Boxer pleads guilty in assault of UI student

Former heavyweight boxing champion Tommy Morrison pleaded guilty to simple assault and public intoxication last week after punching a UI student last December.

Johnson County court officials approved Morrison's change of plea from not guilty to guilty Jan. 25. He was fined $200.

Morrison, who starred in "Rocky V," punched UI sophomore Bill Strout in the back of the head around 2:20 a.m. at Country Kitchen, 1402 S. Gilbert St., on Dec. 7. Police records show he had a blood alcohol level of 0.24. The legal limit in Iowa is 0.10.

Strout has not yet made a decision of whether he will pursue legal action.

Henning sentence delayed

The sentencing of Lawrence Henning, 37, was delayed Friday after two jurors said in court documents that the entire jury knew of his previous operating while intoxicated convictions.

Henning was found guilty of vehicular homicide last month after the death of Christopher Harding, 13. Henning said he thought he had hit a deer.

Henning's attorney asked the court for an arrested judgment and made a motion for a new trial on the grounds that the jury received evidence out of court, namely Henning's three previous OWI convictions, and that a motion for a change of venue in the case were overruled erroneously.

Judge William Eads reset the sentence hearing for Feb. 22, but the biblity for a new trial has not been dismissed.

Mandela calls for end to bloodshed

Tina Susman Associated Press

KHUMA, South Africa - The African National Congress offered Sunday to let pro-apartheid whites vote for their own homeland — but said a black government would retain power to veto the results.

ANC President Nelson Mandela appealed to militant whites to accept the offer and avert blood-

But the right-wing Afrikaner Volksfront angrily rejected the proposal and vowed to establish its own homeland by force if necessary to avoid living under black rule.

That militant stance could be fatal, Mandela told an adoring crowd of several thousand squeezed into a stadium in the black township of Khuma on Sunday.

"We know how to fight," he said, referring to the ANC's 30-year guerrilla war, suspended in August 1990 after the white government introduced reforms to end

Under the ANC proposal, whites could vote April 27 on whether to establish a whites-only homeland. The ballot would be separate from national elections April 27-29 for a new multiracial government. The ANC is expected to win those elec-

Whatever the outcome of the homeland vote, the newly elected government would have final say on the issue, a condition unacceptable to white extremists who have threatened war.

A recent proposal by the UI's Board In Control Of Athletics, which if passed will ban all racially offensive mascots from participating in athletic events at the UI, has left many people wondering how Purdue's Boilermaker fits into this category.

UI Vice President for University Relations Ann Rhodes was involved in the drafting of the policy along with the BICOA. She said initial concerns were with addressing the use of American Indian mascots and not every potentially offensive one.

"We need to be a little more thoughtful now in how groups are portrayed," Rhodes said. "I do think the idea of the policy is right, but the question is, what constitutes a negative or stereotypic depiction? It's my opinion that some of those things aren't quite the same as Native American mascots," Rhodes said.

Battling it out — More than 500 firefighters competed in the 19th annual waterfight, held Saturday afternoon at Morrison Park in Coralville. During the all-day competition, two teams of four would go head-to-head aiming high pressure water at a barrel suspended from a wire. In this soggy tug-of-war, the winners were the ones that managed to push the barrel furthest in the direction of the other side. More han 100 students from Aleges and universities converged on Iowa State University this weekend for the first African-American Statewide Student Summit.

Summit issues included conflicts in the classroom and information on how to participate in campus organizations where minority participation is low.

came from the workshop "How to Approach and Utilize your Administrators and Faculty." The workshop gave students the chance to ask questions of UI Dean of Students Phillip Jones.

Jones told the students that maintaining a good relationship with administrators and faculty is not necessarily a requirement.

"As students, you don't have to maintain a relationship with them — they are your administration," he said. "If my schedule's free, I have an obligation to you."

A student asked Jones how to deal with administrators who do not want to talk to students. He replied that if the student has a legitimate reason to make an appointment, someone should be able to see them.

Jones used a hypothetical situation to describe what he would do if he was in a student's posi-

"What I'd do is write a letter stating I would like to arrange a meeting by a certain time," he said. "If I did not get a response by that certain time, I would then write a letter to the head of that particular department in regards to my situation. If they are both smart, one of them will see you."

Elisha Harris, a student at Grandview College in Des Moines, asked Jones how students at her school can show strength without appearing militant. Jones said persistency and strategy should be taken into con- more seriously."

"Those of you with concerns have to sit down and talk things through and realize what should be done, what has to be done and what you're willing to do," he

Jones said after thorough discussion of the issues, decisions have to be made and followed by

"Once you've got that figured Yet, the most student interest out, decide who's going to do what and how you're going to follow up," he said. "I can't say this will work in every situation on every campus, it will differ in some

Jones said black administrators are not any different than white administrators, because they are trained to deal with individual personalities.

"First of all, I personally expect more of black administrators concerning black issues," he said. "But that does not make a black administrator who is not concerned with these issues any less of a person. I would say that for a white administrator as well."

Theaster Gates, a junior from ISU, asked Jones about the low percentage of African-American retention and his suggestions for improvement.

While it's true most students leave for academic or financial reasons, the quality of life plays a major role in determining a student's success at an institution," he said. "Students have to say to themselves, 'I accept where I am, and I have a desire to change it if I am not satisfied.'

Summit co-organizer Annissa Page said the weekend activities were productive in uniting African-American students throughout the state.

"There was a lot of input," she said. "Hopefully by uniting, school administrators will take us TREADING ON THIN ICE

UI students advised not to walk on water

Chris Pothoven The Daily Iowan

Cold winter temperatures have produced a new short cut and signboard for some UI students: the partly frozen Iowa River.

Trails of footprints in the snow give evidence of the fact that people have risked life and limb to cross the icy river from the Burlington Street Bridge to Hancher Auditorium and beyond.

"Once we saw a group of guys walking on the ice toward the bridge," said UI senior Michaelle Boyd, whose Hillcrest Residence Hall room looks out over the river. When they got there, they started swinging on the bridge. We were really worried they were going to get hurt somehow."

But while some students may have considered making the trek, few have actually done so.

"I've heard people talking about walking across, but that's about it," UI sophomore Pat Galligan said. "I don't actually know of anyone who's gone through with it."

Galligan said most people share his reason for not crossing the ice. "I have an aversion to falling in

LOS ANGELES - More than two-thirds of California's hospital buildings don't comply with the latest safety standards and could fail in a major earthquake, according to a state report reviewed by the Associated Press.

The Hospital Seismic Safety Act, passed after 50 people died in the collapse of two hospitals in the 1971 Sylmar quake, holds hospitals to stricter standards than other buildings, but is enforced for new construction only.

Hospitals built before 1973, when the law took effect, weren't required to make structural upgrades, the report said. Several damaged in the Jan. 17 Northridge quake were among them.

St. John's Hospital and Health Center in Santa Monica is closed for at least six months while the north wing, built in 1952, is demolished and major cracks and structural damage to other sections of the hospital are repaired.

The main inpatient building at the Veterans Affairs hospital in Sepulveda, built in the 1950s, was severely damaged. Its walls are coming apart, and it may have to be razed. More than 300 patients were sent to other hospitals after structural damage and power and water outages forced evacuations.

The 1973 law requires new blocked, arguing such a rule would buildings to have reinforced steel beams connecting walls and floors, stronger doors, braced equipment, detailed evacuation plans and other special safety measures.

Some 23 percent of women who resisted a rape, robbery or assault by arguing, reasoning or fighting back believed that self-protective behavior did not help their situation, and 16 percent weren't sure, according to a Justice Department study released Sunday.

The report comes as the case of Lorena Bobbitt, the Virginia woman who cut off her husband's penis, has expanded public debate over women who fight back. GUEST OPINION • JEREMY BUCK

Proposed water tax unfairly targets poor

The Iowa City City Council voted last November to go ahead with plans to build a $46 million water treatment plant. Estimates of the cost are enormous. According to current funding proposals, the average residential water bill would increase 147 percent during the next year and a half. This translates into an average bill for a two month period of 56.12 percent, up from the current $22.70 average. This is an outrageous tax hike which is going to unfairly burden working-class people

It is certainly true that Iowa City needs to construct a new water treatment plant. Besides the foul taste, other reasons include meeting safety standards and the increasing demand. Especially important is the necessity of ensuring a safe drinking supply for residents. According to reports within this newspaper, the city is in danger of failing to meet new federal regulations for nitrates, atrazine, alachor, trubidity and total trihalomethanes. While Iowa City needs a new plant, construction should not be funded through regressive taxation. Working-class people bear more than enough of the tax burden. Raising water bills simply ensures that those who can least afford to pay are forced to do so.

Instead of adding to the list of regressive taxes already in effect, the Council should find some backbone and make local corporations and the rich pick up the check this time around. These groups can well afford to shell out for a new water plant; do not let the Council tell

According to an Oct. 5, 1993 Wall Street Journal article, "The income inequalities that accelerated in the early 1980s continued into 1992, with the top fifth of American households increasing their already disproportionate share of income."

As well, corporations last year saw record level profits while their overall share of the tax burden fell to 17 percent - as opposed to 39 percent of the burden in 1950. In 1993, Proctor & Gamble Co. which runs a plant locally - brought in $670 million in the third quarter alone.

During a time of year when babies and elderly people freeze to death in their homes because the heating bills cannot be paid, or die in fires because space heaters were being used to keep warm, it is worth recounting that Iowa City already has an affordable housing crisis. A water tax would just add fuel to the fire.

Census data indicates that 36 percent of all households in Iowa City experience some kind of housing problem. While programs do exist to assist people with payment of utilities and in finding affordable housling, they are severely underfunded and do not come close to meeting needs. For example, the city's Assisted Housing Program can only help 13 percent of the 6,500 very low-income renter households. They have a waiting list of over 500 households. How much longer will the waiting list be when water rates go up by 147 percent?

It is high time our councilors stood firm against the gouging of working people's pocketbooks. We need a council with some courage, willing to provide some leadership. The regressive water tax should be canned and the Council, with some courage, willing to provide some leadership. The regressive water tax should be canned and the Council should call a town meeting to discuss these issues and answer questions from the community. Regarding the importance of this issue for so many, anything less would be criminal.

Silliness

To the Editor:

I am pleasantly surprised that the BICOA has discovered a new subspecies of human, "homo sapiens engineericus," and is trying to protect this new species in part by proposing banishment of the Purdue University mascot from UI grounds. I am sure that this will prevent future attacks upon these people by crazed physicists and mathematicians. Perhaps we should look at other mascots as well. RICO might be applicable toward those thousands of salivating animal rights activists who will be sure to show up when the Wolverines come to Kinnick Stadium next fall. We need to be careful of the impressionable freshmen of this university concerning the defeat of democracy and homosexuality in the military when the Spartans come to town. I was personally shocked that the California Almond Growers Association didn't protest wildly when the Buckeyes last went to the Rose Bowl. And we all should petition Notre Dame to change their nickname from the generic "Fighting Irish" to the "Irish Republican Army," especially when they play football against Miami.

There's a fine line between political correctness and silliness, and I think we've found where that line is.

The discreet deviancy of the bourgeoisie

Charles Krauthammer is a relatively tolerable conservative commentator. In the Nov. 22, 1993 issue of The New Republic, he stoops to conquer with a splendid example of backlash editorialism that demands rebuttal.

The piece is titled "Defining Deviancy Up," with a subtitle "The new assault on bourgeois life." It is important to revisit his premier points, important to refute them. For while we constantly hear that liberal ideology carries too much weight in America, the reality of that claim is dubious. More certain is that the right-wing ideologue's response to ridicule liberal ideas in public discourse is a transparent ploy with nasty historical Krauthammer claims, "We lower the threshold for what we are prepared to call normal in order to keep the volume of deviancy — redefined deviancy - within manageable proportions." Current ideological conventions, he says, have swung so far that " ... it is not enough for the deviant to be normalized. The normal must be found to be deviant." For "criminals and crazies," deviancy has been defined down. Thus, fewer of them are labeled deviant and receive the social scorn coming to them. For "the ordinary bourgeois," however, deviancy has been defined up, meaning goodly folk formerly accorded most-normal-person status have been re-evaluated and found wanting.

He accuses the minions of a politically correct cabal of having torn away the cloak, crown and scepter formerly worn by "normal" bourgeois folks. These crown jewels are trounced in the mud of moral relativism. "Normal middleclass life then stands exposed as the true home of violence and abuse and a whole catalog of aberrant acting and thinking.

Krauthammer so rarely serves up the dreck found in the conservative press that his nosedive in this piece startles. Forgetting all he ever knew about a free market economy and subscribing with gusto to a conspiracy theory pulled from nowhere, he claims, "The moral deconstruction of middle-class normality is a vast project. Fortunately, thousands of volunteers are working the case." Gee ... if we could only undo comp. lit. programs, maybe we'd still

Not one to leave himself totally exposed in the breeze, he examines a number of genuinely troubling issues. Chief among them is the idea of power in man-to-woman relationships, most notably sexual ones. Date rape, sexual harassment and child abuse are regarded with skepticism in the piece. These issues require deft handling. Krauthammer opts instead to claim that most current statistics are the stuff of fantasy, fantasy Sigmund Freud had the wisdom to recognize as such in his early days. "Today's fashion, promoted by a vanguard of therapists and researchers, is that the fantasies are true."

He knows better (note the deliberate switch to first-person masculine pronoun). We were right to believe "for a hundred years under the influence of Freud that adult neurosis results from the inevitable psychological traumas of sexual maturation." Inevitable traumas, eh? I tread on thin ice here, but it seems to me that there is a great deal to be said from woman's perspective for the enhanced importance of nuance and skill in the heterosexual erotic vocabulary since women began to speak on their own behalf.

What has actually been defined upward is the notion of sexual competence. Women insist on it as a right. Clumsy, boorish, rude behavior is much less tolerable to most women in 1994 than it was to most women in 1944 - because most women have clearly defined minimum expectations. This is a new approach to sex, considered crass by some. I see it as the emergence of a strong female libido in the emotional marketplace, and it has much to do with women's anger over sexual harassment. Women are worth something, and the sexual possession of a woman's body is a prize the value of which many women have only recently come to appreciate. Vertigo seems a reasonable response from a man encountering this idea for the first time, but Krauthammer has much to learn about women if he thinks current gender tensions are simply the realization of a "radical feminist ideal."

He hasn't talked to the same straight women I have, or he would have heard some stunning spins on the tale of the Bobbitts. (Hint: The whacked-off penis fares poorly in casual conversation with married or involved heterosexual women. They are overwhelmingly displeased that it was rescued and reattached. I have heard otherwise "normal" heterosexual women wish it had been run over by a car, eaten by a dog or covered by snow in winter ally to be mowed over in the springtime. He ing those words firsthand suggested to at least one thunderstruck lesbian that Krauthammer has no inkling of the depth of the waters into which he hath so clumsily trod, or of how poorly his odd embrace of reactionary anti-feminist rhetoric will serve him there). To conclude, Krauthammer celebrates the demise of the liberal myth of "moral equivalence" between East and West (the belief that we were as bad as they were, despite United States claims to moral superiority). This idea, he says, died with the "liberation of the Communist empire ... The opening of the archives, the testimony of the former inmates - all these have made a mockery of this version of moral equivalence."

He has apparently been unable to keep up with the prolific archeology of Secretary of Energy Hazel O'Leary, who recently unearthed a few of America's own "archives" which prove him wrong. Clinging to denial like a river rat in a flood, he tries to dodge the issues by casting blame. He blames feminists and homosexuals for their lack of social equality. He classifies them with criminals and the mentally ill and calls them all "deviant."

Krauthammer exhibits a shocking form of denial in this attempt to redefine America as perfect. It is a strategy used all the time now by conservatives. It doesn't take deviance to admit that America has problems. It takes honesty and courage, traits one hopes to find in greater measure in the American people than in any of our reigning pundits.

Sensitivity fascism: the expressiveness-impaired

Are these the times that try people's souls? No, but they are the times that try my patience.

Sensitivity fascism has gotten so out of control that today Thomas Paine would be branded a sexist for the famous words of his revolutionary war pamphlet, "These are the times that try men's souls.'

You see, the word "men" is inherently sexist when used to describe mankind ... uh, sorry, that was another sexist word. What I meant to say was using "man" or "men" when you mean people is discriminatory.

At least, some people think so and they are not planning to stop at rooting sexism out of our language. Racism, homophobia, ableism and the whole pantheon of "isms" are their targets.

A month ago, the sensitivity fascists struck at The Los Angeles Times. A brand new stylebook was created in order to guarantee that no words used in the paper would be offensive to their subjects. Probably convicted rapists are even protected, lest they feel oppressed by an article's judgmental tone.

At the UI, instructors in basic journalism classes are handing out pages of instructions on how to avoid letting all these "isms" creep into our language.

The silliest examples of creeping sensitivity fascism are listed under ableism in one instructor's handout. The fifth rule on ableism reads, "Put the problem in as positive a light as possible. For example, use partially sighted instead of partially blind." Maybe Kevin Taylor should be referred to as "partially ethical" or "partially Essentially this rule puts journalists in the role of therapists who should assure that all their parents live in Brooklyn in a neighborhood very just see the cheery headlines "Council person ian immigrants. It is an ethnic neighborhood not robbed while raped" or "Three survive: California sinks beneath Pacific.'

Rule seven states, "Certain terms are tasteless and should be avoided." Fair enough; even heartless Mastio agrees with that. Unfortunately, the hapless instructor insists on listing those terms, "crippled, deformed, invalid, mentally deranged, loony, crazy, deviant." All these words are perfectly acceptable, when used properly. A cow born with two heads is deformed. A football player who looses both legs in a farming accident is crippled. A man who is braindead and on a respirator is an invalid. Jeffrey Dahmer is mentally deranged, loony and crazy. Cult members who dig up freshly buried corpses and have sex with them are sexual

The most outrageous of these silly rules is Watch out when using the term normal. It should be used only in statistical references. If you are referring to a person without a disabili-ty, the term nondisabled should be used." Yeah, right. As in: Mary the nondisabled paper person merrily delivered the preachy papers full of

Some of the rules in these handouts are just plain inaccurate. Instead of "blind" the handout suggests "partially sighted" or "visually impaired." There are people out there who cannot see at all. They are blind. Calling them any thing else is inaccurate and will not change the tomorrow you are left with a big mess. fact that they are blind.

just plain ignorant. "Ethnic" is listed as dis- Viewpoints Pages.

honest" instead of dishonest or unethical. criminatory and should be replaced by "person of color." Excuse me, but my immigrant grandreaders look on the bright side of things. I can near 100 percent first or second generation Italcomplete with Italian restaurants, bakeries and delicatessens. Ethnic is not derogatory, and no one who lives there considers himself a "person of color."

The author of this handout also confidently proclaims that "Hispanic" is discriminatory and that it should be replaced with "Latin" or "Latina." Anyone who knows diddly about the Spanish-speaking immigrants in the United States knows that they are a diverse bunch and to igeonhole them with one "proper" term is just plain ignorant. Many Spanish-speaking immigrants prefer to be called by their nation of origin, others prefer Chicano and still others prefer the allegedly discriminatory "Hispanic."

The English language is a great deal like the earth in its diversity. English takes words from dozens of languages and every region of the globe. For each concept like insar the Eng-lish language has dozens of choices, each slight ly different and each from a different source language. Crazy, deranged, wild, frenzied, lunatic, schizophrenic, paranoid and at least 20 other words are listed in the thesaurus under insane. This diversity allows writers to get exactly the right meaning and exactly the right connotation when they choose their words.

Much of the part of the handout on racism is David M. Mastio's column appears Mondays on the Irish activist allowed to attend conference

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The United States ited a limited visa Sunday Gerry Adams, presi-dent of Sinn Fein, the Northern Irish political party that supports the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The White House said in announcing the step, which permits Adams to attend a New York conference, that President Clinton "supports this difficult decision and believes it will help advance the cause of peace in Northern Ireland."

In London, the British govern-ment said Sunday night it hoped that the decision to grant the two-day visa will persuade Sinn Fein and the IRA allies to renounce violence in its campaign to seeking an end to British rule in Northern Ireland.

Clinton and Secretary of State Warren Christopher discussed the issue several times before the decision was made, State Department spokesman David Johnson

The White House said Attorney General Janet Reno, at the recommendation of Christopher, issued a "waiver to Gerry Adams' ineligibility" to allow Adams to attend a conference Tuesday on Northern Ireland.

Adams has been turned down in eight previous requests for visas, and the decision to allow him into the country reflects recent progress in negotiations to end decades of civil strife in Northern Ireland.

"Over the last decade the United States has refused Mr. Adams a visa because of his involvement in terrorist activity," the White sion. House statement said.

It said the change in that policy grows out of the Dec. 15 joint fund raising.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - Bosnian authorities are questioning three suspects in the slaying of a British aid worker whose murder is causing U.N. officials to reconsider the relief effort.

The Hawkeyes shot 34 percent from the field to lose at Indiana 82-58 Jan. 21. Despite a 30-point performance by Iowa senior forward Cathy Marx, Northern Illinois handed Iowa its second straight loss 59-56 couldn't have appreciated Stringer's 500th win like the 5,881 on hand in Iowa City Friday night. The Hawkeyes' celebration began when the clock ran out with Iowa ahead 78-56 and the cameras swarmed around the winningest coach in Iowa basketball history. Seniors Marx and Necole Tunsil got hold of Stringer and carried her around the court.

For more on Iowa women's basketball, see Page 4B.

Stringer said the 500th win hadn't had time to sink

"It's like a lot of things that are real special in your life," she said. "You can't really appreciate it until after it's over and you have a chance to stand back and reflect. With the season continuing, I can't really put it in perspective.'

Stringer is in her 11th season at Iowa after leading the Hawkeyes to its first Final Four appearance last season, eight NCAA tournaments and six Big Ten titles. She came to Iowa from Cheyney State in Penn-See STRINGER, Page 2B

Hawkeyes lose another close game

Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. - The effort is still there for the Iowa Hawkeyes. They're just not getting Iowa suffered another narrow loss Saturday night, this time to Michigan State. The Spartans won 87-84 with the help of a fluke basket to break Iowa's modest twogame winning streak.

The Hawkeyes also have lost close games to Ohio State and Michigan. And they stayed with Indiana before folding in the final

"A couple of breaks here and there," Iowa's Chris Kingsbury said. "Actually, a couple of breaks here and there and the whole thing is turned around. Maybe things will start turning in our favor.

Iowa fell to 2-5 in the Big Ten and 8-8 overall. The Hawkeyes' next two games are at home, but neither is what you'd call a breather. No. 17 Minnesota visits on Wednesday night, followed by No. 7 Purdue on Sunday. After that come road games with

No. 11 Indiana and No. 15 Michi-

A victory at Michigan State would have given Iowa a big lift going into those games. Instead, the Hawkeyes again had to settle for coming close.

"We fell a little short, but it wasn't on the effort," Iowa coach Tom Davis said. "Michigan State played well overall and wouldn't let us get a win.'

Michigan State won mainly because of its rebounding. The Spartans grabbed 21 offensive rebounds, which led to 37 secondchance points. The last two were the most costly for Iowa.

With Michigan State leading 85-84, Iowa forced the Spartans' Kris Weshinksey into a desperation 3point shot with one second left on the shot clock. The ball glanced off the rim and into the hands of Quinton Brooks, who scored with 8.5

Had the ball not hit the rim, Iowa would have gotten possession on a shot-clock violation.

"If we get it, it's a one-point game and a little different situation," Davis said. "But that was typical, the beating they gave us on Brooks' basket forced Iowa to try a 3-pointer to tie. Kingsbury missed from the left of the key and teammate Mon'ter Glasper ran the ball down. Glasper's shot from the right wing at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

"I thought I could make it," Kingsbury said. "I thought it was Freshman Jess Settles continued his steady play and led Iowa with 19 points, making 8 of 11 shots. James Winters scored 18, Jim Bartels 14 and Kenyon Murray 12.

The Bills tied it 2:22 later on Steve Christie's Super Bowl record 54-yard field goal, set up by a 23yard pass that Thomas caught in the flat and took to the Dallas 39 by slipping past Larry Brown. The previous record kick was 48 yards, shared by Jan Stenerud of Kansas City and Rich Karlis of Denver.

On Buffalo's next possession, Thomas fumbled after taking a Eddie Murray, who had field shovel pass from Kelly and Woodson recovered at midfield.

Smith ran twice for 11 yards then Aikman hit Harper for 24 to the 15.

But again the Buffalo defense stiffened, the key play coming when Marvcus Patton dumped Smith for a 1-yard loss on secondand-4 from the Bills' 9, and Dallas had to settle for Murray's 24-yard field goal that made it 6-3.

Then the Bills took advantage of a Dallas mistake - a running into the kicker penalty on Dallas' Dave Thomas that allowed the Bills to continue a drive that had stalled at the Bills' 41. It ended with Thomas slashing in from 4 yards out at the end of an 80-yard, 17-play drive.

Stringer's 500th win was accompanied by a surprise for Michigan. Three of Iowa's starters were sitting on the bench when the teams tipped off.

"I was really shocked when we got the starting lineup," Michigan coach Trish Roberts said. "I don't know what Vivian's rationale was behind it, but it gave our kids a chance to stay in the game with them at least in the first half.

Senior sprinter wins 200, 400; lowa takes second to Badgers

The Daily Iowan

Every once in a while an athlete comes along who has the speed and power of a sprinter, the endurance of a distance runner, the finishing strength of a miler and the mental toughness of a triathlete.

These are the type of athletes track coaches look for to run the 400-meter sprint, traditionally known as one of the sports' most mentally and physically grueling

"Athletes like Christine Salsberry and Becky Coleman went the extra distance and stretched themselves to help the team. This is the kind of effort we needed in this situation."

Jerry Hassard, Iowa women's track and field

It's the type of athlete Iowa women's track and field coach Jerry Hassard has found in senior Marlene Poole.

Poole led the way for the Hawkeyes in Saturday's Iowa Invisprint in 25.04 seconds and the 400

"Poole looked really good, she looked sharp in both of her races and I'm looking forward to seeing her improve throughout the season," Hassard said.

races she was entered in, Poole was feet hesitant to just sit back and enjoy

her victories

"I wasn't that impressed with my own times," Poole said. "I should have been more aggressive and I still have a lot of work to do.'

Big Ten rival Wisconsin won the meet with 190 points, outscoring both the Hawkeyes (175) and Augustana (168), but Iowa was without several top runners. In addition to Tina Floyd (back injury) and Tracy Dahl Morris (stress fracture), senior Tina Stec came down with an illness and had to withdraw from competition the morning of the meet.

"Once you start filling holes for people who aren't there, it shakes everything up," Hassard said. "There's no reason why we couldn't have won this meet if we had been at full strength."

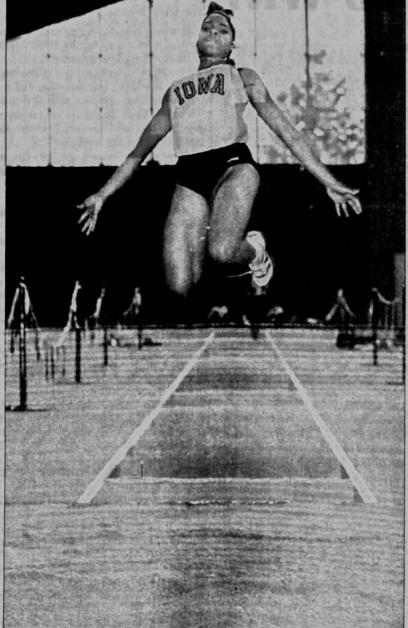

Because of Stec's absence, several other runners had to step up and run extra events.

"Athletes like Christine Salsberry and Becky Coleman went the extra distance and stretched themselves to help the team. This is the kind of team effort we needed in this situation," Hassard said.

Other notable performances for the Hawkeyes included Denise Taylor winning the shot put by more than eight feet with a toss of 46', Erin Boland winning the 3,000 with a time of 10:20.69, Salsberry finishing second in the mile at 5:08.45 and Yolanda Hobbs wintational, winning the 200-meter ning the 55-meter sprint (7.04) and finishing second in the long jump despite scratching on her final two

"I'm upset that I scratched on my last two jumps," Hobbs said. "I haven't been concentrating that much on long jump yet so I'm sure Although she won both of the it will improve; I'm going for 20 individual performance belonged to Wisconsin junior Amy Wickus. The defending national champion in the 800-meter run, Wickus ran the 600-meter Saturday and set a new Recreation Building record with a time of 1:29.79.

"She is just a phenomenal athlete, she makes running look so easy," Hassard said.

Reid finished second to Hobbs in the 55 (7.09) and second to Poole in the 200 (25.74). Schoonover finished second to Boland in the 3.000 (10:23.26).

Benning finished second in the 800 (2:17.16). Coleman finished third in the mile (5:13.29), just behind Salsberry.

What is ICEHOUSE?

• ICEHOUSE is the first authentic American ice beer. ICEHOUSE has a bold, crisp finish and its alcohol content is higher than that of many other premium brands - 5.5% by volume.

ICEHOUSE is brewed using a unique ice brewing technique. This produces ICEHOUSE's smooth, bold taste. Ice brewing occurs when the beer's temperature is lowered to below freezing. Ice crystals then form to eliminate watered-down taste.

Displaying a "lack of effort" and generously turning over the ball 27 times, the Iowa women's basketball team nearly gave away a victory to the Michigan State Spartans Sunday afternoon in Carver-Hawkeye

In the end, senior Necole Tunsil hit four straight free throws in the last minute of the game to preserve a 54-46 Hawkeye victory before a Girl Scout-dominated crowd of

"I don't know if we assumed that the game was over and figured that we had it sewn up, that we didn't need the effort in the second half, that's certainly what it did look like," Iowa assistant coach Angie Lee said. "I think it was just a lack of effort - we mentally slowed down in the second half."

Hawkeye head coach C. Vivian Stringer and the Iowa players were unavailable for comment.

After the No. 4 Hawkeyes (13-2 overall, 6-1 in the Big Ten) dominated the first half, the Spartans (7-8, 2-4) outscored Iowa 32-23 in the second half. Behind forward Kisha Kelley, who scored all of her game-high 18 points in the second half, Michigan State gradually narrowed Iowa's lead.

That was as close as the Spartans came to the upset, however, as Iowa's Cathy Marx scored on a turnaround jumper on the Hawkeyes' next possession, then stuffed Kelley's shot attempt with 45 seconds remaining.

"At the end, we were trying to set up Chris (Powers) or Tanya for a three but it kind of got disrupted," Kelley said of the game's closing moments.

CALGARY, Alberta - American speed skater Dan Jansen set a world record in the 500-meter event at the World Sprint Speedskating Championships on Sunday. dipping below the 36-second mark for the fourth time in his career.

Jansen, of Greenfield, Wis., was clocked at 35.76 seconds and reached a speed of 33.24 mph in breaking his old world record of 35.92 seconds, set Dec. 4 in Hamar, Norway.

It was the sixth time Jansen either set or tied the world 500meter mark.

Three-time Olympic gold medalist Bonnie Blair, of Champaign, Ill., won all four races she skated during the two-day competition and set a world points record to win her first world championship since event, but combined with Blair to win the individual championships. They created the first American sweep in this competition since Eric Heiden and Leah Poulos-Mueller won in 1979.

Coach Peter Mueller said Jansen could go even faster at next month's Winter Olympic Games at Lillehammer, Norway.

"I think there is more in there," Mueller said. "There was a little problem with the first corner, but the last 150 meters was excellent." Jansen is the only skater in the world to skate under 36 seconds, which will give him a huge advantage at the Games.

Jansen was in the second pairing during Sunday's sprint championships and raced against Japan's Junichi Inoue. Inoue placed second in the race in a time of 36.06.

Losing late in the season might be cause for any team to hit the panic button.

The Iowa men's swim team is suffering through those losing experiences, but - at least on the surface no one seems to be overly concerned.

The Hawkeyes dropped another dual meet decision Satur-to the hands of Minnesota, 143-100. The loss to the Golden Gophers is the second in a row and the fifth loss in their last six decisions as the Hawkeyes fall to 3-4 on the season and 2-2 in the Big Ten.

Junior Kryzstzof Cwalina was the only double winner for Iowa. Cwalina took the honors in the 50vard freestyle in 20.52 seconds and in the 100 freestyle in 45.31.

Assistant coach Rich Draper attributed the loss to the depth of Minnesota and lack of the same for the Hawkeyes.

coaching staff thought the progress of the freshmen would dictate how the season went. Draper insists he continually sees improvement from them despite the recent slump.

"Since we got back from Florida every meet we've gotten a little bit better," he said. "(The losing) doesn't appear to be getting them down and we keep making progress. Their spirits seem good."

Freshman Tim Schnulle had season-best times in the 50 freestyle (21.10) and in the 100 freestyle (46.65) to finish second and fifth in the two events, respectively. Freshman Jory Blauer swam a lifetimebest time in the 200 backstroke (1:49.44).

The Hawkeyes have two meets left before the Big Ten Championship Feb. 24-26

Senior co-captain Dan Stoppenhagen isn't troubled by the recent slump, but losing is something he hasn't become accustomed to.

MELBOURNE, Australia - Pete Sampras, the ultimate power tennis player of the 1990s, evoked images of the sport's past while winning his first Australian Open Sampras, who defeated Todd Martin 7-6 (7-4), 6-4, 6-4 in Sunday's all-American final, became the first man in nearly three decades to win Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and the Australian Open consecutively.

He reasserted his dominance of men's tennis, drawing comparisons with boyhood idols such as Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall, by overpowering Martin with 126 mph aces and unreturnable ground-His match with golfing buddy Sampras was so consistent that when he had two aces in a threepoint span in the final set, each of the serves went past Martin at exactly 119 mph.

Bills' hard work ends in loss

Paul Newberry Associated Press

ATLANTA - All the hard work the Buffalo Bills did in the 30 minutes of the first half took less than seven minutes to undo in the second half.

It began with a Thurman Thomas fumble - caused by Leon Lett, of all people - and ended with vintage Emmitt Smith.

"They chose a slow death," Dal-las receiver Michael Irvin said. "They came in and were not going to give up the big play. A lot of teams play us that way. That just leaves a lot of room for Emmitt to

Last year, it was the second quarter that doomed Buffalo in an eventual 52-17 Super Bowl loss in which the Bills committed nine turnovers. This year, they lasted until the third quarter.

"When you play us, you choose your poison. But you're eventually going to die," Irvin said.

When the poison took effect, the Bills' 13-6 halftime lead had turned into a 20-13 deficit and Buffalo's place in Super Bowl infamy had been secured as a fourtime loser.

"They chose a slow death. They came in and were not going to give up the big play. A lot of teams play us that way. That just leaves a lot of room for Emmitt to run.

The Bills did everything they were supposed to do in the first half, led by Jim Kelly's pinpoint passing that helped keep the ball away from the Cowboys' big-play offense.

"There was no panic at half-time," Irvin said. "I said, 'Whoa boys, they came to play.' But I went over to (linebacker) Ken Norton and said, 'We're only seven Buffalo got the kickoff in the second half and had a chance to add to its lead. But the aggressive Cowboys turned up the heat, you had a feeling that it was a jumping around and egging on the crowd. And on just the third play of the period, it all came apart for the Bills.

Thomas, who already had fumbled in the first half to set up a Dallas field goal, came barreling through the line only to meet Lett's big hand; the ball squirted loose and seemed to lay on the Georgia Dome carpet for several tantalizing seconds.

Finally, James Washington scooped it up in mid-stride heading toward the sideline, cut toward the middle, reversed his path again and scooted into the end zone without being touched.

"That was the same play we used the whole drive. I was able to shake a block, keep my balance and make it to the end zone,' Smith said.

While Wright lay on the ground writhing at his missed opportunity, Smith was scooting into the end zone for a 15-yard touchdown run. There was still 8:42 left in the third quarter, but it was over.

The Cowboys defense began teeing off on the Bills, who never got close to the end zone until the game had been decided.

Smith proves worth 111 Communications Center • 335-5784 Hal Bock Associated Press

ATLANTA - Emmitt Smith knew how much he was worth to the Dallas Cowboys' offense, and on Sunday, he proved it to everybody

Smith, who missed training camp and the first two games in a messy contract holdout, still won his third NFL straight rushing title, and then punctuated his MVP season with a brilliant show in the Super Bowl, including a virtual one-man touchdown drive in the third quarter. He also scored a wrapup fourth-quarter TD on a fourth-down carry in the 30-13 victory.

He became the first player to sweep regular season and Super Bowl MVP titles. Next time, he won't have to argue for his money.

Against Buffalo on Sunday, Smith was unstoppable. He slashed through the Bills, leaving tacklers behind on almost every carry. He ran like a man on a mission, making tacklers miss, leaving them flailing at air. He was like a magician: Now you see him, now you don't.

At halftime, with the Cowboys trailing 13-6 and Smith limited to just 41 yards on 10 carries, the running back went to offensive coordinator Norv Turner and held out his hands. "He said 'Get the ball in these hands," Turner said.

"I told him to give me the ball some kind of way," Smith said. And the Cowboys did, running a counter play six straight times, chewing up chunks of yardage as they moved moved in front in the third quarter on an eight-play, 64-yard drive. Smith carried seven times for 61 yards, climaxing the drive with a 15-yard TD run.

BUFFALO BILLS

Thomas takes blame tor momentum shift

John F. Bonfatti ssociated Press

ATLANTA - As he sat on the sidelines with his head in his hands, one thought ran through Thurman Thomas' mind: "Why did I pick this time to have one of my worst games?" But this time wasn't any different from the last two times for Thomas, whose once-promising Super Bowl career has been marked over the past three years by dropped opportunities. Thomas said the second of his two fumbles was the turning point in the Buffalo Bills' fourth straight Super Bowl defeat, 30-13 to the Dallas Cowboys Sunday. "To me, that was the biggest play of the game," he said. "I can sit up and take the blame because I did change the momen-

The second fumble was the most costly for the Bills, coming on Buffalo's first series of the sec-

took a handoff and ran into the middle of the Dallas line. Just after he got there, Dallas' Leon Lett came down on Thomas' arm, popping the ball loose.

Kent Hull was telling me in the shower that he had a good block on him (Lett), but he got one hand free and knocked the ball out," Thomas said. "I thought I had a good handle on it."

The ball stayed on the ground for several seconds before the Cowboys' James Washington picked it up at the Buffalo 46. He weaved his way through traffic, finally cutting into the end zone for the score that tied the game at

Thomas' first fumble came on the first play of Buffalo's second offensive series and led to a field

Thomas left the game after his second fumble, but both he and coach Marv Levy said he wasn't benched. Both said Thomas had cramps in his calves that With the Bills up 13-6, Thomas wouldn't allow him to play.

Ford & Bogie: What icons share in common

Ian Corwin The Daily Iowan

An iconological comparison between the careers of Humphrey Bogart and Harrison Ford is not that far-fetched; aside from the Handsome Factor and the frequent testosterone injections both actors have given the American box office during their respective eras, there are deeper, subtler comparisons just waiting to be made.

Both actors came from hardworking backgrounds; Bogie was a sailor before breaking into stage acting, and Ford was a carpenter. Each man, because of his history, brought to Hollywood a professional work ethic seldom seen in an industry of quick bucks and flashin-the-pan careers. Both Ford and Bogie got their big breaks playing villains or psychopaths; Bogie recreated his stage role as the vicious killer Duke Mantee in the screen version of "Petrified Forest" (1936), and Ford got his break from Francis Coppola, who cast him as a nefarious assistant to a corporate magnate in "The Conversation"

It's this similarity between the two which is the most intriguing. Both actors began by playing a heavy only to find them-

The two heroes made their marks on American cinema with their good looks and tough-guy banter, but once they established themselves as versatile actors, they each returned to playing unsympathetic roles at least once, giving what are perhaps the best and most underrated performances of Bogie hung up his idol status to play a greed-addled gold prospector in John Huston's critically acclaimed "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" (1948). Although audiences had seen Bogie as a gangster, they weren't quite prepared for the

'Philadelphia,' 'Mrs. Doubtfire' still top contenders at box office

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - "Mrs. Doubtfire" narrowly edged out 'Philadelphia" at the box office this weekend, according to industry estimates Sunday.

"Mrs. Doubtfire," with Robin
Williams, earned about $8.1 million according to estimates released before the Super Bowl, which traditionally keeps viewers away from movie theaters.

"Philadelphia," starring Tom Hanks and Denzel Washington, was close behind with $7.8 mil-

"Grumpy Old Men," pairing Walter Matthau and Jack Lemmon, earned $5.1 million, and the new thriller "Blink" had $4.6 million. "Intersection," with Richard Gere and Sharon Stone arned $4.3 million, and "Schaller's List" took in $3.5 million.

Rounding out the top 10 were 'Iron Will' with $2.9 million, "The Pelican Brief" with $2.8 million, "Shadowlands" with $2.4 million and "Tombstone" with $2.4 mil-
