Campbell considers reform of regent system

DES MOINES (AP) -Democrat Bonnie Campbell on Sunday said she would move to end use of the state's public colleges as "a political football" and may revamp selection procedures for the Iowa state Board of Regents.

"I want to see to it that the Board of Regents will be measured by what they can contribute to education — not what they have contributed to a political campaign," said Campbell, in remarks prepared for delivery to an association of college presidents.

Though she didn't spell it out in the speech, aides said Campbell was mulling a major shift in the way regents are selected, installing a system similar to that for picking judges.

"She's given some thought to creating a nominating commission for the board of regents," said campaign director Phil Roeder.

Currently, the governor alone selects members of that panel, which runs the major public colleges, and the Senate confirms CALI, Colombia (AP) - Leftist guerrillas have kidnapped an American scientist at a roadblock they set up near Cali.

Thomas Hargrove, an agricultural expert, was forced from his car Friday by rebels of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia, police said Saturday. The guerrilla group is one of several that have been fighting the state for decades.

Authorities said they did not know Hargrove's hometown or his affiliation.

Rebels have sometimes kidnapped Americans for ransom or political purposes. They launched a nationwide offensive several months ago in a bid to force the government to negotiate peace on

CAP-HAITIEN, Haiti - Police and soldiers abandoned their posts Sunday as authority collapsed in Haiti's second-largest city. Hundreds of Haitians, emboldened by the deaths of 10 armed men in a fire fight with Marines, ransacked police stations, carrying off guns, identity cards and even musical instruments.

Meanwhile, a Marine colonel backtracked on the official version that Haitians fired first in the Saturday night gunfight outside a police station in which 10 Haitians died. It was the first violent clash involving American troops sent to restore the elected government of Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

"One of our patrols saw a gesture by an individual with an Uzi machine gun. He took that individual out, and a fire fight began," said Col. Tom Jones, commanding officer of the Marine Air-Ground Task Force.

The lieutenant shot him when he made a gesture to raise his Uzi,' Jones continued. As to who fired first - Lt. Virg Palumbo, 24, of trol and raised the possibility that U.S. troops may find themselves confronted with an unwelcome choice: watching Haiti sink into chaos or taking on the role of running the country directly — something neither the United States nor Aristide wants.

Col. Jones said the Haitian com-mander, Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, was seething Sunday about the Cap-Haïtien killings.

Cedras accused us of atrocities and demanded my transfer and court-martial," Col. Jones said.

But administration officials stressed that no military operation is without risk, and there was no sign Cedras planned to pursue his accusations.

President Clinton, speaking earlier Sunday at a church in Harlem, issued a statement, saying, "It must be clear that U.S. forces are prepared to respond to hostile action against them and will do

After the fight, police and soldiers abandoned Cap-Haitien's main military barracks, police station and about a dozen smaller posts. Word spread quickly to the streets, bringing hundreds out to trash the property of those who had ruled over them.

Sitting in the Emergency Housing Project shelter, clutching a "Where's Waldo?" board game and tattered sheets of original poetry that describe the world as "silent, dark and lonely," 36-year-old David Szemborski explains how it feels to be homeless.

"Life is silence and loneliness," he said. "I'm always sad. It's always just another day with no money, going down the road to another town.'

Szemborski, a roofer and welder who has been on and off the streets since the age of 17, arrived in Iowa City two weeks ago with a broken hand, failing eyes and three decaying teeth. Without a cent to his name, medical attention is an impossibility. He can't work with a broken hand, and he can't pay rent

The carpenters arrive at the job site north of Coralville in a new subdivision somewhere around 8 a.m. Their pickup trucks pull onto a dirt patch - the future site of the side yard of a $150,000 threebedroom ranch-style house begin to unload their tools.

A thick skin is needed for those who would like to give this field of employment a shot because everyone on the job site is fair game to be given a hard time by anyone else.

Confronting the workers are two 30-foot by 15-inch by 3-inch extremely heavy wooden beams. Each beam will be lifted into place, leveled and nailed together.

Greg Schnetzler, who has worked for Thomae for two years and is married to Thomae's niece, loads an air nail gun with a bar of nails and plugs in the air hose to nail the beams together. When working properly, the air guns make nailing as easy as pulling a trigger. However, the air compressor doesn't want to cooperate, so after each squeeze of the trigger Schnetzler takes out his hammer to finish the job.

Hohle checks the air pressure gauge on the compressor and, as it turns out, the knob regulating the air pressure is turned off.

Like four of her books before, Cornwell's best-selling "The Body Farm" centers on the cool, competent Kay Scapetta, a medical examiner in Virginia.

As a writer and a computer analyst in the Richmond, Va., morgue, Cornwell witnessed hundreds of autopsies and did everything from taking notes in medical terminology for pathologists to picking buckshot out of a body.

Iowa can no longer allow its best and brightest minds to continue to leave the state, Bonnie Campbell said Friday at a town meeting at the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St.

We rank fourth in the number of science and engineering students in our higher education system and 44th in the number of scientists and engineers in our work force," Campbell said. "We educate them. They leave. It's a brain drain.

Campbell said Iowans will hear Gov. Terry Branstad take credit for creating hundreds of thousands of new jobs.

"What you won't hear is that the new jobs that came pay only about half as the jobs that left," she said. "Iowa's economy ranks dead last in the Midwest. Our per capita income ranks 43rd in the country.'

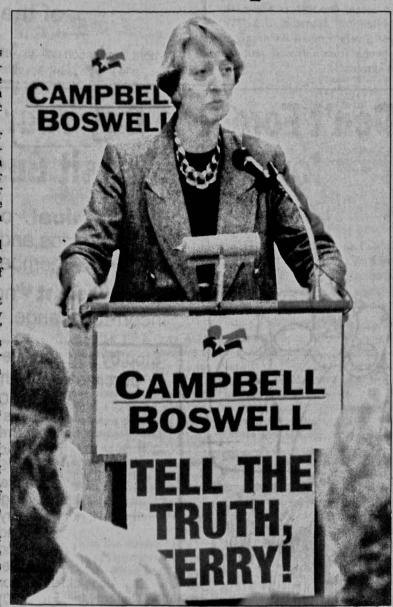

Campbell said obstacles such as paperwork, permits and fees required by the state must be consolidated and reduced, and the tax system must be made competitive with neighboring states. In addition, she said, Iowa must sustain its quality of life and healthy environment to attract new businesses.

"Communities drive economic engines. Entrepreneurs create jobs," Campbell said. "Governors create the favorable environment.

Szemborski said he wants to work, contrary to a common belief that homeless people are "just looking for a handout.

"I'm a good worker," he said. "If I could, instead of wishing for millions of dollars I'd wish I could have the right girl, a home and a

се

Pat Jordan, director of the Emergency Housing Project, 331 N. Gilbert St., refers to the homeless population as Iowa City's best-kept secret. The irony of the situation is that the housing project is doing its job so well that few people are sleeping in the streets, resulting in a community which doesn't recognize the problem, Jordan said.

"If I could have my wish, I would somehow magically transform this town into not having the Emergency Housing Project for a month,

"There are times you can get 10 pizzas or burgers, all wrapped up and everything."

Heather, homeless I.C. resident so people could see what the streets of this town would look like," Jordan said.

According to the city's 1993 "Comprehensive Housing Affordability Strategy" figures, there are an estimated 1,201 homeless people in Iowa City. The figure is said to be low because it counts only those men, women and children who actually received shelter, not addressing the people sleeping in cars, under bridges and on park benches.

The homeless shelter is sorely understaffed and scantily funded, considering the magnitude of the problem, Jordan said. With a $125,000 annual budget, a $25,000 deficit and only 21 single beds, the shelter is a haven for up to 40 people per night and between 1,200 and 1,300 people a year.

"We're at maximum capacity every night," said Michael NaMeche, a volunteer at the shelter. "It's a question of where you draw the line. Do you turn a person down and let them sleep in the rain or the cold? Or do you take them in the case of a fire?"

Jordan said she could talk for hours about the sadness she has seen result when a person or famiy has nowhere to call home.

"One of the saddest moments was when a mother told her pestering child, 'We'll get that when we go home.' The child reminded her, 'Mommy, we don't have a home,' Jordan said. "That was really hor-

> "There are times you can get 10 pizzas or burgers, all wrapped up and everything," she said. "Feed them to the kids, and they're happy for a week.'

Both Szemborski and Heather know of grocery stores and fastfood restaurants where good food is thrown out because it doesn't live up to freshness standards.

The food is still good," he said. "It's just that the grocery stores get new produce shipments every week, so they throw out the old. The fast-food places have rules that food can't sit on the shelf for a certain amount of time," Szemborski said. "There's no reason why that food couldn't be donated to the homeless. We shouldn't have to dig through the garbage for a meal."

tion Army, 510 Highland Ave., which serves 27,844 evening meals per year, tries to add a touch of home by decorating the tables with flowers donated from funeral homes, but the tragedy resulting from homelessness is always felt.

Nation & World

"The sadness associated with homelessness is recognized," said Capt. Miriam Miller, a fifth-generation Salvation Army member. "We are very often moved to tears, and we as a staff will go behind closed doors and pray for these people."

There is no common theme connecting the cases of homelessness. Among the most commonly cited are lack of low-income housing -Iowa City has the highest fair market rents in the state; substance abuse; jobs which avoid paying benefits by hiring only part-time or temporary employees; and mental

Mayor Susan Horowitz said the City Council is working "as swiftly as possible to address affordable and low-income housing."

Less controllable is the fact that the rate of mental illness among homeless people doubled between 1984 and 1988 in the Midwest, NaMeche said.

"With homelessness and mental illness, it's like, which came first, the chicken or the egg?" said Jordan. "Are you mentally ill because you are homeless, or homeless because you are mentally ill?"

The Local Homeless Coordinating Board has scheduled meetings throughout the next month in order to submit applications for federal funding, which will be used to develop programs to battle homelessness.

Pam Shinaut, a shelter resident who landed a job one week ago, dreams of the day she will be able to afford a place of her own. She said a person doesn't know what pride is until being homeless completely destroys it.

"People don't understand," she said, near tears. "They look down on homeless people. Even here in Iowa City people look at you like you're scum, and that's hard. I keep myself up because that's Our 10th year in business! PEX( computer outlet

VIOLENCE EXPECTED

Further conflict in Haiti predicted

Jim Abrams Associated Press

WASHINGTON - With the flash of a gun barrel ending a week of relative calmness, senior officials warned Sunday that the fire fight that took 10 Haitian lives may be a forerunner of more violence in that historically violent land.

"This is the first bad incident we've had involving, directly, American troops, but it won't be the last," said Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a member of the delegation that brokered the deal with the Haitian military on the entry of U.S. forces.

U.S. Marines killed 10 armed men Saturday evening outside a police station in the northern coastal city of Cap-Haitien in a battle ensuing after several of the men emerged from the station and opened fire on an American patrol.

It was the first violent incident involving Americans after a surprisingly peaceful first week of the U.S. occupation, and it drew quick comparisons to hostile attacks against U.S. troops in Somalia.

While administration officials responded by assuring the American public and warning the Haitians they were ready for more, congressional critics geared up for an attempt to legislate an early withdrawal from Haiti.

President Clinton, in New York for a meeting with U.N. Secretary General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, issued a statement expressing regret for the loss of life and saying: "It must be clear that U.S. forces are prepared to respond to U.S. Army medics work to wash mud out of Samuel Desyr's eyes after he was trampled on by a crowd watching U.S. helicopters land in Port-au-Prince Sunday.

hostile action against them and

Speaking at a church in Harlem, Clinton said the Haiti operation "helps to end human rights violations that we find intolerable everywhere but unconscionable on our doorstep and offers them (Haitians) a chance at stability."

Clinton did not mention at the church the violence in Cap-Haitien. But Joint Chiefs of Staff Chairman Gen. John Shalikashvili said Haitian military leader Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras had been flown to the port city Sunday, and the U.S. side was making it "abundantly clear" what the consequences would be if there were further threats to U.S. troops.

They now know, he said on CBS' "Face the Nation," "what the cost to the Haitians is for picking a fight with the Marines."

PRESIDENT TO ADRESS UNITED NATIONS

Clinton drums up support for policy

Barry Schweid Associated Press

NEW YORK - President Clinton moved Sunday from Biblethumping politics in a Harlem church to the United Nations world stage, extolling his military intervention in Haiti as "saving our neighborhood" for democracy.

The president, apparently buoyed by the sure foothold U.S. forces had achieved in Haiti, made no mention of the fire fight in Cap-Haitien in which U.S. Marines killed 10 Haitian men Saturday night outside a police station.

Instead, he sounded the theme he will use in a speech today to a special session of the U.N. General Assembly: Democracy is on the rise, and the United States welcomes a helping hand from other nations, not just in the Caribbean but in Bosnia and in other world hotspots.

Immediately upon switching gears, Clinton received Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic, whose Muslim-led government feels betrayed.

Having accepted a plan to end the 2 1/2-year-old war in Bosnia, the government watched in despair Friday as the U.N. Security Council relaxed some sanctions against and trombones. They played the instruments in the streets as crowds gathered outside.

Some people fired guns into the air, but many appeared to be handing the weapons over to some of the 1,900 U.S. Marines in Cap-Haitien. One man displayed tarnished bullets from an M-1 assault rifle clip, which he handed to Marines in an armored personel carrier.

"I give! I give!" he cried.

Hundreds of civilians holding rifles over their heads paraded to the bloodstained police barracks where the Haitians died and handed the weapons over to Marines. More than 100 rifles, machetes and rusted-out machine guns were surrendered, along with uniforms and helmets.

One civilian even handed over a skull with a bullet hole.

"These people are really happy today, but they're still scared," said Lance Cpl. Darin Mendoza of Miami. "They're telling us they want us to stay for another 20 years.'

Marines set up checkpoints across the city, trying to keep the chaotic scene from turning dangerous.

Near police headquarters, a group

In another case, a crowd approached a Marine checkpoint and said they had captured an

"I told them to go get him, tie him up and bring him in but don't hit him," said Petersan Jean-Pierre, a Navy seaman attached to the Marines as a translator.

Cedras, the Haitian military leader, and Lt. Gen. Hugh Shelton, commander of the U.S. operation in Haiti, flew together to Cap-Haitien for a brief inspection tour.

American servicemen and a source close to the Haitian military initially said the Haitians opened fire first in Saturday night's gunbattle, which broke out after an Echo Company platoon on its evening patrol stopped across the street from the police barracks.

Francis Jose, a Haitian-American Navy apprentice serving as an interpreter, suffered a flesh wound in the leg and was evacuated to the USS Wasp for treatment.

Carl Denis, a senior aide to Cedras, said he believed the Haitian of Haitians grabbed a man and who fired thought he was shooting

The fire fight was followed by a siege, as Marines tried to persuade two wounded men inside the station to give themselves up.

Marines had cleared the building by Sunday morning. They did not say what had happened to the two holdouts, but they raised the death toll from nine to 10 and said another Haitian had been seriously wounded. Outside the building, Marines washed down the blood on

The gunbattle followed a slow escalation in tension between Marines and Haitian security forces. Marine patrols had been increased and units were given more latitude to take action against Haitian forces

About 1,900 Marines arrived Tuesday in Cap-Haitien to provide security in advance of the planned return of exiled President Aristide. There are about 10,000 U.S. troops overall in Haiti.

In the western coastal city of Gonaïves, a pro-army gunman entered the Haitian army barracks where 105 American military patrols were billeted, fired shots into the air and briefly brought

The man was arrested, and a crowd of 1,000 people later gathered outside the barracks to thank the Americans for coming to the city, the sources said.

By nightfall Sunday in Port-au-Prince, there was a huge outpouring of support for democracy and the U.S. troops near the airport.

One man running alongside a pickup truck in a crowd of several thousand packed three layers deep with people said it was obvious why the people were flooding into the

"It's because it has been three years since they could come out, and they believe in the return of Aristide," said Garcon Moises. He said many of the people celebrating saw nothing wrong in killing police auxilaries responsible for the killings, kidnappings and beatings since Aristide's 1991 ouster.

On the muddy roads overlooking the airport, whole families, many in their best clothes, were streaming down to join the celebrations, which had the air of sort of a carnival.

FOREIGN POLICY

Stay the course in Haiti

he first shots were fired at American solders in Haiti Saturday night, when a platoon of U.S. Marines killed nine Haitians in a fire fight. The patrol encountered a group of armed men leaving a police station in the country's second-largest city.

Words were exchanged, shots were fired and Haitians lay dead and wounded in the street. The only American casualty in this encounter was a solder with a slight leg wound.

He was the first casualty, but he probably won't be the last. The question isn't "How many will be killed or wounded?" The question is "How many will be killed or wounded before our politicians lose their nerve?"

Some of President Clinton's critics say America's foreign policy toward Haiti has been flawed for the entire century. Theodore Roosevelt let slip the dogs of war in 1905, when American forces first occupied Haitian soil to collect Haitian debts owed to U.S. bankers.

The United States relinquished direct control of Haiti in 1934, but it continued to support a series of dictators whose only qualifications were that they weren't communist. History shows that the abstract ideals and diluted fantasies of communism had a certain appeal for some poverty-stricken Central and South Americans. The United States had a right to fear the "Red menace," but not at the sake of supporting amoral dictators and thugs.

The major motivating force behind U.S. foreign policy has been neutralized. Times have changed - so, too, must the nation's foreign policy. As we once opposed communism at all costs, we must now support democracy at all costs.

As the inventor of modern democracy, the United States has an obligation to preserve, protect and propagate democracy around the world. For more than 70 years, Americans fought to free the nations of the world from the oppression of communism. Now Americans can take the morally right position of opposing dictators, tyrants and thugs.

Should the United States be the law enforcement arm of the United Nations? If we aren't, who will be? If impoverished nations like Bangladesh can offer to send troops to Haiti and Somalia, can the United States - with the largest and greatest military in the world - do any less?

The United States must be willing to stay in Haiti until democratically elected Haitians say we are no longer needed. When the next country yearning for democracy asks for our help, we must be willing to go there as well.

National security should be more than dollars and cents. Our nation will be secure only after all the people of the world have the opportunities of freedom and democracy.

HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS

Is China most favored?

hina's record of human rights violations is one to be abhorred. More than 1,700 Chinese citizens are in prison because of their religion, politics or race. In light of all this, the United States continues trading with China under the Most Favored Nation trading partner status.

Under the current state of affairs, Chinese imports to the United States incur an 8 percent customs duty. Rescinding their Most Favored Nation status would increase the duty to 40 percent. This would have serious consequences to the Chinese economy - consequences that would force them to change the way they treat their citizens. Although this action may force some retaliation on the part of the Chinese government, it is the only weapon left to combat continuing abuses by the Chi-

The past has seen promise after promise broken by Chinese nationals in response to international pressure to halt human rights violations. These broken promises have been followed by empty threats by the United States about revoking the Most Favored Nation status. The time for false words has ended and the time for strong action has come.

As the world's largest country and having one of the fastest growing economies, China cannot be allowed by the international community to continue to ignore the plight of its citizens. It has been shielded too long by a great wall of secrecy and mystery. The world was finally enlightened to the true state of Chinese dissidence in 1989 when the Tiananmen massacre occurred. Further revelations continue to surface as the world -has learned of executions, torture and forced labor camps.

Although China would retaliate with tariffs on United States exports, the Clinton administration cannot ignore these continuing violations. The temporary sanctions that may be imposed by the Chinese would be outweighed by the good that would come by justice being served.

The world's eyes have recently been focused on other areas of the world. Impoverished nations such as Haiti, Rwanda and Cuba have been the focus of international issues. China should not be forgotten and neither should its political prisoners. Strong leadership is needed and stronger action must be taken. The United States should not shy away from China just because it is an international power. That makes it all the more justified to take all action necessary to encourage China to comply with international law and stop the continuing abuses.

Celebrating banned, challenged books

For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us: Therefore let us keep the feast, not with the old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

Corinthians 5:7-8 This is the week of the banned book, America's annual celebration of the written word, the barbaric yawp and the truth that sets us free. It is a truth that some would prefer to keep buried forever. In fact, the passage quoted above is from a banned and challenged book.

According to a pamphlet produced by the American Library Association, an "atheist seeking to turn the tables on the religious right" challenged the presence of the Bible in the library of the Brooklyn Center, Minn., Independent School District in 1992.

The Bible as translated in 1524 by Martin Luther was burned in 1624 by papal authorities in Germany. (I guess this was their idea of a centennial celebration of Luther's life and work in the vineyards of the Lord.)

American fundamentalists waged a howling holy war against the Revised Standard version of the Bible due to mutations in the language. As you might guess, the Living Bible is as close to perdition as you can get without dumping God altogether and tossing His word into the belly of an old stove to take the chill out of the air in your fishing cabin. In my opinion, someone deserves to fry for producing the Living Bible. But that's because I'm a purist who takes the King James version as the best poetic bang you can get for your literary buck.

is available at the Iowa City Public Library. Take a few minutes this week to browse through it. You will glean chilling nuggets from the history of censorship. You may also get a good laugh, if you can keep from crying.

The censors want you to know that "The Diary of Anne Frank" is "a real downer," Allen Ginsberg's poetry is "really gutter stuff," and Harper Lee's "To Kill a Mockingbird" "presents institutionalized racism under the guise of 'good literature.' " The same argument is made today over Mark Twain's "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," but you should also know this book was removed from the children's room of the Brooklyn branch of the New York Public Library in 1905 because "Huck not only itched but scratched, and that he said sweat when he should have said perspiration."

People use books as bench marks in their lives. Consider "The Catcher in the Rye," "The Country Between Us," "The Correspondence of Ellen Terry and Bernard Shaw," the "Essays of E. B. White," the diaries and letters of Virginia Woolf and anyone who ever had a lustful thought about any member of the Bloomsbury set. The novels of P.G. Wodehouse, Iris Murdoch, James Baldwin and Robertson Davies, and Diderot, Sterne, de la Clos - all of these books and authors are treasures to me. Much more than dissonant shreds pinned together to make up an imaginative fabric, each has become a landmark on my emotional topography. I turn to them, quote them and reread them as I work, fall in and out of love and experience the many successes and setbacks of daily life.

The intent to permanently remove a book from a library shelf is the intent to do harm serious harm. It should be viewed as such by the members of a community and opposed with vigor. Opposition to censorship must be upheld That is the hard road - to accept the freedom of expression of those with whom you disagree, of those who may in fact detest your ideas. Vigorous efforts of a free people to uphold freedom cause real anguish. For example, books from the 1700s condemning miscegenation may drive pins of pain into the consciousness of young readers who happen unknowingly upon them. But put a copy of "Go Tell it on the Mountain" in those children's hands and watch them heal before your eyes. That is the magic of the word - the power of truth and freedom, the beauty of the banned book. Buy one at your favorite bookstore. Check one out from your local library. Give one as a present. Invite your closest friends to a party where everybody reads from a banned book for

If the need to cherish the word has not yet impressed itself upon you, remember that just five years ago the following proclamation was handed down by a religious leader followed by

"I inform the proud Muslim people of the world that the author of 'The Satanic Verses,' which is against Islam, the prophet and the Koran, and all those involved in its publication, who were aware in its content, have been sen-

His proclamation may rule for the short run. but eventually the greater truth of Shakespeare will overtake him:

"Time's glory is to calm contending kings, To unmask falsehood, and bring truth to light."

looked like they were belted around his thighs, a white teen-age gang member wannabe strode to the front of a crowd at the bus stop.

He elbowed past a woman who must have been 90. Her serene countenance transformed into a glare. As he came to a stop, he bumped a

A strange look, simultaneously hostile and tired, greeted anyone who stared at him for more than a moment. In 10 seconds he had earned the animosity of more than a dozen normally docile bus commuters.

But being first in line for the bus wasn't enough. When the bus pulled up and the doors opened, he shot up the stairs and forced his way past another six or seven people waiting to get

When the kid got off, it was at the Pheasant Ridge Apartments, where he met two of his wannabe brethren. They were black, dressed nearly the same and wore a look that was so strikingly similar I'm sure they practiced together at home in front of a mirror.

These three kids get treated like crap wherever they go. In school they're marked as troublemakers. When they show up at the mall the security guards instantly size them up and keep track of their whereabouts. When they are out on the town, cop cars slow down suspiciously as they pass. Clerks become instantly nervous when they step into a store.

These gang member wannabes say they get treated this way because they're poor, from the wrong side of the tracks or minorities. They are

They are treated that way because their belligerent attitude and demeanor can at best elicit a distrustful response from the people they encounter. At worst, their behavior causes people to become instantly hostile.

I understand how these kids feel like outsiders in lily white middle-class Iowa City. As a loud member of the "radical right," I often feel just as much on the outside as they do. I also understand the temptation to carry around a chip on my shoulder, treating the people who scorn me with the same disdain.

Unfortunately, when you are on the outside, if you treat people with disrespect and show the In Iowa City, the scene was so pathetic it was anger that you may justly feel, your behavior funny. Nothing that could have happened to this will only confirm the negative opinion people

When most people in this town meet me for the first time, they are hesitant at least and often hostile. If I want to have friendly relations with anyone, I have to be the one to make the first overture.

Often, though, that's not enough. A week before Easter, I was walking downtown with a friend, and we ran into one of her friends, who was planning an Easter dinner. Her friend, who was gay, invited us both. A week later, when her friend had made the connection between my name and my writing, the invitation was rescinded. The young man who had invited me to dinner didn't even have the good grace to call me

I can't spend the rest of my life pissed off at Iowa City's gay community because one of them is an impolite boob. I can't express the irritation I feel to every representative of that community without expecting them to reflect the anger right

Maybe expecting those angry gang wannabes to have learned this lesson is expecting too much, but the idea has been around for a long time. Its most eloquent expression is in Matthew 5:44, in which Jesus said, "But I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you."

United Campus Ministry conducts wide-ranging activities, including the Listening Post, the Late Show, the Lazarus Project as the Interfaith Dialog, as well as a peers ministry, Bible study, retreats, service projects, etc. We are present on the Pentacrest as part of the November 1 Coalition,

Coverage not thorough To the Editor:

As one of the over 130 people to attend the Sept. 8 Campaign for Academic Freedom (CAF) rally declaring Phillips Hall a "policy-free zone," I was appalled at the unbalanced and misleading coverage in The Daily Iowan the following day.

The article did not quote a single CAF speaker or supporter, thus failing to convey the rally's aim and message to the public. Instead of explaining any of the many arguments against the policy offered by three CAF speakers, the article cited only Hunter Rawlings, who wrote the policy; a graduate assistant who was among the small minority of those not signing CAF's petition; and a passing student and professor who were not active CAF supporters.

Readers not already familiar with the issue may have been left in the dark as to why an overwhelming majority of Phillips Hall faculty and Teaching Assistants joined together to declare the building a "policy-free zone." There were over 130 anti-policy undergraduates, graduate students, staff members and faculty present at the rally who would have been glad to tell the DI reporter about the policy's homophobia and the threats it poses to academic freedom. All were there to challenge President Rawlings and College of Liberal Arts Dean Judith Aikin to, as one chant put it, "get a spine" and stand up for free speech and human rights on our campus. Why were none of them quoted in the DI?

Next time the DI covers a CAF event, I urge your reporters to approach the participants and ask them why they are speaking out on this crucial issue, rather than hunting down the few policy supporters on campus and quoting them. And to the rest of the UI community, if you want to know why CAF continues to fight the administration and the regents, check out one of our events for yourself! Our next meeting, to open with a short talk on the history of the Pentacrest policy, will be tonight at 7 in the Northwestern Room of the Union.

Don't fear the loss of white privilege

To the Editor:

In submitting this letter to the editor, I will engage in one of the most absurd activities related to intellectual discourse: arguing with a zealous conservative who for all intents and purposes does not have a clue. I am, of course, referring to David Mastio and his Sept. 19 Viewpoints column titled "Race and the culture of cowardice." In this column, Mastio makes what can unequivocally be construed as a "prophetic" threat that slavery could return. Throughout this whining excuse for insightful political commentary, Mastio makes several empty and unconvincing statements, such as "Many of the minorities accepted into the university are academically inferior." Basically, Mr. Mastio, the fact is that many of the students in general, including those who look like you, are academically inferior, especially when they are compared to others. Doesn't that fact logically fol-

Make no mistake — I really do not belittle this notion of slavery revisited. There is no need, however, to threaten the return of slavery, for to be sure conditions dangerously akin to the peculiar institution already exist. Mastio speaks of the intellectual and moral indefensibility of affirmative action, but I wonder if Mastio would stick to his professed notions of morality if he traces the history of many individuals in the majority group to find that they continue to reap the benefits of the unjust and peculiar institution.

The point is merely this: Isn't it a waste of valuable space, thought and time to whine about this fear of the loss of white privilege? Don't you have other things to do? Isn't there something more valuable to society that needs to be produced, something to which you could legitimately contribute? This ridiculous assertion that people of color are being treated better than Euro-ethnics — which is what this rhetoric amounts to - really consumes too much press in the arena of intellectual discourse.

Cartoon misleading

To the Editor:

Ed Taylor's cartoon, "The 'sex act' policy illustrated," is not only wildly misleading but also insulting to both students and faculty.

The cartoon depicts UI faculty as a brat, bawling because the board of regents has taken away the "ideological carte blanche" with which the faculty have smashed "student objections" to classroom materials. This is an unmerited slap in the face to UI faculty, who, if they err at all, err on the side of being too timid about challenging the assumptions and unexamined prejudices that some students bring to

The cartoon is also an insult to UI students, the vast majority of whom are mature enough to deal with and even welcome the "unusual and unexpected" in the classroom. These students don't need a board of regents "Big Brother" to shield them from their

This brings me to the most misleading part of the cartoon, from which someone unfamiliar with the history of the sex act policy would draw the conclusion that a mass movement of offended students demanded that the policy be imposed. This was not the case. The policy was instituted on the basis of objections made by a mere handful of students — objections that were often politically motivated, coming as they did from the faithful few of the right-wing Campus Review. Strange that The Daily Iowan's cartoonist should take the same line on this issue as a Campus Review cartoonist would. But wait! Ed Taylor was also the cartoonist for the Campus Review. Maybe that explains it.

What remains unexplained is why a "student" newspaper — particularly one that so hotly defended David Mastio's "free speech" right to advocate murder last year — should this year be defending the UI administration and ents for crushi free speech right of students to learn and teachers to teach.

It amazes me that the Iowa City Police Department has decided to impound "illegally" parked bicycles, i.e. those parked at parking meters and sign posts. I have only one question: Exactly where are we supposed to park our bikes?

If I go to, say, Bruegger's, is there a "legal" bike rack anywhere in sight? All I see are parking meters. The same goes for Iowa Book and Supply, any downtown bank, Body Dimensions, etc. The truth is, there are no bike racks downtown (except maybe those brown things in front of The Metro, which serve nearly as one). Old Capitol Mall has a small, hard-to-access "bike rack" which does nothing but chip the paint off frames, and they expect us to park our $600 bikes there?

Next time you walk through campus, notice this: the Pappajohn Building has bikes parked everywhere — on the gate, on the south side chain fence, to light posts, etc. Van Allen Hall has bicycles parked on every post because there exists only one very small, hard to get to rack. And then there's the Pentacrest, which has the university's biggest auditoriums for the biggest classes yet not one bike rack at all. The Field House, the Pedestrian Mall - none of these have nearly enough "legal" bike racks, if any.

Let's see the city and university officials address this problem instead of boasting about "cracking down" on the problem we are helpless to avoid. If there were places to park bicycles, there would be no more downtown congestion and maybe even less thefts.

Hawkeyes dominate Big Ten foes

Chris Snider The Daily Iowan

After finally hearing enough questions, the Iowa field hockey team decided to give some answers. A convincing 4-0 shutout of Michigan State Friday and a 3-1 victory over Michigan Sunday moved the Hawkeyes to 6-3 on the season and 2-0 in the Big Ten Conference.

"There were times that we showed flashes of brilliance on the field, that we were really moving the ball well and that we did a good job of penetrating the defense," Coach Beth Beglin said after her team completed the weekend sweep

"Overall, I give the team an 'A' for Friday and I give us a 'C+' or a 'B' for today if you were grading. I was happier with our play this weekend in terms of stepping up things and being more consistent for a longer period of time.'

Michigan started off strong, scoring the game's first goal with 13:08 to go in the opening half, but Iowa wasted no time in striking back.

Senior Debbie Humpage would do the honors, scoring on a corner less than a minute after the Wolverine marker with assists from Emily Smith and Mary Kraybill. That same trio would add the game winner halfway through the second period.

"Debbie's shots obviously were on today," Beglin said. "She was really hitting the ball well. The whole corner unit has been a plus for us." For Humpage, the team's hard work is starting to pay off.

'We're trying to work on team defense and finishing the play taking advantage of all scoring opportunities we get," the senior captain, said.

VOLLEYBALL

The excitement surrounding the Iowa volleyball program was heightened last weekend when the Hawkeyes knocked off their first Big Ten Conference opponents.

The Hawkeyes went into Champaign and edged Illinois Friday in five games, 4-15, 15-12, 15-12, 13-15, 15-11. Again on the road Saturday, Iowa remained hot and swept Purdue, 15-8, 15-9, 16-14.

"Illinois was picked to finish third in the Big Ten and we were picked to finish last," Iowa coach Linda Schoenstedt said. "I had said before the season that we weren't going to finish last and, to some, that was a bold prediction.

Iowa has certainly shown that it's not the same team that finished last in the Big Ten with a 3-17 conference record in 1993. The Hawkeyes (12-1) already have gained more victories than they had all last season.

Newcomer sophomore Katy Faw-bush is very pleased with the way her new team is playing. After transferring from Arizona for this season, she heard the same predictions about the Hawkeyes.

"I think Iowa's going to be a team to beat in the Big Ten," Fawbush said. "We're gonna' be the sleeper team in the conference because nobody expected us to do any-

Great quarterbacks know there are times when they must determine a game's outcome.

Dan Marino and Joe Montana certainly know it. So does Warren

And when Marino's Dolphins scored 28 straight points to tie the Vikings in the fourth quarter, Moon wanted all the responsibility his job carries.

"I just knew I had to raise my level," he said after leading a 70yard scoring drive that put Minnesota back on top for a 38-35 win Sunday.

"I put it more in my hands to throw the ball down the field and get something going. That's what I thought they brought me here for, to make big plays when it's time to make big plays. Moon had his best game as a

But Moon's good buddy Marino put his best on display, too, passing for 431 yards, the fourth-best total of his career.

Bears 19, Jets 7 Not even a team-record 90-yard run by Johnny Johnson could help the inept Jets, who lost two fumbles, missed two field goals and saw quarterback Boomer Esiason go out with a sprained ankle after being sacked in the third quarter. Lewis Tillman scored two short touchdowns, including the clincher after Chris Zorich sacked backup quarterback Jack Trudeau and recovered Trudeau's fumble.

Rams 16, Chiefs 0 The Chiefs (3-1) were shut out at home for the first time since 1985, when the Rams blanked them.

Montana had his worst game of the season, throwing two interceptions in the final period. Jerome Bettis had his third straight 100yard game, getting 132 yards on 35 carries for the Rams (2-2) Browns 21, Colts 14

Rookie Heath Shuler led Washington to a touchdown in the fourth quarter, but his last-ditch bomb was picked off with one second left, and Atlanta won for the first time in 11 tries at RFK Stadium.

Atlanta (2-2) turned a 13-7 halftime deficit into a 27-13 lead in the second half. Jeff George was 22 of 35 for 270 yards and two touchdowns, helping the Falcons overcome six sacks and seven punts.

49ers 24, Saints 13

At San Francisco, Deion Sanders made his first start for the 49ers (3-1), returning an interception 74 yards for a touchdown with 32 seconds left to kill a potential winning drive by the Saints.

Steve Young was sacked five times but managed two touchdown throws to Jerry Rice.

New Orleans (1-3) led 13-10 at halftime, turning a botched punt into a touchdown drive and a Young interception into a field goal. Oilers 20, Bengals 13

At Houston, Gary Brown scored two touchdowns for the Oilers (1-3). The Oilers' offense, however, continued to struggle, even though Cody Carlson was back at quarterback after separating his shoulder in the season opener.

David Klingler, who grew up in Houston and played at the University of Houston, was sacked seven times and threw three interceptions as the Bengals remained the NFL's only winless team.

Patriots 23, Lions 17

At Detroit, Drew Bledsoe completed 21 of 33 passes for 251 yards and one touchdown, and the Patriots (2-2) benefited from two late interceptions.

Maurice Hurst picked off Scott Mitchell late in the third quarter, and Myron Guyton intercepted him again just before the two-minute warning.

Barry Sanders ran for touchdowns of 35 and 39 yards for the intercepted Humphries' pass and Lions, rushing 18 times for 131

Colorado shocks Michigan

Associated Press

Wisconsin and Ohio State snapped back from losses with impressive wins as the Big Ten Conference prepares for its first full schedule of conference games this coming weekend.

The Badgers, 55-17 losers last week at Colorado, bombed Indiana 62-13 in Saturday's only conference game, and the Buckeyes, 25-16 losers two weeks ago at Washington, routed Houston 52-0.

In other games featuring Big Ten teams Saturday, Oregon drubbed Iowa 40-18, Colorado beat Michigan 27-26, Michigan State buried Miami, Ohio 45-10, Kansas State beat Minnesota 35-0, Penn State rolled to a 55-27 win over Rutgers, and Purdue bowed at Notre Dame

At Madison, Wis., Badger quarterback Darrell Bevell, who threw four first-half interceptions at Colorado, completed all 13 of his firsthalf passes for 184 yards and three touchdowns as the Badgers raced to a 41-0 lead.

"I knew he'd snap back just like he did last year," said coach Bill Mallory, who suffered his worst loss in 11 seasons at Indiana. "That was a nightmare to say the least," Mallory said. "We got a rump-kicking.'

The shutout at Columbus, Ohio, was the most lopsided one by Ohio State since a 63-0 victory over Northwestern in 1980 and the biggest rout in John Cooper's seven years with the Buckeyes.

Michigan coach Gary Moeller was shocked by the incredible ending at Ann Arbor, Mich., where against Penn State, amassing 301 Colorado's Michael Westbrook made a diving 64-yard Hail Mary touchdown catch of a tipped toss from Kordell Stewart on the final play in a 27-26 loss.

"It's a sad way to lose a game," he said, "but nobody's supposed to give you a win. You have to earn it yourself, and you have to play every play."

Michigan (2-1) took a 26-14 lead on Todd Collins' 65-yard pass to Amani Toomer in the third quarter, and there was no more scoring until Colorado (3-0) scored twice in threw three touchdown passes.

was abruptly thrown backwards in-its attempt to capture the team 113. title at the Purdue Invitational Saturday.

Following some strong practices and a good showing at the Iowa Invitational, the Hawkeyes had high expectations heading into West Lafayette, Ind. They had already beaten Illinois and Purdue. Coach Jerry Hassard said the team was shooting for a 69-point performance, but Iowa couldn't pull it off.

Iowa finished in a third-place tie with Purdue in a field of 11 teams. The Hawkeyes fell to Big Ten Conference opponents Wisconsin and Illinois, but beat Indiana. The Hawkeyes' record against Big Ten opponents is now 3-4-1.

Hassard said Iowa was hurt by inexperience and injuries. He said the team needs to work on basic principles to improve their performances. He noted tactical errors, mental distractions, and gaps between runners as being trouble

"I don't think the performance was up to our potential. We were trying to finish second and we didn't reach that goal," Hawkeye runner Erin Boland said.

Wisconsin, ranked fifth nationally, dominated the meet capturing five of the top six positions . The Badgers were led by race winner Kathy Butler (17:59) and second-place finisher Natalie Cote

ROWING

Hassard said.

Iowa rowing coach Mandi Kowal didn't think her team was ready to begin racing, but she was pleased when the Hawkeyes came away with three medals at the Head of the Des Moines Regatta Saturday.

The lightweight four finished 54 seconds behind first-place Minneapolis with a time of 21:49. The silver medalists included Tracey Truhlar, Lisa Tufo, Tracey Ripperda, GiGi Vigue and coxswain Nikki Truhlar. Iowa's open four of Nicole Jentzen, Stephanie Galbreath, Ann Kueter, Heather Weems and Tracey Truhlar won a bronze with a time of 21:17.

The Iowa women's tennis team finished up a strong weekend at the Harvard Invitational as senior Laura Dvorak and junior Nikki Willete claimed the No. 2 doubles

The Hawkeyes wrapped up the final day of competition winning seven out of nine matches.

Coach Micki Schillig said the Hawkeyes' performance was a step in the right direction.

This weekend was definitely a learning experience. What made me proud was that the girls improved every match they played," Schillig said.

They made some mistakes but they learned from them and corrected them the next time

Senior Laura Dvorak, who also placed third in the No. 2 singles, said the competition was tough all weekend.

"The competition was very good. But the team really played consistant and I could see our confidence building as the match went on," Dvorak said.

HARDEES CLASSIC

McCumber outlasts Perry

Rick Gano Associated Press

COAL VALLEY, Ill. - Mark McCumber, playing steady golf all day, won the Hardees Classic on Sunday when Kenny Perry drove into the rough on the final hole and finished with a bogey.

McCumber had a par on No. 18 and closed with a 3-under-par 67 for a total of 15-under 265. It was his second victory of the year, having earlier won the Anheuser-Busch Classic.

Perry had tied for the lead with a birdie at the 16th. He and McCumber matched pars on the 17th before Perry faltered.

Perry hit his tee shot on the 18th to the left, off the fairway, down a Tour victory of his career.

Perry shot a 68 to finish 14-

Two-time defending champion David Frost and Mike Donald finished two strokes behind McCumber at the Oakwood Country Club, which was spared heavy rain for the first time in four days.

McCumber's second shot on 18 landed in the center of the green and he was able to two-putt for the par that gave him the ninth PGA

UI graduate's fierce debut novel explores class in 1950s Midwest

Lisa Anne Taggart The Daily Iowan

The time between sunset and night is one of balance - a period defined by its changeability, its movement away from one thing and toward another. It is an apt image for UI Writers' Workshop graduate Elizabeth Evans' "The Blue Hour.'

Evans' first novel stalls at the moment of profound change in the Powell family as fortune and love pause at the edge of a cliff before hurtling to the depths below.

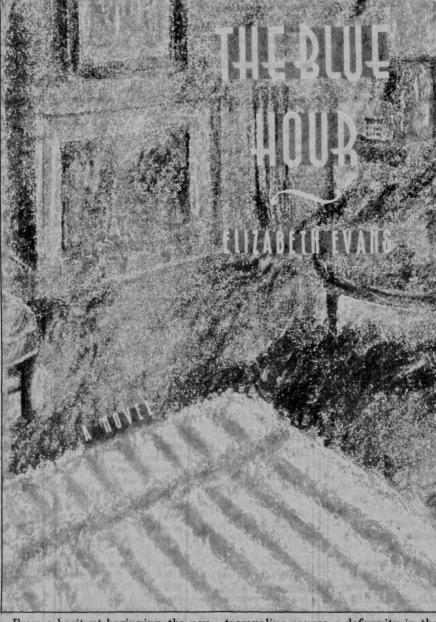

Evans, who will be reading from her work tonight at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., has written a fierce and sentimental book about the decline of a Midwestern family. Set in 1959, the novel follows foolishly optimistic Bob Powell, who has finally discovered a get-rich-quick scheme that will raise his family above its solid Midwestern farm origins.

Moving his family from a small town in Illinois to the larger Meander, Bob brings wife, Dotty, and his two daughters to a world of sophistication, where Dotty learns French, loses weight and step by step rebels against, her constricting suburban housewife role to find a new and powerfully dangerous

Told from the point of view of the 10year-old daughter, Penny, this is a slow-moving but well-wrought book, steeped in the brand names and television shows of the late 1950s. With the doubly informed point of view of an innocent child and a mature woman recollecting her past, Penny's voice is alternately astonishingly naive and condescending in its wisdom. Yet it is a balance that Evans manages surprisingly well, a push and pull perspective Powell family's transition.

From a hesitant beginning, the novel's tension and lyricism builds as the book approaches its dramatic and tragic close. Throughout the novel, the text is peppered with Evans' often stunning detail-focused prose. As Penny watches her deferential mother cooking breakfast for her father and his business partner, she sees her mother's hands have "backs crisscrossed with veins of a turquoise so soft it looked like trails of powder, like something you could blow away with a breath." Later, when town sophisticates Margret Woolum and Chad Bishop enter a room full of most appropriate to describing the Penny's farm relatives, they "warped the space, the way a step down on a WSUI (AM 910).

trampoline causes a deformity in the whole mat.'

In "The Blue Hour," Evans, who now teaches at the University of Arizona, juggles the false optimism and superficiality of her 1950s with undercurrents of class conflict and oppression in an impressively skillful and subtle balancing act. Reading her book is like watching the sky at twilight, waiting for the approach of night, only after some measureless amount of time to realize that it has already arrived.

Tonight's reading is free. It will begin at 8 and will be broadcast live on
