2 injured in car crash near Mayflower Residence Hall

A two-car accident outside Mayflower Residence Hall Sunday night sent two teen-agers to Mercy Hospital with minor injuries.

At about 6 p.m., Douglas Felton and UI junior Heather Cottingham were driving on North Dubuque Street when their car was sideswiped by a car driven by Shawn Knepp, 18, of Coralville. Knepp lost control of his car, which ran into the other car, spun out of control and hit a light post, Iowa City police said. Knepp's car then came to rest beside a tree in the grassy Felton and Cottingham were not hurt but refused to comment. Knepp and his passenger, Shawn Grimm, 19, of Iowa City, were treated and released.

Knepp was charged with failure to have control of his vehicle and Grimm was charged with a seat belt violation.

4 killed in bomb explosion outside church in Iraq

NICOSIA, Cyprus - Three police officers and a church deacon were killed when a bomb hidden in a can of baby formula exploded outside a Baghdad church Sunday, the Iraqi News Agency reported.

The agency, monitored in Cyprus, said three other people passing by the Virgin Mary Chaldean Church were wounded by the bomb, which it estimated contained 41/2 pounds of explosives

The explosion occurred as a police bomb expert was trying to defuse the device, the report said. The bomb expert, his assistant and another police officer were killed instantly, along with the deacon.

A man dressed as Forrest Gump, people pushing babies in strollers and throngs of running, walking and wheeling enthusiasts were among the 5,780 participants crowding the streets of Iowa City Sunday for the 18th annual Parsons Technology Hospice Road Races.

The adult races began at 9 a.m. at the corner of Washington and Gilbert streets, filling the entire block with a sea of tightclad runners from 27 states and five foreign countries.

off, volunteers patrolled the site making sure the runners were safe and the spectators stayed off the course. Among the volunteers were members of the UI greek community, including the Delta Delta Delta sorority, whose members worked traffic and pedestrian control.

Students living in the residence hall said discussion of the fire has cooled, but it seems residents are being more careful about safety.

"No one really talks about it anymore," freshman Angie Gonzalez said. "But people are going to be more careful with candles and with having incense in their rooms.'

Gonzalez and her roommate have a candle in their room even though candles are prohibited. She said the Resident Assistant for her floor will confiscate the candles if she catches students with them.

"It could probably happen to anyone's room," Gonzalez said. "We used to burn our candle every once in a while. Then after the fire my roommate was like, 'Oh my God!' We never burn it now.

Another concern of Burge Residence Hall residents was that the fire alarms failed to ring right away. UI sophomore Jessica Templeton was one of the first to pull the alarms. She said friends later explained to her that the alarms are verified through the front desk before they sound throughout the building, which accounted for the delay.

Residence Hall coordinator Cheryl Hoogerwerf-Reardon could not be reached for comment about possible changes in safety measures and fire protection equipment.

The alarms registered at the Iowa City Fire Department at 7:57 p.m., and the fire department received a call at 7:59 p.m., said Paul Suedkamp, investigator with the Iowa City Fire Marshall's Office.

Keillor remembers 'dumbest thing' ever done

I. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Garrison Keillor has struck few fans the way he struck Ben Ellingson during a live radio show 19 years ago. Keillor recalled how he celebrated the first year "A Prairie Home Companion" by uncorking a bottle of champagne on stage. The cork shot over the heads of the audience and hit Ellingson, then 4, in the forehead as he sat with his parents in the back row.

Keillor brought Ellingson, now 23, on stage during the show's 20th anniversary broadcast Saturday at Fitzgerald Theater. Keillor said uncorking the champagne was "the dumbest thing anybody ever did on a stage." "I listened to the tape recently, and you can hear this child's cry of pain," Keillor said. "And I say in a stricken voice, 'Oh, I'm so sorry. Are you all right?'

After sharing a warm, low-key anniversary celebration with 1,000 people in the audience and listeners on 310 public radio stations, Ellingson said off stage there were no hard feelings.

Halloween is not filled with nonstop excitement for parents who worry about their children's safety.

The Johnson County Safe Kids Coalition, co-sponsored by Mercy Hospital, 500 E. Market St., and the Iowa City Fire Department, focuses on all aspects of children's safety by highlighting tips for Halloween fun.

Despite scare, residents tap into I.C. water supply

Moira Crowley The Daily Iowan

Some of Iowa City's highest officials don't have the "tap water blues" and are drinking the harmonious compound of hydrogen and oxygen straight from the tap despite recent negative publici-

"Tap Water Blues" is a recent study which found high levels of five different pesticides in Iowa City water which allegedly exceed cancer risk levels.

Iowa City police Chief R.J. Winkelhake said he had a water filter put on his faucet. He said

"I think that the water's really good, considering we make it."

Ken Lloyd, manager of the UI water plant when he moved into his house in 1989, the builder advised him to install a filter.

"Generally I forget to use the special gadget and drink it straight from the tap," Winkelhake

Iowa City fire Chief Jim Pumfrey said he also tends to quench his thirst with tap water.

"My five children drink the water, and my wife drank the water during her pregnancy with no fear at all," Pumfrey said.

Ed Moreno, superintendent of the Iowa City Water Treatment Plant, said the new water treatment plant, an estimated $50 million project, should improve filtration.

Water improvements are part of the new Comprehensive Water Facilities plan, which will change Iowa City's water source from the recipient of federal funds may not Iowa River to the shallow wells alongside it. The project should be completed by 1997, Moreno said.

In the meantime, he said, he has a water softener at home which eliminates minerals and limestone from the water. At work, Moreno drinks about eight glasses of tap water a day, along with a couple of cups of coffee.

"(The water softener) actually makes the water taste worse, a little bit more salty," Moreno said. Ken Lloyd, manager of the UI water plant, said he drinks about a gallon of tap water a day unless it's really cold outside.

"I think that the water's really good, considering we make it; Lloyd said.

Ray McCleary, student operator at the UI plant, said he refrigerates his water at home because it tastes better. He prefers UI water to Iowa City water because, he said, the city has hard water and the UI has newer technology that allows for softer water.

Iowa City Mayor Susan Horowitz adamantly supports the quality of Iowa City's water. She said she drinks tap water and finds absolutely nothing wrong

"Have you ever drunk the water outside of Chicago? It tastes like rotten eggs," Horowitz said.

There are still a few people who fear the water or grimace at the taste when they swig it down. Trong Nguyen, a UI junior, said he only drinks bottled water. "I just don't trust the (tap) vater," Nguyen said.

UI junior Dan Adams said he doesn't like the taste of the water. He tries to mask it by adding grape-flavored Kool-Aid and said he never drinks it straight from Sean Miller, a buyer for econo-foods, 1987 Broadway, said that although sales of bottled water are down from last year, business is still good. He said that during last year's flood, drinking water was contaminated and sales of bottled water skyrocketed.

"Compared to other years, bottled water sales are up 4 to 5 percent throughout Iowa," Miller said.

UI junior Vanessa Johnson, who lives off campus, is an avid water drinker and said she doesn't mind drinking tap water.

"It doesn't bother me a bit, except in the spring," she said. "You know, when it gets cloudy and you can eat it with a spoon."

Emergency alarm to sound with new voice

Tom Schoenberg The Daily Iowan

The confusing blare of the Iowa City Severe Weather Warning System sirens, sometimes referred to as the "tornado sirens," will be replaced with a $240,000 voice message system, which is to be installed over the next few weeks.

The new system, which has the capability for both field-generated and prerecorded voice messaging, can announce the exact nature of an emergency, as well as recommended action.

For example, if a tornado was or any other type of emergency. approaching the new system would announce something such as: There was a tornado spotted. Please take cover." The system will also be able to announce other emergencies such as flood warnings and missing children. "If people can hear it, then we can get them the information they need," Iowa City fire Chief Jim Pumfrey said.

VISITORS REPORT GHOST ACTIVITY

Bed and breakfast guests haunted by spooks

Mary Foster Associated Press

ST. FRANCISVILLE, La. - It's midnight at The Myrtles, an antebellum mansion with a dark, bloody history. A bright moon high-lights thick Spanish moss draping the trees and the mist which swirls up from the Mississippi River.

On the wide veranda sit several guests who have paid to spend the night despite - no, make that because of - the ghosts said to roam the house and grounds.

"As soon as we heard about them, we said, "That's where we're going," said Kathy Cavanaugh of Grand Rapids, Mich. "My kids thought it was a hoot when I called them and told them where we were staying.

Debbi Gatten of Monroe brought her mother, Eunice Boyer, visiting from Maryland.

Gatten's fiancé stayed down the road at a motel.

"He had dinner with us and left," Gatten said. "He wouldn't stay here because it's haunted.

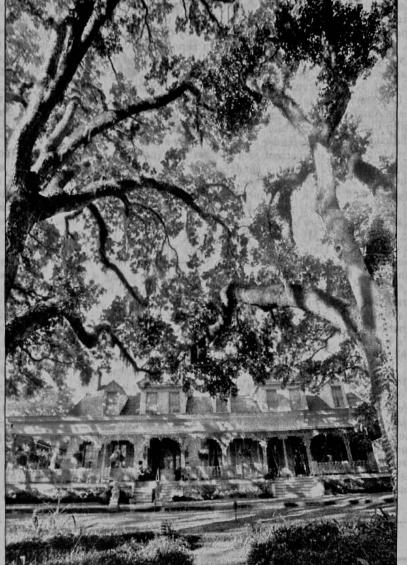

The house, built in 1796, is rumored to be haunted by at least six people. Plus, an American Indian is sometimes seen behind the house; according to legend, the mansion sits on an ancient American Indian burial ground.

When I first heard about the ghosts, I thought they were the greatest marketing ploy ever," said Teeta Moss, who bought The Myrtles with her husband, John, two years ago. "I wasn't a believer then.

But she had heard the legends. Even in West Feliciana Parish, where ghosts are said to be as common as the ancient houses, towering oaks and Civil War battlegrounds, The Myrtles stands out.

Bed and breakfast guests report hearing music, children crying or talking and other strange noises. They also insist they smell perfume in the rooms.

Tour groups flock to the mansion ry.

Guest rooms are always full around Halloween, Moss said. She already has reservations for next year and 1996.

CEASE-FIRE ENDS FEARS

Irish celebrate Halloween without horror

Shawn Pogatchnik Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland -The devil and the skeleton boy leaned against the City Cemetery wall, shared an illicit cigarette and waited for the barrage to begin.

Rockets soon lit up the night sky over Catholic west Belfast, casting the pro-IRA wall murals and nearby British army fortress in red, white and purple - and families stood on their front porches cheering.

"Thems're peace bombs. Better'n the real thing," said 10-year-old Seamus, in skeleton costume, to his satanicly clad classmate, Damien.

For Seamus and thousands of children in Northern Ireland, this is their first Halloween without real fear following cease-fires by the Irish Republican Army and Protestant paramilitaries.

loween more with the peace on, naturally," said Alcwyn McKee, 35, a Protestant youth worker in west Belfast's Shankill Road.

Like the Catholic Falls Road, the Protestant Shankill is celebrating with street parties, discos, drinks and loud fireworks, as it did during most of "the troubles." Children dress up and go door to door, asking for small change rather than candy.

At Queen's University in prosperous south Belfast, the Halloween revelry has reached fever pitch this The separate truces, beginning year - crowded parties with Anglowith the IRA's on Sept. 1, brought American pop and traditional Irish

The joke wore well with some but sent shivers of bad taste through others who remembered what happened last year, when Halloween celebrations at Queen's were canceled as Northern Ireland endured one of its worst periods of murders.

On Sunday, Protestants and Catholics prayed together outside the bar and unveiled a memorial plaque. The Rev. Stephen Kearney, the local Catholic priest, said people were praying for the men who pulled the trigger that night.

HALLOWEEN RITUALS

Modern, not pagan roots

Much has been written in the past week about the traditions and history of Halloween. But little mention has been made of the reality that the modern observance of Halloween has its origins in Christianity, not pagan sock hops or harvest fertility cotillions.

The legend of jack-o'-lanterns, for example, goes back to Ireland and a drinking man named Jack. While he enjoyed his drink, Jack wasn't a dullard - he was able to trick the devil into climbing a tree. And when the devil was up in the branches, Jack carved a cross into the trunk, preventing him from climbing back down.

Jack let him come down only after forcing him to promise not to take his soul.

When Jack finally died and arrived at the pearly gates of heaven, they wouldn't let him in; heaven was no place for drunks. Still seeking a place to spend eternity, Jack took a walk down to the

It was such a long walk that Jack became hungry along the way and stopped at a garden. He was still eating the turnip he found there when he came to the doors of hell. But the devil kept his promise and wouldn't let him in.

"Where shall I go?" Jack asked as the devil turned him away. "The road is very dark."

The devil told Jack to go and threw him a glowing coal to light his way. Jack put the ember inside his turnip and wandered the world with his jack-o'-lantern, looking for his eternal resting place.

Irish children followed this tradition when they hollowed out turnips and potatoes. When the Irish immigrated to the United States in large numbers during the potato famine of the 1840s, they brought the tradition of the jack-o'-lantern with them. They found that the pumpkin made a better lantern than potatoes or turnips, and an American tradition was born.

Today's Halloween, like jack-o'-lanterns, has modern religious roots, not pagan origins.

Ghosts, spirits, phantoms, apparitions, specters, wraiths - all these words describe one thing: the souls of the dead wandering the realm of the living. The idea isn't satanic, but it is as Christian as raising the dead or the Holy Ghost.

Halloween began as Allhallows' Eve, a festival celebrated in medieval England. Many believed the souls of the dead visited their former homes on the holy evening of Oct. 31, the eve of All

All Saints' Day in Western Christian churches celebrates all the saints of the church. One day later, the Roman Catholic Church recognizes All Souls' Day.

All Souls' Day celebrates the departed souls. It's believed that prayers for the departed will help prepare them for heaven.

If medieval holidays and religious observances are any indication, between the time souls start making house calls on Halloween and when they receive their final departure notices Tuesday to cross the river Styx and enter the land of the dead, you stand a ghost of a chance of seeing a departed soul.

Good luck, and happy Halloween.

PARENTAL NOTIFICATION BILL

Reproductive health care

Carlier this year, the Iowa House of Representatives narrowly passed a parental notification bill which would require girls under the age of 18 to get their parents' consent before obtaining an abortion. Luckily the bill died in a Senate committee, but it was nonetheless frightening that Iowa lawmakers were willing to endanger young women's health by restricting rather than expanding their access to reproductive health care. Apparently proponents of the bill have had little experience with teen-agers in rural Iowa, or they would be aware of the real problem: the lack of options young women have in obtaining birth control. It is this lack of options which leads to a high teen-age pregnancy (and hence abortion) rate - not the knowledge that abortions are available without parental consent.

In most rural Iowa towns, the nearest birth control provider is more than an hour's drive away. If a teen-ager doesn't want to confide in her parents, this distance creates several obstacles to her attaining birth control and health care. She worries first about making an appointment because a long-distance phone call will show up on her parents' telephone bill. Second, she needs transportation to the clinic. Third, she must provide an excuse for missing school because the clinics are not open on weekends. This scenario is repeated every time she needs follow-up care.

If she doesn't manage to overcome these obstacles, she has three options: abstain from sex, buy condoms from the local pharmacist, who probably goes to church with her parents, or simply have sex anyway and pray. Most choose option three.

If she does get pregnant and decides to have an abortion, these obstacles are manifested several times over because an abortion provider might be several hundred miles away. At this point, most young women tell their parents of their plight and receive help. Those who don't may be victims of abuse or simply unwilling to introduce this element of their lives to their parents.

Supporters of parental notification say they will allow a young woman to obtain consent from a judge rather than her parents if she is in an abusive situation. But this is a thoroughly unrealistic alternative in small Iowa communities, where confidentiality is compromised because the judge will undoubtedly know the girl and

All of these factors work together to put young women's health at risk. If they must inform their parents or a judge about their situation, they are liable to wait longer into their pregnancy before seeking help, leading to a higher rate of second-trimester abortions.

Despite these facts, a parental notification bill is suggested year after year in Iowa and has Gov. Branstad's support. Yet there is never talk of increasing young women's access to birth control in rural areas. If Iowa citizens and lawmakers truly want to cut down on the number of teen-age pregnancies, they must get to the root of the problem and make reproductive health care readily available to all women, regardless of age and geography.

Sex survey results handle with care

Nobody trumpeted the tabulations better than Time magazine. Our old pal, on its Oct. 17 cover, got our attention with the words "Sex in America. Surprising news from the most important survey since the Kinsey Report."
What we got should surprise no one. The cover story was an analysis of the recently released University of Chicago survey of bedroom behavior in America. In the first paragraph, author Philip Elmer-Dewitt set the tone of the piece by focusing on two things: sexual insecurity and Eve's temptation in Eden by the serpent. Clearly, Elmer-Dewitt and Time were mad to reassure us that old-fashioned attitudes about sex were alive and well and nothing to be ashamed of.

They would seem to be correct on all counts. The Chicago study was conducted in a much less suspect manner than its infamous predecessor, the Kinsey Report. Results came from exhaustive face-to-face interviews with a random sampling of about 3,500 Americans between the ages of 18 and 59. Survey procedure followed established traditions from the social sciences.

What did we learn about sex in America? For starters, we seem to think about it a lot more than we do it, and men seem to think about it and do it a lot more than women.

Fifty-four percent of men think about sex every day, compared to 19 percent of women, while 56 percent of American men have had five or more partners in a lifetime, compared to 30 percent of women. (By the way, women, that 30 percent is nothing to sneeze at. Fourteen percent of French women reported five or more partners, as did 20 percent of British women, while Finland's women rule the world with 34

Adultery is not at all as commonplace as our best-seller lists would have us believe - 94 percent of married people reported maintaining fidelity over the past year. Then again, perhaps 1993 was just an off year for mischief. The pollen counts were abnormally high, as I recall.

Some turbulence disturbed the serene river of reassuring data produced by the study. Twentytwo percent of women reported having been forced to perform sexual acts they did not care to, "usually by someone they loved," while only 3 percent of men reported doing any forcing.

Only 4 percent of respondents reported having sex with someone of the same gender in the past year, while 10.9 percent reported engaging in same-gender sex at least once since puberty and 10.6 percent said they were attracted to people of the same gender. Look for someone to latch onto the 4 percent as "proof" that homosexuals are a miniminority clamoring too loudly for too much protection while resolutely ignoring the more bothersome attraction stats.

My favorite accidental self-disclosure in Time's coverage came from Elmer-Dewitt, who wrote of oral sex, "Not surprisingly, both men and women preferred receiving it to giving it." I wonder if his belle or beau still speaks to him.

Among several findings sure to upset people, the study's conclusions about AIDS may draw the heaviest fire. It reports that homosexuals' social circles are so tightly enclosed that chances are slim for any widespread heterosexual HIV infection to occur. It argues on the same basis with regard to IV drug users and concludes that resources in the fight against AIDS should be concentrated overwhelmingly within these two

That conclusion points out the most serious flaw with sexual behavior surveys: Talking about sex is difficult at best. And straight talk about socially stigmatized sexual behaviors is an unlikely outcome of any survey, regardless of how well-trained the interviewers are. The fact that 11 percent of the survey population revealed to interviewers an ongoing attraction to persons of the same gender - while almost precisely the same percentage admitted acting on that attraction at least once as adults - indicates the imprudence of basing public health recommendations on any of the gathered data.

The sweetest (or smarmiest, depending on your view) thing the magazine did was roll Garrison Keillor onto center stage in his Radio Flyer wagon for the purposes of reiterating how lovely it is to be soothed by this solid survey. How right and true it is, he said, and how good it feels, to finally have confirmed that monogamy is sexy. ("Good old monogamy," he, of course, called it.) "This survey is going to lift a huge burden off our backs," he said.

I don't mean to rain on this parade, but I don't believe we should allow a sex survey to lift any huge burden off America's back, let alone help us decide how to distribute resources for AIDS education and research. Surveys are based on what people are willing to say. If there is one lesson that marks our passage into adulthood, it is that what people say is usually not the same as what they do. In no other area of human conduct is this tendency to fib as pronounced as in the area of sex.

The study affirms many of society's sexual norms, which have been bashed for a long while now and deserve a moment in the sun. It was clearly conducted so as to provide the best information to date about American sexual behavior. But we mustn't let the results blind us to the inherent flaws of such surveys, nor can we afford to close our eyes to the social and legal manifestations of our ongoing hypocrisy about sex. Perhaps the most dangerous thing about the Chicago survey is that it tempts us to do just a book, reading it would be a good place to start. Unfortunately, Charles Murray and Richard J. Hernstein didn't get that courtesy from the horde of opinion writers tripping all over themselves to piously denounce the racism they think they found in "The Bell Curve.

Reading it would be a good place to start

All anyone would have to do to understand what "The Bell Curve" is about is to read the subtitle: "Intelligence and Class Structure in American Life." I guess that was too much to ask. From reading Ellen Goodman, Donald Kaul or any of a dozen other national and local writers, a reasonable person could conclude the book was subtitled "Why blacks are less intelligent than us and what we need to do to stop them from reproducing.

The criticism of Murray and his book ranges from the simply ignorant to the wildly hysterical, but it all takes advantage of the fact that it's easier to disagree with someone when you don't bother to find out what they are saying.

Some startlingly misinformed commentators complain that "The Bell Curve" gives little regard to environmental factors. If they had bothered to open the book to the chapter on unemployment, they would have found that in every analysis Murray does of the effect of intelligence on unemployment he also includes an analysis of the effect that socioeconomic status has on unemployment. The same holds true for every chapter.

Murray also gives environmental factors their due when discussing what effect they have on intelligence. Murray states that scientists are unsure and makes clear that environmental factors could account for from 20 percent to 60 per-

If you are going to criticize cent of variation among individuals. He selects Its most startling conclusions are about the role 40 percent for use in his analysis. Murray does anything but ignore the issue.

> Another complaint about "The Bell Curve" is that its research doesn't matter. Richard Cohen wrote, "It's not that I can dispute 'The Bell Curve.' I can, however, ask why this data matters any." The answer is simple: Our society is beset by an ever increasing number of social problems that are seemingly harder and harder o solve. The only way to confront them effectively is to fully understand them - even when that new understanding makes us exceedingly uncomfortable.

Jesse Jackson has suggested that the statistics in "The Bell Curve" may be accurate, but they seldom have much to do with reality and shouldn't be something upon which we base public policy. Jackson is one who supports the idea of using statistical disparities in hiring to convict eople and companies of racial discrimination. Either statistics matter or they don't.

Other authors claim the book is "fanning racist sentiments" and will be used to justify the political views of racist groups. The problem with that view is the book doesn't seriously discuss race until 300 pages into the 500 pages of text, and then only within the context of the stunning ambiguity and uncertainty the subject entails.

However, the media coverage, like that of Newsweek's cover story, simplifies and amplifies the racial questions raised by "The Bell Curve." They have distilled the most racist interpretation possible of Murray's book and made it accessible to people without the brains or energy to actually read "The Bell Curve." If anyone is fanning the fires of racist sentiment, it's the media who have misrepresented Murray.

of intelligence in determining success in life.

The data Murray has assembled, while it has been almost universally celebrated in the conservative press and reviled in the mainstream and liberal presses, is the most profound threat to conservative ideas and policy since the Great

If you read and believe Murray's positive analysis, the clear conclusion is that people are poor, criminals, on welfare or unemployed, in general, because they are rather unintelligent, and people are unintelligent mostly because of their genes - something for which they have no responsibility.

The central tenet of conservative social policy is that people are responsible for their own situations, and the best thing we can do for them is to force them to take responsibility for themselves. If Murray is right, people are substantially pre-disposed to their lot in life when the sperm

Goodman argued, "We're much more likely to adopt the stance that nature is immutable and that lets us off the hook." Others have written that Murray's book relieves the consciences of white people.

'The Bell Curve" does exactly the opposite. If some people are unintelligent through no fault of their own and have therefore failed, ending up unemployed, on welfare or in jail, what reason do we have for not helping them?

The liberal cure-all of throwing money at the underclass has failed over the last 30 years, but Murray's research leads to doubt about the conservative solutions. "The Bell Curve" is a place to start groping for a new way to confront the growing problems of our underclass.

WASHINGTON - Republicans are threatening some of the country's most imposing governors in bitter elections a week from Tuesday that will challenge Democratic dominance in Texas, Florida, New York and other states large and

The most prominent Republican governors all appeared heading for re-election, according to an Associated Press analysis.

The political leadership of a huge swath of America hangs in the balance Nov. 8, when voters in 36 states will select governors. With little more than a week to go, the Associated Press analysis found nearly a dozen races that still remain pretty close Democrats with their careers on the line include New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, who has been an eloquent national voice for a decade, and Texas Gov. Ann Richards, whose famously folksy put-downs of former President Bush are coming back to haunt her in the form of a stiff challenge from one of Bush's sons.

Some of the safest incumbents are Midwestern Republicans among them George Voinovich in Ohio, Jim Edgar in Illinois and John Engler in Michigan. Their popularity assures the GOP control of at least three of the eight largest California Gov. Pete Wilson could be the fourth. He still leads Democrat Kathleen Brown in state polls despite a late-breaking decline associated with the sagging popularity of an anti-immigrant initiative he Also coming on strong are two of Bush's sons, George W. and Jeb. They've got at least even chances of toppling Richards in Texas and Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles, a former three-term senator who has never lost an election. Pennsylvania also could move into the GOP column.

"The Republicans still seem headed for gains, particularly in key states," said independent analyst Stuart Rothenberg.

"The climate around the country is hurting a lot of incumbents. There's an apathy and a cynicism that's out there."

Don Sweitzer, political director of the Democratic National Committee

Recent polls suggest the tide may be turning slightly. Cuomo, for example, moved from certain goner to potential survivor in multiple polls last week. He was in a dead heat with Republican legislator George Pataki after months of lagging well behind.

But the overall momentum so far remains with Republicans. Their voters are energized by an array of ballot initiatives and the prospect of congressional takeovers. Democrats, struggling to rouse their traditional labor and minority base, are hampered by President Clinton's relatively low popularity and vaguely defined public anger toward incumbents - most of whom are Democ-

"Our problem starts with the fact that we've got more seats to protect," said Don Sweitzer, political director of the Democratic National Committee. "The climate around the country is hurting a lot of incumbents. There's an apathy and a cynicism that's out there."

The current governor breakdown is 29 Democrats, 20 Republicans and one independent. At stake this election are 21 Democratic posts, 13 Republican; and the single independent, in Connecticut.

An Associated Press review of the races shows 11 are safe or leaning Democratic; 14 are safe or leaning Republican and 11 are too close to call. The toss-up states are Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas and Wyoming.

"I think you'll see Republicans picking up at least six and as high as 10 states," predicted independent analyst Charles Cook.

Democrats are poised to take over three states now held by Republicans - Alaska, Arizona and Maine. Republicans expect gains in Connecticut and Democrat-held Kansas and New Mexico.

Even if Democrats end up holding more than half the states, that won't necessarily make them win-

"All governorships are not equal," Cook said. "The raw numbers of governorships held are really fairly irrelevant. The question is, are the Republicans going to have every major state in the country?"

8 states slated to vote on term limits

Associated Press

Term limits, the '90s mantra of the cranky American voter, returns Nov. 8 on eight statewide ballots. If the measures pass as expected, the endlessly incumbent politician will be marked for extinction in nearly half the states.

And a hugely successful movement will reach a turning point.

Does it rest on its victories or term limits. press on and try to make term limits the law of the land?

The reply to that question also hinges on the U.S. Supreme Court. On Nov. 29 the court will hear arguments in an Arkansas case brought by the League of Women Voters questioning whether that state, like 16 others that have Unified Program coordinator Richard Sjolund also heard complaints about the course but refused to express his opinion.

"I don't think it would be appropriate," he said. "We have forums where we address such problems, and The Daily Iowan is not the place where I plan to do it."

Church said Schoenbaum made it difficult for him to drop the class.

"When I went to talk to him about dropping, he pulled me into the hall and was very confrontational," he said. "He said it was the best course on campus and I should stay with it. I agreed to stay for one more class time but made an appointment with him. At the appointment, he just stared at me and later refused to sign my drop slip."

Sjolund finally signed the drop slip, and Church dropped the class.

"Professor Sjolund was pretty sympathetic," he said.

Other students, like O'Reilly and

UI sophomore Todd Kinney, have decided to stick with the class.

"At first, I didn't want to get off track with my GERs, and I was worried about jumping into another class a few weeks into the semester," Kinney said. "Now, I'd have to take a 'W,' and I've put too much time into it just to quit now. I think that's just self-evident," he said.

Schoenbaum cares about the students. I just don't think he's in touch. I keep hoping the more we work with him, things will get bet-

O'Reilly, however, said initial efforts to work with Schoenbaum to improve the situation were unsuc-

"We talked to him as a group and we were hopeful," she said. "The class time after we talked, he was lecturing and paused to ask if anyone needed anything explained. I thought that this was a turning point for him, but when someone said yes, he got angry and started yelling that it was easy material and we should be able to get it."

In a later interview, O'Reilly said the class has gotten better.

"There's been improvement in the last few lectures," she said. "I don't want this to reflect on the Unified Program. I would recommend it to anyone who is coming to the univer-

Sgt. Richard Wyss of the Iowa City Police Department said although it's Halloween, the police won't take any extra measures in patrolling the downtown area.

"Halloween hasn't been one of our difficult nights," Wyss said. "We're not doing anything more than the usual routine bar checks."

tonight. We're in medical school so we pretty much have to. It's just like any other Monday night."

For those living in the residence halls, a nonalcoholic Halloween party will take place in the Main Lounge of Rienow Residence Hall. Resident Assistant Sabetha Clark, who organized the event, said last year's party went well.

"The purpose for the Halloween party is to be an alcohol-free alternative," she said. "I think a lot of people went out Friday and Saturday night, but a lot of people will still be going out Monday. Those people who want to go out and party do, and Halloween is just another excuse.

Polls split on No. 1

(AP) - After posting their most impressive victories of the season, Penn State and Nebraska felt they deserved to be No. 1. Both got their wish Sunday.

Nebraska, which defeated previously unbeaten Colorado 24-7 Saturday, was No. 1 in The Associated Press media poll. Penn State, which trounced Ohio State 63-14, was No. 1 in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll.

"We definitely feel we're No. " Penn State cornerback Brian Miller said. "I've never been on a team like this before. It's unbelievable.

Nebraska linebacker Troy Dumas was just as adamant.

"We're No. 1, plain and simple," he said. "Everyone who downgrades us can't do that anymore."

Nebraska, third in the AP poll last week behind No. 1 Penn State and No. 2 Colorado, rose to first after ending the Buffaloes' 11-game winning streak. But Penn State held on to the top spot in the coaches' poll after handing Ohio State its worst loss in 48 years.

Weekend split leaves Iowa in third

Chris Snider

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa field hockey team experienced an entire season's worth of thrill and agony in two games this weekend.

On Friday, the No. 13 Hawkeyes put together one of their most solid ames of the season, defeating No. 6 Ohio State, 6-0, at Grant Field.

Nancy McLinden started the Hawkeye ambush with an unassisted goal 12 minutes into the game. From there, Debbie Humpage and Diane DeMiro each scored a pair of goals and Mary Kraybill added an insurance marker to give Iowa the victory.

But the Hawkeyes couldn't carry the momentum over to Sunday's game against No. 7 Penn State.

"That's the best game we've played during the season," Coach Beth Beglin said of the Ohio State victory. "We had consistency all the way through the game. We played ing in a penalty corner with 21:23 very well for a full 70 minutes. (Against Penn State), we played very, very well at times. The times that we didn't play well killed us."

to go. Sharon Kuntz and Jill Pearsall both assisted on the shot, giving the Lions a 1-0 halftime

Iowa, who was yet to come back from a halftime deficit this season, hoped to end that streak against the Lady Lions.

But Penn State goalkeeper Shelly Meister had other plans. Meister turned back all 14 Iowa shots that came her way, and shut Iowa out for the second time this

Iowa had ample opportunities to score, compiling 13 corners on the day and 10 in the second half alone, but could not convert. Twice, it appeared Humpage had cleared the Penn State defense, but both goals were ruled too high and not allowed. "We had lots of opportunities

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. - At the beginning of the season, Iowa coach Hayden Fry said he expected quarterback Matt Sherman to be a leader.

Sherman did not disappoint Saturday as he led the Hawkeyes to three fourth-quarter touchdowns in Iowa's 21-21 tie at Purdue.

"Matt Sherman came in, the first time, and did a super job of rallying the team - moving the ball down the field," Fry said.

Sherman entered the game with 4:13 left in the third quarter when starting quarterback Mike Duprey left the game with an eye injury. Duprey had been ineffective, scrambling out of the pocket and completing two of nine passes for 23 yards. Although Sherman only had one completion Saturday, he made it count. On the first play of the fourth quarter, the Hawkeyes were down 13-0 and faced third down and eight. Sherman dropped back,

'After (the completion) I was like 'I'm going to do fine. I just have to settle down, play the ball game that I can do and be the leader out " Sherman said after the game. "We believed in ourselves. We knew we could do it and finally we got it turned around and things just started clicking for us."

Sherman's only other pass attempt was a bomb to Anthony Dean at the end of the game. The play went out of bounds as the Purdue quarterback Billy Dicken stretches for a controversial twopoint conversion as Iowa's Bobby Diaco brings him down. The play brought the game to a 21-21 tie in the fourth quarter.

"I can't comment because we have a gag rule in the Big Ten." Iowa had its opportunity to answer the Boilermaker score, but after driving to the Purdue 42, fullback Kent Kahl was stopped on a fourth and one.

For a while, it appeared Iowa was going to get blown away as it had in its three other road games this season, but Purdue botched several scoring chances.

The Boilermakers moved the ball effectively for the first three quarters building a 13-0 lead, but Iowa was still within striking distance thanks to two missed field goals and a fumble that stopped another whole time," Purdue coach Jim Colletto said. "You just can't go through these lulls.'

Purdue scoring chance. "You've got to play hard the tie is extremely unfortunate."

Meanwhile Iowa's offense was stagnant until quarterback Matt Sherman replaced Mike Duprey late in the third quarter.

Iowa exploded for 21 points in less than five minutes on a oneyard run by Kahl, a 38-yarder by Tavian Banks and a 39-yard scamper by Sedrick Shaw.

"That second half was a thing of beauty," Fry said.

"I'm extremely proud of our football team the way they battled back in the second half, moved the ball with consistency and shut down Purdue. To have it end in a

WOLVERINES REPEAT

Michigan tames Finkbine

Shannon Stevens The Daily Iowan

Iowa coach Jerry Hassard said before the Big Ten Championships that he wanted to see some "magic"

But Hassard's bag of tricks was in his team's running perfor-

only half full.

Michigan defeated a field of 10 teams to capture its third straight Big Ten title by blistering its opponents with a quick first mile on a hilly Finkbine course.

The Wolverines were led by freshman Deanna Arnill, who won the individual title in 17 minutes, four seconds. Michigan captured three of the top four spots and placed seven runners in the top 20.

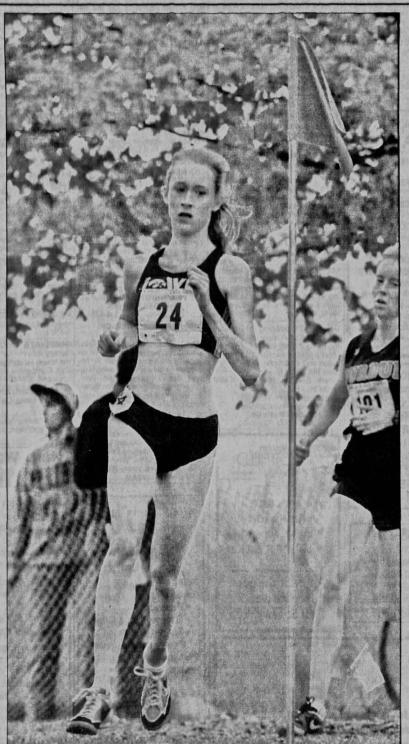

Michigan effectively grouped five runners up front around Wisconsin junior Kathy Butler. Michigan won with 29 points.

"I think it really took some starch out of Wisconsin and Penn State," Hassard said. "It was a surprise for me to see a team hammer the first mile like that. It's a very tough part of the course.'

Wisconsin finished second with 68 points followed by Penn State (81). Iowa finished eighth (186).

Senior Erin Boland led the Hawkeyes with her sixth-place finish in 17:39. Sophomores Kiersten Pauling and Becky Coleman also posted top 40 finishes.

Boland's performance placed her on the All Big Ten team, an honor earned by placing in the top seven at the Big Ten Championships. Boland is only the ninth runner in Iowa history to receive this honor.

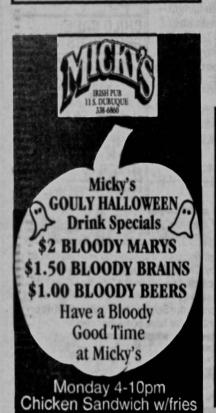

Iowa's Briana Benning placed 78th at the Big Ten Championships Saturday at Finkbine. Benning ran the 5,000-meter course in 19:54.

Hawkeyes fall short of 100 wins

Ninety-nine wins and holding. The Iowa women's swimming team came up short on its attempt to win its 100th dual meet when the Hawkeyes fell to Purdue 183-118 Saturday afternoon at the Field House Pool. The Hawkeyes fell to 0-1 overall while Purdue improved to 2-0. Although Iowa didn't pick up the victory, Hawkeye coach Pete Kennedy said he was very pleased with the effort.

"The effort was definitely there. We swam tough and things just didn't work out. But these are really good early season times, Kennedy said.

Iowa senior J.J. DeAth captured first place in the 100 and 200 backstroke in times of 55.93 seconds and 2:10.51 respectively. Teammate Jennifer Maehl won the 50 freestyle in 25.23. Sophomore Kelly McCready won the No. 1 and No. 3 diving events with scores of 249.6 and 271.65 respectively.

The Boilermakers were led by junior Amy Fristch, who won the 100 and 200 butterfly and led the 200 medley relay team to victory. Purdue sophomore Becky Ritz won the 100 and 200 freestyle. She also was on the winning 400 freestyle relay.

Things looked a little different poolside for the Boilermakers as head coach Cathy Wright-Eger didn't make the trip. Instead assistant coach Ginger Faerber-DeCoursey took over for Purdue. DeCoursey said she was really thought Iowa swam especially day afternoon.

ROUND

"Iowa swam really tough today. know that Coach Kennedy has a really young squad but they have a core of fine swimmers and they are only going to get better." DeCoursey said.

Iowa will next return to action when it hosts Penn State and Wisconsin Nov. 4-5.

WOMEN'S GOLF

After two days of competition, the Iowa women's golf team finds itself in fourth place at the Pat Bradley Invitational in Miami, Florida.

The Hawkeyes fell from second place on Friday after the first round to fourth by adding 16 strokes to their daily total.

South Florida currently leads the three-day event by 18 strokes and has led both rounds.

Freshman Lisa Hed led all Iowa golfers with a first-round total of three over, 75, tied for sec-

Hed's play faltered on Saturday following an 85.

Iowa's best second round was turned in by junior Jennifer Bak-er-Nodland. She has a two-round total of 155.

The tournament, held at Don happy with her team's effort but Shula's golf club, concluded Sun-

VOLLEYBALL

The Iowa volleyball team dropped to 6-6 in the Big Ten with a pair of losses on the road last weekend.

On Friday, fifth-ranked Ohio State knocked off the Hawkeyes in four games for the second time this season, 15-11, 15-4, 16-18, 15-9. Iowa fell again to No. 4 Penn State on Saturday, 15-7, 15-

Katy Fawbush led the Hawkeyes in kills both nights, with 16 against Ohio State and 13 against Penn State.

Fawbush said that the Hawkeyes played tough, but they were inconsistent.

"Against Penn State, we played hard. We played well," she said. "But Penn State's just a tougher

"We played inconsistent all weekend. We were up 8-1 at one point and we couldn't win the game.

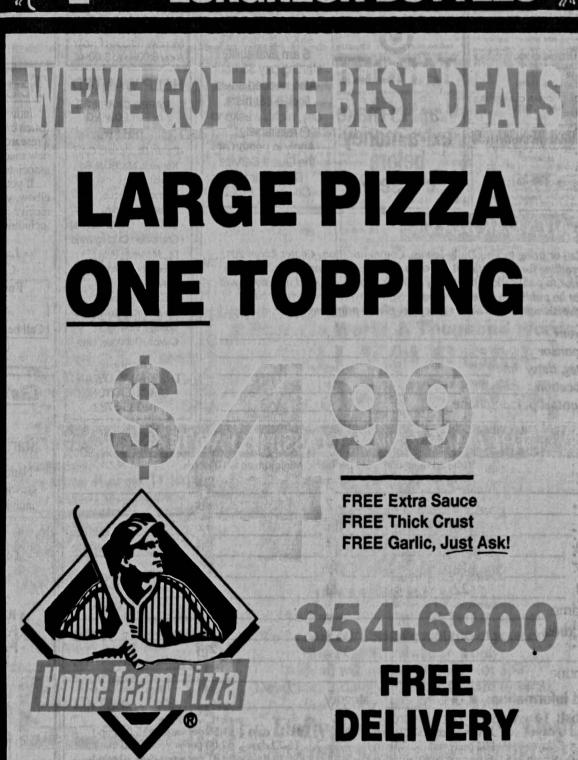

Fawbush said that Iowa is still in good shape in the Big Ten. The Hawkeyes won't face the conference's two toughest opponents again during the regular season.

"We're definitely in the top half of the Big Ten," Fawbush said. We can still finish third or fourth. The teams we have left on our schedule are teams we can beat if we just play together like we know we can.'

The Hawkeyes host Minnesota Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Carver Hawkeye Arena.

Brisk, invigorating 'Stargate' returns wonder to sci-fi film

Tad Paulson The Daily Iowan

"Stargate" is perhaps the best science-fiction film to be cranked out of the greased-up Hollywood machine in years. It's got everything a moviegoer could want mystery, romance, laser blasts, aliens, the pyramids of Egypt and Jaye Davidson. Conceptually brilliant and visually stunning, it breathes much needed life into a genre that's been sadly waning ever since James Cameron turned his talented attentions to spies and Spiderman.

With the exception of the ongoing "Star Trek" saga, studios cringe at risking their funding on big-budget, special effects-laden fantasies without guarantee of a chunky cash return.

Thus, modern sci-fi productions are helmed by a small pool of megastars such as Arnold Schwarzenegger ("Total Recall"), Sylvester Stallone ("Demolition Man") and Jean-Claude Van Damme ("Timecop") - beefy actors who can carry flicks to the box office on name alone, despite their dramatic shortcomings. Their films are entertaining, but they lack the smart punch of original '80s-era blasters like "Outland," "Alien" and "Blade Runner."

"Stargate" may hopefully get the meteor careening the other way again. It's a no holds barred adventure flick that stars a decidedly unbuff James Spader. Spader, who has spent most of his career stuck playing sneering jerks in films like 'Wolf" and "Less Than Zero," brings a '90s "sensitive guy' approach to his role that's both refreshing and invigorating. He's perfectly cast.

Spader plays Daniel Jackson, a busted Egyptologist whose theories on the origins of the pyramids have been earning him guffaws, not grants. Then, one day, Jackson is recruited by a wizened government scientist (Viveca Lindfors) to investigate and interpret the symbols on an ancient stone portal found in Egypt. He jumps at the opportuni-

Also involved with the project is steely-faced Colonel Jonathan "Jack" O'Neil (Kurt Russell), a military man shattered over the accidental death of his son. It's O'Neil's job to make sure the interests of humanity are protected from whatever's on the other side of the portal (which Jackson, of course, determines is called the Stargate). O'Neil takes his job very seriously and regards Jackson's open-eyed curiosity with thinly veiled contempt. Jackson cracks the code of the Stargate and accompanies O'Neil and a team of crack commandos through to the other side. There they find a desert world located somewhere on the opposite end of the universe, where a populace of ragged miners live under the powerful influence of their revered semihuman god, Ra.

Suffice it to say, much of "Stargate" involves Jackson and O'Neil reconciling their personal differences and uniting with the planet's people to battle Ra, played with uncanny, eerie effectiveness by Davidson — the well-kept "secret" of "The Crying Game." Even though Davidson's voice is reduced to a garble of electronic noise, his glowing eyes and contorting expressions lend the role of Ra all it needs to work. He's a great villain, frightening and vengeful.

Director Roland Emmerich, whose most notable previous work was the Van Damme-Dolph Lundgren stinker "Universal Soldier," has really found his niche with the look and feel of "Stargate." The film's special effects, which revolve mainly around the Stargate, a giant mutating pyramid and the morphing headgear of Ra and his guards, are simply astounding to watch. There's a real feeling of foreboding atmosphere, which helps immensely when the script's few weak moments show through. The screenplay, co-written by Emmerich and Dean Devlin, is admittedly formulaic at its core (you know, the workers control the means of production and all that), but the writers have an ear for spunky dialogue, which Spader and Russell both capitalize on, and

James Spader and Kurt Russell star in "Stargate," a sparkling sciencefiction adventure with a '90s look and an '80s punch.

Egypt is infectious. It's sort of like "Dune" meets "Aliens" meets "Sphinx." Crazy as it sounds, it

Most importantly, there's a sense of childlike wonder that permeates "Stargate," seen primarily through Jackson's eyes. This is integral to the overall effectiveness of any scifi flick - that feeling that the the century).

the film's fascination with ancient impossible is possible, that the truly illusory and fantastic really exist somewhere and can somehow become linked to our own lives.

That spirit - the stuff of dreams - lives on in "Stargate." Go see it and enjoy (and pray George Lucas gets off his butt and starts writing and filming those three "Star Wars" prequels before the end of

Count On Us! The Wal-Mart Routine

John,

Manager

So often we consider the "routine" of life dull and insignificant. We don't realize how much we count on "everyday" events until they're absent from our lives. Many of you have grown up with Wal-Mart. You're used to finding friendly service, quality merchandise and prices that Corey, Department Manager continue to fall despite trends the seem to make prices soar everywhere else. For many of you, shopping at Wal-Mart has become part of your routine. Perhaps you des't really.

Manager Perhaps you don't really notice a "Made in the USA" sign or an even lower everyday low price. We're happy about that because we're proud to be something you count on. And just as you count on us, we count on you to continue shopping with our friendly associates, like the ones you see in this ad. You'll find them in our Minnesota and Wisconsin stores, ready to make the most of your routine.

Bring It Home To The

What's the perfect accessory for your home electronics center?

— a Popular Mechanics**
multiple outlet device by Power Sentry, Inc., of course!

This Eden Prairie, MN, business holds a place in Wal-Mart history as our first Buy American success story.

Beginning as a 100% import company in 1988, Power Sentry soon teamed up with Wal-Mart and is now the only power outlet manufacturer to supply a 100% Made in the USA product!

Besides providing jobs for American workers like those shown here, Power Sentry has also revitalized communities by opening their plants in towns like Wheaton,

MN, which had lost 1,500 residents in only 5 years. Since Power Sentry's arrival, however, the nowprospering city has over 600 new residents.

We congrat-ulate all of our vendor partners who help us "bring it home to the USA!"

Walt Disney's Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs Disney's most legendary masterpiece available at Wal-Mart October 28!

"Christmastime has always been my favorite season in our toy department. It's really a great feeling to be able to get excited about coming to work each morning and seeing all the new toys, and to be able to share that excitement with everyone else is even better. There is one item, however, that I really look forward to seeing each year, and that is Wal-Mart's Snowflake Teddy Bears. Each year they manage to improve these little guys and gals so they're never quite the same. Each one has been labeled with the particular year it was made — perfect for symbolizing a baby's first Christmas or any other occasion to be cherished forever. So just take a minute and go to your local Wal-Mart and see the 1994 version of our Snowflake Teddy Bears. Tell them Erika sent you."
