Priest opens church doors to new ideas

Jill Heflik

The first time the Rev. John Easley of the Episcopal Church at Old Hickory, Tenn., visited the University of Iowa Medical Center, he showed up late. Now, the chaplain and his husband are giving a three-week course to students.

On Tuesday, the couple opened the Medical Center Chapel to students and the public for an open house.

"We were so delayed," Easley said. "I'm not into guilt."

Easley and his husband, Carl, have limited time and different roles in working in the chaplaincy.

"I don't want to be part of a political movement," Easley said. "I'm concerned than people talk about things and are anti- and un-American because of the rules of the current educational system. There has to be another reality. It will be all of these other selves but full of hopefulness."

Who is the priest that can open the church?" Easley said. "There is a lot of rules, but I learned to separate my skills and ethics rules concerning资本市场. There is no moral dilemma, but there is a moral dilemma when I got involved.

"There is not a lot of rules," Bono said. "I learned to separate my skills and ethics rules concerning资本市场. There is no moral dilemma, but there is a moral dilemma when I got involved.

Happy Trails

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans sing the couple's theme song, "Happy Trails to You," during an early celebration of their 47th wedding anniversary at Camelot Ranch in Malibu, Calif.

About 200 people attended the celebration, a day of pony rides, bear rides, pond fishing and line dancing.

The event, which was held at the couple's home in Malibu, Calif., featured a special screening of some of the couple's favorite movies.

The couple also performed a medley of their hit songs, "Happy Trails to You" and "Duel in the Red Rocks." They were joined on stage by their beloved dog, the little girl in the movie, Trigger.

I.C. faces possible sales tax increase

Tom Schoenberg
The Daily Iowan

Increasing the local sales tax from 1 percent to 2 percent would provide the city with money to help alleviate higher water rates and possibly lower property taxes, said Donald Tolz, Iowa City Finance director.

The 1 percent tax increase would generate an extra $8 million, but only Iowa City would keep this money. Shifting the tax on alcohol would require the approval of the state legislature. "If the legislature will not allow the city to have this money, then it would be a problem," Tolz said. "The city would have to run the city on less money."

"All the money would go to the people, but 1 percent would stay here," Tolz said.

Iowa state law requires a 5 percent sales tax for all counties; however, the Iowa Department of Revenue and Finance requires the local option sales tax to be voted on by the public in either a general election or a special election. Tolz said this requirement is problematic because the sales tax may never reach the public's pockets if it meets one of two requirements needed for it to be placed on a ballot: a petition signed by 5 percent of eligible voters in a county who voted in the general election in the previous two years or an appearance by a state resolution through the Iowa City Council.

"The Council, I believe, is not in favor of it as a majority," Tolz said. "If they want it, they must sign one. If they don't, then I don't have it."

HUMAN RIGHTS WEEK

The campus chapter of Amnesty International is organizing an event to address the issue of human rights on campus from Monday to Saturday.

"We need to let them know we are doing something," Alice Dahle, representative for Amnesty International, said Monday night at the City Hall. "At the beginning of the week we will set a goal for what we need to do. We could raise between $25.5 million. According to taxable sales figures, the City of Iowa would be able to generate an extra $8 million. But only Iowa City would keep this money. Shifting the tax on alcohol would require the approval of the state legislature. "If the legislature will not allow the city to have this money, then it would be a problem," Tolz said. Week spotlights global human rights

Ellen Phillips and Jon Damron
The Daily Iowan

In honor of 21st Human Rights Week, celebrated for the first time in 1991, the campus chapter of Amnesty International is sponsoring events and speakers in an effort to raise public awareness of the issue. Although Human Rights Day - December 10 - is recognizedinternationally, it is not a national holiday in the United States. The concept of Human Rights Day was established by the U.N. International Declaration of Human Rights, which was passed in 1948. Michelle Pulasky, chairwoman of the Children's Campaign, was this week's opening speaker and discussed the loss of rights facing children in her lecture, "Children's Issues." Monday night in the Student Union, Kathryn Meyer, chairwoman of the American Solidarity Campaign, will speak at the Union.

"We are trying to cover as many issues as possible," Meyer said. "The first one is children's rights. Humans' rights are based on the rights of children."

Human Rights Week is sponsored by Amnesty International, a group of students and faculty addressing the issue of human rights in society, said Kathy Delaney, president of the UI chapter of Amnesty.

"If you're going to run some errands. Her home in Quincy declined to talk about the slaying. Her burial was held Monday for Patricia Moore, a woman whose home was burned, stabbed and beaten. Her body was found north of Des Moines after a week of searching. Moore's family members who gathered at the Des Moines-Midwest Memorial Cemetery in Quincy for Moore's funeral were still in shock.

"It took 24 hours to find her, but to take more time to reflect on the inanity of inter­facing our responsibilities for human rights on an everyday basis," she said. "If we're going to vote on a ballot to put it on the ballot, we need to let them know we are doing something."

Term limit advocates cry foul over Gingrich's 12-year plan

Mike DeFonseka

Associated Press

An Iowa term-limits activist who has long complained that Speaker Newt Gingrich of Georgia, the House majority leader, would allow him and other respondents to serve 12 terms as lawmakers, has filed a lawsuit.

The Associated Press story of 2000 was headed "Iowa term-limits group to sue Gingrich." The suit would allow him and other respondents to serve 12 terms as lawmakers.

Asking term limits be established, of course, is Mr. Gingrich's director, specify Minnesota, the U.S. House of Representatives, and the law enforcement that would be in the state of Iowa and any other state, respectively.

In a telephone call with Mr. Gingrich on the subject of the lawsuit, the group's chairman, Mr. Gingrich said Gingrich would allow the respondents to serve 12 terms as lawmakers.

Haters

A racially hostile environment

The Nov. 17 deadline "Requiem for black minority reprisal discrimination on the Iowa Campus, Iowa City, 1976 to 1986" is not a legalistic description but a vivid, provoking, emotionally charged and often acrimonious survey of the issues surrounding the social environment on the University of Iowa campus, Iowa City.

In the book's preface, the editor states that it is "one of the most important books to be published on the problem of race relations in American society in recent years."

The book's editor, Dr. Audrey E. Drabant, is a University of Iowa professor of history and a member of the university's civil rights commission.

Barker, a consensus first-team All-American as a junior last season, was named the Big Ten Conference Player of the Year. He is the first Iowa basketball player to earn the top honor since 1978.

Barker, a 6-foot-10 forward from Austin, Texas, averaged 16.5 points and 8.4 rebounds per game last season. He shot 57.7 percent from the field and 77.9 percent from the free throw line.

Barker's coach, Rick Majerus, said Barker is one of the best players he has coached. "He's a terrific player," Majerus said. "He has a great work ethic and he's a great leader."

Barker earns top senior CB award (LOUISVILLE, Ky. AP) — Outstanding defensive back George Riddle was named recipient of the University of Louisville's top football honor, this year's Outstanding Defensive Player Award. The senior cornerback was named by a vote of the players, coaches and media.

Riddle, 22, is a team captain for the Cardinals, who are 6-0 in the Southeastern Conference and 8-2 overall. He is one of three seniors on the Louisville defense.

Riddle is the third Louisville player in school history to earn the Outstanding Defensive Player Award, which has been given annually since 1994.

Riddle, a native of Houston, Texas, was a three-year starter at Louisville. He was named first-team all-conference as a senior, second-team all-conference as a junior and third-team all-conference as a sophomore.

He was named to the All-America team as a junior and was a finalist for the Bronko Nagurski Award, which is given annually to the nation's top defensive player.

Riddle will continue his college education as a graduate assistant coach at Louisville.

Rathbun to resign as chief labor negotiator (CHICAGO) — John Rathbun, the 52-year-old baseball commissioner, resigned as chief labor negotiator on Monday, effective Nov. 1.

Rathbun, who is expected to become an umpire, had been the chief labor negotiator since 1992 and was responsible for negotiating the 1994 and 1995 work stoppages.

Rathbun's resignation comes as the league and union are preparing to negotiate a new labor agreement.

The league and union have already agreed on a new labor agreement that would extend the current agreement until Dec. 31, 1997.

Rathbun's resignation is likely to have a significant impact on the negotiations, as he was one of the key figures in the negotiations during the last two stoppages.

Jackson charges program with racism

Michigan State forward John Starks was suspended by the NCAA on Monday for allegedly using a racial slur during a game against Wake Forest on Sunday.

Starks, a senior forward, was suspended by the NCAA for allegedly using a racial slur during the first half of the game against Wake Forest.

The NCAA said Starks used a racial slur during the game, which Michigan State won 85-82.

The NCAA issued a statement saying: "We are investigating the matter fully and will take appropriate action."

Jackson, who is a member of the NCAA's Board of Governors, said the incident was inappropriate and should not have occurred.

"This is a very serious matter," Jackson said in a statement. "We are taking this matter very seriously and will work with the NCAA to ensure that this does not happen again."

General managers remain optimistic

Miller Noden Associated Press

CHICAGO — Each day, NFL general managers voice optimism they'll get through contentious negotiations then pessimism. What each club wants is a collective bargaining agreement — the only thing that can end the recession.

"I'm optimistic," Boston Bruneau General Manager Bill Polian said Monday. "When talks break down and there aren't any, after a day or two of frustration, a guy like me is thinking about it again and getting back to the job. It's a collective bargaining agreement — the only thing that can end the recession.

The lockout began Oct. 1, the traditional first day of the season. The owners are planning to make a new offer to the players Monday and try to break the impasse.

Christmas-themed ‘Trapped’ gives gift of insomnia cure

The Daily Iowan

“Trapped in Paradise” wows its audience with the high-speed box-office scene that a blood-gulpin’ flick carries a lethal dose of acid. The film is well-made, dull and devoid of life. “Trapped” one can standardize for its dimensionless and provides a better way for the nation than with two hours of televised golf.

Mike Hall, an enterprising and Dana Carvey – always resembling The Three Stooges after radiation – comes from “Trapped in Paradise” to try their damndest to win the world, a true high press across the nation. But through a series of funny mix-ups, they find themselves unable to make it to the show. They are trapped in by the local kindle, which the cracks soon learn just are not from

“I don’t want to be the first person to say that ‘Trapped in Paradise’ is recycled trash. Two’s zombielike leading man (Cage) get out of prison and con their unexciting comedic actor to come avenging several wrongdoers.”

The premise for “Trapped in Paradise” is another Deadhead favorite. Two’s zombielike leading man (Cage) get out of prison and con their unexciting comedic actor to come avenging several wrongdoers.

The Three Stooges as a modern Three Stooges in the painfully bad.

For a Christmas spirit type film, “Trapped in Paradise” seems large enough to deliver any true gift, but it seems like the holiday season this year has been killed by the film. It is a cheap way to keep audiences from nodding off. He’s just annoying enough to balance off a spectacul
