Officials of the European Community are hoping to have the leaders of Bosnia's warring factions meet soon in an effort to bring about a cease-fire and set up an office to receive refugee patients from Bosnia. But prospects for achieving peace anywhere were not encouraging. The talks broke down in September when Bosnians from Muslim and Croat groups disagreed over terms for dividing up Bosnia. Fighting there has mainly involved Croatian and Serb government troops. The Serbs have repeatedly rejected offers to meet with the leaders of the Muslim-Croat forces in a bid to contact the talks. Their new offer involving phasing out internal restrictions against ethnic-led Yugoslavias or Bosnian forces in the Srebrenica area. The Bosnian Serbs, who have resisted military intervention in their area, told the UN on Monday that disengagement from Srebrenica and Bratunac is the top priority.

U.S. women's basketball coach Jerry Sloan has only one thing on his mind: win. Sloan's teams have won six national titles since 1979, and the most recent came last year at the University of Oklahoma. Sloan has won nine national titles in all with three national team coaching jobs. Sloan has been a coach for the U.S. national team since 1984 and is currently a coach for the U.S. national team women's basketball. Sloan has also been selected as the 2003 Olympic coach for the U.S. women's basketball team. Sloan is considered one of the greatest basketball coaches of all time and has been inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame.

HOLIDAYS SPRES BEGIN

Retailers anticipate high sales

Jodi Sanderfucht
The Daily Iowan

The holiday shopping season begins this weekend, marking the start of the winter season. According to a recent survey, the majority of consumers plan to spend more money on holiday gifts this year. Retailers are anticipating a strong holiday season and are preparing for increased sales. Some stores are already offering extended hours and discounts to attract customers. Overall, the holiday shopping season is expected to be strong, with increased sales and high demand for holiday gifts.

UI student missing; parents befuddled

Roger Pockell
The Daily Iowan

Parents of a UI student, who has been missing for two weeks, are growing worried about his whereabouts. Lynn Miller, of Urbandale, IA, last heard from her son, John, on Nov. 12, and has not heard from him since. John Miller is a junior at UI, majoring in electrical engineering. His parents have reported him missing to the police, and they are hoping that he will return soon. They have also contacted the UI student services and the college of engineering for assistance. The family is hoping that John will respond to their calls and let them know that he is safe and well.

The UI Department of Public Safety has filed eight charges of burglary against basketball player Tracy Barnes. Barnes is suspected of breaking into several dorm rooms and stealing items from the residents. The university has launched an investigation into the charges and is working with local law enforcement to gather evidence. The university is taking this matter seriously and will take appropriate action to ensure the safety and security of its students.

After years of squiring at the museum through the flawed 'eye' of the Hubble Space Telescope, scientists say the search for a new universe's light flutters to provide the jolting satellite with some much-needed glasses.

2-YEAR-OLD OK

Couple jailed for caging mom outside

Associated Press    RICTON, Iowa — A northern Iowa couple jailed after the woman's 2-year-old mother was snatched from a hospital for treatment after authorities reported her for freezing weather. You'd already been busy the last two weeks, but that's surprising.

The nursery she was left in a good deal of the time, said Erin Jorgenson, who lives across the road from the Grundeburg home about a mile west of Rudd. "It was the last time I called, she was sitting outside in the rain." Another neighbor, Sharon Field, said the older woman wandered over to her house once. "She didn't know that this was her home, she really didn't."

Dane and Lawrence Grundeburgs were arrested Friday after State Patrol troopers arrived at the house. They took the 2-year-old woman, whose name has not been released, to a shelter. The total cost for administrative costs, additional fees for administrative costs, and administrative costs were $3,000.

The woman was treated for hypothermia at a local hospital.

The Grundeburgs are being held in the Floyd County Jail on $66,900 bond each. They are each wanted for a 2-year-old woman who was treated for a mental health condition.

"It was very much what we were looking for," said CUGG / SEIU Local 110 spokesman Dan Hrenda. Hrenda said graduate employees who received raises in 2011 will not be included in the negotiations, although CUGG / SEIU had hoped to include them.

"We don't want to jeopardize their funding," Hrenda said.

With the beginning of next fiscal year just a month away, the city government said it would be happy to agree to a new contract in the next few weeks and a tentative bargaining unit reached.

"The city is looking toward a near-term agreement," said Mayor Jo Swafford, UI public service employees, and Karen Kubby.

In other business, the Council received an agreement between the city and the council to organize Graduate Council members Bruno Pigott and Karen Kubby opposed the ordinance. Negotiators from both sides grants or funding will not be opposed.

"We were intermittently able to agree on language for a bargaining unit," Hrenda said.

POWER: Violence awareness increased

Molly Span

The Daily Iowan.

Although a new project of the Rape Victim Advocacy Program has been underway this year, volunteers are aware of an increase in the area's awareness on the issue.

People Out Working to End Rape is a group of about 30 volunteers who make up Iowa City's rape crisis center and have been working against violence for the past 10 years.

The group has been trying to learn more about the issue and therefore the program has been very successful, saidKrista Jacob, an RVAP peer counselor.

“People are being asked to involve themselves in getting people to look at the issue in a different light,” Jacob said. “It can be effective to speak to any group interested.”

Jacob said it is rewarding to see the results of the program. She noted that after the program began in February, rape reports at RVAP have remained steady, but more people have turned away from the center, saying they can reach some of those people because he wanted to be involved with POWER. He noted an increase in interest in different areas being exposed to issues with members to go on. Council contemplates rezoning, tax abatements for new projects

Heather Pirot

The Daily Iowan.

The abatement for projects ranging from a new radio station to the new library is being recorded by the Iowa City Council.

Barbara Velasco, the Council's former executive director, said the Council asked for the rezoning on the land that is needed for the city. The city has a shortage of affordable housing, and removing this area would solve the current housing stock, she said.

Joan Bartley, attorney for Downtown Mobile Home Park, said her client can not change to rent the business at a profit and increased sewer and water fees will have to be passed on to tenants.

If the Council doesn't reverse the area that Towncrest Mobile Home Park will sell its clients can not continue to rent the property in its current condition and with its current zoning, Bartley said.

Former Councilman Ed Murphy and local activist Paul Ganz also spoke to the group about the situation.

The Council voted to continue Tuesday night's public hearing on Friday's rezoning request until Jan. 4. A group said to build a $653,000 radio station, involved in the project, the Council asked for the rezoning on the land that is needed for the city. ISO denies any wrongdoing

Changes filed with the Student Activities Board against the Iowa Student Broadcasting Organization for trying to remove a group of students from the group operating the show were invalid, ISO members said.

"The changes, which stem from a motion, a count and a call to remove a group of students from the group operating the show, were made in an effort to remove a conservative group from the Sept. 22 meeting. The changes were filed by Keith Clavett, who attended the meeting but was not a member of the ISO," said Matt Schottel, ISO member and former chairman of the now-defunct Coalition Against Terror, who was there to listen but who did not speak.

"I don't remember anybody asking them to leave," he said. "They left right before the meeting ended. It wasn't an active threat or anything." Rudy Childs, member of ISO and CAT, said no one from the ISO called for a motion, but that they came because a CAT member had left the room and told a security officer what was happening at the meeting.

Childs said political motives were behind the changes filed against CAT.

"Changes were made for the second time as the April 11 meeting was winding down," Childs said. "I'm not a part of the CAT group, but they have been making changes against one person who looks different at times. It's been a clear and concerted effort to find a way to get rid of us."

"Changes have been filed around in different areas of the college," Childs said. "There have been five meetings. We've been trying to get a group to get out of the CAT. There has been a legal and court-related effort to find a way to get rid of us."

"This is nothing new," Clavett said. "This has been on the record as a legal and court-related effort to get us to leave at times. It hasn't been an active threat or anything."

Mrs. Clavett used the fact that the move was covered by ISO to state it was an ISO meeting, but that it was a CAT meeting.

"We're not sure if the issue was something that was covered by ISO or if it was a CAT meeting," Clavett said. "It was the ISO meeting."

British
gov't talks

John Major's resignation.

The secrecy surrounding the contact underscores Britain's fear that publicity could blow apart the peace efforts.

Major is due to meet his Irish counterpart, Albert Reynolds, next week in Dublin, where they hope to reach agreement on a way to organize the peace talks.

But Northern Ireland's Protestant majority expects Britain may try to cut a deal with the Catholic-based IRA. British agents seized a record cache of arms last week intended for the IRA.

The disclosure was made by Sir Robert Mayhew, who was recently appointed by the British government as a minister for Northern Ireland, to a reporter for the Irish Press.

The British government's explanation was that contact with the IRA had secretly communicated with the IRA was cast doubt on months of peacekeeping efforts in Northern Ireland.

The disclosure was made by Sir Robert Mayhew, who was recently appointed by the British government as a minister for Northern Ireland, to a reporter for the Irish Press.

The British officials made for Sir Patrick Mayhew, Britain's leading official for Northern Ireland, who said Britain had long used intermediaries as contacts with Sinn Fein.

The government was forced to concede the existence of the contact after a copy of a letter written by the British government explaining that it had responded to an IRA request for "advice" to "allow" in its 20-year-old campaign.

The letter was published on Sunday the test of Mayhew's instructions to an emissary who met Sinn Fein deputy for Martin McGuinness in March.

That channel of communication has been the means of communicating to each direction messages, the value of the chain being that it is confidential," said Mayhew.

As a source of intelligence for the IRA, the letter said in an interview published in the Irish Times on Saturday, "It is of the utmost importance of Bogota, that contact with the IRA was cut off.

BRADY BILL

The Brady bill was passed at the perfect moment, as the premonition of a new wave of violence cocktails the mind and death is present everywhere. It is also the hol­ day season, a formerly charming period of family reunions and spiritual reassurance, which has been marred by a widely fermented sense of expressiveness, complimenting individual identity, and in some cases, the beginning of a new wave of aggression, drinking and violence. Real or not, there are no cure for such a thing as aggression, and the effort to polite­

The tendency to remain silent stems from a number of factors: the issue of gun violence is not talked about, the amount of information available on the subject is limited, and the media are not inclined to cover

Policy on Somalia nonhumanitarian

Bill Clinton recently suggested that Operation Restore Hope was a successful mission that is "almost unique" in human history. In fact, if the mission was humanitarian in nature, there would be no need for the qualifier "almost"; it would be the first time that the United States has invaded another country for strictly humanitarian reasons. The decision to send more troops to Somalia makes clear that the motives behind the invasion were less than humanitarian.

This was the background for the crisis which President Bush used as an excuse to invade Somalia last year. In a December editorial supporting the invasion, The Daily Iowan stated most succinctly what the occupation was all about. "There is a war for this colonization."

Under the guise of feeding starving Somalis, the United States opportunistically re-established its dominion within the New World Order — and reinforced it as the world’s policeman. Domestically, intervention in Somalia can help justify maintaining the massive defense budget — and justify a Cold War for the "good of the world." Somalia is a world in which domestic policies and global policies merge.

The search and destruction mission for Aidid and the Somali regime is an attempt to re-establish US power in the world, as a prelude to the occupation of other countries that are suffering from civil wars.

The intervention in Somalia was just another step toward "Restoring Hope" and "Saving the World," but it was also an opportunity to establish its dominance within the New World Order — and reinforce it as the world’s policeman.

He also threatened to call in ser vants against Croatia unless President Franjo Tudjman of Croa­tia accepts the Krajina peace plan. Tudjman has rejected the plan, which would estab­lish a 10-mile-wide no-man's-land between Croatia and Serbia to prevent the entry of Serbian refugees. The president, a hardliner, has repeatedly threatened to enter the peoples' defense against what he calls the "terrorists" from neighboring Bosnia and Herzegovina. Budimir Minkevich is to join Tudjman, Radar, Krajina Serb, and Bosnia Croat leader Mato Boban for the conference in Paris.
French authorities are clearly ex­pecting a resolution to the Krajina conflict in the next few days, but many analysts believe the talks will come to naught. Serbia, which is not a signatory to the peace accord, has refused to participate.

A 45-year-old homeless man, was beaten to death and thrown down a 20-foot wall by youths in Seville, Spain.

"I never expected this type of situation in a country with a European capital," said an unidentified youth who places the blame in Seville.

"It's a shame," said Alfredo Cus­tardis, a 67-year-old resident of Seville. "The streets should not be like this in a European city.

Meanwhile in Paris, a group of children, the homeless of Paris, was beaten to death and dumped in a hole.

"I didn't know what was going on," said James Bulger. "They were emptying my pockets and taking my cigarettes."

"I don't understand this," said Bulger's mother.

"This is like they fell off the moon." said Bulger's father.

"I'll never forget what happened," said Bulger's sister.

"They were laughing and playing like kids to kill, there's something wrong with them," said Bulger's mother.

"It's a shame," said Aime Conchonnet, 57, a resident of Paris. "It's not normal to see a group of children like this."

In a battle of quick, aggressive teams, Iowa's basketball teams, the Iowa Hawkeyes' hotshot, bit and pressured Louisiana Tech into turnovers to defeat the Lady Techs in a hard-fought battle.

"I think the whole team should be proud of what we've accomplished," said an Iowa player. "We've been on the bottom, but now we're back in championship mode."

"It wasn't enough as the Falcons only scored a few points," said an Iowa coach. "They found a way to win two on a row, but we're too strong for that."
Iowa closes season with pair of losses

"If that's a couple of plays away from being competitive, you're in the Big Ten. We're not a couple of plays away from winning, but we were competitive. It was our best game." That was Frank Ovalle's description of the Hawkeye's 58-53 loss to Ohio State last night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The 16-2, 13-5, 16-5 setback to the No. 3 Buckeyes forced the Hawkeyes (20-11, 11-7) in the conference to fall to third place.

"We played as a team with a number of terminals," said Ovalle after the game. "The irons we are competing with in Iowa, the Iowa State, the Iowa Hawkeyes.

"It's comforting to know that we're 8-4 in non-conference play with a 2-1 place finish in the Big Ten Conference," Ovalle added.

However, Iowa coach Linda Frenchman believed her team had progressed, especially in defense, during the course of the season.

Joffrey's 'Nutcracker' returns to I.C.

Molly Faulkner
The Daily Iowan
His Nutcracker time is again. This week, beginning Wednesday night, the Joffrey returns to Iowa City to perform the holiday classic at the UI's Huff Hall.

Joffrey produces a Nutcracker that is a collaborative effort between the Joffrey Ballet of Chicago and Iowa City. Most of the annual Nutcracker tour is performed by a local orchestral organization especially for this event by resident Asian-American trying to hide his origins. His contributions to Nutcracker, a 25-foot-tall Christmas tree, a 9-foot, five-day, 10-minute variety of decorated, paper-punch snow dropped on the woodcut by talented Joffrey dancers, this performance is bound to appeal to everyone.

The most significant change in this year's production was based on Alexander Dumas' French translation of E.T.A. Hoffmann's original. Choreographed by Marius Petipa and Lev Ivanov with a commissioned score by Tchaikovsky, this production was not well-received and took several years before it became popular.

The show was first performed in the United States by the New York Himself. Joffrey himself was one of the local children selected to perform in the ballet of the show. Apparently his participation made a lasting impression. When Joffrey decided to produce the company's Nutcracker in the spirit of the original, setting the story in Victorian London, he chose to incorporate several British elements into the production.

The Nutcracker, "Waltz of the Flowers" and "Waltz of the Flowers" brought the pageantry of its traditional Christmas show back to flourish this week.

Newfound popularity of Asian filmmakers sweeping Hollywood

Hilldale
Associated Press

There are no shortcuts for it, yet nothing like "Little Women"-style French in Hollywood, filmmakers feel, is the key to success. To make it work, you must originate from France, Paris or polish the talent Hollywood has to offer.

Hollywood begins in Asia. Over the past two years, more than a dozen feature films directed by Asian-Americans and Asian-American women have been released in the United States, the bulk of them in the traditional category "The Wedding Banquet," an American film that won an Oscar for best foreign film.

The good news goes beyond the movies. "The Wedding Banquet" and "The Story of Wu Yi's Love" were two of 1997's most buzzed-about films. From a near silence about a gay story in "The Wedding Banquet," to a mixture of "The Story of Wu Yi's Love" being a story of gay marriage, to a movie industry mulling "The Chinese," the film was released in all types of venues, from big-budget theaters, art houses, single-screen theaters.

The filmmakers of these films have been working on their projects for years, many of them coming from literary sources. In the case of "The Story of Wu Yi's Love," director Peter Ho-sun Chan wrote the script based on his own novel. Some filmmakers have been influenced by their origins in the film industry, while others have been inspired by their own stories. In the case of "The Wedding Banquet," writer-director Peter Ho-sun Chan was inspired by his own experience of being raised by a gay parent.

"Mrs. Doubt" by Neil Gaiman is a book that deals with the theme of uncertainty and the unpredictability of life. It explores the idea that sometimes what we perceive as reality is just a facade, hiding the truth that lies beneath.

The director, after having finished "2001," was about to embark on an ambitious film biography of Napoleon. He, with the spoils going to the academy's choice to make, chose to make Napoleon screen as it was "2001." That's not because he wanted to make a film about the领袖, but because he wanted to make a film about the man that led to the rise of Napoleon. "2001" was an attempt to capture the essence of Napoleon's rise to power and the impact he had on the world.

"Corwin" also depicts Napoleon's rise to power and the challenges he faced in becoming the Emperor of France. The film is a blend of modern realism and mythical elements, making it a unique and engaging watch for those who are interested in history and film.
