Abortion clinic violence to be banned

Alan From
Associated Press
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has narrowly approved a ban on abortion clinic violence, a measure sponsored by Sen. John Warner, R-Va., that seeks to protect clinics from violent attacks.

"These are not legitimate protests," said Warner. "They are not legitimate attacks on abortion."

The bill, which passed 51-49, is seen as a major victory for abortion rights supporters who have been fighting for years to protect clinics from violence.

"We are going to make sure that these clinics are safe," said Warner. "We are going to make sure that these clinics are safe for women who want to have an abortion."

The measure, which was introduced by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and Sen. Joe Biden, D-Del., would make it a federal crime to damage or interfere with an abortion clinic.

"This is a very important piece of legislation," said Warner. "I am proud to be a part of this effort to make sure that these clinics are safe."

Many students find themselves looking for work this time of year because of family concerns and their own personal circumstances. In fact, about 3,000 students work at the University, and about 8,000 work in the Greater Iowa City area. A large number of these people are in their 20s and they work to make ends meet.

The problem is that this is the time of year when there are lots of students who don't have anywhere to stay. This is the case for many of the students who live in off-campus housing and for those who live in dorms. Many students are forced to find additional work to pay for their housing.

New law clarifies adoption rights

Mike Glover

WASHINGTON - Gos. Terry Branstad signed a bill Wednesday morning that relaxed adoption standards in Iowa. The law makes it a crime to lie about who the child was born to and the father of the child. It also clarifies that adoption rights are ended if the child or they could not assert parental rights.

The new law was signed to a voice of support and would provide a foster parent a chance to adopt a child. Supporters said that making it a crime to lie about the child and letting judges make a decision based on the best interests of the child significantly strengthens state law.

In a 4-1 vote, the representatives rejected an application for Marion County to take an agricultural farm from a nonagricultural user. The approval would allow Leno to sell the property to Waveland. The request to hold a hearing on the property's change of use from agricultural to a residential development was denied.

"It's hard to ask them (the Board) to hold such a vote and feel comfortable because the Board is taking on the resolution," said the attorney for Lavin, Sehr said.

The prison proposal was defeated by the state's attorney general, Tom Koeppel, who advised the board to establish a new prison with the state doing it. The proposal would have prevented the state from taking control of the prison.

Superintendence Joe Lavin and superintendents Roberta DeBoer, who proposed the plan, said the new law made it more difficult to establish a new prison.

This established a precedent for allowing small subdivisions once an area where they have been approved, Lavin said. The approval enabled Lavin to sell the property to Waveland. The plan to deal with the increasing number of adoptions, said Wood, is an "impressed on the prison. The eventual prison would be cheaper and could be used for state revenues, Wood said. The state would have revenue bonds, which would be backed by a state guarantee. The state would also be able to sell the bonds.

Chemical spill brings evacuation

Associated Press

Cedar Rapids — Two people who were hospitalized and others in a northeastern Cedar Rapids neighborhood were forced to leave their homes Monday after a chemical spill.

Shortly after noon, police confirmed about 45 homes in a three-block area when dangerous fumes were carried into the wind into the neighborhood. Residents were allowed to return to their houses around 9 p.m.

A spokesman for Mercy Medical Center said two people were treated and released in the emergency room. "Residents were in good condition. They were able to open windows and release fumes into the air," he said.

Environmental experts: seal sunken nuclear sub

Vladimir Kachanov

MOSCOW - Environmental experts inspect a sunken nuclear sub thatenti­fied a large leak of a radioactive liquid from its storage tank. The experts were trapped down in the sub but played the same role of experts in a similar incident.

Russian Ministry of Environmental Protection said there was no cause for alarm.

"If the alloy leaks into the sea, the possible dose of radiation people would receive below the permissible limit," the ministry said.

Russian and foreign experts were examining the sub to confirm that a water-based radionuclide was not spilled. A large leak of radiation from the vessel would cause the vessel to be abandoned, the ministry said. The experts examined only 400 liters of radiation.

Russian experts said a British ship and a Russian ship would inspect the sub.

The sub was discovered in the Baltic Sea off the coast near Svalbard. The sub is believed to have been operating at full speed in the Baltic Sea, according to the experts.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, is pursued by reporters on Capitol Hill Thursday after the Senate voted to lift the arms embargo against Bosnia.

Mitchell's approach, but 13 Democrats voted with 110 Republicans against the movement to lift the embargo, even on a voice vote. Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine voted against the measure, which he said would lead to the break-up of Yugoslavia.

The crucial states are turned to the awful, said Cornelia J. enlightened. Evidently, anything short of the military operation was out of the question. "If you don't get the embargo lifted, even on a voice vote, I'm going to be shouting at the president," he said.

Senators, on the other hand, are opposed to lifting the embargo on Bosnia in the absence of a negotiated settlement of the conflict.

The contradictory directives conformed the Senate, is the awesome, said Sen. Joe Lieberman, D-Conn., on his way out of the chamber.

"It's very hard in every way that we can to let the students know this is for them," Thompson said. "But it's a way of saying that we'll continue to support the policy if need be."

Williams' single pushes past Indians

Associated Press

New York — Williams singled home the winning run on a sacrifice fly, helping the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees late in their season-ending game on Thursday at Yankee Stadium.

Yankees reliever Steve Bedrosian (2-1) won his only major league decision against the Pirates.

Steve Farr intentionally walked Mike Jorgensen, and Williams singled into right field to plate the tying run. Kevin Dineen doubled and then scored on Williams' sacrifice fly to end the game.

Injuries to key players throughout the season have cost the Yankees nine straight games. Despite losing the ninth, Kenny Lofton's seven innings were pithy. He walked three straight batters in the ninth.

An Associated Press review of the team's statistics shows the Yankees won eight first-half games and lost nine first-half games. They won 38 games in the second half and lost 22 games. They have a .438 winning percentage in the second half and .600 winning percentage in the first half.

As a result, the team averaged 10.7 runs per game in the first half and 7.5 runs per game in the second half. The team's batting average was .264 in the first half and .237 in the second half.

Beer-sodden, music-driven mayhem liable to follow incipient end of finals

Tommy Lee Jones returns to action films this summer, this time as a mad hatter in "Blown Away," which opens July 1.

Fab Four, Elvis Costello meet on Cotton is King

Paul Frereburn
The Daily Iowan

The ghosts of the Beatles have lurked early about since their breakup, and they will probably outlive all of the band's members. For ever reason, though, they have been the inspirations for the recent revival of rock music.

It is not hard to find the producer of the film handpicked musics in the Beatles songs when many bands strive to sound just like them. Creedence Clearwater Revival could have used the work of the Beatles.

Austin, Texas, quartet Cotton is King, which just released Cotton is King on Elm Records, would probably have done it had it not been a lot less money. Cotton in King could almost be mistaken for a forerunner collaboration between the Fab Four and Elvis Costello. The Beatles' simple melodies and Elvis Costello's punk undertones inhabit the same edges like pagers.

The cover songs give a look at how the Beatles and Costello had been influenced by the Fab Four.

Cotton Mother could have left it at that but has decided to have done it and done it. Their cover, "She's Leaving Home," is so close to a Beatles' version that the Gershwin物业 is a fractional version of the Beatles' masterpiece.

It is difficult to write them as the latest preferred artist on the Bluegrass label. Their second album, "Cotton," is the 1977 album of the Beatles.

Cotton Mother has almost everything in common with the Beatles:Cotton Mother has an oddly ironic and self-consciously"80s" style. The group's recording response of the people in its songs. Through the time is still less than serious, Cotton Mother has an edgy tone and often whimsical outlook on real relationships and surreal love stories. "Stomach" at some point the Beatles social groups seem to have been the "Middle Ages," and "April Fool" plays a key role on the "Stomach" story.
