McGovern set for spring visit
Former presidential hopeful named Distinguished Lecturer

TOM HENKE
The Daily Iowan

Past presidential candidate George McGovern, who will be the keynote speaker at the University of Iowa's Spring Lecture Series on March 9, has a political career that began with "prior commitments." He told The Daily Iowan he did not consider representing himself in 2000, but a call from the University of Iowa's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences to deliver the Farewell Address by President Ronald Reagan "pulled the trigger." He concluded, "It was an irresistible offer." McGovern's lecture, "The American Political System: One Century of Changing Roles," will be presented at 7 p.m. March 9 in the Main Lounge of the Union.

McGovern, the Democratic presidential hopeful in 1972, has a political record that speaks for itself, Poser said. "He obviously has a distinguished career," Poser said. "But this is the primary reason that we've invited him to speak. He's a leader who really deserves to be seated at the table of nations."

McGovern, a native of Iowa City in 1972, delivering a "rare round" to an elite audience, is a member of the permanent speakers' group. He was named one of the most influential people in the world by Newsweek in 1976 and has been a consultant to the United Nations.

The announcement that McGovern will be the spring lecturer was one of the most anticipated events of the semester. The selection process received several hundred applications and the decision was made by the University's College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

McGovern, who was a personal friend of President Jimmy Carter, said he is looking forward to his visit. "I've been looking forward to coming to Iowa, and I'm excited about the opportunity to speak to the students," he said. "I think this is a fantastic opportunity to share my thoughts on politics and current events."

BUSINESSES CATHER TO STUDENTS' NEEDS

I.C. restaurants serve up low-cost cuisine

Devon Alexander

The Daily Iowan

Students tired of Bob's Big Boy "spookle" or sampling cuisine that "fits in" can find a quick, inex-
pen sive lunch at restaurants sprinkled throughout downtown Iowa City.

A tour of some of Iowa City's lesser-known grungy eateries reveals some satisfying "fast food" potential with prices lying between $2 and $4.

In this restaurant row, there is definitely room for more local and regional cuisine to be brought to light.

LAST YEAR

The Iowa City Police Department said there was little talked about the fact that there were no suspects and no damage was done.

After Iowa City churches were broken into and ransacked over the past month, police are working on the case.

The churches broken into were the First Baptist Church, St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, St. Mark's Presbyterian Church, and the Church of the Good Shepherd.

There is a possibility that the churches will be able to be repaired, but it's unlikely that the burglars will be found.

Clinton proclaims nuclear arming restriction
WASHINGTON (AP) - Trying to generate support for an international ban on nuclear stockpiling, President Clinton is proposing a U.S. test moratorium and dropping a proposal for an arms control pact opposed by other nations.

Authorize Lake, White House
national security adviser, denounced from an arms control conference Monday when he said the United States would no longer press for a "right to withdraw" from the Comprehensive Test
Ban treaty being negotiated in Geneva.

The proposal to allow countries to pull out of the treaty after 100 years was opposed by all other countries to the negotiations. It would have precluded an over-way out than the traditional clause permitting countries to withdraw if they felt such action was required by "supreme national interests."

Lake said the national interest clause would put the pact at the mercy of the powerful countries:

Canadian wolf killed
after attack on Inverness SALMON, Idaho (AP) - Someone shot and killed one of 10 wolves released to return to wilderness as part of a federal plan to restore the predator to Idaho.

Officials of the Fish and Wildlife Service were headed to the remote area where the canine was discovered Tuesday, said Lewis County Sheriff Brent Bannister.

He said the killing of the wolf ended a wildlife conflict.

To appease critics, the government declared the animals released in Idaho and Wyoming an "experimental, irreversible experiment", meaning the animals don't enjoy full protection as an endangered species.
Species can be shot at will if they can serve a scientific or strategic purpose.

A spokesperson for the Fish and Wildlife Service in Boise said only that the agency was verifying the report of the shooting.

The shelter where the killing apparently occurred Sunday morning about 25 miles south of Salmon near the Idaho-Montana line.

The wolves, imported from Canada for reintroduction in central Idaho and Yellowstone Park, were released over eight separate objections of ranchers in Idaho, Wyoming and Montana, who maintained the wolves would prey on their herds.

Doomed pilot believed flight was in the clear
Randolph L. Shroid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - After waiting nearly 40 minutes for permission to land, the pilot of the American Eagle ATR-72 that crashed Oct. 31
in Indianapolis blamed ground procedures for news that he would be denied clearance. The plane was returned to the cockpit.

"American Eagle Flight 4164 didn't receive a clearance, whereas the flight was cleared shortly thereafter," according to a notice.

More than an hour of tape recordings at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport revealed little that was not already known about the accident.

Blaming is a part of life

For we make daily on ranges from ‘He makes me do it so’ to ‘My parents never came to get my football. So I’m on an angry spree’ and things. Everyone agrees that the teacher made the class too hard. Whatever the situation, there is always one person to blame. The problem with blaming others is that it has become an ineradicable part of our lives. So much so that we are often in a dilemma of having to live with it.

Many educators believe that the history of education used to be almost in an addiction and result. But it is the attempt to write the wrongs that offended their students.

The Menendez brothers were privileged yet abused children, so the same can’t be said of them.

For Gloriahalten, the Editor:

The Daily Iowan. Our American pastime of excuse-making can be funny and sometimes even obnoxious. The saddest part, however, is that it is a behavior that is so ingrained in our society.

The two young women were standing outside the courthouse entrance, panic making them so pale that they seemed to be alive in a world of their own.

The courtroom was on an upper floor, and it was packed to capacity. The sound of their voices was so loud that it was difficult to hear them clearly.

The unusual thing about the two young women was that they didn’t look like anything that might come from a courtroom. They were slender, pale, and almost ethereal. It was as if they were made of the same stuff as angels.

The reason for their presence in the courtroom was that they were about to be tried for a crime that nobody could believe.

They were caught in a web of lies and deception.

In the University of Maine at Orono, head coach Bob "Parky" Paulsen is in his 12th season as the leader of the men's basketball team. Paulsen was named to the coaches' All-American team during his last season with the program, and he has consistently produced winning teams in his tenure. Paulsen is known for his hard-nosed, tough-minded approach to coaching, which has helped the Black Bears win numerous conference titles and make several appearances in the NCAA tournament.

When the Iowa men's basketball team hosts Illinois Wednesday night, it will find few leftovers and no rabbits left either.

Top of the menu is the task of filling in for senior forward Adam Rapp, who is not expected to play against the Fighting Illini. His absence means that the Hawkeyes will be hard-pressed to fill the gaps left on their roster by the loss of Rapp.

"I don't know who's going to step into his shoes," said Iowa coach Tom Davis. "It's going to be a difficult task for someone to get that many minutes."

"But we're going to have to go out there and play good basketball," he added. "That's what we're going to have to do."

After a fast start, Freshman Prov Brown has started showing the signs of a young player. Freshman Brown managed only two rebounds and failed to score in 20 minutes Saturday against Missouri. Davis and it was the day that Brown lost the game.

"There was an extra contact allowed in that game that really worked against someone like Brown," Davis said.

Davis said Iowa's biggest problem is lack of depth, causing him to make decisions that he wouldn't normally make. Davis was forced to play Chris Kingroy with three fouls in the first half against the Gophers. With no one off the bench, the other players will have to pick up the slack.

"I think the thing with Joel is that he's doing everything in his power to get to second, I'm confident of that," Davis said.

Deion: ‘It was our time’

MIAMI — Finally, Deion Sanders was free to speak his mind about the Super Bowl. He was going to bianch to the San Diego Chargers, proving them from妈mally upset in Super Bowl in the Super Bowl the team didn’t want it.

He’s realistic. There’s so many ways they were going to win. It was more than just our team that had it in them to win.

The real Super Bowl was last week. It’s another two weeks against Dallas,’ he added. ‘I don’t understand everyone loves me, just as long as you know we were going to kick their butt. We just didn’t do anything.

I heard it, I heard it. It sounds like it goes to the Chargers Sanders basked, that surveyed us.

‘I’ve got a lot of respect for Sanders, but we are never going to beat us. It’s going to kick their butts. We just couldn’t say anything.’

Young didn’t regret his long pattern, but the only pass Young saw the Chargers, indicated he had our time to retire, even if he said winning a Super Bowl was his ultimate goal.

I don’t say my football career is complete,’ he said.

Sanders, an outfielder with the Cincinnati Reds, indicated he would like to return to the defense, who signed him to a one-year cont-tent from season.

San Diego Chargers quarterback Steve Young directs his team to a 34-26 victory over the San Diego Chargers in Super Bowl XXVII. Young almost threw for four touchdowns in the game.

I have always a lot of respect for the Chargers Sanders, and who knows how many yards Young may have to run to narrow margins. But the Flores can always become players, because they have a good defense, because the 49ers are always a good defense, a good defense.

I don’t regret my long pattern, but he said, ‘He’s talking out there, he’s talking trash and they’re getting out there. We’re just going to kick their butts again.’

I don’t say my football career is complete,’ he said.

Sanders, an outfielder with the Cincinnati Reds, indicated he would like to return to the defense, who signed him to a one-year contract this season.

But when you play free safety, you have two or three. Then they were asked how about the past the future, or about the place in history of a footballer whose free throws in the past the future in 14 years give them the most Super Bowl in the history of the game.

The fact is, the team was in good position. Even with all the free agents they signed this year, the 7ers ranked only 16th of 30 teams in salary-cap expenditures. Only $1 million in bonus money — $183,000 to Ricky Jackson, $70,000 to Sanders and $10,000 to Cu Cook — will counter that. Sanders and Polite acknowledge that the 49ers, Sanders, and who knows how many yards Young may have to run to narrow margins. But the Flores can always become players, because they have a good defense, because the 49ers are always a good defense, a good defense.

I don’t regret my long pattern, but the only pass Young ever threw was broken up by Sanders. Young didn’t regret his long pattern, but the only pass Young ever threw was broken up by Sanders. Young didn’t regret his long pattern, but the only pass Young ever threw was broken up by Sanders. Young didn’t regret his long pattern, but the only pass Young ever threw was broken up by Sanders.
Lush ‘Immortal Beloved’ proves thrilling

Jan Corwin

The Daily Iowan

While it may not be the whole truth, the story of Ludwig van Beethoven’s legendary love affair with Immortal Beloved is an absorbing tale. The story of how the great composer courted the mysterious woman who inspired him is now told in the film ‘Immortal Beloved.’

According to the biographical notes that accompanied the film, Beethoven’s relationship with the woman, whom he addressed as ‘Immortal Beloved,’ was not based on fact but rather a combination of legend and speculation. Nonetheless, the story of Beethoven’s love affair has captured the imaginations of people for generations.

Co-star Robert Oldman is unusually reserved, and his character, Beethoven, is similarly aloof and distant. Despite this, Oldman manages to convey a sense of raw passion, the kind of intensity and emotion that is so characteristic of the great composer. His Beethoven, although rigid and stubborn, seethes with the kind of desire that fuels great art and music.

While the story of Beethoven’s love affair is certainly captivating, the film is not without its flaws. For instance, the relationship between Beethoven and Immortal Beloved is not as clear-cut as it could be. The film sometimes seems more interested in the musical aspects of Beethoven’s life than in the personal relationship between him and Immortal Beloved.

Nevertheless, ‘Immortal Beloved’ is a film that will appeal to music lovers and fans of the Romantic era. The performances are solid, and the score is beautifully arranged. Overall, it is a film that is worth watching if you are interested in the life and times of one of the greatest composers of all time.

Patience is a virtue, and in the case of ‘Immortal Beloved,’ it is a virtue that is needed to be remembered if the film is to succeed.

From a musical perspective, the film is a beautiful portrayal of Beethoven’s music, especially his “Ninth Symphony.” The film captures the essence of the music, and the performances of the actors and actresses bring the story to life in a way that is both moving and inspiring.

Overall, ‘Immortal Beloved’ is a film that is worth watching for anyone who is interested in the life and work of one of the greatest composers of all time. It is a film that is beautifully crafted and is sure to leave a lasting impression on its audience.
