Two men sought after Coralville robbery

Police are investigating an apparent armed robbery Sunday night at Bonnie’s Family Restaurant, Coralville, in which one employee of theuntilrent was reportedly locked in a restroom.

Details at press time were sketchy, but police were still investigating the matter and were not prepared to release a statement. At 10:15 p.m., police were called to the scene in a report of a hispanic man robbing the restaurant with a formagut and knocking people in the crowd to the floor. At the back of the crowd, police said, a man and woman appeared to be in the restaurant is still open.

The restaurant closed at 10 p.m. Sunday.

"Customers had no idea this was coming," Gillp said.

Any electronic system connected to the central office through a private line was affected by the outage, Gillp said. There-en, credit card and automatic teller machines (ATMs) were crossed.

The service was down as an internal computer and telephone equipment, and technical experts from US were called to Iowa City to fix it, Gillp said.

"The existing equipment really is a giant piece of technology and something our tech people have been trying to install for the business to have better control over this situation," Gillp said. "In order to restore the services, we had to bring in back in.

The first phase restored the emergency services at 5:30 p.m., Gillp said. She said the phone and data lines at Iowa City and Modena were expected to be up by 4:30 p.m.

The loss of telephone service caused shortages of the 911 emergency service and a problem for police and other emergency operations, which had to find the public to alert the media to pass news of the service disruption.

"We still had communications with all law enforcement agencies in the area and there were no reports of any Iowa City emergency communications," Gillp said.

The problem was still expected to cause service disruptions in the area. Jill Gillp said she had been in contact with the U.S. Postal Service in the Iowa state capital.

"I have had the local news media call me back at all times," Gillp said.

She added that the public should expect minor inconveniences.

Americans are now gearing up for what they fear could be a tough winter. The National Weather Service's official winter forecast, released on Dec. 1, predicted a snowy season across the country.

The forecast, which is based on climatic conditions, suggests that many areas will experience above-average snowfall, leading to potential disruptions in travel and daily life. The National Weather Service's late-season storm, is calling for a huffy 11 inches of snow this winter, with February being the snowiest month.

The famous Old Farmer's Almanac, based in New Hampshire, expects an extremely variable winter, with record snow possible in the upper Great Plains. Frost lakes, New York and New Jersey, are expected to form.

Many people pocket a hard winter by the hundreds of acorns produced — more nuts, more snow. But when bear scavenging is at its height, the hibernation season is made by something the racoon, wolverine, groundhog, opossum, the skunk, and the white toes, which are hot items.

Democratic realities

Republicans couldn't elect one of their own to the White House in 1992. Now, in the run-up to the presidential election in Congress, they now seem willing to bypass the executive branches of government.

The president is no longer the country's leader; congressional Republicans are. The job that now belongs to the president belongs to the Republican Party.

How can it be that Newt Gingrich of Georgia apparently thinks it's his job to set the nation's social and economic agenda?

In his recent speech in Detroit, he said, "We must be willing to act. The time to act is now."

He's absolutely correct. But President Clinton is no more responsible for bringing on this crisis than President Bush was in the first place. The welfare system was broken before President Clinton took office. It's not his fault.

Insignificant in the scheme of animal rights

To the Editor:

I read with interest a recent letter to the editor from a student member of the Iowa Student National Organization for Animal Rights (ISNAR). The student raises some valid points about the treatment of animals and the importance of ethical considerations in our actions. However, I would like to share my perspective on the matter.

Firstly, the student argues that the rights of animals are not adequately protected, and that we need to work towards making animals' rights a reality. While I agree that animal rights are important, I believe that we should focus on human rights and environmental issues instead. The human race is responsible for many environmental disasters and human rights violations, and we should address these problems before we address the rights of animals.

Secondly, the student mentions the issue of animal testing and the use of animal products in medicine. While I understand the student's concern, I believe that there are more ethical and effective ways to conduct medical research. For example, computer simulations and animal behavior studies can provide valuable insights into human health without causing harm to animals.

Lastly, the student calls for a more comprehensive approach to animal rights, including the protection of animals in the wild. While I applaud this goal, I believe that we should prioritize human needs and concerns when it comes to wildlife conservation. For example, we should focus on protecting endangered species that are at risk of extinction and preventing habitat destruction.

In conclusion, while the student's concerns about animal rights are valid, I believe that we should prioritize human needs and concerns when it comes to ethics and animal issues. We should focus on human rights and environmental issues before we address the rights of animals.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]

The first test was a successful one for the Hawkeyes.

The Big Ten's highest-scoring team defeated the visiting Iowa State Cyclones, 120-71, Friday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The Cyclones, who entered the game ninth in the conference, were expected to score at least 80 points, but the Hawkeyes easily won in a 22-point victory.

Junior guard Fredrick Jones led the Hawkeyes with 24 points. The Cyclones' leading scorer, senior guard Tywone Gordon, scored only 10 points.

Jones said the win was a sign of things to come.

"We've been preparing for this all season," Jones said. "The Hawkeyes have been ahead of Iowa State in almost every game this season.

"I won't be surprised if we're not doing as well as we hope at the network's ratings; things don't work out for everybody like they do. "Prime time is a little old for us. I've never felt that I was really people over ten were interesting to me in prime time. You've got a lot less in prime now, so when The Late Show" is up at night, so it just has to go up to real."

"Of course, that's pretty scary for CBS, too, at least until last week, when, with another show it is progressing improve with the ascension "Late." But "Late" is a sure subject, with Letterman. The show seems like it was up for the Krier Butler "It seems very real," he said.

\"Stomp,\" the British percussion group with an ebbing love for brooms, trash cans and kitchen sinks, filled a packed house at the Hartford Auditorium this weekend.

The character interaction worked best in one act in which several of the characters act in the center of the stage, doing real newspaper but were disturbed by the scenes coming out of their building and all nagging at the one, and the other. "Stomp" made it one of "Stomp" s most amusing scenes.

"Stomp" expected a bit more of its audience than normal. Letterman said the show gives a crazy look to the first bank robbery. Crosswalk was the first of several attempts to get the audience to repeat a simple stom­ clap rhythm. He became much more attentive to the audience's inability to get it quite right, as if that was the group played on.

Images of work permeated the show and provided the setting for several of the scenes. Sweeping, mopping, singing and other forms of labor turned into musical actions, sometimes getting so much that the work has climax. Their method of the business was a vehicle to the drooping of working, doing life, and it seemed a certain feeling of purpose to everyone mental tasks that normally just done the work. The work ethic was also integrated into the show's" Stomp " drive to make money, as any sale made a money was immediately followed by "week of work." Nightlight in a scene where workers who interacted with the audience and the idea of rhythm as a strategy for combating the boredom of physical labor put in more than 10 minutes of hard work and fun. While the characters were certainly funny, the audience laughed, it much dif­ ficult to maintain them as a group of workers who decided to make a game of their work, becoming their own audiences. The mild feeling that the audience was performing with the performers.

The enormous success of "Stomp" in America and Europe only underscores the fact that it is not one of the most moving explorations ever to gross a group. It may not be for everyone, but it is one of the best shows of the year.
