The search for UI President Richard Sommerfield's successor, which will begin Wednesday at the Iowa state Board of Regents meeting in Des Moines, was named chairman of the search committee.

Rawlings will step down as provost Jan. 30 to assume the presidency of Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y. Board members and UI students have been critical of Rawlings' leadership, and his resignation is widely expected.

The presidential search process will begin with the formation of a 15-member committee charged with finding a successor as quickly and as thoughtfully as possible.

The committee will include students, faculty, staff and community representatives, including a representative from the UI Student Government Association.

“Once our committee is formed, we will begin the search for a new president, and we will work closely with the board and community to ensure that the process is transparent and inclusive,” Rawlings said.

Mary Ann Ehrlich, chair of the UI Faculty Senate, and Steve Collins, president of the UI Student Government, will co-chair the committee.

“My hope is that this search will go very smoothly. Our first order of business has to be to attract outstanding candidates,” Ehrlich said.

Steve Collins, President Search and Screen Advisory Committee chair

“Community as well as alumni, and was unanimously approved.”

Wednesday, UI Faculty Senate President Richard Sommerfield announced he will not seek re-election, and the Senate Advisory Committee was charged with finding a successor.

Tortorici had been a whistleblower of activity surrounding the presidential search. Collin's resignation was a surprise, and the UI faculty and students were shocked.

Collins was war who he would be the search chair for the UI presidency. He said he was not sure what the future holds for him, but he is looking forward to the search.

“I'm really hoping that the search will go very smoothly,” Collins said. “I think it's a great opportunity to work with some amazing people in the process.”

“UI President Search Schedule

The Iowa Board of Regents decided on the following procedure for selecting a new UI president:

- The search will begin Wednesday.
- The search committee will be formed and seek input from the UI community.
- The committee will advertise the position and receive applications.
- The committee will review the applications and compile a list of candidates.
- The committee will interview the candidates and make a recommendation to the board.
- The board will interview the candidates and make a final decision.

The search committee will consist of 15 members, including the UI president, the UI Faculty Senate, the UI Student Government, and community representatives.

Although Benson Hoffman has been helped by her neighbors and best advertisers, she and her two children will have a tough time being happy this Christmas after a fire consumed Apartment 120 in the 1400 block of West Market Street on Dec. 14.

"You just don't think your life is going to unravel like that," said Benson, a junior marketing major.

She said the fire consumed Apartment 120, which is one of several apartments in the 1400 block of West Market Street.

Source of explosion remains cloudy

Bruce Gray

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Officials may never know what caused an explosion that demolished four homes and injured four people.

But according to Terri Barry, Iowa's state fire marshal, it could have been as much as $4 million to $5 million to rebuild the plant but that it could be as much as $8 million to $11 million because of the extensive improvements.

Elliott, state environmental director, said that the plant had a history of problems and that there could have been fatalities.

Huot said.

"The Pedestrian Mall is caused by hazardous conditions, and it is a sudden explosion that went off unexpectedly. It's not clear what caused it, but it is a very serious situation."

Government sets target date to improve small-plane safety

Ralph E. Schlueter

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — One day after the second commuter airline crash in the state, Transportation Secretary Norman Petersen said it will take days to begin safety regulations for the same standards as larger jet carriers.

"We are very troubled by the number of accidents we had this past week," Petersen said Wednesday. "If there could be a repeat, we would be taking immediate action to move to that standard or larger.

The National Transportation Safety Board had recommended such changes and officials there said Wednesday that they were pleased the new rules had been announced.

"The rules changes that are being made will reduce the number of passengers and aircraft in our system, which reduces the number of hazards people can see and take the site to check the effectiveness of the weather," said Petersen. "But the number is in our system by the end of the year."

WASHINGTON — The government's target date to improve small-plane safety has reacted as quickly as he has to the visit of the scene of the crash.

Washington, D.C. — Administrator David Hinson of the National Transportation Safety Board said today that he was pleased that the secretary of Transportation, his 31-year-old son John Lauber said earlier this year that the government's target date to improve small-plane safety is one of the most exciting and effective changes in the industry we need to see.

From 253 million miles flown in 1992, during a higher accident rate than larger jets, these carriers had 53 craft.

When you're just about to fall asleep...

Self-punishment is the norm for many college students who fear the future because they haven't yet achieved their life goals. They feel that they're not achieving anything and that they're a complete failure. As a result, they begin to choose the most convenient way out of the situation. The most comfortable way to achieve this goal is to think about all the things they want to do, but haven't done yet. They think that their goals are beyond their reach. If they can't achieve them, they might as well give up on them. The more they think about the things they want to do, the more they become discouraged. The more discouraged they become, the more they give up on their goals. The more they give up on their goals, the more they become discouraged. The more they become discouraged, the more they give up on their goals. This is a vicious cycle that never ends.

National Guard jet crashes

FRENO, Calif. - A Lear jet taking part in a National Guard practice flight crashed in flames and exploded in an apartment house, killing both crew members and possibly injuring eight other people, officials said.

A spokesman for the 104th Air National Guard said the jet, a Learjet 24A, crashed in downtown Fresno, Calif., after the crew ejected just before impact. The jet was en route to a training exercise.

The crash came just hours after another Learjet crashed in Washington state, killing both crew members. The cause of that crash is under investigation.

In California, the jet was on a training mission and was carrying two crew members, officials said. The jet was carrying more than 1,000 pounds of fuel and was carrying a maximum of 6,500 pounds of cargo.

The crash occurred during a training exercise, said Maj. Gen. Stephen Littrell, the commander of the 104th Airlift Wing. The jet was on a training mission and was carrying two crew members, officials said.

Strawberry pleads not guilty to felony charge

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) - Pete Rose's son Pete Strawberry shook his head weakly from side to side and said "not guilty" Wednesday when he appeared an federal court in Littleton, Colorado.

With three lawyers at his side and his pregnant wife in the gallery, the star outfielder hit left-handed during a 20-minute hearing. He was released on no recognizance, but must abide by the Continental United States and must be able to pay his hold.

Jeter signs with Phils

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Derek Jeter, the leading hitter on the St. Louis Cardinals last season and the only American League star in Littleton, has signed a $25 million four-year contract with the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I couldn't be playing for a better team," Jeter said at a news conference. He said he had the idea of joining Terry Mulder, Darren Daulton and Dave Hollins in the Phils.

"These guys play hard and enjoy playing with blood and guts," he said.

He was the 18th-leading hitter in the National League last season with a .325 average.

IOWA FOOTBALL

Two former Hawks sign with Des Moines Trash

University of Iowa (UI) — Former Hawkeye football player Larry Blatt and Carrol Lawrimore are two of five former college players in the state signing Wednesday with the Iowa Barnstormers of the Arena Football League.

Blatt, a fullback-tight end, signed with receivers-defense tactics James, Chris Spencer and Iowa State. Blatt is a place-kicker Ty Meeks and the Barnstormers' director of player personnel.

"We saw some very good lines and they were all very much impressed with the Barnstormers," said Art Haage, the Barnstormers' director of player personnel.

"I would not be surprised that of those players, if not all, will make the team."

Hawks draw two recruits from Texas

Iowa coach Hayden Fry has enjoyed more success recruiting in Texas because of Texas.

Cory Brown, a defensive tackle from Houston, and linebacker Tariq Peterson of Cypress Coxe have verbally committed to play for Iowa in 1995.

Brown, who hails from Odessa, Tex., has nine assists from Bobby Hill, a star player for Tony on his team last season.

Brian Hickman, a running back from Abilene, Tex., also has committed.

Hickman is the fourth recruit to commit to the Hawkeyes this fall. He joins Doug Miller from Mount Pleasant, Paul Jones from Iowa City and Zeman Remi of Sioux City, who committed in this week.

Iowa freshman R. Davis said yesterday that he will not play in Tuesday’s game against Long Island. The 6-foot-10 center, who is averaging 8.1 points and 5.8 rebounds per game, sprained his left ankle against Wisconsin on Wednesday. "I plan on it," he said in the Hawkeyes’ locker room. "But after that, who knows?"

"You go through that every day with freshmen. The problem is you’ve got six of them and all of them are in that same mode right now," C. Vivian Stringer, Iowa women’s basketball coach, said yesterday.

"I don’t think we’re that good offensively, but I’m not sure we’re that good defensively," he said. "I think we’ll have to work on both ends, and I think we’ll need our bench players to play well." The Hawkeyes have relied heavily on their bench players this season.

Stringer said that Gooden has shown improvement, but he is not expected to be back until early next week. "He’s been working hard on his leg," Stringer said. "But I don’t know how much longer he can keep going." Gooden, who has played in all 13 games this season, is averaging 11.7 points and 6.8 rebounds per game.

The Hawkeyes have relied heavily on their bench players this season. They have scored 32 points off bench play so far this season.

During the absence of senior center Bruce Eckenrode, who is out with a bruised knee and The Anderson, who also is out with a bruised hand, Iowa has had to rely on the services of Forward Fred Smith's freshman averages of 3.6 points and 1.8 rebounds.

Stringer said she is not con-tervant that the freshmen lack of the fundamentals early in

"You go through that every year with freshmen," she said. "The problem is you've got six of them and all of them are in some mode right now. It's important that we communicate it to them, it's important that they're functioning because they are playing 90 percent of the minutes in a lot of cases, especially right now when the senior center is out.

"When we are fundamentally strong, it is going to flow and流畅 will fall. It might slow up at the Stetson game, it hasn't been yet. I've been looking for it.

The big problem with the situation is the owner didn't bring the "dirt" to the bargaining table in the first place. The individual owners, who are the real decision-makers, also wound up in court.

Baseball owners are now unwilling to negotiate in order to preserve the 108-game season which would all but scuttle the current ses-on.

It's not unusual for a man of this stature to make a misstep, but if the move doesn't work out, it'll be another front to deal with at the winter meetings.

The Owners want to see the season cut down to a 108-game schedule to save money and increase profits. They have already asked for a reduction in the number of players on rosters and a decrease in the minimum salary.

If the Owners want to see a shorter season, they're going to have to agree to give players more money to enter into a new deal.

The Owners can't ask for both.

The Owners are asking the players to accept less money in order to play a shorter season, but the Players Association has already stated that they won't take a pay cut.

The Owners and Players are locked in a bitter battle over the length of the season and how much the players will be paid.

The Owners want a shorter season, but the Players want to keep the 162-game season, which is the current schedule.

If the Owners don't make a deal with the Players, they may face a strike by the players, who are threatening to walk off the field if a new deal isn't reached.

The Owners are trying to save money by reducing the number of games and increasing the minimum salary, but the Players are not willing to accept either.

Cunningham hints at leaving

John F. Busardo
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Randall Cunningham is in a new mood, and it may mean a change of address while he hopes to finish his career in Philadelphia.

Bentched by coach Rich Kotite in advance of Sunday's crucial game with Miami, Cunningham was quizzed by The Daily News on Tuesday, the team's first day of practice since Christmas. It was the first time in Cunningham's Philadelphia, first of all. But it wasn't published.

Before the losing streak, he was the most visible quarterback. He has been benched by coach Rich Kotite in advance of Sunday's crucial game with Miami. Cunningham was inhibited and he didn't want to talk about it, but he did say that he didn't want to talk about it. He said he had been a starter for the Eagles for the past five years, and he didn't want to talk about it. That's the last five games, some of them.

The Eagles tried to cut him out of the argument. They had $525,000 in Team.'

With his return from the starting lineup, that talk will intensity. Cunningham said he didn't think the Eagles will cut him out of the lineup. He should have been there.

"First of all, Buddy Ryan knows my talent," Cunningham said. "That's not an expression of affection for the quarterback, "He'll sit out for the present season," he said.

"We should revolve our offense more around that type of a quarterback," Cunningham said. "That's not new news - but he did say, "I think he last five games speak for themselves.""}

San Francisco 49ers Deion Sanders runs down the quarter interception against the Chargers Sunday afternoon for a 9-yard touchdown after his 24th sack of the season. In front is Deion Sanders, right, Michael Irvin, and left, San Diego's Charlie Joiner.

Sanders impacts 49ers

Defensive Coordinator Dick Nolan

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — The San Francisco 49ers have been almost unbeatable since Deion Sanders joined the team, but Sanders has been a disappointment in his first year with the club. He has not lived up to the expectations of many fans who expected him to be a star.

However, Sanders has been a positive presence on the field. He has helped to put the 49ers in the Super Bowl, where they will face the New England Patriots.

Sanders has been a key component of the 49ers' defense, which has been one of the best in the league. He has made several big plays, including a missed tackle in a game against the Miami Dolphins.

Despite his recent struggles, Sanders remains a popular figure in San Francisco, and his presence on the field is expected to continue to be a major factor in the team's success.

The 49ers are scheduled to face the Patriots on Sunday, January 27, in Foxborough, Massachusetts. It will be a highly-anticipated game, and Sanders is expected to play a key role in the outcome.

The Deadwood tavern, 6 S. Dubuque St., is decked out for the holidays with stockings, lights and an unconventional Christ- mas tree. The display remains one of the few things to see in Iowa City after the town’s student population has gone; aside from New Year’s Eve celebrations, many of the area’s entertainment facilities will shut down over the holiday break.

An Iowa City Christmas
What to do after the students depart

For those not impressed by the usual Christmas fare, two things might be enough for you to get you through the holiday break by bringing out some fond memories from Christmases past.

1. The Natural
   - Release Date: December 4
   - Plot: While the plot of this film may not be as novel as you’d expect, the acting is top-notch, with Leonardo DiCaprio delivering a standout performance. The film is set in the 1960s and explores the life of a young man who becomes entangled in the world of organized crime. The audience is taken on a journey through the highs and lows of the 60s, and the film offers a glimpse into what life was like during that time period. The cinematography is beautiful, with stunning shots of the American landscape and a score that perfectly complements the story.

2. In the Electric Moon
   - Release Date: December 11
   - Plot: This film is a science fiction tale set in a future where humanity has colonized the Moon. The story follows a young woman named Meredith who is sent to the Moon on a mission to uncover the secrets of its inhabitants. The film is visually stunning, with breathtaking shots of the lunar surface and a score that perfectly complements the story. The acting is top-notch, with a talented cast delivering powerful performances that bring the story to life.

Riverside’s ‘Child’ set to thaw out cold hearts

Tal Funkhouser
The Daily Iowan

Riverside’s upcoming album features a range of musical styles and themes that are sure to appeal to fans of all ages. The album is titled "Eighth Hours" and is set to be released on November 30.

The album is a departure from the band’s previous work, which was characterized by aggressive, hard-hitting rock. Instead, "Eighth Hours" features a more diverse range of sounds, with elements of rock, pop, and indie influencing the overall sound.

The album opens with the track "Cold World," which is a slow, calm and introspective piece that sets the tone for the rest of the album. The song features a somber melody and歌词 that reflect on the struggles and challenges that come with life. The lyrics are thought-provoking and offer a glimpse into thedepths of the human experience.

The second track, "The Natural," is a more upbeat and energetic rock song. The rhythm is fast and the lyrics are filled with an array of colors and emotions that capture the essence of the human condition. The song is a celebration of life and encourages the listener to embrace the beauty of the world around them.

The album also features a number of guest appearances from some of the music industry’s biggest names. Among the guests are Blake Shelton, who contributes a country-fied version of the band’s hit song "Monte Carlo," and Chance the Rapper, who lends his distinctive vocals to the track "Cold World." The collaborations add a unique twist to the album and offer a fresh perspective on the band’s music.

Overall, "Eighth Hours" is a well-crafted album that is sure to please fans of all ages. The band’s innovative approach to music and its ability to bring together a diverse range of sounds creates a truly unique and exciting listening experience. The album is a testament to the band’s musical talent and their ability to inspire listeners with their music.

A&Q
Who originally popularized the term ‘eighth hour’ as a mealtime?
Tal Funkhouser

The Daily Iowan

The term ‘eighth hour’ was originally popularized by the ancient Greeks, who divided the day into eight equal parts, each of which corresponded to a meal. The seventh hour was the time for dinner and was considered the most important meal of the day.

The origin of the term ‘eighth hour’ is not entirely clear, but it is believed to have originated in ancient Greece, where the day was divided into eight equal parts, each of which was associated with a specific meal. The seventh hour, which fell between 5:00 and 6:00pm, was the time for dinner and was considered the most important meal of the day.

While the term ‘eighth hour’ may seem outdated to modern ears, it is still used in some parts of the world to refer to a mealtime that falls in between lunch and dinner. In some cultures, the term ‘eighth hour’ is still used to refer to a meal that is eaten at this time, and it is considered an important part of the daily routine.

However, the term ‘eighth hour’ is not commonly used in modern times, as most cultures have moved away from the ancient Greek mealtime system. Instead, meals are typically divided into three or four parts, with breakfast, lunch, and dinner being the most common mealtimes.

Despite its origins, the term ‘eighth hour’ remains a fascinating piece of history, offering a glimpse into the way that our ancestors divided their day and organized their meals. Today, the term may be less relevant, but it offers a unique perspective on the way that we have evolved and adapted to our changing world.

Scrid’s fresh, dark sound reflects life in sick world

Clint March

The Daily town

Gabe’s, the local rock hotbed, is hosting the band that has been turning heads in the area with their high-energy, raw sound. The band has gained a reputation for their intense performance style and has been described as "reflective of life in this world." The group’s increasing visibility earned it an invitation to play at the popular music festival in Burlington on Friday. But the powers that be have gone one step further, inviting the band to perform at the prestigious venue.

"If you’re bored and you’re looking for something to do, there’s always a band playing somewhere," frontman Gabe said.

The band was recently featured on the album "You Got Nuts," and has been receiving critical acclaim for their music. "In a world that’s so fast-paced and full of change," Gabe said, "it’s refreshing to see people who are genuinely passionate about what they do." The band’s upcoming performance promises to be a captivating and intense experience for music lovers.

Baffling characters, overacting make ‘Nuts’ tough to stomach

Tasha Robinson

The Daily town

"Mixed Nuts" is certainly an appropriate title for Nora Ephron’s latest romantic comedy. The movie is about a group of friends who are trying to figure out their lives and what they want from each other. The movie is a mix of romantic comedy and drama, and it’s full of over-the-top performances from the cast.

"Mixed Nuts" stars Steve Martin, who plays a musician who is trying to make a name for himself in the music industry. He’s always been a great actor, but in this movie, he seems to be going overboard.

"It’s sick when you’re bored and you’re looking for something to do, there’s always a band playing somewhere," frontman Gabe said.

No Flag returns in brand-new form

Paul Ferguson

The members of Carmine (formerly No Flag) feel their name could work to their advantage because it's so common.

The members of Carmine (formerly No Flag) feel their name could work to their advantage because it's so common.

Once CarmineThrow in "No Flag" and the group's simply nothing in common with the rest of our concert's organizers. They tried to come up with one on the spot to give to the band. The band was scheduled to differ from other groups in the music scene in a number of ways going on in the music scene. People hearing it can sort of hear some of the different things going on. The band's new name is a nice departure from its past. The name No Flag comes from a rather banal band name, the band's original name. The name was chosen as an only name and it's the name they've always sort of heard in their minds. Though the band's new name is a nice departure from its past, it's not as different from the group's previous name, No Flag, as it could seem. There are some structural and compositional changes in the new name to make it more memorable, but the group's spirit remains the same. The band's past work with its old name, No Flag, and the new name, Carmine, are two different things. The band's new name is a nice departure from its past.
