Rightists call for Aristide's resignation

David Beard
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Buoyed by the failure of a U.N. plan to return President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power on schedule, about 200 chanting rightists marched Sunday to demand his replacement.

Later Sunday, a coalition of 20 small right-wing political movements demanded the resignation of Aristide, army commander Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and U.N. envoy Dante Caputo — the three men who worked out a U.N. plan in July for restoring democracy in Haiti.

The groups were led by the army-backed Front for the Advancement and Progress of Haiti, or FRAPH.

FRAPH's leader, Emmanuel Constant, said the U.N. plan "is completely dead" and Caputo should be replaced by Colin Powell, retired chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff. It was unclear whether the coalition's proposal has the support of the ruling military.

"Aristide is not part of the picture. He's not even worth impeachment now," another rightist, Gerard Bissainthe, said at the crowded outdoor news conference.

U.N. spokesman Eric Falt dismissed the resignation demand. "These individuals don't have any legitimacy," he said. "We're involved in the negotiating process and intend to continue" with a meeting set for Wednesday in Port-au-Prince.

Outside the vacant National Palace at midday, the rightist demonstrators borrowed the tune

More than 30 UI African-American students met with Dean of Students Phillip Jones Sunday to express their anger over an editorial cartoon they found racist.

The cartoon, drawn by syndicated cartoonist Chris Britt of Copley violence is only a misdemeanor."

On Friday, more than 75 UI African-American students presented letters to UI President Hunter Rawlings and The Daily Iowan demanding action be taken.

The letter to Rawlings stated there is an increasing dissension and dissatisfaction among the university student body concerning the recruitment, retention and graduation of African-American students.

The group, calling themselves The Coalition of Concerned African-American Students, demanded Rawlings consult with the UI Human Resources Department to hire a "specialist in understanding and unlearning institutionalized racism." Further, they

Movie actor River Phoenix dead at 23, cause unknown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor River Phoenix, who emerged as a young star in "Stand by Me" and co-starred in the offbeat film "My Own Private Idaho," died Sunday after collapsing outside a nightclub. He was 23.

Companions of the actor said he was acting strangely after leaving the popular Viper Room in West Hollywood at about 1 a.m., said sheriff's Deputy Patrick Hauser.

The Viper Room, owned by actor Johnny Depp, is popular with young celebrities, providing a stage recently for a listening party for Concrete Blonde and an impromptu tuneup show by Pearl Jam.

Phoenix was taken to Cedars Sinai Medical Center, where he died at 1:51 a.m., Hauser said. Authorities refused to elaborate on Phoenix's behavior before his collapse, saying an autopsy would determine a cause of death.

Federico Fellini, Italian maestro of film, dead at 73

ROME (AP) — Federico Fellini, the Italian film maestro whose mix of fantasy, spectacle and earthiness created "La Dolce Vita" and such Oscar-winning movies as "8 1/2" and "La Strada," died Sunday. He was 73.

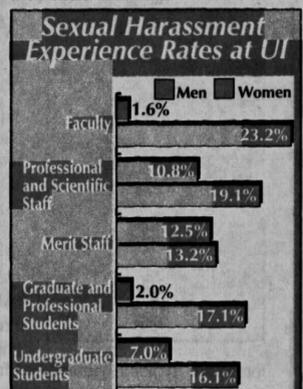

Fellini had been in a coma at Rome's Polyclinic Hospital since suffering a heart attack and developing respiratory problems Oct. 17. He suffered a stroke in August.

His wife, actress Giulietta Masina, died of his death from television, the ANSA news agency reported. She had been too distraught to remain by his bedside and visited only a few times while he was in a coma. Saturday was their 50th wedding anniversary.

UI STUDY SAYS FEW REPORT CASES

Survey finds sexual harassment prevalent

Megan Penick
The Daily Iowan

In a campuswide survey, the Council on the Status of Women found that although more than half of the respondents had experienced sexual harassment in the past year, just more than 15 percent realized that they had been harassed.

The report, released Friday, surveyed a sample population of 3,050 students, faculty and staff and is the first of its kind.

Susan Beckett, the council's chairwoman, said the number of sexual harassment cases is alarming. "Not only are students and university employees experiencing these unwanted behaviors, but in a large majority of cases, they do not identify them as sexual harassment, are not aware of the university's policy to protect them and do not seek recourse to end the harassment," she said.

The UI's current policy identifies sexual harassment as any sexual attention that is unwanted. This includes:

- physical assault.
- direct or implied threats that submission to sexual advances will be a condition of employment, work status, promotion, grades or letters of recommendation.

• direct sexual propositions; subtle pressure for sexual activity.

• conduct intended to discomfort or humiliate, i.e., unwanted remarks, touching or speculation about sexual activity or experience.

Beckett said the UI needs to do more than just have a policy if it wants to stop sexual harassment.

"Although the university has a model sexual harassment policy on paper, the survey seems to indicate that the existence of such a policy is not enough," she said.

The survey showed that many respondents feared their complaints would not be taken seriously and that if they did report the harassment, the situation would not be resolved satisfactorily. The survey received many comments like "It is too common to complain" and "It's too prevalent to stop."

Barbara Xakellis, one of the authors of the survey, said the council hopes the UI will institute a policy of educating the UI community on sexual harassment.

"We certainly hope this report will spark an intensive debate on this campus," she said. "I think we understand this is a ground-breaking and significant report to this

Rodolfo-Sioson meets challenges

Prior goals, new lifestyle converging

Tricia DeWall
The Daily Iowan

The lone survivor of the Nov. 1, 1991, shootings said adapting to a new lifestyle without the use of her arms and legs has been the most difficult part of the past two years.

"It has been hard dealing with the fact of having 24-hour care and relying on other people to do everything for you," Miya Rodolfo-Sioson said.

Prior to the shooting, Rodolfo-Sioson planned to move to El Salvador to work as a volunteer and earn a second degree while deciding what she will do in the future.

David Greedy/The Daily Iowan

Miya Sioson's life was drastically changed two years ago when a bullet from the gun of disgruntled graduate student Gang Lu left her paralyzed from the neck down. Since that time she has begun work on a second degree while deciding what she will do in the future.

Vigil held in memory of shooting victims

Jim Snyder
The Daily Iowan

A short, silent vigil will be held at 4 p.m. today on the T. Anne Cleary Walkway in remembrance of the victims of the shooting spree that left six UI community members dead and one student paralyzed from the neck down.

Around 4 p.m. on Nov. 1, 1991, UI physics graduate student Gang Lu, angry with what he saw as a lack of concern for his problems, used a .38-caliber revolver to shoot and kill UI Department of Physics and Astronomy Professors Christoph Goertz, Robert A. Smith and Dwight Nicholson, and graduate student Linhua Shan.

He then walked to Jessup Hall where he shot and killed T. Anne Cleary, UI associate vice president for academic affairs. Lu also left UI student Miya Rodolfo-Sioson paralyzed before shooting himself in the head.

The Association of Campus Ministers is sponsoring the vigil in remembrance of the victims. A wreath laying will be part of the vigil. It lists the names of the victims, including Lu and survivor Rodolfo-Sioson. In addition, the ministers will distribute information about the Nov. 1 shootings and statistics about handgun violence in the United States.

Dennis Gilbert, a pastor with the group, said this year's ceremony will be low key.

"We wanted to remember them in a quiet way," Gilbert said. "It's going to be short; there will be no speeches. We put it together for people to gather and reflect on what happened two years ago."

The flag will be flown at half-staff, but the UI plans no additional ceremony.

UI prof. studies art of making peace

Prasanti Kantamneni
The Daily Iowan

A UI professor has said that a new "legal regime" must be created to help curb conflicts like the one in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

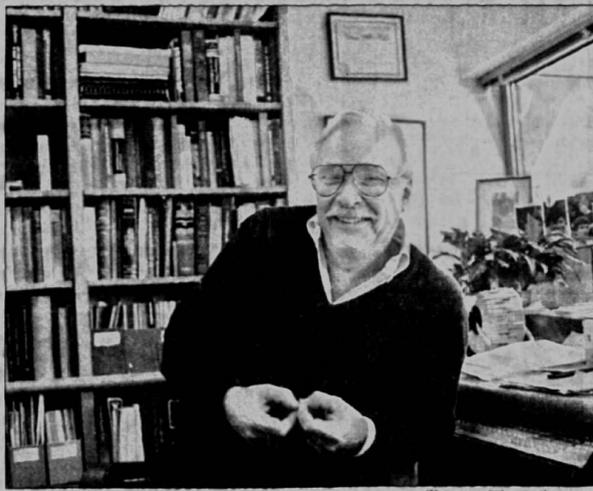

"The world must develop a new legal regime that will encourage the international community to intervene when a nation engages in massive violations of human rights," UI law Professor Burns Weston said.

Weston, a well-known international human rights and peace activist, currently serves as international law and human rights adviser to the Transnational Foundation for Peace and Futures Research based in Lund, Sweden. Through TFF, he has been involved in conflict mitigations in the Balkans, primarily between the Serbs and the Albanians in the area called Kosovo, Weston said.

"Our task has been to try to figure out a way to prevent the Serbs and the Albanians from going at each other and causing bloodshed as we've seen in Bosnia," he said.

Weston specializes in matters relating to human rights and the regulation of war and nuclear weaponry. He said his interest in the international world began early. As a child, his goal was to visit every country. Weston's interest in international conflicts and human rights has allowed him to partially achieve this goal. He has visited over 50 countries and frequently visits Europe. His involvement with the International Association of Lawyers Against Nuclear Arms has also allowed Weston to travel frequently.

"Right now we are helping the World Health Organization bring a case before the International Court of Justice," he said. "We want to get an advisory opinion on whether or not the use and the threat of use of nuclear weapons would be considered a violation to international law. We, of course, would argue it would be."

Due to his involvement in international affairs, Weston has authored many books and articles, including articles in Encyclopedia Britannica and the Harvard International Law Journal and an award-winning course book on international law and world order. Presently, he is developing a course book dealing with international environmental law.

After graduating from Yale, Weston began his legal career with a New York City law firm. He later decided to pursue a career in the academic field and joined the UI College of Law in 1966.

"I decided I wanted to pursue my career in the academic world because of its strong commitment to individual and intellectual freedom," he said.

Upon his arrival at the UI, Weston served as founding director of the UI Center for World Order Studies. Presently, he is the associate dean for International and Comparative Legal Studies, a program that is now compared with others at Harvard, Yale and NYU.

"My job allows me to really explore issues, speak independently and to criticize our government," he said. "I have the freedom to think what I want to think, write what I want to write, speak what I want to speak and to explore issues in depth."

Freedom, however, is just one element Weston enjoys — students are another.

"I really love the contact I have with students. To see a young mind come in, wide-eyed and anxious, and to direct that incredible energy and help them think rationally and logically about solving problems is an experience," Weston said. "To help shape minds and get people to pursue careers is extraordinarily rewarding."

Currently, Weston teaches a basic introductory course in public international law, a course in international human rights and an advanced seminar on international law and public policy.

"My career is a career that has many rewards — freedom, diversity and human contact," he said. "How much more can you ask for?"

Rubber check fees bouncing higher

Mary Beth Sheridan
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Banks are taking in good money from bad checks.

Major U.S. metropolitan area banks are increasing penalty fees for a bounced check to as high as $30, a financial newsletter reported Sunday. It said some banks even see rubber checks as an attractive and growing profit source.

The average bank fee for a bounced check is $19.35, according to Bank Rate Monitor's survey of the 120 largest banks and thrifts in the 12 largest U.S. metropolitan areas.

In contrast, the average fee was $18.58 a year ago and about $15 in 1987, the newsletter said.

"No doubt about it, banks make money off bounced checks," said Robert Heady, publisher of Bank Rate Monitor, a weekly that tracks interest-rate trends.

Heady said banks realized in the early 1980s that bounced checks were becoming "profit centers." Consumers are often too embarrassed about bouncing a check to complain about the fee, he said.

A spokesman for the American Bankers Association, John Hall, denied the charge.

"It's certainly not a profit center for an institution. It's strictly a deterrent" to people writing bad checks, he said. In addition, he said, the number of bounced checks has risen in recent years, costing banks more money.

Banks have increasingly turned to fee-producing services as they faced increasing loan-writing competition.

"One thing that's fair to say is that banks are finding they need to price all of their services to make money," said Robert Stickler, a spokesman for Barnett Bank. The bank's Miami-area branches charge $27.50.

The survey found average fees ranged from $28.90 in Philadelphia to $11.05 in Los Angeles. It said fees tended to be lower in California because of lawsuits against financial institutions by incensed consumers.

"This is not a reasonable price. It's not cheap," admitted Pat James, vice president of retail banking at PNC Bank. "We don't want to make check-bouncing attractive."

Ed Mierzwinski of the Washington-based U.S. Public Interest

Follow the bouncing check

Houston	$20.25

Boston	$18.30
Detroit	$17.45
New York	$15.60
San Francisco	$11.35
Los Angeles	$11.05

Source: Bank Rate Monitor

AP Research Group, a consumer organization, said it costs banks less than $1 to handle a bounced check. Several banking officials disputed that figure, although none could provide the cost.

"More than 99.99 percent of all checks clear the second or third time," Mierzwinski said in a telephone interview. "It's a method of making money."

Close encounters with UFO sighters: Maybe they're not crazy after all

Malcolm Ritter
Associated Press

NEW YORK — People who think they've seen a UFO or a space alien appear to be just as intelligent and psychologically healthy as other people, a new study says.

Researchers found that UFO reporters scored no worse than other people on tests of psychological health, intelligence and fantasy-proneness.

They appeared to be "very normal," said study co-author Patricia Cross of Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada.

Many of their reports may just be misinterpretations of unfamiliar sights or experiences, unfueled by a prior belief in visits by space aliens, she said.

Cross, a psychology graduate student who did the study as her master's thesis, reports the work with psychologist Nicholas Spanos and others at Carleton in the November issue of the Journal of Abnormal Psychology.

"Our findings clearly contradict the previously held notions that people who seemingly had bizarre experiences, such as missing time and communicating with aliens, have wild imaginations and are easily swayed into believing the unbelievable," the study said.

The study included 49 adults who said they had seen UFOs, 39 members of the general public and 74 introductory psychology students.

Elections represent turning over of new leaf for I.C. Council

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

Some Iowa City City Council members have mixed feelings about the changing face of the Council as Tuesday's election will put at least three, and perhaps four, new people behind the desk in the Council chambers.

District B Councilor and Mayor Darrel Courtney and at-large Councilor John McDonald are not seeking re-election. At-large Councilor William Ambrisco resigned effective Monday, and at-large Councilor Naomi Novick is seeking re-election.

"Life goes on," said Councilor Susan Horowitz, who, with two years of her four-year District A term left, will be one of the Council's veterans. "When you get a new job, you adjust. When new people are hired, you adjust."

She said no matter who is elected, they will be faced with immediate challenges: potential flooding during the spring thaw, federal mandates such as reducing landfill input and the possibility of a new downtown arts center.

"I'd like to see us have some joint sessions with new and old members before the old members leave," Horowitz said. "That way the new members can find out why people voted the way they did on certain issues."

As she recalled what it was like to be a new councilor, she promised to help those elected Tuesday.

"I remember I just tried to keep quiet and listen, but it didn't work," she said, "so I just jumped in. My advice to the newcomers is do your homework before informal sessions — call the staff, read — and most of all, keep a sense of humor."

She said she has enjoyed the camaraderie of the current Council and hopes to continue it.

"Serving on the Council can be fun," she said.

Ambrisco agreed.

"I've had a ball," he said, adding that he is "delighted, flattered and honored" to have served the people of Iowa City. He resigned two years short of the end of his four-year, at-large term, citing the need to spend more time with his family.

Ambrisco said he first ran in 1983 because he wanted to give something back to the community.

"Serving on the Council really opens your eyes," he said. "You get to see how the government works and doesn't work."

"It will be tough getting the most out of the limited resources the city has. But I think with the expert guidance we have in our city staff, the Council will be able to keep our current level of services."

William Ambrisco, outgoing Council member

He pointed to the construction of the south Waste Water Treatment Plant as the Council's biggest achievement during his terms and said the next Council will be faced with big challenges as well.

"It will be tough getting the most out of the limited resources the city has," he said, referring to the state-imposed property tax freeze that has constrained local budgets. "But I think with the expert guidance we have in our city staff, the Council will be able to keep our current level of services."

Councilor Karen Kubby, who has two years left in her four-year, at-large term, said she is excited about the changes.

"It's an opportunity to get some things moving that have been slugging along," she said. "All the people running are energetic, and that influx of new energy will help move things forward."

She said the changing group dynamics will be interesting, after having worked with the same six people for a long time.

"And it will be interesting for the new people, too," she said. "When Bruno (Pigott) came on this summer, he had six people to guide him. This time the new people will have three or four."

Pigott was elected in July to finish the District C term of Randy Larson, who resigned in April.

Kubby's advice to newcomers is to pace themselves.

"They should spend that time between November and January resting from the election and getting caught up with what's happening on Council," she said, "because, come January, one of the first things the new Council will have to do will be the budget. They'll be working on one of the Council's most important functions during their first three months in office."

Pigott said regardless of how Tuesday's election turns out, the direction of the Council will change.

"I think we have a good opportunity to push some really important things through," he said. "New progressive views on the Council will give us the opportunity to make changes in things like bike paths and affordable housing."

He said the Council he joined is very different from the one to come.

"This is a period of change, which I'm happy to be a part of," he said. "People are ready to see change. Some people bemoan the loss of knowledge in the people that are leaving, and that's legitimate, but it's also important to bring in new life and ideas."

Disruptive ISU student charged with money order theft, forgery

Associated Press

WATERLOO — An Iowa State University student accused of threatening a professor this fall was one of three people charged Wednesday with trying to cash $523,557 in stolen money orders and cashier's checks, police said.

DeAnglo Moore, 18; his wife, Cassandra Renee Moore, 23; and Robert Jackson, 18, were arrested after cashing $29,000 worth of checks and buying a blazer from Rydell Chevrolet in Waterloo.

Police said Cassandra Moore told investigators she stole the money orders and cashier's checks from a Firststar Bank in Ames where she and her husband worked as cleaners.

She was charged with first-degree theft and forgery.

DeAnglo Moore was charged with first-degree theft, forgery and two counts of possession of stolen property. Police say he also gave five money orders to Jackson, who tried to cash them. Jackson was charged with forgery.

Earlier this fall, ISU officials accused Moore, who also goes by the name DeAnglo X, of threatening a professor with "jihad," or Muslim holy war. Moore, a member of the Nation of Islam, was barred from a class in African-American history for being disruptive.

Professor Christine Pope said Moore aggressively interrupted her class and challenged her teachings, but Moore said Pope had criticized his religion.

Moore, a freshman, has since been allowed to attend Pope's class but only with an escort.

ISU spokesman Diana Pounds said Thursday the dean of students would decide if the school should take disciplinary action.

Author reaping millions from 'Bridges,' 'Slow Waltz'

Associated Press

DES MOINE — Industry sources say Iowa author Robert Waller has earned at least $11 million from his two love stories, including the smash hit "Bridges of Madison County."

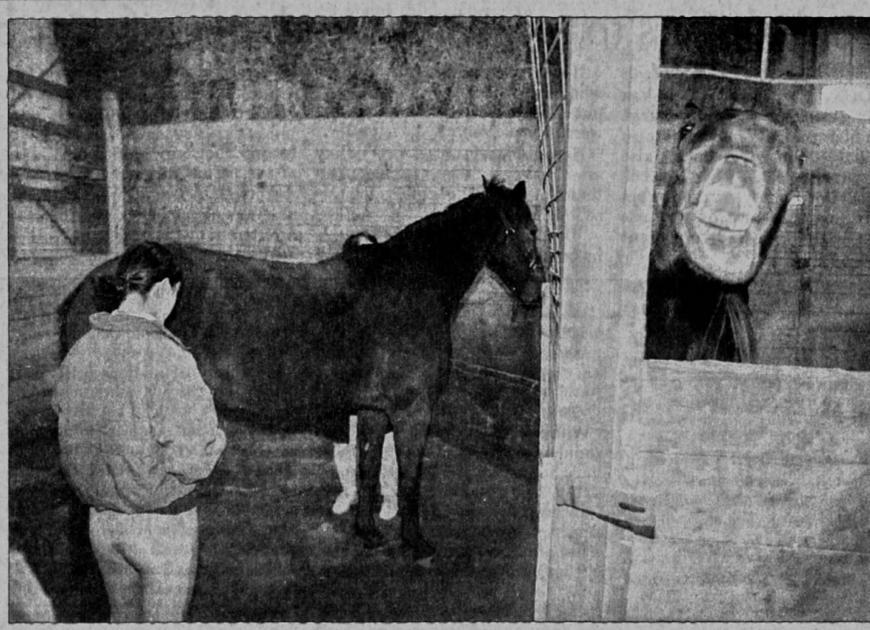

Waller "certainly is a rich man now," said James Autry, a retired Meredith Corp. executive and author.

Waller couldn't be reached for comment and an agent wouldn't comment on the author's finances, but industry sources said Waller has earned about $9.2 million on "Bridges" sales.

The book spent 62 weeks on the best-seller list and was the No. 1 fiction book again last week, according to Publisher's Weekly. The book sold 4.1 million copies in the United States, according to Diane Ekeblad of Warner Books in New York.

The author is generally paid about 15 percent of the book's list price, according to Autry's agent, Rafael Sagalyn, and other industry sources. With "Bridges" selling for $14.95 (recently increased to $16.95), Waller would make about $2.25 a book, or about $9.2 million.

EVERYONE HOPES TO CURB TRAFFIC

I.C. residents differ on city road extension

Heather Pitzel
The Daily Iowan

Residents in the Brown Street area want traffic diverted from nearby Dodge Street by extending First Avenue so that it connects with Highway 1.

The plan is not sitting well with residents living in the First Avenue extension development past Rochester Avenue, however, as they fear an extension would increase traffic in their neighborhood.

The Northside Neighborhood Association, comprised of Brown Street-area residents, is interested in accelerating the city's long-range plans to extend the streets to improve safety.

Residents are also concerned with the large volume of traffic the neighborhood experienced this summer due to the flood-related closure of Dubuque Street, which left Dodge Street as the only access to Interstate 80 for most of Iowa City.

They say the possible extensions of Scott Boulevard and First Avenue with Highway 1 would divert some of the traffic heading for the south side of town.

Karen Jordan, representative of the Bluffwood Neighborhood Association, comprised of First Avenue extension development residents, said she's worried that if the roads are connected, First Avenue will receive most of the traffic because it will be the shortest route to Highway 6.

"There will be more traffic, and the type of traffic will probably be industrial," Jordan said. "There are several schools on First Avenue. This traffic will affect Regina, Hoover Elementary, City High and South East Junior High. It's very dangerous for children going to any of these schools."

First Avenue is the only access to the housing development. Nearby Scott Boulevard is also proposed to intersect with Highway 1 north of I-80. Scott Boulevard and First Avenue will also have a connecting street, providing another access to Highway 1 from Scott Boulevard.

This connecting street will cross American College Testing, or ACT, property, an issue brought up in the summer of 1992 when the city vacated Old Dubuque Road for the company. ACT pledged a future right-of-way for the extension of streets over its property.

Johnson County Council of Governments' transportation planner Jeff Davidson said Scott Boulevard will be developed first. This would acclimate semitrailer trucks to using it and lessen that type of traffic on First Avenue, he said.

Jordan said she does not want to see First Avenue connected to Highway 1 but said it will probably happen anyway. The Northside Association doesn't care if it's Scott Boulevard or First Avenue that diverts the traffic as long as it's pulled away, she said.

"If it's going to be connected, I'd like to see it done in such a way as to make First Avenue a less attractive route for trucks to use," Jordan said. "Widening Scott would seem appropriate since it was meant for that sort of traffic."

Decisions will be made on capital improvements projects in the next six months, Davidson said, but the time frame depends on the City-Council.

FBI agent ignores order, faces charges

Associated Press

DAVENPORT — A Davenport FBI agent faces criminal charges after getting caught in his tracks last week.

Authorities said agent John Wellman ignored instructions from road workers and drove his car on freshly poured concrete, causing an estimated $75,000 in damage.

Keokuk County Attorney John Schroeder said Friday he intends to file charges of criminal trespass, reckless driving and disobedience of a traffic control device against Wellman, 46.

Schroeder said that on Oct. 19 Wellman intentionally drove his car on a section of County Road W-15 that was being reconstructed.

The prosecutor said Wellman told construction workers at the site that he had to locate an individual who lived along the stretch of road being reconstructed.

He was told he could travel through the area if he stayed on the shoulder of the road because the freshly poured concrete could not support a car, Schroeder explained.

He drove along the shoulder for part of the distance then swerved on to the soupy pavement, causing deep ruts.

The car gradually lost traction and after three-fourths of a mile, Wellman's car was trapped by the road.

Criminal trespass is a serious misdemeanor that can carry a penalty of up to a year in jail and a $1,500 fine.

Drunk drivers to receive more charges if transporting children

Associated Press

SIoux CITY, Iowa — Drunken driving won't be the only charge against intoxicated motorists in Woodbury County if there are also children in the car.

Woodbury County Attorney Tom Mullin said these drivers will also be hit with child endangerment charges.

"I wanted to up the ante on those who drive under the influence and put kids at risk," Mullin said last week.

He said he started the policy after reviewing the past year's statistics on operating while intoxicated, or OWI, cases.

"Despite the aggressive posture in OWI cases, we still have 1,000

OWI cases every year," he said.

Mullin said the arrest rate is far greater in Woodbury County than in average Iowa counties, "and I'm certain that only a 10th or a 20th of the actual number of drunken drivers are arrested. We could have as many as 10,000 or 20,000 cases a year."

The crime of child endangerment means a person knowingly acts in a manner which creates a substantial risk to a child's physical safety.

Mullin said the chances of a crash for an average adult driver are six times greater than normal when the driver's blood-alcohol level is at 0.1 percent.

Cartoonist: 'Take it for what it is'

Tricia DeWall
The Daily Iowan

The creator of the cartoon which has sparked controversy among UI African-American students said he "would never apologize" for one of his cartoons.

"Anytime you do a cartoon that hits close to home, it stings those who are closest to it," said Chris Britt, syndicated cartoonist for Copley News Service. "Editorial cartoons are not meant to be fair. I understand why people are upset, but it's kind of baffling because groups tend to take it personally." Britt said he was simply drawing a parallel between two different images of mob violence — the Ku Klux Klan and the violence which occurred in the Los Angeles riots. "Mob violence is mob violence no matter if you're black or white," he said. A newly formed group of African-American students said the caricature in the cartoon represents a stereotype of black Americans. Britt said that was the whole point and that students should "lighten up" and "learn to take a joke."

"The reason I used white eyes and big lips was because I was drawing a black person," he said. "If I draw a Mexican, I draw him in a sombrero. I draw Jewish people with big noses, and I draw a lot of fat people, but I don't seem to be offending them." "Everyone is so sensitive. Take it for what it is. An editorial cartoon is a cartoon. It's not some big news story. This cartoon was an exaggeration, and that's what a cartoon is." The nationally syndicated cartoon has sparked little reaction elsewhere, Britt said.

CONTROVERSY

requested that Rawlings advise Jones to enforce permanent representation of African-American students on the Student Activity Board.

The Daily Iowan does not fall under the Student Activities Board's jurisdiction as it is a separate corporation.

The coalition demanded the DI run a front-page apology and an explanation of why the cartoon was printed. In addition, members asked that the letter, along with the letter to Rawlings, appear on the front page.

The coalition indicated to both Rawlings and the DI that it expects a reply by 1 p.m. today.

Some members of the group expressed further disgust and anger with the cartoon at the meeting. They said there are not enough support services on campus to deal with their needs and that the type of racism recently depicted in the DI is present in other facets of university life as well.

"I don't ever want to be on a campus where I open a newspaper and be subject to seeing one of us hanging with bug eyes and big lips," Lanese Wilson said.

DI Viewpoints Editor Jonathan Lyons said in running the cartoon, he intended to show the anti-Klan and anti-lynching message he thinks the cartoon imparted. He was surprised by the reaction it received.

"Obviously, I did not set out to offend anybody," he said. "I selected the cartoon and thought everyone would interpret this as an anti-Klan cartoon."

DI Editor Loren Keller said the newspaper has no reason to apologize.

"Editorial cartoons are a protected form of free speech, even cartoons that may take issue with controversial court decisions," he said. "We have nothing to apologize for."

UI student Denise Pate said the cartoon is not an isolated incident. "It has happened more than once," Pate said. "I shouldn't have to open up a newspaper that comes out of my tuition and see that; it's not funny."

Jones said having a way to address the degree of racism in an institution is a challenge.

"The quality of life is a major issue on all campuses, and we try to deal with it every day," he said.

Despite its insulting nature, Jones thought the cartoon was beneficial.

"I thought it was a great cartoon," Jones said. "It has sparked discussion of the issue. I have been concerned for a long time that they aren't being discussed. Was it insulting? Yes. The press has a right to print things that are offensive. It does, it will and it should."

Boosting the Local Economy

- Make Iowa City the nation's energy-efficiency capital.
- Help existing businesses and attract new ones by controlling the increasing cost of public services.
- Use existing public resources more effectively before considering costly new facilities. For example, invest in water conservation to avoid a 100% increase in our water bills.

Building Affordable, Sustainable Neighborhoods

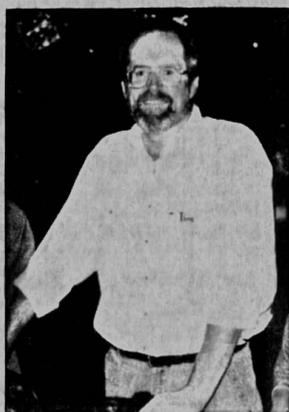

- For new developments on the city's fringe, change zoning codes to allow offices, stores, parks, and public services to be within walking distance of homes.
- Allow new neighborhoods to include detached cottages and other housing needed by single parents, students, and seniors.
- Expand opportunities to use bicycles for commuting and recreation.

Protecting Natural Areas and Neighborhoods

- Preserve natural wetlands, the forested ravines east of Hickory Hill Park, and other natural areas.
- Maintain the character and integrity of the Melrose, Longfellow, Northside, Goosetown, and other older neighborhoods.

Responding to Diverse Needs Efficiently

- Help Iowa City public transit serve working people with young children better by providing more flexible and diverse routes and schedules.
- Provide strong, continuing support for the public library, for the SEATS program, and for the Senior Center.
- Don't relocate or expand the airport.
- Extend the landfill's life with volume-based garbage rates and a first class recycling program.

campus. It's going to take a systematic and comprehensive effort to stop sexual harassment on this campus."

Beckett said the council recommends the UI establish a workshop on sexual harassment required for all new students and staff and for the UI to establish a continuing education program for all UI employees.

"The council also recommends that the Office of Affirmative Action develop and implement a system to ensure that the complainant does not suffer retaliation following the investigation and resolution of a complaint," she said.

Ellen Heywood, an author of the survey, said the fact that the UI has begun to keep annual reports of harassment is encouraging.

"If women know of harassment cases that have been solved in a satisfactory manner, they are more likely to come forward," she said. "I think that knowledge of that is power for women."

later attend graduate school. "Of course, that was kind of blown out of the water," she said. "I still plan on going to grad school and, hopefully, I will be able to visit El Salvador in March. I am really looking forward to that."

The 25-year-old has, however, maintained a positive attitude throughout most of the adversity. She said immediately following the shooting she often asked herself why it had to happen.

"I asked 'why me?' a lot," she said. "Then you figure out it's pretty much useless asking it and you don't do it anymore and just try to focus more on adapting to a new lifestyle and moving on."

Rodolfo-Sioson said she has "hazy" memories of that cold, snowy day two years ago when gunman Gang Lu came into the UI Office of Academic Affairs where she was working as a temporary receptionist.

"I have vague memories of Gang Lu coming in and asking to see Anne Cleary," she said. "They were standing probably 10 or 12 feet in front of me talking. I heard a shot and didn't know what it was at first. I turned around to see what it was, and then I heard another. Then I was on the floor and didn't know what was going on. I never saw the gun, which was probably a blessing."

Rodolfo-Sioson said she was conscious until the paramedics arrived at Jessup Hall.

"I remember looking at my toes and thinking I couldn't move them or my feet," she said. "Another secretary was sitting beside me the whole time, holding my hand. I kept thinking 'I don't want to die' and 'I hope they get here soon.'"

Paralyzed below the neck, Rodolfo-Sioson had no one ever spelled out the extent of her injuries for her.

"I kind of figured it out on my own," she said. "They told me the injury to my spinal cord was complete, which means the damage is irreparable. I knew it was pretty likely that I wouldn't do much again."

Finding a place to live was also a challenge, Rodolfo-Sioson said, as there aren't many handicapped-accessible apartments in Iowa City.

"I had to move out of the place I lived in before I was shot," she said. "It was difficult to find housing because there really isn't much around and what there is is really expensive."

Currently, she lives in a "really small, two bedroom apartment" with her brother Renato, who works for her as her care giver.

Besides not being able to care for herself, Rodolfo-Sioson misses many of the other "physical" aspects of life.

"I don't really enjoy the outdoors anymore," she said. "I can't do any of the things I used to, like riding my bike and jogging, and it is sometimes a hassle to get around."

Adding to her frustrations, she has recently been battling an insurance company over who will be responsible to pay for a handicapped-accessible van.

"I need it because it is a hazard for me to travel in a car," she said. "I can't sit in my wheelchair in a car, and sometimes when you turn corners, I fall over. And if there was an accident, I would not be properly strapped in."

She said in January a judge determined the insurance company would be responsible for purchasing the van. Since then, the insurance company has filed an appeal which has further delayed the process.

"The judge has yet to make a decision on the appeal," Rodolfo-Sioson said. "My lawyer advised me to order it anyway, and now there have been delays at the factory."

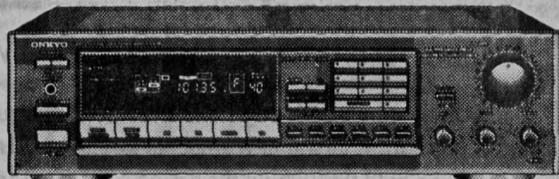

For the time being, Rodolfo-Sioson said she will continue to live in Iowa City.

"Sometime soon I will move because of the cold weather here," she said. "I have stayed in Iowa City this long mainly because I have friends here, and it is easier than moving somewhere else. I can still take classes and try to figure out what I want to do before I make a big move."

GOVERNMENT TROOPS LOST KEY DEPOT

Associated Press

A Georgian father walks with his children past a Georgian government armored personnel carrier Saturday in the town of Senaki in western Georgia. The town was recaptured by forces loyal to ousted president Zviad Gamsakhurdia.

Shevardnadze rallies against rebel revolt

TBILISI, Georgia — Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze warned rebels Sunday that his forces were preparing to "put a full stop" to their bloody uprising in western Georgia.

A confident Shevardnadze said he was not concerned about the loss of Senaki, a key railroad junction, to the rebels Saturday, which reversed a week of government victories.

Georgian and Russian troops had pulled out of Senaki, and the fighting resumed Sunday afternoon on the outskirts of town after a 24-hour lull.

The rebels are seeking to restore ousted president Zviad Gamsakhurdia, an ardent nationalist, to power.

"We're preparing to put a full stop to this issue," Shevardnadze warned in a television interview.

Shevardnadze, a former Soviet foreign minister, visited Russian forces Saturday and thanked them for guarding Georgian rail lines threatened in the former Soviet republic's civil war.

Maj. Gen. Yuri Balevsky, chief of Russia's Transcaucasian military headquarters, said Sunday that Russian soldiers would remain in Georgia despite being caught up in the war.

Gamsakhurdia, in a statement carried Sunday by the Russian news agency Interfax, called the presence of Russian troops in Georgia a "violation of the basic principles of sovereignty and independence."

Russian soldiers began taking up positions Thursday along the vital railroad linking the Black Sea port of Poti with the Georgian capital, Tbilisi, as part of a deal made earlier this month between Shevardnadze and the Russian government.

The fight for Senaki, the fiercest yet in the civil war, began late Friday. Vladimir Chikovani, chief of Georgian interior forces, said at least 54 people were killed: 27 government soldiers, 22 rebels and five civilians.

The rebels' recapture of Senaki, which government forces had taken Wednesday, blocked crucial food and fuel supplies from reaching Tbilisi and landlocked Armenia beyond.

It also stopped a government advance that had pushed the rebels back to their final stronghold of Zugdidi, 187 miles from Tbilisi.

Wildfires fall back; Calif. starts recovery

Jeff Barnard

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. — Jack and Elaine Lund lost their home, clothing and 25 years of memories when a wildfire leveled their house near Emerald Bay.

But when they went to church Sunday in newly purchased clothes, they volunteered one of their few remaining possessions to help others left homeless in last week's fire storm. They offered the use of their pickup truck to carry victims' belongings.

"There may be people worse off than us," said Lund, who retired from the Army in 1968 and ran a golf cart distributorship afterward. "We lost all the material things of the house, which means nothing."

At St. Catherine of Siena Roman Catholic Church in Laguna Beach, and at churches and homes around Southern California, people like the Lunds were stepping forward to help. And they were counting their blessings that, despite the destruction wrought by fires that flared up with a blast of Santa Anas, nobody was killed.

Thirteen major fires in a 200-mile stretch from Ventura County to the Mexican border torched 167,700 acres; damaged or destroyed 787 buildings, including at least 650 homes; and injured 62. A preliminary estimate from the state Office of Emergency Services put damages at $500 million.

The Laguna Beach fire, which destroyed 366 homes and businesses and charred 16,680 acres of brush and suburban landscape, was contained within a line of bare earth. A destructive 5,700-acre blaze above Altadena was 85 percent contained but burning away from homes into the mountains northeast of Los Angeles and a 39,000-acre fire in Ventura County was 90 percent contained.

High clouds drifted over most of the region, maintaining cool, moist weather that helped firefighters get the upper hand on the fires, but the forecast lent urgency to efforts by hundreds of firefighters who rushed to the area from across California and the West.

The National Weather Service said the Santa Anas — hot desert winds from the east or northeast in Southern California — could begin blowing again tonight and Tuesday. The winds are expected to blow at 20 mph to 30 mph with gusts up to 45 mph.

As the smoke cleared over the Ventura County blaze, the Santa Monica Mountains burned area looked like a moonscape.

From the air, a few ranch homes that survived the inferno stood out, including Dick Clark's famous "Bedrock" home. Country singer Dwight Yoakam's home was burned to the ground, however, with smoldering hulks of pickup trucks and cars nearby.

Norwegian oil tanker explodes, kills at least 2

Associated Press

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad — A Norwegian oil tanker that had been undergoing repairs exploded Sunday, killing at least two people and leaving three others missing and presumed dead, authorities said.

Samuel Brewster, a welder from Trinidad, and another man, who was not immediately identified, were killed when the Lady Oslo exploded Sunday morning at a port in the Ghaguarama region in northwestern Trinidad.

Flames engulfed the tanker shortly after the explosion, but firemen quickly extinguished them, authorities said.

Twenty-four people were aboard the ship, which had been sitting in the water for four days undergoing repairs for a leaky tank.

The tanker was not carrying any oil at the time of the explosion.

Plot to murder Saddam denied support by U.S.

Associated Press

LONDON — The United States refused to support a plot by Iraqi dissidents to kill Saddam Hussein and may have betrayed the coup plotters, The Sunday Times of London reported.

The newspaper quoted a London-based Iraqi dissident, Sa'ad Jabr, as saying that CIA agents and Iraqis discussed the plot at meetings in London last November.

Jabr, who said he arranged the meetings, said the plotters were Sunni Muslims, members of the minority sect which has long supported Saddam, the newspaper said.

CIA spokesman in Washington, Kent Harrington, said the agency had no comment on the newspaper's report.

According to the report, the Iraqi dissidents wanted American planes to bomb two military camps to create chaos. Senior officers at the camps would then seize power.

After months of silence, the Clinton administration said it would not back the plot because turmoil in Iraq could endanger the Middle East peace process, The Sunday Times said.

Jabr passed the message on to the plotters and assumed they would scrap their plans. Instead, they decided to go ahead with an assassination attempt in Baghdad on July 17, when Saddam was to attend a parade marking the anniversary of his Ba'ath Party's 1968 seizure of power. The attempt failed.

Officials stand over the body of a woman shot and killed by a sniper Saturday in El Cajon, Calif.

2 killed, 5 wounded by California sniper

Amanda Covarrubias
Associated Press

EL CAJON, Calif. — A sniper shooting from a second-floor apartment Saturday killed a woman and a child and wounded five other people, including a 2-year-old, before his apartment went up in flames.

Police identified the gunman as Gordon Newman, 62, a longtime resident who neighbors said despised children. His body was found inside the apartment after the fire. His cause of death was not known.

"We know that he was a reclusive individual who didn't like noise, didn't like people around him," police Lt. Bill McClurg said.

Shots rang out in the working-class neighborhood intermittently for about an hour as the gunman fired on people below.

Those killed were a woman, whose body was found in a church parking lot below the sniper's window, and a 9-year-old girl, whose mother was wounded.

As the gunman was shooting, neighbors and firefighters furiously attended to a wounded child who lay in the street with a bullet wound.

The shootings occurred in the same city where two weeks ago James M. Buquet, 19, shot up a crowded health club, killing three women. Buquet also shot a man outside the health club before killing himself.

"Lightning usually doesn't strike twice, but this time it did," said Jack Smith, chief of police in the city northeast of San Diego.

The 9-year-old girl's mother was shot in the hip and listed in fair condition at Sharp Memorial Hospital in San Diego, said administrative supervisor Elaine Weyandt.

Two victims were being treated at Children's Hospital. Lana Nguyen, 12, was in fair condition with a gunshot wound to the back. Daniel Imbimbo, 2, was in critical condition after being shot in the right eye.

Trick-or-treating canceled after 2 murderers escape

Anne Stuart

BRIDGEWATER, Mass. — Two killers serving life sentences escaped from prison Sunday and anxious police told residents to cancel Halloween trick-or-treating.

Robert Dellelo, 51, and Joseph Correia, 38, were discovered missing from the Massachusetts Correctional Institution during a noon head count, police officer Robert Fernandes said.

Robin Bavaro, a spokeswoman for the Corrections Department, would not comment on how they escaped or when they were last seen.

Authorities said they were considered extremely dangerous and urged residents not to let their children outside.

"I haven't had a trick-or-treater yet, and usually I've had a million of them by this time," town officer John Colford said shortly after dark.

"People are concerned, but I don't think frightened," he said.

A daytime parade with costumed children went off as scheduled, though attendance was down. Organizers blamed cold and rainy weather.

Residents were jittery. "I have the doors locked, believe me," said Joanne Potwin, a taxi dispatcher.

Colford said residents are accustomed to living near the prison complex, which includes a mental hospital where suspects are evaluated to determine if they are competent enough to stand trial.

Paternity suit engenders discrimination case

Jay Reeves
Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — An Alabama man fighting a child support order has the backing of feminists and the Clinton administration as he asks the U.S. Supreme Court to overturn a paternity ruling decided by an all-woman jury.

James E. Bowman claims a state court order to pay $415 a month to support a 4-year-old son is unfair because no men served on the jury.

The Justice Department and 17 women's and civil rights groups have filed papers siding with Bowman. They seek an even broader ruling from the court, one that would forbid disqualification of potential jurors solely because of their sex.

Kim Gandy, executive vice president of the National Organization for Women in Washington, concedes it is an unlikely alliance that is backing Bowman, who is married and has denied fathering the baby.

"Cases like this have to be argued on the principle rather than the facts," Gandy said in an interview. "What's at issue here is whether gender-based discrimination is permissible in our legal system for any reason."

The Supreme Court in 1986 said potential jurors cannot be eliminated because of their race. In May, the court said it would use Bowman's case to decide whether to extend that ruling to include sex. Arguments are set for Tuesday.

Bowman, who lives in northeastern Alabama, admitted having an affair with Teresia Bible beginning in February 1988, according to court documents, and the two spent five days together at a motel that August.

Bible testified that no contraception was used and that she had no other sexual partners until after her son was born in May 1989.

A blood test established a 99.92 percent probability that Bowman was the father, but he denied impregnating Bible.

Bowman's attorney, John Porter, declined to provide Bowman's hometown and said his client would not comment on the suit. Bible could not be located for comment.

The jury pool for the 1991 trial included 24 women and 12 men. The judge excused two men and one woman.

Britt cartoon carried an anti-Klan message

Depicting the Ku Klux Klan engaged in the lynching of an African-American stirs some strong emotions. As will be inescapable to anyone reading this section, the syndicated cartoon penned by Chris Britt of Copley News Service (Wednesday, Oct. 27, DI) has evoked some very strong reactions in the UI community. On today's Viewpoints Pages, I have chosen to include a letter to the DI from The Coalition of Concerned African-American Students; an open letter to UI President Hunter Rawlings III; editorial writer H. Fields Grenée's take on how this cartoon affected her; Mike Royko's column concerning the Denny verdicts, which amounted to acquittals on the grounds that the attackers were simply "caught up in the moment"; and my response to this situation as Viewpoints editor of The Daily Iowan.

When the calls began to roll in, I was a bit perplexed; Britt's cartoon seemed to me to contain a strong anti-KKK message, alongside a condemnation of the Denny verdicts.

It said: The Klan has been getting away with lynching — a racially motivated form of mob violence — for more than a century. Damian Williams and Henry Watson were acquitted of attempted murder charges — because they were participants in a racially motivated act of mob violence.

I do not believe that the mere depiction of the KKK — particularly a form which depicts it in a negative light, as did Britt's cartoon — is racist.

The cartoon was designed to show that the two situations are remarkably similar in some ways, that in both situations the attackers would only face misdemeanor charges and that both situations must obviously be rectified. Something has to change so that both sets of attackers can be properly prosecuted and — if found guilty — imprisoned.

But, while nearly everyone I spoke with personally interpreted Britt's cartoon as having more or less the same message that I have just spelled out, a number of people took serious issue with the work.

Among the complaints that I have heard are: the depiction of the African-American man in the cartoon was caricatured stereotypically; the decision to run the cartoon was racist; the mere depiction of the KKK was racist; a disclaimer should have been run; and demands by two callers that an interpretation of Britt's message should have been published beneath the cartoon. And I have also been informed that I am now racially insensitive.

I phoned Dean of Students Phillip Jones to confer with him on the matter as the protesters, I was told, would be stopping by to see him at his office. I wanted to get his interpretation of Britt's cartoon.

Jones told me that when he initially saw the cartoon, he thought it well-drawn and its message well-written, and he didn't give it a second glance. I wonder — does this make Dean Jones, an African-American UI administrator, insensitive to African-American issues?

And over at the Iowa City Press-Citizen, editorial writer Joseph H. Brown opted to run Royko's piece on the Denny verdicts with the headline reading "Mob fever: catch it, you may go free," which closely parallels the caption used in the Britt cartoon, reading "Relax ... mob violence is only a misdemeanor." Brown, who is my counterpart at the Press-Citizen, happens to be African-American. He also chose to run a different syndicated cartoon on the Denny trial. Shall we now accuse even Brown of racial insensitivity?

I do not believe so.

The victim depicted in the cartoon was definitely caricatured, as has been every human being ever shown in an editorial cartoon. It would be impossible to draw a black man without pigmentation. The characteristics which several callers felt to be stereotypical were in fact indicative of every startled or frightened person ever depicted in an editorial cartoon. And so the question becomes: Is the mere depiction of any nonwhite human being racist by necessity?

Again, I do not believe so.

The DI's editorial policy states that every opinion printed, including editorial cartoons, is the opinion of the signed author. Look to the lower, left-hand portion of this page. That box appears in every issue we print. Therein lies our disclaimer.

Members of The Coalition of Concerned African-American Students marched on the offices of the DI on Friday, Oct. 29 and handed me a letter in which they made certain demands of the DI. I will not apologize for the printing of a strong, anti-KKK, anti-lynching message. I do not believe that the mere depiction of the KKK — particularly a form which depicts it in a negative light, as did Britt's cartoon — is racist.

But I do understand that the sight of a bunch of cowardly, masked, Billy-Bob bigots bragging about getting off with a minor charge for murdering an African-American could easily offend anyone.

And rightly so. This cartoon utilized the KKK as its vehicle for that reason. That the Klan (or anyone) could get off on misdemeanor charges should be infuriating. But the message of this cartoon, no matter how one twists it, cannot be rationally believed to be "Go hang a black man." Any anger should be directed at the real sources of the offense — the KKK, the jurors in the Denny trial and the legal loopholes which let the attackers off the hook. The Daily Iowan, by merely presenting a depiction of the KKK, was not implying support for those emotionally and intellectually truncated terrorists.

The Daily Iowan's Viewpoints Pages will continue to print diverse points of view — and that includes the ones which I find reprehensible. And we'll continue to print all of the viewpoints on any given issue — including racial issues — that we receive, provided they follow the guidelines outlined in the DI's editorial policy with respect to word limit, frequency and relevance to the issues being discussed (in other words, if we're sent a page of personal insults, it won't be published).

Presentation of a variety of opinions will sometimes offend readers — but that is, in part, the purpose of the Viewpoints Pages.

H. FIELDS GRENEE

Has justice really been served?

"I am an invisible man. ... I am a man of substance, of flesh and bone, fiber and liquids — and I might even be said to possess a mind. I am invisible understand, simply because people refuse to see me. ... When they approach me they see only my surroundings, themselves, or figments of their imagination — indeed, everything and anything except me."

—"Invisible MAN" by Ralph Ellison

On Oct. 27, 1993, The Daily Iowan ran a syndicated cartoon on its Viewpoints Pages concerning the acquittals of two African-American males in the Reginald Denny Los Angeles riot beatings. The cartoon featured Ku Klux Klan members preparing to hang a Sambo depiction of an African-American male during a torch light ceremony. In the hand of one of the Klan members is an issue of a Los Angeles newspaper with a headline which reads "Two acquitted in Denny beating." And the caption being uttered by one of the members reads "Relax ... mob violence is only a misdemeanor."

The racist connotations in this cartoon are extremely upsetting. Therefore, the decision to use the cartoon represents a complete lack of racial awareness and understanding. However, it was not the intrinsic racism illustrated in this piece which upset me, for I have already "learned" to accept and have, therefore, become desensitized became quite clear. The conclusion is that African-Americans are stereotypically similar, powerless and can be easily harmed.

These points are illustrated as follows: 1) Only one person of African descent is used to represent all African-Americans; 2) the African male is in a submissive position in reference to the "dominant" position of the Klansmen, who outnumber him to the extent that they are cut off by the left border of the cartoon; and 3) the mere fact that this African male is being hung by a group which is historically known for its acts of racial hatred and violence toward minority groups.

In short, if this cartoon was meant to be insightful, it was. It incited anger. It depicts once again the ongoing scenario which unfortunately is used to blame the victim and is never questioned. You might ask: What scenario am I referring to? The fact that the life of an African-American is not valued by this society. The fact that African-Americans are disproportionately represented below the poverty line. The fact that despite what laws might be on the books, African-Americans still do not have the same opportunities for education, housing, social advancement, justice and an overall general peace of mind as the "average" American.

Furthermore, when situations such as these are depicted in a format which is intended to be humorous, they will always fall short of their initial intent, in the same manner in which this cartoon has. For when one uses a stereotype — like the Sambo character — in order to classify an entire group of people, it robs them of their individuality and strips them of their human essence. That can only be inferred as an open attack on the group in question, rendering them nameless, faceless entities which lack the voice to scream out in protest because they have been made invisible. Therefore, their woes and their wants are never heard because they are constantly being classified by the misconceptions of what they are expected to be, instead of who they actually are.

If this seems outrageous, ask yourself: Why wasn't the content of this syndicated cartoon withdrawn during the process of evaluation before publication?

H. Fields Grenée is an editorial writer, on the Viewpoints Pages of The Daily Iowan.

The Chris Britt cartoon in question.

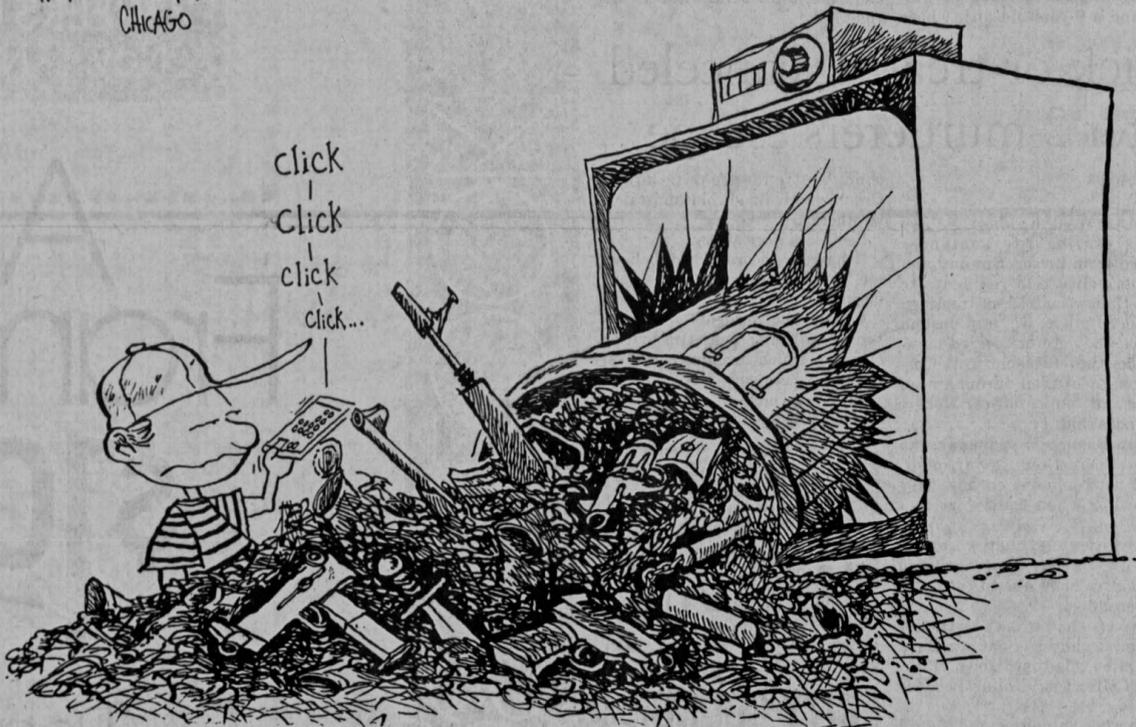

Since humor is a way of expressing that which would otherwise not be said, we need to consider what this cartoon is actually saying. After further review of the power differentiation expressed within this piece, the conclusion sent all African-Americans; 2) the African male is in a submissive position in reference to the "dominant" position of the Klansmen, who outnumber him to the extent that they are cut off by the left border of the cartoon; and 3) the mere fact that this African male is being hung by a group which is historically known for its acts of racial hatred and violence toward minority groups.

Editorial cartoon 'insensitive'

To the Editor:

With respect to the printed editorial policy of The Daily Iowan, we request your assistance and understanding with the following issue:

The syndicated editorial cartoon authored by Chris Britt which was printed in the Wednesday, Oct. 27 issue of The Daily Iowan did not assist your public in understanding the printed UI goals of multiculturalism and cultural diversity. Although the goal of public response desired by Viewpoints Editor Jonathan Lyons will be accomplished, it will be at the overwhelming embarrassment and degradation of many UI students. We understand that this may not have been the original intention of your staff.

In order to support the printed UI goals of multiculturalism and cultural diversity which assist in the recruitment and enrollment of intelligent, interested students who desire a quality education, we request the following from you:

A) Please print an apology to the UI and Iowa City communities regarding the printing of Mr. Britt's editorial cartoon in the Wednesday, Oct. 27 issue of The Daily Iowan. In your apology, address the insensitive nature of the editorial cartoon and the uncontrollable, hateful separation it has unintentionally created among the UI student body. Print your apology on the front page of the Monday, Nov. 1 issue of The Daily Iowan.

B) Please print an explanation for the UI and Iowa City communities regarding your justification for initially printing the editorial cartoon. In your explanation, acknowledge your original intentions for printing the editorial cartoon and your envisioned expectations assumed from your subscribers. Print your reasonable, anticipated explanation alongside the apology previously requested in this letter.

C) Please publish this letter and the enclosed letter to UI President Hunter Rawlings III on the same page with the requested apology and the requested explanation previously discussed.

Your fulfillment of these requests will assist the UI and Iowa City communities, particularly the businesses, organizations and corporations which choose to advertise in your newspaper, in understanding the printed UI goals of multiculturalism and cultural diversity. This will also cease the growing dissension and cultural conflict which has dramatically increased in our living environment. Thank you very much for your participation, promptness and cooperation.

The Coalition of Concerned African-American Students

Open letter to UI President Hunter Rawlings

Dear President Rawlings:

With respect to your efforts publicized nationwide about the goals of multiculturalism and cultural diversity at our university, please acknowledge the following:

As you are aware, there is dissension and dissatisfaction greatly increasing among the UI student body concerning the recruitment, retention and graduation of African-American students. Although the UI has achieved visible goals in relation to this, such as the recent outstanding remodeling of the Afro-American Cultural Center, actions condoned by others within the UI community continue to negate your efforts.

President Rawlings, the final insult to our endeavors was the syndicated editorial cartoon authored by Chris Britt, which was printed with authorization in the Oct. 27 issue of The Daily Iowan. Please read the enclosed letter to DI Editor Loren Keller for our specific concerns with The Daily Iowan.

In addition to our requests of The Daily Iowan, we request the following under your authority and jurisdiction as the president of the UI:

A) Please consult with the University Human Resources Department for the search and hiring of a recognized specialist in understanding and unlearning institutionalized racism. The specialist will be contracted by Dec. 1, 1993, for an extended amount of time by the UI under your approval and authority. The mandatory requirement of participation by lead administration, department heads and influential student service staff members will assist in the successful recruitment, retention and graduation of students of color, including African-American students.

B) Please advise Dean of Students Phillip Jones of the immediate enforcement of permanent representation of students of color on student activity boards which make decisions on UI student programs. Our mandatory fees automatically involve us in the payment and responsibility for student activities at the UI. This permanent representation of students of color will assist the UI and Iowa City communities in respecting the printed goals of multiculturalism and cultural diversity.

We welcome your questions and concerns which relate to these requests. We expect to receive your detailed reply to these requests by Monday, Nov. 1 at 1 p.m. in your office. Fulfilling these requests will convince the UI and Iowa City communities, particularly the businesses, corporations and organizations which financially support our university, that the printed UI goals of multiculturalism and diversity are consistently pursued and supported. Thank you very much for your promptness, participation and cooperation.

Support for Lundell

To the Editor:
After careful and complete consideration of all the candidates running for the Coralville City Council, I would like to take this opportunity to endorse Diana Lundell.

Diana Lundell has been a strong public advocate for the people of Coralville for the past seven years as a Council member. She has been a vocal leader, active in a wide range of issues from the Coralville annexation project to the implementation of curbside recycling. Her commitment and dedication to the Coralville Library as well as the Coralville Recreation Department stand on their own merit.

Diana Lundell brings effective leadership and insight to the Coralville City Council. Her record of public service stands for itself. I strongly urge you to vote Tuesday, Nov. 2, and enthusiastically support the re-election of Diana Lundell.

Joanne E. Higgins
Coralville

St. John endorsed

To the Editor:
I'll be voting for Jim St. John in the race for the four-year at-large Iowa City City Council seat. Jim will be an active, thoughtful City Council member. Jim has focused his campaign on his desire to make Iowa City more affordable, and to make development more sensible.

The most Jim's leading opponent can offer is "How are you going to pay for it?" and "We need growth to expand the tax base." It is this philosophy of unrestrained growth that has led to the problems of development in flood plains, downtown traffic congestion and skyrocketing rates for city services — things that cost us all.

The question is not "growth or no growth?" Growth is inevitable. The questions are "What kind of growth do we want?" and "What effect will this have on the cost of living in Iowa City?"

Jim St. John has established himself as the best person to answer those questions.

Mob mentality no excuse for racial violence

It's surprising that so few people see the bright side of the powder-puff verdicts in the Reginald Denny skull-crushing case.

All I've been reading are the groanings of legal experts, media commentators and regular folks who say they can't understand how that Los Angeles jury could have been so lenient toward the two thugs.

They say things like this: The jurors repeatedly viewed the horrifying videotapes. Didn't they believe their own eyes when they saw Damian Williams take aim and bounce a brick off Denny's head, then do a joyous end-zone touchdown dance?

Didn't they see Henry Watson place his foot on Denny's throat as if stepping on an insect or some other lower form of life?

If bashing a skull and stepping on a throat aren't serious crimes, what the heck is?

Well, as regular readers of this column know, I always try to look at the bright side of things. As the old song goes, I accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative.

And I try to look at the bright side of things. And in this case, the big picture is what counts.

Apparently this jury thought that Williams and Watson weren't responsible for their own action because they kind of got caught up in the spirit of the moment, which was to go out and bash some white person because the cops had been acquitted of flogging Rodney King.

One of the jurors admitted as much in an interview with The New York Times. The woman, 22, said:

"They (Williams and Watson) seemed just like anyone, just like you and I. I see them as just two human beings. They just got caught up in the riot. I guess maybe they were in the wrong place at the wrong time."

How true. Had they been on a cruise ship in the Caribbean, in a Paris Bistro or at Disney World, it's certain that they wouldn't have engaged in any Denny-bashing.

Instead, it was their bad luck to be in that part of Los Angeles when the King verdict spread a riot virus. And being mere human beings — "just like you and I," the juror said — they were swept up in the feverish need to rush into the streets and mutilate strangers.

Try thinking of it as a sudden case of flu. When the flu bug bites, can any human being be blamed for running a high temperature and suffering aches and pains?

It's sort of like saying, "The devil made me do it." Or the traditional plea of a mother to a judge before her son is sentenced: "Your honor, he's a good boy, but he fell in with a bad crowd."

Most judges and juries don't buy these excuses. But this jury appears to have accepted mob fever as a valid reason to stomp total strangers.

And that's what I see as a bright side.

The L.A. riot wasn't the only instance of mob violence in our society. Besides our occasional urban riots, we have gang rapes and gang murders. Mobs of racist whites have attacked unfortunate blacks who wandered into their neighborhoods. Mobs of racist blacks have done the same to unfortunate whites.

Cops have been known to lose their tempers en masse when a fellow cop is killed and to get in some extra whacks after they catch the cop killers. In fact, a high-ranking Chicago cop was recently fired for mistreating cop killers and other felons.

All of these offenses — group actions of one kind or another — add to the strain on our law enforcement system. People have to be arrested, processed, put on trial and sometimes sent to prison.

We know our justice system is already overburdened. Too many criminals and not enough cops, prosecutors, judges and prison cells.

So along comes this jury to show us a way to relieve the legal system of much of the burden.

"True, my lout of a client bashed that fellow with a brick, but he was just caught up in the riotous mood of the moment. Wrong time, wrong place. I mean, hey, everyone was doing it ..."

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, while the evidence shows that my boorish client took part in the gang rape, what choice did he have? He just got caught up in the group spirit. Wrong time, wrong place. Everyone in the alley was doing it ..."

"Jurors, I concede that my client, this slack-jawed racist skinhead, did take part in murdering that minority fellow. But we hope you consider peer pressure. He was just caught up in group hatred. He's only human. It could happen to anyone. And if he had been on a gondola in Venice, it wouldn't have happened in the first place."

So if we start looking at mob-related crime the way the jury in the Denny case did — that individuals aren't necessarily responsible for their own actions — we can avoid the bother and expense of putting a lot of people on trial and locking them in prisons.

Group-induced stupidity. It's a fascinating legal concept.

And the Denny jury itself is a perfect example.

SARAJEVO JEOPARDIZED BY CUTOFF

Shooting at runway halts crucial airlifts

Maud Beelman
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Aid flights to Sarajevo were suspended Sunday after a French officer was wounded in a hail of bullets across the airport runway, a U.N. official said.

It was not immediately clear who fired the shots because both government and Serb positions front the runway, located on the southwest side of the Bosnian capital. But with most land supplies cut off, the airlift is crucial to feed and care for Sarajevo's citizens.

U.N. spokesman Lt. Col. Bill Aikman said the French officer and others were getting ready to board a routine U.N. flight to Zagreb, the Croatian capital, when the shots rang out.

The officer, who was not identified, was wounded in the arm and evacuated, he said.

Flights were canceled for the rest of the day, Aikman said. The status of today's flights are unclear. "We'll address that this morning," he said.

Aikman reported Sunday on advances by the Bosnian army and Croat forces in different theaters of the central Bosnian battlefield in fighting a day earlier. New warnings came of abuse of civilians and impending suffering through the coming winter.

Aikman said U.N. monitors reported Croats advanced over a mile toward Travnik, northwest of Sarajevo. Fighting was among the heaviest in a corridor normally used for aid convoys.

Convoys in central Bosnia have been suspended since a Danish driver was killed and 11 others, including peacekeepers, were wounded in a mortar attack Oct. 25.

U.N. military commander Gen. Jean Cot appealed for peace. He said in a statement that attacks on aid convoys and continued fighting made it more likely that people would spend the winter with no electricity and insufficient food, shelter, clothing and fuel.

"Sadly, many of these people will not survive," he said.

Aikman said the Bosnian army made "significant" gains around Vares, north of Sarajevo, capturing the village of Dubostica in an apparent attempt to link up with Bosnian troops south of Vares.

The area still is a patchwork of government-, Croat- and Serb-held territory. Serb troops are just three miles southwest of Vares.

Fighting near Vares area last week, including a massacre of civilians in Stupni Do which the United Nations has blamed on Croats, has pushed tensions to a peak.

camped in tents on the grounds of a U.N. Nordic battalion base at Vares, about 20 miles north of Sarajevo, Aikman said.

U.N. armored personnel carriers were stationed outside two schools in Vares, where more than 200 Muslim civilians are being held by Croat forces. Another 60 Muslim refugees were taken Saturday through front lines in armored personnel carriers.

2 English boys to be tried in toddler's grisly murder

Karin Davies
Associated Press

LIVERPOOL, England — Two 11-year-old boys go on trial today for allegedly kidnapping and murdering a toddler whose abduction from a shopping center was caught on videotape. They are the youngest ever to be charged with murder in Britain.

"It is a frightening case," acknowledged defense lawyer Laurence Lee, who is representing one of the boys.

Frightening for people who saw the crime unfold when the videotape was broadcast around the world; for Denise and Ralph Bulger, who lost their only child; and for the accused boys, who were 10 at the time of the crime and marked their 11th birthdays in custody.

Ten is the youngest age at which a child can face criminal charges in Britain, but prosecutors must prove that the child understood the consequences of her or his actions.

"The child has got to know that what he did was seriously wrong, not just naughty," Lee told the Associated Press.

Feb. 12, 2-year-old James Bulger strayed from his mother's side at a shopping center. Within minutes, a security camera recorded an older boy taking his hand and following a friend onto a busy street.

James' battered body was found two days later several miles away.

The two boys are charged with abducting and murdering James, and attempting to abduct another 2-year-old boy earlier the same day. They pleaded innocent to all three charges at a preliminary hearing in May.

Under British law, the accused boys cannot be identified nor can any information be revealed that may identify them.

Their neighbors know the children well, and their families have left their homes for their own safety.

At the first court appearance in February, angry crowds pelted police vans carrying the boys with stones and eggs. The jury trial was moved to Preston, 30 miles north of Liverpool.

Since their arrests, they have been held in separate locations, where they have received counseling and education.

Iowa abalone 'Swarm'

IOWA CITY (AP) — The Swarm may be history.

The Swarm is the tight group of Iowa's football players who formed to enter and leave the field since Hayden Fry became the coach in 1979. While swarming, the players hold hands as a show of unity.

But in Iowa's 26-17 victory over Purdue on Saturday, there was no swarm. The Hawkeyes lined up on and off the field like most other teams.

"A couple of us seniors, like Jason Olejniczak and me, decided we wanted to do something different," defensive back Scott Plate said. "We had it when we were freshmen and went to the Rose Bowl. Everything we were doing wasn't going right (this year).

"So we said we wanted to run out there and be fired up instead of going out there seeming half-scared. We did our own thing and it helped us."

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak and gave the Hawkeyes hope for a winning season. They'd finish 6-5 by winning their final three games.

Plate said the Swarm probably will be abandoned the rest of the season.

"We don't want to show any disrespect, but we need emotion," he said. "We want to make a trademark for this team."

Plate said the seniors didn't check with the coaches before breaking the Swarm.

"Not to say anything bad about the coaches, but — as seniors — what are they going to do? If they're mad the way we ran out, it would be absurd," he said.

Gallagher beats Norman in Tour Championship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Gallagher, donning a clown's mask, joked as he watched nervously Sunday while Greg Norman blundered away the $3 million Tour Championship by a stroke with bogeys on two of the final three holes.

With those two bogeys, Norman lost the tournament, the chance for the money title and, perhaps, the vote of his peers for PGA Tour Player of the Year.

"I made two mental errors and it cost me the championship," the drained and stony-faced Norman said.

Nick Price, despite his tie for 18th, secured the money title with $1,478,557 and may also win the PGA's top player award. Paul Azinger, farther back in a tie for 21, finished second in the money race with nearly $100,000 more than Norman's $1,359,653.

Gallagher was happy just doubling his year's earnings with the $540,000 winner's check.

Gallagher set a course record under, 63 in the first round before unraveling with 73 and 72 in the next two rounds.

Warriors' Mullin out for six weeks

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — For a change, Golden State Warriors coach Don Nelson was at a loss for words.

"I just don't know what to do or say anymore," Nelson said after five-time All-Star forward Chris Mullin joined guards Tim Laddaway and Sarunas Marciulionis on the team's growing casualty list.

Mullin underwent successful surgery Sunday at the Ralph K. Davies Medical Center in San Francisco. The surgery repaired a torn radial collateral ligament at the base of his little finger on his right hand, an injury he suffered Saturday during a preseason game against the Seattle SuperSonics.

Team doctors said Mullin would be out for about six weeks, during which the Warriors are scheduled to play 18 games. Mullin injured the thumb on the same hand last season, missing the final 36 games of the season.

Fry 'down' despite first Big Ten win

Roxanna Pellin
The Daily Iowan

Although the Hawkeyes won their first Big Ten game Saturday, Iowa coach Hayden Fry still doesn't feel like he's out of the dog house.

Fry has been upbeat and positive after Iowa's past five losses, but following Saturday's 26-17 win over Purdue, his attitude was just the opposite.

But Fry said his team wasn't the reason for his bad feelings.

"I'm down for different reasons, not my football team," Fry said. "I just feel a personal hurt with some of the things that have happened."

Iowa players seemed to understand Fry's position.

"I think that's just being a coach," linebacker Mike Dailey said. "Before we had a losing streak going, and he had to be upbeat for the team. Now we pull off a win and everybody's happy, and he's kind of got to be the pessimist against everybody. That's just coaching, we've got to get ready for the next game."

With Iowa's record of 1-5 in the Big Ten and 3-5 overall, split end Harold Jasper said Fry's reaction was "typical."

"I mean we're having a bad season and this is our first win for a while, so it's kind of expected," he said.

Fry said part of the reason for touchdown run by Burmeister to put Iowa ahead, 26-7. Burmeister threw for 290 yards in the Hawkeyes' 26-17 win Saturday.

his negativity was the criticism Iowa has received this season.

"I'm extremely proud of my football team," Fry said. "They've done a good job in the face of a lot of criticism and a lot of negative reporting, which I understand. If you don't win, you're going to have to catch the darts."

"It doesn't mean I have to like it."

With the loss to Iowa, Purdue (0-5, 1-7) now shares last place in the Big Ten with Northwestern (0-5, 2-6).

Iowa quarterback Paul Burmeister completed a 55-yard pass to split end Harold Jasper in the first quarter for Iowa's first touchdown at Kinnick Stadium since Sept. 4.

Burmeister threw a near-perfect game, completing 21 of 27 passes for a career-high 290 yards. He threw three touchdown passes and no interceptions.

The last time Iowa played at home in a 49-3 loss to Illinois, Burmeister was booed by some fans.

"It feels really good to play a good game in front of the hometown crowd, especially with the way things went the last time we played here," Burmeister said. "I know for the team it's like a giant weight off their shoulders and I know individually it is for me too."

Jasper, one of Burmeister's frequent targets, had six receptions for 129 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Hawkeye offense.

Purdue quarterback Rick Trefzger completed 14 of 25 passes for 193 yards and one interception. The Boilermakers finished with 379 yards total offense to Iowa's 439 yards.

Hawkeyes upset No. 2 Wildcats

Kris Wiley
The Daily Iowan

With two upsets in less than a week, the Iowa field hockey team could be thinking about a national title, but the Hawkeyes have only one thing on their minds.

"We have to take care of what's ahead and that is Michigan State and Ohio State," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said. "If we don't take care of them, we can just scream on the way down."

After losing to No. 2 Northwestern, 2-0, three weeks ago, the No. 5 Hawkeyes handed the Wildcats a 3-0 loss Saturday at Grant Field.

"We needed to win this weekend," senior Tiffany Bybel said. "This was a revenge match. We wanted to get our pride back."

The win also set the Iowa school record for shutouts in a season with 15. The Hawkeyes did not give up a goal at home during the season, and allowed just five goals all season.

Senior Kristy Gleason's hat trick gave Iowa all the points it needed. Gleason scored the first with 24 seconds left in the first half on a penalty corner assisted by Bybel and Mary Kraybill, and converted on the Hawkeyes' only two shots in the second half. The first was assisted by Bybel and Kraybill at the 31:19 mark and the second was assisted by Emily Smith and Kraybill with 25:16 left to play.

Gleason's hat trick was her fifth this season and the 14th of her career.

Beglin said the Hawkeyes came out slow, but "snapped out of it" halfway through the first half.

"I wasn't focusing on the score, I was looking at what was happening on the field, and I saw we were not moving the ball," Beglin said.

"It was 1-0 at halftime and that next goal was critical. If we scored first, we would have the game in control."

Iowa outshot Northwestern, 8-5, and recorded nine penalty corners to the Wildcats' five. The Iowa defense held Northwestern to one shot in the second half.

Victory turns ugly

Richard Eggleston
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — The scene seemed natural: thousands of students euphoric after Wisconsin's victory over Michigan, spilling out of the stands and driving relentlessly toward the nearest goalpost.

Some realized immediately that something was dreadfully wrong, including football players who rushed to a pile of people at the north end of the stadium. But most others partied on, happy at having pushed past barriers and security guards to reach the artificial turf of Camp Randall Stadium.

Nearby, Aimee Jansen was fighting for her life, pinned with dozens of others near the stands.

"People were screaming for their lives, 'Oh my God! Oh my God!'" said Jansen, a sophomore.

At least 69 were injured, seven critically, on Saturday when a railing collapsed at the edge of the student section, sending fans tumbling into a 10-foot-wide gap between the stands and a 4-foot chain-link fence.

Others, pressing down from the top of the stadium, swarmed over those who had fallen and knocked down the fence en route to the wild on-field celebration.

Two people were in serious condition Sunday while 13 were hospitalized in fair to good condition.

University of Wisconsin Chancellor David Ward said the school would review if changes are needed before Saturday's home game against Ohio State.

Some students said players or other fans saved their lives.

Pinned with dozens of others in the narrow gap between the stands and the chain-link fence, Jansen was ready to pass out when a Wisconsin player came to her aid.

"He grabbed me by my pants and whipped me over," she said. "I know this football player was No. 3, and I know there are two No. 3's. I want to get hold of him because I do believe he saved my life."

The Badgers' numerical roster lists both defensive back Kenny Gales and redshirt freshman quarterback Michael Brin as No. 3.

Associated Press

Fans storm the field after Wisconsin's 13-10 win over Michigan Saturday in Madison. The celebration turned sour and at least 69 people were injured when a railing collapsed. Thirteen remained hospitalized Sunday.

Jansen was treated at a hospital for an arm injury.

Offensive lineman Joe Panos said he went to the pile and began passing people to teammates.

"It was the scariest thing I've ever seen," Panos said. "I had to hop the fence to pull some people out of there who were unconscious. A couple of them were blue, literally blue. I thought they were gone."

The north goalpost was still standing minutes after the game, despite repeated attempts to knock it down, when an announcement silenced the crowd: "We have a pulseless nonbreather at the north end of the field. This is not a joke."

An ambulance was allowed to pass through the crowd, and officials swarmed in to help the injured.

Dr. Bruce Harms of the University of Wisconsin Hospital and Clinics said many brought to the emergency room had oxygen deficiency. The quick actions of football players and other students to unpile the spectators saved lives, he said.

Running back Ryan Terry dives for the end zone for a gain of three yards during the second quarter of Iowa's 26-17 win over Purdue Saturday at Kinnick Stadium. Terry was inches short, but quarterback Paul Burmeister scored on a 1-yard quarterback sneak on the next play to give the Hawkeyes a 26-7 lead. Iowa is 3-5 on the season.

FOOTBALL

A week after pressuring Michigan State quarterback Jim Miller for four sacks, Hawkeye left end Larry Blue flattened Purdue's Trefzger twice for a loss of 11 yards.

Right tackle Mike Wells picked up two more sacks to give him seven on the year and 29 in his career. Iowa held a 19-0 lead, but gave up two touchdowns before halftime on 11- and 1-yard runs by fullback Mike Alstott.

Fry had mixed emotions about his defense.

"Our defense was super and they were terrible. Overall, they only gave up 17 points, and Purdue has been scoring an awful lot of points against some very fine teams."

But special teams play was "horrible," Fry said.

The Hawkeyes were hit with a holding penalty on a Purdue punt in the second quarter. The Boilermakers gained a first down on the Iowa 37-yard line en route to their second touchdown.

In the third quarter, Iowa was penalized for having an extra player on the field to give Purdue a first down on the Iowa 38-yard line. Brad Bobich completed the series with a 21-yard field goal.

"Iowa was kind enough to help us with a couple of penalties," Purdue coach Jim Colletto said.

Colletto was pleased with his team's defensive effort. Prior to the Iowa game, the Boilermakers had given up 32 points per game, the worst in the Big Ten.

"We allowed no scores in the second half and, for us, that's a monumental step forward."

Iowa punter Nick Gallery had a big game, averaging 48.7 yards on three kicks. His longest punt was 70 yards to top his career-best of 69 yards against Tulsa Sept. 4.

Despite his lack of enthusiasm, Fry said he was proud of his team.

"We fortunately had enough character to hang in there and win the game," he said.

Hawkeyes long due for offensive 'explosion'

Joel Donofrio
The Daily Iowan

After scoring only 30 points in its first five Big Ten games, the Iowa offense was due to light up the Kinnick Stadium scoreboard with a "Hawkeye explosion." On Saturday, the Hawkeyes came out smoking, scoring four first-half touchdowns before hanging on to defeat the Purdue Boilermakers, 26-17.

Iowa's Paul Burmeister passed for a career-high 290 yards, completing 21 of 27 passes. The senior quarterback also threw three touchdowns, two of them to split end Harold Jasper.

"Those were just passes really intended to only pick up a few yards," Burmeister said. "But when you have a great player like Harold, there's always a chance he's going to turn it into a great play like that. That's what he did."

Jasper credited two great blocks downfield for allowing him to turn a short pass into a 55-yard touchdown trot.

"The first (score) was a simple under route, and they went man, which left me open," Jasper said. "I wasn't expecting to go all the way, but once I caught the ball, there were a couple of key blocks downfield by Willie Guy and (tight end Mark) Roussell, and everything worked out."

Guy, who caught a 32-yard pass in the second quarter for his first Iowa touchdown, said he was looking to get a good hit on Purdue safety Pat Johnson.

"(Jasper) beat his man with his under route, and I just picked up the first block I saw," Guy said. "One of the good things about it was I told the guys all week that number 29 (Johnson) was a big hitter — he knocked a guy out of the Wisconsin game, and I just said let's take the fight to him instead of him bringing the fight to us."

The Hawkeye wing back added that his team was due to explode for a few points after struggling offensively during a five-game losing streak.

"We talk about the Hawkeye explosion, coming out and jumping right on them," Guy said. "That's what we did in the first half; now we've just got to keep it up and maintain it for four quarters."

Both Guy and Jasper, who caught six passes for 132 yards on the day, believed Burmeister's big day got a boost from the improved blocking by the Hawkeye offensive line.

"Paul seemed real confident in the pocket today, and one reason is that he had the time to look around," Jasper said. "I always thought Paul was a great passer, he just didn't have the time to throw sometimes, and today he did."

Burmeister, who was only sacked once and was rarely pressured during the entire game, also applauded the offensive line's improvement throughout the season.

"The pass protection was great. Those guys deserve a lot of credit," Burmeister said. "The offensive linemen, people have been down on them all year, but they've kept their confidence up and they played a great game today."

Iowa gets lucky on Hurley's kickoff

Roxanna Pellin
Joel Donofrio
The Daily Iowan

Without question, the strangest play of the day was Iowa's recovery of an "onside kick" following their first touchdown. Or was it?

Iowa kicker Brion Hurley booted a line-drive kickoff off the face-mask of Purdue kick return team blocker Ryan Phipps. The ball bounced back towards a surprised Iowa kickoff coverage team before Hawkeye Mick Mulherin scooped it up.

"I think it was a squib kickoff, and it bounced off him and we got lucky," Iowa linebacker Matt Hilliard said of the play. "It's about time we got some breaks going our way, and that's something that hopefully will keep going for the rest of the year."

SILLY MISTAKES — The Boilermakers' comeback effort was helped greatly by two penalties committed by the Hawkeye punt return team.

A holding penalty late in the first half and having 12 men on the field in the second half allowed the Purdue offense to get the ball back after they had been forced to punt. In both situations, the Boilermakers drove for scores.

"We had some really silly mistakes on special teams — on a couple of punt returns, we had penalties and we gave them the ball back when really our defense should have been off the field," Iowa defensive tackle Mike Wells said.

"As it ended up, out of those situations they got 10 points. It's kind of strange, just a lack of concentration by some guys."

Iowa had eight penalties for 89 yards while Purdue lost 52 yards on six penalties.

NO IOWA STATE — Saturday's game may have reminded some Hawkeye fans of the Iowa State game Sept. 11 when Iowa jumped out to a 28-7 halftime lead, and held on for a 31-28 win.

But quarterback Paul Burmeister said the Purdue game was no comparison.

"In the Iowa State game, we just couldn't get anything going," Burmeister said.

"In this game, we had things going, but we kept shooting ourselves in the foot with penalties. There were quite a few times we had a good gain called back with a penalty."

REPEAT PERFORMANCE — It was a repeat performance of the Michigan State game for Iowa's defensive duo of Mike Wells and Larry Blue.

Wells and Blue each had two sacks against the Boilermakers for a combined loss of 21 yards.

Blue had four sacks at Michigan State and Wells came up with two.

"I think we played aggressive on them," Blue said. "I think they were scared about the outside rushes and they were very aware of me and Mike Wells coming from outside."

Linebacker Mike Dailey picked off his first interception this season and returned it 17 yards. Dailey, who was ranked sixth in the Big Ten in tackles going into the game, had 10 tackles against Purdue. He now has 70 tackles on the season, 141 in his career.

Danny Frazier/The Daily Iowan

Harold Jasper celebrates after his 22-yard TD. Jasper had six receptions for 129 yards and two touchdowns in Iowa's 26-17 win over Purdue.

WOMEN'S GOLF

Hawkeyes close season at UCLA

Iowa closes its fall season beginning today at the Bruin Classic; Hawkeyes haven't competed since Oct. 10

Schneekloth will compete for Iowa in the 16-team tournament.

Coach Diane Thomason feels the time off could help the team and enable them to finish the season on a positive note.

Thomason said it is important to finish the tournament with a strong final round — something the Hawkeyes have not done this season.

"You always want to go into winter hibernation on a good note," Thomason said. "I think they feel like they haven't done what they want to do. They know that they haven't put the finishing touches on it yet and I think they want another chance."

The Hawkeyes feel a strong finish this week is important because it would carry over into the spring season.

"Hopefully this is kind of a springboard for the spring season," McCullough said. "It gives you a real good attitude."

"I think it just leaves you with confidence," Shepley added. "If you don't play well it just makes you work that much harder. We're a lot more confident going into this tournament."

The Hawkeyes worked on their short games during the time off, and Thomason is encouraged by that and strong qualifying rounds which could help keep their confidence high.

"It's such a stupid thing with golf. If you play well, you think you're good and you feel good about yourself, but if you have one bad day and one bad hole then you lose you've worked on all week," Thomason said.

"I think that they feel pretty good because they feel like they had time to prepare."

Iowa faces host UCLA, Texas Christian, Tennessee, Tulsa, Brigham Young, Oregon, Washington State, Southern Methodist, Washington, Texas, Oklahoma, Hawaii, Pepperdine and San Francisco in the three-day tournament.

Iowa gets through first round

Dvorak leads Hawkeyes into second round of Rolex Regionals, Iowa's last tournament of the season

Todd Hefferman
The Daily Iowan

Three representatives of the women's tennis team met success last weekend at the Rolex Regionals held in East Lansing, Mich.

The tournament is the Hawkeyes' last competition of the fall season.

Dvorak, who is from Western Springs, Ill., had previously been 0-2 in first-round tournament matches, but beat Janelle Crabtree of Iowa State in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, to advance into the second round.

Fox, out of Salem, Ore., breezed through her first-round match, crushing Kristi Meola of Indiana, 6-2, 6-0.

Willette became the third Hawkeye to get through the first round, becoming the only Hawkeye to go three sets in the process.

Willette, who is from San Diego, Calif., lost the first set 6-7 (3-7), but came back to win the next two, 7-6 (9-7), 7-6 (7-2) to take the match.

Willette and Fox had to play double duty on the first day. Both were entered in the singles and the doubles draw.

Willette and Fox drew Xavier's Boyle and Caton as their first round opponents, and dispatched them in straight sets, 6-2, 6-0, for their second tournament victory of the year as a doubles team.

The Hawkeyes, who finished fifth in the Big Ten last year with a 16-8 record, resume competition in the spring semester.

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Herd finishes fifth for Hawks

Mike Egenes
The Daily Iowan

After winning three straight meets, the Iowa men's cross country team returned to Earth at the Big Ten Conference Championship meet Saturday at East Lansing, Mich.

Larry Wiczorek

Iowa finished a disappointing seventh in the 10-team meet as it compiled 149 points — nearly 100 points behind Michigan, which won the meet with 50. Following the Wolverines were Wisconsin (66), Penn State (80), Minnesota (120), Indiana (125) and Michigan State (145).

Only two Hawkeye runners finished in the top 25. Kevin Herd earned all-Big Ten honors by finishing fifth overall in 24 minutes, 41 seconds. The closest Hawkeye to Herd was Matt Gerard, who came in 25th (25:32).

Other finishers for the Hawkeyes were Rod Rerko (27th; 25:33), Sean Gale (47th; 26:04), Troy Hollatz (50th; 26:07), Marc Roehl (51st; 26:08), and Garry Roseman (60th; 26:29).

The top individual finisher was Michigan freshman Kevin Sullivan, who finished in 24:15.

Going into the meet, Iowa coach Larry Wiczorek thought his team was gearing up for a strong post-season, but never dreamed it would turn out like this.

"This is obviously a disappointment," said Wiczorek. "We are a good team, but we didn't execute and run like the good team we are. It's too bad it happened at the Big Tens."

Although the meet was a let-down for Wiczorek, he was quick to point out Herd's success.

"He's carrying the banner for us and he'll have some good meets to come. If he keeps running like he has been, he'll be in good shape (for the national meet)," said Wiczorek.

Herd was happy with his personal performance, but had no explanation for the team finish.

"It was just one of those days. It's disappointing to have a bad day at a big meet," Herd said. "Everybody had a bad day together."

Now Wiczorek must get his team to focus on the regional meet in two weeks. For the Hawkeyes to have a chance at qualifying for the national meet, they will have to be a top-two finisher.

However, it might take a little more time for Wiczorek to get over the sting of the conference meet performance.

"The thrill of victory and the agony of defeat," he said, "you almost have to be a coach to really understand that."

Hawkeye swimmers start strong

Doug Alden
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's swimming team had a strong start in its first Big Ten meet of the season Saturday at Penn State.

The Hawkeyes lost to Penn State, 190-110, but defeated Illinois and Michigan State in the four-team meet.

Captains Allison Pennington and Liane Burton continued to lead Iowa, with Pennington winning the 200-yard individual medley and 200-yard breast stroke, and Burton taking the 100-yard butterfly. The win was especially pleasing for Burton, a native of West Chester, Pa., who was returning to her home state.

Freshman Jessica Riccobono was Iowa's other first-place finisher with victories in one- and three-meter diving.

Coach Pete Kennedy and the Hawkeyes are encouraged by the performance.

"We started off real well," Kennedy said. "We swam some pretty awesome times and had some real good swims from some people."

"It was a really exciting meet," Burton said. "We did really well, it just doesn't show because Penn State is such a strong team."

"I think it was good for us to see what kind of competition we are facing this year," Pennington added. "It's always exciting to beat Big Ten teams. It boosts your confidence."

Kennedy was pleased the most with the performance of Iowa's freshmen and says it is important for the younger swimmers to step up and do well. In addition to Riccobono, he was encouraged with Jami Strauss's performance.

"(Strauss) really began to show us something in terms of her potential, and that's encouraging," he said.

The Hawkeyes return to competition Friday when they travel to Wisconsin to meet the Badgers.

WOMEN'S CC

Hassard not happy with fifth-place

Junior Erin Boland leads Iowa with 12th-place finish; Michigan wins team title

Mike Egenes
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's cross country team placed in the upper division of the Big Ten Conference meet for the eighth consecutive year, but this year's result doesn't give Coach Jerry Hassard much to smile about it.

The Hawkeyes tallied 157 points for a fifth-place finish at the conference meet Saturday at East Lansing, Mich.

The meet was won by the third-ranked Michigan Wolverines with 39 points.

It was the second straight Big Ten Championship for the Wolverines.

Following Michigan were fourth-ranked Penn State (59), Minnesota (126), Wisconsin (130) and the Hawkeyes.

Michigan's Molly McClimon won the meet with a time of 17 minutes, 21 seconds.

"I wouldn't be totally honest to say that I'm satisfied," Hassard said.

"I don't think the runners are satisfied either."

The top runner for the Hawkeyes was junior Erin Boland, who raced to a 12th-place finish in 18:01.

Also finishing for Iowa were Jennifer Schoonover (26th; 18:21), Tina Stec (37th; 18:42), Sara Murray (40th; 18:49), Kiersten Pauling (42nd; 18:54), Becky Coleman (44th; 18:59) and Natalie Kleinfelder (69th; 19:55).

Christine Salsberry, one of the Hawkeyes' top runners, was suddenly scratched from the lineup Friday for personal matters.

"We found out Friday that she would not be able to run," Hassard said.

"We would have been closer if we had Salsberry."

Hassard would not give any details, but he did say that Salsberry is scheduled to race in the District IV meet Nov. 13 at Bloomington, Ind.

Although Stec finished third for the Hawkeyes, it was a less-than-typical performance by the senior from Downers Grove, Ill.

"I'm not worried about this weekend. I know I can run better than this," she said.

"It would have been nice for her (Salsberry) to be there. We just tried to make the best of the situation."

Hassard seemed somewhat puzzled by Stec's performance, but doesn't think it's anything serious.

"I'm confident that she can turn it around at Bloomington," Hassard said.

Hassard said the lack of experience also played a role in the team's performance and that it will be a key factor for them in the district meet.

"If we get more support from the rest of the team in the next meet, we'll be in contention for a national berth," he said.

"We hope we can come back in the regional championship and redeem ourselves."

He was close to the value. So close he could almost smell it.

FIELD HOCKEY

Seniors lead Iowa through season

Kris Wiley
The Daily Iowan

The four seniors on the Iowa field hockey team have piled up some phenomenal honors in their careers, except for one.

They haven't won a national championship.

But for Heather Bryant, Tiffany Bybel, Kristy Gleason and Aimee Klapach, what matters now is keeping the Hawkeyes on their winning streak.

"For now, the ultimate goal is to continue to help this team rise to every single occasion," Gleason said.

Gleason, Iowa's all-time leading scorer and an all-American from Amesbury, Mass., scored a hat trick to lift the Hawkeyes to a 3-0 win in the seniors' last regular-season game at Grant Field.

Playing what could possibly be her last game in Iowa City is something Gleason doesn't want to think about.

"It will hit me, but I don't want to be ready for it," Gleason said. "I don't want to stop playing."

For Gleason, stepping up with three goals is all part of her job.

"I was able to step up. It doesn't mean anything," she said.

Klapach, a second team Midwest all-regional pick last season, said the team cohesiveness has "picked up."

"When we're all on the same brain wave, it's amazing. You can feel it," she said.

The Hawkeyes are 15-3 on the season and have a six-game winning streak. Although they won't say the words "national championship," it's a goal Bryant says is "out there."

But for now, leading their team in the next win is what's important.

"We have to put together our game," Klapach said. "We have to do the things we need to do and take care of ourselves."

From the defensive standpoint, Bybel said the Hawkeyes have accomplished a lot.

"For having a young defense, I think that's incredible," said Bybel, who shared conference freshman of the year honors with Bryant in 1990.

While Iowa coach Beth Beglin said the No. 5 Hawkeyes should move up in the top four in the NCAA coaches poll, which is released Tuesday, after the Northwestern win, Gleason doesn't want to be in the No. 1 position just yet.

"I want to be called the No. 1 team in the nation when it counts," she said.

Hawkeye goalkeeper Jessica Krochmal had three saves, while Wildcat goalie Shannon Small recorded four.

Iowa is 15-3 overall and 6-2 in the Big Ten. Northwestern stands 11-3-1 on the season and 6-2 in the conference.

"There is no doubt in my mind that we should be ranked in the top four on Tuesday. If we're not, something is wrong," Beglin said.

The Hawkeyes close the season in Columbus, Ohio, where they play Michigan State Saturday and Ohio State Sunday. If the Hawkeyes win both games and Northwestern beats top-ranked Penn State, Iowa will finish in a first-place tie for the conference title.

More importantly, the Hawkeyes will maintain a top-five ranking in the polls and will make a case for getting a bye in the first round of the NCAA tournament and playing the second-round game on Grant Field.

But for now, the Hawkeyes aren't looking at the postseason.

"We won't talk about the tournament because we're not in the tournament," Beglin said. "The whole focus will first be on Michigan State."

WORLD CUP

Security concerns luge team

Larry Siddons
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Security concerns could keep the U.S. luge team away from a World Cup meet in January at Oberhof, Germany, where a team member was beaten in a racial attack by right-wing skinheads.

As concern over the weekend attacks in a German bar grew, U.S. Olympic officials sought assurances that security for Americans competing in Europe was sufficient.

USOC president LeRoy T. Walker said he ordered a security report on the incident and added that Olympic officials needed to take a closer look at where they send athletes to train.

Officials of the U.S. Luge Association said Sunday they were certain German authorities would handle the situation and provide a safe environment for all athletes in the area.

They planned to send formal communication on the matter to the German luge federation and the German Olympic Committee Monday.

MIAMI DOLPHINS

Shula ties Halas for career wins record

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

MIAMI — It was Bryan Cox's best hit of Miami's 30-10 win over Kansas City on Sunday — a perfect dunk of a pail of ice water on Don Shula's head as the Dolphins coach tied George Halas' career record for coaching wins.

"I couldn't have done it any better," Cox said. "He was still into the game, watching the ball being snapped when I got him."

Indeed, one reason Don Shula got to 324 wins is that he is ALWAYS into the game so much. In this case, it was with his team holding a 20-point lead and 20 seconds remaining, the crowd yelling "Shula! Shula! Shula!" and some of his less rambunctious players unfurling a banner for the cameras that read:

"Shula 324"
That 324 made Shula's career record 324-152-6 in 30 years with the Dolphins and Baltimore Colts, very similar to Halas' 324-151-31 in 40 seasons, all with the Chicago Bears.
Shula goes for No. 325 next week when the Dolphins visit the New York Jets, who earlier this year handed the Dolphins their only loss, 24-10.

The usually reserved Shula, surrounded by a phalanx of cameras, went to midfield, where his good friend, Kansas City coach Marty Schottenheimer, was waiting. Then he jogged off the field, waving both hands aloft to what remained of the crowd of 67,765 and went into the locker rooms to congratulate his players and coaches.

And, of course, towel off the water that Cox (with help from Louis Oliver) deposited on him. Then he gave game balls to Cox, quarterback Scott Mitchell and kicker Peter Stoyanovich and the three of them gave the balls right back to Shula.

"I think we want to win every game for the Gipper," rookie running back Terry Kirby said, "but I think this one really is for coach Shula."

Donald Justice

Gerald Stern

Renowned poets Justice, Stern come to Van Allen

Luke Yellman
The Daily Iowan

If, as Ezra Pound once said, "technique is the test of a man's sincerity," then Donald Justice is among our most sincere. His work, securely rooted in a fine, practiced musical sensibility, is of the sort that one not only reads and is stunned by, but studies carefully and returns to. One returns to his poetry like a piano student returning to his Bach inventions for the sake of returning the ear, to remind oneself what, ultimately, great poetry is about.

Justice, a 1980 Pulitzer Prize winner, will be reading on campus tonight along with Gerald Stern, whose most recent book, "Bread Without Sugar," won the 1993 Paterson Prize for Poetry. Stern is a professor at the UI Writers' Workshop, while Justice is a workshop graduate and former professor.

Justice and Stern are two of America's most celebrated poets. Justice's poems are so perfectly formed that the muddled human voice of the poetic narrator is transmuted into something far more beautiful, more permanent. His poems seek to, as Justice put it in a 1970 interview, "displace the self from the poem — not to remove it entirely, but to displace it to some degree." The result: a chilling, ghostly sound, like faint laughter in a deserted schoolyard where no children have played in years:

*Someone's school notebook spills,
And they bend down to gather up the loose pages.*

(Bright sweaters knotted at the waist; solemn expressions.)

*Not that they would shrink or hold back from what may come,
For now they all at once run to meet it, a little swirl of colors,
Like the leaves already blazing and falling farther north.*

— from "Children Walking Home from School through Good Neighborhood"

Donald Justice has been called "one of this century's superb poets" — typical praise for this austere writer, whose work is invariably considered in terms of centuries. His poems are too well-crafted, too tight for anything corporeal to squeak through. Yes, time may sniff at these poems — these studies in teleology — but it will not consume them or even lower them into obscurity. It will pick up its packages and move on, leaving them there for us to read again, in another hundred years.

Gerald Stern is what happens when you resurrect someone who wasn't dead to begin with. Like Justice, he is a master of memory and the nostalgia we bring to it. But what is truly wonderful about his work, about this writer, is that — along with Bidart, Gluck, Simpson and others — he is what Steven Cramer calls one of the "true voices of feeling." His poems successfully veer through subject matter, reminisce, mourn, celebrate, weep and wail — and all we can do is stand there and marvel at this man dancing with the world and thank him for the permission to do the same.

I have found places to wait and think.

I tell you that world is as large as the one you sigh and tremble over;

*that it is also invulnerable and intricate and pleasurable;
that it has a serious history;
that it was always there, from the beginning.*

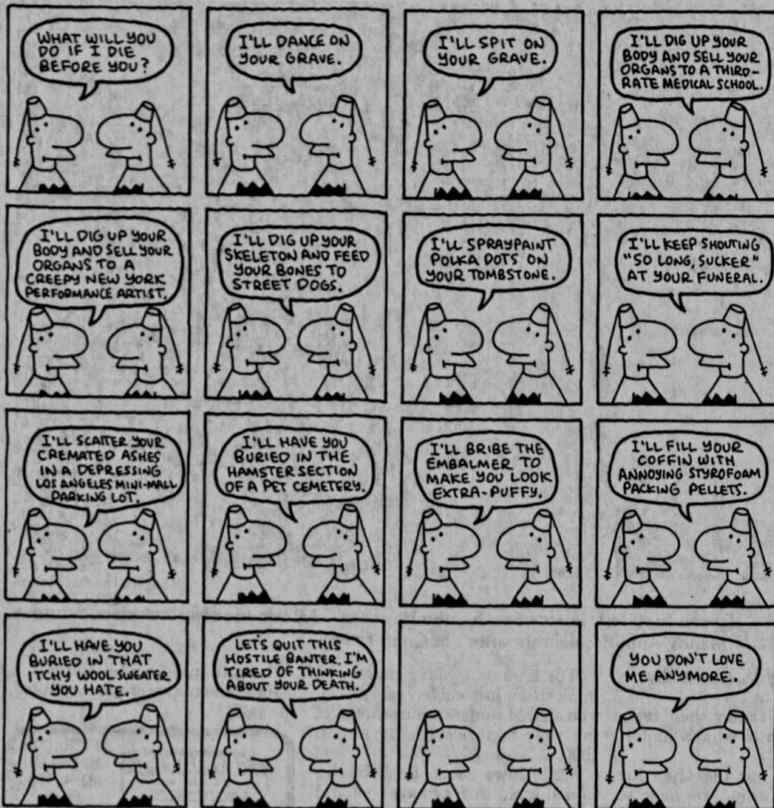

— from "In Carpenter's Woods"

In expansive, Whitmanesque lines, Stern offers himself up as the unabashed celebrant of the rapt moment and the occasion of epiphany, the sort of moment in which one finds, say, a leaf on the kitchen table or a dead animal along the highway: "Don't flinch when you come across a dead animal lying on the road; / you are being shown the secret of life." Nothing is so seemingly base, or for that matter so sacred, that it is excused from Stern's poems in their relentless probe for knowledge.

While the rest of us wait in the shadows, Gerald Stern walks, without shame — probably singing — into the world to collect those things we need to feel alive. And each time he returns, arms full, we are the better for it.

Donald Justice and Gerald Stern will read from their works tonight at 8 in Lecture Room I of Van Allen Hall. The reading is free.

River Phoenix's sudden death puzzling to authorities, friends

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The sudden death of actor River Phoenix, whose natural intensity in the 1986 film "Stand by Me" launched his career, stunned friends who said he was "acting strange" minutes before his abrupt collapse outside a West Hollywood club.

"It comes as a total shock that this extraordinarily talented young man's life would end so abruptly. It's just tragic," said his publicist, Sue Patricola.

According to sheriff's Deputy Diane Hecht, an autopsy will probably be performed today to determine the cause of Phoenix's death.

"At this time the cause of death is under investigation. The exact cause will be determined at autopsy by the coroner," Hecht said.

Sheriff's detectives were handling the case, as a matter of routine, but "it's not a homicide investigation at this time," Hecht said.

A year after his 1985 film debut in "Explorers," Phoenix co-starred in "Stand By Me," playing Chris Chambers, the tough boy in a group of friends who learn about themselves during an overnight trip to find a corpse.

In his brief career, Phoenix played a male hustler in Gus Van Sant's 1991 film "My Own Private Idaho" and portrayed a youthful computer hacker in the Robert Redford-led ensemble cast of 1992's "Sneakers."

Phoenix's other films include "Mosquito Coast" with Harrison Ford, "A Night in the Life of Jimmy Phoenix was in the middle of filming the movie "Dark Blood," a Fine Line Features film which was nearly complete.

He was slated to co-star with Tom Cruise in a film version of Anne Rice's best-selling novel "Interview with a Vampire," which was scheduled to begin filming this month.

Blatty's talent extends past 'Exorcist'; '80s thriller explores similar themes

Ian Corwin
The Daily Iowan

William Peter Blatty may be best known for scaring audiences out of their undergarments with his "Exorcist" films — "The Exorcist" (1973) was adapted by William Friedkin from Blatty's best-selling book of the same name, and Blatty acted as his own director for 1990's "Exorcist III," in addition to writing the screenplay, working from his novel "Legion."

A great deal of "The Exorcist" series' power to frighten people comes out of Blatty's struggle with the theme of faith in both films. True, we are genuinely repulsed when Linda Killer Kane"), has truly fashioned one of the most scathing and bizarre commentaries on the insanity of warfare since Buck Henry's adaptation of Heller's "Catch-22" (1970).

Part psycho-drama, part thriller, "The Ninth Configuration" is set in an experimental psychiatric facility during the Vietnam War. The facility is established in an old castle in the American Pacific Northwest as a lab to study highly intelligent soldiers who are trying to get out of the military by feigning insanity. The patients are a strangely cerebral but highly mischievous lot, and they are soon informed that a new psychiatrist will be coming to straighten them all out.

The doctor turns out to be none other than Colonel Kane (Stacey Keach), who may or may not be crazier than any of his patients could ever hope to be. His past is shady and his methods questionable, which leads the facility's resident physician (Ed Flanders) to try and make friends. But it turns out that there is much more going on than meets the eye.

The success of this film lies in two distinct areas: Blatty's ability to express ideas in dialogue and the superb cast's tangible energy and chemistry. Blatty seems to know just exactly which strings to pull to bring everything together into a conceptual whole that far exceeds many films being released today.

Although the dialogue is peppered with many discussions of faith and God, Blatty is able to work them in without beating the viewer to death with them. His dialogue is crisp and clean, drenched in his dry and wicked sense of humor where appropriate. Kane's dream sequence and his vision of the Crucifixion on the surface of the moon contain some of the most provocative bits of monologue ever spoken, and Kane's dialogues with his favorite patient (Scott Wilson, "The Right Stuff") are chock full of meaning. And for every great line, there is a great actor to speak it. Much of the cast are Blatty regulars, with Wilson, Jason Miller and Ed Flanders all returning from "The Exorcist" films. Keach is surprisingly brilliant as the disturbed shrink, while Flanders' wry delivery bounces off the walls and Miller does a turn as a loony who is producing a version of "Hamlet," with canines in all the major roles. Watch for Robert Loggia as a raving lunatic and screen veteran Neville Brand as the staff sergeant.

This film can be hard to follow, but given its watchability, a second viewing can be just as much of a treat as the first. "The Ninth Configuration" is an often hysterical yet quietly disturbing piece of work — it shouldn't induce nightmares, but it'll hang in the back of the brain like an unpleasant shadow for days after seeing it.

Videotapeworm is a weekly column on new, old and charmingly obscure video releases. It appears Mondays in the Arts and Entertainment pages of The Daily Iowan.

Blair heaves pea soup onto Max von Sydow — but the truly haunting ideas which stay with us after the film is over and the lights come up have to do with faith, in ourselves and in the idea of God. Father Damien Karas (Jason Miller) wrestles with the notion when he sees his calling as a priest go down in flames, and Mrs. MacNiel (Ellen Burstyn) must not only struggle with her belief in what is going on, but her trust in herself as the mother of a possessed child.

Granted, a supernatural forum like this is a likely enough venue for Blatty to express his obvious mistrust of Christianity and its total basis in faith, but another Blatty film released in 1980 provides a much richer framework for his fascination with theology's labyrinth of questions and answers.

"The Ninth Configuration" has been called the greatest American surrealist film ever made, and that's a justified claim. Blatty, writing and directing again (working from his novel "Twinkle, Twinkle,

They nursed you when you were sick.
They taught you how to ride a bike.
They sat through all your games.

Isn't it time you did something for them? This weekend is Parent's Weekend and the University Book Store has a special line of sweatshirts and gifts especially for the most important people in your life.

Sexual Harassment: UI Policy Definition

Sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature when

- submission is made an express or implied term or condition of employment or status in a class, program, or activity;
- submission to or rejection of the behavior is used to make an employment or educational decision (such as hiring, promotion, or grading a course);
- the conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with a person's work or educational performance or creates an intimidating, hostile, or offensive environment for work or learning.

Sexual harassment may take many forms.

- physical assault
- direct or implied threats that submission to sexual advances will be a condition of employment, work status, promotion, or grades
- direct propositions of a sexual nature
- comments of a sexual nature
- sexually explicit statements, questions, jokes, or anecdotes
- unnecessary touching, patting, hugging, or brushing against a person's body
- remarks of a sexual nature about a person's clothing, body, about sexual activity, or about previous sexual experience

Dear Reader:

The University of Iowa Policy on Sexual Harassment and Consensual Relationships states that sexual harassment will not be tolerated by the University. The Office of Affirmative Action publishes information about sexual harassment prevention annually in The Daily Iowan to educate members of the University community about the prohibitions against sexual harassment and the limitations on consensual relationships. Please cut out and keep this information for your future reference. Copies of the University of Iowa's Policy on Sexual Harassment and Consensual Relationships, the Sexual Harassment Complaint Procedures, and brochures and posters on sexual harassment prevention are available from the Office of Affirmative Action. Materials will be made available in alternative formats. Questions about the policy, the complaint procedures, or educational programs on sexual harassment prevention should be directed to the Office of Affirmative Action, 335-0705.

Sincerely,

Susan Mask

If You Are Sexually Harassed

You can do something about it. Taking action is very important; hoping the problem will just go away or accepting it as "just the way things are" only perpetuates and encourages inappropriate behavior. Following are some things you should do if you are harassed.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS . . .

remember that sexual harassment will not be condoned.

KEEP A WRITTEN, DATED RECORD . . . that records date, time, place, people involved, and who said what.

CONSIDER CONFRONTING THE HARASSER . . .

either in person or by letter. Let the person know in simple, direct statements that his or her behavior is unwanted and unacceptable.

If you decide to write a letter, the letter should include

- the facts of what has occurred, told without evaluation; include dates, places, and a description of the incidents.
- how you feel about the events.
- what you want to happen next.

Your letter should be delivered by certified mail or in person. You should keep one copy.

TALK TO A STAFF MEMBER IN THE OFFICE OF AFFIRMATIVE ACTION...

avoid isolation and self-blame by contacting one of the Office of Affirmative Action staff or one of the other resource persons listed in the far right column.

About Consensual Relationships

Amorous relationships between faculty (all people who teach at the University, including graduate students) and students are wrong when the faculty member has professional responsibility, such as grading or advising, for the student. Such a situation increases the chances for abuse of power.

The University will view it as unethical if faculty members engage in amorous relationships with students enrolled in their classes or subject to their supervision. This is true even when the relationship appears to be consensual (i.e., both parties have consented) because the voluntary consent of the student is in doubt given the power imbalance in a student-faculty relationship.

Amorous relationships between students and faculty not in a class together may also lead to difficulties, especially if they are in the same academic unit.

How to Prevent Sexual Harassment

Education that leads to prevention is clearly the desirable way for both individuals and institutions to deal with the problem of sexual harassment. Knowing your rights and responsibilities under the sexual harassment policy is key to preventing incidents of violation of the policy.

Managers and departmental executive officers are responsible for maintaining an environment conducive for work and/or learning. All steps necessary to prevent sexual harassment from occurring should be taken.

Students, faculty, and staff can help by knowing and working to eliminate prohibited behavior from their own actions and environments.
