Clinton struggles for NAFTA votes

40 lawmakers undecided; 29 needed to win

Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Struggling for votes with time running out, President Clinton leaned on Democrats opposing a trade agreement with Mexico Monday and tried to hold Republican supporters. The White House attempted to pick up farm-state votes with a wheat deal.

Two days before the showdown, the outcome rested with 40 House members who said they were still undecided — 20 Republicans and 20 Democrats. Both sides contended they would have the votes to win.

Clinton argued there was nothing to lose by giving the agreement a chance. "If all the nay sayers turn out to be (correct), the treaty gives us a right to withdraw in six months," he said.

"Why don't we just wait and see whether we're right or they're right?" Clinton said in a speech to owners of small businesses. "Ring the phones up," he implored, seeking to increase pressure on fence-sitting lawmakers.

The White House claimed to have picked up 15 votes over the weekend.

An Associated Press count found 205 lawmakers saying they would vote against the agreement or were likely to do so. On the other side, 189 lawmakers said they would vote for it; 40 said they were undecided. Clinton needs 218 votes to win. Vote announcements Monday were heavily in Clinton's favor.

The party breakdown: 109 Republicans and 80 Democrats are for it. Of those opposed, 158 are Democrats, 46 are Republicans and one is an independent.

Congressional sources said the administration struck a deal with several congressmen from Oklahoma and Texas to take action against Canadian wheat imports in exchange for their votes.

The administration agreed to impose quotas on durum wheat if Canada does not change its pricing policies within 60 days, the sources said. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, cited that agreement in announcing his support for Clinton Monday.

"They've done a deal with everybody but working people," charged House Whip David Bonior, D-Mich., a leader of the anti-NAFTA forces. But he added, "I think we're going to win."

On the Capitol's West Front, several hundred civil service union members, mostly from New York state, rallied against the trade pact.

"Dump this NAFTA," the crowd chanted.

Many carried placards depicting an oversized monkey labeled "NAFTA" perched on the shoulders

Ross Perot appears at a rally against the North American Free Trade Agreement on Capitol Hill Monday. Perot called for a federal investigation of what he said were "billions of dollars" in projects that President Clinton offered undecided lawmakers for their votes Wednesday.

ISU to grant student loans directly to cut costs

AMES (AP) — Iowa State University is one of 105 schools nationwide given permission to grant loans directly to students, bypassing the banking system to cut credit costs.

ISU and the Faust Institute of Cosmetology in Storm Lake were the only Iowa schools on the list issued Monday by U.S. Education Secretary Richard Riley. The schools can begin issuing student loans next year. More schools will be added to the list in the future, Riley said.

To be eligible, a school had to have a student loan default rate of less than 25 percent and had to have the ability to process loan applications electronically with the U.S. Department of Education, which dispenses the money.

The program is designed to cut the cost of student loans and to curb defaults by tailoring repayment plans to meet the needs of individual students.

Bobbitt forgives wife for cutting off his penis

NEW YORK (AP) — John Bobbitt said he forgives his wife for cutting off his penis and accusing him of sexual assault and that he still carries her picture in his wallet.

John Bobbitt

Bobbitt, in his first media interview since the June 23 attack, said he was the one abused in the couple's four-year marriage, which saw two separations and two reconciliations.

He said his wife, Lorena, would hit him "if something didn't go her way. She was always the volatile one."

Bobbitt, 26, spoke to the syndicated TV program "American Journal," an interview scheduled for broadcast Monday and today.

Lorena Bobbitt, 24, of Manassas, Va., claims her husband repeatedly abused her and that she cut off his penis after he forced her to have sex.

FOOD BEING TESTED

More charges a possibility in ISU poisoning

Jude Sunderbruch
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa State University student arrested Thursday for allegedly poisoning his roommate's food could face further charges if the food was poisoned enough to cause serious injury or death.

ISU junior Thomas Scannel was arrested Nov. 11 and charged with one count of administering harmful substances to another person. He was transferred to the Story County Jail in Nevada, Iowa, before being released on bond.

According to a complaint and affidavit filed in the case, Scannel has apparently admitted to poisoning an unnamed roommate.

"The defendant was interviewed and did admit to poisoning his roommate's food," the document reads.

Scannel lived with ISU seniors Daniel Siders and Brad Kohlmeyer and ISU junior Mike Owen. The roommates thought something was wrong with some of the food in the apartment and threw it out.

Finally, Kohlmeyer mixed up some salsa with some eggs and tasted that something was wrong, according to Sgt. Craig Reid, public information officer with the Ames Police Department. Police then investigated the alleged crime.

"We had a report from his roommates that they were finding strange odors or tastes in food stored in a common refrigerator in the apartment," he said. "We believe he placed some kind of cleaning substance in some of the food in the apartment."

Reid said police were awaiting laboratory analysis of the seized food by the Division of Criminal Investigation in Des Moines before deciding whether to pursue additional charges.

"If, in fact, the chemical compounds he placed in the food were enough to cause serious injury or death, we may go back to the county to inquire about additional charges," he said.

However, Mary Richards, Story County attorney, feels the current charge is appropriate and refused to indicate whether additional charges would be filed.

"I wouldn't be willing to speculate on anything further," she said.

The motive for the poisoning is unclear, and none of the room-

UI SURVEY DISCUSSED

Panel: Resources needed to curb harassment

Tricia DeWalt
The Daily Iowan

A panel of UI administrators said Monday that more resources are needed to reduce sexual harassment on the UI campus.

The panel met to discuss the results of a campuswide survey on sexual harassment conducted by the Council on the Status of Women last November. A total of 1,235 people participated.

Panelists included Associate Provost Elizabeth Altmaier, Vice President for Health Sciences Henri Manasse Jr., Associate Vice President Mary Jo Small and Assistant to Dean of Students Tom Baker.

Manasse said the high proportion of women practicing and seeking degrees in the health science field lends itself to the opportunity for sexual harassment.

"There are social and cultural realities as we look at health care that lend themselves to creating sexual harassment," Manasse said. "There are intimate work settings where those issues are prevalent and of serious concern."

The survey showed, however, that harassment is a campuswide problem — it doesn't occur only in the health-care field.

Fifteen percent of the respondents to the survey said they had been harassed at the UI within the last five years. However, in separate survey questions, 55 percent of the respondents reported they had experienced one or more unwanted behaviors defined by UI policy as constituting sexual harassment.

This discrepancy is attributed to those who did not feel threatened by mild forms of verbal sexual harassment like explicit jokes, statements and anecdotes, the council reported.

This discrepancy is more problematic considering 82 respondents reported subtle pressure for sexual activity, 131 respondents reported repeated incidents of unsolicited touching or hugging, and 10 reported physical assault, according to the council's report. All failed to identify themselves as having been sexually harassed.

The panelists agreed the UI needs more resources if it wants to see a substantial decline in sexual harassment cases.

"There is so much more we could do with more resources," Small said. "We want to be sure we can be able to be responsive to needs, and I think the council's study may generate an

MISS. CONSENT CASE

Court lets abortion law stand

Without explanation, the Supreme Court refused to review a law requiring unmarried girls to get both parents' consent before having an abortion.

Richard Carelli
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Mississippi abortion law requiring unmarried girls to get both parents' consent or a judge's permission before ending their pregnancies survived a Supreme Court challenge Monday.

The court rejected a constitutional attack on the law, called "devastating" and "the most burdensome of its kind" by opponents.

Monday's action was not a ruling but an unexplained refusal to review the law. Nevertheless, both sides in the national debate over abortion were quick to react.

"The justices have denied young women their day in court," said Catherine Albisa of the Center for Reproductive Law and Policy. She called the Mississippi law "an onerous restriction" that is more burdensome than any other state's.

"Most young women can and do consult with their parents when they are facing an unwanted pregnancy," Albisa said. "But for those who legitimately fear the outcome of involving one or both parents, this law is devastating."

Burke Balch of the National Right to Life Committee said Monday's action was "not surprising."

"What is surprising is how successful abortion advocates have been in tying up these laws in court after the Supreme Court strongly indicated ... that two-parent consent laws with (judicial) bypass would be constitutional," Balch said.

The Mississippi law was enacted in 1986 but had been tied up in court since a federal judge barred its enforcement that year.

The law requires doctors to obtain written permission from both parents before performing an abortion on a girl who is unmarried, under 18 and not supporting herself.

A judicial-bypass provision allows such a girl to avoid telling either parent if the girl gets a judge's permission. The law requires that the court proceedings be speedy and confidential.

The law also requires judges to grant permission if a girl shows she is mature enough to make the abortion decision on her own or proves an abortion is in her best interest.

In previous rulings, the Supreme Court has upheld one-parent consent laws and two-parent notification laws that included judicial-bypass options.

In 1990, the court struck down Minnesota's two-parent notification law because it had no judicial

Two-legged dog hounds long path to recovery

Roger Munns
Associated Press

GREENFIELD, Iowa — Rusty isn't supposed to overexert himself, but the sight of the nearby cow was too much.

"Grrr," he said happily. The cow whirled to attention and faced his tormenter, then relaxed, sensing that this beast wasn't much of a threat. After all, a little dog with only one good leg can't do much damage.

Rusty limped a little closer, leaned on a fence post and growled again, more to stay in practice than to challenge. The cow loped away.

"He's some dog," said owner Bill Davis, 39. "Right after that first accident, he showed he had a will to live. He's not ready to die yet."

In fact, Rusty seems to be recovering nicely from his second accident. But even if he recovers completely, he'll still have just two good legs.

His story has traveled worldwide over the years — "I even got a call from Australia last time," said Davis — and scores of children write him letters.

"If I had an extra leg, I'd give it to you," said David Gersema of the Miller Middle School in Marshalltown, Iowa. "But I don't, so I'm sorry."

Rusty is an 8-year-old, 40-pound Australian red heeler who spends most of his time with Davis, who spends most of his time farming 600 rented acres of gently hilly land about 50 miles southwest of Des Moines.

That's where the farm dog ran in front of Davis' mower four years ago. Rusty lost half of his left front leg and the pad from his left rear leg, leaving a skinny stump on which he catches his balance.

Remarkably, Rusty relearned to walk and run, even to jump into the pickup, using just the two right legs. Then the second accident happened Sept. 19 when Davis put ice cubes on the ground for Rusty to enjoy — too near to a neighbor's pickup.

As the neighbor moved the truck, Rusty's good right rear leg was run over. "I knew it was broke," said Davis. There were three major fractures below the knee.

Davis took the dog to Dr. Phil Pearson, small-animal orthopedic surgeon at Iowa State University, who installed four pins through the leg to hold the bones together.

Davis hopes Rusty will regain his agility once the wounds have healed.

"Boy, that little devil could run," Davis said.

The cards and letters have helped. Some contain money to meet Rusty's vet bill, which Davis estimates will reach $1,000.

"We're including a small check so you can buy a ramp to let him walk into the pickup. His jumping days may be over," wrote one woman.

But most are written directly to Rusty.

"Dear Rusty. How is your leg doing? Mine's doing fine. Don't get hit again. Your friend, Joe Smith."

Matt Bulkeley holds his pet ball python, Luther, at long and does not like camera flashes, apparent from the hissing.

Peculiar pets gaining popularity

Chris Pothoven
The Daily Iowan

When UI senior Matt Bulkeley comes home from class, he doesn't expect his pet, Luther, to bound up and greet him like Lassie or Benji — or like many other faithful pets might do.

In fact, Luther doesn't do much bounding or greeting — mainly because he doesn't have any feet. Luther is a 4-foot-long ball python, a far cry from the typical pets one might expect to find in the homes of Iowa City residents.

Besides Luther, Bulkeley and his roommates also have Flash, a box turtle he discovered while playing golf.

"They're more interesting to look at than cats and dogs, even though you can't really play with them," he said. "A lot of places don't let you have cats or dogs, but they don't say anything about reptiles."

Luther has been with Bulkeley for about four years, Flash for two. He said he chose them as pets because they're easy to take care of.

"It's a low maintenance type of pet. You don't really have to do anything with them," he said. "With Luther, you only have to give him one or two mice every couple of weeks and a rat every once in a while."

Terry Walcott, manager of Pet Degree at Pepperwood Place, said the popularity of unusual and exotic pets is growing in Iowa City.

"The reptiles are becoming pretty popular, especially in the last year," he said. "Part of it is just that people want an unusual pet, and part of it is finding something easy to maintain."

He said Pet Degree carries a number of different snakes and lizards, including a couple different types of boas.

"Even the big reptiles are pretty easy to maintain, but they can be pretty expensive to feed and keep," he said. "It requires a big commitment."

Ferrets and chinchillas have been fairly popular also, Walcott said.

"When we get young ferrets in, we usually sell them out within three or four days," he said. "They're intelligent and cute, and they require about the same maintenance as a cat."

Iowa City resident Harry Ehmssen III, an employee of Iowa Book & Supply Co., said he recently acquired a ferret. "Thermos" is about 6 weeks old.

"It's just one of those things. I've always wanted one," he said. "Cats and dogs have been around for a long time. They're yesterday's news. I like something a little different."

Thermos, who is named after an ancient Greek city, is easy to take care of and fun to play with, Ehmssen said.

"He's real playful, but he plays kind of rough sometimes. You have to let him know when he gets too rough," he said. "He also bites sometimes, but it doesn't hurt too much. He's too young."

Thermos and Luther are both rather tame compared to some of the animals Walcott has sold to customers over the years, including a 3-foot-long spectacled caiman and 11-foot-long albino Burmese python.

He said he usually makes sure a customer understands what type of care will be involved before he will specially order some kind of exotic animal.

"We have a lot of people ask us to try to get different kinds of animals, like monkeys or some of the bigger cats," he said. "We usually don't do it. The people who are interested usually don't know what kind of care and resources the animal will involve."

Valerie Gaeth, a veterinarian with Animal Clinic Inc., said only about 1 percent of the clinic's patients are reptiles or pocket pets, such as hamsters, gerbils or rats.

The main problems for these creatures are nutrition for the reptiles and general care for the pocket pets, Gaeth said.

"People really should do some research into how to maintain these animals in a setting like their natural environment before they buy them," she said.

Contest picks Iowa City's cutest dog

Molly Spann
The Daily Iowan

Finding a dog which ranks higher in the cuteness category than America's beloved, shaggy-haired Toto could be difficult. But believe it or not, it has been done.

A basset hound named Sir Arthur Barkwell was named Monday as the lucky winner of the "Cuter Than Toto" contest, sponsored by Hancher Auditorium in conjunction with this weekend's performances of the "Wizard of Oz."

The dog lives with Iowa City residents Janette and Greg Lambert.

About 100 entries were received from area dog owners interested in seeing their pets recognized, Hancher marketing director Judy Hurtig said.

Lisa Goodman, director of the Iowa City / Coralville Animal Shelter, picked the winning pup. She spent about two hours looking at pictures and said her final decision was not an easy one.

"It was very difficult," she said. "There were a lot of cute dogs. I looked at a lot of cute puppies, but Sir Arthur's name was awfully cute and it fit his personality in the picture. He was just cuter than Toto."

Hurtig said the contest was a new way to publicize the show, and she was surprised at the large response.

"I didn't know how people were going to react," she said, "but for some reason this really struck people's fancies."

With so many entries, Hurtig said she hopes it's not too traumatic for the owners whose canines didn't beat out Sir Arthur, the top dog.

"Everyone thinks that they've got the most adorable dog," she said. "I hope no one is disappointed that there is only one winner."

All pictures of dogs entered in the "Cuter Than Toto" contest — including Sir Arthur's — will be on display at the "Wizard of Oz" performances Nov. 19-21.

Everyone who entered their dog in the contest will receive a coupon for $3.50 off "Wizard of Oz" tickets and two free tickets for the show will be given to the Lamberts.

Tickets for the show are still available.

UI CELEBRATES GROUND BREAKING

Software firm's Oakdale facility to potentially provide 400 jobs

Kristin Berg
The Daily Iowan

UI President Hunter Rawlings and Oakdale Research Park welcomed Neural Applications Corp.'s new headquarters at a ground breaking ceremony Monday afternoon.

"It's a banner day for the university, the state and Neural Applications Corp.," Rawlings said. "Joint research is important to the academic community."

Neural Applications Corp. President and Chief Operating Officer George Ebel said his company designs computer software and hardware based on neural networks.

"We create programs that learn," he said.

The construction of Neural's new 25,600-square-foot headquarters will begin immediately. Ebel said it should be completed by June 1, 1994.

"Neural's new headquarters is a relationship development, not just a real estate development," Oakdale Research Park director Bruce

"Joint research is important to the academic community."

Hunter Rawlings, UI president

Wheaton said.

Neural is currently operating out of the UI Technology Innovation Center and employs 29 people. Ebel said in a few years it hopes to employ 300 to 400 people. Shortly after the building opens, Neural will expand its staff to 100.

"It is important to have a perfect relationship between academia, the university and the community," Coralville Mayor Michael Kattchee said.

Dean of Engineering Richard Miller said the joint research relationship with Neural will provide new educational, research and employment opportunities for the College of Engineering.

"This semester we offered a new course in neural network technology," he said. "The instructor is a full-time employee of Neural Applications Corp. Neural is also interested in hiring students on a part-time basis to supplement education costs and provide first-hand experience."

Neural will join a number of research companies already located at the research park. Rawlings said Oakdale is currently the corporate headquarters for Computer Aided Design Software, Inc. and will be the future home of the $32 million National Advanced Driving Simulator.

"Neural is another boost for the research park and a nice piece in the puzzle," Rawlings said.

COGS hammering out details of bargaining unit

Maria Hickey
The Daily Iowan

A bargaining unit is still being hammered out after a meeting Monday between representatives of the Campaign to Organize Graduate Students / Service Employees International Union Local 150, the UI administration, the Iowa state Board of Regents and the Public Employees Relations Board.

"It does look as if we may be able to resolve issues at the next meeting," said COGS / SEIU spokeswoman Debbie Blake.

Plans to hold a union election in December were deterred when the groups involved were unable to define the bargaining unit at a meeting held in Des Moines on Oct. 15. The election is now lated for spring, which pushes the date back for negotiations.

Dean of the Graduate College Leslie Sims said the meeting was an opportunity to work through the classifications of graduate student jobs and the groups which should and should not be included.

COGS / SEIU Local 150 hopes to include as many of the graduate students as possible in the unit. Members have been visiting teaching assistants in departments throughout the UI to gain support.

"We're continuing with the philosophy that we want the unit to be as inclusive as possible," Blake said.

The next meeting will be held in Iowa City on Nov. 23.

JOINT MEETING

Council, supervisors debate transit expenses

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

With a long list of things to discuss but very little time to do it, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors and Iowa City City Council hoped to skim the issues important to both groups at their joint meeting Monday.

But they were unable to breeze past the issue of SEATS, Johnson County's transportation system for the elderly and people with disabilities.

Currently, the system is managed by the supervisors, with funding assistance from Iowa City, Coralville and University Heights. However, after funding disputes between the county and Iowa City earlier this year, the Johnson County Council of Governments estimated the cost for each of the three cities to operate their own paratransit systems.

Supervisor Joe Bolckom said the county needs to know if the city has decided to create its own system before it can finalize its fiscal 1995 budget.

Councilor Karen Kubby said the Council hasn't discussed the issue, but that it will be on the Nov. 22 informal meeting agenda.

Though the first SEATS item was cleared without much conflict, the city and county clashed over the second SEATS item dealing with fiscal 1994 funding.

Mayor Darrel Courtney said the city is paying twice for SEATS service. The city uses part of its budget to contribute to the county, he said, and the county also uses part of the general tax levy to fund SEATS. Since property taxes from urban residents make up part of the general levy, he said, they are paying double for the service.

Bolckom countered, saying a recent study of SEATS funding showed Iowa City's total payment to the system represented 64 percent of the SEATS budget. Iowa City's share of the rides, he said, was 72 percent.

Courtney disagreed.

"Once we've paid out of our budget, we've paid for all our rides, period" he said, adding that he feels Iowa City is paying more for the service than rural county towns.

Supervisor Steve Lacina said Iowa City can't be compared to rural towns that don't have mass transit because they are not mandated by the Americans with Disabilities Act to provide transportation service for people with disabilities.

"I don't care if it's ADA or elderly or whatever," Courtney said. "We're paying for the service for others."

Board Chairwoman Patricia Meade feels the SEATS contract is antiquated and that the city and county must work out a new one. The board and Council ultimately decided to ask County Auditor Tom Slockett and city finance director Donald Yucuis to study the SEATS funding stream to see if it's fair.

In other business, the groups agreed on the need for a traffic signal at the corner of Mormon Trek Boulevard and Highway 1 but questioned who would pay for it.

CASE REFERRED TO NURSES' COUNCIL

UIHC nurses find policy unfair regarding evaluations, pay scale

Steve Chamraz
The Daily Iowan

In a letter to the UI Staff Council, a group of 29 nurses from the UI Hospitals and Clinics' 4 West Intermediate Nursery displayed their displeasure with the current UI pay-scale policy.

The nurses said the policy is unfair because they have been rewarded "less than equitably for choosing to remain staff nurses at the bedside delivering patient care."

In its meeting Wednesday, the Staff Council voted unanimously to refer the case to the Nurses' Council.

Staff Council member Wendy Behlke said the council is behind the nurses but will wait to see what action the Nurses' Council will take before further motions are made.

"We'll be very supportive of the nurses, and we'll address it if they have a further problem," Behlke said.

According to the letter, the nurses have received unfair performance evaluations and pay. They attribute the situation to not being notified of their performance shortcomings and the limited time they had to rectify problems.

The letter also alleges that nurses received favorable reviews if they performed activities "other than direct patient care."

They cite that "only about 20 percent of the examples of exemplary performance reflect direct patient care and none of them are exemplary — they are what you would expect of any staff nurse."

They define activities "other than direct patient care" as in-service presentations, committee work, research and teaching. The nurses feel these activities could detract from the time they could spend tending to their patients.

The UIHC is considering sending surveys to other universities to see how they rate their pay scales and to see how the UIHC pay scale differs, Behlke said.

The nurses did not wish to make further comments.

CONVICTED OF STATUTORY RAPE

Buttafuoco case 'put to bed': Joey goes to jail, fined $5,000

Pat Milton
Associated Press

MINEOLA, N.Y. — The saga that began in a Long Island auto body shop ended Monday in a courtroom where a handcuffed, smirking Joey Buttafuoco was led away to the same fate that befell his former lover, Amy Fisher — jail time.

Buttafuoco's expression never changed as he was sentenced to the maximum six months in prison, $5,000 fine and five years' probation for statutory rape.

Only minutes earlier, Fisher, now 19, faced Buttafuoco for the first time since she shot his wife, Mary Jo, on May 19, 1992. In a nervous, barely audible voice, she spoke of the ill-fated relationship that began "when I was a 16-year-old with braces."

"This man took me to expensive restaurants and cheap motels," she said softly. "I am sad to say that he taught me well. He taught me to disrespect myself and to deceive my parents. Unfortunately, these were lessons that I learned too quickly."

The midday drama provided a certain closure to the case that has provided grist for countless talk-show jokes and three made-for-TV movies.

A year ago in the same courtroom, Fisher had been sentenced to five to 15 years for shooting Mary Jo Buttafuoco, who still has a bullet lodged next to her brain.

Then, Buttafuoco wanted justice. Monday, it was Fisher's turn.

As hordes of reporters and camera crews — including one from Comedy Central — swarmed the courthouse, Buttafuoco swaggered into the courtroom, wearing a maroon suit and lizard-skin cowboy boots.

He immediately searched for Fisher, but her attorney at first blocked his view of the teen-ager, whose mane of loose hair was neatly pinned back, making her look like a schoolgirl.

Buttafuoco, 37, stood ramrod straight, glaring at Fisher as she spoke.

Later, in a written response to questions submitted by the Associated Press, Fisher said: "I felt physically intimidated by him in the courtroom. "I kept waiting for him to say 'I'm sorry' to me for what happened, and he didn't."

Addressing the court, Fisher spoke of the "dark and difficult time" in her life that began when she met Buttafuoco in his auto body shop.

"Your honor," she mumbled, her head bowed and eyes never leaving her written statement, "when this relationship began ... I was a 16-year-old teen-ager shown a world that I was not ready for, a world of elaborate spending and fast boats." She apologized again to Mary Jo Buttafuoco and her family, but she added:

"I know with all my heart that if Mr. Buttafuoco had permitted me to cross the bridge between adolescence and adulthood unmolested, I would not be where I am today."

Fisher said she was not in court to seek revenge. Rather, she said, she was there to ask the court to give Buttafuoco a sentence that would dissuade "other teen-agers who might be tempted by the glitter of the likes of a Joey Buttafuoco."

Buttafuoco's attorney, Dominic Barbara, argued for probation instead of jail, saying his client "is a devoted and loving father. A devoted and loving son."

Nassau County Court Judge Jack Mackston delivered the sentence without comment. In a final slap, he told Buttafuoco he also had to pay a $5 "victim's assistance" fee.

Buttafuoco could be released from the county jail in four months.

Mary Jo Buttafuoco, 38, who has steadfastly stood by her husband throughout the chain of events, did not attend the sentencing.

Situation strained in N. Korea

Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — The United States and South Korea began military exercises Monday despite warnings from North Korea that the 10-day maneuvers involving nearly 700,000 troops threaten peace on the divided peninsula.

U.S. and South Korean officials say the annual "Foal Eagle" exercises are routine and defensive in nature, but they haven't helped relations already strained by the North's refusal to allow independent inspections of its nuclear plants.

The exercises began south of Seoul, with most of the 36,000 U.S. troops stationed in South Korea participating. They were joined by 1,500 U.S. soldiers from overseas and 650,000 South Korean troops, military officials from both sides said.

The United States suspects the Communist nation is developing nuclear weapons. North Korea said in a statement Sunday the exercises could jeopardize efforts to solve the nuclear issue through dialogue.

How would Jesus fare in today's world?

Quotable

"We had a report from his roommates that they were finding strange odors or tastes in food stored in a common refrigerator in the apartment. We believe he placed some kind of cleaning substance in some of the food in the apartment."

Sgt. Craig Reid, Ames Police Department on the alleged roommate poisoning at ISU

If the real Jesus Christ were to stand up today, he'd be gunned down cold by the CIA.

— The The (lyrics by Matt Johnson)

Gunned down cold? Maybe. But what if he eluded our central intelligence? What if he was saved from the assassin's bullet? What would he be like?

Would he be "way cool," spoolin' like Hendrix, as King Missile suggests? Would he be allowed to compete in the Olympic 100-meter freestyle event — and if so, would he wear a Speedo or sandals?

These are certainly important questions, ones that will have to be grappled with someday. But his musicality, his athleticism and his shrewd business acumen are not in question, even at nineteen hundred and ninety three — there's little doubt he could out press Schwarzenegger. But it's his politics, his ethics, that we're concerned with, and these are, it seems, less clear.

What would Jesus think? Would he side with Ross Perot and vote "no" on NAFTA? Would he be for Canadian-style, universal health care, or would he allow the market to dictate? How about campaign reform, gun control, affirmative action?

You might presuppose the man of cloth would be a conservative, a Bible-thumping, damnation-intoning, cross-carrying member of the Christian Coalition, Rev. Robertson in drag. You might suppose he'd be a hard-core, back to basics, rule of law type of guy — none of this New Age, touchy-feely, politics of meaning crap that Hillary and Bill seem to be disciples of. You might suppose, in other words, that Jesus, as a strapping young lad, would have eschewed the politics of dependency, victimhood and irresponsibility, joining instead, like a vulture circling a convulsive cow, Phyllis Schlafly's Eagle Forum and Pat Buchanan's brigade of obnoxious brats. You might suppose all of this, but I think you'd be wrong — and let me explain why.

First, to intuit Christ's politics we need to understand the guy. We need to prod and probe his complex psyche. We need, in other words, to know what makes Jesus tick.

Let's be realistic — the guy's not real; he's a mythical construct. He is what we think he is, and that's pretty much up in the air, ethereal. But nonetheless there are certain fundamental character traits that it seems pretty safe to ascribe to the King.

To begin with there's that Golden Rule: You should do unto others as you would have them do unto you. Now, we can use this maxim to ask some basic questions. For example:

Would Jesus have been a trickle-down theorist?

Most people imagine the bearded one as a fairly generous guy, someone who would give you the sandals from his feet, the robe from his back, the love from his heart. It's difficult (but try if you can) to imagine then, a barefoot, naked Jesus walking around Wall Street, trading securities and looking for a quick buck. He'd probably get busted by the Securities and Exchange Commission for trading on insider information.

And let's face it: As a businessperson, Jesus would be a bust. He'd give everything away. If Jesus worked at Hy-Vee, every day would be double-coupon day; at the Deadwood, pinball would be free and pints would cost a nickel; if he sold hash in Amsterdam, it would be buy one brick, get four free. The man wouldn't last long in this dog-eat-dog world of capitalism. So I'd suggest that his holiness would be a little uncomfortable with (Jack) Kempian tax breaks for the rich.

Then there's the question of the military and the turning of a cheek. How many nuclear warheads would Jesus vote for? Would he spend billions of dollars on the B-1 bomber? I'd understand if he wanted to keep a few of the engineering units around, just in case he got hung up. But the Abrams M1A1? It'd be scratched before you could say "Pontius Pilate."

Well, what about some of the other pressing questions?

Gun control? Yes, on Brady. NAFTA? My guess is that Jesus would be a free-trader.

Gays in the military? Isn't it obvious; the guy spent most of his time with a bunch of lonely men.

Abortion? Too tough to call. Pray in school? OK, that'd be pretty tough to deny, but I bet he wouldn't be too hip on reciting the Pledge of Allegiance, given that universal brotherhood stuff.

Dissenters will want to turn to their religious texts, searching for Jesus' conservatism; they'll look for allusions to support their illusions, but it's not their religious texts that they should scrutinize, it's themselves, and others like them — and others different from them. Christ, God, their's is a mystical, a mythical existence. Their substance, their likeness, their lives are neither factual, nor static. They exist because of the existence of belief, so it is our beliefs, our perceptions that must be scrutinized.

Christ is what we believe he is, and this belief is constantly changing, evolving, turning back in on itself before metamorphosing outward. Like our perception of music, of earth, of laundry detergent. At times they are liquid, at other times they are powdered, but what they are at any given time depends on how they are used, even when the original incarnation (or incantation) can be intuited, if not authenticated.

So there you have it folks, the verdict is in: Jesus would have voted for McGovern in '72. Next time, tune in for another thought-absorbing scriptural question: If God had to choose a new virgin Mary, would it be Kimberly Clarke Aiken (Miss America 1994), Carol Moseley-Braun or RuPaul? God Bless America. Byron Kent Wikstrom is on the roam with a little-known cult which preaches the imminent Second Coming of Wall Street Christ.

FEMINISM

Beauty and the beast

Recently on "20 / 20," the usually impassive voice of Barbara Walters took on an edge of perturbed disbelief as she questioned interviewee Rush Limbaugh about his views on feminism — namely, his professed opinion that the only purpose of feminism is to provide some sort of refuge for unattractive women. Rush passed the statement off as a joke, but Barbara was not appeased. "I just don't get it," she kept saying.

Actually, it's pretty easy to understand. By making a political movement into something for dateless women to do on a Saturday night, Limbaugh and his ilk can avoid having to examine whether it might have some legitimate claims.

And those who would defend feminism as an important part of the contemporary political scene are (if female) subject to scrutiny as to their looks, and thereby their motives for promoting equal rights for women. If they don't pass muster on a one to 10 scale, their ideas can be discounted: "She can't get a man so she has to try to find something else to occupy her time." Or worse, "She can't get a man so evidently she's bitter and hates us all."

The only defense for feminism in this case would be beauty and lots of it. (One good-looking supporter of the cause might be discounted as having some sort of personality problem so bad as to relegate her to the same sort of pariah status that unattractiveness apparently confers on women.) The truly gorgeous among us are a select group, though. All God's children are not beautiful; most, as Fran Lebowitz once pointed out, are in fact barely presentable. So if Limbaugh's claim needs hundreds of long-legged, doe-eyed feminists to refute it, well, we could be here a while.

But it isn't a claim, it's just a joke, right? Perhaps; but Limbaugh is always taking shots at feminists. Obviously, he is uncomfortable with the notion of independent women. But in his "joke," he uncovers one of the reasons that feminism is, or ought to be, still important to women today. Women in our society are still evaluated according to their looks to a much greater degree than men are. You can get a lot of things out of life just by virtue of being an attractive woman. The problem is that beauty is something almost entirely out of the control of the person who possesses it. Not only is it dependent on the whim of biology to begin with, but unlike other forms of power, nothing can be done to preserve it for an entire life span. Feminism is about recognizing that women can have power that is less dependent on others to confer benefits, and that is less fleeting.

Feminism may be, in a sense, the recourse of women who cannot get what they want out of life simply by asking for it with fluttering lashes and dimpled cheeks. It is, therefore, potentially a recourse for all women who seek control over their own destinies: No one is young and beautiful forever. Just because feminism advocates that kind of self-reliance does not mean that it is about hating men or disdaining raising children. The possibility needs to be recognized, though, that through some accident of fate a woman might be left to lead her life with no man, no children — no one but herself to depend on. Any woman, attractive or otherwise, should feel equal to that challenge. She could start, for example, a radio call-in show — that traditional refuge of the unattractive man.

Preserving diversity

To the Editor:
Sunday night we had the wonderful honor and pleasure of attending, upon invitation, the Divali Festival in the IMU Ballroom, sponsored by the India Students Association. The event was packed — over 450 people seated and many more lining the walls. As an even greater testimony to the importance of student government support for cultural diversity, we enjoyed seeing all manner of social, racial, cultural and international diversity in a happily packed house. Clearly, the funding which we have both struggled to preserve in international and cultural diversity budgets serves the widest possible range of individuals in the UI community. It is disturbing to think that such an event might have been limited or even crippled by a shortage of funding due to the struggles over this year's Class III budgets.

We first started to work together during this past spring's budget controversy, wherein international and culturally diverse groups felt unfairly treated. While it was a hectic controversy in which to build a political partnership, we enjoyed seeing how persistence can begin to make a dent and cause some change. If nothing else, we and the other leaders with whom we worked succeeded in drawing attention to flaws in the process and an effort to rectify them is now under way. We anxiously await notification from Keith Chivetta and Corey Muench as to when bylaw meetings for revisions in the process will be held.

It is no secret that concern for diversity is becoming a prominent issue not just on this campus, but nationwide. Diversity is the wealth of perspective with which an academic institution stays vital and in touch with current trends in society, politics and the world. It goes beyond political extremes to the basic human reality of the potential fear of something new or different to the promise of a growing and intellectually stimulating environment of new ideas and questions.

Our goals for the rest of the UIA administration term focus especially on guaranteeing that wonderful events such as the Divali Festival are not only preserved, but encouraged and supported to grow. The world of peoples and ideas for which this university promises to train us as students is here on this campus, and it will be our project to learn from it and help make the voices of diversity spread and strengthen for the benefit of this campus.

Beware of pet thieves

To the Editor:
Your pets may be more vulnerable to theft than your TV, VCR, guns and other property. Never let your pets roam the streets and yards unattended day or night — keep them on a leash, or in a pen and guarded. Keep several pictures of them. Don't leave them alone in a vehicle while you run into a store.

Have them tattooed on the body by a veterinarian and have that number registered.

Don't let your house have that "not at home" look. Be suspicious of vehicles being driven around abnormally slowly or parked in the neighborhood with the occupants remaining inside.

Get a description of persons, vehicles, license numbers — or even better, get it all on video.

Alert others in the community if something seems out of the ordinary. Strange phone calls or persons coming to your door with odd questions should trigger your suspicion. They might be trying to find out if you're home or trick you into revealing when you'll be gone.

Your pet might go to some backwoods auction and then to a research laboratory.

Have your pets spayed or neutered by a veterinarian, and that will prevent a lot of future suffering in the animal world.

GUEST OPINION • MICHAEL SHAW

Taking responsibility for your actions

In David M. Mastio's Nov. 2 article, he frequently used his opinion as fact and redefined words and actions to suit his narrow focus. Here are definitions from a legitimate source, New Webster's Dictionary and Thesaurus:

"Feminism: The policy, practice or advocacy of political, economic and social equality for women."

"Feminist: An advocate of feminism."

performance or creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment for work or learning.

Sexual harassment may take many forms. Examples of conduct prohibited by the UI policy include:

- Physical assault.
- Direct or implied threats that submission to sexual advances will be a condition of employment, work status, promotion or grades.
- Direct propositions of a sexual nature.

Men, if we take responsibility for what we say and do, and educate ourselves about the impact of sexual violence and harassment on women's lives, we will go a long way toward balancing the scales.

"Rape: (law) Illicit sexual intercourse with a woman without her consent (by force, deception, if she is asleep, etc.)."

Rape, by definition, is a crime that is primarily done to women. To say, "Any sex that the woman regrets the next morning, any sex where any verbal seduction is involved or any sex that occurs after the woman has had one or more drinks" trivializes the impact that rape has had on more than half the population.

No man should presume to speak for all women, as this statement by Mastio does: "(Feminists' sole purpose is to force society to conform to their moral values even though most women disagree with them." When you are defining or referring to things, being responsible means using facts. Here are the more than 150 words of the UI definition of sexual harassment that Mastio referred to:

Generally, sexual harassment encompasses sexual attention that is unwanted. Under the University of Iowa Policy on Sexual Harassment and Consensual Relationships sexual harassment is defined as unwelcome advances, requests for sexual favors or other physical conduct of a sexual nature when

- Submission is made an express or implied term or condition of employment or status in a class, program or activity;
- Submission or rejection of the behavior is used to make an employment or educational decision (such as hiring, promotion or grading a course);
- The conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with a person's work or educational

• Comments of a sexual nature.

• Sexually explicit statements, questions, jokes or anecdotes.

• Unnecessary touching, patting, hugging or brushing against a person's body.

• Remarks of a sexual nature about a person's clothing, body, about sexual activity or about previous sexual experience.

"Students, faculty and staff need to be concerned only with the intent of their actions of this kind, and also with the effects. Persons who, without establishing a pattern of doing so, engage in isolated or inadvertent incidents demonstrate an insensitivity toward others. Repeated occurrences will be considered intentional violations of the policy, and educational programs are available to alleviate those occurrences."

This statement is gender-neutral and seems reasonable. It asks all people to take responsibility for what they say and do, and recommends education as a solution.

Men, if we take responsibility for what we say and do, and educate ourselves about the impact of sexual violence and harassment on women's lives, we will go a long way toward balancing the scales. Advocacy, political, social and economic equality is not a radical idea. Don't let opinion and misrepresentation of define who you are.

Michael Shaw, the author of this guest opinion, is a feminist and chairs the Iowa City / UI chapter of Ending Men's Violence.

Students want to speak at Faculty Senate meeting

To the Editor:
Students have been informed that they would not be allowed to speak at the next Faculty Senate meeting on Nov. 16. Unfortunately the procedures of this body do not include a public access period, and it is up to the president of the Senate or a senator to propose that the public be heard.

The Faculty Senate will debate again the sexually explicit material policy imposed by the regents and will take a position on the new text submitted by the Faculty Council. Since this policy concerns restrictions on the content of the material that we, students and TAs, will be exposed to or will teach in our classes, as well as ultimately the value of our degrees at this university, it seems essential that we be allowed to speak. Furthermore, even if this policy affects everyone on campus, TAs are the ones being reprimanded, and their voices should be heard.

Some faculty senators feel that our points have been made and that we could only repeat the same arguments. Not so. The issue has evolved since the last meeting. We now know that the regents are bent on imposing their narrow moral agenda no matter how much the local and national university communities protest, and therefore we all, students, TAs and faculty, have to decide what strategies of resistance are the most appropriate.

The Campaign for Academic Freedom (CAF) has been meeting weekly on this issue and has developed recommendations. We hope to present our position on the new policy proposed by the Faculty Council. We do not oppose this policy, but find it insufficient on its own. We would like to see a motion that specifically condemns the climate of homophobia which generated the regents' policy. It should also be stressed that the policy was brought about by individuals who were allowed to circumvent all of the UI complaint procedures, setting a precedent for a handful of people to determine policy. Moreover, since Regent Berenstein has already stated that he would probably not accept the new Faculty Council policy even if it is endorsed by the Faculty Senate, what next? All these questions are urgent and concern all of us. We ask that the Faculty Senate open its forum to the public on this issue.

A rally will take place on the Pentacrest today at 2 p.m., before the Faculty Senate meeting. For more information call 338-8611 or 339-5481.

Sex act policy not an infringement

To the Editor:
UI President Hunter Rawlings doesn't like it. The Faculty Senate doesn't like it. The Campaign for Academic Freedom doesn't like it and neither do graduate students, TAs or The Des Moines Register.

But I do like it. I applaud the six regents who voted Oct. 20 to mandate that UI teachers warn their students "when course materials include explicit representations of human sexual acts

I am not immature; I am not homophobic; I do not want to curtail academic freedom. I merely want to learn without being forced to do something that to me is morally reprehensible.

I am a graduate student in the School of Journalism and Mass Communication at the UI. I came here to learn as well as to expand my horizons. I've lived on two continents and in other regions of the United States as well as here in the Midwest, where I grew up. I am not provincial, narrow-minded or unwilling to consider and accept new ideas.

I appreciate the opportunity for diversity that the UI affords. This is one of the reasons I decided to pursue my degree in Iowa City.

That diversity is not challenged by the "sex act policy."

Neither is freedom of expression. I respect and expect that I will be presented with concepts that challenge my previously held ideas. If my instructors wish to do that with depictions of sexual acts, that is their prerogative. I don't question a professor's right to choose course material and neither does the policy. I only ask that I be allowed to fulfill the course requirements in a way that does not dictate that I view scenes that to me are pornographic.

The fact that I choose to avoid sexually explicit materials does not limit me. It just means that in Amsterdam I avoided the world famous red light district in favor of an exhibit of Van Gogh's paintings. My personal choice dictated that in Rio de Janeiro I didn't sun myself on public beaches. I was able to fully benefit through my exposure to foreign cultures without sacrificing my personal moral standards.

I can read movie reviews and avoid sexually explicit films. I can consult a television guide and change the channel when such a program airs on TV. I can avoid adult-only night clubs and leave the plastic wrapped magazines on the rack.

And Faculty Senate, perhaps it is time you realized that you are not exempt from the responsibility that must accompany academic freedom. The policy mandated is not censorship. It does not force you to refrain from presenting materials to your classes. It does force you to be considerate and accommodating of other views. That is what is meant by "fostering understanding" and "living with diversity." Isn't that part of the university experience you have devoted yourselves to?

Iowa after streamlining: not just for pigs and corn

To the Editor:
At first, I believed the Iowa state Board of Regents' recent policy regarding "explicit sex acts" to be another nail driven into the coffin of academic freedom. It certainly looked as though a clueless band of druggists, bankers and insurance executives had succeeded in their efforts to make a laughingstock of Iowa's university system.

Yet upon closer examination, the regents' action is not quite as ghastly as it first appears. In their own bumbling way, they have actually succeeded in streamlining the academic process. The new restrictions on the introduction of offensive material means that the Department of English can now discard its entire canon, fire all of its instructors and award all of its students "A's," based solely upon their willingness to expose their virginal minds to "Ulysses" or "The Salt Eaters." The money saved can be directed to more pressing ends, such as a statue of Hayden Fry.

More important, the new policy applies not just to liberal arts, but across the entire UI academic spectrum. For example, anyone who thinks the Earth is flat and less than 6,000 years old now has the perfect excuse to get out of that tough geology class. Angered by antigens? Say goodbye to biology. Dazed by derivatives? Kiss off that pesky calculus course. Do the intricacies of thermodynamics menace your religious, moral and philosophical world view? Now is the time to notify your professor that you will not be taking your engineering / physics final. A complete list of affected courses would take more space than allowed by the DI. Nevertheless, with enough imagination, no field of study, no matter how esoteric, may escape the reach of this policy.

So, to those of you still reeling from the regents' latest fiat, buck up! The census from the year 2000 may very well show Iowa to be a national leader in the production not only of pigs and corn, but of ignorance.

Steve Butcher
Iowa City

Selective learning

To the Editor:
David M. Mastio's column (Oct. 19, DI) deeply offends my delicate liberal sensibilities. Could the DI editors please print a warning in Friday's paper as to what sort of loathsome, small-minded screed I may expect on Mondays? It would mean a lot to me to know that my academic freedom was being protected in this manner... not!

To give credit where credit is due, Mr. Mastio was correct when he wrote in his Oct. 19 column that academic freedom "implies the right to choose your subject of inquiry" — but what is the point of inquiring if you don't want the answers? It is this very trend in our society to teach only parts of histories and issues that has left us with the inaccurate portrayals of African- and Native Americans, women, homosexuals, etc., which cause these people so much pain.

The champions of the "explicit materials" policy are not so sensitive. They are confused and frightened people who, in their effort to escape the confines of reality, devalue art, literature and lifestyles of others, consequently dehumanizing the people themselves. For their sake, let me make a few things clear about the true nature of sensitivity: It is not closing your mind to the ways of others. It is opening your mind and learning from them. Sensitivity is not a selfish action. You can't be sensitive unless you feel.

FIRST MEETING IN FIVE YEARS

U.S., China attempt to reopen channels

Kathy Wilhelm
Associated Press

BEIJING — Much is riding on Friday's meeting between Chinese President Jiang Zemin and President Clinton, the first such U.S.-Sino talks in almost five years. The two sides must learn to trust each other again.

Jiang, Clinton and the leaders of 12 other nations are gathering in Seattle for the largest ever Asia-Pacific summit under the auspices of the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation group.

The leaders of China and the United States have not met since President Bush visited Beijing in early 1989. Later that year, China violently repressed student pro-democracy demonstrations, pushing U.S.-Chinese relations into a decline.

Since then, the two countries have argued over human rights, arms sales and politics.

Mutual trust reached another low in August when the United States, rejecting private Chinese assurances, tailed a Chinese freighter it suspected of carrying banned chemicals and forced a search that proved the ship clean.

Now, both sides are hoping for a breakthrough in attitudes and a commitment to frequent, high-level contacts.

"Their coming meeting will not be a negotiating session," Chinese Foreign Minister Qian Qichen told a news conference last week. He instead emphasized intangible achievements, such as better understanding and trust.

But the two sides must move quickly to resolve disputes in trade and arms proliferation, with deadlines nearing and skeptics in both countries demanding proof that friendly engagement is the best approach.

Under an agreement signed last year, China is supposed to dismantle a set of import barriers by Dec. 31. A textile agreement also expires then, and the United States is threatening to impose quotas on Chinese textiles if a new agreement isn't reached.

Clinton is under pressure from U.S. companies to ease sanctions imposed in September that restrict high-technology exports to China, including satellites. He imposed the sanctions because intelligence indicated China exported missile technology to Pakistan in violation of an agreement. Washington wants China to either prove the findings wrong or promise the sales won't be repeated.

China, meanwhile, wants an end to the new sanctions and some left over from 1989, such as restrictions on sales to its military and police. It also wants its low-tariff trade status assured, rather than subject to wrenching annual debate.

Clinton and Jiang are unlikely to get into detailed discussions on these issues. That will be left to Cabinet-level officials who also will be meeting in Seattle Wednesday through Saturday.

China, anxious not to be seen as making concessions during the meeting, has already proffered a goodwill gift by opening the door to prison visits by the International Committee of the Red Cross. This is something the United States long sought but China rejected as a violation of its sovereignty.

China believes that American businessmen and time are on its side in many areas of dispute. It believes that if its economy continues to grow at the current 13 percent pace and the purchasing power of its 1.2 billion people keeps rising, businesses will force Washington to lift sanctions and put the MFN issue to rest.

"All far-sighted U.S. statesmen and entrepreneurs should look toward the 21st century," Premier Li Peng told Westinghouse executives last week.

NAFTA

of a frowning, hard hat-wearing worker.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland lashed out at Clinton for his extraordinary promise to defend Republicans who are attacked in congressional races because they voted for the trade agreement.

"The president has clearly abdicated his role as leader of the Democratic Party," Kirkland declared. The administration worked with Republican leaders on the wording of a letter spelling out Clinton's pledge.

The labor leader also dismissed the notion that a loss would wound Clinton's presidency — a frequent argument by NAFTA supporters in recent days.

"That is nonsense," Kirkland said. "I think the best thing that could happen for the Clinton administration is for this agreement to be voted down." He said that would allow Clinton to focus on issues "to put people first for a change."

Undecided lawmakers who dined with Clinton Sunday night told him there had been "a sea change out in their districts" and that public opinion is moving toward support of the agreement, White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers said.

"As (U.S. Trade Representative) Mickey Kantor said yesterday, we expect a Clinton landslide — it's going to be 218 votes, maybe 219, but that's all we need to win," Myers said.

Outside the Capitol, NAFTA foe Ross Perot kept up the pressure. He called for a federal investigation of "billions of dollars" in projects that he said Clinton had offered lawmakers Sunday for their votes.

Perot declined to provide examples. Instead, he listed several deals that the administration had already reportedly agreed upon, including funds for a development bank and military transport planes and a temporary White House backtracking in its effort to raise grazing fees for many ranchers.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Texas, emerged from a 20-minute Oval Office session saying, "It's almost like coming to the principal's office."

Contrary to reports, Green said he had not demanded approval for a bridge in his district in exchange for his vote. "I can't tell anyone in East Houston they lost a job, but I got a bridge," he said, insisting that Clinton did not attempt any horse trading.

"I think it will be a narrow victory for NAFTA," said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash. "It's based on evidence of things moving in that direction. ... We are not there yet, but we're moving in that direction, very clearly."

The trade agreement would phase out tariffs and other barriers over 15 years. Supporters say it will create a huge market for American exports, resulting in new jobs. Opponents say American workers will lose their paychecks as their companies close up and rush to Mexico for cheaper labor and less stringent environmental rules.

Clinton scheduled eight 30-minute one-on-one meetings with legislators, mostly Democrats now listed as "no" votes.

The president also was working the telephones, largely to secure Republican votes. One official said the White House was counting on 120 from the GOP.

RULING

bypass.

The court never has upheld a two-parent consent law, but most of the justices have indicated such a requirement would be constitutional if an adequate judicial-bypass option were included.

Massachusetts and North Dakota also have such laws.

Lawyers for Mississippi's three abortion clinics say a rule implementing the two-parent consent law transforms the judicial-bypass provision into an "undue burden" on girls' abortion rights.

The rule says a girl must prove notifying her parents is not in her best interest.

The appeal acted on Monday argued that the rule unlawfully denies judicial permission to some girls who could show that getting an abortion is in their best interest.

The high court last year reaffirmed its 1973 decision barring states from outlawing most abortions. Last year's ruling said states may not impose undue burdens on women's constitutional rights to such operations.

But that ruling also gave states greater leeway to regulate abortions.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, by a 2-1 vote last May, upheld the Mississippi law. It took effect two months later.

In the appeal turned down Monday, abortion clinic operators also argued they wrongly were denied an evidentiary court hearing before the law took effect.

They said the appeals court should have sent the case back to a federal trial judge "for fact-finding under the newly minted undue burden standard."

In other cases, the justices:

- Let stand the trespass conviction of a woman who said her concern for the unborn justified blocking the entrance of a Wichita, Kan., clinic in 1991.

Allowed the Baby Bell regional telephone companies to continue offering information services, such as computerized yellow pages and stock quotes.

- Agreed to decide in cases from North Carolina and West Virginia whether people convicted of federal felonies may be allowed to own guns if a state has restored those rights.

POISONING

Reid said disagreements had been occurring among roommates in the apartment before the alleged poisoning.

"There have been some conflicts between the roommates, but that's as specific as we'll be at this time," he said.

While not certain, police believe Formula 409 or a similar cleaning fluid was sprayed on some food.

Although such substances can be very dangerous if directly consumed, they are unlikely to cause death or injury if sprayed on food, said Dr. Richard Zunker, a poison information specialist with the Minnesota Regional Poison Center.

"You would have to drink a fair quantity for the glycol in cleaning products to be a problem because the concentration is so low," he said. Zunker said it would be very difficult to seriously poison someone by spraying cleaning fluids on food.

"They couldn't get enough on there — you would notice it first," he said. "Most of the home-cleaning products like 409 are not overly toxic."

However, such substances sprayed on food could make someone sick.

"There are some soaps and detergents in them that can cause nausea and vomiting," he said. "It may also be irritating to the mucous membranes in the mouth."

Lt. Richard Gordon of the UI Department of Public Safety said he was unaware of any similar cases involving UI students.

"I can't recall any cases of one student poisoning another or anything along those lines," he said. "That's pretty bizarre."

LOCAL

Women's basketball signs two recruits

Tiffany Gooden and Tangelia Smith have signed national letters of intent to play basketball at Iowa, Coach C. Vivian Stringer announced Monday.

Gooden, a 6-foot power forward from Fort Wayne, Ind., is a two-time Street & Smith all-American and a two-time Parade all-American.

Smith, a 6-3 center from Chicago, is a Street & Smith preseason all-American. Noted the best Division I player out of the Chicago area, she averaged 16 points, 11 rebounds and six blocks per game as a junior.

COLLEGE

Montross, Hill lead preseason All-Americans

(AP) — Eric Montross was one vote shy of being a unanimous selection and Grant Hill was the lone repeater Monday on The Associated Press' preseason All-America college basketball team.

Montross, North Carolina's 7-foot center, was named on 64 of the 65 ballots from a nationwide panel, while Hill, Duke's 6-8 swingman, received 61 votes, the same as 6-8 Purdue junior forward Glenn Robinson.

Jason Kidd, California's 6-4 sophomore point guard, had 56 votes, and 6-4 shooting guard Billy McCaffrey of Vanderbilt rounded out the team with 38 votes.

Temple's Aaron McKie was the next-highest vote-getter with seven.

Montross averaged 15.8 points and 7.6 rebounds for the Tar Heels last season as they won the national title. He was named a second team All-American.

Archie, Gelzheiser named Players of the Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Penn State's tailback Mike Archie and line-backer Brian Gelzheiser were named Monday the Big Ten Players of the Week.

Archie, a junior from Sharon, Pa., rushed for 134 yards and two touchdowns in the Nittany Lions' 28-14 win over Illinois on Saturday. He was the first back to gain 100 yards against the Illini this season.

Gelzheiser, a senior from Pittsburgh, had 16 tackles, a quarterback sack and a deflected pass in the game.

NBA

Laimbeer fined $5,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Laimbeer of the Detroit Pistons was fined $5,000 and suspended for one game by the NBA on Monday for a flagrant foul against Karl Malone last week.

Laimbeer committed the foul against Malone, of the Utah Jazz, in the first quarter of Friday night's game in Salt Lake City. He was immediately ejected and sat out Detroit's game at Portland on Sunday.

NFL

Cities renew expansion bid applications

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Louis, Baltimore, Jacksonville, Fla., and Memphis, Tenn., renewed their applications for an NFL expansion franchise Monday, with the Baltimore group adding a third ownership group to the mix.

The Baltimore bid has the backing of Maryland Gov. William Donald Schaefer and gives the league six applications for four franchises for the new franchise.

The latest entry is headed by Alfred Lerner, a Cleveland real estate and financial services executive and part-owner of the Cleveland Browns.

The group must provide a $20 million letter of credit and a financing plan for the $140 million franchise fee.

The league awarded an expansion franchise to Charlotte, N.C., three weeks ago. The second team is to be announced outside Chicago on Nov. 30.

7-foot power forward from MFL/Mar-Mac announces decision to attend Kansas

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's basketball program was dealt a heavy blow when highly-recruited Raef LaFrentz decided Monday to attend Kansas next season.

"I have to do what I feel is best for my future," he said at a short press conference. "Coach (Roy) Williams and his staff have done a superb job of recruiting me. They have been extremely honest and answered without hesitation every question I've asked them."

The 7-foot power forward Raef LaFrentz

Raef LaFrentz

from Monona MFL/Mar-Mac was one of the top prospects in the country.

He averaged 29.9 points, 16.9 rebounds and four blocked shots per game for the Bulldogs as a junior last season.

LaFrentz made recruiting trips to Iowa, Notre Dame and Kansas. His high school coach, Eric Dettbarn, said LaFrentz had narrowed his choices to Iowa and Kansas about a month and a half ago before deciding last week to join the Jayhawks.

"I understand how people here in the state of Iowa would like to see me as a Hawkeye. It's a fantastic program," LaFrentz said.

"However, in my heart, I feel I would be more able to reach my goals at the University of Kansas. I love their style of play and see myself fitting in very easily.

"Plus, they have a great group of people and players that I feel comfortable with."

LaFrentz will join a Kansas program that has been to the NCAA Final Four in four of the last eight seasons.

LaFrentz did not answer questions following the conference at his high school.

"He didn't want to get bombarded with a lot of questions," Dettbarn said. "I'm sure he just didn't want to downgrade any program."

Dettbarn said LaFrentz made his decision early so he can focus on his senior season.

Steelers knock out Bills

Alan Robinson

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Steelers' one glaring weakness in coach Bill Cowher's 1½-year rejuvenation program was their inability to beat the Buffalo Bills. A night of big hits and big plays took care of that.

The Steelers knocked out Jim Kelly, then Andre Reed, then Don Beebe with injuries before finishing off the Bills, shrugging off Barry Foster's own injury departure to dominate the defending AFC champions 23-0 Monday night.

The Steelers (6-3) stuffed the NFL's top rushing offense with the league's top rushing defense, and got big games from quarterback Neil O'Donnell (16 of 27, 212 yards) and replacement rusher Leroy Thompson to end a five-game losing streak against Buffalo (7-2).

Thompson had a career-high 108 yards and a touchdown and now has consecutive 100-yard rushing games at home following Foster injuries.

The Bills, who beat the Steelers twice last season en route to their third straight Super Bowl, hadn't lost to Pittsburgh since 1985. Buffalo, last shut out 28-0 by Miami on Dec. 22, 1985, lost for the first time in six games and fell back into a first-place tie with Miami in the AFC East.

The Steelers' fifth victory in six games put them a game up over sliding Cleveland and surging Houston in the AFC Central.

The Bills seemed to get a huge break midway through an 81-yard Steelers' drive in the first quarter when Foster, who had 199 yards in two career starts against them, badly sprained his left ankle while

New players debut

Joel Donofrio

As with any preseason game, the scoreboard isn't the thing to watch at tonight's Iowa women's basketball exhibition contest against the Uralmash Sports Club.

When the Hawkeyes tipoff at 7:30 p.m., Coach C. Vivian Stringer and her staff will be more concerned with evaluating their players than with the score of the game.

Although the Hawkeyes have had only two weeks of practice to prepare, both Stringer and Iowa fans are anxious to see how players returning from last season's 27-4 squad have improved their games. In addition, four new Hawkeyes make their Carver-Hawkeye Arena debut tonight: junior college transfer Simone Edwards, redshirt freshman Jenny Noll and freshmen recruits Erinn Reed and Susan Koering.

"Everyone's got to get ready in a hurry, but for the newcomers, it's going to be a really quick learning experience," Stringer said. "We have a very, very short period of time to prepare before our first game."

With the graduation of seniors Laurie Aaron, Toni Foster and Molly Tideback from last year's team, Stringer noted that 45 percent of her squad's scoring is gone. While seniors Virgie Dillingham, Andrea Harmon, Tia Jackson, Cathy Marx and Nicole Tunsil will be expected to shoulder much of the scoring load this season, the Iowa coach expects her four newcomers to make a sizable contribution to the team.

Stringer has hardly been able to hide her anticipation when discussing Edwards' ability. The 6-foot-4 center from Kingston, Jamaica, was a Kodak all-American last season at Seminole Junior College, where she averaged 22.3 points and 10.5 rebounds per game.

"Simone gets up and down the court as quickly as any guard," Stringer said. "She has a lot of talent, but it will take her awhile to learn our system."

Porter's interception a turning point for Iowa

Roxanna Pellin

The Daily Iowan

EVANSTON, Ill. — Hawkeye Bo Porter's interception midway through the second quarter may have been the turning point in Iowa's 23-19 win at Northwestern Saturday.

The junior free safety from Newark, N.J., picked off his second interception of the season and returned it 31 yards to put the Hawkeyes on the Northwestern 41-yard line. The series ended with a 5-yard touchdown run by junior Ryan Terry to tie the score at 6-6.

"We came out a little flat," Porter said. "That interception turned the game around. At the interception, we pretty much took control."

Porter was the starting center fielder on last year's Iowa baseball team and was drafted by the Chicago Cubs this past summer.

NO CONSOLATION — There's no consolation in losing, even if the score was close for Northwestern coach Gary Barnett.

"We could win the game, we lost," Barnett said. "That's the way I'll deal with it. We'll look back and say we got close on everything, but we lost. That's the bottom line. They don't keep track of close scores." The Wildcats (2-8 overall and 0-7 in the Big Ten) have lost their last seven games, last week dropping to Michigan State, 31-29.

"This is another close game in score. That seems to be our pattern right now. We just haven't had enough within our team, coaches and players to quite get it done vs. teams we have a chance to get it done.

"I've never been able to not affect a team any better than I have right now and I'm struggling with that a little bit."

Barnett was offensive coordinator at Colorado for eight seasons before coming to Northwestern last season.

He said there were a number of reasons why the Wildcats couldn't pull off a win over Iowa.

Weed-eaters hit the road looking for big budget bowl teams

"Who ever heard of talk about a bowl with four wins?"

Last week, this was what Iowa football coach Hayden Fry had to say about the possibility of his Hawkeyes playing in a bowl game.

His team had won one out of six Big Ten games, had beaten not a single top-25 team all season, and had struggled to defeat national powerhouses such as Tulsa and Iowa State earlier in the year.

However, after Iowa's oh-so-convincing victory over Northwestern last weekend, everybody in the Hawkeye football complex is talking bowl game — even Fry, who, in an abrupt change of pace, noted Saturday that "normally a 6-5 team goes to a bowl game."

In reality, the only bowl-talker who mattered Saturday was the representative sent by the Poulan/Weed Eater Independence Bowl to scout the Hawkeyes in Evanston. You know the type: the pot-bellied guys in the plaid sportcoats who sit around watching football games they know nothing about and get paid for it. Kind of like journalists.

Much like a pro football scout, the bowl representative's job is to size up pieces of meat and decide which one will fetch the biggest profit on the market. With thousands of blindly loyal, free-spending fans ready to descend on Shreveport, La., the Hawkeyes are quite a juicy chunk of beef.

In any event, Saturday's full-fledged flesh peddler was named Rick Holland, and despite not showing up at Dyche Stadium until three minutes remained in the game, he said he had seen all he needed to see — the Hawkeyes were in the running for the Weed-Wacker Bowl.

"You look at everything, besides record, who they beat, are they on a roll or are they going downhill? There's a lot of factors that go into it. The primary one is the fan support, besides the record and qualifying with the six wins," Holland said Saturday.

Note that although there are "lots of factors" which influence the decision of bowl officials, the first and foremost is money. How many fans, how much profit, how high of a TV rating a team can draw matters far more than talent in the bowl bidding process. In case you thought a team's record was the most important factor in the decision, let's hear what Holland had to say:

"We might take Iowa at 6-5 before we would take a team at 8-3 that didn't have any fan support or who wouldn't bring anybody."

Holland was all-but-naming the Indiana Hoosiers here, a team which could be 8-3 following Saturday's season-ending game with Purdue, but has basically no fan support once basketball season rolls around. The no-nonsense bowl formula goes something like this: no decent win-loss record? NO Problem! No wins over a top-25 team? NO Problem! No filthy-rich fan support? THAT'S a problem!

Granted, there is that piddly detail of getting six wins (even if only three are in the conference) which the Hawkeyes must overcome before they go anywhere. The Illinois football team has run into this problem; despite being 5-2 in one of the toughest conferences in the nation, Illinois still has to win Saturday against Wisconsin or they're bummin'. That situation would generate little sympathy around here, especially since that's one less team eligible to take the Hawkeyes' New Year's Eve reservation in Louisiana.

Remember, though, that Iowa still has to beat those troublesome Golden Gophers this Saturday — the team that last season spoiled the Hawkeyes' trip to the Copper Bowl. Having briefly flirted with bowl mania themselves, the Gophers would like nothing better than to foil Iowa's vacation plans for the second straight season.

Referees, linesmen begin first strike ever

Associated Press

TORONTO — Referees and linesmen began their first full strike in NHL history Monday night. Replacements worked three games while talks broke off between the league and its on-ice officials.
 "About 70 men from minor, pro and junior leagues have been hired to handle the work usually done by the 58 members of the NHL Officials Association.
 The first games officiated by the new referees and linesmen were Montreal at Ottawa, Edmonton at Toronto and Winnipeg at Calgary.
 About two hours of talks Sunday proved futile and no further negotiations have been scheduled. NHL negotiator Don Meehan said he plans to initiate contact and meet with league executives later this week.

 "They are too busy waging war to call," Meehan said.
 "I do not think anyone is worried who calls who first," said Brian Burke, the NHL's director of hockey operations. "We will meet them anywhere, any time."
 The replacement officials will wear radio-receivers in their ears that allow them to get instruction from league supervisors in the arenas.
 The regular referees and linesmen have been without a contract since Aug. 31. They want a 60 percent raise in the first year of the contract, while the league is offering 29 percent. First-year referees earn $50,000 and first-year linesmen $33,000.

 The two sides differ by about $1.5 million a year. The NHL's proposal, a four-year contract, would cost about $5 million. The officials' proposal would cost $6.5 million.
 The officials voted unanimously Friday to reject what the league said was its final offer.
 Earlier Monday, Burke met with the Maple Leafs and Oilers. He denied reports players have been ordered to refrain from criticizing the referees, although he said NHL bylaws already prohibit criticism of league officials by players or team personnel. Those violating the bylaw are subject to fines.

that led the NFL with 29 take-aways and the league's best rushing offense.
 But the Steelers outran them 123-34 in the first half and 227-47 overall as AFC rushing leader Thurman Thomas, who had 365 yards in four starts against Pittsburgh, was held to 40 yards on 13 carries.

 landing awkwardly on an over-thrown pass.
 But Thompson, who gained 101 yards in the second half against New Orleans on Oct. 17 after Foster bruised a shoulder, again proved the Steelers' most valuable reserve.

He ripped off 9 yards on his first two carries to take the ball to the Bills' 9, then sidestepped an on-rushing Bruce Smith to score on third-and-1 to put Pittsburgh up 7-0 with 5:36 left in the first quarter.
 The Steelers converted all four of their third-down plays on the 15-play drive, including O'Donnell's 9-yards to Dwight Stone and Eric Green on third-and-long and a 12-yarder to Ernie Mills.

 O'Donnell later crossed up the Bills' defense with a 1-yard touchdown pass to tight end Eric Green on Pittsburgh's opening drive of the third quarter, and Gary Anderson — 18 of 19 on field goals this season — hit from 37, 19 and 31 yards.
 Buffalo opened 7-1 for the third time in four years behind a defense weren't a factor in the Iowa game.

 "We didn't play that up," he said. "We suspended guys who did something wrong. I don't think you rally around guys who did something wrong."
FRY IMPRESSED — Iowa coach Hayden Fry said he was impressed with the "fighting character of the Northwestern football team."
 "They had a lot of chances to surrender today and they didn't do it."

 "Our defense as a whole, we had trouble," he said. "We needed to catch the ball a couple of times on those punts that we didn't catch. The offense has got to bring the ball out of the end zone. We dropped a couple passes early. We continued to shoot ourselves in the foot. We did not execute very well. It's frustrating for me and I'm sure it's frustrating for our players."
ANOTHER SUSPENSION — Wildcat fans who were looking for wide receiver Patrick Wright Saturday won't get an explanation for his absence.
 When asked about the status of Wright, a junior who has 15 catches for 152 yards this season, Barnett didn't have much to say.
 "Patrick was suspended from our team today," Barnett said three different times.
 The Wildcats were already playing without sophomore running back Rodney Ray and wide receiver Michael Senters, who were suspended for fighting during the Michigan State game.
 Barnett said their suspensions

 Reed is a 5-4 point guard from Saginaw, Mich., who Stringer said has great ball-handling and scoring ability. Reed will compete with veteran guards Arnedo Yarbrough and Karen Clayton to fill the point guard spot vacated by Aaron.

 Quarterback Steve Schnur threw a 23-yard pass to Luther Morris with 8 seconds remaining to cut the score to 23-19.
 "They came back there at the last and threw the ball right in between three of our defenders and got a touchdown," Fry said.
 "I guess that's because USA Today had us at two-point favorites and they had to close the gap. I don't know how those bookies can do that, but they're pretty accurate most of the time. I guess that's the reason they can keep their jobs."

Mattingly breaks AL Glove record

Ben Walker
Associated Press
NEW YORK — Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees caught up with George Scott for the most Gold Gloves by an American League baseman, winning for the eighth time in the awards announced Monday.
Second baseman Roberto Alomar and outfielder Devon White of the World Series champion Toronto Blue Jays, outfielder Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle and pitcher Mark Langston of California were among seven of last year's winners to repeat.

Only Seattle shortstop Omar Vizquel, who replaced Baltimore's Cal Ripken, and Cleveland outfielder Kenny Lofton, who took the place of Minnesota's Kirby Puckett, were first-time winners.

Texas catcher Ivan Rodriguez and Chicago third baseman Robin Ventura filled out this year's team.

The National League winners will be announced today. The Gold Gloves are presented by Rawlings to the best fielders in baseball as chosen in a vote by major league managers and coaches late in the regular season.

Rawlings began the Gold Gloves in 1957 with one combined team. Winners in both leagues were started the next season.

Mattingly matched Scott as the top winner at first base in the AL with his eighth award in nine years. The only time Mattingly missed out was 1990, when he was injured and Oakland's Mark McGwire won the award.

Mattingly, known for his quick throws, led major league first basemen with a .998 fielding percentage this year. He made only three errors in 1,345 total chances, including 84 assists.

Scott won in 1967-68 with Boston, and won again from 1971-76 while with the Red Sox and Milwaukee. Keith Hernandez holds the record for the most Gold Gloves by a first baseman, winning 11 straight times from 1978-88 with the New York Mets and St. Louis.

White and Langston each won their fifth Gold Gloves. White made only three errors in center field and Langston led AL pitchers with 47 assists.

Griffey, also a center fielder, became the first AL outfielder to win four straight Gold Gloves since Puckett in 1986-89. The acrobatic Alomar, who showed off his abilities in the World Series, and Ventura each won for the third year in a row.

Rodriguez became the first Texas catcher to win two straight Gold Gloves since Jim Sundberg won from 1976-81.

Vizquel ended Ripken's two-year streak at shortstop. Vizquel had a .980 percentage and became the first Seattle shortstop to win the award. Lofton, another center fielder, was the first Cleveland outfielder to win a Gold Glove since Rick Manning in 1976.

Michigan a 'pain' for Buckeyes' Cooper

Associated Press

Ohio State's Raymont Harris is pulled down by Indiana's Charles Beauchamp during the Buckeyes' 23-17 win Saturday.

Rusty Miller
Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Like a nagging pain in the neck that won't go away, the mention of the word "Michigan" brings up a lot of close calls and catcalls for Ohio State coach John Cooper.

In five meetings with rival Michigan while with the Buckeyes, he has lost four times and tied once.

In a state where everything grinds to a halt on the third Saturday in November each year in anticipation of the game of the season, Cooper's record is a sore spot. But it's more of a sore spot to him than anybody else.

"Do I like living in Columbus when we haven't beaten Michigan? Obviously, the answer is no," Cooper said Monday at his weekly news conference.

"I don't like living here when you have to hear that all the time. But I tell our team — our players and coaches and even myself — that if you don't like it, go change it. Go win the game."

Cooper will get his next and best opportunity to get the maize-and-blue monkey off his back when the fifth-ranked Buckeyes travel to Michigan on Saturday.

A lot is riding on the outcome, even beyond putting up with another year of criticism and speculation from critics.

The Buckeyes (9-0-1 overall and 6-0-1 in the Big Ten Conference) can lock up their first outright Big Ten title and first trip to the Rose Bowl in nine years with a victory.

Even if they lose, they still can back into a trip to Pasadena. The only way Wisconsin can go is if the Buckeyes lose and the Badgers win at Illinois on Saturday and against Michigan State Dec. 4 in Tokyo.

Wisconsin, which tied Ohio State 14-14 two weeks ago, hasn't been to the Rose Bowl.

Irish avoiding talk of rematch

Don Lesko
Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — It has been exactly three years since Notre Dame last was No. 1 in the country. The Irish lost at home that week to No. 18 Penn State.

With No. 17 Boston College coming to South Bend on a roll this weekend, Lou Holtz is avoiding talk of a New Year's Day rematch with Florida State and trying to keep his team focused on the regular-season finale.

"There's really no advantage to being No. 1 whatsoever," Holtz said after the Irish outmuscled the Seminoles 31-24 on Saturday. "What it means is people are going to be more motivated to play you. We aren't any different. We aren't No. 1, we're fighting to be No. 1."

Notre Dame (10-0) arrived unbeaten for college football's Game of the Year by refusing to look past weaker opponents as Florida State loomed on the schedule.

Nov. 16 appears the Irish and Seminoles (9-1) again are on a collision course, and several Notre Dame players said after Saturday's game they gladly would give Florida State another shot.

Holtz doesn't believe his team will be ambushed by Boston College (7-2), which has won seven games in a row.

He said he would have this message for his team Monday after giving them about 36 hours to celebrate.

"Here's the situation, and you're an adult, and you understand it. I don't have to beat you over the head," Holtz said.

"You're the ones that are going to determine the future, and here it

Associated Press

Notre Dame offensive guard Mark Zataveski, left, and offensive tackle Mike McGlinn celebrate after the Irish beat Florida State 31-24 Saturday in South Bend, Ind.

"Seniors, this is your last game at home, you've got everything going. It's up to you to get the rest of the football team to understand the importance of this."

A win Saturday would give Holtz his second perfect regular-season record at Notre Dame, matching the accomplishment of the 1988 national champions.

It also would be only the third time in the last 44 seasons that Notre Dame emerged from the regular season unbeaten and untied.

Ara Parseghian's 1973 national champions are the only other Notre Dame team with a perfect regular-season record since Frank Leahy's 1949 team went 10-0.

Although the Irish are a unanimous No. 1 in The Associated Press media rankings, two of the 62 coaches voting in the USA Today-CNN poll gave the nod to unbeaten Nebraska.

"I have no problem with that," said Holtz, who put his team at the top with Florida State and Nebraska tied for second.

"I'm not saying we're No. 1 in the country. All I'm saying is that we were the best team on Saturday, but not by a whole lot."

Boston College will return to Notre Dame Stadium looking not only to knock off the nation's No. 1 team, but to avenge last year's crushing 54-7 loss to the Irish.

Kosar a 'winner' after Dallas debut

Denne H. Freeman
Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Winner was the word used at Valley Ranch to describe Bernie Kosar the day after his debut with the Dallas Cowboys.

"Bernie has always been a winner," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "He finds a way to get the job done."

"He may look a little awkward at times, but his passes get to the target on time and he doesn't make mistakes," offensive coordinator Norv Turner said.

Kosar hit 13 of 21 passes for 199 yards, one touchdown and no interceptions in the Cowboys' 20-15 victory over the Phoenix Cardinals. Kosar has the lowest interception rate in NFL history and didn't serve any balls up for grabs in Sunday's game.

"It's all been a little overwhelming," said Kosar, cut last week after 8½ seasons with the Cleveland Browns. "I just didn't want to let the organization and the players down. It was a hectic week."

Kosar went into the game late in the first quarter with 67 plays written on a wristband.

"I should be able to learn more of the offense this week," Kosar said. "I just didn't want to make any plays to hurt the team."

Kosar, signed for a guaranteed $1 million the rest of the season, will go back to the bench along with Jason Garrett as soon as Troy Aikman's pulled hamstring heals.

Aikman still wasn't certain whether his hamstring had fully mended.

"I've never had a pulled hamstring before so I don't want to rush it," Aikman said. "It's very frustrating to be on the sidelines. I'd like to play against Atlanta this Sunday but we'll just have to see."

"I'll try it in practice this week but I don't want to re-aggravate it. I'm optimistic," he said.

Aikman has been treating the pull with ice and acupuncture. He was on the sidelines in blue jeans watching Sunday's game.

Johnson said the Aikman situation "is still day to day. We'll just watch how Troy is coming along. He's still our starting quarterback. Nothing changes."

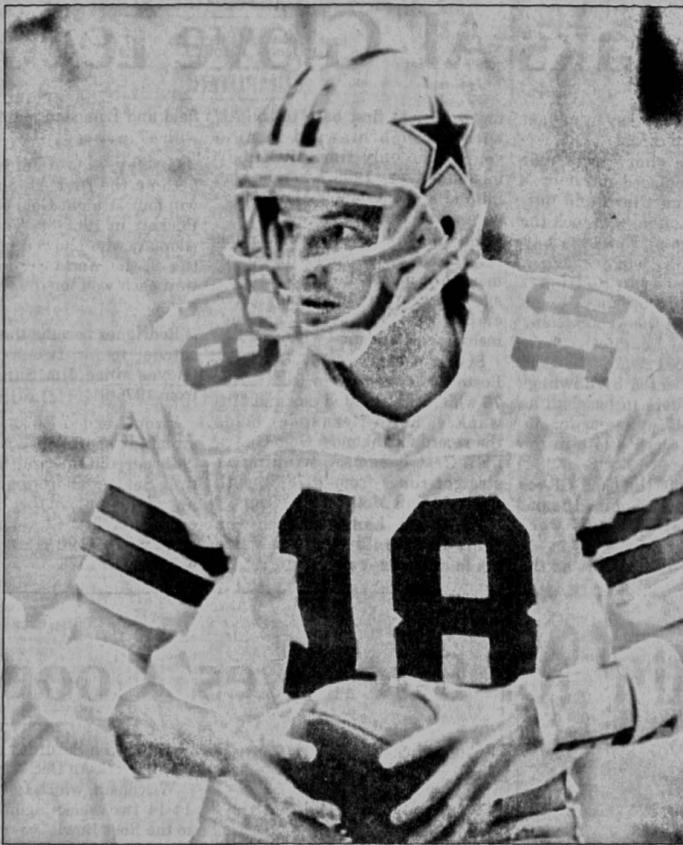

Kosar agreed, saying, "I just want Troy to get healthy so he can come back and lead this great team."

Tributes for Kosar poured in after the game.

"I'm not trying to put Cleveland down but Bernie is a good quarterback and has a very strong arm," said Phoenix coach Joe Bugel.

"If Bernie has lost a step, you couldn't tell it by the way he played," said cornerback Robert Massey. "He played like he had been in the Dallas offense for five years. He looked sharp."

It was the seventh consecutive win for the Cowboys after an 0-2 start.

Associated Press

Dallas quarterback Bernie Kosar fades quarter of the Cowboys' 20-15 win back to throw a pass during the first over Phoenix Sunday.

BIG TEN BASKETBALL

Knight unsure of who will lead Hoosiers

Steve Herman
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Either graduation losses hurt Indiana more than Bob Knight is willing to admit, or else for once he's serious when he says he has no idea how good the Hoosiers will be this season.

Indiana ran away with the Big Ten championship and was ranked No. 1 in the nation a year ago. But the Hoosiers lost three starters, including college player of the year Calbert Cheaney, the most prolific scorer in conference history, and Greg Graham, the Big Ten's top defensive player.

Matt Nover, a steady center and the team's best shooter, also is gone.

Knight, starting his 23rd season at Indiana, won't say who will take up the slack.

"No, I'm just not smart enough to do that. I'm telling you, that takes somebody who's a hell of a lot smarter than I am," he said.

"I don't think I'm dumb, don't misunderstand. I'm not ever going to think I'm dumb. As long as there are three or four writers around, I know I'm not the dumbest SOB in the world. But I just can't do that."

Remember, though, Knight never makes predictions. He always says he hasn't seen enough to gauge their chances, or some variation of that theme. Yet year after year, the Hoosiers seem to come up with something. Knight has never had a losing season at Indiana, and every player who has stayed around for all four years has been part of at least one Big Ten championship team.

Knight has won or shared 11 Big Ten titles and has won three of Indiana's five NCAA championships. The Hoosiers were 31-4 last year, losing in the NCAA regional final to Kansas.

Cheaney, a first-round NBA draft pick by the Washington Bullets, averaged 22.4 points a game and set a Big Ten career record with 2,613 points. Graham, now with the Philadelphia 76ers, was the Hoosiers' second-leading scorer at 16.5 a game.

Likely candidates to take over the bulk of the team's scoring include senior guard Damon Bailey, if he works a lot harder; forward Alan Henderson, if his injured knee is healthy; and forward Brian Evans. Or even someone else.

"Sometimes it isn't a person. Sometimes it's a team that scores," said Knight.

"Evans could score a lot of points," he said of the 6-foot-8 sophomore. "I think Evans has a great potential as a player. There are a lot of things he does well, and probably at the top of that list might be just simply understanding how to play. There are not a whole lot of players that really understand how to play, but Evans does."

The 6-3 Bailey, the most heralded Indiana recruit before ever setting foot on campus since Steve Alford a decade ago, has never lived up to his reputation in high school, when he was a four-time All-State selection and became only the second Indiana player to score more than 3,000 career points.

"He's got to play a hell of a lot harder. If Bailey plays a hell of a lot harder, then that's all Bailey has to do," Knight said. "If I said he's got to play a hell of a lot harder than he has, it would indicate to me that I have not been real pleased with how hard he has played to this point."

Bailey led the Hoosiers in assists at 4.1 per game last year but averaged only 10.1 points on 46 percent shooting, the worst among the five starters. The 6-9 Henderson, the other returning starter, averaged 11.1 points and a team-high 8.1 rebounds but missed five games after a severe knee injury.

He came back late in the season but was mostly ineffective, and he underwent surgery last May.

"The medical people feel he is as far along as they could expect him to be at this point. ... I think he's a very bright kid and will understand that he's got to put a hell of an effort into getting back where he was," Knight said.

A fourth graduation loss for Indiana was guard Chris Reynolds. Others back this season include 7-foot center Todd Lindeman, who was redshirted last year, and guards Pat Graham, Todd Leary and Pat Knight, the coach's son. The newcomers are freshmen Robbie Eggers, Robert Foster, Steve Hart, Richard Mandeville and Sherron Wilkerson.

IOWA STATE FOOTBALL

Injury forces Cyclones to replace Ulrich

Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

An emergency replacement in Iowa State's last game, freshman fullback Jeff Soucie might find himself in yet another role this week — starter.

Injuries to the other fullbacks could move Soucie to the top of the depth chart for the Cyclones' season finale with No. 18 Colorado in Ames on Saturday.

Chris Ulrich, the No. 1 fullback, is doubtful because of a severely pulled stomach muscle, coach Jim Walden said Monday. His backup, Rodney Guggenheim, can't play because of a torn ankle tendon, Walden said.

Another fullback, Artis Garris, had knee surgery a month ago and reserve Hussein Warmack was moved to tight end.

That leaves Soucie, who was Iowa State's leading rusher in a 49-17 loss to Nebraska last Saturday.

"It'll be our new weapon, Jeff Soucie, and whoever we can find to play the position," Walden said. "We're running out of volunteers, really."

Soucie is a walk-on from Hastings, Neb., who isn't even listed in the Iowa State media guide.

He was pressed into service against Nebraska when Guggenheim injured his right ankle early in the second half. It was the first time Soucie had played all year and he finished with 92 yards in 14 carries and also caught a pass for 16 yards.

Guggenheim, who moved into the two-deep after Garris got hurt, had been playing well. He was averaging 4.7 yards a carry, gaining 282 yards in 60 attempts, and flashed his speed on a 70-yard touchdown run against Oklahoma.

Walden said doctors will examine Guggenheim on Friday to check on how the tendon has healed.
