Proposition 187 boycott to target corporations

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Activists planning a national boycott of California over its anti-immigration measure said Sunday they may also target Disney, Chevron, ARCO and Mervyn's department stores.

Organizers said the corporations contributed to Republican Gov. Pete Wilson or the Proposition 187 campaign. Wilson's strong endorsement of the ballot measure helped his Nov. 8 re-election in California.

The measure, which is on hold pending court challenges, denies educational, health and other benefits to illegal immigrants.

Some organizations, including a Hispanic journalists' group and the Mexico City-based World Boxing Council, have already canceled meetings they had planned in California.

Magazine claims Brown Simpson predicted murder

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Nicole Brown Simpson's father disputed a magazine report Sunday that his slain daughter had written a letter predicting her death at the hands of O.J. Simpson.

Star magazine reports in its Dec. 12 issue, out today, that Brown Simpson wrote in May, "If I am killed, my husband, O.J. Simpson, did it."

"Nope, I'm afraid not," her father, Louis Brown, said from his home in Dana Point, Calif. "There's no truth to that."

According to Star, Brown Simpson addressed the three-page handwritten letter "To my family ... to be opened in the event of my death."

"I'm in fear of my life. That's why I am writing this letter — because I don't want him to get away with it. Please take my letter and use it in court," she wrote, the Tarrytown-based tabloid said.

Trish Whitehead, a spokeswoman for Star, would not say how the magazine got the letter.

"We stand by our story," Whitehead said.

Student dies in apparent suicide

David Lee
The Daily Iowan

A UI freshman was pronounced dead Sunday afternoon at UI Hospitals and Clinics after being found in his Mayflower Residence Hall room with his moped running.

Sanjay Jain, 18, was unconscious when he was found by UI security officers who were searching the building for an apparent gas leak. Due to reports of the leak, the entire residence hall was evacuated late Sunday morning.

Jain was taken to UIHC, where he was pronounced dead at 12:19 p.m. The cause of death wasn't determined as of press time, according to hospital officials.

No evidence was found proving Jain's death was a suicide, UI Vice President for University Relations Ann Rhodes said.

Friends jarred by freshman's death

Kathryn Phillips
The Daily Iowan

Friends of a UI freshman who died Sunday in an apparent suicide were devastated by the news, but neighbors weren't surprised, saying he had previously tried to kill himself.

Friends of Sanjay Jain said he was a good-natured, caring person who always greeted them with a smile.

"I asked the question if there was anything in the room which suggested a suicide, and the answer was no," she said. "But that "He was really nice to be around — he always had a good thing to say to you," said friend Rahul Kavathekar, a member of the UI Indian Association with Jain. "He was really a nice guy; he always asked how you were doing."

Jain, a computer science major from Addison, Ill., hid his depression from many who knew him. He was found late Sunday morning in his Mayflower Residence Hall room with his moped running and was rushed to the UI Hospitals and Clinics, where he was pronounced dead at 12:19 p.m.

Ben Winkler, a Mayflower Residence Hall resident, walked home with Jain 12 hours before the alleged suicide attempt.

Confusion about the evacuation was the general student sentiment.

UI leaders waive job prospects in N. Carolina

Holly Reinhardt

Although rumor mills are running at full speed, reports that one of the top two UI administrators may be packing his bags for North Carolina are being disputed by UI and University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill representatives.

Chapel Hill newspapers reported last week that UI President Hunter Rawlings and UI Provost Peter Nathan were both named as potential candidates for the soon to be vacant chancellorship at North Carolina.

However, UI Vice President for University Relations Ann Rhodes said she doesn't expect either administrator to be leaving the university.

"It is true that President Rawlings is very much sought-after, but I don't believe either he or Peter are candidates at this time," Rhodes said.

Iowa state Board of Regents President Marvin Berenstein said he had spoken with Rawlings and

SIDE EFFECTS STUDIED

Drinking coffee may lead to more visits to the bathroom, according to preliminary evidence from a UI College of Medicine study.

Dr. Satish Rao, UI assistant professor of internal medicine, performed a 13-person study on the diuretic effects of the beverage. He said the results yielded evidence that coffee is effective in moving the bowels.

"We set out to do a rigorous study to determine whether coffee does anything to the colon and whether this activity is related to the caffeine element," Rao said.

He added that decaffeinated coffee seems to have the same effect as regular coffee, which led him to believe there are elements in the coffee bean itself which stimulate bowel movement. This and other topics will be researched in more detailed studies.

Rao said personal experience led him to conduct research on the inner workings of coffee.

HAWKEYE PROSPECTS VISIT UI

Fry touts academics, fans to recruits

Hawkeye fans were treated to an unexpected glimpse of Iowa head football coach Hayden Fry as he escorted 22 recruits to the Iowa basketball game against Pepperdine University Friday night.

weekend and were taken to the game in an effort to demonstrate how supportive Hawkeye fans are.

Fry said he emphasizes fan support and the UI's educational opportunities during recruitment.

"No. 1 is the tremendous education they receive here, the community, small-town environment and friendly people," he said.

Fry was optimistic about the quality of the recruits.

"We got off to a great start," he said. "We've got some of the top prospects in the nation."

Although the Hawkeyes have been plagued with less than spectacular seasons in the past couple of years, Fry said Iowa's history of football excellence keeps recruits interested in wearing black and gold.

Iowa head football coach Hayden Fry and 22 recruits weekend discussing the rewards of playing for the watch Friday's basketball game against Pepperdine Hawkeyes, such as great fan support and educational opportunities, with the high-school seniors.

"We've been to the Rose Bowl three times; we just haven't won it," he said, adding that the Hawkeyes' Rose Bowl record only strengthens the team's desire to capture the title.

According to NCAA rules, schools are allowed to recruit 56 players per season, and athletes may visit up to five schools.

Fry said the structured recruitment program gives prospective players a glimpse of what an Iowa football player's life is like.

"It's very highly organized," he said. "We utilize time to let recruits see the academic programs they're interested in and the professors."

On Friday, recruits were introduced to the Iowa football team and staff. On Saturday, the UI's academic benefits were discussed as prospective players met with academic advisers and professors in their areas of academic interest.

Each recruit was also paired with a current player, who was able to answer questions about the football program and the UI on an individual basis.

UI sophomore and starting defensive back Plez Atkins spent the weekend chaperoning one of the recruits.

"In the first year it's hard because you're nervous and you put a lot of pressure on yourself," he said. "I was very nervous, especially first semester, and wanted to do a lot more studying than I do now."

Now that he's reached his final year, Green said the pressure is finally lessening.

"The third year is no comparison to the first two," he said. "I'm extremely relaxed. At this point, you know what you need to do to learn."

Green found time to take on extracurricular activities this semester and serves as the social chairman of the Phi Delta Phi law fraternity, otherwise known as the "Phids." He plans parties and other social events with students of the UI's College of Medicine and College of Dentistry.

Green, 25, is completing his third and final year of law school. After graduating in May, he will join the firm of Buistmoore, Smythe and McGee P.A. in Charleston, S.C. Green is interested in the field of insurance litigation.

A graduate of Princeton University, Green said he chose the UI's College of Law because of its reasonable cost and impressive reputation.

"I'm happier now, looking back," he said. "A big-city school may have been more fun, but I think I studied more not being in a major metropolitan area."

Green said he has learned to study efficiently and hits the books for an average two and a half to three hours a day. His workload is increasing as finals approach.

"I pull the occasional all-nighter just to make sure everything's together," he said.

Green said many undergraduates have misperceptions about law school.

"I think law school is just like college in that you hear horror stories going in," he said. "You adapt. It's always hard to look up to the next level, but once you get there, it's not as tough as many people think."

Devil's Lake State Park, Wisconsin
5 Cross-Country Skiing Weekends in January & February
5 Rock Climbing Weekends offered during April & May 5 Hiking weekends offered during April & May

This will be the last semester that P.E. courses will be offered at Devil's Lake State Park. Experience what 30,000 University of Iowa students have enjoyed for the past 22 years. Devil's Lake State Park offers the greatest snow and groomed cross-country ski trails, the most challenging hiking within an eighteen state area, some of the finest rock climbing in North America and all enjoyed within the most scenic and the most popular state park in North America. Take a break from campus and learn a new outdoor skill. Accept the physical challenge and get a well earned P.E. credit.

• Hiking Courses offered in Eastern Iowa
March 4-5, March 11-12, & April 1-2

This is the first time that local hiking has been offered. This local hiking weekend will allow you to hike within Iowa's number one and number three tourist attractions, the Amana Colonies and West Branch. The hikes will be on groomed hiking trails, on crushed rock and on new hard surface trails constructed on old railroad beds that will take you deep into Iowa's heartland; into wooded areas, thru prairies, along creeks and ponds, and into the quiet stillness and beauty of Iowa. You will learn a lot, you will be physically challenged, you will be amazed how nice it will feel getting back into nature, you will make new friends, the cost is minimal, and you will have a terrific time.

* Get more information on these exciting and challenging weekend courses and sign up now at the Physical Education Skills Office, E213 Fieldhouse
• All of these courses are offered by the Iowa Mountaineers, Inc.

'Graceful' Jane Pauley reflects on job style

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Jane Pauley cites her trustworthy track record as one of the reasons audiences revere her as "Saint Jane."

"I'm a team player, not a prima donna," the newswoman said. "I'm competitive in a fair and graceful way, and I try to lose graciously. But you want to be the king of the hill."

Pauley also said in the Dec. 10 issue of TV Guide that she has a flair for creating a natural, conversational on-camera chemistry.

"I'm not going to perform questions so we can nip them for use in sexy promos," said the co-anchorwoman of NBC's "Dateline." "I don't move in for the kill just for the sake of being photographed."

Cicely Tyson selects her roles to build awareness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cicely Tyson said her three Emmys don't assure her regular work for three reasons: She's a woman, she's black and she's choosy.

"I added a third strike by being selective," Tyson said. "They don't usually need (black women) unless there's a role specifically written for us."

After landing an Academy Award nomination for 1972's "Sounder," she didn't work again for six years, but she refuses to compromise on roles.

"I went around promoting 'Sounder' and realized much of America was very ignorant about black people and particularly black women," she said. "I decided then that my body of work should help define who we are. We are not all the same."

Willie Nelson whirls in for benefit concert

LANCASTER, Texas (AP) — That was no tornado whipping through town — that was Willie Nelson!

The show he headlined Saturday night raised more than $35,000 to help replace sidewalks, awnings, lights, trees and historic markers in Lancaster's town square, badly damaged by a tornado in April, organizer Darrell Miller said. Three people died and more than 900 homes were destroyed by the tornado.

Nelson, who plays about 25 benefits a year, including Farm Aid, said it's just part of his responsibility as a performer.

Road honoring Reagan considered in California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California lawmakers know the route to Ronald Reagan's heart: They want to name a freeway after him.

"I think it's appropriate to acknowledge Ronald Reagan's contribution as a private citizen, as governor and as president," Democratic state Sen. Bill Lockyer said. "Naming a freeway after him is one of the ways that those honors get bestowed."

A Senate resolution to post Reagan's name on Highway 118 from the Los Angeles County community of San Fernando to Ventura County was scheduled for consideration last Monday.

Reagan, the nation's 40th president, announced last month that he has Alzheimer's disease.

"We got the idea from another

Big Ten university," she said. "It was right after the murder of Tammy Zywicki, and people were really worried about traveling alone."

Few people signed up for the bus rides right away last year, but reservations picked up as the winter break drew near, said Jeff Yurgae, UI junior and director of Student Travel. This year, more people are utilizing the service earlier, he said.

"The reaction has been pretty good; we've sold between 30 and 40 trips already," Yurgae said. "Last year, the last week before finals was when the most people came in."

Bechtold said she has received complaints because the program does not provide rides back to campus. She said sponsoring the return trip would be too costly and it would be impossible to coordinate the effort.

"It costs us $25 per person to do this, and we only charge $10. We can't afford to do it (the trips) both ways," she said. "And with people coming back at different times it's too hard to get them all at the same place at the same time."

A cab ride to the Union has been added to the program in response to the difficulty of getting suitcases and other baggage across campus to the Union. Buses for all destinations leave from the Union.

"There's a four bag per person limit, and we used to see people trekking across campus with four bags, so we added the cab ride," Bechtold said.

Various types of people use the service, Yurgae said.

"We've seen some variety," he said. "Mostly, they have been underclassmen, but I know we had a number of upperclassmen last year. It's just a convenience."

People can sign up for the trips or get more information about their destination until Friday at Student Travel in room 46 of the Union between 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

UI gains grant to aid substance abusers

Michele Kueter
The Daily Iowan

Long-term counseling as well as standard treatment for drug and alcohol abusers will be available through a new UI research project funded by a $3.4 million grant.

The Iowa Consortium for Substance Abuse Research and Evaluation is heading the five-year project, which received the grant from the National Institute on Drug Abuse. It will use case management to help abusers with their problems, said Anita Patterson, administrative director of the consortium.

"The whole idea of case management is to try to take a broad perspective on clients' needs and try to address them," she said. "Applying case management to normal treatment will potentially have greater impact."

Drug abusers will be helped through assessment and crisis management, said James Hall, principal investigator of the project.

"The purpose of the study is to find out if case management will make a difference in treatment,"

Hall said.

Patterson said the program takes a more in-depth approach than current programs and will look at factors in abusers' lives, such as housing, employment, education and family issues, that could contribute to their problem.

The standard treatment commonly lasts for a short time, but Patterson said the new program will provide stability.

"The typical situation is, the client will enter a substance-abuse program, such as MECCA in Iowa City, for three or four weeks," she said. "Then they'll be encouraged to participate in an after-care program for weeks or months."

The main goal is to test whether case management is a helpful adjunct to substance-abuse treatment, Patterson said.

"I think it will help if we help them work out problems in other aspects of their lives," she said. "It may have a direct effect on substance abuse outcomes."

Abusers who relapse after treatment may also seek help faster after this program, Patterson said.

Three different case-management approaches will be studied, in addition to a control group which will use only the standard treatment, she said.

The first approach will have case managers working and living at a treatment center, in this case MECCA-Substance Abuse Services, 430 Southgate Ave. In the second approach, the manager will be at the Community Mental Health Center, 505 E. College St. The third approach is computerized case management. Through computers, clients can talk to other clients and their case manager, in addition to having a manager at the consortium. Patterson said the computer approach is still being developed.

Case managers will be hired in the spring by the consortium, in cooperation with MECCA and the Community Mental Health Center, she said. Counseling services will start in late spring or early summer.

Clients used for the research project will be abusers going to MECCA who volunteer for the program, Patterson said.

LONE TREE MAN KILLED

Town residents stunned by slaying

Associated Press

LONE TREE, Iowa — Michael Flynn's uncle said he can't imagine why anyone would want to hurt his "happy-go-lucky" nephew.

"He always had a smile," James Warden of rural Lone Tree said. "Everybody liked him. He was a well-liked, well-mannered person."

Ed Edlen found the body about 7:30 p.m. Thursday after an unidentified woman tried to visit Flynn, became concerned and contacted Edlen.

Lone Tree Mayor Bob Wisor said Flynn "seemed like a real nice man to me." He said the town reacted to the slaying with "surprise and shock that it happened here in Lone Tree." Helen Veenter, who bought the Elm Tree Family Restaurant in Lone Tree from Flynn's mother, said she's concerned about a repeat of violence in the community.

"I run a business here, and I'm not crazy about leaving my girls here to lock up," Veenter said.

Warden said Flynn was separated from his wife, Michelle, who lives in Keota, Iowa. He said the couple has two young sons, Travis and Mike.

Warden said Flynn received Social Security disability payments and made woodcraft.

1990 motorcycle accident and used a wheelchair. He lived alone in a first-floor apartment on the north edge of Lone Tree. The eight-unit apartment building is owned by three Lone Tree brothers — Ed, Loren and Randall Edlen.

DIVERSITY VALUED

Multicultural roommates cooperate in special home

Karin Wahl-Jorgensen
The Daily Iowan

At the cooperative house on 703 N. Dubuque St., 23 people are testing their own version of the global village: Fourteen residents of the house are either returning exchange students or people with a foreign background.

Students with Indian, Cuban, Korean, Chinese and Lebanese heritages are represented. The house attracts students with international backgrounds because it provides them an opportunity to meet people who have had similar experiences.

Murli Natrajan, a graduate student in anthropology, is originally from India. The six months he has spent in the house have taught him about diversity in America and have helped him understand American culture, he said.

"There's so much talking about diversity, and this is a chance to see how people practice what they preach," Natrajan said. "Even if you talk for 100 years about diversity, you'll never know what it's like if you don't experience it."

He has observed some cultural differences since moving into the house. He said conflict resolution in India is based more on group responsibility, whereas Americans stress individual rights. However, those differences have not interfered with his interactions with other house inhabitants.

"We don't have to agree on Haiti, we don't have to make the same amount of money, we don't have to have similar sexual orientation," Natrajan said. "Living in the United States doesn't mean I have to become less of an Indian. I like the house because it allows me to be Indian."

For some, living in the house is an experiment as much as a lifestyle. Jane Moeckli, a graduate student in geography, spent four months living in a commune in Belize and is continuing her exploration in Iowa City.

"It's difficult to live with such a diverse group of people," she said. "We live with people who are insane, we live with people from other countries, so we get a variety of different life experiences."

David Perry, who spent two summer semesters in Germany learning to speak German, said he started living in the house because he needed a place to live and it was inexpensive.

"I found out that I appreciate cooperative values and I also value the diversity," he said. "There are a lot of disagreements, but that's natural with 23 different individuals. You can't live there and be a rigid and dogmatic person; you have to give and compromise."

Perry said the residents of the house are a substitute family for him.

"You get the good and the bad sides of a family," he said. "Some people nag, some people slack, but it's a nice community."

Melissa Poole, a UI senior majoring in linguistics who spent a year in the Netherlands learning to speak Dutch, has lived in the house since August and said she moved there because she saw it as a chance to meet like-minded people.

"I heard about it from an old classmate who lives in the house, and I was interviewed," Poole said. "Since there were people from other countries and students who had studied abroad, there were a lot of people I could relate to."

Poole said living in the house helped her adjust to coming back to the United States and the UI campus.

"My first impression coming back was that I couldn't believe how commercial the United States was," she said. "Coming back to campus life was also a lot different, and the co-op helped me adjust back to all these things."

Poole finally readjusted to American ways through advice and understanding from other house residents. Now she wants to help other returnees readjust, and she encourages more diversity in the house.

"We want it to be an environment where you know you'll be accepted wherever you come from," Poole said. "We don't just eat and sleep here."

EUROPEAN CONFERENCE

Serbs released

Snjezana Vukic

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Serbs eased their grip Sunday on U.N. peacekeepers, while at the same time tightening the squeeze on hard-pressed northwest Bosnia.

Bosnian Serbs released 20 British and 33 Dutch peacekeepers out of the 402 they were holding as insurance against further NATO air strikes.

Diplomats scrambled to find a way to overcome a paralyzed peace process. French and British foreign ministers traveled to Belgrade to talk to Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, and a senior U.S. diplomat met with the Muslim-led Bosnian government in Sarajevo on the eve of a 52-nation European conference in Budapest, Hungary where Bosnia is expected to be a major topic.

The release of the 53 peacekeepers, who had been held in eastern Bosnia for more than a week, was a slight bow toward the international community by the Bosnian Serbs.

The 20 British soldiers, held in the hamlet of Brdine in Serb-held eastern Bosnia, were released around noon Sunday and headed to their original destination, the government-held town of Gorazde.

Later, officials said 33 Dutch soldiers held at Zvornik, on the Bosnian side of the border with

U.S. INVOLVEMENT QUESTIONS

Gingrich decries

Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United Nations is a failed institution with "grotesque pretensions" and the United States should rethink its commitment to the world body, future House Speaker Newt Gingrich said Sunday.

"The United Nations is a totally incompetent instrument anyplace that matters," Gingrich said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "When you get to a serious problem with serious violence, the United Nations is literally incompetent, and it kills people by its behavior."

The Georgia Republican's harsh critique of the United Nations was another indication of the rough road U.S.-U.N. relations face under the new Republican leadership in Congress.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in line to become the next chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is a longtime foe of funding for U.N. programs, and House Republicans, in their "Contract with America," are committed to banning any U.S. forces from being put under U.N. command.

Gingrich spoke specifically of the fiasco in Bosnia, saying the United Nations and the international community "look pathetically helpless" there. He said it has been "a terrible blow to the United Nations and a terrible blow to civilized behavior."

He said the U.N. peacekeeping forces should be withdrawn from Bosnia and the arms embargo on the Bosnian Muslims lifted.

But in general, he said the United States "should radically overhaul our entire attitude toward the United Nations."

People carry bundles of wood as they carefully negotiate Sarajevo's "Sniper Alley" Sunday. Sarajevo depends on the international airlift for 80 percent of its supplies, but the airport has been closed for more than a week because of threats posed by Bosnian Serb anti-aircraft weapons. President Clinton, in a letter made public Sunday, affirmed U.S. support for Bosnia's territorial integrity, and the Bosnian prime minister ruled out more concessions to win peace with Bosnian Serbs.

ECONOMIC IMPROVEMENT NEEDED

Forecast for Haiti remains unclear

Ed McCullough
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Is Haiti better off 10 weeks into the U.S.-led military intervention? The answer seems clear: Yes.

Is it on a path to democracy and economic development? There, the answer is only maybe.

A new Cabinet and Supreme Court are in place, and the military high command has been almost completely shuffled. But President Jean-Bertrand Aristide knows the whole process might be undermined if the economy doesn't improve.

"Under ideal circumstances, they (foreign troops) would not be necessary. But these are not ideal times," said Roger Derosena, director of the State University of Haiti Hospital.

"At night there is no gunfire any more. In the morning there aren't bodies in the street. I think the good outweighs the bad."

In addition to a level of public security Haiti hasn't known for decades, "the U.S. troops brought hope with them," said Elie Karim, who last month reopened his factory, which makes decorative glass lamp shades.

Change has been swift since Aristide's return on Oct. 15.

Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, who led the September 1991 coup against Aristide, is in exile in Panama. The repressive 7,500-member army and police are being pared, retrained and put under civilian control.

Though enemies remain, Aristide is revered by most Haitians. Their faith may give the former priest the time he needs to get his nearly bankrupt government off the ground.

"The people love him so much. It's a question of love, not politics," the Rev. Ignace Augustin said at an Aristide rally last week in the southwestern city of Les Cayes.

Congressional elections are scheduled for early next year, followed by a presidential vote in December 1995. More than $500 million in international aid — about a third of the gross national product — is expected in coming months.

"I think this is the best chance in modern Haitian history for democracy and economic growth," U.S. Ambassador William Swing said.

But "the long, hard work of democracy" is still ahead, Swing added.

A key question is whether the changes taking place are fundamental or superficial. At least 14,000 weapons have been seized, but many may remain in private hands.

The landowning elite disdains Aristide. Thousands of civil servants who are about to be laid off, along with soldiers and police discharged from the armed forces, can't be happy about their fate.

Even if the economy sputters to life, it has a long way to go. Per capita income shrank to $200 a year between the coup and Aristide's return. One in every two Haitians is underemployed or unemployed.

EUROPEAN CONFERENCE TO CONCLUDE

Serbs release 53 U.N. soldiers

Snjezana Vukic
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Serbs eased their grip Sunday on U.N. peacekeepers, while at the same time tightening the squeeze on hard-pressed northwest Bosnia.

Bosnian Serbs released 20 British and 33 Dutch peacekeepers out of the 402 they were holding as insurance against further NATO air strikes.

Diplomats scrambled to find a way to overcome a paralyzed peace process. French and British foreign ministers traveled to Belgrade to talk to Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, and a senior U.S. diplomat met with the Muslim-led Bosnian government in Sarajevo on the eve of a 52-nation European conference in Budapest, Hungary, where Bosnia is expected to be a major topic.

The release of the 53 peacekeepers, who had been held in eastern Bosnia for more than a week, was a slight bow toward the international community by the Bosnian Serbs.

The 20 British soldiers, held in the hamlet of Brdine in Serb-held eastern Bosnia, were released around noon Sunday and headed to their original destination, the government-held town of Gorazde.

Later, officials said 33 Dutch soldiers held at Zvornik, on the Bosnian side of the border with Yugoslavia, were freed and allowed to proceed to Srebrenica, another government enclave farther north.

While easing up slightly on the United Nations, the Serbs pressed hard on Muslim-led government soldiers in the towns of Bihac and Velika Kladusa in far northwestern Bosnia.

Bosnian radio claimed that 25 people — 20 women and five children — had been killed by shelling Sunday. There was no confirmation of the report. The radio said despite heavy shelling, there was no movement in front lines.

The area had been largely quiet for several days. But Velika Kladusa, former headquarters of a renegade Muslim leader, faced renewed attack on Saturday and was reportedly close to falling to Serb forces and Muslim rebel troops.

U.N. spokesman Maj. Herve Gourmelon reported a sharp increase in fighting Sunday around both Bihac and Velika Kladusa.

A U.N. convoy reached peacekeepers in Bihac early Sunday. U.N. officials reported one Bangladeshi soldier died Saturday from a heart attack brought on by an asthmatic condition worsened by a lack of medicine.

U.N. military observers reported a one-hour firefight Sunday between Bosnian Serb and government forces near the Grbivica sports stadium in the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo.

Bosnian radio reported a heavy attack by Serbs from neighboring Croatia.

Serb forces have taken 30 percent to 40 percent of Bihac, a U.N.-declared "safe area," and Gourmelon reported fighting all around the Bihac perimeter.

Fighting also was reported in central Bosnia. In one place, the Serbs appeared to be on the defensive.

Croat fighters pushed northwest from Livno, about 70 miles west of Sarajevo, toward the Serb-held towns of Glamoc and Bosansko Grahovo. The Bosnian Croat militia, allied with the Muslim government forces, said Friday they had captured three villages in the area.

The Bosnian Serbs on Saturday accused the Croatian army of being involved in the fighting near Livno. U.N. officials said they couldn't confirm the claim.

Bosnian Serb TV reported Sunday that 17 civilians were wounded in the fighting.

U.S. envoy Charles Redman met with Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic in Sarajevo. After the meeting, Silajdzic reiterated his government's refusal to accept any changes in an international peace plan.

U.S. INVOLVEMENT QUESTIONED

Gingrich derides United Nations

Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United Nations is a failed institution with "grotesque pretensions" and the United States should rethink its commitment to the world body, future House Speaker Newt Gingrich said Sunday.

"The United Nations is a totally incompetent instrument anyway that matters," Gingrich said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "When you get to a serious problem with serious violence, the United Nations is literally incompetent, and it kills people by its behavior."

The Georgia Republican's harsh critique of the United Nations was another indication of the rough road U.S.-U.N. relations face under the new Republican leadership in Congress.

He said the U.N. peacekeeping forces should be withdrawn from Bosnia and the arms embargo on the Bosnian Muslims lifted.

But in general, he said the United States "should radically overhaul our entire attitude toward the United Nations."

"It is a failed institution in its current form. It has grotesque pretensions to be a world government," Gingrich said. "This administration's determined multinationalism is a disaster."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the next Senate majority leader, repeated his position on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" that U.N. peacekeepers should be withdrawn from Bosnia. That could spell the end of international peacekeeping efforts, and "maybe that's one plus," he said.

IMPARTIAL JURORS PROVE HARD TO FIND

Capital's murder rate impacts jury selection

Carolyn Skorneck
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Five dozen citizens reporting for jury duty in a murder trial here were asked by the judge if they had lost a relative or close friend to homicide. One-fourth of them stood up.

It was a graphic illustration of what years of killings have done to the people of the nation's capital.

One of those potential jurors had lost two people — one in 1992 and one in 1993.

Another lost a college roommate 18 months ago. He was driving down a street and got caught in the cross-fire of an argument he knew nothing about.

A third lost a relative who was shot in the head after her hands were bound with duct tape, an apparent execution.

Having one-quarter of a random group of potential jurors acknowledge losing someone to homicide is not unusual, said Assistant U.S. Attorney David Schertler, chief of the homicide section. The U.S. attorney's office prosecutes all such cases in Washington, where four people, including a police detective and two FBI agents, were slain at police headquarters last month. "The city in the last three to four years has had the highest murder rate per capita, and it's a city with a fairly small population," Schertler said. "That means that you're going to have more people here who have been affected by homicide than you are in other places."

But what does that do to the jury pool, and how does one find an impartial jury to hear murder cases?

The question about homicides was just one of many as the judge tried to ferret out whatever personal knowledge, prejudices and emotional baggage the jurors were bringing to the courtroom where one young man was accused of killing another in a drug dispute.

Most of the 14 people who acknowledged losing someone they cared about said they believed they could be fair and impartial jurors. Any who could not would be removed from the case by the judge.

It's a key issue for defense lawyers. Attorney Frances D'Antuono, who since 1988 has defended only accused murderers, adamantly keeps such people off her juries.

"I try to exclude them no matter what," she said. "That's one of the most powerful experiences you can have in life, to have someone close to you murdered. It's an experience you never get over."

Criminal defense attorney Kenneth Robinson said, "My experience is that no more than one-third of them say they can't be fair." However, he added, "a lot of people don't always tell the truth."

Robinson, who won 19 of 20 homicide cases when he was a prosecutor and 19 of 20 after he switched sides, said, "What happens is you'll have a juror that you know is saying he can be fair and he's not affected, and you know from his nonverbal cues that that's not so."

Generally, jurors with slain relatives or friends are summoned to the judge's bench. There, the judge, prosecutor and defense attorney privately question the jurors to try to learn their true feelings.

A judge can excuse any number of jurors for cause — anything from living near the murder site to knowing the victim to experiencing a similar trauma. But defense attorneys say judges tend to believe a potential juror's word.

"Unless they're totally incredible, the judge is going to let them stay," said criminal defense attorney Joseph Conte.

If the judge won't throw out a juror for cause, prosecutors or defense attorneys can use "peremptory" challenges that allow them to reject a juror for no reason.

In a felony case in Washington, each side gets 10 such peremptory challenges. When those are gone, the attorney is stuck with the people sitting in the jury box.

Even more dangerous to defendants than jurors who say they lost someone dear to a homicide are "stealth" jurors — those who remain silent when asked about their backgrounds and feelings, said Conte.

Conte said he once smoked out such a juror who kept quiet when asked if any panel members had been a victim or a witness or arrested for a crime. The tip-off, said Conte, was geography.

"She lived in one of the worst places in the city in terms of crime," he said. "It was impossible for her to live (there) and not to have been a victim or witness of any crime."

The judge dismissed her for cause. How about avoiding the whole problem by asking a judge to decide a case alone?

Not an option, said Conte. "You're still better with 12 people," he said.

FLEISS DEMANDS EQUALITY

'Hollywood madam' vows to expose clients

Anh Bui

LOS ANGELES — A day after her pandering conviction, Heidi Fleiss sold underwear and delivered a teaser: The black book lives.

Fleiss

"I don't think I can be quiet about it too much longer, so you will be hearing about the black book," the so-called "Hollywood madam" said as she sold and signed her line of flannel boxer shorts in a booth at a record show.

Asked if she would be naming names, Fleiss shrugged and replied, "I don't know. I'm in an irrational state. I feel that what happened is unfair."

"The law needs to be equally applied. I can't take the fall for everybody," she said.

Fleiss, 28, who once boasted that her call-girl ring catered to the "top 1 percent" of Hollywood's elite, was convicted Friday of supplying three high-priced prostitutes to undercover police during a 1993 sting. The jury deadlocked on two remaining pandering counts and acquitted her on a cocaine charge.

Her client list didn't come up at her trial because the judge said it was irrelevant.

Fleiss said she was horrified by the conviction. "It couldn't have been worse," she said.

Dozens of people crowded around Fleiss' booth at the "KLSX Classic Rock Expo," some wearing "Free Heidi" buttons.

She greeted customers with a smile as she autographed $24.99 plaid boxers but was angry at the prospect of going to prison.

"I have to spend the rest of my life in jail because people like sex," she said.

Fleiss faces a maximum prison sentence of eight years and eight months. The minimum is three years. Fleiss, free on $75,000 bail, is scheduled for sentencing on Jan. 20.

Fleiss and her father, pediatrician Paul Fleiss, are scheduled to go to trial on federal tax evasion and money laundering charges on Jan. 25.

Missing Alzheimer's patient found dead

Associated Press

SELIGMAN, Ariz. — The body of a 76-year-old man in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease was found Saturday less than a mile from where his wife survived two weeks stranded in their van.

Vinson Goodwin set out on foot v. 13 after their van ran out of gas on a remote dirt road near Interstate 40, about 25 miles east of Seligman in rugged, mile-high terrain Arizona.

Last Monday, a passing hunter and Goodwin's 77-year-old wife, Inabelle, still waiting in the van. Inabelle Goodwin said she survived on a supply of cold cuts, bread, cookies, fruit and water. She stayed warm with three blankets and snow fell and nighttime temperatures dipped below freezing.

He was discharged from the hospital Thursday.

On Saturday, the crew of a state police helicopter spotted her husband's body in a rocky area surrounded by trees. He was only about three-quarters of a mile from the van and about 25 miles from the nearest gas station.

It appears Mr. Goodwin succumbed to exposure," said Yavapai County sheriff's Lt. Kathy Laughlin.

He had been ill-equipped to survive the cold, wearing only a light jacket, shirt, pants and shoes. Relatives said Vinson Goodwin had been suffering from an early stage of Alzheimer's disease and sometimes lost his way.

Inabelle Goodwin said she and her husband had been returning to Seligman, Calif., after a trip to Arkansas. She has not been able to explain how they got to the highway to the dirt road.

WASHINGTON — Congress' next generation of leaders, Democratic and Republican alike, are setting independent tones that augur an era of sparring between the two parties as well as within them.

New, younger men have captured three of the four top leadership jobs in the GOP-controlled House and Senate that will convene in January. And though everyone spoke of bipartisan cooperation when possible — an age-old Washington refrain — the leaders made clear that they will aggressively pursue their interests and protect their constituencies.

The sole remaining chieftain from this year, Senate GOP leader Bob Dole of Kansas, will have combative conservative Sen. Trent Lott of Mississippi looking over his shoulder as his top lieutenant. And the two new Democratic leaders, Tom Daschle of South Dakota in the Senate and Richard Gephardt of Missouri in the House, warned that they would distance themselves from the administration and President Clinton, who is blamed by many for the Democrats' Election Day debacle.

"We want very much to work with the White House," Daschle said in a typical statement. "We will not be led by them. We will not view ourselves as an extension of them."

Perhaps the most assertive new leader of all will be Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., to be anointed today by Republicans as their candidate for speaker, a choice that will be confirmed by the full House when it convenes Jan. 4.

Gingrich, 51, is one of the most conservative Republicans and replaces moderate Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., 71, as party leader. Gingrich and his loyal leadership team are determined to carry out their "Contract With America," a campaign-season doctrine promising tax cuts, stark changes in welfare and other measures that are likely to spark conflicts with Democrats.

Gephardt, 53, takes the top job being vacated by defeated Speaker

Associated Press

Future House Speaker Newt Gingrich of Georgia, left, and incoming Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas meet reporters on Capitol Hill Friday. Both men will lead their Congressional bodies when the 104th Congress starts in January.

Thomas Foley, D-Wash., 65. Both men have been more inclined to seek consensus than to engage in partisan warfare. But Gephardt has a sharper edge and vowed last week to protect "workers, middle-income families, the poor families of our country" — a sure sign of opposition against GOP proposals that Democrats construe as helping the rich. Democrats have yet to figure out whether their repudiation by voters means they should edge toward the political center where most votes are, or nurture their most loyal constituents — minorities, women and labor. So at least until the politics of 1995 becomes clearer, they are choosing a middle ground.

ADOPTION OF GOP PLANS PROJECTED

Clinton constructs postelection agenda

Tom Raum

WASHINGTON — Over the past week, President Clinton maneuvered to share credit with Republicans on a world trade agreement and upstaged them on defense increases. It was a beginning.

As the shock of the midterm GOP landslide wears off, the outlines of a new White House strategy are coming into view: Cooperate with Republicans, but engage them when necessary to keep from getting steamrolled.

Clinton is re-emerging as a repackaged version of his "New Democrat" of 1992. It may become hard to mistake him for a middle of the road Republican.

Rather than waiting for January's State of the Union address, Clinton will spell out his new priorities Tuesday evening before the politically moderate Democratic Leadership Conference, which he helped found.

He has been holding daily meetings with advisers around a long conference table in the Roosevelt Room on his agenda for the next two years; the meetings continue his week.

Many insiders expect Clinton to make a few pages from the GOP campaign book by proposing a middle-income tax cut, even a modest one, for families with children. He might also consider some form of a capital gains tax cut so beloved by the GOP and businesses. And he might call for a further downsizing of government.

"We are looking at all sorts of issues," said Robert Rubin, coordinator of the National Economic Commission.

"We will insist on fiscal responsibility, serious numbers and no gimmicks," he added.

"Fiscal responsibility" has become the new White House catch phrase to imply that the GOP must be accountable for some of its expensive "Contract With America" proposals, such as lower taxes and a balanced budget.

Clinton has already said he'll work with Republicans on welfare reform, line-item veto powers and curbing the federal government's ability to mandate state programs without paying for them.

But he has also signaled he will stand firm against GOP efforts to reverse laws that bear his stamp — including the ban on assault weapons, the Brady handgun control law and family leave.

"Cooperation for me cannot mean abandoning principle," Clinton said Friday.

In reaching out to Republicans on the trade agreement, Clinton was able to claim a major victory through cooperation just weeks after his party suffered a major defeat at the polls.

Had a final vote on the expanded General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade been put off until next year, it probably would have gone down. Or the new GOP leadership could have claimed more credit for its passage.

"We now see the Clinton lame-duck period lasted only about 22 days, from the elections to the GATT vote," asserted Paul Begala, a Democratic political strategist who advises Clinton.

Quayle moves out of intensive care

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Tests showed increased blood flow in the lungs of former Vice President Dan Quayle, who was moved Saturday from an intensive care ward to a private room. "Mr. Quayle had another restful night," said Dr. Homer Twigg, a lung specialist at Indiana University Medical Center, where Quayle has been since last Monday because of blood clots in his lungs. Quayle could be released as early as today, Twigg said.

An abdominal and pelvic CAT scan was performed Saturday morning, and no clots were seen in Quayle's abdominal or pelvic veins.

Quayle, 47, was moved to a large private room Saturday afternoon.

Doctors said Friday a blood clot in Quayle's thigh caused the clots that were found in both lungs.

His condition was blamed on prolonged sitting in airplanes.

GATT AGREEMENT

Dimes and $100 shoes

Congress last week approved the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. The global trade pact may prove to be a very good idea for the United States or a very bad idea. Only time will tell.

Both President Clinton and former President Bush supported GATT. This alone should bring it under suspicion. They say politics makes strange bedfellows, but GATT made for some exceptionally unusual pairings. Clinton and Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole supported GATT, as did outgoing majority leader George Mitchell, the man Dole will replace in January. Archconservative Pat Buchanan opposed GATT, as did consumer activist Ralph Nader. These pairings make it hard to guess if GATT is good or bad. The possible ramifications for the United States make it even more confusing.

More than 120 nations have signed on to the agreement, which is expected to reduce tariffs on international trade. GATT is an exceptionally good idea for smaller countries, which can get swamped in the world market. With a more level playing field, smaller countries will be able to export with fewer import tariffs attached to their goods. On the other side of the coin, those same countries will have to set fair prices if they hope to export at all.

American shoppers will see the benefit of lower prices on some imported goods. (Although it's hard to imagine shops like Everything's a Dollar and The Dollar Tree slashing their prices even further.)

There has been little discussion of how much GATT will cost the federal government in lost tariffs. One pro-GATT argument is that the agreement will benefit the government with increased exports. But like the North American Free Trade Agreement, it may take some time before the full benefits touch all levels of our society.

Since the United States signed NAFTA, some jobs have migrated south to Mexico — only a very few have worked their way from Mexico to the United States.

NAFTA is a good indicator of how GATT will affect us. The nation will lose some jobs and trade dollars to some less economically developed countries, and it will gain jobs and trade dollars from other, more developed countries.

We can only hope that GATT will give us a greater influence over the labor practices in other countries. Much can be done to better the economic lot of many oppressed people if the World Trade Organization evolves into an economic United Nations. The 124 member nations should be able to force an end to child and prison labor and do something about the women in Indonesia who produce a $100 pair of Nike shoes for less than 75 cents. The world's trading markets will never be fair as long as workers in industrialized nations are forced to compete against prison and exploited labor.

In the same spirit of labor reform and self-preservation, under the trade agreement U.S. labor unions should have the opportunity to join forces with their more affluent European counterparts and fight to end all unfair labor practices around the globe.

If GATT accomplished nothing else, just the possibility of world labor reform will make signing on worthwhile.

HELMS AND GINGRICH

Gridlock will continue

Sen. Jesse Helms thinks the president should have a bodyguard with him if he goes to a military base. Does that mean if Clinton goes to North Carolina, Helms will take him on alone? If that is the case, the smart money will be on Clinton to beat Helms any day.

The elections have passed, and all the American people have seen change is the color of the welcome mat outside Congress. The politics are going to be the same as have been seen for the past number of years — Senators and Congressmen bickering and arguing about the necessity of federal funding for a small no-name project that really doesn't do anything but still costs about $10 million a year for the next 50 years.

Iowans have much to look forward to as hometown boy Iowa Rep. Jim Nussle takes on the established bureaucracies of the House and attempts to re-establish the way things are run. Republicans want to cut committees by one-third and cut the staffs of those committees as well. If it works, more power to them, but it must also be considered that Congress could become even more inefficient than it already is. The cuts in the committees may force some officials to actually do some of their work themselves, which could harm the legislative process more than the extra staff members would. Next thing you know, Helms will be threatening an official who doesn't like the way Helms is pounding the gavel at committee hearings. Such things happen when old men with questionable sanity are forced to think for themselves.

Newt Gingrich is more excited than anyone about the upcoming legislative session. He can't wait to get his hands on the speaker of the House gavel and pound it on the podium just to hear the noise. It's a sound Gingrich will like hearing more than the sound of his own voice, and until the voters get sick of hearing it, they'll have to deal with that and the whining that Gingrich is the master of.

Gingrich has said Republicans will cooperate with Democrats but will not compromise. That means Republicans are just going to continue the gridlock they promised to end when elected and the country will be no better off than it was a month ago. God bless the electoral process.

KIM PAINTER

Intelligence agencies: 'F-Troop' with billions

The New York Times called it a mistaken disclosure by the House Defense Appropriations Subcommittee. Whatever you call it, it was interesting. "It" was the so-called "black budget" for U.S. intelligence agencies. The budget was initially disclosed in detail in subcommittee documents and then published Nov. 4 in Secrecy and Government Bulletin, the newsletter of the Federation of American Scientists. The haul for intelligence: $28 billion.

Under this heading falls an array of isolated organizations that frequently compete for dollars and prestige. Their combined share of budget monies should switch Newt Gingrich's accountability glands to their full-salivation position. (The Times informs us, for comparison purposes, that the State Department's budget is $27 billion.)

The CIA is the biggest buffoon in the intelligence circus. It got $3.1 billion to bankroll another year of masking murders as suicides, assassinating foreign leaders and trafficking in drugs. Also receiving monies were intelligence units under the command of the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines, and Pentagon intelligence, which weighs in with the National Security Agency, the National Reconnaissance Office and the Defense Intelligence Agency. Additional requests to fund intelligence operations from the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Energy, Treasury and State departments were not shown in the released documents.

There is much talk in Washington about reforming welfare, cutting congressional perks and other signs of a new accountability in government. It is striking that U.S. intelligence remains exempt from the Republicans' new scrutiny.

Duplication of efforts among intelligence agencies is troublesome, and there is much barely concealed hostility between them. It is unavoidable that such hostility generates the most unhealthy varieties of competition and inefficient spending.

If anyone in Congress is serious about responsible governance, the CIA should simply be scrapped. It is only $3.1 billion out of $28 billion, but it's a start. This is, after all, the outfit that brought us the Bay of Pigs, the assassination of Patrice Lumumba in the Congo, the overthrow of Salvador Allende, the mess of Vietnam and Nicaragua's Contra rebels — those icons of freedom fighting — who have since been shown to have financed their endeavors through drug trafficking. Peripherally, we have the CIA to thank for the rise in our own country of that sterling moral exemplar, Oliver North.

The passage of time has failed to mellow the agency in any discernible measure. The CIA is widely believed to have had a hand in the overthrow of Haiti's Jean-Bertrand Aristide (yes, the very same guy we just reinstalled there at great cost). These days, European media report a strong CIA presence in Bosnia. The English-language newspaper The European has printed extensive coverage of this involvement. The CIA, via The Washington Post, calls this presence "strictly humanitarian" and says their comings and goings are misunderstood.

On Nov. 18, The Associated Press blew the lid off Bosnia when it reported, "The United States will provide the Bosnian government with military trainers and aid to $5 billion in weapons and aid under a classified option presented to congressional leaders this week."

Involvement in Bosnia is not an easy call. The average citizen on the street is neither qualified nor willing to micromanage national security or defense initiatives. But we expect better than we've ever gotten for our misnamed intelligence dollar. In fact, most of us are well-read enough to realize that it is through the bravery of a sea of grunt soldiers and the incisive decision-making of a handful of brilliant and decent military strategists that this country has remained free. That ongoing freedom owes virtually nothing to the intelligence community, despite its high opinion of itself.

Left-wing extremists tend to refer to the CIA as the morally bankrupt watchdogs of imperialism. I'm afraid it's much worse than that. They are the free world's "F-Troop" — the scariest incompetents imaginable because they wield huge amounts of tangible power. They have carte blanche to go anywhere and do anything, yet there are no incentives to hold their delusional cloak-and-dagger schemes in check — and CIA oversight is a not very funny joke.

Perhaps worst of all, the cloak of national security provides a warm, fuzzy and obscure environment in which swarms of CIA spooks hatch cockamamie schemes that cost a small fortune. Their efforts serve chiefly to scatter seeds of ill will toward the U.S. government across the globe. The only thing we can say of the agency with any certainty is that it has cultivated more slime under more rocks than the decent people of the Earth will ever manage to turn over.

The Republican Congress must take steps to hold our intelligence budget hostage to high performance standards. They have an obligation to institute regular intense scrutiny of all agency operations. Until they do, they'll never convince voters that they are serious about anything other than right-wing dogma. The most prudent step Republicans could take to cement their reputation as serious proponents of reform is to eliminate the inept and pointless CIA.

DUANE NOLLEN

Responsibility is solution to America's problems

President Clinton may have finally seen the light concerning what is wrong with America. In his radio address this weekend, the president said the only way to cure the nation's ills is for people to take responsibility for their actions. Republicans have been saying this for years.

This concession on the president's part is true to character — being everything to everyone. He may be placating a Republican Congressional leadership hell-bent to shake up government and improve society. This statement is important because an advocate for 1960s liberalism is publicly refuting this doctrine.

Liberalism has a two-track outlook on society. First, it contends an unfair society is the root cause of people's problems. It argues government intervention in people's lives in the form of massive social welfare will level the playing field and give the underprivileged a chance to pursue the American Dream.

Next, it took the ideals of the civil rights movement too far in advocating the questioning of America's core institutions and being permissive in social issues. This created the era of the "hyphenated American," in which racial origin was emphasized over the identity of being an American.

Permissiveness threw all the tried and true values of society out the window and has replaced them with an "anything goes" attitude in which no one is responsible for their actions. What is important is to do what feels good at the moment and damn the consequences.

This agenda has thrown America into a tailspin from which we may not recover unless people take responsibility for their actions. Social welfare has bred dependency, which is bankrupting America. Permissiveness is leading to the breakdown of society. The vital institution of the family is disappearing, and our children are being fed a diet of brainless MTV mush which preaches irresponsibility and a "just do it" attitude toward life.

In "Beyond Peace," Richard Nixon addressed America's social disintegration. He hit the nail on the head when he wrote, "To a crisis of the spirit we need an answer of the spirit. ... The violence, discord, viciousness and slovenliness that so mar the quality of life in America are products of the spirit, and they require answers of the spirit. These are behaviors, not conditions."

These issues are not just abstract theories conjured by boring intellectuals who need to get a life; they are with us every day.

A case in point is this semester's "Schoenbaum affair." Students whined and groaned when they discovered Professor Schoenbaum, a Unified Program professor, was hard-core and wasn't going to coddle the class. Instead of dropping the course in the first weeks, they prolonged their agony and then made a public spectacle of the whole situation. Students need to work hard and know their stuff if they are going to take his classes. He was my adviser, and I survived "20th Century: The Cold War" with a good grade. The lesson: Work instead of whine because life is not a free lunch.

Young people are not the only irresponsible people — parents are shirking their duty to raise their children to be good people.

Parents are not living up to their responsibilities, and one-parent households are creating a generation in malaise with kids who look to gangs for belonging. Another symptom is lower thresholds of violence; if kids do not get what they want, they are likely to shoot someone to redress a grievance.

The Sept. 19 issue of Time magazine is filled with stories of young criminals. In North Carolina, a 22-year-old woman was beaten bloody with a mop handle and raped. Her assailant was a 13-year-old neighbor who had become infatuated with her. Eric Smith, 14, of Bath, N.Y., was found guilty of bludgeoning and strangling a preschooler. A lack of parental discipline leads to this kind of behavior. The advent of the two-income household makes it difficult to keep track of kids. However, parents should take the lead in teaching morals and self-respect. Children with the right upbringing have the character to avoid living in the gutter.

This sounds bleak, but there is hope. In "The Leveling Wind," George Will relates the story of Karen McCune, a child living in the Cabrini-Green public-housing complex in Chicago. Her attitude on improving life is, "Take the 'gang bangers' out and take away all the guns. ... Mow down those buildings. Don't need to be high-rise. Five floors enough." She plans to go to college and have a child when she's 27. Her best friend is a boy who wants to be a lawyer.

America faces a grave social crisis, yet with young people like McCune, we have a chance to fix what's wrong. Personal responsibility is the solution to America's problems, not misguided liberalism.

Gerhardt Goeken, Iowa City resident

"I don't watch TV because I work nights. I feel TV promotes weird, dehumanizing imagery, especially at Christmas. Where do you think all the greed for presents comes from!"

Demetrius Stevens, UI freshman with an open major

"My favorite is 'A Christmas Story.' I liked it when they beat up the bully and started cursing and stuff. That's so funny."

Jennifer Davis, UI sophomore majoring in biology and political science

"I like 'The Grinch Who Stole Christmas' because I've been watching it since I was a little kid. I'm a Dr. Seuss fan."

Stella Clark, Iowa City resident

"My favorite is 'The Bells of St. Mary's' with Bing Crosby. It just gives the spirit of giving without wanting to get. It's kind of a nice movie."

Zealots force 'values'

To the Editor:

Would somebody please explain to me the psychological disorder that leads religious wackos like Tom Miller and his Campus Bible "Followship" to rip their brains out by the roots and supplant them with holy books? Nov. 11 letter to The Daily Iowan. Miller used nothing but carefully selected passages from the Bible to support his contention that there's nothing wrong with the government executing a few innocent people as long as the government is obedient to "bearing the sword" against murderers as the Bible commands.

Why is it that zealots like Miller who for centuries have devoted their entire lives to interpreting their holy books, still can't agree on their meanings? You'd think that their caring for "God" would want to steer us, impassioned devotees all in the same direction. Why is it that every so often religious factions get so frustrated nonbelievers that they see fit to persecute and even kill them?

The reason is simple: The only source of their beliefs is their own minds (at least what's left of their minds), but they use their holy books as justification for their self-righteous judgmental and vindictive insecurity. There is no "god" in any of it. Miller

Not a democracy

To the Editor:

Duane Nollen's column titled "Responsibility is solution to America's problems" (DI, Nov. 7) raises my ire, albeit in genteel fashion.

"Democracy" is a funny word. It exists as an imagined ideal state, one which has multiple applications through varied perspectives.

America intervenes in the internal affairs of other countries with self-righteous proclamations of assisting in securing democracy. (Where, however, was America when Haiti's military overthrew the democratically elected Aristide in order to resume its slaughter of the country's poor?)

To the Editor:

Would somebody please explain to me the psychological disorder that leads religious wackos like Tom Miller and his Campus Bible "Fellowship" to rip their brains out by the roots and supplant them with holy books? In his Nov. 11 letter to The Daily Iowan, Miller used nothing but carefully selected passages from the Bible to support his contention that there is nothing wrong with the government executing a few innocent people, as long as the government is obediently "bearing the sword" against murderers as the Bible commands.

Why is it that zealots like Miller, who for centuries have devoted their entire lives to interpreting their holy books, still can't agree on their meanings? You'd think that their caring, loving "God" would want to steer such impassioned devotees all in the same direction. Why is it that every so often religious factions get so frustrated with nonbelievers that they see fit to persecute and even kill them?

The reason is simple: The only source of their beliefs is their own minds (at least what's left of their minds), but they use their holy books as justification for their self-righteous, judgmental and vindictive insecurity. There is no "god" in any of it. Miller's willingness to let a few innocents die in his fervor to punish murderers puts him in the same boat with religious terrorists around the world who are so consumed with primeval hatred that they no longer care about killing innocent bystanders, as long as they can wreak vengeance on the "enemy." This is otherwise known as "cutting off your nose to spite your face," and it frequently occurs in the enraged temper tantrums of a child who is not yet mature enough to approach problems calmly and rationally. This should not be the motivating force behind any governmental policy.

Unfortunately, Miller's approach mirrors that of the well-organized religious right, which now seeks to surreptitiously impose its dogmatic neurosis across the nation and create a Christian version of Iran right here in North America. Don't doubt for a second that the Millers of this country would eventually start cutting off everybody's noses if allowed. I urge every sane individual reading this letter, regardless of party affiliation, to begin supporting organizations such as the American Civil Liberties Union or Americans United for Separation of Church and State. These groups know how to stop the religious wackos from shoving their misguided "values" down our throats.

Not a democracy

To the Editor:

Duane Nollen's column titled "Voting is a people's duty in a democracy," (DI, Nov. 7) raises my ire, albeit in a genteel fashion.

"Democracy" is a funny word in that it exists as an imagined ideal state — one which has multiple applications through varied perspectives.

America intervenes in the internal affairs of other countries with self-righteous proclamations of assisting them in securing democracy. (Where, however, was America when Haiti's military overthrew the democratically elected Aristide in order to resume its slaughter of the country's poor?)

To the right wing, the nation's democracy is threatened by liberals; to liberals it is threatened by the right wing and nonvoters. To the left wing, the continued articulation of the word "democracy" is something more than simply pathetic. To the Christian Coalition and like-minded folks, democracy is a tool to be used until control of the country's various levels of government has been assumed by them — through democratic processes like voting, of course.

How is this country's two-party system, in which generally mundane candidates, sunk up to their eyeballs in unimaginative thinking, are chosen from the internal machinations of the two parties melding into one party, rather than by the masses, a democracy? How is a two-party system, regardless of how candidates are selected, a democracy? What sort of democracy produces North vs. Robb, Huffington vs. Feinstein, Bush vs. Richards and Bush vs. Chiles? What sort of reflection of our democracy is the argument put forth to me that I have a responsibility to vote, even if it is for the lesser of two evils? The lesser of two evils? In a democracy? Please!

America is or is not a democracy, depending upon one's point of view, and mine is that it is not. Please don't tell me I have a responsibility to vote for or in the abstraction of an imagined, idealized state. I don't prefer reality, but I believe I see it.

Suck up while ye may, little lambs.

Casual sex not worth it

To the Editor:

I should be revolting in defense of my generation, our morals and our values, but I'm not because when it comes to sex, we're wrong. We need to open our eyes to the real world.

I'm referring to the editorial titled "On sex and our society" by Precious Rasheeda Muhammad (DI, Oct. 18). In Muhammad's editorial, she proposes that "casual sex is more popular than ever" and today's society, including the media, is too casual about sex. As a society, we should look to our elders for their conceptions and attitudes concerning sex and learn from them because they know and understand sex.

I couldn't agree more with Muhammad's comments. The media are consumed with sex because sex sells. Also, as a student attending the UI I find myself within a sea of people who seem to be messing around more than I ever imagined and going through partners like they go through socks.

This may sound harsh, but I've been to enough fraternity parties and bars to see what happens, and it means nothing to them. Call me old-fashioned, but sex is not, and shouldn't be, purely physical. It is an expression of love and deep emotion, and something shared between two people bound by compassion, understanding, devotion and commitment.

We need to open our eyes — open them to unwanted pregnancy, rape and sexually transmitted diseases, especially AIDS. We need to stop saying that it won't happen to us because it can and it will. We need to take it upon ourselves to educate ourselves about sex and protect ourselves if we're going to have sex. We need to know our partners and think before we act. There are no excuses because in the end, we could wind up paying for a moment of pleasure shared with someone we hardly know with our own life, and it's not worth it.

Observations flawed

To the Editor:

In his column titled "America is a conservative nation, not liberal," (DI, Nov. 9), Djalal Arbabha points out that many Americans support conservative candidates even though it is against their own self-interests. Implying that American voters are by and large ignorant, he states that if voters were in fact promoting their own self-interests, they would "have to be liberals." He notes that the social programs of the United States, unlike the broad and sweeping social programs of many European nations, are relatively conservative because American voters, in failing to support such widespread social programming, have failed to do what is in their best interests.

This observation, however, is critically flawed. In refusing to promote "free and equal education," "free child care for working parents," "free health and mental care for all citizens" and "access to a comprehensive welfare system," the American voters have always remained keenly aware of their self-interests. Contrary to what Arbabha seems to believe, the well-being of American society does not depend upon socialism. What he fails to recognize is that the liberal social programs he advocates are extremely expensive. In refusing to adopt voting habits that support these burdensome programs, Americans have clearly indicated their disdain for the massive taxes that would be necessary to support Arbabha's liberal, dependent society. In refusing to vote for rampant liberal social policies, Americans have declared that they (and not the government) know what is best for themselves. They have made it clear that they would prefer to provide for their own well-being with their own hard-earned income, rather than pay exorbitant taxes so that an inefficient, bureaucratic government can decide what is in their best interests.

The American people comprise a hard-working, determined group of individuals. Those who support conservative social programs do so not out of ignorance, as Arbabha would suggest. Rather, they do so because they believe that hard work and individual autonomy (which is promoted when Americans, rather than the government, spend their incomes) are more apt to provide happiness than a free ride via broad liberal social policies.

Performers honored at Kennedy Center

Christopher Connell
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton led "a national standing ovation" at the White House Sunday for five of America's top artists from the worlds of film, music and Broadway.

Then, while the president caught a flight to Budapest, Hungary, Hillary Rodham Clinton led a salute at the Kennedy Center to the five honorees: Kirk Douglas, Aretha Franklin, Morton Gould, Harold Prince and Pete Seeger.

They bring to 43 the ranks of top American performing artists to receive the Kennedy Center honors in a tradition begun 17 years ago. Franklin, "the Queen of Soul," became at 52 the youngest person ever chosen for the tribute.

She was saluted in song by the Four Tops, Patti LaBelle and the rollicking choir from her father's New Bethel Baptist Church in Detroit.

"What other voice could command so much R-E-S-P-E-C-T," said dancer Arthur Mitchell, himself an honoree last year, of Franklin. "In an age of cool, Aretha, you made cool hot."

Douglas, 77, the prototypical movie tough guy, was saluted by his son, Michael Douglas.

"When we were little kids we saw the fun that you were having," said the actor, one of four Douglas sons in the movie business. "That's why we're not lawyers and accountants."

Musical producer Prince, 66, was serenaded with songs from some of his long string of Broadway hits, including "Phantom of the Opera," "Kiss of the Spider Woman" and his current revival of "Showboat."

"He has given us dark nights of the soul in the bright lights of Broadway," said Jane Alexander, the actress turned head of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Composer Gould, 80, and folk singer Seeger, 75, were honored later in the show, which will be televised on CBS Dec. 28.

"Our RA said it was a minor incident involving a gas leak and said we shouldn't go running around the halls talking about it," Mayflower Residence Hall resident Jacqueline Wernimont said.

Although many residents were aware of the circumstances surrounding Jain's death, no formal statement was made by residence hall officials.

Wernimont said she knows how Jain had died and that the evacuation had not been because of a gas leak.

"If they want everyone to know the correct story, why aren't they saying what happened?" she asked. "We can handle it. I don't understand. They've decided we're not adults."

Signs in the hallways said residence hall assistants would explain the evacuation to Mayflower residents in a counseling session Sunday night.

Around 30 people attended the session, according to Mayflower Resident Assistant Tino LiMas. The session was for those who felt like they needed to talk about the incident and not for the general public, he said.

"Mainly we just talked about how people felt. There was no debriefing," he said.

Jain's parents came to Iowa City from Addison, Ill., Sunday.

FRIENDS

"He was happy-go-lucky and he bought half a Big Mike's sandwich off my friend. He didn't say anything bad."

But Jain's Mayflower Residence Hall hallmates knew a different side of his personality.

"We'd see him in the hallway and say hi, and he'd come over," said hallmate Jason Smith. "He would come in our room and listen to music or watch movies and just talk."

Smith said Jain talked about his depression and the pressures he felt from attending the UI.

"He did fine in high school, but here he was having problems adjusting to college life," Smith said. "He was under a lot of pressure to do better in school."

Smith said Jain had admitted to a few hallmates that he attempted suicide before Thanksgiving break by running his moped in his room. Jain had sought friends' advice to deal with his problems after the suicide attempt, Smith said.

"Whenever I saw him, I'd be like, 'Are you all right?' and he would say yes," Smith said. "He did try (suicide) before, but he was stopped. He stuck towels under the door and drowned out the noise of the moped with music, but you could hear it a little."

Friends suggested Jain seek professional help and believed him when he told them he was going to receive counseling, Smith said.

"We tried to talk to him before," Smith said. "Last time, we had a long talk, and he said he was going to get help. We thought he was OK."

Another hallmate, who would speak only on the condition of anonymity, said it was obvious that Jain was suicidal.

"He would come to our room and chill out. We explained to him that it didn't have to be that way," the freshman hallmate said. "We let him know he had other options. We assumed he would get help."

During the evacuation due to gas fumes Sunday morning, Jain's sixth-floor hallmates stood outside the residence hall oblivious to the tragedy that had occurred just down the hall.

"I thought it was a fire," Smith said. "Then outside I heard rumors flying around that it was on our floor. I heard someone tried to kill themselves. And then I had a feeling it was him because of what had happened before."

Hallmates grieved the loss of their friend Sunday afternoon in Smith's room.

"I'm a little angry," Smith said. "We tried to help him out. We talked to him about it. A lot of people knew him. It's going to be tough. We're used to seeing him in the halls saying hi."

VACANCIES

Nathan last week, and neither said they were candidates for the position.

"All I know for sure is that I spoke with Nathan, and he is not a candidate for the job at North Carolina. He told me he had been a candidate but withdrew in September. Rawlings said he was not a candidate at North Carolina, but I don't know what that means," Berenstein said.

John Harris, chairman of the university's 22-member search committee, said the newspaper reports in North Carolina were "erroneous," but he would not comment specifically about what was incorrect.

There is no specific time line set for announcing the new chancellor, but the number of candidates has significantly decreased, Harris said. "There were almost 160 nominees, including people from all over the U.S. and outside the U.S. A substantial portion notified us they were not candidates," he said. "It may take anywhere from 60 to 90 more days."

"We are looking for the same thing the University of Iowa would look for — we are looking for good people."

Berenstein said the North Carolina search committee could be considering Rawlings without his knowledge.

"As these searches go, oftentimes the candidates don't know about it. My assumption is that Peter is not involved," he said. "If Rawlings is being considered and he knows about it, he hasn't discussed it with me. If he doesn't know, these reports are really unfair. It is unfair for people to assume he's pursuing it because he has a home in Virginia."

Berenstein said he found out that an Ivy League university had both Rawlings and Iowa State University President Martin Jischke on a search list, but neither president knew.

"Neither knew they were being considered. I told them I heard Cornell was considering them, and both denied knowing anything. The information from me came as a total surprise," Berenstein said.

More than 200 colleges and universities are seeking presidents. The fact that Iowa's university presidents are being considered substantiates their high quality, Berenstein said.

"I'm glad our presidents are being considered. It accentuates that they are doing a good job, but I'd hate to lose them because they are fine administrators," he said.

Nathan confirmed last week that he had been a candidate for the North Carolina position. However, he said he was not interested in taking the position.

"I have been nominated, but I'm not real interested," he said. "A person in my job every once in a while is confronted with possible opportunities for presidencies. There is something appealing to running your own institution, but my family and I like it here."

Nathan said he has been nominated for leadership positions at other institutions as well, but he refused to comment where.

"I've been nominated to some other places, but I don't plan to follow up," he said.

Rawlings could not be reached for comment.

Nathan has served as the UI provost since July 1993. Prior to his position as provost, Nathan was UI vice president for Academic Affairs.

Rawlings was named the 17th UI president in 1988, after spending 18 years in various academic and administrative positions at the University of Colorado.

The current chancellor at North Carolina is Paul Hardin III, who will leave the position June 30, 1995.

"I basically tell them what a good school Iowa is, show them around and try to make them comfortable when they're coming in," he said.

Atkins agreed that the Hawkeyes' recent record hasn't affected the enthusiasm of recruits. "It really doesn't matter about our record," he said. "We're definitely on the rise, and I think they see that."

Prospective players must attend meetings to review UI academic requirements and NCAA requirements. Fry said this is done to weed out students who think Iowa football is all play and no work.

"If they don't like it, we don't want them here," he said. "We don't want the bad guys."

The football program benefits from having a coach as respected as Fry, said Scott Anderson, a graduate assistant with the football program.

"Fry is one of the best-known coaches in the country," he said. "We have one of the most successful football programs."

Supportive Hawkeye fans keep recruits interested in coming to Iowa, Anderson said.

"Having 75,000 fans at every game is incredible," he said. "It's hard to find a place better than Iowa as far as support."

Atkins said he was impressed by the recruits who visited this week-end.

"I think a lot of them have good heads on their shoulders," he said.

COFFEE

"I've always been curious about it because when I drink more coffee, I go to the toilet more," he said. "It's a common phenomena among my colleagues."

Apparently, it has drawn the attention of some UI students as well. UI sophomore Will Heintz said he's noticed he defecates more often after drinking coffee, and it's been a topic of discussion among himself and friends.

"I think (the link between coffee and bowel movements) is a natural biorhythm, but I drink it for the taste and the caffeine," he said.

"I've discussed it with friends, and they all think it's true."

Not everyone seemed to realize the relaxing effects of the beverage. Lynee Busta, who works at The Java House, 211 1/2 E. Washington St., said she didn't notice a bloated feeling, even after a night at work.

"I don't think coffee makes you go because it's not like I go to the bathroom after work, and I drink a lot of coffee. I usually leave here pretty wired," she said.

Doug Powell, supervisor of The Java House, has been in the business for five and a half years, working in California and Iowa. He's seen a lot in those years, but two things stick in his mind.

"I used to work with a woman who had IBS (irritable bowel syndrome), and she said that coffee actually helped her condition," he said.

A new twist in the relationship between coffee and colons may be the need for area coffee shops to expand.

"I've heard recently that people are getting cold-coffee enemas to maintain a healthy colon," Powell said.

Navy cans Champ

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — George Champ, whose 14-41 record as Navy's head football coach included four losses to arch-rival Army, was fired Sunday.

The final blow was a 22-20 loss to Army on Saturday, a setback that snapped Navy's bid to put together its first three-game winning streak since 1981. The Midshipmen finished the 1994 season 3-8, including a 7-0 win over Division I-AA Lafayette.

"There are times when a program while still making progress reaches a point where a change in leadership is necessary and that is where we find ourselves at this time," athletic director Jack Lengyel said in a statement.

Champ refused to comment on the decision.

A replacement was not named. Virginia offensive coordinator Tom O'Brien is considered one of the favorites to land the job.

Champ, 59, never had a winning season in his five years at the Naval Academy. The Middies were 5-6 in his first year, then suffered through two straight 1-10 seasons before going 4-7 last year.

In the days leading up to the Army game, Champ said he had finally laid the groundwork to get the program moving in the right direction.

"We're a pretty darn good football team," he said. "I think our whole program is in good shape in every aspect. We have things in place, and now it's a matter of working hard and keeping it going."

He won't get the chance.

"George Champ is a very fine individual and knowledgeable coach and he has gone through some difficult times as head coach at the Naval Academy," Lengyel said.

Knight unsure of player's whereabouts

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana coach Bob Knight says he does not know why freshman guard Michael Hermon has gone AWOL.

Hermon, who averaged 3.8 points over the Hoosiers' first five games, skipped practice Thursday and Friday and was not with the Hoosiers at the RCA Dome in Saturday's 84-63 win over Evansville.

"I have no idea," Knight said on his Sunday television show, which was taped immediately after Saturday's game.

"I have not seen Hermon since the Notre Dame game (last Tuesday). I don't know whether he's upset because he didn't get to play in the Notre Dame game," Knight said.

Hermon's season high was points against Tulane in his first start for the Hoosiers. But he played only six minutes and had one point in the 80-79 overtime loss at Notre Dame.

"Quite frankly, I don't have time to be upset with kids that have their name on their jerseys," Knight said.

Hawkeyes crush No. 14 Bobcats

Iowa pounds Ohio 91-75 in Hawkeye Invitational

Roxanna Pellin
The Daily Iowan

Ohio coach Larry Hunter didn't want to hear the excuses after a 91-75 loss to the Iowa men's basketball team Saturday night.

He said it didn't matter that the No. 14 Bobcats have played seven straight games on the road. Or that Ohio lost to No. 3 Kentucky 76-73 just two days before opening play at the Hawkeye Invitational.

Hawkeye fans had a different reason for the upset.

"They chanted 'Over-rated' during the final minutes of the game Saturday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena."

But Iowa coach Tom Davis didn't like the fans' analysis of the Bobcats.

"They're a terrific ball club," Davis said. "It almost makes us look bad as fans and players. You hear it all over the country, it's not just here. That's one I'd rather not hear again at Carver-Hawkeye Arena."

"We out-played them. They deserve their rating and they'll drop some there's no question."

Ohio fell from No. 15 to No. 22 in the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll Sunday. Iowa received 25 votes for 31st place. The new Associated Press poll will be released today.

Iowa improved to 4-0 while Ohio dropped to 5-2.

The Hawkeyes proved to be a tough team to beat in front of a home crowd of 14,563.

"I thought Iowa was impressive," Hunter said. "We certainly don't need any alibis tonight. We got our fannies beat by a good basketball team. I think they're going to be a surprise in the Big Ten if they continue to play that well."

The Hawkeyes won the Invitational for the ninth straight year and dominated their first nationally-ranked opponent this season. The Bobcats were the preseason

Settles snags 26 points, tournament MVP award

Patrick Regan
The Daily Iowan

Ohio forward Gary Trent may have drawn all the attention of the media and NBA scouts at the Iowa Invitational last weekend, but it was Iowa's Jess Settles who walked away with the tournament MVP award.

Settles proved his worth in the Hawkeyes' 91-75 victory over the No. 14 Bobcats. The sophomore poured in 26 points and snared 12 rebounds despite nagging injuries. Settles, who is recovering from a sore back, jammed his thumb early in the second half, but took some Tylenol and returned to action after a brief rest.

"Personally, I really love players like that," Ohio coach Larry Hunter said. "He's constant motion out there. He'll get physical. He's a bulldog type player. He's not fun to Trent countered with 31 points and 10 boards, making the all-tournament team. But there was no denying Settles.

"Jess being MVP of this tournament is something well-deserved," Iowa coach Tom Davis said. "The guy who is getting the most publicity is the most unselfish guy you've got out there as well as your hardest worker."

Iowa slowed Trent by alternating fresh defenders on him all night. Settles, Ryan Bowen, John Carter and Jim Bartels all spent time guarding the 6-foot-8 240-pounder.

"I'm not sure if he was on top of his game tonight or what," Bowen said. "He just didn't seem the kind of player I thought he might be. He

Hawkeyes drop to Stephen F. Austin

Mike Triplett
The Daily Iowan

The road continued to be unfriendly to the No. 12 Iowa women's basketball team last weekend in Nacogdoches, Texas.

The Hawkeyes won their first-round match in the Stephen F. Austin Dial Classic 67-42 over Florida Atlantic on Friday. But Iowa fell in overtime to host Stephen F. Austin, 79-70 in the championship game Saturday.

Iowa dropped to 3-2 on the season.

Against Stephen F. Austin, Iowa led the game 36-30 at halftime and went up 46-33 early in the second half. But the Ladyjacks came back with a 22-10 run. Stephen F. Austin (3-1) sealed the game by outscoring Iowa 13-4 in overtime.

The Hawkeyes shot well from the field in the title game, except in overtime when the Hawkeyes were 2-of-10. Iowa finished with a 44.1 shooting percentage and out-rebounded Stephen F. Austin, 45-

41. But turnovers again made the difference as Iowa handed the ball over 26 times, while the Ladyjacks gave it up 17 times.

The leading scorer of the championship game was tournament MVP Katrina Price of Stephen F. Austin with 26 points.

Iowa senior Antonia Macklin and freshman Shannon Perry also were named to the all-tournament team with Stephen F. Austin's Kristen Armour, Texas Pan Am's Bobbie Cole and Florida Atlantic's Angie Smith.

Macklin scored 10 points against the Ladyjacks and six a day earlier against Florida Atlantic. Perry scored six in both games. The leading scorer in Saturday's championship game was senior Tia Jackson with 16. Jackson did not play on Friday.

"We struggled a little, especially without Tia in the lineup," Iowa coach C. Vivian Stringer said after Friday's win. "We tried different combinations and seemed just a second slow. We worked much too hard for what we got."

Freshman Timicha Kirby also had a big weekend with a career-high eight points off the bench on Friday. She had 11 points, including three 3-point shots on Sunday. It was another pair of freshmen who led a well-balanced Iowa scoring attack in Friday's win over Florida Atlantic.

Tangela Smith and Tiffany Gooden led Iowa with nine points apiece. Smith also pulled down seven rebounds.

Iowa went up quickly against the Owls, jumping out to a 34-23 halftime lead. The Hawkeyes shot 45.9 percent from the field, while Florida Atlantic made just 15 of 55 shots for a dismal 27.3 percent.

Amanda Whitney led Florida Atlantic with 12 points and Angie Smith had 11.

Iowa is now done with its three-game road trip and will return home Thursday night to host Creighton at 7:30 p.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Iowa rolls over No. 4 Penn State

Shannon Stevens
The Daily Iowan

It wasn't very surprising that the Iowa wrestling team defeated fourth-ranked Penn State Friday night.

What was remarkable was the Hawkeyes' margin of victory. The No. 1 Hawkeyes dismantled the Nittany Lions with a 33-6 victory. Iowa won nine of 10 matches in route to its first victory of the season.

Iowa was led by Lincoln McIlravy and Joel Sharratt, who both managed to pin their opponents. McIlravy pinned John Lange in 4:22 at 150 pounds. Sharratt won at 190 pounds with his pin of Frank Morici in 4:14.

In one of the key matchups of the day, Jeff McGinness defeated Penn State's Sanshiro Abe at 126 pounds. With an 8-7 decision, McGinness posted his first victory over Abe in four meetings between the all-Americans.

"I got ahead quick against Abe," McGinness said. "I was leading 5-0 and I think I let up in the middle of the match, when I had an opportunity to break him mentally. That opened up the door for him to score a couple of takedowns against me. But I'm still happy that I beat him."

Penn State's lone victory came from defending NCAA champion Kerry McCoy. McCoy won the heavyweight match by pinning Iowa's Erik Stroner in 3:27.

"We all wrestled well against Penn State," McGinness said.

Iowa's Rachel Bayster swims in the 1650 meter in the 400 individual medley with a time of freestyle Saturday at the Field House Pool. Bayster finished eighth in the event but took second place in the seven-team Iowa Invitational.

Illini steal Invitational title

The Iowa women's swimming and diving team racked up 572 points for third place in the Iowa Invitational Saturday.

Illinois ran away from the seven-team field rolling up 897.5 points for first place. Intrastate rival Iowa State finished second with 611.5 points.

The Hawkeyes hoped to defend last year's title, but Coach Pete Kennedy said he was still pleased with the team's effort.

"We had some very tough teams come in here this weekend," Kennedy said. "Illinois looked real strong and so did Iowa State. But I think we swam as tough as anyone here."

Iowa sophomore diver Kelly McCready was the Hawkeyes' only first-place finisher. McCready won the one-meter diving competition with a score of 387.15. She also finished second in three-meter diving with 425.70.

Iowa diving coach Bob Rydze said he was proud of how well the team performed.

"We're off to a fast start, but it still is too early to really tell how things are going to turn out. We've beat some quality teams in the diving competition, but the real competition won't come until later. Late February and early March is the time I hope we peak."

Iowa senior J.J. DeAth and junior Rachel Bayster stood out for the Hawkeye swimmers. DeAth placed second in the 200 backstroke with a time of 2:09.32. Bayster took second place in the 400 individual medley with a 4:37.77.

As the days wind down before finals with only one dual meet left in the semester, Kennedy said he would start cutting some practice time so his team can get ready for semester exams.

Iowa won't have a whole lot of time to relax as the Hawkeyes travel to Iowa State this weekend. They take on the Cyclones Saturday at 1 p.m. at Byer Hall Natatorium.

MEN'S SWIMMING

The Hawkeye men's swimming team breezed through its own invitational this weekend at the Field House Pool.

The invitational, which was originally expected to feature Nebraska, North Dakota State, Northern Illinois, Coe College and Iowa, wound up with just the latter three.

With Nebraska and North Dakota State out, and Coe and N. Illinois offering Iowa little competition, the Hawkeyes used the weekend as more of a practice than a meet.

"I thought we did pretty well," assistant coach Rich Draper said. "We had each swimmer swim quite a lot of events. It was really a very good training weekend for us."

"The competition was not what it has been the last few meets for us—swimming at the Nebraska Invitational and against Minnesota."

The Hawkeyes took first place in every event on Friday, including first, second and third place in the 800 freestyle relay and first and second in the 200 medley relay.

Individual winners on the day included Erik Marchitell in the 400 individual medley, Rafal Szukala in the 100 butterfly, Jim Mulligan in the 200 freestyle, Brian Brinkley in the 100 breast stroke and Jory Blauer in the 100 backstroke.

Iowa's success continued on Saturday as the Hawkeyes cruised to the invitational title.

"Everyone did a nice job. Nobody really stood out from the rest this weekend," Draper said after the second day of competition.

Nebraska and North Dakota State weren't the only ones missing from the Field House Pool this weekend.

Coach Glenn Patton and Iowa junior Krzysztof Cwalina were in Stavanger, Norway for the European Sprint Championships, which featured 250 athletes from 22 countries.

Cwalina, who placed sixth in the 50 freestyle at the World Championships last year, swam a personal best of 22.01 Sunday to win the event. Joakim Holmqvist of Sweden took second with a time of 22.50. Germany's Silko Guenzel finished third in a time of 22.53.

MEN'S GYMNASTICS

It was teammate versus teammate at the UI Field House on Saturday as the Iowa men's gymnastics team competed in the Black and Gold Intrasquad Scrimmage.

Seventeen gymnasts squared off in six events in the team's first public showing of the year. The Gold team, led by captains junior Aaron Cotter and sophomore Pete Masucci, came away with the victory.

One high point for the team was the performance of freshman Travis Rosen.

"Travis had a good day. He competed pretty well and had a strong showing," Cotter said.

Rosen wasn't the only Hawkeye who performed well individually, Cotter said.

"I wasn't too happy with my performance," Cotter said. "I could have done better. Jay (Thornton) and Tyler (Vogt) did really good, though. They did very well."

—David Schwartz

WOMEN'S GYMNASTICS

The Iowa women's gymnastics team renewed a heated rivalry Saturday at the UI Field House. However, it wasn't against the traditional Big Ten Conference rivals.

They were competing against each other. The juniors and seniors squared off against the freshmen and sophomores in the Black and Gold Intrasquad Scrimmage.

The veterans came away with the victory, but nobody went away feeling less confident.

"We looked pretty good today, but it's early in the season, so it's really too early to tell how we're going to be as a team," freshman Grace Lee said.

The women competed only in two events, the balance beam and the bars, but Coach Diane DeMarco said fewer events doesn't necessarily mean less pressure.

"We're only competing in two events," DeMarco said. "But we are getting judged."

Iowa's regular season schedule opens at Illinois on Jan. 22.

DIVISION LEADERS

Cowboys corral Eagles, 31-19

Barry Wilner
Associated Press

Now that qualifying for the playoffs is out of the way, the Dallas Cowboys can think about something bigger: home field in their conference.

The Cowboys, seeking to become the first team with three straight Super Bowl titles, clinched the NFC East on Sunday with a 31-19 victory at Philadelphia.

Emmitt Smith rushed for 91 yards and two touchdowns as the Cowboys (11-2) didn't miss quarterback Troy Aikman in handing the Eagles their fourth successive defeat.

But Dallas couldn't gain on the red-hot San Francisco 49ers, who routed Atlanta 50-14 as Steve Young accounted for five touchdowns.

"For us to stay on pace with San Francisco, we have to win the next three," quarterback Rodney Peete said.

"But this was a big win for us. It means a lot (clinching the division), but we still have three games to go. Our goal is to get back to the Super Bowl and win it. We're a step closer."

Cowboys 31, Eagles 19

Peete did well in place of Aikman (sprained knee), completing 10 of 17 passes for 172 yards. Michael Irvin had 117 yards and a touchdown on four receptions in the Cowboys' 14th successive NFC East victory.

Randall Cunningham finished 29 of 46 for 327 yards for the Eagles (7-6).

Steelers 38, Bengals 15

At Cincinnati, the Steelers' defense continued its dominance and the offense kept control against the Bengals (2-11), holding the ball for 40 minutes. The Steelers held Jeff Blake, the AFC's leading passer, to a season-low 156 yards on 8-for-19 passing and sacked him five times, padding their total to 50. Kevin Greene added to his NFL sacks lead with two, giving him 14.

Giants 16, Browns 13

At Cleveland, the Giants (6-7) won their third straight following a seven-game slide that came after three straight victories as Brad Daluiso kicked a 33-yard field goal with 19 seconds to go.

Daluiso, usually used only on kickoffs, made three field goals after David Treadwell was benched for missing a 37-yarder in the first half.

The Browns (8-4) could have clinched their first playoff berth since 1989, but committed turnovers on four of their first five second-half possessions.

49ers 50, Falcons 14

There were no fisticuffs between Deion Sanders and Andre Rison, as

Associated Press

Eagles Michael Zordich battles Cowboys Michael Irvin for a 46-yard pass from Cowboys quarterback Rodney Peete in the second quarter of the game Sunday in Philadelphia. The ball popped loose after Zordich tried for a two-hand grab and Irvin recovered.

Smith dunks for N.C. women

Tom Foreman Jr.
Associated Press

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Charlotte Smith of North Carolina became the first woman in 10 years to dunk a basketball during a game Sunday, making a one-handed jam during a 113-58 rout of North Carolina A&T.

Smith, a 6-footer, intercepted a pass by Samara Dobbins and went in uncontested. Her right wrist cleared the rim and Smith pushed the ball through the basket just 17 seconds into the game.

"The pass was just there, and the whole time I was going out, I was focusing on dunking and just getting it over with," Smith said after scoring 22 points for the No. 5 Tar Heels. "I don't know exactly what happened as far as gripping it. It wasn't the most convincing dunk that I've done, but, hey."

The last woman to dunk during a game was Georgeann Wells, who had two dunks while playing for West Virginia in 1984.

Smith scored 17 points in the first half and the Tar Heels hit 11 3-pointers and shot 60 percent for the game in running up the seventh-highest point total in school history.

Smith was already a hero for No. 5 North Carolina. Her 3-pointer at the buzzer gave the Tar Heels a 60-59 victory over Louisiana Tech last season for the program's first national title.

Smith's uncle is David Thompson, the high-flying former NBA and North Carolina State star.

The Tar Heels actually designed their defense to get Smith the opportunity to dunk. She lingers on the perimeter instead of playing along the baseline. The defense, called "3-D," means Smith doesn't crash the defensive boards with her teammates. Instead, when the rebound comes down, she races down court, hopefully with no one between her and the basket.

Against Robert Morris, in North Carolina's home opener Saturday, the Colonials denied the outlet pass to Smith.

"On the rebound, they were doubling the rebounder and it was hard to get the outlet," Smith said. "Once you run the (defense) over and over again, you're just tired."

NFL ROUNDUP

Broncos move into second

Associated Press

Broncos 20, Chiefs 17, OT

At Kansas City, with John Elway sidelined with possible cartilage damage in his knee, Jason Elam kicked a winning 34-yard field goal for Denver (7-6), which suddenly is tied for second place in the AFC West after an 0-4 start. Hugh Millen engineered a 41-yard drive that set up the kick.

The Chiefs (7-6) tied it on Steve Bono's 62-yard TD pass to Willie Davis and a two-point conversion pass to Davis. Bono was playing for Joe Montana, out with a foot injury.

Lions 34, Packers 31

The host Lions (7-6) moved ahead of the Packers (6-7) in the NFC Central thanks to, who else, Barry Sanders.

Sanders rushed 20 times for 188 yards and one touchdown. A 63-yard run by Sanders set up the go-ahead 1-yard TD dive by Derrick Moore with 9:02 left. Sanders broke his single-season record of 1,548 yards, set in 1991, during the run.

"He's a great one," Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren said. "He's an awesome player, especially on the artificial turf field. No, he's a great player anywhere."

Cardinals 30, Oilers 12

At Houston, Buddy Ryan returned to where he was defensive coordinator last year and saw his offense pick apart the Oilers (1-12), losers of nine in a row.

The previously dormant offense scored three touchdowns for Arizona (6-7), while the defense forced six turnovers.

"We looked like a pro football team for the first time this year offensively," Ryan said.

Colts 31, Seahawks 19

At Seattle, the tragedy-stricken Seahawks (5-8) couldn't stop Marshall Faulk, who went over 1,000 yards rushing for the season with 129 yards. Indianapolis (6-7) recovered three fumbles and intercepted two passes.

The Seahawks' third loss of the season to the Colts — two in regular season games and one in an exhibition game — came only three days after a traffic accident left defensive tackle Mike Frier paralyzed. Running back Chris Warren, injured in the crash, played and rushed for 81 yards, but the Seahawks lost right-handed quarterback Rick Mirer to a broken left thumb.

Patriots 24, Jets 13

The host Patriots (7-6) won their fourth straight and moved ahead of the Jets (6-7) in the playoff race as Ricky Reynolds scored on an 11-yard interception return.

A fake field goal that turned into a punt pinned the Jets at their 1. On third down from the 5, Boomer Esiason threw toward Ryan Yarbrough on the left side. Reynolds cut in front, caught the ball and eased into the end zone for the Patriots' first defensive touchdown of the year.

Art Monk tied Steve Largent's NFL record of 177 straight games with a catch on a 7-yard completion from Esiason with 3:25 left in the first quarter.

Buccaneers 26, Redskins 21

At Tampa, the Bucs (4-9) won their second straight, with Craig Erickson scoring on a quarterback sneak with 32 seconds left. Rookie Errict Rhett had 192 yards on 40 carries.

Heath Shuler threw TD passes of 81 yards to Desmond Howard and 77 yards to Orlando Truitt in the first half. Andre Collins added a 92-yard interception return for a score for Washington (2-11).

Saints 31, Rams 15

In his return to Anaheim Stadium after leaving the Rams as a free agent, Jim Everett led the Saints (4-9) to a 21-point halftime lead. Mario Bates scored on runs of 1, 11, and 26 yards and rushed 25 times for 96 yards.

"We had a 99 1/2-yard drive to set the tone for what we wanted to get done," Everett said. "It was nice to get that done here in this stadium, where I've had so many memories. This was a great win."

Bills 42, Dolphins 31

The Miami Dolphins missed their best chance yet to put away the Buffalo Bills.

With the Bills' playoff hopes dimming, Buffalo took advantage of several lucky bounces and rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit to beat Miami 42-31 Sunday night.

Jim Kelly threw four touchdown passes, including a 72-yarder to Don Beebe that sparked the comeback in the third quarter, when Buffalo outscored Miami 21-0.

Striking, tender 'Professional' brings magic to action cinema

Ian Corwin
The Daily Iowan

A rich hybrid with equal parts of "The Godfather" and "Little Miss Marker" in its makeup, "The Professional" is an action movie that has no trouble pulling an audience's strings. It's a wry, kinetic and heart-warming rocket ride, a slambang action film that somehow manages to wear its emotions on its sleeve, openly sharing its heart before blasting it into a bloody streak on the back wall of the theater.

French director Luc Besson has snatched the action genre, an arguably American cinematic invention, from this continent and infused it with a European sensibility. The result spoils moviegoers' taste buds for anything less than refined entertainment. Like his "La Femme Nikita" — a sort of "My Fair Lady" meets "Dr. No" — Besson's "The Professional" succeeds by romanticizing that which couldn't be romanticized. With a European sensitivity and an admiration for classic American film, Besson adds fresh new magic to the most overblown film genre since biblical epics.

Like "Nikita" before it, "The Professional" begins and ends as an eye-popping shoot 'em up. Milk-swilling mob hit man Leon (Jean Reno) is the best there ever was. Sneaking into a hotel suite through layers of armed guards as if invisible, Leon quickly establishes himself as a man on a first-name basis with death. He is efficient, cunning and cold — but above all he's a professional, able to put it all aside when the five o'clock whistle blows.

After a hard day's work, Leon can be found in the local movie house, smiling stupidly at an old print of "Singin' in the Rain." Or he'll be in his simple two-room apartment, pruning the leaves of a lush young plant, giving it warmth, light and love. He may be ruthless, but he's not above sharing himself in life as well as in death.

Leon's 12-year-old neighbor, a chain-smoking waif named Mathilda (Natalie Portman) quickly attracts his undivided attention. She's abused by her dope-dealing father and ignored by the rest of the family. After narrowly escaping which he draws back a little at a time. Through the simple cleaning of a gun, the watering of a plant or the playing of a child's game, Besson forces audiences into sympathy for his misguided heroes just as well as he quickens their pulses when these two find themselves in mortal danger.

And the danger in "The Professional" is thicker than congealed blood, thanks in large part to Oldman's vastly underrated and superbly constructed performance. In Stansfield, Besson has written Oldman a part which the unconventional English actor can loom into comfortably — a part begging for Oldman's deft touch with psychotics. A sociopath with a love of Beethoven and crystal meth, Stansfield represents pure, offbeat, American-made malevolence. He casts a dark shadow over the entire film, thanks to Besson's new take on the stateside nightmare of drug abuse and Oldman's talent for quirky emoting and furious method.

Driven by realistic characters whose delicate relationships are threatened by the shadow of the greatest screen villain since "Cape Fear" — Max Cady, "The Professional" rides well, even when the brake line is cut. The conclusion of the film reels into mammoth, over the top satire — a shakeup of little consequence, seeing how Besson and crew force the viewer into suspension of disbelief from first to last, with hardly the wave of a handgun.

"The Professional" is the best American film to be released this year, second only to "Pulp Fiction" in its status as a self-conscious character study in which heart, mind and gut-thumping action play equal roles. See it once for the thrill. See it again just because.

Cranes
Loved

The sound of little girls sucking helium is an annoying musical style that seems to be growing in popularity — think Cocteau Twins, Lush, Juliana Hatfield, the Sundays and "Twin Peaks" mascot Julee Cruise. After torturous hours of listening to this baby-doll babble, fantasies of getting these singers self-esteem counseling or major doses of estrogen dance through our heads. Real women with real voices are generally preferable, unless, of course, the Cranes' Alison Shaw is at the microphone.

Shaw sounds like Shirley Temple doing a happy drug like Ecstasy atop a fluffy mass of cumulus clouds, and she most thoroughly out-heliums all the others. Loved, the British band's third album, continues the somnambulist journey begun on 1993's Forever, 1992's Wings of Joy, and several EPs from the band's early days.

The voluptuous single "Shining Road" flutters on butterfly wings through a dense molasses of guitar and emanating sound. "Paris and Rome" and "Réverie" are further extensions of the lightheaded arrhythmia, while the quirky "Lilies" is a thrashy little temper tantrum. A remix of "Shining Road," done by Michael Brauer, along with Flood remixes of both "Paris and Rome" and "Lilies" (Flood has worked with bands like Depeche Mode) pad out the second half of the CD. (A previous, hard to find Shining Road EP contains some of these remixes, as well as two songs, the instrumental "Green Song" and "September," which aren't available on Loved.)

Dreamiest of the dreamy, the Cranes have also managed to retain the edge that makes them so listenable. Loved is a bedtime story for little girls and boys who intend a prompt departure to never-never land once the lights are out for the night.

Apathy-themed 'PAJAMA' exhibit doesn't live up to its lively name

Charles Monson
The Daily Iowan

Viewing "The PAJAMA Photographs: An Artistic Coterie at Play" is a lot like watching slides from someone else's vacation: It may carry a slight voyeuristic thrill, but in the long run it's only interesting to the people in the photos.

"PAJAMA" showcases the work of Paul Cadmus and Jared and Margaret French, socialite painters who dabbled in photography during their free time. (Hence the show's name: PAUL, JAred, MARGaret.) The three artists were considered "magic realists," meaning that they constructed improbable scenarios and then rendered them in deadpan, lifelike detail. Unfortunately, their tendency to bring this artistic sensibility to "PAJAMA" very nearly sinks the exhibition.

The highlight of "PAJAMA" is the handful of photographs that do not strongly conform to the group's usual style. These casual photos of art-world notables, taken by the two Frenches, have an unstudied, honest quality absent from the other pieces. Margaret French contributed a nice candid shot of E.M. Forster, and there's also a cute picture of New York City Ballet founder Lincoln Kirstein asleep with his cat, Nanook, lying on his outstretched legs.

The best shots in this group are actually in an intermediate style which echoes magic realism. Jared French's top effort is "Jack Dunphy and Truman Capote, Rome, 1949," a picture of the two writers lying together in the grass, Capote's head on Dunphy's chest. It's a tender image which suggests an intriguingly ambiguous mix of platonic admiration and erotic attraction. More importantly, the subjects' faces show genuine emotion, an element that separates this photo from the rest of the exhibition.

The people in "PAJAMA" seem to be trying to imitate Greek statues — not only by posing in various states of undress, but also by showing no more emotion than a chunk of marble. Despite the exhibition's carefree subtitle, there doesn't seem to be much play going on. The photos are set in pleasant locales (on the beach, in a pond, etc.), but the subjects look so unexcited you'd think they were watching paint dry rather than enjoying a vacation.

This blithe indifference is rarely less than annoying, but in some cases it seems downright arrogant. "Paul Cadmus and George Tooker, Palisades Park," which has the two men lying on a rock outcrop and looking disinterested, is a good example. The photo suggests that the artists were more interested in chronicling their own ennui than in capturing the natural beauty around them.

It's possible that the self-absorbed looks are actually the artists' way of adding irony. Cadmus saw the photos as "just for fun," and a sense of humor does in fact shine through in one of the images. The photo, which shows Jared French lying "dead" on a beach after having apparently been attacked by a clump of seaweed, is genuinely amusing (the just-visible grin which the "corpse" is trying to suppress helps the effect immeasurably). Unfortunately, none of the other jokes comes close to matching this gleeful spontaneity — they're all either too pat or too snide to be appealing.

A few of the exhibit's images have nice stylistic flourishes — Jared French's "Kiko (reclining on mantel)" series is an elegant, refreshingly direct take on "PAJAMA"'s recurring theme — but the majority look like pictures in a family album rather than artwork intended for public consumption.

"The PAJAMA Photographs" isn't a disaster; it's just sort of banal. There are about a dozen pieces worth seeing, but to find them one must slog through about five dozen boring pictures of bored people.

"The PAJAMA Photographs: An Artistic Coterie at Play" will be on display at the UI Museum of Art through Dec. 31.

THEATER

Offbeat 'Milk Wood' proves appealing

Charles Monson
The Daily Iowan

Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood" is set decades ago and an ocean away, but that shouldn't stop contemporary theatergoers from enjoying it. The Riverside Theatre production combines Thomas' lyrical prose and Michael Sokoloff's adroit direction to create an unusual and appealing show.

"Milk Wood" is Thomas' peek into the life of the Welsh fishing village Llareggub. By leading audiences through a series of brief episodes in the lives of the townspeople, Thomas paints a broad picture of the drudgeries, frustrations and small pleasures that make up their daily lives.

Sokoloff has taken full advantage of the possibilities inherent in staging this "play for voices," which Thomas originally conceived as a radio production. The eight-member cast is constantly on the move, traversing the breadth of the stage in a manner that evokes the sprawl of an entire town rather than the limits of the small Riverside space. Sokoloff also capitalizes on the fact that visually performing the play emphasizes its conflicting themes of eroticism and isolation. It would be possible for skilled radio actors to get these feelings across with words only, but it doesn't hurt to be able to see the characters drawing each other close or remaining pointedly separated.

The cast (many of whom are veterans of local theater) deliver performances ranging from adequate to excellent. Since the play includes 63 characters and embraces every mood from melancholy to near-slapstick, each of the actors has at least one juicy role to play with.

There are a few nice dramatic moments, including a poignant scene in which a retired sea captain (Ron Clark) converses with his dead wife (Jody Hovland). However, the play tends more strongly toward humor, a style which the entire cast handles quite deftly. Fred Norberg is hilarious as a meek husband plotting to kill his harpy wife, and Clark plays a mawkish barkeep whose lovesick moaning becomes more absurd with each appearance. John Wilson's mugging is occasionally over the top, but it is invariably fun and inventive.

The script itself is a treasure. Audiences may have a hard time following Thomas' rhythmic phrasings at first, but once they get used to it they'll find the words soothing and rewarding. The script's only shortcoming is that most of the extended scenes drag in comparison to the frequent transitions that comprise the bulk of the script. Margaret E. Gurl's "Tom, Dick and Harry" song is pleasantly wistful but nevertheless feels about one verse too long. The audience also became visibly restless during Wilson's "Voice of a Guidebook" narration, although, in Thomas' defense, it couldn't have helped that Wilson stumbled over a few of the lines.

Charles Davies' set design, with its maritime feel and multiple levels, is effective and versatile — so versatile that it'll also serve as the set for "A Child's Christmas in Wales," the other half of Riverside's Dylan Thomas Holiday Festival. Patrick Strain's lighting design is fine. His decision to keep parts of the stage darkened enhances the dreamlike quality of the production

(the show's combination of internal narration and seamless transitions make it seem like a peek into Llareggub's collective consciousness). Kristeen Chapman-Wendell's costumes have a genuine period look to them, and most of Mark Bruckner's sound designs are barely noticeable, enhancing the mood without drawing attention away from the actors.

"Under Milk Wood" is an enjoyably offbeat show — thoughtful but not maudlin, unorthodox but not inaccessible. It's a chance for audiences to escape their own lives for a few hours by letting Thomas' rich dialogue draw them into his world.

"Under Milk Wood" continues its run at Riverside Theatre, 213 N. Gilbert St., through Sunday, Dec. 17. "A Child's Christmas in Wales" opens Dec. 10. Call 338-7672 for more information.

17" GRADUATED HERRINGBONE CHAIN

The JCPenney Quality Assurance Program. It's as good as gold.

When you purchase gold rings, necklaces, pendants, chains or earrings from The Jewelry Store, your purchase is backed by our Quality Assurance Program. This guarantees that the quality and gold content of our merchandise meet the highest industry standards. So whether you purchase gold for yourself or as a gift, you can rest assured you'll find the quality, value and selection that you deserve.

Regular prices are offering prices only. Sales may or may not have been made at regular prices.

Jewelry photos may be enlarged to show detail. CT.T.W. stands for carat total weight. Diamond sale includes only that jewelry where diamonds constitute the greatest value. Diamond accents may not constitute greater value than gold. 10K and 14K gold in our assortments. Available only at JCPenney stores with Fine Jewelry Departments. Merchandise shown is representative of our assortment. Selection may vary by store. Some merchandise may not be available at every store. If an item is not available at your nearest JCPenney store, we will gladly order it for you.
