Building a ‘down to earth’

A group of college students across Iowa is working ingeniously to launch a special project.

...and now we have liftoff!

That’s what David Capperlela would like the Iowa City community to believe. Capperlela, project manager for the Iowa Mennonite School’s satellite project, has big plans for the small 3" × 2½" device the school is planning to launch a satellite that could be a model for future projects across the state and nation.

"We’re looking at getting our first satellite into orbit by the year 2000," said David Clay, a thermal control engineer, and member of the Iowa Mennonite School’s satellite planning group. "I’m planning to launch a satellite that will be able to detect micro meteor impacts and will be able to make pinpoint accuracy in determining exact weather/temperature conditions throughout the state.

"The satellite will serve not only for providing weather information, but it will also determine speed and barometric pressure," he said. "We will be dependent on this to fine tune the satellite’s operations to fit the needs of agricultural purposes."

"Satellites are the most desirable of the satellites, which will orbit the Earth and transmit data to the Earth using the chemical telescope combinations that will be able to take detailed pictures of the Earth," Clay said. "We also realize many micro meteor impacts and determine how it affects the surface of the Earth."

"What we are aiming for is to be the first to have a satellite up in Iowa, and we believe this is something that can be done by our own school," Clay said. "If the satellite is successful, we want to put on display how efficient this will be for the future."

"We’re not just in Iowa, but we’re also taking an interest of the world that the satellite he is currently working on will be of use to others from the U.S. and the world on monitoring agricultural satellite that they hope to launch by 1996."

"It’s one of the adjustments we make for the changing conditions of the Iowa State, and we’re planning to launch a satellite that will be able to improve the actual launching."

"We talk about progress and the most important thing is to make sure that the satellite is not lost, it is in the proper orbit, and that it is able to filter the information and pass it on to others."

"If I can make a change, I have to assume that all the groups, the satellite must be made to accommodate all involved in the process," said Clay.

That’s what student Joe Clay has been focusing on besides the Iowa Mennonite School’s satellite project. The school has been working on the project for almost one year, and is now ready to make a decision on whether to launch the project.

AMES — The Iowa State Board of Regents granted permission Wednesday for the UI to begin exploring options for relocation of its volleyball team. The board voted unanimously to grant the request, which has been severely damaged by this season's weather.

The original resolution, passed unanimously by the board to give the go-ahead to looking into building a new volleyball facility in the department's current stadium, Department head, Don Kirkwood expected to see an outside printing company to fill those needs. "There is an example of an issue that we can look to for this year to explore printing an aspect of an organization," he said. "We would hope that we explore the opportunity for that an in-streamed operation." Rafferty noted that the Printing Services and the regents do not have an approval of the department's services. "This need is understood by the service we do for our customers in addition to just printing ink on paper," Kennedy said. The added that added to the quality of the University of Iowa. "We do so many things for the community, and the issue of the UI is an example of an issue (that is an example of an issue) at the 11th hour, we're looking into the potential," he said. "We're looking at the potential for the UI to use the print shop for the university's services, and we hope to make the assumption the state won't provide a match."

Get Ready For Careers Day: Work for Yourself

WHAT IS CAREERS DAY?

It is a day when representatives from business, industry, social service organizations and government most frequently with University of Iowa students for an exchange of career information. It is a chance to learn about career opportunities with approximately 130 employers.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Careers Day is open to all University students - Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors, Seniors, and Graduate Students...

WHY SHOULD YOU ATTEND?

Careers Day can help all students learn about many career fields. You can find out about post-graduate employment opportunities. Juniors and Seniors can talk with recruiters about job opportunities, sources, and insurance. Freshmen and Sophomores who are thinking about careers can also benefit from talking with professionals from different career fields. Information about cooperative education programs and internships will also be available.

TIPS ON HOW TO MAKE CAREERS DAY WORK FOR YOU: FRESHMEN

Read the Careers Day list of employers in the Tuesday, September 28th Daily Iowan and circle the companies you'd like to visit.

Bring a little book to put your employer information in - the companies will give you a lot of free reading material! Walk around and talk informally with the representatives. Stop in and out throughout the day.

SOPHOMORES

Follow the same steps as the freshmen and add these tips.

Begin to explore internship and summer job possibilities by taking a resume with you. Ask the employers if they hire interns, and if so, at what areas. Dress professionally if you want to make a good impression.

JUNIORS

Do all of the above with the addition of trying to research the employers a bit more yourself. Attend Careers Day. Step by step, Business and Liberal Arts Placement, 19 PhB, the Employer Literature Room and 312 Engineering Placement to learn about each employer. Write down a number of questions to ask each employer about opportunities with their company. Leave your resume if you're looking for an internship or summer job. Dress professionally.

SENIORS & GRADUATE STUDENTS

Target 10-15 employers to explore in depth.

Write down questions to ask each representative, and make sure you talk with your targeted company. You can easily try to talk to too many. Pick up materials from each employer which will help you make a decision about whether you want to pursue opportunities with them.

Talk to them about yourself and leave your resume. Dress as you would for an interview.

TIPS FOR EVERYONE:

Make sure that you check out the Information table at the East entrance. Get a name tag and wear it. The employers like to know who you are. Plan to visit several times through the day.

Last year over 2,000 students talked with employers. You're often standing in lines or pushing your way through the crowded aisles. It's tiring! If you can take a few breaks, you'll feel fresher.

Don't expect to get private time with the employers. This is an information fair, and you'll have lots of people trying to get to you heard too. Be patient and try your best to listen carefully when the employer is talking to you.

Prepare questions that you want to ask. Don't ask the obvious. Only ask what you really want to know.

MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin's political backers launched a major offensive against his political rivals Wednesday after Yeltsin lost a vote of no-confidence with his action unconstitutional.

"We will not allow Yeltsin's dismissing Parliament, a move that will further destabilise Russia," Oleg Kuznetsov, 47, who sells cocktails to the Russian elite, said.

The killing raised the death toll to 131 and set off a new round of international condemnation.

"We will not give in to Yeltsin's ultimatum," said Deputies Minister Pavel Grebezhuk and the military commander who supports the president on communists in the Office of Campus Activities.

"We have been asked this question a few times. Is that a reason to believe that Tbilisi will keep its promise to the people?" Yeltsin's office said in a written statement. "We received a written promise from the Georgian Ministry of the Interior that the plane would not be used if it does not violate the cease-fire." The statement said the plane had not been used for that purpose.

MUSICAL PERFORMANCE

The adults prepared to hear an unexpected musical performance at the school, which included a range of surprising acts.

The performance was led by an array of students who showcased their talents in singing, dancing, and musical composition. The audience was captivated by the diversity and creativity of the performers, who ranged from traditional choir performances to innovative and contemporary musical interpretations.

The event was marked by a strong sense of community and the celebration of artistic expression. It was a testament to the students' ability to engage creatively with their faith and with the world around them.

__UT'S stance on free speech

In our world, the right to express oneself is a fundamental liberty. However, in the context of academia, this freedom is often limited by the restrictions placed on speech by the university, which can sometimes lead to censorship.

The University of Iowa is a public institution that values the freedom of expression and acknowledges the importance of open discourse. At UT, all students, faculty, and staff are encouraged to engage in respectful and informed conversations. This includes the right to dissent and challenge ideas, fostering a dynamic and vibrant intellectual environment.

While there may be instances where certain forms of speech are not allowed, these decisions are made with the intention of maintaining a safe and inclusive learning atmosphere. The university strives to balance the need for free speech with the responsibility to ensure a respectful and inclusive community.

The right to free speech is not absolute, and there are limitations that respect the rights and feelings of others. Through constructive dialogue and open-mindedness, we can create an environment that truly values diverse perspectives and fosters an inclusive learning experience.

__ULP Conference

The Ulm Declaration, signed in 1990, is a significant milestone in the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

The Ulm Declaration is a set of principles and guidelines established to ensure that all individuals are protected against discrimination, violence, and other forms of abuse. It is a vital document that guides the development of policies and strategies aimed at promoting human rights.

The declaration emphasizes the importance of respecting the rights of all individuals, regardless of their race, gender, religion, or other characteristics. It highlights the need for equal opportunities and the removal of barriers that prevent individuals from fully realizing their potential.

In conclusion, the Ulm Declaration serves as a reminder of our shared responsibility to protect and promote human rights. By adhering to these principles, we can create a more just and equitable society for all.

__MEXICANS ARE COMING!

The topic of immigration is a complex and multifaceted issue, and the debate surrounding it often centers on the struggle between maintaining national security and ensuring the rights of migrants.

The Mexican government has taken steps to address the issue by promoting policies that support legal immigration and combat illegal border crossings. Efforts have been made to improve border security, while simultaneously working to facilitate the integration of legal immigrants into society.

It is important to acknowledge the challenges faced by migrants and to work towards creating a more inclusive and just immigration system. This includes ensuring that the rights of both migrants and current residents are respected and protected.

"We had a feeling in the last two or three days this was going to be a tough game," said grapes' manager, Tony Bean. "But we didn't want to let our guard down, we didn't want to take anything for granted."

In the end, the Grapes' defense did a solid job of keeping the Tigers off balance, while the offense was able to put together a strong performance.

The Grapes' starting pitcher, Jon Smith, allowed only two hits and struck out six batters in his seven innings of work. He was supported by a strong bullpen, which combined for two scoreless innings of relief.

Overall, the Grapes' pitching staff was able to keep the Tigers' bats quiet throughout the game. The defense also played a key role in preventing any major scoring threats from developing.

The win moves the Grapes to 6-2 on the season and improves their record to 30-15 all-time against the Tigers. It was also the first time in 15 years that the Grapes have swept the series against their archrival.

GOVERNMENT STAFFING

"We need to be more efficient in how we use our staff," said the comptroller. "We have a lot of people working here who are not being utilized to their full potential." The comptroller noted that the agency has been looking into ways to restructure its operations and streamline its processes in order to increase productivity and reduce costs.

In addition to these staffing cuts, the agency has also taken steps to improve communication and coordination among its various divisions. The comptroller said that these changes have already resulted in some tangible benefits, such as reduced response times for constituents and improved service delivery.

The agency has also begun working with local businesses to explore opportunities for collaboration and joint initiatives. The comptroller said that these partnerships have the potential to bring new resources and expertise to the agency, while also helping to foster stronger relationships within the community.

"We are committed to being a more efficient and effective government agency," said the comptroller. "We are looking for ways to do more with less, and we are confident that we can achieve these goals through a combination of internal improvements and external partnerships."
Andreatis pitched a one-hitter in his first start of the season as the Hawks opened their fall schedule. The Hawks will open four fall series in September, with two of them taking place at the beginning of next month.

Dolphins focus on Thomas

Thomson Thomas usually intercepts the pressure. The fact is the whole defense can detach if the Bills throw their scheme. "They run the no-huddle better than most teams," defensive end Jeff Cross said. "Most people are just trying to get by us with three-platoon schemes, but the Bills are trying to get you lined up and read you downtown." Bill gives the Bills scheme and multiple weapons, Thomas maintains the formal concern. More than anyone else, he has determined the outcome when Bills throw the no-huddle offense.

Nike works to keep stars’ eligibilities

Bob Rose

PORTLAND, Ore. — Nike, admitting "we didn't do a real good job," is offering to pay $2.4 million Wednesday to pay the high school eligibility of the last year's top high school players in the nation.

The 37 players from 18 states participated earlier this month in a series of all-star games sponsored by the athletic shoe manufacturer.

By playing in the Nike Texas Fall 40 Invitational in Houston, some of the players apparently violated high school associations rules permitting all-star game participation. All-star games are not part of the regular season.

Nike officials were contacting sanctions in all cases involved, but could not be sure if it paid the young player's eligibility to play high school sports, company spokesman Keith Peters said. The case was being investigated on a player-by-player basis, he said, because each case has different rules.

"It's a complex situation," Peters said. "On the high school level, there are a myriad of state organizations, so many more than you can imagine."

For participating in the event, each player received a limited gift certificate to Nike's company stores in the state with about $40 worth of shoes and practice gear.

That is against the rules in some states, and several players have indicated they would return anything they obtained in violation of the rule.

"I don't know that anything physically back them up," Peters said, "But I'm sure there's all very well to return anything that will help maintain their eligibility."

The problem in some states is the timing of the gathering. It was Sept. 16-17 after school had started, and the players were allowed to participate in all-star games during the school year.

Peters said Nike is entirely honest for the problem. The company made sure all NCAA rules were violated but did not check to see if high school regulations were followed.

Dolphins focus on Thomas

At his prebreaking table, and紧紧围绕 the world. There is a lot of people around him so that I don't have to worry about anything," said safety Sony Williams.

A hardy fieldhawk make Miami's task easier, but the offensed tackle for Miami is questionable for the game because of a thigh muscle injury. The Dolphins, on the other hand, could be missing "his best shortstop," Williams said.

Miami's only current receiver, the Bills' coach is at least one of the two teams to make Miami's offensive line. When you do that, you're going to have a chance to make his mark.

Miami's defense has allowed the fieldhawk, namely, to gain yards. Baltimore linebacker Bryan Williams said. "The three-time defending champions are running backs Thomas and Jonny Williams said.

"The games we've won, he wasn't there," Miami linebacker Bryan Williams said. "On the field, Thomas had a better chance of stopping Kelly and Reed, too."

"Most people, "They're the most physical ground this year," defensive end Jeff Cross said. "Most people are just trying to get by us with three-platoon schemes, but the Bills are trying to get you lined up and read you downtown."

Chinese delegation responds to criticism

David Cary
Associated Press

MONTE CARLO, Monaco—Li Ruihuan, the Chinese team leader for the Olympics delegation, said Thursday night that China had "very strong reservations" about any potential proposal for an earthquake relief fund.

Li, speaking on behalf of the Chinese delegation, said that China had "very strong reservations" about the proposal. He said that China had "very strong reservations" about the proposal and that the Olympics should be a "symbol of peace and friendship." He added that the Olympics should be a "symbol of peace and friendship."

‘Into the West’ infused with captivating magic

Ian Casavant
The Daily Iowan

The Showtime series has always had an air of capturing the world's heart with its full-fledged drama. The show portrays various happenings around the globe, focusing on the lives of individuals and the plots that unravel throughout the episodes.

Reed Curnow, assistant professor of communication studies at the University of Iowa, said the show is a captivating journey through time with its well-paced storylines and engaging characters.

"Into the West" is a series that takes place in the 19th century, depicting the lives of various people during that time. The show is known for its historical accuracy and captivating storyline that keeps the viewers engaged. The show is also praised for its well-defined characters and their interactions.

David Reilly, a professor of communication studies at the University of Iowa, said the series is an example of how television can bring history to life.

"‘Into the West’ is a series that not only entertains but also educates its audience about the past," Reilly said. "It’s a series that is worth watching for anyone who is interested in history."

Sherman Alexie to read from strong, bleak new collection of short stories

Shelby Diet
The Daily Iowan

We hear about the American Indian in all DOING, from the middle of the street to the middle of the road and no one is looking at it. We hear about the American Indian in all the music, all the stories, all the people, all the kids, all the children, all the young people, all the kids, all the people, all the children, all the young people, all the stories, all the music, all the people, all the children, all the young people.

Sherman Alexie, whose latest collection of short stories, "The Manual for Dead Roads," has been acclaimed as a powerful and insightful portrayal of modern American life, will be reading from his latest work at the Iowa Memorial Union on October 15th, 1993.

Alexie's stories explore the complex relationship between Native American culture and contemporary American society. His work delves into the struggles of现代化 American Indians, drawing on his own experiences and those of his kin to create powerful literary portraits of the challenges faced by Native Americans today.

"The Manual for Dead Roads" is a collection of 22 stories that explore the resilience and resourcefulness of Native American people in the face of adversity. Alexie's writing is characterized by its raw honesty and its ability to capture the essence of modern Native American life.

This event is part of a larger series of lectures and performances by Native American authors and artists, aimed at fostering a deeper understanding and appreciation of Native American culture and history. The event will also include a discussion with the author, followed by a Q&A session with the audience.

For more information and to purchase tickets, please visit the Iowa Memorial Union's website or contact the event organizers directly. This is an event not to be missed, as it promises to be a powerful and thought-provoking exploration of contemporary Native American life.
