Mask debunked as Simpson evidence

Michael Fleeman
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The bloody ski mask purportedly found at O.J. Simpson's home after his ex-wife and a friend were slain doesn't exist, a prosecutor said at a hearing Wednesday at which Simpson appeared haggard but alert.

In contrast to his arraignment Monday, when he appeared droopy-eyed, the former football star was attentive and, at one point, was overheard asking deputies to let him read rather than return to a holding cell during a closed-door meeting between lawyers and the judge.

"I'll do anything to stay out of that cell," said Simpson, who has been jailed without bail on double murder charges since Friday in the slayings of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend, Ronald Goldman, at Brown Simpson's condominium.

"I'll sit here and read," he said, but deputies took him out of the courtroom to the holding cell.

The conversation was picked up by an unauthorized microphone of KCAL-TV. Simpson and defense attorney Robert Shapiro appeared stunned when Municipal Judge Patti Jo McKay told them their private discussions were broadcast.

The judge ordered the microphone removed from the defense table.

"I find it absolutely irresponsible," Shapiro said outside court.

In court, Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark refuted a widely publicized account of a bloody ski mask being found in Simpson's house. The existence of such evidence was first reported last week by KCOP-TV, citing unidentified law enforcement sources.

Calls to KCOP's news director for comment weren't immediately returned.

The matter came up after Shapiro asked the court to order the prosecution to turn over additional evidence to the defense.

"If there is a ski mask with bloodstains, we would like the right to examine that today," Shapiro said.

Clark responded that Shapiro had everything she had.

"So you are saying there is no ski mask?" the judge asked.

"There is no ski mask," the prosecutor said.

Detectives also have been unable to find the murder weapon, believed to be a 15-inch knife with a serrated blade. On Tuesday, Los Angeles detectives gave up searching an overgrown field next to a Chicago hotel where Simpson briefly stayed after the June 12 slayings.

In other matters, the court ruled that Shapiro's experts could examine coroner's evidence in the presence of coroner officials without being videotaped as requested by the district attorney's office.

Clark assured the judge she would provide the defense all reports and notes, including a tape recording of Simpson's June 13 interview with police.

The judge also granted Simpson's request for an orthopedic pillow in his jail cell, where he is under suicide watch.

O.J. Simpson talks with sheriff's deputies while attorneys for both sides held a conference with Judge Patti Jo McKay in the judge's chambers Wednesday in Los Angeles. A prosecutor disclosed that police investigators did not recover a bloody ski mask as part of the evidence compiled against Simpson.

Last day at UI to drop classes without 'W'

Today is the last day for UI undergraduate students to drop a class without a "W" appearing on their transcripts. It is also the last day to drop or add classes without being assessed a $5 fee.

Students should go to the Registration Center in room 30 of Calvin Hall with add or drop slips signed by both their academic adviser and the instructor of the course.

The Registration Center will be open from 8:15 a.m. to noon and 12:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Graduate student charged with burglary, theft

A UI graduate student faces two counts of third-degree burglary and one count of fourth-degree theft after trying to sell allegedly stolen books to Iowa Book & Supply.

Renee Szostek allegedly stole the books from Van Allen Hall, where she works in the physics research administration office. The books are worth an estimated $681 and are reportedly unrelated to her coursework.

UI Department of Public Safety Lt. Richard Gordon said Szostek allegedly stole the books on three separate occasions; twice she allegedly entered unauthorized rooms, making the charges burglary rather than theft.

Public Safety said the incidents occurred sometime between May 5 and June 13. It has been under investigation since.

She was released Wednesday without bond.

Case dropped against 2 Live Crew rapper

MIAMI (AP) — Police dropped an aggravated assault charge against rapper Luther Campbell, who had been accused of waving a gun at his girlfriend and threatening to kill her.

Campbell, leader of the sex-rap group 2 Live Crew, was arrested in May after an argument with Tina Barnett at his home in suburban Miami Lakes.

Barnett, who has two children with Campbell, declined to press charges, said Dade state attorney Katherine Fernandez Rundle.

LEGISLATOR FILED WHITEWATER SUIT

Rep. Leach corrects disclosure statement

Carolyn Skorneck
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A Republican congressman who has been harshly critical of President Clinton's Whitewater dealings has amended his financial disclosure statement to clarify how much money he earned from a trust.

At first, a high-ranking aide to the congressman, Rep. James Leach of Iowa, said Leach revised his form because he had omitted some trust earnings of $100,001 to $1 million.

But Leach later called to say his true income was reflected in the initial filing, because incomes are listed in broad ranges. The combined earnings from his own holdings and trust holdings in several family companies total $120,003 to $1,065,000.

The net effect of the amended form adds $100,001 to $1 million to his income.

"There was full reporting in the initial disclosure of all income and all assets," said Leach. "These forms are convoluted ways of reporting, but there is no underreporting of income."

Leach has made an issue of full disclosure in the Whitewater Development Corp. investments by President and Hillary Rodham Clinton and related matters. Last month, he filed a lawsuit seeking documents from federal regulatory agencies on the failure of Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan and Whitewater Development Corp.

At the time, Leach said in an interview, "Clearly, there's an embarrassing circumstance and those powers that be don't want it on the table. This is simply and utterly about full disclosure of an open government in an open society."

Leach's annual financial disclosure form, released June 10, listed as an asset the James A. Leach Trust, worth more than $1 million. But it listed no income from that trust.

An attachment to the form said the trust "includes stock only in closely held family corporations — Adel Wholesalers, Leach Family Farms, Stampins Inc. and Mehta Tech. Inc. — which are of beneficial interest to Rep. Leach and his children. Values are reflected above."

Above, among other assets, Leach included the following assets and incomes from three of the companies:

- Adel Wholesalers, worth more than $1 million, income of $100,001 to $1 million.

STUDENTS UNINFORMED

Agencies solicit UI for mass-mailing lists

Karin Wahl-Jorgensen
The Daily Iowan

For every student at the UI there is a file in the Registrar's Office that contains information such as name, address, gender, year in school, hometown, grade-point average and ethnicity.

In fact, the university has information stored on all people who have been enrolled since 1966.

Although most students probably don't know it, for a nominal fee the UI will use this information to help companies and organizations solicit students.

Citibank Visa, Ford, the U.S. Army and Kirkwood Community College have all reached students through mass mailings arranged by the Registrar's Office. The UI Administrative Data Processing Service identifies specific student groups, generates the labels and sends out letters. The service then charges approximately $250 for setup costs and additional fees for mailings and more complicated searches.

If students read carefully through several pages of the UI Rules and Regulations, they learn that information such as name, address, major and year is used for the student directory. But nowhere does it say the information is also used for mailings from commercial firms via the university.

Invasion of privacy?

After a few semesters, UI students are used to receiving unsolicited mail from sources such as pizza parlors, record clubs, insurance firms, phone services, credit cards, clothing and department stores, and even car makers.

But few know that the UI Registrar's Office typically contributes to the mailbox clutter a couple of times every year.

"I had no idea," said Chad See MAILINGS, Page 8A

MISSION MARGINALLY APPROVED

French military aid deployed to Rwanda

Victoria Graham
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — France's plan to send 2,500 troops on a mercy mission to Rwanda won narrow approval Wednesday from a divided Security Council, despite warnings from rebels that the operation will inflame the war.

After nearly three months during which the world has watched the slaughter in Rwanda in horror but has been unable to decide on a course of action, the French military deployment was a first concrete step. The French troops were to begin moving in today.

"The grave humanitarian crisis in that country demands a swift response from the international community, and we commend the French for acting to address this need," U.S. Ambassador Madeleine Albright told the council.

She noted, however, that "skepticism remains in some quarters."

The vote on the 15-nation council was 10-0 with abstentions by China, Brazil, Pakistan, New Zealand and Nigeria. Nine votes are required for approval.

After the vote, Rwandan rebel spokesman Claude Dusaidi condemned French intervention, calling it an "act of aggression." He previously said it would be considered "an act of war."

At 311 flavors, ice cream business is booming

Tricia DeWall
The Daily Iowan

We all scream for ice cream, but Paul Heyn invents it, makes it and sells it. And he hopes his endeavors in the ice cream business will allow him to retire by the time he is 30.

"When I first started, I had recipes for about 20 flavors. From then on, 90 percent of my ideas came out of my head," Heyn said. "I love what I do so I think about it all the time."

Heyn is the owner of Heyn's Ice Cream, 811 S. First Ave. He and his employees make 311 flavors of ice cream in the back room of the small store, which some days and nights also doubles as his home.

David Greedy/The Daily Iowan

Local ice cream entrepreneur Paul Heyn takes a break from his duties as the owner of Heyn's Ice Cream, 811 S. First Ave., to explain his success in the ice cream business. "We've won every taste

"We try not to stay overnight here unless we absolutely have to," Heyn said. "We do like to have a social life."

Making ice cream until 3 a.m. is nothing unusual, however. Neither is working 18- to 20-hour days.

"When the time is good, it's good and you go," Heyn said. "But my goal is to think of this as a ride. It's got to be fun or you won't want to go on it."

This philosophy on work and life in general is what has made Heyn's Ice Cream such a huge success.

"Nobody comes in for ice cream for punishment," he said. "Sometimes this place is treated like a bar. People want to come down and see who is here. All we do is hang out with the people and serve them ice cream in the meantime."

Heyn graduated from City High School in 1985 and attended the UI for a few years as a business and theater arts major. He was working 60 hours a week at the store, which was called Dane's Dairy No. 2 at that time. Heyn bought the business in 1989 and started incorporating his own ideas — like making all of his own ice cream.

His newest flavors include cantaloupe and watermelon, but s'more, chocolate-chip cookie dough and chocolate delight are some of his older, most popular concoctions.

"We've won every taste test we've been in. No one has ever told us we have crappy ice cream," he said.

But with 311 flavors and new ones being concocted all of the time, deciding which 32 to sell in the case at the store becomes somewhat of a problem.

"We have to rotate," Heyn said. "People get kind of pissy if you take away their flavor so we have about 25 that never change."

Besides selling it in the store, which Heyn said is only about 20 percent of his business, the ice cream is marketed in grocery stores and restaurants throughout the state.

"It's a duplication process. I could be at home sleeping right now and there will be 100 places out there selling my ice cream and that is good," he said.

Heyn will also soon be selling ice cream and liqueur drinks like grasshoppers, brandy Alexanders and pink squirrels to bars and restaurants.

"This is something that no one else can provide right now," Heyn said. "I'm not excited about the fact that it's alcohol because this is a family business. But it won't be sold here in the store."

Even after five years of making, selling and dreaming ice cream, Heyn hasn't tired of eating it. His favorites range from pralines and cream to coconut chip.

"Sometimes I want something thick and heavy, and sometimes I'm in the mood for something light and fruity," he said. "I don't eat a ton of it. I like it and it's good, but I like it in moderation."

Lansbury scores highest in TV Guide 'lovability index'

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Angela Lansbury? Gracious and thoughtful. Jay Leno? Born friendly. Tim Allen? Goofy, hard-working and "blessed with a nonelitist soul."

TV Guide surveyed Hollywood insiders for a "lovability index" of stars, based on positive personality traits and how easy they are to work with.

Lansbury, who stars in "Murder, She Angela Lansbury Wrote," was No. 1 with a perfect 100. She got 20 points for calling lots of friends and co-workers in areas hit hard by the Jan. 17 earthquake in Southern California.

Leno scored a 98. The "Tonight Show" host was praised for being good with children and enjoying people.

Allen got a 96 for being down-to-earth and making everyone on "Home Improvement" feel good. "We've done 73 shows and he's never become a jerk," a stage manager said.

FEMA WILL PROVIDE FUNDING

Many Coralville houses elevated to prevent future flood damage

Holly Reinhardt
The Daily Iowan

Almost a year after several Coralville homes and businesses were devastated during the floods of '93, efforts aimed at preventing similar tragedies in the future are continuing.

Six homes on Edgewater Drive in Coralville will receive funding for elevation, or reimbursement for improvements already made, from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Bonnie Rieder, state hazard mitigation coordinator of the Iowa emergency management division, said the city of Coralville will be reimbursed as soon as the funds are appropriated. She said Coralville needed the funding.

"All 99 counties in Iowa were declared disaster areas from the '93 flood. Coralville sustained substantial damage," she said.

Coralville building official Rich Russell said the names of residents who will receive reimbursement or funding have not been released.

Russell said city codes require that if a structure is 50 percent damaged by flood waters it must be elevated to meet current 100-year flood elevation requirements.

Four of the six structures that will receive funding have already been elevated, he said.

The structures that are being elevated were between 15 and 85 percent damaged. Russell said those structures that were less than 50 percent damaged are being elevated as a precautionary action.

Rieder said the elevations are being made in hopes of protecting the homes in the future.

"This will help people get out of the 100-year flood plain," she said.

Ten structures have already been elevated in Coralville, Russell said.

"Most of the structures were at the 100-year flood elevation," he said. "They are required to be 1 foot above."

Most of the homes were being elevated 2 to 4 feet, Russell said.

A structure elevation requires a specialized contractor. Beams are placed under the home and hydraulic equipment is used to lift the beams. Additional concrete blocks are positioned under the home. Then the structure is replaced on the foundations.

Other flood prevention projects are under way in Coralville as well. Russell said the construction under way on Highway 6 includes installing storm sewers. Some Coralville streets are being elevated as well.

SURVEY SHOWS SALARY DISPARITY

Iowa teachers revive pay debate

Mike Glover
Associated Press

DES MOINES — The union representing public-school teachers renewed its assault Wednesday on what it sees as a pay disparity with college professors and released a survey claiming public support for that view.

"I think the message is being heard," said Bob Gilchrist, a Marion mathematics teacher who is the newly elected head of the Iowa State Education Association.

The survey released by the union said that only 22 percent of those questioned favored the current funding system where public universities can get budget increases even if enrollment declines.

Elementary and secondary schools are funded on a per-pupil basis.

The survey was conducted by Political Media Research Inc., a Washington-based polling firm. It sampled 825 registered voters from May 27-30 on a variety of education issues and claims a 3.5 percent margin of error.

Among the findings, the survey found 58 percent of those questioned felt elementary and secondary teachers were paid too little, while 44 percent favored using a combination of techniques to narrow the gap between public-school teachers and university faculty.

Wording of some of the questions in the survey, however, leaves room for criticism of its results.

In asking attitudes about college teacher pay, the survey question notes that average pay in Iowa "is $5,000 above the national average and ranks them sixth highest in the nation."

"I really like the Macintosh[®] because of its simplicity."

Christina Swartz
U of I Sophomore in English

"The Mac is easy to learn and it's user friendly. For writing papers it's wonderful because you can begin by typing out your basic thoughts, move them around and then add some more. The simplicity of all the Mac's functions have taken half the frustration out of writing a paper. Once you learn the basic functions you are ready to type away!"

Macintosh computers are a good buy because they're easy to use and have many helpful options. I believe it's a very practical investment, especially for a college student."

POLL RELEASED

Haiti policy not agreed on by public

Howard Goldberg
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Most Americans oppose U.S. military intervention to restore democracy in Haiti, and six in 10 want fewer refugees from the Caribbean nation to enter this country, according to an Associated Press poll.

President Clinton has not ruled out the use of U.S. military force in Haiti, but the poll shows he also has not rallied public support for that option.

To restore President Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power, 28 percent favor U.S. military intervention, 54 percent oppose it and the rest are uncertain.

Only 13 percent say they want to send troops now; even among those who favor intervention, most do not want an immediate invasion.

Fewer than one in four say they fear intervention would lead to drawn-out military involvement as in Vietnam. Past polls have shown that most Americans simply don't see vital U.S. interests at stake in Haiti.

The national poll of 1,003 adults was taken June 15-19, the first five days of a U.S. policy that gives Haitian boat people intercepted at sea a chance to seek asylum in the United States by arguing that they are fleeing political persecution.

The processing of asylum applications on ships and in third countries was Clinton's compromise with those who criticized him for having most of the thousands of fleeing Haitians sent home on the grounds they are economic refugees and ineligible for asylum. As a candidate in 1992, Clinton blasted President Bush for that same policy.

It's too early to tell whether the 700-mile voyage to Miami will become any less of a gamble for Haitians seeking asylum, but it's clear from the poll that Americans are not warmly welcoming them.

Fully 62 percent say the United States should let fewer Haitian refugees into this country. Ten percent want to let more in, and 19 percent want the same number as currently allowed.

The poll by ICR Survey Research Group of Media, Pa., part of AUS Consultants, has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The poll found a mixed and perhaps confused public assessment of how Clinton is handling the situation in Haiti with 34 percent approving, 41 percent disapproving and an unusually large 25 percent not sure.

The United States has punished the impoverished Caribbean nation with economic sanctions since Haiti's military deposed Aristide in a 1991 coup. At U.S. urging, the United Nations imposed a total trade embargo May 21. Airline flights and money transfers will be sharply curbed starting Friday.

SITUATION NOT COMPLETELY DEFUSED

Carter's overseas visit fruitful; N. Korea to halt nuclear efforts

Barry Schweid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton said Wednesday that North Korea had agreed to freeze its nuclear program, a move he described as a "very important step forward" toward defusing a tense dispute with the communist regime.

In return, Clinton said the United States would suspend its campaign at the United Nations to punish Pyongyang with economic sanctions and would resume high-level talks with North Korea next month in Geneva, Switzerland.

The president appeared upbeat at the day's developments during a nationally televised news conference. "We have the basis to go forward and I'm very happy about it," Clinton said. "The world will be the winner if we can resolve this, but we've not done it yet."

Later, a senior administration official voiced caution about the North Koreans' erratic responses over time. "It would be a mistake ... to allow ourselves to become wildly optimistic or wildly pessimistic," said the official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "What matters here is what they say and what they do. What matters is what we can accomplish."

Former President Jimmy Carter, whose talks last week with President Kim Il Sung produced the freeze, said, "This was one of those perfect agreements where both sides won and got what they wanted. Nobody blinked." Carter spoke on CNN.

Senate GOP leader Bob Dole criticized the White House for its embrace of the Pyongyang declaration of a freeze "with no evidence that North Korean words mean any more today than they have for Some analysts are convinced North Korea has at least one atomic bomb and may be playing for time in order to build an arsenal of a half-dozen by the end of the year.

Clinton said the three major conditions of a freeze had been met.

As a result, the president said he would give North Korea the opportunity to "move with dignity into the international community."

Hinting that North Korea might eventually gain diplomatic recognition from the United States, he said the talks in Geneva would cover "the full range of security, political and economic issues that affects North Korea's relationship with the international community."

Two rounds of high-level talks were held last year with North Korea but failed to resolve the dispute over a nuclear program that the West fears could lead to the spread of dangerous weapons to a raft of dictatorial regimes.

"These developments mark not a solution to the problem, but they do mark a new opportunity to find a solution," Clinton said at the White House.

"The world will be the winner if we can resolve this, but we've not done it yet."

four decades."

In the past, North Korea has played a cat-and-mouse game with the International Atomic Energy Agency, admitting inspectors but refusing to let them conduct a comprehensive search. Specifically, fuel rods removed from an experimental reactor were kept from the inspectors and they also were denied access to waste sites.

The inspectors were trying to determine if plutonium was diverted to nuclear use before 1989.

DEPARTMENT POLICIES VIOLATED

Board calls for dismissal of officer in King beating

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A police officer who kicked Rodney King should be fired because he used unreasonable force, a disciplinary board said.

The three-member Board of Rights panel deliberated three hours Tuesday before ruling that officer Theodore Briseno had violated department policy.

The panel sent its recommendation to Chief Willie Williams, who will decide whether to fire or reinstate Briseno. The officer was suspended without pay shortly after the beating on March 3, 1991.

Briseno would not comment after the ruling, but he laughed when asked if it surprised him. He said he did not know whether he would sue the department.

Briseno has said he kicked King to keep him on the ground so he could be handcuffed and arrested.

Briseno was one of four white officers who were videotaped beating King, a black motorist. Their acquittals in state court ignited the 1992 Los Angeles riots.

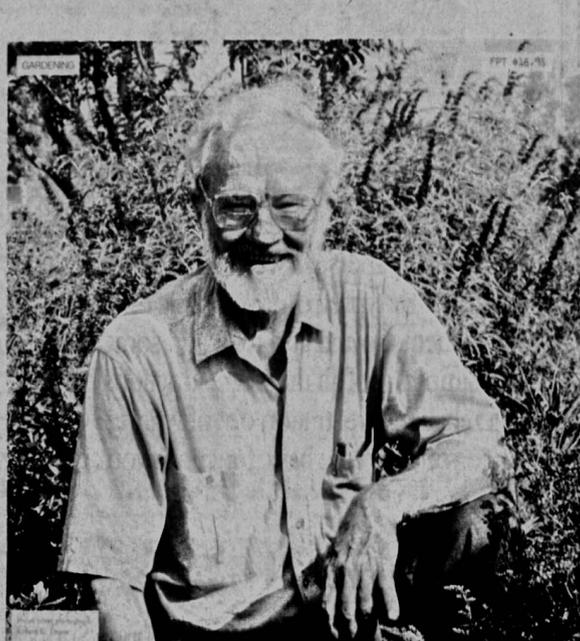

Two of the officers, Stacey Koon and Laurence Powell, were convicted of violating King's civil rights and are serving 30-month prison sentences. Briseno was acquitted of all charges. The fourth officer, Timothy Wind, was acquitted of all charges and fired.

ACTUAL NUMBERS ARE PROBABLY HIGHER

Young girls targeted in majority of acquaintance, relative rapes

Michael J. Sniffen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Girls under 18 are victims of more than half the rapes reported to police, and the younger the victim the more likely the attacker is a relative or acquaintance, the Justice Department reported Wednesday.

Girls under 12 are the victims in 16 percent of rapes reported to police, according to the grim estimates from the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics. One in five rape victims under age 12 is raped by her father.

Both the statistics bureau and private experts said the actual percentages of underage girls raped are undoubtedly higher than these numbers gathered from police reports because the younger the rape victim the less likely the crime is to be reported to police.

In separate data from 1991, the statistics bureau said family members or acquaintances accounted for 96 percent of rapes of girls under age 12 in a three-state survey and for 94 percent in a survey of state inmates convicted of rape. The percentage of rapes by strangers increases as the age of the victims increases, which experts said reflects the more sheltered lives of younger females.

"People tend to think rape happens to adults," said Professor Dean Kirkpatrick, director of the Crime Victims Research and Treatment Center at the Medical University of South Carolina. "A good thing about this study is that it will help educate people that rape happens to children and probably more often than to adults."

ment Center at the Medical University of South Carolina. "A good thing about this study is that it will help educate people that rape happens to children and probably more often than to adults."

Young people are so frequently rape victims because "the youngest are the least likely to fight back and often don't realize they are victimized," said Karen Hanna of the National Victims Center, a private Arlington, Va., group that co-sponsored a landmark "Rape in America" study in 1992.

"Some children who try to report a rape are not believed," added Patricia Toth, a former prosecutor who directs the private National Center for Prosecution of Child Abuse in Alexandria, Va.

The statistics bureau, using police reports from 11 states and the District of Columbia, said girls under 18 were the victims in 51 percent of rapes in 1992 even though girls of that age made up only 25 percent of the U.S. female population.

The 1992 "Rape in America" study found that 61.6 percent of all rapes victimized girls under age 18. But that study, adopted by the Senate Judiciary Committee in drafting rape prevention programs now in the Senate's version of the crime bill, included rapes acknowledged by victims in interviews but not reported to police.

"Child and adolescent cases are the most likely to go unreported," said Kirkpatrick, coauthor of the "Rape in America" study. Thus, "the government estimate is a severe underestimate because they are only dealing with reported cases." Kirkpatrick found that only 10 percent of rape victims under age 11 reported the crime.

Even the government agency warned that its calculation that girls under 12 accounted for 16 percent of rape victims — or a total of 17,000 of the 109,062 rapes reported to police in 1992 — "is a conservative estimate because it was derived from statistics on rapes reported to law enforcement officials and did not include unreported rapes."

Caned teen-ager arrives in U.S. with high spirits

John Seewer

KETTERING, Ohio — Michael Fay, who endured a flogging and 83 days in a Singapore prison for vandalism he says he did not commit, returned home Wednesday, giving a smile and a double thumbs-up.

He hugged relatives and friends outside his father's white ranch-style house in the Dayton suburb but said little to reporters.

"I feel great," said Fay, who appeared relaxed and not fatigued. "I'm not going to talk about anything else."

His father, George Fay, said his son was "on cloud nine" to be out of Singapore.

His father and stepmother held a news conference Wednesday about the teen-ager's ordeal.

Fay, released from prison Monday, told Israeli radio his interrogators bullied him into falsely confessing to spray-painting cars last fall with other teen-agers. He also was accused of possessing stolen road signs.

"I was smacked in the face. My hair was pulled. I was actually pulled out of my chair by the hair. I was hit on the head with one of the officer's knuckles," Fay said.

Fay pleaded guilty in March to vandalism and was sentenced to six lashes on the bare buttocks with a rattan cane. The penalty was reduced to four lashes after President Clinton appealed for clemency. He was lashed on May 5, fined $2,200 and sentenced to four months in prison, cut by one-third for good behavior.

Singapore authorities denied police abused Fay.

Fay had lived in Singapore with his mother and stepfather.

George Fay said his son was in good health now and that he had not seen the scars.

"He volunteered to show it. I wasn't prepared to see it," he said.

"I say from the deepest of my heart that I did not commit any of these things except that I had some signs in my house," the teen-ager told Israeli radio.

The case became a lightning rod for Asians who resent being chided about human rights. Some Americans decried flogging as inhumane; others said harsh penalties are the key to Singapore's low crime rate.

George Fay said Wednesday he still planned to pursue legal action against Singapore but would not say what that action would be.

KRUI engineer A.J. Bautista stands by a KRUI station plans to finish updating its equipment transmitter that is awaiting new parts. The radio before it returns to the airwaves.

Frustrating maintenance delay means more dead air for KRUI

Erica Gingerich
The Daily Iowan

Devoted college radio fans have heard a lot of dead air since student station KRUI (89.7 FM) stopped broadcasting May 13 for the interim. And more dead air is ahead while vital repairs to the station's transmitter are made.

"This is our little ego trip, and our little ego trip is not working," deadpans KRUI engineer A.J. Bautista. "We want to get the parts we need so we can get back on the air." Along with the rest of the KRUI staff and their faithful listeners, Bautista is avidly awaiting the return of alternative's little darling, slated for June 27.

Several meters indicating the station's power and transmitter levels need to be replaced at a cost of about $500. Without properly operating meters, KRUI cannot monitor and control the transmitter's output. Because the station must broadcast at 100 watts or less to remain within Federal Communications Commission-defined legal limits, new meters are needed to accurately indicate when KRUI exceeds its legal transmitter limits.

"The FCC is very lenient with educational stations, and they might not physically check our transmitter for years," says KRUI General Manager John Barker. "We could be on the air now, but we're here to be professional." He and Bautista agree the station will sound better and comply with FCC regulations 100 percent after the repairs are completed.

Frustrating delays have occurred due to mistakes and the laborious order process. Parts that Bautista initially ordered last month were never received because the order was mailed to the wrong company. Tangling with the UI's bureaucratic machine can often be "absolutely ridiculous," Bautista says, adamant that there should be a much easier way to get essential equipment in a reasonable amount of time.

"I spent the last two weeks of May filling out order forms and dealing with the order process,

"The FCC ... might not physically check our transmitter for years. We could be on the air now, but we're here to be professional."

KRUI General Manager

and that's not my job," he says. "I'm here to repair and maintain the equipment, and I wasn't able to do my job."

Bautista says that getting equipment for other stations he has worked for took a quick phone call or trip to the store as opposed to an extended paper chase through the UI's office of Campus Programs and Purchasing Department. Citing the fact that the station is the UI's only entirely student-run organization operating 24 hours a day, Bautista says he believes the radio station should get special consideration and be allowed to circumvent time-consuming ordering procedures that impair KRUI's ability to function well.

"People do notice when we're off the air," says Bautista. "Whether it's for the big-balls feeling of being a well-known personality, whether you are playing music to please your audience or whether you just play music to please yourself, KRUI does serve a purpose for everybody. And that's why we hope to get back on the air as soon as possible."

The frequent calls from curious listeners asking why they're hearing static but no music emphasize Bautista's point.

The real pipe dream for the upcoming year is the purchase of an entirely new transmitter, expected to clear an estimated $8,000 out of KRUI's 1994-95 budget allocation of $30,000 from the UI Student Association. Fortunately, an equipment-depreciation fund was instituted in the early days of the station to prepare for the eventual demise of parts and equipment.

KRUI sports director Ryan Schlader seems especially relieved that the equipment problems plaguing the station are being addressed. Schlader says he spent many hours last year attempting to fix faulty and failing equipment used to broadcast from sporting events. Limited funds have repeatedly delayed the repair of the heavily used remote equipment.

"It's nice to have money at this time so we can actually get some things repaired and replaced," he says. "When you have the financial opportunities, you'd better take advantage of them."

KISS cover compilation evokes mag wheels; Kristin Hersh, Toad the Wet Sprocket return

Various artists
Kiss My Ass

Bedecked like the gaudiest kabuki theater actors ever to platform stomp across this country, KISS is a '70s phenomenon that has crashed rudely into 1994.

Such diverse talents as Anthrax, Garth Brooks and Lenny Kravitz have gathered to cover KISS' greatest hits on Kiss My Ass, a new compilation CD celebrating the legend of one of rock 'n' roll's party standards.

KISS made testosterone-juiced music for boys parked behind Dairy Queens in jacked-up Camaros, harassing locals to the sound of tinny eight-tracks. This music is still for the boys; female artists are conspicuously absent.

KISS founding members Gene Simmons and Paul Stanley oversaw the project, resulting in a strong but eclectic collection of songs. Choice tracks include Dinosaur Jr.'s roiling treatment of "Goin' Blind," The Mighty Mighty Bosstones' version of "Detroit Rock City" and Kravitz's funky "Deuce."

The Lemonheads disappoint with their tapoca-bland take on "Plaster Caster," which probably means this song will hit Top 40 in short order. More amusing is Toad the Wet Sprocket's transformation of "Rock and Roll All Nite" into a "Kum Ba Yah"-like acoustic campfire song for randy Boy Scouts.

Mostly, though, Kiss My Ass will leave you breathing fire and getting mag wheels for your car.

Erica Gingerich

Kristin Hersh

Strings

While Kristin Hersh's Strings EP features several excellent tracks, the overall effect is something of a letdown with the new orchestral arrangements of tracks from Hips and Makers seeming to undermine, rather than strengthen, the songs.

Of the new "string" arrangements, "A Loon" works best, reaching grander proportions through the benefit of the added musicians. However, this track is the exception rather than the rule on the new EP. "Sundrops" seems particularly inappropriate for this sort of arrangement, losing its sun-bleached Southern qualities beneath waves of overstylized chords. "Velvet Days" also suffers with the new arrangements, losing much of the pacing and energy which propelled the song originally.

In retrospect, what made the tracks from Hips and Makers so special was their sparseness and human scale. These highly personal statements about how we perceive the outside world seem only shadows of their former selves when transformed into such theatrical productions.

Still, the EP as a whole is worth a recommendation, based primarily on the new material included. "The Key" and "Uncle June and Aunt Kiyoti" both are simple acoustic numbers, perfectly produced. Again, it is the bare humanity and raw emotion of her voice as well as her agile acoustic guitar work featured on the songs that makes them so worthwhile.

Strings is recommended but nowhere near as essential as Hips and Makers.

Stuart Reid

Toad the Wet Sprocket

Dulcinea

Having committed that most unspeakable of crimes two years ago — recording a Top 40 hit — Toad the Wet Sprocket seems to have little credibility among "alternative" listeners. Which isn't surprising, since the band no longer occupies any of the extremes that attract fans of punk, grunge, techno, et al. Since its brooding, brilliant Pale in 1989, easily one of the most depressing albums ever, Toad has become a model of moderation. A look beyond its stable but diverse sound, though, reveals more important things: a complex range of emotions and a troubled soul.

Dulcinea shares the lack of extremes of 1991's Fear, offering 12 unsure, unhappy songs that shed just enough light on life to show how dark it can be. Toad still explores stunted relationships with honesty rather than melodrama ("And the more skin that you shed / The more that the air in your throat will linger / When you call him your friend") and looks at the uncertainty of change, be it death ("Fly From Heaven," "Woodburning" or birth ("Begin").

Toad's footing is occasionally less sure than on previous albums, and while "Fly From Heaven" and "Fall Down" showcase fine pop sensibilities, "Stupid" and "Reincarnation Song" fall short, the latter mutilated by vocals not unlike Paul Westerberg after a bout of heavy drinking. Despite any low points, though, Dulcinea is a beautiful pop album that treats unhappiness with the respect it deserves.

MOVIE REVIEW

Culkin losing ground with bad 'Dad'

Tad Paulson
The Daily Iowan

The new comedy "Getting Even With Dad" is cause for joyous celebration throughout the world. This isn't because it's a great film (predictably, it's rotten), features brilliant performances (they're all totally limp) or has a groundbreaking screenplay (it was penned by the fellas responsible for "The Flintstones," also known as "Last Action Hero II").

No, "Getting Even With Dad" is worth a huge party for the simple fact that Macaulay Culkin, the Aryan rug-rat star of the mega-hit "Home Alone" films, has finally hit puberty. This means he's become a prime candidate for Fred Savage syndrome — a common career-wrecking disease that strikes child actors when they start showing signs of acne and cracking voices.

Soon, Culkin will join the ranks of such former stars as Savage ("The Wonder Years"), Corey Haim ("The Lost Boys") and Corey Feldman ("Dream A Little Dream") and either go to high school or start making straight-to-video soft-porn flicks.

"Getting Even With Dad" is a testament to the glorious fact that Culkin's career will take a dive-bomb soon. This "lighthearted family comedy" is an utter waste of money, time and the talents of every adult actor in the cast, most of all Ted Danson. The plot is contrived and clichéd, the dialogue sappy and droning, the laughs strained and rare. There's absolutely nothing redeemable about this movie.

As if it matters, here's what "Getting Even" calls a story line: Danson plays Ray Gleason, an ex-con plotting to swipe a bundle of rare coins with the help of his bumbling sidekicks, Bobby (Saul Rubinek of "True Romance") and Gailard Sartain ("Fried Green Tomatoes").

Along comes adorable, yet scheming little Timmy (Culkin) — Ray's estranged preteen son — who Daniel Stern's roles in the "Home Alone" flicks as they fumble about trying to find the hidden treasure. There's also an irritating side plot involving a pretty cop (Glenne Headly, another fine actress wasted in a lifeless role) staking out the trio, who falls heavy for Ray and is faced with the moral dilemma of whether to bust or not to bust. Ho-hum.

As for Danson, it's quickly become obvious that the star of TV's long-running "Cheers" needs a new series to pour his talents into. Danson is a gifted comedic actor no doubt, but his performances flounder without talented writing and direction to back him up. He seems frustrated in "Getting Even With Dad" as if trying futilely to inspire something other than a smart-ass attitude in his young co-star. Go back to the tube, Ted.

Culkin's career has been in a downward spiral ever since he made the turgid flop "The Good Son" — his lifeless performance in "Getting Even With Dad" has little if no chance of reviving the adoration of the legions who loved his "Home Alone" stints. Screenplay co-writers Tom Parker and Jim Jennewein try to give the kid some scenes that could be lifted right out of one of those films, but Culkin just seems bored and fidgety.

Of course, it remains to be seen if Culkin's upcoming role in the big-screen adaptation of the comic book "Richie Rich" will serve as a jump-start for a career that's quickly draining of all box-office appeal.

Let's hope the battery's dead for good — and that acne continues to spread.

MOVIE REVIEW

'Wolf' proves unexpectedly subtle for an overt Nicholson showcase

Ian Corwin
The Daily Iowan

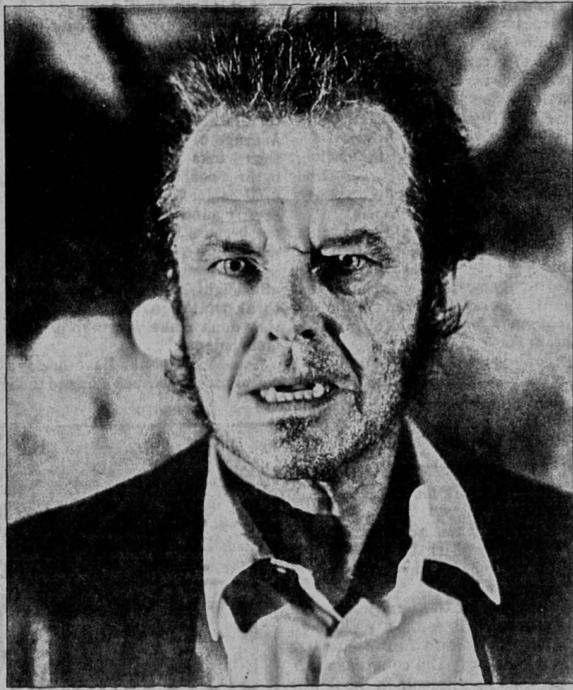

It's nice to be reminded from time to time that Jack Nicholson, who has arguably become the greatest "ham" actor since Rod Steiger, is still capable of turning in a decent performance. In that context, "Wolf," a film seemingly tailor-made to showcase the devilish actor's lunatic animal ravings, turns out to be a pleasantly subtle surprise.

Nicholson's over the top, ham-it-up and slam-it-down antics have been passing for serious acting skills for many a moon. Too many. Not since "Prizzi's Honor" (1985) has the madman of Beverly Hills turned in a performance with any hint of subtlety, taste or style.

Nowhere has this been made more obnoxiously apparent than in those roles which seem to have been crafted specifically for him; from the Joker in "Batman" to the Devil himself in "The Witches of Eastwick," Nicholson parades through scene after scene, stomping and hooting, flashing his cross-bow grin and doing what he does best ... throwing temper tantrums.

"Wolf" would seem to be the latest in a string of these Nicholson vehicles, designed to showcase his "primal stare" and "snarling good looks." That is, that's what would have been but for one merciful stroke of genius — director Mike Nichols ("The Graduate," "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?").

Nichols has realized two things about Nicholson that other direc-

Will Randall (Jack Nicholson) takes on a little hair of the dog that bit him in "Wolf," a surprisingly intelligent werewolf film directed by Mike "The Graduate" Nichols.

is spent either on character development or thin, well-wrought exposition.

Jim Harrison and Wesley Strick's screenplay for the film reportedly went through several drafts before it got to go in front of the cameras, but it doesn't show in the finished product. Again, credit is due to Nichols, who keeps a fairly tame, ultimately predictable story afloat with iron-fisted control of both script and performances.

Michelle Pfeiffer would've had more impact on the film had there been more in the script for her; as it stands, her character is roughly sketched, enough to raise eyebrows but not quite enough to snag an audience by the guts. Maybe the lack of time spent on Pfeiffer can be blamed on Nichols' want of a well-rounded characterization for Nicholson ... it's unfortunate but ultimately forgivable.

Two actors in the supporting ranks do deserve mention. James Spader, playing the sublimely weaselly Stu, Will's rival at the publishing company, is creepy enough to provoke chills in a fire walker. And Christopher Plummer turns in an odd slimeball performance as Mr. Alden, the owner of the company.

But in the end, this is Nicholson's show. Jack fans need only remember his more controlled performances in Stanley Kubrick's "The Shining" and Bob Rafelson's "Five Easy Pieces" to get a clear picture of the rare treat that is his performance in "Wolf." Nicholson doesn't need to be reminded that the public loves to watch him go crazy; but someone should tell him that, as he gets older, talent becomes a larger factor as the energy of insanity begins to fade. Remember Peter Lorre, Jack? Case closed.

Three words:	Jack's back ... finally tors have been slow to pick up on: One, Nicholson is at his best when directors exercise some sort of control over him, and two, his primal stare and snarling good looks are fading with age and can't be relied upon any longer for their impact alone.

So Nichols breathes life into Nicholson's character by literally "starting Nicholson from scratch."

Jack is cast as Will Randall, the editor-in-chief of a small publishing house in Manhattan. He's not ruthless, nor is he unhinged, poised on the edge of a swan dive into lunacy. Quite the contrary, he's meek, easily dominated and clueless about the double talk and double lives that corporate ladder climbers around him are leading.

Then Will hits a wolf while driving in the mountains, and the thing gives him a solid nip on the hand when he tries to pull it off the road. Gradually, Will grows cajones and strength of character, along with a classy full head of hair (Jack is getting a little thin on top).

In that respect, "Wolf" comes across as an interesting examination of passive and aggressive archetypes rather than a thriller or a balls-out action film. There's very little violence to contend with, another thing to thank director Nichols for. Most of the screen time

George Michael denied in Sony contract suit

Jessica Baldwin
Associated Press

LONDON — Pop star George Michael will appeal Tuesday's court ruling that refused to let him nullify his recording contract with Sony Music Entertainment.

He says the decision upholds "what is effectively professional slavery." His lawyers had argued that the contract was restrictive and greedy and that it could run another 12 to 15 years or until the rock singer supplies another six albums.

But High Court Judge Jonathan Parker ruled the singer's $12 million multi-album contract was "reasonable and fair" and was not a restraint of trade as claimed.

Michael, whose debut solo album Faith sold 14 million copies worldwide, told reporters he was "extremely disappointed." His lawyer, Mark Cran, confirmed that he would appeal.

Sony, meanwhile, said in a statement, "We have great respect for George Michael and his artistry and look forward to continuing our relationship with him."

Pop singer George Michael

Cran told the Associated Press that Michael was liable for both sides' legal bills, but that the situation would be reversed should he win on appeal.

He refused to comment on the amount of legal costs. However, the British news agency Press Association said Michael could face a bill of $4.5 million for the case.

Michael vowed before the case began that if he lost he would never record with Sony again.

But fans won't necessarily have to do without.

"He will continue to record charity records alone and produce and write for other people which will keep his work before us. But not new material featuring him as a vocalist for Sony," pop historian Paul Gambaccini said in a BBC interview.

Jonathan King, a producer and one-time pop singer, told ITN News that Parker's ruling was a "victory for the little people ... who work on a daily basis on making people into stars."

"George Michael signed a contract for millions ... to be spent on turning him into a star," he said. "Otherwise he would have been just a little dumpy, slightly hairy ... waiter at the moment."

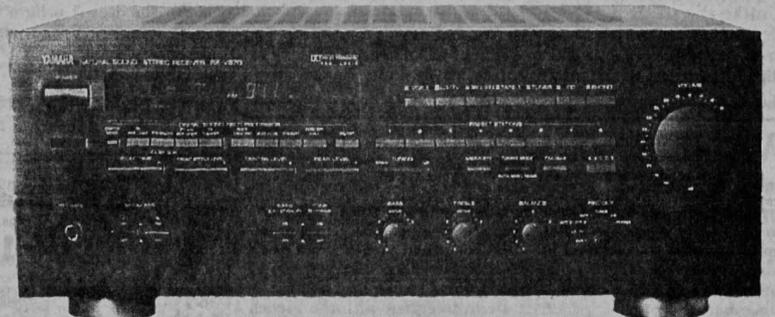

"They've made him into a superstar. They've spent millions doing so and now he's decided he doesn't like it."

Independent producer Peter Waterman agreed, "You can't have your cake and eat it."

"We have now proved that contracts that we have are worth the paper they are written on," Waterman told BBC radio.

Strathman, a UI graduate student. Strathman thought students should be informed of the practice.

Carla Morato, a UI senior in chemistry, also was concerned that students are not informed of the mailings.

"They could at least ask first, maybe at the start of the semester," she said. "I feel worried about the security of my own life."

Christine Horowitz, program manager for the Privacy Rights Clearinghouse, said the legal term for the university's practice is secondary usage; which means that information is collected for one purpose and used for another.

"If students don't know it's happening, it sounds like invasion of privacy. They should tell people it's going on, especially recent graduates," Horowitz said. "In the spirit of privacy protection, it's necessary to think about the students' privacy."

"A service for our students"

UI Registrar Jerald Dallam said the university controls the mailings to ensure the protection of privacy. He said the mailings are done only if there is a possibility students may benefit from the information.

"We don't sell the names and addresses of students. We endorse confidentiality, and we'll only send out things that won't do any harm to the student body," Dallam said.

Dallam said the Registrar's Office only accepts a few requests a year, and they haven't done any mailings this year. Requests are usually made at the beginning of the academic year or around graduation date. Dallam said that the university doesn't profit from the operations. The charges only cover the costs of data processing, label generation and administration costs.

The decisions about which requests to accept are made in the Registrar's Office.

"We do it if they look OK to us — if it looks like they're ethical and legitimate. We accept them if we think some students could be interested in receiving this discount, if we think it's providing a service for our students," Dallam said. "Students would be disadvantaged on certain offerings if we didn't do it, but we want to control it."

He said most mailings are ordered for large groups of students, such as all sophomores and juniors or all graduating seniors. For example, a mailing for a $500 discount offer was sent out from Ford three years ago to all graduating seniors.

A common problem

Evan Hendricks, the editor of the Washington-based newsletter Privacy Times, said this happens at many universities.

"It's pretty outrageous, though also common. There's no reason the university can't ask the students and be up-front about it. They should ask, 'Do you want to receive offers?'" Hendricks said.

Wayne Richie, executive director of the Iowa state Board of Regents, said he had never heard of such mailings.

Bob Brammer, the attorney at the Iowa attorney general's office responsible for the UI, said he was not familiar with the practice either.

"My personal opinion is that it doesn't sound so good," Brammer said.

Issues such as this are at the heart of a growing national debate.

Joel Reidenberg, a law professor at Fordham University in New York, has testified in congressional hearings on computer privacy and is an expert on privacy issues. He said that the university's practice is an example of an ethical problem in American society.

"Individuals should be involved in the decision making about what this information is being used for. I'm sure the university feels it's of benefit to the students — and they're right," Reidenberg said. "But they have a bit of a presumptuous attitude in deciding what's good for the students."

"It's problematic not to inform the students, but from a privacy perspective, it would be far more troubling if the university sold the names," Reidenberg said.

He suggested that students should be given the opportunity to opt out on the commercial usage of their name and address without being excluded from the student directory.

Students can request to have their names removed from the list by stopping by the Registrar's Office in Jessup Hall, room 1, and filling out a formal request to prevent disclosure of directory information. This request form is only valid for currently enrolled students and does not cover recent graduates.

The request covers one academic year. At present, about 150 students have completed the form to prevent disclosure of directory information.

that in 1993, banks earned nearly $2 billion in profits from automatic teller machine business.

Although few local banks charge a fee for each electronic transaction, many customers who have become dependent on ATMs are finding that fees can add up in many different ways.

Keri Hayden, branch manager at Perpetual Savings Bank, 301 S. Clinton St., said depending on the type of account, a variety of fees can be assessed for different transactions. She said the best way to avoid additional fees is to maintain the required minimum balance.

"We give you the account for free, and if you aren't going to meet the minimum requirements, we are going to charge you," she said.

Perpetual Savings Bank also charges a $15 fee for depositing into an ATM because there is a greater possibility for mistakes to be made.

At least one local bank penalizes customers for frequent ATM withdrawals.

Paul Bobay, a teller at MidAmerica Savings Bank, 150 E. Court St., said the bank charges customers 65 cents for each transaction after five within a single month.

He said the bank has to pay to use the Iowa transfer system, which is the backbone of the local ATM network, and that cost is passed along to customers in the form of user fees.

"I think this will be more common in the future," he said. "It's already more common in other places to charge for every transaction."

So common, in fact, that customers nationwide are paying an average of $37 a year in fees to their banks for ATM use, according to the consumer federation study.

UI senior Megan Miller said she doesn't mind paying a fee for ATM use because her local account does not require a minimum balance.

"I get charged for each ATM use after eight," she said. "But I don't think that's unreasonable since they don't make you keep a minimum balance."

Some local banks have decided not to pass these fees along to their customers at all.

Barb McNeil, a teller for Hawkeye State Bank, 229 S. Dubuque St., said the bank does not charge its customers for ATM use, even though it pays to use the transfer system.

"It is costly to us, but we figure it's part of the service we can provide to our customers for their convenience," she said.

According to the consumer federation study, banks are increasing profits by encouraging ATM use, but Deb Anderson, service quality officer for First National Bank, 204 E. Washington St., said this is not the whole picture.

"We are not just replacing tellers with noncost entities," she said. The bank must pay more than $80,000 initially to purchase the machine and daily maintenance costs add up quickly.

"The biggest advantage is that the ATM is available 24 hours a day," she said. "We just could not afford to keep a teller 24 hours a day."

$500,001 to $1 million, income of $5,001 to $15,000.

There was no listing for Stampings, which Leach aide Bill Tate said should have been spelled Stampings.

Responding to a query from the Associated Press, Tate checked with Leach and found the list reflected only the congressman's personal investments in the family companies. The James A. Leach Trust holdings were separate, he said.

But Tate said late Wednesday that while the assets reflected only Leach's private holdings, the incomes reflected the earnings from both the private holdings and the trust investment, in part because of the broad ranges allowed for the incomes.

Tate also said any reference to Stampings should have been deleted, because the trust's interest in it had been sold the year before.

As for income from the trust, the box that should have been checked was the one listing a range of $100,001 to $1 million, Tate said.

UI's mass mailings surpassed by ISU

Karin Wahl-Jorgensen
The Daily Iowan

If UI students are disturbed by the university registrar's practice of helping organizations reach students through mass mailings, they should perhaps be thankful they aren't attending Iowa State University.

Unlike the UI, ISU actually sells mailing lists or labels with names and addresses outright to companies and organizations for a minimum charge of $30.

The UI keeps the information and affixes it to selected mailings for a fee closer to $250. Neither university profits, according to officials. They view the practice as being beneficial to students.

According to Judy Minnick, office coordinator at the ISU Registrar's Office, one or two such lists are sold each semester.

"We do this as a convenience for commercial firms, and we don't make money on it. We don't consider it an infringement on the privacy rights of the students because this information is available to the public," Minnick said.

ISU students are not notified of the commercial usage of directory information.

Minnick said that the university has received a few complaints from students about junk mail, although she doesn't believe that the bulk of junk mail is generated from the mailing lists sold by the university.

Supporters cited the U.S. mission in Somalia as a precedent. But that mission later was accused of bias and became embroiled in skirmishes with fighters of one of Somalia's main warlords.

As many as 200,000 people have been killed in the war between ethnic Hutus and minority Tutsis that began after Rwanda's president, a Hutu, died in an unexplained plane crash April 6.

The predominantly Tutsi rebels charge that France has long favored the Hutu-dominated government and say the French government trained the Hutu presidential guard, which has been blamed for orchestrating most of the killings.

In an interview with the French newspaper Liberation, the leader of the Rwandan rebels said he feared French intervention would again save the government. He warned that the arrival of troops would intensify the war, threatening the very people the French want to protect.

Dwight's winning streak broken at national meet

(AP) — Iowa City track standout Tim Dwight took second in the long jump at the National Scholastic Meet, but his 58-race winning streak in the 200-meter dash was broken.

Dwight finished fifth in the 200 with a time of 21.61 seconds. Pat Johnson of Los Angeles, the California state champion, won the event in 20.76.

In the long jump, Dwight's leap of 23 feet, 8 1/4 inches, placed him second behind Dominick Miller of Fleming, Texas, who jumped 24-1.

The National Scholastic Meet finals were Sunday in Raleigh, N.C.

Dwight failed to qualify for the finals in the 100. He ran 10.84, missing the cutoff time of 10.79.

"I think (Tim) was disappointed because he wanted his times to be better," said Iowa City City High coach John Raffensperger. "But he certainly hasn't been working out like in track. He's mainly been lifting weights for football and has done a little running."

Dwight has signed to play football at Iowa next year.

Ditka in fair condition after being hospitalized

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Mike Ditka's cardiologist said Wednesday that the former Chicago Bears coach was doing fine despite having chest pains the previous day.

Ditka was in fair condition Wednesday at Lake Forest Hospital, where doctors were trying to determine if he had a heart attack.

"He's not having any discomfort now. His blood pressure is fine," Dr. Jay Alexander said at a news conference. "He's watching TV."

Alexander said it was too early to know whether Ditka's pain was heart related. Test results should be back Wednesday evening or today but will not be released without Ditka's permission, Alexander said.

Ditka had chest discomfort after doing upper body exercises at his home Tuesday. He checked himself into Lake Forest Hospital.

"He was going to take no risks, and he came to the hospital," Alexander said earlier Wednesday.

Ditka, who had a heart attack in 1988, was fired as Bears coach in January 1993. He since has become an NFL analyst for NBC Sports.

BASEBALL

Griffey breaks record

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Ken Griffey Jr. hit his 31st home run Wednesday night, breaking Babe Ruth's record for most homers before the end of June.

Griffey connected in the sixth inning of Seattle's game at California. The homer eclipsed the record that Ruth set in 1928 and duplicated in 1930.

Ruth needed 63 games to reach 30 homers in 1928 and 68 games in 1930. Griffey did it in the Mariners' 70th game of the season.

Griffey homered off Brian Anderson. The homer triggered a five-run burst that put Seattle ahead 6-3.

Griffey had gone four games without a home run, his third-longest drought of the season.

The home run was measured at 404 feet, the 11th time in a row that his homers have traveled at least 400 feet.

Americans pull off stunner

Barry Wilner

Associated Press

"U-S-A, U-S-A." In soccer? You bet.

Yes, indeed, the world's sport and the World Cup got a major taste of Americana on Wednesday when the unheralded United States stunned pretournament favorite Colombia 2-1.

At the end, before 93,194 fans — many of whom came expecting a South American party and left celebrating the skills and spirit of the host team — the U.S. players draped themselves in flags, hugged each other and rolled in ecstasy on the Rose Bowl turf.

"We wanted three points out of this game," goalkeeper Tony Meola said, "and people didn't think we could do it and we did it."

They did it convincingly, holding the Colombians scoreless until the final minute.

"This is an incredible feeling," U.S. coach Bora Milutinovic said, "because I realize how difficult the conditions were that we were up against. I don't believe in miracles because the 13 players who played today put forth a great effort."

Colombia has not, losing to Romania and the Americans. With one player benched because of a death threat and its coach having almost resigned over it, the Colombians were passive, almost disinterested.

"I think it's obviously very weird that our participation has been a disaster," coach Francisco Maturana said. "This is not what people expected from us. I don't think if we tried we could have played that bad."

The U.S. team took a 1-0 lead when Andres Escobar knocked John Harkes' crossing pass into his own net at 35 minutes. Ernie Stewart got the second goal in the 52nd minute off a feed by Tab Ramos.

"This was probably the most important goal I have scored in my life and it is great," Stewart said.

Adolfo Valencia got Colombia's goal in the 90th minute. But at 0-2, it has little chance of advancing to the second round.

The Americans, meanwhile, are in great shape for advancing for the first time. They have four points off the victory and a tie against Switzerland. Only a one-sided loss against Romania on Sunday would prevent the U.S. team from moving on.

The death threat and a possible boycott by the Cameroon team shadowed the on-field action, where Switzerland romped over Romania 4-1. Colombia midfielder Gabriel Gomez was dropped from the lineup after receiving a death threat by fax at team's hotel in Fullerton, Calif., threatening to blow up Gomez's house in Colombia.

"It is very hard to say who is making these threats," Gomez told a Colombian television network. "I have no idea."

Gomez, 34, sounded as if he didn't expect to play in the tournament again.

"This could be the end of my career," he said. "After 16 or 17 years, it's very painful what has happened to me. I sacrificed a lot and the World Cup is the most a player can aspire to. To be left off the team because of a death threat is something very sad."

Maturana considered resigning, then agreed to stay with the team. Both Maturana and Hernan Gomez, his assistant and Gabriel Gomez's brother, almost refused to work with the national team because of threats back home.

"I've decided not to leave," Maturana said, "because I can't leave the team during the World Cup."

Meanwhile, the Cameroon players said they might not play against Brazil on Friday if they don't get paid.

"It's always the same problem," outspoken goalkeeper Joseph-Antoine Bell said. "The players are not happy. They have not gotten their bonuses, their salaries. I know there is a possibility to arrange everything, to solve the problem. But the players are anxious because nothing has been done."

PRIME TIME

Bartels on scoring tear

Doug Alden
The Daily Iowan

Jim Bartels came into the Prime Time season hoping to improve his defense, but it's his offense that has come around.

In the first two games of the season, Bartels scored 78 points and had 24 rebounds for Gatens Realty — Mitchell Phipps Molini Builders and added 31 points and 14 rebounds in Wednesday night's 113-103 loss to Goodfellow Printing — Imprinted Sportswear.

"I'm not really looking to do that, but if it comes, I'll take it," Bartels said. "Basically I'm trying to work on my defense — team and man to man."

With 14 games in the regular season and a championship tournament at the end, Bartels is looking to get into shape and expects the conditioning to help him during the Big Ten season.

"I think the big key to playing defense is being in shape and having the confidence to go down the middle and help somebody out during a drive," he said.

After tying for last place in the Big Ten last season, Bartels said improving defensively is a priority for all the Hawkeyes this summer.

"We need to work on our defense. Both as individuals and as a team because we got hurt a lot last year in close games," Bartels said. "I haven't really seen everybody yet, but it takes a team effort so we'll see what happens come Oct. 15."

Bartels was matched against Mon'ter Glasper throughout Wednesday's game and kept the Hawkeye guard to 22 points. He said playing against teammates during the summer can pay off the following season.

"We do it every day during the season, but I think during the summer everyone tries to go more one-on-one and Mon'ter's a good one-on-one point guard," Bartels said. "It gives a little extra added incentive to go against your own teammate. It just makes everyone work a lot harder together and against each other to try to make each other better."

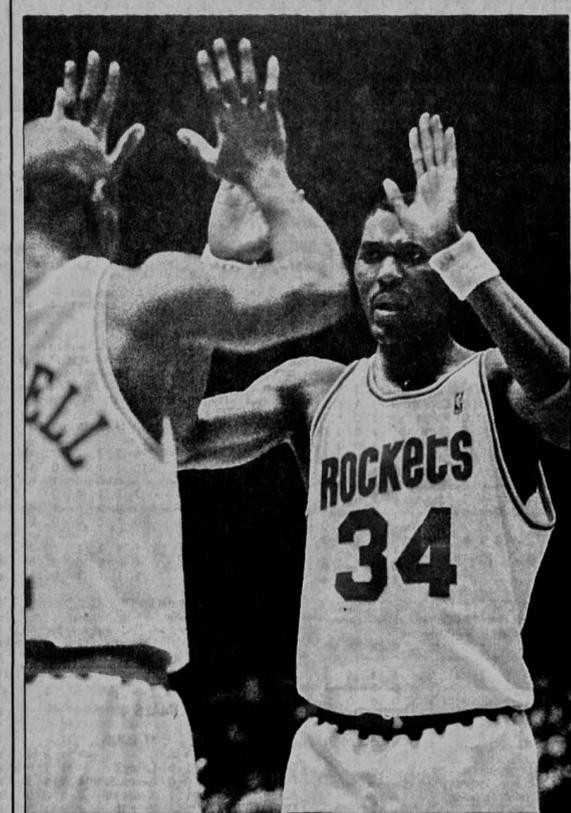

Gatens fell to 1-2 with Wednesday's loss while Goodfellow improved to 2-1. Bartels doesn't get down despite losing.

Houston wins dreamy Game 7

HOUSTON — Hakeem Olajuwon lived up to his MVP billing and the Houston Rockets won their first championship and gave the city its first major-league title, beating New York 90-84 Wednesday night in Game seven of the NBA Finals.

Olajuwon was brilliant — 25 points, 10 rebounds and seven assists — and capped his own triple crown with his first NBA championship and a unanimous series most valuable player selection to add to his regular-season MVP trophy.

As he had all series, Olajuwon won the battle of centers with Patrick Ewing 10 years after Ewing's Georgetown team beat Olajuwon's Houston squad for the NCAA crown. Ewing finished with 17 points and 11 rebounds.

And with the title still up for grabs down the stretch, the Rockets stopped a Knicks team that had the league's best defense, holding them to three field goals over the final 6:48.

They also ended the Knicks' quest to make their city the only one to win NBA and NHL titles in the same year. The Rangers Cameroon was the surprise of the 1990 tournament, when it became the first African nation to reach the quarterfinals. It tied Sweden 2-2 in its first game.

The Cameroon coach, Frenchman Henri Michel, acknowledged the financial problem and said it is having a detrimental effect on his players.

"The players have not received pay for games," he said.

"The players are losing confidence and they want a guarantee. It's difficult to concentrate on games."

But the games must be considered, of course.

The Swiss scored three times in the second half against Romania.

"Now, if we don't mess up, we can reach the second round on our own merit," said Stephane Chapuisat, whose goal in the 53rd minute put the Swiss ahead to stay.

The victory underscored the turnaround in Swiss soccer under English coach Roy Hodgson.

The sport was almost dormant until Hodgson revived the program and guided Switzerland into its first World Cup since 1966.

In other World Cup news: —FIFA said it was dismayed by the lack of fouls for tackling from behind and the manhandling of such stars as Diego Maradona of Argentina and Roberto Baggio of Italy thus far. General secretary Joseph Blatter said a review by FIFA's officiating council will be completed this week.

"If referees don't measure up to the standards of FIFA, they will not be used again," he said.

"We have seen good and we have seen less-good."

—In the remote Brazilian town of Pimenta, a crowd threw stones at the mayor's house and burned three vehicles belonging to a local electric company when power blacked out minutes before Brazil's game against Russia on Monday. One woman died when she crashed her car into a tree while trying to avoid the tumult. Six other people, including five police officers, were injured.

ended their 54-year Stanley Cup drought eight days earlier in another seven-game series.

"Houston, you've wanted it for so long. You've finally got it," Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said as he accepted the championship trophy.

The Knicks were within 78-75 when Olajuwon hit a short jumper. Ewing missed a baseline jumper and Vernon Maxwell, part of the much-maligned Houston backcourt, nailed a 3-pointer with 1:48 left for an eight-point lead.

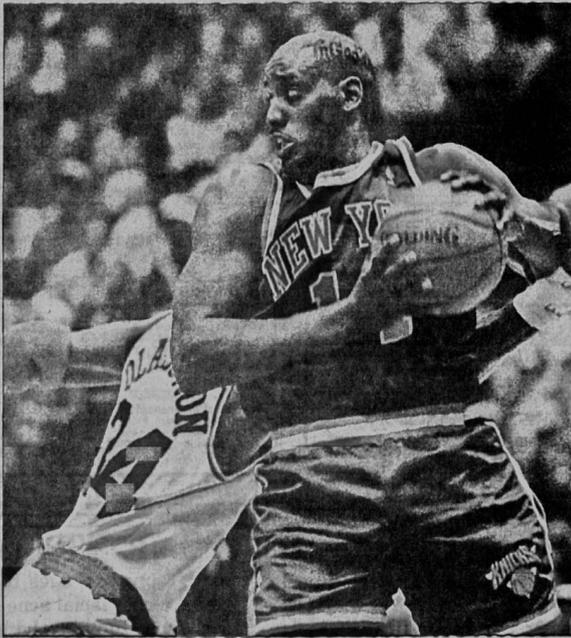

When the ball went through, Tomjanovich stood with his arms raised in front of the bench and Maxwell fell to the floor near mid-court and was mobbed by his teammates as the Knicks called a time-out.

"I just shot the shot with a lot of confidence and knocked down a big shot," said Maxwell who finished with 21 points.

"I still can't believe that we won the championship," Olajuwon said.

New York's John Starks, who was nearly the hero in Game 6 when his 3-point attempt could have given the Knicks the title, was 2-for-18 from the field, including 0-for-11 from 3-point range. He finished with eight points, half of what he had in dominating the fourth quarter of Game 6.

The largest margin of victory in the series was nine points.

"It's always nice to have a winning record but if it doesn't happen, it doesn't happen. It makes you work harder the next time," Bartels said.

In other Prime Time action Wednesday, 31 points and 20 rebounds from Jess Settles were not enough to lift First National Bank over Fitzpatrick's.

Fitzpatrick's won 112-100 and remained the only undefeated Prime Time team at 3-0. First National dropped to 2-1.

It was also a frustrating night for Nike's Russ Millard and James Winters. Millard scored 23 points and Winters had 26, but Nike fell to 0-3 with a loss to Hills Bank and Trust Co., 109-108 for Hills' first win of the season.

Kenyon Murray made his season debut for Lepic Kroeger Realtors — Active Endeavors and scored 17 points in a 105-94 win over the University of Iowa Community Credit Union. Lepic Kroeger improved to 2-1 while UICCU fell to 1-2.

WIMBLEDON

Germany's Michael Stich wipes an eye on No. 2 Court, Wednesday. In another stunning upset at Wimbledon, 120th-ranked Bryan Shelton routed the No. 2 seed and 1991 champion Stich.

Germany takes another beating

David Crary
Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — In another stunning upset at Wimbledon, 120th-ranked Bryan Shelton routed No. 2 seed and 1991 champion Michael Stich 6-3, 6-3, 6-4 Wednesday.

Stich joined fellow German Steffi Graf, the women's top seed and defending champion, as a first-round loser.

Graf's loss Tuesday to Lori McNeil was the first time a defending women's champion lost in the first round, and Stich became only the second men's No. 2 seed to lose so early.

Shelton and McNeil both are Americans.

McNeil, suddenly one of the favorites to win the women's title, had to play again Wednesday, and struggled against surprisingly tough Yone Kamio of Japan before advancing to the third round, 6-3, 6-7 (7-5), 6-3. Kamio, ranked only 113th, saved two match points to force the second-set tiebreaker and two more before yielding the last game.

The men's top seed, defending champion Pete Sampras, helped preserve some sense of order with an imposing 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 second-round victory over fellow American Richey Reneberg.

"I never really gave him a chance to play his game," Sampras said, who slammed 26 aces and won in 87 minutes.

Last year's losing finalist, No. 5 seed Jim

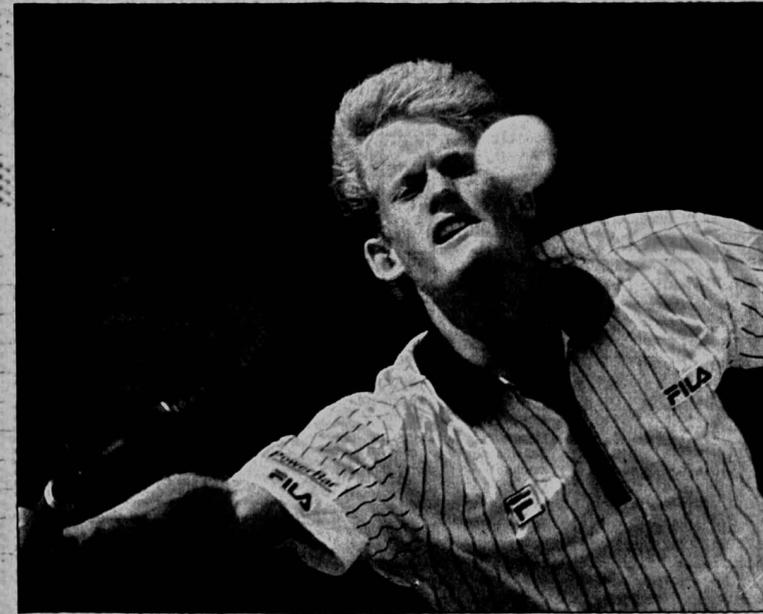

Courier, beat Byron Black of Zimbabwe in a well-played Centre Court match, 6-1, 6-7 (7-5), 6-3, 6-4. Todd Martin, the sixth seed, overpowered Germany's Patrik Kuhen, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, and No. 10 Michael Chang, in one of his patented five-set struggles, outlasted Australian qualifier Michael Tebbutt, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 (8-6), 6-7 (7-3), 6-4.

Shelton, who had to win three qualifying matches to make the field, has never gotten past the third round of any Grand Slam and never before beat a top five player. But he totally outplayed Stich, who let his frustrations show with scowls and racket-tossing, then drew boos when he exited Court Two.

"It's one of the top matches of my career so far... Nothing seemed to bother me from the beginning to the end," Shelton said. "Everyone who has seen Michael play knows he has a temper and gets down on himself, and I used that to my advantage the whole match."

Stich, though ranked No. 2 in the world after Sampras, has struggled badly in recent Grand Slams. He lost in the first round of the 1993 U.S. Open and the Australian Open this year, and was ousted in the second round of the recent French Open.

"I didn't play great, I didn't play bad," Stich said. "He was just too good today. He could have closed his eyes and hit it wherever he wanted."

South Africa's Wayne Ferreira, reaches to make a forehand return to Switzerland's Marc Rosset, during their men's singles match at Wimbledon, Wednesday. Ferreira defeated Rosset 6-7 (7-9), 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Hawkeyes assist Vet golfers

Associated Press

NAUVOO, Ill. — Jack Strnad lined up his putt, turned slightly and listened to a little last minute advice from his coach.

He pulled back, swung and sent the ball rolling across the green.

It was a good shot, but Strnad, blinded in Vietnam, had to wait Wednesday for his fellow players to tell him he sank the putt.

Strnad, 49, was one of 36 veterans who converged on the Great River Road Golf Course here Wednesday for what organizers believe is the first-ever blinded veterans golf tournament.

Strnad credited Chad McCarty for his success on the fairway.

McCarty and his brother Sean, both members of the Iowa golf team, volunteered to help out at the tournament.

"He cut 10 strokes off my game," Strnad boasted of his coach.

Vets from Iowa and Illinois will spend three days golfing and bowling, as well as socializing at events scheduled by the Iowa City Veterans Affairs Medical Center.

The idea came about last year after Strnad, a Nauvoo resident, learned how to ski at a West Coast winter sports clinic for blinded veterans.

"I said 'Hey, there's nothing for people to do out here,'" he said. "What do people do in the Midwest? They golf."

He suggested it to VA officials in Iowa City, and the planning began for a tournament for legally blind veterans.

Meeting other people is just as important a part of the event as learning a new sport, according to Annie Tuttle of the Iowa City VA Medical Center.

"They were all sighted at one time or another," she said. "One thing that suffers (when they are blinded) is socialization."

Tuttle said area celebrities, including various Iowa sports teams, helped raise the $27,000 necessary for the soon-to-be annual three-day event.

Vets golf and bowl during the day. Evening activities include line dancing, a casino night and an awards banquet.

But the main focus is golf.

Volunteers help the golfers navigate the course.

The veterans play regulation golf, relying on instructions from their sighted companions to aim their shots.

"My putting's not the greatest," Strnad sighed as he left the eighth hole, although he came in 1-under-par on the previous hole.

When Strnad had trouble figuring out how far back to swing on a short putt, McCarty placed his hand on the ground about eight inches behind Strnad's ball.

Strnad pulled the club back until he felt McCarty's hand, then swung from there.

"We help them figure out where to position the ball," Chad McCarty said. "When they feel confident, we tell them to go ahead."

Strnad and golfing partner Dwight Rodgers played through the front nine before it grew too hot Wednesday.

Eldred tosses 3-hitter

BALTIMORE — Alex Diaz hit his first major-league homer off Ben McDonald in an eight-run second inning that carried the Milwaukee Brewers past Baltimore 9-2.

Cal Eldred (8-7) pitched a three-hitter, walking four and striking out four in his fourth complete game of the season.

The Brewers got nine hits and two walks in the second off McDonald (10-5) and Mark Williamson. Diaz hit a three-run homer and singled, while Matt Mieske and Dave Nilsson also had two hits in the inning.

B.J. Surhoff hit his fourth homer for the Brewers, who have won six of eight.

Rockies 14, Astros 5
DENVER — Dante Bichette hit two homers and tied Colorado records with five RBI and four hits as the Rockies pummeled the Houston Astros.

Chris Jones also had four hits and Vinny Castilla three as the Rockies hammered 20 hits, tying the team record, and equaled a season high for hits in an inning with five — collecting that total in both the first and fourth innings.

Lance Painter (2-2) pitched eight strong innings and helped his own cause with his bat. Painter gave up 10 hits, two runs, walking three and striking out four. Greg Swindell (5-5) was the loser.

Colorado built a 10-2 lead before finally being retired in the sixth without scoring.

Mets 5, Braves 2
ATLANTA — The New York Mets scored four runs in the eighth inning, helped by pitcher Greg Maddux's throwing error, to beat the Atlanta Braves.

Maddux appeared to be coasting to his 11th victory after retiring 16 batters in a row before the Mets rallied. Maddux (10-3) allowed two of the runs to score when he threw wide of first on a sacrifice by Ferando Vina. Jose Vizcaino then drove in Vina with a sacrifice fly.

The rally enabled Pete Smith (4-7) to beat his former teammates in his first appearance against Atlanta. He went seven innings, allowed four hits, walked three and struck out two.

Pirates 5, Phillies 4
PITTSBURGH — Jeff King hit a solo homer in the fourth and doubled home the go-ahead run in the eighth as the Pirates held off the Philadelphia Phillies for their seventh straight win at home.

The Pirates weren't assured of the victory until Kevin Stocker was tagged for the final out as he tried to dive over catcher Don Slaught for the second time following a fly ball by Billy Hatcher.

Lloyd McClendon added a solo shot in the fifth and Merced hit a game-tying, two-run homer in the sixth for the Pirates' first three-homer game since May 21.

The Pirates have won five of six and 10 of 13, and their seven-game home winning streak is the longest since they won eight straight late in the 1992 season.

Ravelo Manzanillo (2-1) pitched 2 1/3 innings of scoreless relief for the victory. Reliever Heathcliff Slocumb (4-1) was the loser.

Reds 4, Giants 3
CINCINNATI — Barry Larkin's two-out single in the ninth inning gave the Reds a victory and sent the San Francisco Giants to their 11th loss in 13 games.

Reggie Sanders singled home a run with two out in the eighth to give the Reds a 3-2 lead. But Matt Williams hit his National League-leading 24th homer in the ninth off Jeff Brantley (5-3) to tie it and snap out of a 2-for-27 skid. It was Brantley's second blown save in his last three chances.

San Francisco's Bud Black and Cincinnati's Erik Hanson kept it tied at two with strong starts.

Red Sox 3, Blue Jays 2
TORONTO — Tom Brunansky drove in two runs and the Boston Red Sox completed a three-game sweep in Toronto.

The Red Sox had lost 11 in a row, their longest skid since 1932, before sweeping Toronto.

The Blue Jays have lost five in a row and eight of nine. The loss left Toronto's all-time record at 1,382-1,382 with two ties.

Brunansky singled home in the first inning and doubled home a run for a 2-1 lead in the third. In seven games for the Red Sox, Brunansky is 9-for-27 with three home runs and 10 RBI.

Nate Minchey (1-2) allowed four hits and struck out seven in five innings. Ken Ryan pitched the ninth for his fourth save.

Dave Stewart (5-6) gave up three runs and seven hits in six innings.

Expos 6, Cardinals 4
ST. LOUIS — Larry Walker had a three-run homer and Moises Alou a solo shot as the Montreal Expos kept Bob Tewksbury's career-worst slump alive with a victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Tewksbury (8-7) has been stuck on eight victories for six starts, all losses, during which he has compiled embarrassing totals of 29 1/3 innings, 57 hits and 33 runs allowed for a 10.13 ERA.

This time around, his only positive was durability. He returned to the mound to work a scoreless seventh inning after a 47-minute rain delay. Tewksbury, who allowed Walker's home run in the first, permitted six runs on eight hits in seven innings.

Walker hit his second home run in three games and 11th of the season, and Alou had his 13th homer to start the sixth for Montreal. Sean Berry added two RBI on a loop double in the fourth and a sacrifice fly in the sixth in support of Kirk Rueter (3-1). John Wetteland, the third Montreal pitcher, got the final out for his 13th save.

Padres 7, Dodgers 6
SAN DIEGO — Rookie Luis Lopez had a career-high four hits in five at-bats, including an RBI double in the seventh inning that gave San Diego a victory over Los Angeles.

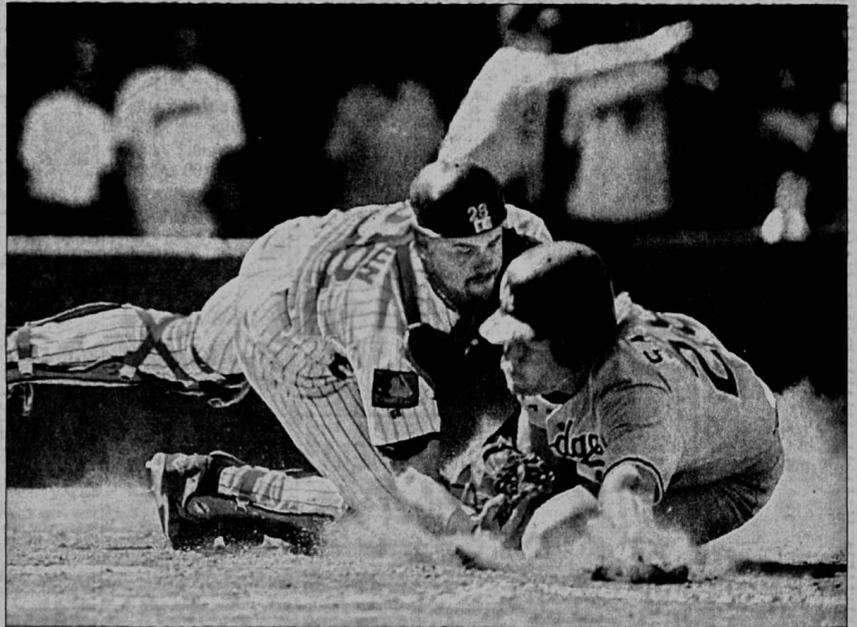

San Diego blew a 6-2 lead in the top of the seventh when Raul Mondesi hit a three-run homer, his 10th, and Carlos Hernandez a solo shot.

Ricky Gutierrez started the winning rally with a leadoff walk off Darren Dreifort (0-5). He took second on Dreifort's wild pickoff throw and third on a sacrifice bunt. After a walk to Eddie Williams, Lopez doubled to left-center to score Gutierrez.

Cory Snyder hit a pinch double leading off the eighth. With one out, he took third on Hernandez's fly out to left. The throw from Phil Plantier hit Snyder as he slid into third and rolled into foul territory. Snyder tried to score but was thrown out at home by third baseman Craig Shipley.

The LA bullpen has lost seven straight decisions. Mike Campbell (1-1) pitched one-third of an inning and won despite giving up Mondesi's homer. Trevor Hoffman got his 13th save.

White Sox 4, Rangers 0
CHICAGO — Wilson Alvarez, who had lost his previous two decisions after winning a club-record 15 straight, got another victory by allowing two hits over eight Cory Snyder of the Los Angeles Dodgers is tagged out at home by San Diego Padres catcher Brian Johnson in the eighth inning of their game Wednesday in San Diego. Snyder was trying to score the tying run after the ball had gotten past the Padres' third baseman and rolled up the grandstands. The Padres hung on to beat the Dodgers 7-6.

innings as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers.

Alvarez (9-2) earned his first win since May 27 after a stretch of four games in which he lost twice and had a pair of no-decisions. He held the Rangers hitless until the fifth, when Dean Palmer singled.

Alvarez walked one and struck out six. He also allowed a single to Junior Ortiz in the sixth.

Chicago scored in the fourth off Hector Fajardo (2-4) on a walk and Darrin Jackson's RBI double. The Sox added two runs in the fifth on Ozzie Guillen's triple, and RBI single by Tim Raines and double-play grounder by Frank Thomas.

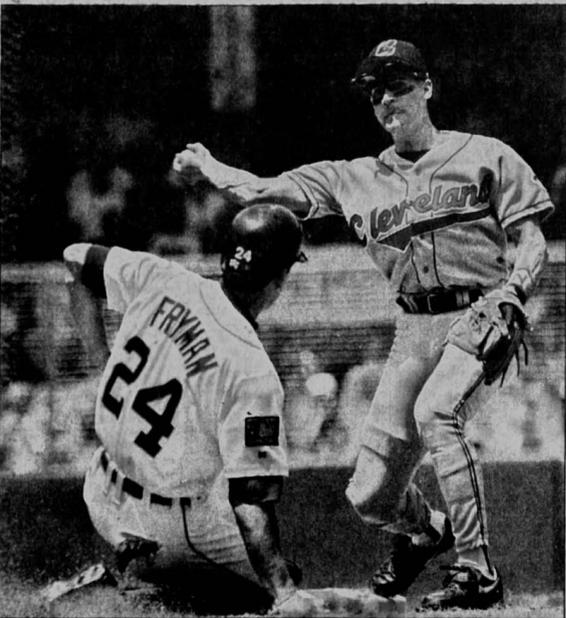

Ron Karkovice's sacrifice fly made it 4-0 in the sixth.

Yankees 9, Twins 2
NEW YORK — Mike Gallego's RBI single ignited a seven-run seventh inning, carrying New York to a three-game sweep.

Scott Kamieniecki (5-3) and Kevin Tapani (8-4) were in a scoreless duel until the seventh, when the Twins scored on Alex Cole's sacrifice fly to take a 1-0 lead. But Bernie Williams doubled to open the bottom of the inning, and Tapani (8-4) walked Randy Velarde before Gallego's single tied the score and Mark Guthrie relieved Tapani.

Guthrie walked Luis Polonia to load the bases and Wade Boggs' sacrifice fly gave the Yankees a 2-1 lead before Don Mattingly's double scored Gallego and put runners on second and third. Carl Willis replaced Guthrie and allowed Jim Leyritz' two-run single and Paul O'Neill's 13th homer, a two-run shot.
