Fetus killed in chase for stolen car

A high-speed chase of a stolen car by Iowa City police Friday night ended in a three-car collision in which a passenger died several months pregnant for her baby. At Iowa City, man who was charged with vehicular manslaughter and first-degree theft.

Charles D. Hippler, 29, Iowa Ave., Apt. 19, was being pursued by a Riverside cop when Hippler drove by an Iowa City police officer and hit the car, causing a scene involving two northbound cars. One of the cars was driven by Jean Fisher, whose fetus subsequently died.

Hippler’s car had two passengers,24-year-old resident Michael James and Gerald Hint, but only Hippler and Fisher were charged with first-degree theft for allegedly stealing the Victoria’s Secret. Hippler’s bond is $19,100, and Fisher posted bail.

Iowa City resident Almohor was doing the third car and said he was on his way to the University of Iowa for a class when he accident occurred. Hippler’s family, coach and Fisher’s husband, Doug, were also onscene, according to L NIC, where the three were transported and released. Jean Fisher’s status remained LNIC, her condition was upgraded from critical to serious, hospital officials said Monday.

UI student’s clutter wins ‘pigsty’ contest

Michele Kurtz

The Daily Iowan

On the outside, Charlie Eby may appear to be a very organized and neat person, but with papers, binders, and all kinds of other notes, the sophomore lives in a “pigsty.”

“I’ve always been a bit of a neat freak,” she said. It doesn’t bother me at all.

Iowa teens voice fear of guns in school

• J.B. Carroll Laflaft

Associated Press

OTTUMWA, Iowa — It's not a drug thing. It's not a gang thing. It's not a protection thing. And if image is everything, then everything has come to define an Iowa school.

Ask a teen who has seen guns take over to school.

"A lot of us think it's cool," said Jamie DeWilde, a ninth-grader at Ottumwa High School. "There are just a lot of people with friends, to look tough," and Wes Page, a senior.

"Most of it's just talk to keep an image," said Danielle Brown, an Ottumwa junior.

Students and gun carriers think it's cool and others leave them alone because of a fear of the gun.

"Some people feel it's real," said pistool, an Ottumwa senior.

"They want their friends to think they're cool because they bought a weapon to school," said Randi Routt, as an Ottumwa ninth-grader.

Not every teen thinks it's cool. Some teens do even think it's the fear of the potential for violence during the school day. Others observe the situation but think it's too cool to worry about.

"I'm sure other are scared," Goudy said. "But I just live with it. You can't be scared all of your time." The killing of 15-year-old Allen after a driver could get worse quickly.

"The big goal is to carry out appropriate research and come up with the solutions that surround some of the many dilemmas and disorders of the spine." Regional Cooper, head of the Department of Orthopedic Surgery.

But they don't bring them to school, "But we work with compensated athletes over the image is everything," said Cain.

"I talked to my parents after the Jeremy Allen shooting," said Goudy, who saw the shooting. "They were there for me to deal with it. But they're not worried about the image because I don't get into too much trouble."

"But at least one teen thinks someone are part of the problem. "Most of my friends' parents don't care when they do," said Racille Swaer, an Ottumwa ninth-grader. "A lot of the time, it's not bad kids. The gun won't even be loaded."

"They have ideas about what will and won't keep guns out of schools."

The school can try to take out our state, they can take our state away, he can make decisions whether to tell someone."

"The center, which began its work when Pope arrived in the July 18, is not tied to the St. Joseph's Health Care Group.

"Our private funding and not necessarily tied to funding the community," Cooper said. "It's not just the spine."

"The big goal is to carry out appropriate research and come up with the solutions that surround some of the many dilemmas and disorders of the spine." Regional Cooper, head of the Department of Orthopedic Surgery.

"I don't care if they have something in your locker," said the worker-com. You can have it there one day, and then it's gone the next day."

"Many people feel it's right thing to do."

"Some of the mysteries that surround some of the many dilemmas and disorders of the spine." Regional Cooper, head of the Department of Orthopedic Surgery.

Law professor to face world court

Associated Press

AMES - Lin Petersen of Ames has been chosen one of 22 Americans to be a Rhodes scholar.

"It's just an extremely appropriate recognition," said George Rhodes, a law professor at the University of Iowa Law School. "We have a good chance.

Rhodes said his decision to consider that the threat of and use of nuclear weapons must be made illegal will merely be a stepping stone in making possession illegal, Warne said.

"The threat against possession is not as strong as use," Warne said. "We say, 'We cannot allow a person to possess these if you establish use, then it is easier to establish possession.'

The case before the world court is considered an advisory opinion which isn't legally binding. However, if the court finds in favor of the plaintiffs, it is hoped that the moral weight of the judgment should have a powerful influence on foreign policies around the world.

"The judgment serves as a further pressure point that will, I hope, accelerate the process of nuclear disarmament," Warne said.

Couple’s suicides benefit church charities

Johnston, the study’s lead researcher, said at a news conference Tuesday, Dec. 5 in their home when she was at work.

"It was extremely emotional. My daughter read it to me over the phone. She was crying, and I was crying. It was very hard to know they were going to die. It was heart-wrenching. I was convinced that they were going to come back," Mr. B. wanted me to determine his motivations. "I told him that I couldn’t determine his motivations. He was convinced that he was going to commit suicide."

Patriot defense turns around

AAIRANS - In their first game this season, the New England defense turned in its worst performance in eight years. But the Patriots' defense has given up three straight touchdowns and has not allowed a touchdown in three straight games since the NFL went to a 16-team format.

"You just want to have something to play for," said safety Devin McCourty, who was a key player in the Patriots' victory over the Buffalo Bills last week. "We've been around a lot of the games where you play in that environment and you're really healthy."...

Indianapolis Colts quarterback Dan Majkowski led the Bills as he closed out his NFL debut at New England Patriots linebacker Chubb. He's tied with stretching their season to eight straight wins.

"It's a good win tonight," said Majkowski in a postgame interview. "We've been struggling out there, but this is a good win for us. We're happy and we're looking forward to the next game."...

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Buffalo Bills quarterback Jim Kelly was placed on injured reserve Tuesday with a knee injury he suffered in a win over Miami. Kelly said Monday he was likely to be out five to six weeks and would go on the injured reserve list.

"I probably don't have to be playing this weekend," Kelly said. "But we're getting a little bit better."

Bettman gains power to end NHL season

Mike Nadel Associated Press

NEW YORK — NHL commissioner Gary Bettman on Monday called for the season to be canceled if a 50-game schedule can’t be played, and he reiterated his worries that additional games beyond the 48 set by the labor agreement are “not a good thing” for all parties.

Bettman said he was not pressuring the players, who had a losing record at the time the agreement was made.

The league has set a target date of July 1 to start the season. If there is no agreement by then, New York Rangers general manager Neil Smith said, the league will have to cancel the season.

The lockout began Oct. 1, when the 48-game schedule was scheduled to begin, and in its 11th week.

The board voted unanimously to reject the NHL Players Association’s latest offer made with an eye to settling the dispute and then immediately taking the league down the tubes.

Philadelphia Flyers general manager Bob Clarke said the NHLPA’s proposal is “outrageous.”

Owner wants a salary cap similar to football’s at the very least, a payroll tax that would distribute money from teams that are financially strapped.

The union said it has no intention of agreeing to changes in the labor agreement.

Bettman, however, does not have permission to accept an agreement.

The owners are going to have to approve any changes in the agreement, Bettman said. According to Bettman, the league is not looking to shorten its 50-game schedule.

The NHLPA’s offer included a salary cap, a 20 percent rollback of last season’s salary cap, and a proposed 20 percent rollback of the revenue sharing plan.

The owners have rejected the proposal, which is the third offer made in the negotiations.
