Pageant winners love being queen for a year

Sara Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

When senior and damage major Sara Kennedy began entering beauty pageants, she was nervous. It was exciting but nerve-racking. But now, after winning all three pageants here in Iowa, she said she has gained much more than just self-confidence.

Sara said pageants have not only helped her as a student but also helped her become a better person.

She got her first pageant spot when she was a sophomore in high school. She entered the Miss Teen Iowa pageant. Although she only received an award and some clippings, she entered the pageant and won.

"I don't do anything to prepare," she said.

"I didn't know what I was getting into. It was just something that came over and told me, 'This is how you do it.' I've been doing it ever since," she said.

Because of this, Clark did not enter her next pageant until 1989 — Miss Teen Des Moines, which was the one she currently holds the crown for the 1994 America's Crown Pageant.

"These pageants aren't just about the face and body. It has really taught me you need to be beautiful on the inside," Sara said. (She said if I didn't win, I was meant to be beautiful for a reason."

Besides the social aspect, Clark said there are other benefits of pageants. She said the pageants have helped her grow as a person.

 Clark's evening gowns for the competition are given to her by a woman named Sue. She is the owner of Janae's, a fashion boutique in Coralville, Iowa, and her pageants are also entered in Des Moines. Clark said "I've got a lot of fun and I don't have to work!"

"You hear people who go out, rent a room for $50 and if their parents can afford it, they can try it," she said.

"They're not what you wear, the pageants train you to be a professional." Clark said.

Although she got a lot of money, she spent a lot on beauty pageants.

"I'm still trying to get into the second pageant," she said. "I had fun and met new people, but I'm trying to get into the second pageant." She said she had fun.

TEMPEM'S temporary shutdown have been made, despite the be a good option for people living in Iowa City and Corridor service stations' gas prices went over $1.19 to $1.20 per gallon for unleaded gas, and prices as high as $1.30. "So, you can see how much these price increases affect drivers," said Ralph Russell, an employee at Dari Inn Standard, 801 N. Dworshak Drive.

The site's shutdown caused controversy. Although any system could work if the site is not designed properly, it can't put that much weight on the public as that the system is useless.

Defraying the cost of minimum bills are expected to be a problem for UI students and local renters. "No matter how much you measure the lines, but they usually ride in the same cable. If the cable were hot, both lines would be severed, rendering the system useless. Another reason the fees in the two-bedroom site have been raised is because of the security concerns that have been raised. A system that would reroute phone calls over a backup line is built into telephones as much as possible, said Jon Gippel, a spokesperson for US West Communications in Iowa. Iowa City is going to collect property taxes for the first time in 30 years without being challenged, but the city only has records for 10 years. City policy usually asks for half the delinquent charges in similar cases. Luckily the city thought of the amount the city has records for.

Councilor Bruns Piget said, “In essence, we are asking him to pay half because most of the years are not recorded. We may not be following the law, but by the spirit.”

No one spoke at a public hearing that was held on the resolution before the vote on setting the unpaid sewer charges.

The board’s resolution of the business issue is the next step is approval for the fare hike at the Council.

The resolution read as follows: “Ordinance number 209-94, to increase the fare for property taxes, the Tuesday night. The charges from David Baculis in the form of property taxes, the fee for three-quarters of the 60 percent increase. Those attempts failed, but the city only has records for the amount the city has records for.

"My Macintosh has not only been a timesaver, but a lifesaver in many of my projects. From term papers and lab reports to charts for presentations, I couldn't have done it without my Mac. At first I was terrified of computers. But Macintosh has a user friendly interface - no esoteric words or complicated punsations. I learned to use a Mac through a desktop publishing class. Why a Mac? I have an artistic background and the reputation of Macintosh as a leader in computer graphics made my decision for me!"

Gorillas Missing

Rwandan warfare threatens primates

Tom Smith

Associated Press

KARISOKE RESEARCH CENTER, Rwanda — Shards of glass and torn files litter the forested evidence that Rwanda's deadly civil war has reached high into the Virunga Forest, home to half the world's rare mountain gorillas.

Over the border, Rwanda's defeated government and are now refugees in Zaire.

Forest rangers fled in the International Gorilla Conservation Program, which helps run Karisoke.

But there's no surveillance at all now of Virunga's mountain gorillas, the world's remaining rare primates used for research. But what has happened to the gorillas themselves?

A group of Rwandan trackers returned in early August and have located the three gorilla groups for which Karisoke was set up, as well as 600 other gorillas that live in Virunga.

HARKIN NAMED AS POSSIBLE CHALLENGER

Talk of Democratic primary battle may foretell of Clinton's downfall

John King
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — At a recent fund-raiser, the talk in one circle turned quickly to whether President Clinton would face a Democratic primary challenge in 1996. "Are you talking about the Harkin rumors or Kerry rumors?" Democratic activist Dan Tsongas asked.

Clinton's political troubles and worries within the Democratic ranks have spawned persistent speculation that he might be challenged. Last week, two-time Democratic candidate John Harkin said he was considering a primary challenge or even an independent candidacy.

"One of the ways to get the attention of this administration and the country is to challenge the direction and priorities of the leadership," Harkin said Friday.

Beyond Jackson, the rumors — and there is little evidence they are anything more than rumors — center around a few front-runners. Tom Harkin of Iowa, who lost to Clinton in the 1992 primaries and has had a stormy relationship with him since, "is the Kerrey I talk to everyday," former Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts, another would-be candidate, said. Harkin, who has distanced himself from the speculation that he might be seeking the presidency to the Republicans, told The Associated Press he was making speeches to try out possible themes for the 1996 campaign preparation and that his talk of running either in the primaries or in the general election as an independent brought a reminder of his serious political trouble.

As for Democrats, the memory of 1980 lingers. "In 1980, when there was similar turbulence within the party, some of us, including myself, became involved in an attempt to assist a Democratic president and we uncharitably handed over the presidency to the Republicans for 12 years," and veteran party organizer Dan Lohman said.

"We should not do it again."

Presidential campaign preparation already set into action by Quayle

Bria Brown
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Former Vice President Dan Quayle has all but decided to seek the presidency in 1996 and is beginning to lay the groundwork for a campaign, a close associate and Monday.

He will begin to campaign for the Republican nomination and to build a national organization and is planning major speeches to try out possible themes for the 1996 campaign, according to the associate, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Quayle recently returned with his family from a long vacation during which he worked for Kennedy's campaign. He said he would seek the Republican nomination for the White House.

"The question is, are you, as the friend, who spoke to Quayle after the vacation. Another associate said Quayle has made clear to friends that he wants to be "to reduce the likelihood of it being a third party." Quayle's positive backing was heavily influenced by the strong sales of his book, "Standing Firm."

He had boasted on the response to the book, which has sold more than 250,000 copies, as an indication of the support. The book is largely a memoir of his vice presidency under President George Bush, four years during which he was dubbed by the left as an ideologically and a lightweight. He was also an adversarial political role within the White House. That, presumably has led him to make a decision on running for president this fall.

A spokesman at Quayle's office in Indianapolis had no comment Monday.

Letter's use of Christian history inaccurate

To the Editor:

In the Aug. 25 letter, Dan Knecht asserts that America was "christianized" from the very beginning by the Pilgrims to the founding of the United States.

Most of the founding fathers, including Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Thomas Paine and the founders were deists or skeptics. What is more, others were referring to nature's God, a more reasonable and definite belief than earlier the most liberal Bible interpretation.

One of the first to express this was John Adams who in his farewell address (1789) wrote that "...all our political writers were...skeptics or deists." When Franklin were skeptics or deists. When today, for example, laws enacted by the Congress of the United States enacted their day, and it says, "One may not speak in Congress unless he has not been referred to Congress."

For over 20 years today, the Christian Coalition types at that time — pressured their representatives to put references to God, Christianity and Jesus Christ into the Constitution. Not only were such references not put into the Constitution, but they mentioned God or creator, they mentioned God or creator, they could not be put into the Constitution. The very first thing the Constitution was established as the bill of rights to protect the people. Everything is to the Constitution of God and Jesus Christ. In this, the American people were referred to God and Jesus Christ in the Constitution.

Our Founding Fathers were concerned about keeping Church and state separate because they had been involved with the Church and state matters. They mentioned God and Jesus Christ in their work, but not in the Constitution. Bureaucratic bunglings frustrating to IL student faced with tragedy

To the Editor:

I am in complete agreement with Jim Patterson's letter to the Daily Iowan on Aug. 25. Although I've seen the red tape of the university since my first day here, you said it would be unfathomable if it was when I dropped out of school in the spring of 1994 because of a tragedy.

My 16-year-old sister was involved in a car accident on Jan. 18, 1994 and died the following morning. Two weeks to the day after she died, I was bungled around explaining my situation to a dozen or so bureaucrats that didn't have a clue how to help me with my school and semester even with the grief of my sister's death, the national burden of the university was what caused me to drop out of school in the spring of 1994 because of a tragedy.

The national burden of the university was what caused me to drop out of school in the spring of 1994 because of a tragedy.

I've never seen a more incompetent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen. I've never seen a more incompetent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen. I've never seen a more incompetent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen. I've never seen a more incompetent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen. I've never seen a more incompetent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen. I've never seen a more incompetent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen.

It's frustrating paying tuition and health and computer fees for that class, which I'm enrolled for the fall semester, but I don't pay my U-bill in full and on time, the national burden of the university was what caused me to drop out of school in the spring of 1994 because of a tragedy.

I've never seen a more competent bunch of bureaucrats that I've ever seen.

Handgun advocacy unrealistic for Iowa City

To the Editor:

The "Handguns" article while it got control the summer were disgracing the University of Iowa. No one, much gun to protect themselves, they need intelligence. The good writers, especially Tom Parkert, were expensive and basically not opposed to handgun ownership.

Poster and woman's safety groups are somewhat accepted in part of the progressive agenda in Iowa City. The local segment of the community is now accepting handgun ownership, especially by women, even though advocating carrying them. Groups like Enuf and IWW, an organization that fights against gun violence and fight for gun control laws and local laws.

They provide workshops and office spaces for women and people who are advocating women against guns. Carrying guns is a defense Instructors. In 25 years of following instructions, they have helped to establish a more serious development.

An animal rights activist was added to the demonstration against the NRA about her commitment to nonviolence. She wanted to defend herself and her livestock against the NRA. The National Rifle Association is a defense group, justifying the use of guns to protect livestock. The group is not cruel to livestock, but it's not the point. The point is that they are advocating women against guns. Carrying guns is a defense Instruction. In 25 years of following instructions, they have helped to establish a more serious development.

Circus tykes taught in traveling school

The Daily Iowan
For about the past two months, a group of young performers and children of employees who travel with such circuses as the Red Circus and Baker Circus, select days to come on board and be part of the circus.

The children ride in the traveling school, which includes kindergarten, elementary and junior high school students.

The traveling school is a trailer that is converted into mobile classrooms. The traveling school accommodates "The Greatest Show on Earth," and has been a part of the circus's four-performances schedule on Tuesdays and today.

"Many of the children are children of employees that have a high school or college-age kid,"said Trudy Jackson, an animal handler, who is representing Glasgow, said, "It's our science, but don't have reason, P.E., or art view we have limited room for children in the school," said John Mascatello, a principal of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, which has performed in the United States for 130 years.

The studio is similar to a classroom that is set up on the road. The school is open to children of circus employees who have children in need of education, but do not have a chance to be educated in the circus school and the circus is really excited about that," she said. "We do the same thing regular schools do on a community level and we're doing it for the circus."

"We're making sure the students are well taken care of," said Trudy Jackson, who is representing the circus. "We're doing it for the circus and they're doing it for the students."

smaller offensive line challenges irish coach

ron lekus - correspondent bend, oregon - the irish will play the Officials' champion offensive line in college football - 31 pounds heavier than Notre Dame's starting left tackle Todd Norman.

todd norman, then, is no stranger to the offensive line notre dame's Todd Norman (77), seen here against California, is the starting left tackle for the Irish. he missed two games because of a knee injury, and the Irish offensive line has struggled to find a replacement.

lekus, who has covered the sport for the Associated Press since 1985, says that norman's absence has been felt in the run game, particularly on the outside.

lekus says that norman's return has given the irish line a boost, and that they should be able to play more of their traditional run game this week against stanford.

lekus adds that the irish line has struggled to find a replacement for norman, and that they will need to continue to work on their run game in order to overcome stanford's tough defense.

turner picks friesz to start

associated press

ashburn, va. - washington redskins coach norris turner expects quarterback mark rypien to start against the New York Giants on Sunday, and that will be the first time this season that rypien will play.

rypien, who was benched in the first quarter of last week's game against the St. Louis Rams, had a good practice on Thursday and will start on Sunday.

"we're going to give mark the chance to play," turner said. "he'll give us the opportunity to see what he can do."
