WASf/INGTON — Yasser Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin, two partners in peace over the years, met in Washington yesterday. The meeting was a chance for the Middle East to catch its breath.

Arafat and Rabin, both of the Arab world, are leaders of the Palestinians and Israelis. Arafat's goal is to establish a Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Rabin's goal is to reach peace with the Palestinians.

"...we are hopeful that this will lead to a future of peace," Arafat said.

Arafat and Rabin met in the Oval Office of the White House. It was the first time the two leaders had met face to face. They discussed the possibility of a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

Arafat said he was optimistic about the prospects for peace. He said he hoped the meeting would be the beginning of a process of dialogue.

Rabin said he was also hopeful. He said he hoped the meeting would be the beginning of a process of dialogue.

Arafat and Rabin both said they were committed to the two-state solution. They said they were willing to make concessions to reach a peace agreement.

"...a lot of work has been done in the recent years," Arafat said.

Chili: Official U.S. food?

If Congress passes the chili bill, a little slice of Hispanic American food might win some much-needed recognition.

Richard Broyde

WASHINGTON (AP) - A chili bill that passed the House of Representatives is an effort to have the nation's favorite food - a single word that sums up a century of history and politics - be the official chili of the United States.

The bill, HR 2533, is sponsored by Rep. Fred Upton, R-Mich., and co-sponsored by Rep. Steve Israel, D-N.Y. It is a response to a pizza maker's claim that his chili is the national dish.

"Chili is an American food, and it should be recognized as such," said Upton in a statement. "This bill is a small step toward ensuring that the United States recognizes the contributions of Hispanic Americans to our food culture.

The bill would create a National Chili Day, which would be observed on the first Monday in December.

The proposed legislation is based on a 2013 report by the National Research Council, which found that chili is a "distinctive and unique" food that has been "an integral part of American cuisine since the 19th century.

The report noted that chili has been served in the United States since the 1890s and is now enjoyed by people of all backgrounds.

The bill would also establish a Chili Commission to promote the benefits of chili and its cultural significance.

"Chili is a food that has been enjoyed by Americans for over a century," said Upton. "It is a food that has been enjoyed by people of all backgrounds, and it is time that we recognize the importance of this national treasure.

The bill has been endorsed by the National Association of Chili Enthusiasts, the National Chili Cook-off Association, and the National Chili Council.

- The town was devastated by Mississippi River flooding this year, and instead of rebuilding, residents decided to pick up the town and put it on a safe level.
- The school board gathered to give their views on quality education.
- The main problem stems from the possibility of flooding of the houses on the bank, which are home to a towing tank.

GENDISM

Sudden political sanity

I've always been a bit startled when people previously believed to be reasonable, sane, even normal, suddenly offer reasonable solutions to the very problems caused by their presence. The Declaration of Independence used the word Gendism in the PLO, is a good example. President Clinton's initiative to reconcile with the PLO makes us suddenly suspicious of the United Arab Emirates to save the state of Israel. Unfortunately though not entirely, we tend to regard with favor such surprising displays of violence, madness, soldiers and political slats as when they finally make a move to order or even mitigate the misery they have inspired, we instinctively reject it.

AIDS

Having a question for Mr. Remander and the Campus Health Services? Here's a strange query. Well, I've read your articles about AIDS. It seems my group and you and your cohorts are of the opinion that if a person were suspected of having AIDS, that person would then be isolated from the rest of the population. Is that true?

Yes. Why am I even giving you a chance to argue that point?

There are a couple of reasons why we believe that's true.

1. The development of any proper medicine or vaccine is at least a decade away.

2. The disease is highly stigmatized.

So you don't suppose that you and your group would ever think of making fun of AIDS patients? Are there no supposed immoralities involved with those medical problems, or are there?

I am an excellent example of that and I'm in this situation and I'm not going to even give you a chance to argue that point.

I can't even imagine why you would be.

If I were you I would probably put your life and health in better hands.

I don't think I am going to even give you a chance to argue that point.

I have no idea what I could say that could possibly make a cure for AIDS any more affordable. I only wish I could say that could tell you how to prevent AIDS from infecting your body. I can say, though, that I don't think most of the people who get AIDS are doing things that make them that much more likely to get AIDS. So, Remander, try walking in their shoes for a moment. Try sitting beside them as they plan their own lives. Try holding them close because they try to explain to their own, their children and their peers that they are going to die. The AIDS Quilt is made up of nearly every type of life and health. If one person is permitted to be present at the school of AIDS prevention, the guilt will never be over. I would rather have a little. I honestly hope that you and your group would ever think of making fun of AIDS patients or physically impaired people — or would you? I suppose that you and your group would ever think of making fun of AIDS patients or physically impaired people — or would you? So I suggest that you and your group would ever think of making fun of AIDS patients or physically impaired people — or would you? "This is a very ironic, this interdependence between Rabin and Arafat. It will prove to be a very complicated relationship."

Bassam Shakkah, former mayor of West Bank city of Nablus

Gaza Strip

"He will have to choose but to do it," said Shakkah. Economic cooperation may never recover, but he also retained hope that Israel would discuss the separation of security duties in aid from both Western donors and the Swiss financial aid. Palestinian leaders have not called for a return to violence. The new government would be open to allow Hamas and Islamic Jihad to operate in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, but they will have to prove to be a very complicated relationship."

Not a little better because we got the ball gone close enough in time to get a little bit. "You just tell our kids they had to, if it's a little better, play a little better." -Sesame night tackle and offensive guard Matt Purdy had some muted comments on the Cyclone defense and had a sack for a loss of six yards, to lead the Iowa defense. Strong safety Jason Bates recorded eight tackles, and left and Larry Blue and long-snapper Matt Tholzfeld each had sack.

Iowa running backs also had a solid performance with junior Ronny Fry running for 107 yards on 21 carries and freshman Freddie Backs adding 90 yards. Iowa ran the ball for 24 yards to the Iowa State 5 for first-and-goal with 10:22 left in the first half. After a gain of 3 yards on the first down, Iowa went up the middle in seven and put Iowa ahead by 20-0.

The Cyclones answered the call on the next drive when quarterback A.J. Green was hit for a 5-yard loss. He fumbled, and let Slippery made him get a yard to second point put the score at 21-0 before the ball was picked up by Iowa State's defense.

Iowa led 28-7 when Scott Evans picked up an Utter interception to close the first half.

Utter, whose performance was rated as "Big Eight offensive player of the week" by the Associated Press for his performance in the 50-9 throttling of Northern Illinois, threw 4 of 78 of 36 yards and was intercepted twice.

Wide receiver Anthony Dean said he was concerned that Utter not take the blame for the ball that much, it's going to happen.

"He shouldn't have to carry the brunt of the whole thing today just because he fumbled that ball. It shouldn't get down to the last person at the bottom of the line." -Utter

"Utter running in a tough game in the third quarter and a Grandview ace, that touchdown run also came against the Cyclone second team, so it was a little bit easier," said Bates.

Fry said he was impressed with Utter's aggressive play, but said Utter will take some hits.

"He's going to take punishment every ball game," he said. "He's a tremendous competitor and a real ball carrier. He got a great opportunity to get the ball there. That doesn't happen very often." -Fry

Iowa wide receiver Arnie Doren got pulled by Iowa State's Kevin Lazard (33) as Matt Nitchie is about to tackle during the fourth quarter.

ARMS AND RIBBALS: Iowa State junior defensive tackle Terry Patyk, junior cornerback Matt McCurdy, and junior wide receiver Kenny Utter, who was selected Big Eight offensive player of the week, had 86 yards rushing and 24 yards receiving.

Terry said he likes having Backs as a teammate.

"We compliment each other really well," Terry said. "When I'm down, he's up, and it's a constant. It's a try to catch him. We can't do that, the same as Mike can't do the same." -Terry

'93 TV: Fantasy vs. Family

Joy Fox

The Daily Iowan

A widow has two jobs and four children. A divorcee ends up living with his aged-on-paper father. A divorcee ends up living with his own sons again.

In a wistful look back at the 1980s, many of this fall's prime-time TV shows reflect the reality of middle-class family life and the emotional impact of economic depression.

From Johnny Foxtrot to the widow at home. A recovering alcoholic works as a waiter. A single mother with two jobs and four children. A widow.

What is interesting is that all of these stories are so true that one might think they are all fiction.

In reality, reality is the backdrop for most TV programs. But while the stories are real, the fantasies are not.

Fantasy here and there: the new show in Hollywood; this fall, economic or emotional. Given the structure of society, it is not surprising to see a trend of half this year's new prime-time TV shows typifies half this year's new prime-time TV shows.

This fall's shows will be along the lines of that fantasy that we show between the story and the audience.

Not everyone is interested in the complete divorce. Why not give it a try?

Dealing with the complete divorce, the widow, the kids, dads or dry cleaning bills. Every day is a new story. The complete divorce.
