf of these innocents?

There will be a day of reckoning either in this life or the next and perhaps both. Are we Americans about to experience the sufferings of the Third World?

Cornelius U. Morgan
Baltimore, Md.

'Stronger than ever'

To the Editor:
In "Three Days To See," Helen Keller told what she would do if she knew as a sighted person she would become blind at the end of 3 days. The first day she would go to live theater. The next day she would tour the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. The third day she would walk in unspoiled woods to see the plant and animal life that is so much the splendor of creation. In between she would memorize the faces of dear friends, relatives and children.

Why would an abortionist dare to deprive an unborn baby of the above joys I so often took for granted?

Slavery was once the scourge of the land. It was finally ended by the efforts of many ordinary, good folks.

Pro-lifers are stronger than ever. We mean to work to get abortion illegal again! We must keep praying, learning and teaching what abortion is and does and how cruelly it is done. Won't you join us?

MARCH TERMED 'REBIRTH'

Leadership dispute plagues civil rights

Sonya Ross
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two notices were served on the civil rights movement at the 30th anniversary march on Washington: the young may want to take over, but the old aren't ready to retire.

"We believe this march is not the benediction, but a rebirth," said Joseph Lowery, 70, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference for the past 17 years.

There was some talk that maybe the movement's elders would "pass the torch" of responsibility for social change at this additional celebration of 1963 and the dream of equality Martin Luther King Jr. embossed on the nation's psyche.

Yet on Saturday, fond remembrance prevailed, and the old guard made it clear that fond remembrance will endure.

"We're going to celebrate the march on Washington until there's nothing left to celebrate," declared Benjamin Hooks, 68, who retired from the NAACP and resurfaced at the helm of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

The young, however, made a few things clear, too.

"We let everybody know we will challenge, seriously, their leadership," said Carl Upchurch, 35, head of the National Urban Peace and Justice Movement and the most vocal critic of Saturday's festivities. "They're on notice now."

Upchurch, along with three other leaders from his group of reformed street gang members, appeared at Saturday's march, even though they had said they weren't coming.

They stood with NAACP executive director Benjamin Chavis, 45, who pledged his group's support of their efforts to curb violence in the inner city.

"We have worked with these gang members for over a year," Chavis said.

"Ben Chavis is welcome in our circles. He is making a valiant effort to link the traditional civil-rights efforts with our current struggle," Upchurch said. Other older black activists, he added, have not been so forthcoming.

But the young were. Upchurch's National Urban Peace and Justice Movement plans to link with the Student Coalition of Conscience, the teen-agers and young adults who worked with Saturday's march.

The Rev. Barry Hargrove, 27, a leader of that coalition and a youth coordinator for Saturday's march, said, "We were on the same side" on a lot of issues and will meet further to discuss strategy.

They want to "weave young America with urban America," Upchurch said, and take this mixture into every major civil rights forum, to tackle the problems most affecting the young: unemployment, poverty, murder.

Those sentiments were echoed by Lani Guinier, whose nomination as chief civil rights enforcer in the Justice Department was withdrawn by President Clinton.

"I think that there's a lot of energy in our youth and what we need to do is to tap into that energy and to help to create a climate, in which people are not afraid to talk about the hard problems," said Guinier on Sunday.

"I think that the apathy or the sense of alienation is profound. It is real and we have to deal with it," warned Guinier.

Tens of thousands of demonstrators march toward the Lincoln Memorial from the Washington Monument (background) during the 30th anniversary civil rights march on Washington on Saturday.

Brands brothers take World Wrestling titles

TORONTO (AP) — Terry Brands of Iowa City, Iowa, matched his twin brother's gold medal by beating Shim Sang-Ho of South Korea 3-0 at 125.5 pounds in the final session of the World Freestyle Wrestling Championships on Saturday.

Tom Brands won at 136.5 pounds on Thursday for the first American title of the competition. Terry Brand's gold was the third and helped the United States outdistance Russia 75-53 for the team title.

Field hockey ranked No. 5

The Iowa field hockey team is ranked No. 5 in the 1993 Division I preseason coaches poll.

Nation defending champion Old Dominion, which has not lost in 61 consecutive games, is ranked No. 1, followed by North Carolina, Maryland, Penn State and Iowa.

The national runner-up Hawkeyes begin their season by hosting three nationally-ranked teams Saturday and Sunday at Grant Field.

Hansen charged with drunken driving, speeding

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Former University of Iowa basketball star Bobby Hansen was charged with drunken driving and speeding early Saturday after being stopped by police for allegedly driving 100 mph on the Des Moines freeway.

Hansen, 32, said he was driving home after spending Friday night at the Iowa State Fair and the downtown Des Moines nightclub district. He said he had been drinking beer.

"I accept responsibility for my actions and intend to plead guilty to the charge," he said in a statement issued Saturday. "I apologize for any embarrassment this has caused for my family, friends and business associates."

Hansen is from West Des Moines. After playing at Iowa he went on to the NBA, ending his career with the Chicago Bulls championship team of 1992.

Burton beats out King to win duMaurier Classic

LONDON, Ontario (AP) — Brandie Burton made a 20-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole Sunday to keep Betsy King a frustrated third-round leader and win the rain-drenched duMaurier Classic.

Brandie Burton

King, who lost for the seventh time after heading into the final round as a leader, was going for victory No. 29, one short of induction into the LPGA Hall of Fame. King, who had a three-shot lead after 10, went on to a 1-under-71 for her 7-under 277.

Burton earned $120,000, while King, who had a one-stroke lead over Burton after three rounds, pocketed $74,474.

BASEBALL

Brett joins Mays, Aaron with mark

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett scaled a height Sunday, a mark previously achieved only by Willie Mays and Hank Aaron.

With a stolen base in the third inning against Boston, Kansas City's designated hitter joined Aaron and Mays as the only major leaguers with 3,000 hits, 300 homers and 200 stolen bases.

"It's not like 300 homers or 3,000 hits," Brett said. "But it's nice to be in the same company as Hank Aaron and Willie Mays. Let's be realistic. You play 20 years, and get 10 a year, that's 200. But when you combine it with the 3,000 and 300, it's pretty special."

Giants regain four-game lead over Braves

Associated Press

Giants 9, Marlins 3

MIAMI — Salomon Torres won his major-league debut Sunday night with the help of 15 hits by the San Francisco Giants, who snapped a season-high four-game losing streak by beating the Florida Marlins 9-3.

The 21-year-old Torres allowed five hits and two walks in seven innings, striking out six.

The NL West frontrunners, who begin a three-game series at Atlanta on Tuesday, regained a four-game lead over the Braves.

Florida's Chris Hammond (10-9) gave up 10 hits and six runs in 3½ innings.

Braves 8, Cubs 2

ATLANTA — David Justice hit a two-run homer — his fifth in five games — and Ron Gant drove in three runs with a pair of singles.

Atlanta's Tom Glavine (16-5) pitched seven innings for the win, giving up seven hits, five walks and three strikeouts.

Atlanta broke open a scoreless game in the fourth inning off Greg Hibbard (10-11) with four runs.

Phillies 12, Reds 0

PHILADELPHIA — Danny Jackson pitched seven strong innings and Mickey Morandini and Wes Chamberlain each drove in four runs as Philadelphia used a 17-hit attack to beat Cincinnati.

Jackson (11-9) struck out a season-high eight and walked one while allowing only five hits. Roger Mason pitched two hitless innings.

Loser Tim Lincecum (8-13) gave up five runs and seven hits in 1½ innings.

Expos 3, Astros 2

MONTREAL — Marquis Grissom hit a three-run homer and Ken Hill (8-5) tossed five-hit ball for seven innings as Montreal beat Houston to sweep the three-game series. Montreal has won four straight games, and handed the Astros their fourth loss in a row.

Grissom hit a two-out, full-count pitch by Greg Swindell (10-10) in the fifth for his 14th home run.

Dodgers 8, Cardinals 3

LOS ANGELES — Mike Piazza hit two homers to drive in three runs and winner Orel Hershiser (10-12) pitched six solid innings while increasing his batting average to .424 with an RBI double as the Los Angeles beat St. Louis.

Rookie Allen Watson (6-2) allowed six runs and 11 hits in 4½ innings.

Rockies 6, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Lance Painter (1-2) pitched a five-hitter.

Frank Tanana (7-12) lost for the fifth time in his last seven starts.

Pirates 7, Padres 4 (1st)

Padres 11, Pirates 0 (2nd)

PITTSBURGH — Doug Brocail (3-10) stopped a personal seven-game losing streak, pitching seven shutout innings as San Diego routed Pittsburgh and rookie John Hope (0-1) to split their doubleheader.

In the opener, Bob Walk (12-12) stopped his four-game losing streak and San Diego's five-game winning streak for the Pirates. Andy Ashby's (2-8) wild pitch set up two runs.

Flood waters continue to cover Iowa's softball complex in Coralville. The softball, track, cross country and recreational sports teams have made alternative arrangements for practices and competitions until damage to the area can be assessed by university architectural engineers.

Teams find new homes after flood

Kris Wiley

The Daily Iowan

Several UI athletic programs have found alternative facilities at which to practice and compete since flood waters damaged the Coralville sports complex.

The softball, track and cross country teams, along with some recreational sports, will be relocated for the fall sports season.

"This is tough because we rely on the use of the track on quite a few occasions," said Jerry Hassard, Iowa women's cross country and track coach. "We need the area by design to measure with accuracy where our athletes stand."

Assistant Facilities Manager Kelli Grey said the flood has left Francis X. Cretzmeyer track with large bubbles on its surface and the Hawkeye softball complex is still under nearly two feet of water. Until flood waters recede, university architectural engineers will not be able to assess the area.

"I can't even venture to guess what the cost will be," he said.

Iowa men's cross country coach Larry Wiecek said his team and the track squad, which normally use the track in the fall, will relocate at a high school facility.

"The short term is something we can live with. The long term is the big question," Wiecek said. "We're a Big Ten school and we need Big Ten facilities."

Hassard said the inconvenience may affect recruiting.

"This can be positive if recruits are open-minded. They will see what we could have in the way of facilities in the future," he said. "We'll struggle, but we'll make due with what we have."

The softball team will practice and play its fall schedule at Mercer Park's complex on the east side of Iowa City.

"It is a disadvantage to the students to have to be transported to another facility," Coach Gayle Blevins said. "It is cumbersome from a time standpoint."

Blevins said her team, which begins practice Sept. 7, will have to replace some equipment, but were fortunate not to lose everything.

"The most important thing is to deal with this as best we can," she said. "There is no reason to feel sorry for ourselves. It's important that we continue to compete."

Recreational services, which use the softball complex and the open field east of the track for intramural and club sports, will cancel their softball games and rearrange schedules for other sports. Rugby, lacrosse, soccer and ultimate frisbee will share fields located at Hawkeye Apartments and Hubbard Park.

"We'll make due with the fields we have, but it's going to be pretty crowded," Associate Director of Recreational Services Ray Beemer said.

Blevins said the softball fields will need to be completely redone before Iowa can return to its home. Though she cannot tell how long the Hawkeyes will compete in Mercer Park, Blevins, like other flood victims, is remaining positive about the situation.

"We will be as productive as possible in the fall season," Blevins said. "There are not a lot of other options."

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Yankees win, split series with Indians

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Paul O'Neill hit a three-run double and the New York Yankees scored six times after a controversial play in the sixth inning Sunday, turning around a lopsided game and beating the Cleveland Indians 14-8.

Dion James drove in four runs for the Yankees, who overcame an early 7-2 deficit to gain a split of the four-game series. The 14 runs were a season high.

Rich Monteleone (7-4) got the win with 1½ scoreless innings. Reliever Jason Grimsley (1-1) gave up four runs and three hits in two-thirds of an inning.

Blue Jays 6, Mariners 2

SEATTLE — Roberto Alomar hit the first grand slam of his career and the Toronto Blue Jays averted a four-game sweep by beating Seattle.

Alomar's slam highlighted a five-run third inning against Erik Hanson (10-11). Todd Stottlemeyer (8-9) gave up two runs on seven hits in eight innings.

Royals 5, Red Sox 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Greg Gagne singled home Wally Joyner with one out in the 12th inning, lifting Kansas City over the Red Sox.

John Dopson (7-9), the sixth Boston pitcher, gave up a leadoff single to Joyner and Gary Gaetti sacrificed. After Kevin McReynolds was intentionally walked, Gagne singled.

Mark Gubicza (4-6) shut out Boston on two hits for two innings.

Orioles 6, Rangers 3

ARLINGTON, Texas — Jamie Moyer extended his scoreless-inning streak to 20, shutting down Texas before tiring in Baltimore's victory.

Moyer (10-6) did not give up a run until the seventh inning.

Brian Bohanon (4-3), taking injured Nolan Ryan's spot in the rotation, lasted 4½ innings.

Athletics 7, Tigers 3

OAKLAND, Calif. — Bob Welch helped the Oakland Athletics end their longest losing streak since

Associated Press

Kansas City's George Brett steals the 200th base of his career during the third inning of the Royals' 5-4 win over the Red Sox Sunday in Kansas City.

1986 at nine games, defeating Detroit.

Welch (9-7) struck out a season-high eight in 6½ innings.

John Doherty (11-10) lasted only 2½ innings.

Angels 6, Brewers 1

MILWAUKEE — Rene Gonzales doubled twice and drove in two runs for the California Angels.

Langston (14-6) allowed one unearned run on five hits over six innings. He struck out seven and walked two. Rafael Novoa (0-3) was the loser.

White Sox 13, Twins 5

CHICAGO — Frank Thomas hit his 36th home run and had three RBIs in helping Kirk McCaskill to his first victory since Aug. 3.

McCaskill (4-7), making his first start since Aug. 3, allowed one run in six innings.

Rookie Eddie Guardado (3-7) allowed seven runs in 2½ innings in his third straight loss.

U.S. OPEN

Seles visits; matches to begin today

Steve Wilstein

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Monica Seles made her first public appearance at a tennis event since her stabbing in April, returning Sunday to the scene of her 1991 and 1992 U.S. Open triumphs to join the tennis world in memory of Arthur Ashe.

Seles, smiling at courtside the day before the Open begins without her in the draw, waved to 13,000 fans who gave her a standing ovation. She sat beside Ashe's widow Jeanne and daughter Camera, signed autographs and leaned over a railing from the president's box to exchange a kiss and hug with Jennifer Capriati.

"It's a very special day," said Seles, who asked Saturday to attend this exhibition.

Seles plans to hold a news conference Monday, shortly after her successor at No. 1, Graf, begins play against Robin White.

Men's No. 1 Jim Courier and No. 2 Pete Sampras played the first 12-point tiebreaker exhibition, but won't start for real until Tuesday or Wednesday.

Among the featured matches Monday are four-time champion and No. 3 seed Martina Navratilova against Gloria Pizzichini; No. 4 Conchita Martinez against Sandrine Testud; No. 9 Anke Huber against Karin Kschwendt; men's No. 9 Petr Korda against Wayne Ferreira, and No. 14 Alexander Volkov against Jonathan Stark.

John McEnroe, a television commentator at this Open after 16 straight years as a player, said he thought only five men — Courier, Sampras, Agassi, Stefan Edberg and Boris Becker — have solid shots at winning.

McEnroe was one of only three players to win three in a row, along with Ivan Lendl and Bill Tilden, winner of six straight during the 1920s.

"To me, it's a great opportunity for Andre and Boris," said McEnroe, who is close friends of both. "Jim and Pete are fighting for No. 1 in the rankings. It would make it so much more exciting if Andre or Boris won."

Tar Heels take care of Southern Cal

Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Two players named Johnson boosted North Carolina's football fortunes with a 31-9 victory over Southern Cal in the Pigskin Classic on Sunday night.

Leon Johnson and Curtis Johnson helped the Tar Heels, ranked 20th in the preseason poll, spoil John Robinson's return as coach of the 18th-ranked Trojans after a 10-year absence.

Leon Johnson carried the ball 10 times for 94 yards and caught four passes for 35. Curtis Johnson gained 78 yards on 17 carries.

Coach Mack Brown won his fifth season opener in six years at North Carolina, while the Tar Heels have 20 of their last 24 opening games.

Robinson's plan to reinstitute the Trojans' famed running game ran into an immediate snag. Dwight McFadden, the team's best rusher, broke his left ankle late in the first quarter. The sophomore gained 44 yards on seven carries.

KICKOFF CLASSIC

No. 1 Seminoles roll over Kansas

Associated Press
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Top-ranked Florida State easily passed its first test of the season. However, the Seminoles' toughest tests are yet to come.

Following his team's 42-0 victory over Kansas in the Kickoff Classic, Florida State coach Bobby Bowden struck a cautionary note.

"I don't think Kansas is strong enough for us to answer questions about our team," he said.

Bowden knows those questions will be answered later against powers like Miami, Notre Dame and Florida. But he admitted he was pleasantly surprised by the Seminoles' performance Saturday, especially the shutout posted by the defense.

Bowden was worried that his defense, which lost six starters to graduation or the NFL and two key returning players to injuries, could be vulnerable this season. No weaknesses were apparent against Kansas, though. The defense stole the show with a sensational goal-line stand that preserved Florida State's first shutout since a 58-0 win over Western Michigan in 1991. After pass interference gave Kansas a first down at the Florida State 1 in the second quarter, the Jayhawks had seven cracks at crossing the goal line. But the Seminoles held, stopping Charles Henley inches short on the final play.

"If their defense is their weak link, we certainly didn't see it today," Kansas receiver Greg Ballard said.

Last season's defense, which featured four high NFL draft picks, gave up an average of 16 points and 293 yards per game. The 1993 unit held Kansas to zero points and 240 yards.

"We already knew we had talent, but we found out we had heart, too," said Florida State linebacker Derrick Brooks, named the game's most valuable player after eight tackles and one sack. "We believe we can be a very good defense."

The Seminoles' defensive dominance was surprising, but their offensive output was not.

"They're a big-play offense," Kansas safety Kwamie Lassiter said. "We made some mistakes and they capitalized on them."

Associated Press
FSU's Derrick Alexander tackles Kansas' Fred Thomas during FSU's 42-0 win.

Despite the lopsided loss, Kansas coach Glen Mason had no regrets about accepting the Kickoff Classic invitation. "I'd do it again in a second," he said. "We had an opportunity to play the No. 1 team in the nation, everyone was tremendous to us and we got some national exposure."

GOLF

Allem pulls away for World Series victory

Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio — Fulton Allem turned an eight-man race into a rout with a spectacular 8-under-par 62 and cruised to a five-stroke victory in the World Series of Golf on Sunday.

Fulton Allem

Allem, one of eight players within a shot of the lead starting the final round, pulled away with six birdies in an eight-hole stretch and never looked back in beating Nick Price, defending champion Craig Stadler and Jim Gallagher.

The stocky, 35-year-old South African capped off the best final round in the history of this elite, winners-only event with a 6-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

"He just blew us away," said Price, who had a closing 68. "He didn't give us a chance. Ten under. I can't believe it. That's a great round of golf."

"Sixty-two?" Stadler questioned, his eyebrows raised. "Good Lord.

Is that what he shot? No wonder he blew us away.

"It was that stretch in the middle. I look at the leaderboard and he's 5 under. Then I look at the leaderboard and he's 9 under. Are you sure he didn't skip a couple of holes?"

Stadler, who shot 67, and Price gained a share of second when Gallagher finished with a 68.

Vijay Singh of Fiji came on with a 66 and was fifth at 277. David Edwards, 72-279, was the only other to break par for four rounds over the parched, spiked-up, treacherous greens of the Firestone Country Club.

Greg Norman, in a share of the lead after three rounds, had double-bogeys on both the first and ninth holes and wasn't a factor in the title chase.

He finished with a 73 and was at par, 280.

The victory was Allem's second of the season, third of his American career and 17th around the world.

It was worth $360,000 from the total purse of $2 million and raised his season's earnings to $770,438.

TENNIS

Chang upset by unseeded Swiss in final

Associated Press
COMMACK, N.Y. — Unseeded Marc Rosset, the Olympic gold medalist from Switzerland, powered his way past fifth-seeded Michael Chang 6-4, 3-6, 6-1 to win the Hamlet Cup tennis tournament Sunday.

The 6-foot-7 Rosset, winner of seven of eight matches since undergoing a tonsilectomy in July, used nine aces and a strong forehand to keep Chang off balance.

"You can't hit what you can't see," said Chang, who had reached the final by beating top-seed Stefan Edberg of Sweden Saturday.

"Rosset has one of the biggest serves and forehands in the game. It's frustrating when you don't get many service break opportunities and can get only one break in the match."

Rosset, ranked 30th in the world, is the first unseeded player to win the Hamlet since Jonas Svensson of Sweden in 1987. He had the seventh-ranked Chang on the run constantly and forced numerous forehand errors.

"I always play well against him (Chang). I put pressure on him," said Rosset, who was in only his second final of the year. He won at Marseille in February.

Rosset rallied from 30-40 in the second game. At 3-4, he won the last 10 points of the set.

Rosset, who had seven aces, took a 3-0 lead in the third set. Chang, winner of 13 of his previous 14 matches, got only four points against four Rosset service games in this set.

Chang's previous loss was to 6-5 Richard Krajicek in the Los Angeles final.

Rosset received $39,600 for winning. Chang got $23,330.

In HIGH SIERRA, Humphrey Bogart plays "Mad Dog" Earle, a notorious criminal whose fate is sealed by his love for a young girl (Ida Lupino). This film, made in 1941, revitalized Bogart's career after years of decline in the late 1930's and helped establish the "Bogie" persona that made him legendary.

Singer drops out of flood-benefit concert

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — Without explanation, Joni Mitchell pulled out of a benefit concert that would have raised money to help send Pennsylvania volunteers to flood-ravaged Iowa.

The Troubadours of Folk benefit concert had been scheduled to begin a national tour Saturday at Montage Mountain Resort in Lackawanna County.

Mitchell's pullout Thursday canceled the event. Fans lost the opportunity to see Mitchell, Roger McGuinn, Richie Havens, Janis Ian and others.

Community organizers gave no reason for Mitchell's cancellation.

Kaufman's filmic novels show literate, gutsy style

Ian Corwin
The Daily Iowan

Tired of reading? Watch Philip Kaufman's movies. They read just as well as the novels they're based upon, and I'll even suggest that, aside from Stanley Kubrick, Kaufman is the most literate filmmaker working today.

A list of Kaufman's minor works reads like a roster for Tinseltown Boot Camp — he was responsible (along with Larry Kasdan) for the story of "Raiders of the Lost Ark," helmsman of the truly frightening 1979 remake of "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," (based more upon the original novel than on the McCarthy-esque paranoia-style version of the '50s), and the fighting craftsman who brought Milan Kundera's erotic, funny and provocative novel "The Unbearable Lightness of Being" to the screen, despite admonitions from practically every filmmaker, literary critic and aesthete that it couldn't be done.

It was done, with style, gusto and cojones — three elements of human creativity which still grease the wheels of the literary world, although they have sadly dried to fossilized rabbit turds on the sidewalks of Rodeo Drive, dying a Hollywood death.

Kaufman has the kind of determined, John Huston-ish obsessive qualities that infuse every one of his works with an eerie beauty. Maybe it's the subject matter (sex, death and bowler hats) coupled with the fading, ethereal glow of a Hollywood that has ceased to be romantic that gives his flicks their novelistic touch. Whatever the case, my sortie into the video pit this week has yielded two of Kaufman's gems, shining bright in the cesspool of Hollywood's death throes.

The Right Stuff (1983) — here it is, with most of the details and nuances from Tom Wolfe's epic tome of the same title intact. I used the film myself to get through an epic and tragic lit class. I didn't have time to slog through 900 pages of good, albeit long-winded literature, so I popped on the flick. Screw Cliff's Notes, see the movie.

America's age of naiveté and unquestioning loyalty to the Fight and Flag are played out beautifully here, in a story about courage, honor and what it's like to be a test-pilot's wife. From an air-force base in the California desert to Cape Canaveral to Houston and all points in between, it's the story of America's birth as a giant in Space Exploration and the first seven Mercury astronauts who rode the rockets into history.

Kaufman's skill as storyteller glazes brighter than a solid-fuel booster on this one, with the tales of the Mercury Men gradually intertwining with the saga of Chuck Yeager, the "fastest man alive" (until they figured out that traveling at Mach One would not, in fact, rip off a human's ears). Kaufman uses, and in some instances, expands on Wolfe's idea of bravery and guts — mostly by eliciting a quiet, clever performance from wind-burned stud Sam Shepard as Yeager.

Books could be written about this film — the performances from Scott Glen, Ed Harris, Fred Ward and Dennis Quaid as the Mercury Crew help give the work a full, flowing cast of characters, with fine work coming especially from Veronica Cartwright as Mrs. Gus Grison. Donald Moffat turns in a fairly accurate caricature of Lyndon Johnson, and Jeff Goldblum and Harry Shearer expand the film's sense of humor as the duo assigned by Washington to find the original seven astronauts.

At three hours plus, it is a long, dense thing — surprisingly, though, it's never boring. In fact, it's probably the most exciting history lesson I've ever had.

And speaking of history, let's talk about Paris in the late 1920s and early '30s. I don't mean the idealized, champagne-and-café Paris of Hemingway and Fitzgerald — I mean the gritty, real Paris of Henry Miller, as painted in "Tropic of Cancer." Such is the backdrop of Henry & June (1990). Kaufman creates a novel of a film again.

As erotic as Anais Nin's "Delta of Venus," as riveting as Miller's "Rosy Crucifixion" trilogy, "Henry & June" takes us from the lofty heights of sensuality to the lowly depths of a public pissoir, all the while reminding us that life is for living and sex is fun, when accomplished with a bit of finesse.

Based upon Nin's diaries, the film is a double story. On the one hand, there is Nin's awakening to a world of sensual pleasures that stimulates her writing and fosters a lifelong bond with fellow "hot-house" writer Miller — on the other, there are Miller's first birth-pangs as a writer abroad and his tempestuous relationship with his slightly unbalanced wife, June.

The performances here are broad and filled with gusto (especially Fred Ward as the "virile" Miller). The actors parade through a Paris that is lovingly photographed and brutally real, right down to the cathouses and open-air urinals that make the City of Lights so goll-derned wunnerful. The romanticism here is not for the place, but for the people and the ideas that the place gave birth to.

Richard E. Grant shines as Nin's banker husband, and Uma Thurman is surprisingly adept at giving a confusing character like June the depth that she deserves.

Kaufman works on a plane that more filmmakers should try to reach — with full-bodied characters and a welter of ideas, he explores terrain that heretofore has been reserved for the power of words, not images. I toast him with the vibrant words of Henry Miller — "Drink cold, piss warm."
