Human embryo cloning creates "moral vacuum"

Paul Ressler
Associated Press

The cloning of human embryos by scientists at George Washington University raises ethical questions about genetic manipulation that neither the government nor the courts seems ready to answer.

"The fact that there is a total moral vacuum in this whole area is not really a surprise," said Cynthia Cohen, head of the National Institutes of Health's Office for Human Reproduction.

"But the issue is, what do we do?" Cohen asked.

"Does this mean that our whole picture of human genes and human means to be a human being is going to change into something that is manufactured?"

Cohen said a National Advisory Board on Human Cloning was set up last April to try to determine the guidelines to control research on human cloning.

"Eventually, that I'm sure, will come," Cohen said. "But it's really not something any of us want to be the one to say yes to.""}

A German tourist who said he wanted to return to his home to Germany over the Thanksgiving holiday said he would be arrested in Chicago after he was found to be a suspect in the deaths of two people and a hunt for the buck charged a police officer to death.

Last week, Grzeganek pleaded guilty to four charges involving his aorta, a main artery, of his body. He was sentenced to four years in prison after a hearing on Sept. 29, the day he was found guilty of two counts of first-degree murder and one of attempted first-degree murder.

The leader of the George Washington University team said the group would avoid ethical guidelines that support the research.

"The George Washington University ethics committee voted not to associate with a group of funded human embryo and fetus research teams into new ethical standards. Though this technique has been used in animal research, it has yet to be used in any human research experiments, the scientist to be the first to attempt to use the technique in the United States.

"This means that our whole picture of human cloning is going to change into something that is manufactured," Cohen said.

"But the issue is, what do we do?" Cohen asked.

Lehman, Hibbs defend endorsement stance

By Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

Members of some local organizations say City Council candidates Erin Lehman and Bob Hibbs were unethical in sending the truth about their campaigns to the public.

The two candidates say it’s last minute polling by the Iowa City Federation of Labor, which represents the community's largest union.

Lehman, a candidate for the fourth ward, at-large seat, and at a fundraiser in June, that he would not seek endorsement of the AFL-CIO, which is affiliated with the union.

On Aug. 22, the Iowa City Federation of Labor President Patrick Hughes said, however, that Lehman did solicit an endorsement from his organization but did not receive it.

The Ethics of Treating Men, Women, and Children Differently

As the rally to limit a woman's access to abortion grows, and as yet another rally on the Pentacrest is planned, lets take a look at the issues.

In about 1972, the Chinese women were advised to mutilate their feet so that it would be easier for them to walk. The practice was called "bun love" and was a reflection of a society that was so concerned with beauty and modesty, that it would do anything to achieve these goals.

Nowadays, we are just as concerned with beauty and modesty. We see it in the way we dress, the way we groom ourselves, and even the way we interact with others. It is a culture that is so ingrained in our society, that it is difficult to imagine a world without it.

In this view, the concept of "beauty" is not just a physical characteristic, but a cultural one as well. Beauty is defined by the standards set by society, and it is important to remember that these standards are not necessarily based on what is most natural or healthy.

In conclusion, it is clear that the beauty of the Chinese women has a profound effect on society. It is a reflection of the values and beliefs that we hold dear, and it is important to continue to question and challenge these values to ensure that they are based on a foundation of truth and fairness.

"I am writing in response to the article "Sex act policy not restrictive" that appeared in the Daily Iowan on October 13th. The author, who seems to have misunderstood the policy, states that 'the policy is not restrictive, it is simply creating a safe space for students to engage in consensual sex.

In reality, the policy is creating a safe space for students to engage in consensual sex, but it is also a way to make sure that students are not being put in danger. Correcting the politically corrected: The editor

The article titled "Halloween politically corrected" (Oct. 18, D-9) contains what seems to be a misinterpretation of the context of what constitutes a halloween costume. The editor seems to take the stance that there is no such thing as a halloween costume and that all costumes are political statements of some kind. This is not true.

It is important to remember that halloween costumes are not political statements. They are simply a way for people to express themselves and have fun. It is unfair to try and limit this fun by forcing people to only wear costumes that are considered politically correct.

I urge the editor to reconsider their stance on this issue and to allow people to have fun without feeling like they are making a political statement with their costumes.

Yours truly,

Local elections in the history of El Salvador will be held on March 20, 1994. For the first time in 20 years, Salvadorans will be able to vote for representatives to the local councils, national assembly, and municipal governments. Approximately 35% of the Salvadoran electorate will be able to vote for the first time. Women will be able to vote and run for office. In addition, the government and civil society have helped to organize the electoral process.

A report that the Minnesota Vikings' (3-0) quarterback Jim McMahon was injured in the third quarter with a cramp in his thigh.

McKnight's team blasted the Bears to settle for four field goals by Kevin Butler, one a 29-yarder, at the end of the first half.

Granted, the Iowa women's athletics program can be seen by anyone who enjoys the excitement of women's athletics. Your prediction: You're guessing," Lamont said he didn't see the action happen right in front of the crowd.

But the Minnesota Vikings blasted Chicago 19-12. Lamont was bired by the White Sox to a seven-year contract, while his other two candidates were expected to be multi-billionaires.

Lamont led the White Sox to a third-place finish in the East and 86-78 record in 1990, then took them into the year in a 94-56 record and the AL West.

Lamont, baseball's first female commissioner, was named the AL manager of the year for 1994 by the Associated Press. The award, which is given to the manager of the year in each league, was first presented in 1937.

The Minnesota Vikings (3-0) defeated the Chicago Bears (2-1) in overtime and set up a second-half showdown between the two teams when the new clubs begin playing in 1995.

Given the record of NFL owners when the new clubs begin playing in 1995, the NFL's national football league owners would be sure we'll be able to get the fewest votes on each choice, while the others would be expected to be multi-billionaires.

As Minnesota residents may have heard, the Minnesota Vikings' 19-12 win over the Bears Monday night at Chicago's Soldier Field was very much a victory for women's sports.

n Sunday's game between Dallas and New York is expected to draw the nation's attention as the presidential campaign's final chapter. The game will be held at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., and is expected to draw a crowd of over 75,000.

The game will be played in the rain, with the possibility of delays due to weather conditions. The teams are both coming off losses, and will be looking to bounce back. Dallas is currently in second place in the NFC East, while New York is in third. The winner of the game will have a much better chance of making the playoffs.

n A new major league baseball team, the Miami Marlins, has been announced. The team is expected to begin play in 2014 and will play in a new stadium currently under construction in Miami. The stadium will be located on the site of the old Orange Bowl, which was torn down last year.

The Miami Marlins will be the third major league baseball team in Florida, joining the Tampa Bay Rays and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The team will be owned by a group of investors led by Jeffrey Loria, who also owns the Florida Marlins.

The stadium will have a capacity of 42,000 and will feature state-of-the-art amenities, including luxury suites, a full-service kitchen, and a rooftop bar. The stadium will be designed to be sustainable and will use recycled materials.

The Miami Marlins will join the National League East, and will be division rivals with the Atlanta Braves and the Philadelphia Phillies. The team will be managed by Kevin Cash, who will be the first African-American manager in the league. Cash is a former player for the Tampa Bay Rays and has spent the last four years as their bench coach.

The Miami Marlins are expected to have a payroll of around $80 million, which is on par with the average payroll of other teams in the National League East. The team has already signed several free agents, including the outfielder Marcell Ozuna, who was a key player for the Miami Marlins last season.

The Miami Marlins will be coached by a former Florida Marlins player, Jeff Torborg, who has been a coach in the league for over 20 years. Torborg will be the team's first base coach, and will be joined by the team's pitching coach, Dan Jennings, who was a pitcher for the Miami Marlins from 1985-1991.

The Miami Marlins will open their season on Opening Day, which is set for April 5th. The team's first home game will be on April 8th against the Atlanta Braves. The Miami Marlins will play a total of 162 games during the regular season, with a break for the All-Star Game in mid-July.
Testaverde out, Kostors comes back

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Browns have turned to Vinny Testaverde for the foreseeable future and for the immediate future, 48-year-old Testaverde is expected to start Monday. Coach Bill Belichick decided to make the move just five days after the Browns' 17-14 loss at Denver.

"We've got two weeks before we play another game," Belichick said. "My feeling is that Vinny will be ready after two weeks of practice. That's why I made the decision."

Testaverde said he was still waiting for a phone call from Belichick before making his decision. "I'm just trying to make the right decision for my family and for my team," Testaverde said.
