Boiler power failure halts UI steam supply

UI buildings lost steam for about 30 minutes at 9:45 p.m. Tuesday, after a boiler in the UI Physical Plant lost electrical Garry Bleckwenn, associate director of utilities at the Physical Plant, said the steam loss was not a serious or unusual occurrence. Bleckwenn said the incident was not weather-related.

Steam pressure dropped 50 ercent, but the boiler was on-line again 15 minutes later.

Early morning accident claims life of Hills teen

An accident on northbound Highway 218 resulted in one fatality Tuesday morning when a driver lost control of his truck and was thrown from his vehicle.

Shaun Gray Septer, 16, of Hills, lowa, was driving his pickup on the highway when he failed to maintain control of the truck, according to an accident report issued by the Iowa State Patrol. Septer was thrown from the truck and killed when it crossed the roadway and rolled into the median at 8:45 a.m. The report said Septer was not wearing a seat belt.

It is still unknown whether the bad weather caused Septer to lose control of his vehicle.

Cobain suicide simulation proves deadly

TRACY, Calif. (AP) — A man accidentally shot himself to death while imitating the suicide of rock star Kurt Cobain, police said.

As his friends watched early Monday, Gaston Lyle Senac propped a 12-gauge shotgun on the floor and knelt with his mouth over the barrel, Sgt. Jim Hanson

"He wasn't intending to hurt himself," Hanson said. "He put the gun up to his head and said, Look, I'm just like Kurt Cobain,' and the gun went off."

TRADITIONS CHALLENGED

Gender gap shrinking, retention still lacking

The Daily Iowan

Eight years ago, there were no female professors in the UI College of Engineering. Five years ago, the number rose to one. This year, there are five female and 69 male professors. Men and women are breaking barriers surrounding traditionally gendered jobs at relatively high rates, but UI sociology Associate Professor Jennifer Glass said they tend to get resegregated over time.

"There are a lot of new messages coming out as people get older," Glass said. "An awful lot of students want to go into medicine, chemistry and prelaw. But there are clear-cut barriers. Some women may feel uncomfortable entering classes that are predominantly

"He's had a lot of invites and apparently said no to all of them," Bezanson said. "He knows it is a major university lecture - perhaps the major university lecture."

This will be Blackmun's first visit to the UI campus since 1986, when he addressed the College of Law. Bezanson hosted Blackmun during that stay in Iowa City and said the former justice made an effort to talk with students on an individual basis.

Blackmun's stay culminated in a 2 1/2hour informal meeting with law students. UI visit this spring when Blackmun returns.

After trekking to campus, Barkhoudarova stops at the linguistics department to attend lectures in phonetics and phonology. She goes to the lectures for her own benefit and does not receive a grade.

"I want to use the opportunity to get acquainted with the science (of linguistics) here," she said. "It makes me very happy to go to these talks." After linguistics class, Barkboudarova shifts roles from student to instructor for her Fourth-Year Russian I and Advanced Composition and Conversation classes.

"I enjoy my work very much. I have very good students," she said.

Barkhoudarova said she is impressed by the performance of her students, even though she feels four hours of class per week is not enough to master the language.

"I am amazed that having so few hours they do such a good job here," she said.

After class, Barkhoudarova returns to her office in Phillips Hall to prepare for the next day. Occa- them.' sionally her students will use this

COST-SAVING MEASURES PROPOSED

Horowitz posed water rate increases that would fund a new water treatment plant were the main focus of the meeting. The debate was over the current proposal of increasing water rates by 40 percent in 1995 and 75 percent in 1996.

Council members, as well as the public, expressed concern that alternatives to the water rate increases and the proposed plant have not received enough consideration.

UI graduate assistant in civil and environmental engineering Vincent Neary explained the Aquifer Storage Recover design, which could bring down costs for the proposed plant by as much as 50 percent.

Neary said instead of building a plant that could hold the maximum amount of water the city might use, the plant could be built for the city's average water usage. This would bring down the physical size of the plant, decreasing the cost of a new one. In Neary's proposed plan, the plant would reserve water underground until it was needed, such as in dryer

"How serious are we at looking at alternatives?" Neary asked the Council.

An alternative to the proposed water rate increases was also discussed. City Manager rates could be spread over six years instead of larger rates over two. He said he drafted this option because of the major public concern about dramatic increases over a short term.

RULE AGAINST FOOD OVERLOOKED

Students take in treats despite library ban desk," Wyatt said. "I never gave it another thought."

Wyatt said she is conscious about keeping her study area clean after she's done, however.

"I try to clean everything up like the piece of lettuce I dropped on the floor earlier," she said. "Or else it'd be here forever."

Nights are far worse, Wyatt said. "I'd say about 90 percent of the tables occupied would have something like a QuikTrip sack here at night," she said.

The number of people who bring in food doesn't really bother South Entrance desk guard Anne Brady.

She said she doesn't mind people doesn't get messy.

"I'll just let them go," she said. "I figure I'll let someone else bust

However, Brady said she likes to have fun with her authority.

"I'll look at them, and they'll go Whoa!' and hide their food," she

When she was hired to work at the Main Library at the beginning of the semester, Brady said, no one stressed preventing food or drinks from being brought in.

"(My supervisors) didn't say any-"I just marched right by the front thing about it," she said. "They didn't tell me what to do or how to stop people when they bring food

Brady said she would stop people if they crossed the line, however.

"I would stop people if they had fast food, pizza boxes or were openly eating as they walked in," she

The library administrative staff should be enforcing the rule, but the staff doesn't want to be responsible for enforcing it, Main Library custodial supervisor Larry Anderson

"The staff thinks all they have to do is put the signs up," he said.

Students who bring food and bringing food in, as long as it drinks usually stay in the large study areas, but a few brought drinks over to the computers.

UI junior Tom Brdecka was sipping coffee while he was registering. It was only the second time he had been there this year - he was there a day earlier to check out books and he was trying to hide his concern as well as his coffee, he said.

"I do kind of hide my coffee because if they take it you're bumming because you need to stay awake," Brdecka said.

A half-eaten apple and a fruit knife lay on the table Tuesday next to UI junior Ryan Irion, who said he brings food at least once during the average three times a week he goes to the library.

"It's convenient," he said. "If I'm on campus I'd like to stay there to get my work done. Some of the other food items he has taken are Doritos, pop and sandwiches every once in a while.

"I usually just bring something quick," he said.

If Irion ever were to get caught, he would probably throw it away because there isn't much he can do, he said. He isn't worried about getting caught, however, because he has been doing it for three

"They really don't seem to enforce the rule, so why bother?" he said.

One of the reasons the Main Library staff does not enforce the rule anymore is because they do not have enough funds or staffers, said Main Library administrative director Barbara Dewey.

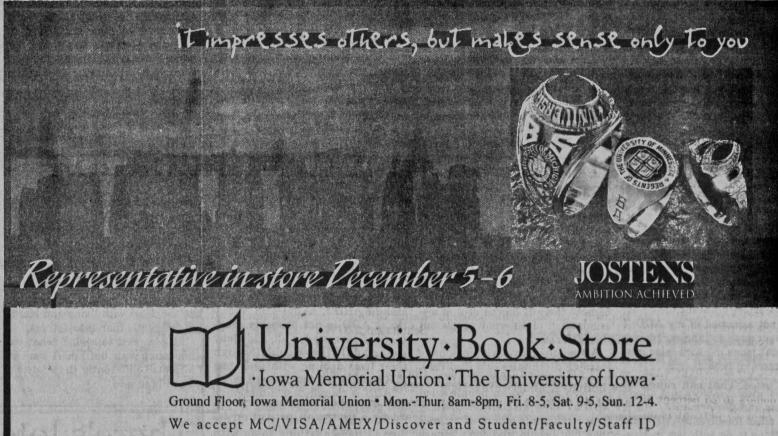

Entrance desk guards are supposed to stop people who bring in food and drinks, but oftentimes they are distracted by other students who check out books, or people hide their food, Dewey said.

We try to enforce it as best we can," she said. "Our hope is that library users help by not bringing in food in the first place.

ABORTION PILL TESTING

Freedom to choose

lowa has helped make history in women's heath care. Unfortunately, there will be many people who will be too clouded by emotions, religious implications and moral judgments to recog-

Time magazine recently profiled Planned Parenthood of Greater Iowa in Des Moines as one of the leaders in testing the new abortion pill that has finally made its way from Europe to America. True, the testimonies of the women who have tested the abortion pill are riveting. They are laden with intense emotion and realism, and are graphic in describing both the women's feelings and their physical responses. No doubt there will be those who pass judgment on these women, question the ethics of those who assist in these abortions, insist that science of this kind defies natural order and believe, above all, that God has a misplaced role in all of this.

Regardless of the debate between abortion advocates and abortion protesters, one fact remains: Women will reach out to control their own reproductive destinies because it has always been their responsibility to do so.

The abortion debate is not new, nor will it ever cease. In fact, these new trials will no doubt add fuel to an everlasting fire that burns with moral judgments, societal meanings and ethical questions about not only the women who terminate their pregnancies, but those who are there to help them do it safely and those who believe they have the right to choose.

Instead of falling into the same old debates, people should read between the lines of this issue. The article notes more than once that there has been no shortage of women who have volunteered to test the pill. By last week, 50 women had stepped forward to take part in clinic trials. Regardless of the debate between abortion advocates and abortion protesters, one fact remains: Women will reach out to control their own reproductive destinies because it has always been their responsibility to do so. Despite the high cost financially, emotionally and physically, women have always used termination of pregnancy as a means of attempting to reclaim control over their sexuality, freedom and physical well-being.

Despite the intensity of emotions and complexity involved in this issue, people should resist the urge to pass judgment. Instead it is time to recognize the courage it takes for a woman to make this decision. For the women who choose abortion, it is an important and carefully made decision. Women will continue to choose abortion whether society condones and provides for it or not. Iowans should be proud that we have stepped to the forefront in assisting women in their freedom to choose.

IOWA CITY BAR SCENE

Underage Catch-22

While they can be the one thing UI students live for most, they can also send underage students into their worst night-

Iowa City bars are undeniably the center of most students' social lives on the weekends. They're also a trap, however, catching students breaking the law as first-time offenders. More often than not, students get caught up in a mess they could never have prepared for.

An anxious victim can accidentally talk their way into a trip to the county jail. If the victim happens to be from Illinois, charges of possession of a false ID can cause them to lose their driver's license for an entire year. This can be a painful reality for a student who didn't cause harm to another, as do other alcohol offenders caught for drunken driving, sexual assault or Drinking is the norm for college students to the extent that it no longer requires any decision-making.

Although underage drinking is breaking the law, even an Iowa City police officer acknowledged, "Drinking is deemed to be a part of the college experience." He also admitted that regardless of age, social activities are centered around the bars.

Though there do exist the nonalcohol-related activities such as Hancher productions, movies and coffee houses, they are not viable distractions from the bars. A typical bar-frequenting student is not likely to make the choice of attending a theater production over hitting the bars.

Peer pressure takes on a more implicit effect because friends don't have to say, "Everyone's doing it"; you can see with your own eyes that everyone is doing it because it surrounds you. The pressure comes from being the only one in an entire bar or party without a drink in your hand and without the confidence and excitement of a buzz. Drinking is the norm for college students to the extent that it no longer requires any decision-mak-

UI students have anywhere from two to three years to knock on wood as their only protection from the trap that awaits them until they reach the safe age of 21. Paranoia and good luck are the only defenses against this Catch-22.

boundless, ceaseless, endless earth - this world of contrasts - can be seen from one end to another. It is a world of contrasts not only in its shape, but also in its people.

Scattered forms of life live side by side, but it is humans who rule the world. Humans were not chosen by other forms of life - they themselves chose to rule the world. How miserably we have done a job we were never selected to do.

In one part of our world, I can see a mother grasping her child, trying to keep the child's soul on earth with her. She is trying, praying and pleading in vain. She wants to keep her child from leaving this world, even though she herself is dying. But her death is not important to her. She wants to save her daughter.

I see a mother holding her child close to her heart - a heart as silent as her child's. They were born, they breathed and they lived - that was their guilt. They breathed the air poisoned by those who call themselves humans. The mother and daughter were guilty of nothing but being born and living on a place called Earth. May their souls reunite in the heavens. May they never have to leave each other again the way they had to leave this world.

In one part of our world, I can see people who suffer for crimes they haven't committed, for mistakes they haven't made and for wars they have neither waged nor taken any part in. I see people who are discriminated against for deeds they haven't done. I see people who are blamed for destruction they haven't wrought. I see people who are damned forever because of their fates - fates they have neither asked for nor have taken any part in their creations or their

In one part of our world, I can see a woman lying and looking at the ceiling of her dark empty room as if she is waiting to hear a knock on her door. She is waiting for someone to come and say to her that she shouldn't be dying of hunger in this richest of places on Earth. She is waiting to hear that she shouldn't have to use her body like a slave. She is waiting to hear that she shouldn't be left alone by those enslaving her body when they no longer find her to be what she was before. She wants to hear what she hasn't heard for all her life -but she never

In one part of our world, I see a man being led by others to a chair in a room which is empty and quiet. He is led to this seat for the last time in his life - a life that was painful for him and for those he passed his pain on to. His body is motionless, but his mind is filled and moving fiercely. In the midst of all of his thoughts, his body starts to shake uncontrollonger form coherent pictures. When the shaking stops, he is no longer in pain.

However, I can also see a picture of people whose hearts are so hateful of the man in this chair that they cheer when he dies. They are actually cheering the death of a human. Can they truly be humans themselves? I wonder in

In one part of our world, I see the body of a child left motionless in a place she thought was her home - a place where she was to grow into a beautiful woman, a place where she was to be loved and cared for. Instead of receiving love, she received hate by those who brought her to this mess called Earth. They brought her to a world she never asked to come into - a world she was forced to leave by the same people who gave her life. She experienced 12 winters in her three years of life. She never knew there was a spring in every year and that life was not all coldness and death.

She and others like her have left us. Without is more guilty than ever.

L his might be difficult, but try to imagine someone sincerely making this weird proposition to you.

"I have an idea for what we can do tonight. Let's go find a stranger and murder him."

"Yeah, then we'll chop up his body and cook some of it. Maybe eat his heart."

Whaa? "Sure! And we can put the leftovers away in the freezer. How's about it?"

Assuming that you thought this person wasn't being humorous, how would you assess his mental stability?

If you didn't spring away screaming, you would probably sputter, "You're crazy," or words to that effect. But would your instant diagnosis be correct?

I think so, and most people would agree that someone who would kill and eat people has serious mental problems. Or, in clinical terms, they're a real wacko.

Then you would be wrong. And that might be the most significant revelation to come out of the entire Jeffrey Dahmer case, besides his din-

But Jeffrey Dahmer? What if he had walked into a psychiatrist's office and said, "I've been having the strangest urges."

Yet people in that lawyer's profession can argue - with straight faces - that a person who eats parts of other human beings is not insane. And a judge will go along with the I've always thought of myself as being sane.

At least most of the time. Or some of the time. All right, once in awhile. So I'm slightly offended that someone like Dahmer is also considered sane. If we're both sane, what sets us apart - a mere dietary dysfunction? But maybe this tells us something about our society. (I don't know if that's true, but in mod-

Catherine Pietrzyk and Luke Flaherty graciously explained to your reporter the fewer than two dozen problems encountered each semester out of the 15,500 evaluations processed for the College of Liberal Arts. Your paper then tries to slant the facts to try to humiliate the personnel within these administrative offices of the UI. It did not work.

If your reporter had checked her facts, your paper would have reported that all undergraduate students receive a degree evaluation each fall and spring semester. On this evaluation is detailed information regarding hours earned toward their degree, the residency requirement, General Education Requirements, grade-point averages earned and required and all other requirements necessary to complete their major course of study. The document also instructs students to contact their adviser should there be any questions. It clearly states how many credit hours are still required to successfully complete a degree. And speaking of Wood, please explain to me how she can claim she is a senior when the UI phone book shows her classification this fall as "A3," which I understand to

The fact that an adviser may not perform his or her duties satisfactorily or that a student has not successfully completed the coursework does not give you the right to label the evaluation as "faulty"! Please understand that I believe the abuse of children by any perpetrator should not be tolerated. Punishment should be the maximum for these heinous and cowardly acts which often result in the death of vulnerable and defenseless children. Further, when abuse is suspected or known to have occurred, protection of the child should be the priority over preservation of the "family."

The national outrage against the mother in South Carolina who deliberately drowned her two young sons while they were strapped in their car seats is appropriate. Why, however, is there seldom the same outrage when yet another infant or young child is abused by a father, stepfather or mother's boyfriend? While the incident in South Carolina has been reported in headline stories, the brutal beating and murder of an 8-year-old boy by his father in Colorado has received minimal attention by the media. The headline "Florida mother charged in daughter's death" sensationalized and implied that the mother was the sole perpetrator and that her role as accomplice and her failure to protect her child were more horrendous than the act actually perpetrated by the stepfather.

Why is it that violence by males is not as shocking or intolerable as violence by women, especially to children? Why are we not as horrified and insistent upon maximum punishment when children are injured or killed by violent males? Mothers unquestionably should be responsible for the safety of their children, but fathers also should be held responsible. The double standard needs to be eliminated, not reinforced, by media sensationalism. The media must be responsible for accurate and balanced reporting of all instances of abuse, including investigation of the relevant facts.

No GOP mandate

To the Editor: Unfortunately, only 39 percent of igible voters went to the polls on Nov. 8. Of those, just a little over half - 52 percent — voted Republican.

This means that only 20 percent, or just one-fifth, of the electorate voted for the GOP. Is this the "mandate" that Newt Gingrich and company are gloating about? Some mandate!

Unneeded repetition made article unclear To the Editor:

Concerning the cover story on Jeffrey Dahmer titled "Dahmer slain in prison attack" (DI, Nov. 29), I would like to make a complaint. The article repeats key information in more than one case, leading me to come to three possible conclusions: The DI staff (or at least the author, Arthur L. Srb) has decided that we students and residents are not intelligent enough to retain information if it is delivered only once. Possibly Srb is putting very little effort into his story, which is rather pathetic as it is the major article. Lastly, maybe the editors are not doing their jobs. Whichever may be the case, it should most definitely be reversed.

It is my realization that the staff is pressed for time when working to pro-

ing. One would expect the paper would recognize its blatant mistakes before it is passed on to the reader. In this article, you at the DI seemed to have failed. I write you with the hope that I will help to prevent it from happening again in the future.

Mighty Morphin Power Rangers conspiracy?

To the Editor: A few weeks ago, I was horrified to turn on the television and find that the producers of our country's much beloved "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers" had made an unforgivable change. It seems that the producers tried to put new actors in the roles of Zack, Trini and Jason. Well, dear sirs and madams, this is an outrage. Do the people who run this show think that we Americans are a bunch of blithering idiots? Did they think that they could make a fundamental change to America's superheroes without offering an explanation for their actions?

I believe this new change to be a marketing ploy. Sure, it is just new faces now, but soon new names will follow and with them new dolls and toys. We must stand up to the capitalist-pig ways of the producers of this show. We must demand that they not destroy the integrity of the original Rangers in return for financial gain. So, dear Americans, it is the purpose of this Mighty Morphin Power letter to call for a massive grassroots campaign to bring back the original Rangers. We as Americans have a duty to stand up for our heroes. Please write your representatives today

If you have access to The New news magazines, they go in-depth and are easy to understand. The information is available.'

Current education curriculum fosters ignorance

UI political science Assistant Professor Gerald Sorokin said ignorance of current events is common because students don't have sufficient understanding of other cultures.

Students have narrow bases of knowledge pertaining strictly to their major, and ignorance of foreign cultures and events is the result, Sorokin said.

"What happens is that those who don't end up in humanities or social science fields are never exposed to the information," Sorokin said. "Medical students don't have the time to take world history or inter- on war and peace issues, Sorokin teach about culture."

"If it was up to me, in addition to civics classes and American politics, there would be international affairs and current event classes," he said. "In addition to American history, there would be world history. It would be valuable if world history and international relations requirements were in place.'

Thacher said although she makes the individual effort to keep up with current events, specific international classes should be required for highschool and college students.

Cyclones bomb Bulldogs

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Fred Hoiberg scored a career-high 32 points and Iowa State used a 31-6 second-half run to break the game open in a 94-69 victory over Drake on Tuesday night. Hoiberg was one of the few bright spots for the Cyclones (5-1), who played listlessly against their lightly-regarded foe.

Drake (0-3) had been beaten soundly in its first two games but built an early 12-point lead before eventually falling to Iowa State's superior size and talent.

lowa State scored the final eight points of the first half — six by Hoiberg — for a 45-43 lead and never trailed in the second

Panthers to threaten Hawks' win streak

Patrick Regan The Daily Iowan

Iowa holds a 22-2 all-time series advantage over Northern Iowa, but the Hawkeyes won't take the Panthers lightly when they invade Carver-Hawkeye Arena tonight.

you expect going into that game Wednesday night. The Hawkeyes last lost to the Panthers 77-74 in 1990 at the UNI-Dome. Iowa escaped Cedar Falls with an 81-76 victory a year ago. "They always play us tough," Iowa forward Jess Settles said. "Last year they almost knocked us off up there."

The Panthers (2-3) beat Niagara 75-72 in the Big Island Invitational and won at Loyola-Chicago 68-61 last Saturday. Northern Iowa has looked solid in its losses as well.

The Panthers forced New Orleans to overtime before losing 90-81 and took a tough Southern Cal team to the wire, but fell 68-61.

"Even a couple of their losses are impressive as well as their wins," Davis said. "If you know (Northern Iowa coach) Eldon (Miller), it's not a surprise that he has a wellcoached well-drilled ball club."

The Panthers rely on sophomores Jason Daisy and Jason Sims to carry the scoring load. Daisy averages 19.8 points per game at guard. Sims, a 6-foot-8 center, is the only other Panther to average in double figures at 10.2 points per

By contrast, Iowa has five players who score more than 10 points per game. Settles leads the Hawkeyes with a 23.5 scoring average followed by Chris Kingsbury at 16.5, Kenyon Murray (12.8), Jim Bartels (12.3) and Andre Woolridge

Although Iowa is 4-0, the Hawkeyes have not escaped the early season unscathed. Settles has been hampered with a sore back

'We're certainly banged up a little bit," Davis said. "The (four) games in eight days was a pretty good test for our ball club."

The UNI game marks the beginning of a crucial week for the Hawkeyes. Iowa is on the verge of cracking the Top 25 if it can beat State Saturday. The Hawkeyes are

Gable ponders difficult decision

Shannon Stevens The Daily Iowan

Iowa wrestling coach Dan Gable faces a dilemma. It's one that most coaches would consider a luxury. Because the Hawkeyes have two all-American wrestlers at the 158pound division, Joe Williams will probably redshirt this season.

Williams is certainly not underqualified. Last year as a true freshman, he compiled a 30-7 record and falls on his way to earning all-American status at 158. He finished third in the recorded two

pionships and seventh the NCAA Championships. However, all-American Daryl Weber also wrestles at 158 pounds. Weber has already used his red-shirt season and therefore would be wasting a year of eligibility by sitting out. The coaching staff thought about moving Williams up to 167 pounds, but senior Matt

Nerem has a lock on that position. Gable said he would like Williams to compete, but the Hawkeyes don't need him this sea-

"Obviously, he's a very talented person and we think a lot of him." Gable said. "We feel like he's capable of being the best wrestler at the weight class. But we also think a lot of Daryl Weber and if Nerem graduates this year, maybe we'll have room for them both next

Williams understands his role. "I would just be hurting the team, if I were to wrestle this year. If I make the lineup, than I'll either bump out Weber or Nerem," Williams said.

Williams has mixed feelings about sitting out this season. Williams said he will learn a lot and become stronger, but will miss competing against other wrestlers.

Iowa hosts the NCAA Championships March 16-18 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Williams is disappointed he'll likely be watching from the sidelines.

"Nationals are here and wrestling in front of the home crowd is something you don't get to do that often," Williams said. "In that sense, I want to be in the lineup, but I can also use this year to prepare for next year.'

Gable said a final decision on Williams' status won't be made any later than midseason, but said it was unlikely Williams would compete unless Weber gets hurt early

Mediator suggests owners drop salary cap

Ronald Blum Associated Press

ATLANTA - The mediator in the baseball strike urged owners Tuesday not to impose a

As the strike went through its 117th day, layers received a briefing from agent Dick Moss, who is attempting to launch a United League for 1996. Curt Flood, who lost his antitrust suit in 1972 but helped unite the union, was part of Moss' group and received a

> "What I don't want to do is like a vulture to hang over the dying corpse of baseball," Flood said. "How can you do without the Yankees and the Cardinals and the Dodgers? We want to compete with them.'

Fehr said players spent the afternoon discussing possible frameworks for the counteroffer to the owners' luxury tax plan of Nov. 17, and said it was possible the resumption of talks would be pushed back to Saturday. When Iowa tennis player Bryan Crowley began this season, all he wanted was to get through the year without an injury.

The 6-foot-2, 195-pound senior has done that and more. He has compiled a 9-1 record in singles play. Crowley became the first Iowa player to be ranked No. 1 in regional singles. He earned the ranking after winning the 96-seeded singles competition at the ITA Rolex Qualifier in November.

Iowa coach Steve Houghton recruited Crowley even though he didn't play tennis in high school.

"The fact I didn't play tennis in high school wasn't really a problem. By the time I was 18 I was one of the top 70 players in the country and ranked No. 2 in doubles in the nation. I think Coach Houghton recruited me because he saw that I was still inexperienced and had a lot of potential," Crowley Crowley said he was impressed with Houghton from the beginning. "Coach Houghton is one of the nicest guys I've ever met. He told what to expect from the very start and didn't try to sugar coat anything. He told me how it was and I

NEGOTIATIONS BRING NO PROGRESS

Owners drop tax bomb during NHL labor talks

Mike Nadel

Associated Press

CHICAGO - NHL labor talks broke down Tuesday, with both sides agreeing only that prospects are slim for salvaging the season.

Commissioner Gary Bettman said the sides were "too far apart on substance" regarding salary arbitration, free agency and rookie salary cap.

He said negotiations ended even before owners introduced a 25 percent "modified contribution proposal" - previously called a luxury tax - on teams that have payrolls exceeding $18 million in what would be the agreement's first

The players felt negotiations were going well and the sides were close on most issues before the owners dropped the tax bomb. They consider the tax a form of salary cap and have said all along they would never accept an agreement that includes it.

NHL Players Association executive director Bob Goodenow said the tax proposal was "counterproductive" and "seriously endangers the prospects of a deal and the prospects of a season.'

No talks are scheduled before the NHL Board of Governors meet Monday in New York.

The owners could decide then to become the first in pro sports ever to cancel an entire season because of a labor dispute. The 1994 base ball season was the first to end

However, the NHL owners simply could instruct Bettman to make best deal with what's currently on the table. Or they could set a "drop dead" date and see how the players respond.

Regardless, the parties involved Tuesday acted as if the season was over before it began.

"It's probably the most disapointing day of my career," Toronto Taple Leafs general manager Cliff Fletcher said. "If it ends up that I was part of the process that results in hockey not being played for an entire season, it would be a tremendous black mark."

The lockout, in its 67th day, egan Oct. 1 on what was supposed to be opening night.

It is generally believed a collective bargaining agreement must be in place by mid-December if there is to be a "meaningful" 50-game

Now, NHLPA president Mike Gartner said, it doesn't look like there will be a season at all.

"I can't see us going any further than we've gone," Gartner said.

Clippers struggle to break streak

Ken Peters

LOS ANGELES - The Los Angeles Clippers have been associated with losing so long that another defeat usually doesn't make any difference. Until now.

Today, a home loss against the Milwaukee Bucks will tie the NBA record for futility at the start of a season.

"The momentum is killing us and we don't want to let it spread. You have to act like a winner until you win, and keep a sense of humor."

Raiders get back into title race

Associated Press

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. - How big was the Raiders' victory over the San Diego Chargers? Big enough that the once out-of-theplayoff-picture Raiders can actually win the AFC West.

week ago, it took the most optimistic among the Raiders to see anything but despair in the final month of the season. Now, after beating San Diego 24-

Raiders, Denver Broncos and Kansas City Chiefs (all 7-6). But the Chargers have the toughest finishing schedule of any team in the AFC playoff race.

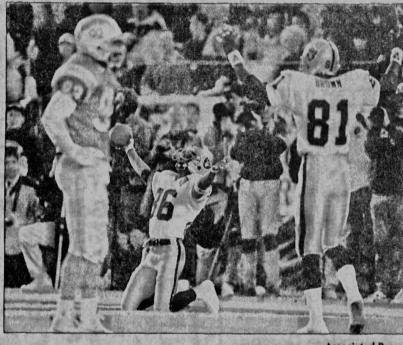

They play San Francisco (11-2) and Pittsburgh (10-3) at home, with a trip to New Jersey to play the Jets (6-7) in between. The three teams are a combined 27-12.

The Raiders, who appeared to be much on the outside looking in after losing to Pittsburgh 21-3 on Nev. 27, may instead have the inside track to not only the playoffs but a division title.

They have shots at the other two second-place teams from the AFC West. Denver is at the Coliseum Sunday, while Kansas City visits on Dec. 24. In between, the Raiders visit the 5-8 Seahawks.

And all three of those teams have potential or current quarterback problems. Denver's John Elway is limping on a sprained knee. Seattle's Rick Mirer is out for the season with a ken thumb. And Kansas City's Montana has a sprained foot and sat out Sunday's loss to Den-

Veteran QB brings life to Lions' offense

Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. - There used to be a saying when the late Bobby Layne was quarterbacking the Detroit Lions: "Bobby never lost a game, he just ran out of time

Time after time, the hard-drinking, fun-loving Texan would rescue the Lions. With Layne in control, the Lions went to the NFL championship game four times in the 1950s. They won three of them.

Now, aging veteran Dave Krieg is trying to rescue the Lions again. Yet there is the feeling he might have started too late.

Krieg was asked to crank up his rusty arm Nov. 6 in Milwaukee when Scott Mitchell broke the bone in his right (non-throwing) wrist in a game against the Green Bay Packers.

Since then, the 36-year-old Krieg has been sensational. He has passed for 1,069 yards and 10 touchdowns, without a single interception. In the process, Krieg has revitalized the Lions' offense.

"When the guy under center performs well, this team has the ability to score points," Detroit coach Wayne Fontes said. "He knows the offense and he moves the ball around well. He's a 15-year veteran that's good to have in there at this point in time."

When he came on in relief of Mitchell, the Packers staked themselves to a 38-14 lead heading into the fourth quarter. But Krieg, passing for 275 yards and three touchdowns, almost pulled the

Since then, the Lions have won three of four, including a 34-31 victory over Green Bay on Sunday. The late charge has Detroit (7-6) back in the hunt for the NFC Central title. The Lions play the Jets in New York on Saturday.

"The quarterback is making this offense better and better as we go,' Fontes said. "We have skilled people and we have a team that can

REJECTS PLAYERS' APPEAL

Court upholds NFL's free agency system a

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - The NFL's free agency system was given the blessing of a federal appeals court on

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected an appeal by 26 players and upheld a federal judge's approval last year of a legal settlement that created the system.

U.S. District Judge David Doty in Minneapolis had ruled that the labor agreement announced in January 1993 was "fair, reasonable and adequate" to the players who had filed a class-action lawsuit challenging the league's old, Plan B, free agency system.

A three-judge panel agreed with

The players had argued that the court had erred in certifying them as a class and that they were inadequately represented.

A federal jury ruled in 1992 that the Plan B system was illegal, ers to negotiate a new system that includes nearly unrestricted free agency for players with more than five years of league experience.

Doty gave that plan preliminary pproval Feb. 26, 1993, but dozens of players and former Philadelphia Eagles owner Norman Braman filed objections with the court. Braman has since sold the team to Jeffrey Lurie.

However, Doty concluded that the overall settlement was fair both to the league and the players He cited the time and expense likely to be consumed by further court battles, and the uncertain outcome should the NFL's labor disputes be settled by a jury.

He also noted that objections had been filed by only 89 NFL or college players out of more than 5,000 affected by the settlement. At the same time, in little more than a month under the new system, 78 unrestricted free agents signed prompting the league and the play- new contracts, 53 with new teams.

Kirby, 33, played wide receiver and returned kicks at Illinois and was captain of the 1982 Illini team that finished second in the Big Ten and played in the Liberty Bowl. He's sixth on Illinois' career kickoff return list with 824 yards.

After two seasons in the Canadian Football League, Kirby began his coaching career at Pasadena Community College. He also has coached at Eastern Illinois, Southern Illinois and L.A. Southwest Community Col-

McCarney earlier hired Mike Woodley of West Des Moines Valley, assistant head coach Steve Loney of Connecticut and Louisville recruiting coordinator Mike Carskie.

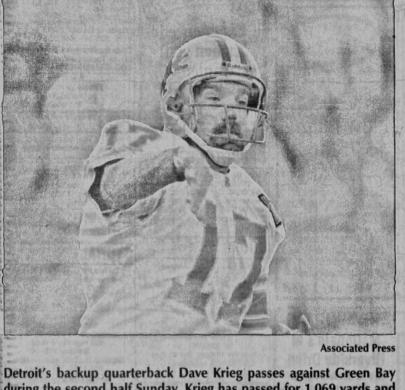

The new Iowa State coach has five more fulltime positions to fill and said he hopes to have that done within the next two weeks. He said there hasn't been any shortage of applicants.

"It's been extremely encourag-ing," he said. "I think a lot of people believe in this university and the potential here. If I get the right people in place, it can be an excellent program again. That is what's so encouraging to McCarney said the coaches who have called him have wide range of backgrounds and impressive credentials.

There are young coaches trying to get a foot in the door, major college coaches who have good jobs and are interested in finding what our salary structure is and what we have going here," he said.

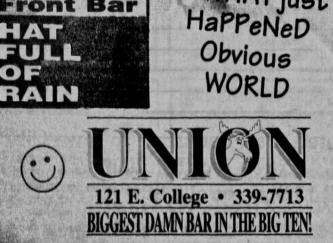

"There's a lot of fine coaches unemployed because there's a lot of movement out there right now. All that rolled into one, we've just had a tremendous

New member, newer self-image keep Marble Orchard evolving

Ian Corwin The Daily Iowan

Drawing from the backward insight of knowing what they don't want to be, the members of Marble Orchard have extracted a firm sense of exactly where they stand and what they sound like.

Since its formation in March, the Iowa City band has evolved from a trio with a unique hard-edged sound into a quartet featuring vocalist Dustin Martin. Marble Orchard has developed a distinctively atmospheric sonic edge that's neither grunge nor alternative, and although its members might not be able to label it, they're well-aware that their sound boils down to cooperation and teamwork.

"There are no stars in this band,"

And he should know. Marble Orchard played Iowa City for nearly seven months, exploring its sound and audience, before Martin joined up. When he came into the group two months ago, he had to insinuate himself into some wellestablished territory

By October, Marble Orchard had already found a solid base for its "post-grunge" sound. The group had established a unique and highly energized stage presence: Heavy guitar work by George Stone, laced with power chords and some screaming solos, crept over a tight and symbiotic rhythm section featuring John Clark on bass and Dave Christian on drums. Their music was ballsy, but it defied the powers of description, which made it harder to figure out where the band stood.

It was Stone who finally came up with the "post-grunge" tag.

"Grunge to me means honesty, aggression and energy," he said. 'We have all that, but there's more. Dave brings in a really technical element, and John is a retro freak. So there's lots more going on than pure grunge.

The work ethic Stone and crew bring into a live setting is another rare virtue that helps elevate Marble Orchard above the slew of established alternative bands. Put simply, they're out to prove themselves worthy of their cover charge instead of copping a "gimme" atti-tude; the burden of proof is on the band, not the audience.

"By the end of a show we look like we've been in a car wreck. We want to give an audience what they paid for," said Christian.

Marble Orchard's other distinuishing trait - the one that helped the band to finally define itself - is Martin's added emphasis n melody.

"These guys give me a pretty free ange," Martin said. "They had a solid framework when I came in. That gave me a lot of space to cre-

Marble Orchard's new and improved four-man lineup has redefined its sound and its message. The group's newly focused "post-grunge" music can be heard Thursday night at The Metro, 121 Iowa Ave.

"The message in the music is a unique opportunity for a new band lot clearer now," added the band's in their position and has run with manager, Morgan Hanson. it. From a solid foundation as a "Dustin's helped George figure out hard-rocking trio, they have sucwhat his lyrics mean. The vocals cessfully integrated a fourth comadd a lot of color; there's a mood. ponent and come up with a sound and texture that is truly their own.

"We started out tight and we got tighter," Christian summed up. "We all share the weight equally."

"Teamwork," added nearby Marble Orchard groupie Chris Fergadis, quoting Robert DeNiro in the film "The Untouchables" to emphasize the band's togetherness.

Whether he was joking or not, the "Orchardhead" hit it dead on. Marble Orchard has an edge that many young bands only dream about. They are no longer just a tew guys who get together and do their own thing - they're now a "group" in the truest sense.

And since four are harder to beat than three, they're doubtless going to be at it for a while.

Marble Orchard will headline at The Metro, 121 Iowa Ave., Thursday. Opening band Sinagod is scheduled to take the stage at approximately 9:30 p.m., with Marble Orchard taking over at 10:30.

much clearer picture now."

The resultant soundscape, which permeates both the band's new demo tape and its live performances, is filled with a gutsy atmosphere and texture that's still hard to hang a name on. Part guitar-driven screech, part gut-thumping rhythm, it's a signature no one

Butt Trumpet Primitive Enema

Many would argue that the volatile spirit of punk settled down and started a family once punkish bands stumbled into the top 40. But while many groups have stripped out the antisocial attitude and kept the noise, Butt Trumpet seems to have assimilated all the leftover nastiness and made it its own.

With enough expletives to justify several parental advisory stickers and a sense of humor that would make Howard Stern retch, Butt Trumpet isn't out to win anyone over with its social graces. Primitive Enema combines loud, fast, relatively simple guitar pounding with the decidedly nonmelodious voices of the group's four vocalists.

The band's lyrics pick up where M.O.D. left off, with lines such as "Yeast infections are bad / They really make us itch" and song titles like "Funeral Crashing Tonite." And those are the printable ones.

The fact that Butt Trumpet is so unabashedly vulgar is what makes it so successful. Not only does the group manage to spew verbal sewage without resorting to racism, sexism or homophobia, it's actually kind of clever in a sick sort of way. Primitive Enema is pretty harmless, as long as you wash out your ears after you listen to it.

2 tsp. cinnamon

Scald milk. Pour over sugar, shortening, and salt. Let cool slightly and add eggs and yeast. Add 2 cups of the flour and cinnamon, then beat thoroughly (in electric mixer). Then add rest of flour by hand—until a soft dough is formed. Put on floured board and knead thoroughly. Let rise in greased bowl. Then divide dough in half. Roll out each half in rectangle—about 12 inches or 15x4 inches. Cut in three strips and braid—pinching ends together. Put on greased cookie sheet and let rise. Bake in 350° oven about 20 to 25 minutes. Frost while warm with powdered sugar frosting with a little cinnamon added. Slice to serve.

Rapists acquitted due to older appearance of victim

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Six men admitted they raped a 15-yearold girl, but the judge let them o because he said the "well-built" girl looked older. That decision Friday was the latest in a string of recent court judgments that have provoked outrage from women's groups.

Authorities said Wednesday they are considering whether to file an appeal.

The six men had pleaded guil in Labasa Magistrates Court to having sex with a girl under the age of 17. The court was told the six covered the girl's mouth whill they took turns having sex with

But Magistrate Moses Fernan freed the men.

He said the six had reason to believe the girl was older, adding "She is a well-built girl and looks well over 16 years of age."

Last month, Chief Justice Sir Timoci Tuivaga was accused of insensitivity for saying that because of her previous sexual experience, a teen-ager raped a knifepoint would suffer no adverse effect from her attack.

Also last month, a Nadi magi trate passed a more lenient sentence against a rapist because h victim was drunk and asleep when attacked.
