Man enters innocent plea in death of fetus

Chadwick D. Hippler pleaded innocent to two felony and three misdemeanor counts in Johnson County District Court Thursday, eight weeks after allegedly causing a car accident that resulted in the death of a fetus.

Hippler is charged with non-consensual termination of a human pregnancy, first-degree theft, two counts of serious injury by vehicle and eluding authorities.

After allegedly stealing a car on Dec. 9, Hippler and two friends were involved in a high-speed chase with a police car on Riverside Drive that ended with Hippler's vehicle colliding with two others.

Iowa City resident Jean Fisher, the driver of one of the cars, was seven months pregnant. She was transported to UI Hospitals and Clinics, where her fetus was later pronounced dead.

If convicted, Hippler could spend up to 39 years in prison and pay up to $20,000 in fines.

His trial is set to begin April 17.

Prosecutors played the now-famous 911 tape from Oct. 25, 1993, in which Nicole Brown Simpson pleads for protection as O.J. Simpson screams and curses in the background.

Jurors viewed letters retrieved from Ms. Simpson's safe-deposit box. She had kept the letters, as well as newspaper clippings and photos, as a record of her beating in 1989.

Ronald Shipp, a friend of the couple, maintained under fierce cross-examination that Simpson told him he'd dreamed of killing his ex-wife.

CAF falls under UI investigation

Group's funding jeopardized by probe of policy infractions

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

The Campaign for Academic Freedom could lose its status as a student organization if the Student Activities Board finds it violated the UI Pentacrest demonstration policy.

The board is investigating CAF at the request of UI Dean of Students Phillip Jones. CAF members feel they are being singled out because of politics.

CAF was created to protest the classroom materials policy and has been very vocal in its opposition. They set up tables on the Pentacrest at least twice during the fall semester without permission from the administration. While the UI does not require permission be obtained to hand out materials, policy states that student groups must obtain approval to set up any type of structure or table on the Pentacrest.

CAF was given the opportunity to respond to the concerns of the administration but refused, Jones said.

"We made direct contact with the students to try and reach an accommodation on a couple of occasions. They evidently did not trust my motivations," he said. "I wasn't in a hurry to be punitive."

Action is being taken against CAF now — months after the infractions — because the administration did not want to rush into a decision, Jones said.

"It seemed reasonable to me (to investigate CAF) because we informed the organization about their transgression and had taken administrative action to correct the problem," Jones said. "The continued viola-

Japanese to tour Iowa at business conference

Kathryn Phillips
The Daily Iowan

The UI will contribute to sponsoring a conference that will draw hundreds of Japanese business leaders to the state this fall, UI President Hunter Rawlings announced Thursday.

The 1995 Midwest / Japan Conference, to be held Sept. 10-12, will attract more than 400 Japanese business leaders as well as officials from 10 Midwestern states, Rawlings said. Iowa City, Coralville and Cedar Rapids are co-hosting the conference, with the majority of events taking place in Cedar Rapids.

Rawlings and Martin Kally, president of Iowa City Development, worked together on the conference's planning committee for approximately eight months.

The annual conference alternates each year between a Midwestern location and Japan, and it is fortunate Iowa has been chosen to sponsor this year's event, Kally said.

"This will be a boom to the area," Kally said. "It is the first time the conference will be held in Iowa. It will be a good chance to show off our area; we will have the opportunity to talk about the qualifications of our state, work force and education."

Activities planned for the entrepreneurs attending the conference include side trips to Iowa homes,

MAN CLAIMS SEX WAS CONSENSUAL

Fantasy Man stirs women's anger

Karin Miller
Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The phone rings late at night. In a sexy whisper, a man persuades a woman to unlock her door, undress, put on a blindfold and wait for him in bed.

At least three women did so, thinking he was their boyfriend, and had sex with the so-called Fantasy Man — one woman twice a week for two months.

Now they want police to charge Raymond Mitchell III with rape.

The 45-year-old businessman says he was just fulfilling the women's fantasies and the sex was consensual.

Police aren't sure what to do. Investigators are looking at whether Mitchell claimed to be someone else, which could consti-

Fantasy Man has become the talk of Nashville. And tabloid television has been calling.

"My callers can't believe how incredibly stupid, gullible and horny women can be," said WLAC talk-radio host Dave Macy.

But Connie Vaupel, who got

Mitchell, a co-worker, charged with attempted rape in 1989, defended the alleged victims.

"These are not stupid women," she said. "They were convinced of something that was not true. He had enough information beforehand to convince them. Believe me, this guy is slick."

Mitchell, who's married with two children, isn't talking with reporters but has talked to police, who say he has cooperated fully.

In the Vaupel case, a plea bargain was accepted, and Mitchell's record was wiped clean after he completed two years on probation.

No decision has been made whether to present the current case to a grand jury, said Rosemary Sexton, the Davidson County assistant district attorney. She declined

"Then it's just a madhouse all day," she said.

Hunt's responsibilities as owner include ordering and purchasing all merchandise, balancing the books and working with customers.

She also works commercially with local event organizers. She often goes on location to give suggestions about the size, color and type of floral arrangements for special occasions.

"I don't try to sell people the max, just give them the most for their dollar," Hunt said.

She said people should not feel intimidated to ask to purchase an arrangement for a specific amount because keeping a budget is always a good idea.

The daisies, alstromeria, roses and daffodils Hunt sells are mostly grown in the United States. Hunt said she has resources and access to greenhouses all across the country.

"We offer a higher quality here," she said. "Daisies and carnations are staples of flower shops, and even with those I try to buy the best quality."

All flowers are beautiful to Hunt, even common inexpensive flower-shop staples.

She described a wedding at which the tables had tiny white baskets overflowing with white daisies.

"It was precious, creative and inexpensive," Hunt said.

Of all the sweet-smelling flowers that arrive daily, Hunt favors the simple tulip.

"I love the simplicity of a single flower in a beautiful vase," she said. "It's so stunning you don't need anything else."

After a long hard day of wrapping flowers and getting pricked by rose thorns, Hunt usually heads home after 6 p.m.

She winds up her evening surrounded by paperwork.

"They almost cut you in half, and they move all your insides around. But I'm not dying, and that's magnificent," the walrus-mustached singer told TV's syndicated "Entertainment Tonight" in an interview for broadcast today.

The 54-year-old Crosby, Stills & Nash singer-songwriter acknowledged that decades of drug and alcohol abuse had taken its toll, requiring the Nov. 20 transplant operation.

Employment forecast brightens for grads

Prasanti Kantamneni
The Daily Iowan

UI students who get their degrees this academic year may have a better chance of landing a job than graduates in the past five years, according to a recent survey.

The survey, conducted by the Collegiate Employment Research Institute at Michigan State University, targeted 545 businesses, industries and governmental agencies and showed a 5.9 percent projected increase in hiring for the class of 1995.

Survey results were gleaned from the responses of a broad range of companies which have traditionally hired recent college graduates. The respondents included Hallmark Cards Inc., Harris Trust Bank, AT&T, IBM and Maytag.

Although the projected increase appears optimistic, it does not necessarily mean job searches will be easier, said Patrick Scheetz, director of the institute.

"From 1988 to 1993, employers cut back on the number of new college graduates they hired," Scheetz said. "They can only do that for a while. They are starting to hire in small numbers, but the numbers are not as dramatic compared to the losses experienced during the previous years."

Employer attitudes about hiring new graduates could also make for a difficult job hunt, he said. In the survey, employers reported that new graduates expected too much money,

"Employers clearly like to see experience."

David Fitzgerald, center associate, UI Center For Career Development and Cooperative Education

disliked starting at the bottom of an organization, were unwilling to spend time in apprentice positions and regularly lacked interest.

"Employers are reminding students that they still have some learning to do and that they need to show positive performance on the job," Scheetz said. "Students are thinking advancement when they should be thinking job performance. There's a whole new awakening."

This is the second consecutive year employers have predicted an increase in job opportunities for recent college graduates. In the four years prior to last year's rise of 1.1 percent, the hiring of new college graduates declined more than 30 percent.

The projected increase may be a result of improvements in the economy, Scheetz said.

"We are recovering from a severe depression," he said. "Employers severely cut back the hiring when an economy turns sour. ... It will take time for us to recover."

At least one UI graduate has not found his job hunt easy. Jason Gaines, who graduated in December, said searching for employment is a long, difficult and discouraging process. So far, he has applied to 15 companies.

"It's starting to look better, but there aren't a lot of jobs out there," said Gaines, who has a bachelor's degree in geology. "You have to look around a lot and talk to a lot of people."

Deanna Hurst, director of the UI Business and Liberal Arts Placement

Office, said businesses have been showing a greater interest in potential employees.

"We've seen a slight increase in on-campus interviewing," she said. "There was a significant drop in the late '80s and early '90s. We are starting to work up."

Despite the increase in on-campus interviews, Hurst said a graduate's chances of getting a job depends primarily on his or her major.

Computer-related occupations and engineering, sales, marketing, accounting, finance, medical and health-care positions continue to represent the most viable career choices, according to the survey.

For all occupations, long-term employers look for experienced graduates, said David Fitzgerald, center associate at the UI Center For Career Development and Cooperative Education.

"Having experience will help in the future," he said. "Internships and summer jobs have become more and more important with helping people get employment after graduating. Employers clearly like to see experience."

GALA TO BE HELD SUNDAY

Festival to showcase global food, cultures

Prasanti Kantamneni
The Daily Iowan

More than 50 cultures from five continents will be represented at The Field House Sunday during the sixth annual Cultural Diversity Day festival.

About 5,000 eastern Iowans are expected to attend this year's celebration, held from noon to 5 p.m., for cultural food, music, dance and art from around the world.

Liz Pearce-Burton, co-chairwoman of Cultural Diversity Day, said the festival gives Iowans a chance to experience and learn about different cultures and people.

"It's a multicultural festival — it focuses on both international and domestic diversity," she said. "I think it will give everyone some insight on different cultures. Hopefully, people will leave with a greater understanding about the cultures they witnessed at the festival."

The event will focus on similarities between cultures rather than differences, said Warren Slebos, co-chairman of Cultural Diversity Day.

"Hopefully, people who attend will be able to see that people from different countries are not so different, even though they come from different backgrounds and cultures," he said.

The event gives international students at the UI an opportunity to share their heritage with the community, Slebos said.

"This is an icebreaker for international students," he said. "It gives them a chance to show the community their culture. It's a way for them to share some of their experiences and background with the university."

Games, entertainment, music, activities for children and an international fashion show will be a part of the festival, Pearce-Burton said.

Latika Bhatnagar, a visiting instructor with the Department of Asian Languages and Literature, has participated in the festival since its beginning. Her contribution has been a sari demonstration.

"So far, it has been a successful show," she said.

A series of international cooking demonstrations including sessions on Indian, Turkish and African cooking will make its debut this year.

In addition, the Chicago Baha'i Youth Group a troupe of 30 young people who use the performing arts to promote racial unity, gender equality and peaceful conflict resolution — will perform.

The workshop's repertoire includes dramatic pieces; a variety of music, including rap, jazz and rhythm and blues; and dances, including hip-hop, jazz, modern, ethnic and acrobatic. All performances were written and choreographed by the group.

About 200 people have been involved in preparing for this year's Cultural Diversity Day festival, which is produced primarily by UI students and local residents, Pearce-Burton said.

EDITOR WANTED

Iowa City's morning newspaper is also Iowa City's largest newspaper, with an editorial staff of more than 50 young professionals, an editorial budget of more than $200,000 and circulation of 20,500. The Board of Student Publications Incorporated and the publisher of The Daily Iowan will soon interview candidates for the position of editor for the term beginning June 1, 1995 and ending May 31, 1996.

The editor of the DI must have strong journalistic abilities and dedication, as well as skills in management and a clear sense of editorial responsibility. The board will weigh heavily such factors as scholarship, previous news writing and editing experience (including work at the DI or another daily newspaper), and proven ability to lead, organize and inspire a staff.

Applicants must be currently enrolled in an undergraduate or graduate degree program at the University of Iowa. Deadline for the candidate's submission of completed applications and supporting materials is noon, Friday, February 24, 1995.

REGENTS FACE NEW BATTLE

'Sex act' policy debate may resurface

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

Although the classroom materials policy has been on the Iowa state Board of Regents' back burner in recent months, the issue may soon be thrown in the face of the policy's most ardent supporter: regents President Marvin Berenstein.

UI President Hunter Rawlings said in an interview Monday that he would "like to get that classroom materials policy business solved" before he leaves the UI to become chancellor of Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., on July 1.

A major roadblock in the way of the policy's repeal may be Berenstein, who strongly approves of the policy and has said on numerous occasions he wanted a policy that specified sexual acts as its target. The current policy is general in its wording.

Berenstein said the total repeal of the policy by the regents would be a shock, and the topic has not been on the board's agenda for months.

"I can honestly say that the regents have had no conversation on the issue lately," he said. "But I can't believe that (the regents) are just going to change the policy."

The policy, which mandates instructors to warn students of classroom materials which may be "unusual or unexpected," was drafted by Rawlings in January 1994 after months of debate between the regents and the UI faculty. Adoption of a UI classroom materials policy was first discussed in 1991 after the UI received complaints from students who had viewed films depicting homosexual acts in class.

Rawlings said he would work to convince the Iowa state Board of Regents to remove the policy from UI statutes. The policy has led to cam-puswide protests and debate since it was implemented on Jan. 19, 1994.

When discussing the probability of convincing Berenstein to support repealing the policy, Rawlings was cautiously optimistic.

"I think it depends on the way it's presented and reassurances that the rest of the policies at the UI can take care of any situations that arise," he said. "That was our argument when we were resisting the policy. We said we already had enough in place to cope with any problems."

The policy's wording has sparked heated debate; the UI Faculty Senate officially denounced it at a November 1994 meeting. The Senate decided to reject the controversial phrase "unusual or unexpected," citing its ambiguity and the potential creation of a negative classroom environment.

The board has said any suggestions to amend or do away with the classroom policy need to come from the Faculty Senate.

"If the Faculty Senate draws up some kind of alternate policy, then I'm sure the regents would be willing to consider it," Berenstein said.

However, Berenstein said the Senate has not suggested any policy revisions to the regents recently.

"I have not seen any new proposals or heard of anything new," he said. "If (abolishing the policy) is one of Rawlings' priorities, either he knows something that I don't or that's just one of his wishes."

The Faculty Senate and Rawlings will work together in an effort to draw up a plan, Senate President Richard Hurtig said.

"We're going to be working with Hunter on this, so that's where we are right now," he said.

Hurtig said the purpose of any effort to repeal the policy would be to erase any possible adverse effects.

"We want to work toward not having policies that negatively impact the teaching that goes on in classes," Hurtig said. "A number of individuals have presented evidence or concerns that the policy has had a negative impact."

The policy may not be fulfilling the purpose it was created to address, Hurtig said.

"Rather than protecting students, which is what the policy is meant to do, some feel that the breadth of (students') education is limited," he said. "We have to come up with a way to make sure that doesn't happen."

The Campaign for Academic Freedom is one of the UI's most vocal opponents of the policy. Tom Lewis, CAF co-chairman, said having Rawlings on CAF's side will help its cause.

"CAF has said all along that we welcome any initiative to get the classroom materials policy repealed," Lewis said. "My view at the moment is that the initiative lies with the Faculty Council and Faculty Senate. If Hunter Rawlings wants to join in the effort, I say, the more united the campus is in this issue, the better our chances of success."

SPRING BREAK '95
AT SOUTH PADRE ISLAND

Take a Spring Break reality check. South Padre Island, Texas, is the hottest Spring Break destination for many reasons.

The Island is a hot spot for student's offering exciting music, a sea of watersports and legendary nightlife. It's even close enough to give you a spicy taste of Mexico. But the Island's location makes it even hotter; it's further south than any other major Spring Break destination in the United States. That's right.

And that means tropical sunshine, white sand beaches, clear blue water and more sun-drenched days than just about anywhere. That's hot!

Located on the tropical tip of Texas, South Padre Island is convenient by car or by plane and only 25 miles from Mexico. Fly into The Rio Grande Valley via Southwest, American, and Continental Airlines.

Two airports, Harlingen's Valley International Airport and The Brownsville/SPI International Airport, offer convenient air service. So call 1-800-343-2368 today for a free brochure.

STATEWIDE DEBATE TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Group up in arms over Iowa death penalty

David Lee
The Daily Iowan

As the controversy over the death penalty takes center stage in a statewide debate this weekend, a group of Iowans who oppose it said they would protest capital punishment even for Nazi war criminals.

"We're against the death penalty under any circumstances," said Jack Shaffer, spokesman for Iowans Against the Death Penalty. "We're against all of them — even for Adolf Hitler."

The debate will be held from 1-2:30 p.m. Saturday in room 302B of Linn Hall at Kirkwood Community College in Cedar Rapids. The event is sponsored by the Iowa House

"It's not a matter of revenge, but a matter of punishment."

Chuck Deninger, former chairman of the Johnson County Republican Party

Judiciary Committee. The debate will be held via the InterCable Network to let specific members of the general public give three-minute speeches about capital punishment. Cedar Rapids is one of 19 cities that have been designated as sites to be hooked up to the network. Two speakers will be allowed at each site.

The group plans to have members attend every site in hopes of gaining more support against House bills HF80 and HF22, which call for the reinstatement of the death penalty, Shaffer said.

Their efforts will not be enough to change the majority, said Johnson County Republican Party Chairman Steve Fauss.

"Since 80 percent of Iowans are for the death penalty, a mass showing at this debate won't sway 30 percent of the people's views," Fauss said. "You won't be able to get 51 percent of Iowans against the death penalty."

Despite the claim, members of the group are still working hard to make their presence known during the debate, Fauss said.

Although Iowa City is the sixth-largest city in Iowa, it was not chosen as one of the 19 sites. Instead, residents of Iowa City will have to travel to Cedar Rapids to attend the debate. Shaffer said House Rep. Steve Grubbs, R-Davenport, who is chairman of the subcommittee, chose the sites.

"I can't speculate, but Iowa City does have many intellectuals in the area," he said.

Although it will be an inconvenience, Shaffer still expects a large turnout.

"I wouldn't be surprised if there were 150 people wanting to speak (against the death penalty) in Cedar Rapids alone," he said.

Grubbs said the population of Iowa City and its mainly Democratic constituency did not enter into his decision when he chose the sites.

"We tried as best we could to balance geography," he said. "Instead of putting one in Iowa City and in Cedar Rapids, we put one in Cedar Rapids knowing people from Iowa City could easily get there. You pick 20 cities in Iowa, and you can't put (a forum) everywhere."

The death penalty debate is not simply another clash between Republicans and Democrats, Shaffer said.

"The IADP is nonpartisan, and many strong Republicans also are against the death penalty," he said.

Ben Stone, spokesman for the Des Moines chapter of Iowans Against the Death Penalty, said one of the main reasons the death penalty is not necessary is because of a law that already exists for murderers.

"There is already a law saying that if you are convicted of first-degree murder, you must spend life in jail without chance of parole," Stone said. "When people understand the life term, then they won't see the need for a death penalty."

Using the death penalty is an act of revenge, which is not what most Iowans want, Stone said.

"People don't want the criminals out," Stone said. "It's not that they are bloodthirsty. They just think if you did it once, you'll do it again."

However, there are some situations in which murderers deserve to die, said Chuck Deninger, former Johnson County Republican Party chairman.

"I'm a father. When I see a 9-year-old girl who is murdered, and the guy tried to break her neck, as a father, what do you think I want to do to that guy?" said Deninger, referring to the murder of Anna Marie Emry. "Those people are absolutely despicable. It's not a matter of revenge, but a matter of punishment."

Most likely the debate won't end even after this weekend, he said. It will continue because there are reasons to support either one.

"There are good arguments from both sides," Deninger said. "Both should get out and talk about it."

Prognosticating groundhog heralds spring

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Break out the gardening gloves and fire up the charcoal grill: Spring is almost here.

At least according to Punxsutawney Phil.

The chubby groundhog, possibly the world's most famous forecaster, failed to see his shadow as he was hauled from a manmade burrow Thursday, indicating — according to legend — that winter is almost over.

Phil

A crowd of about 7,000 cheered loudly as the announcement was made under chilly overcast skies.

"I was right, I was right!" exulted John Stoffan, a salesman from Mahanoy City, who said he had foreseen Phil's prediction. He planned to "get an early tan" but conceded he might wait a week or two before oiling up.

It is the 10th or 11th time since 1887 that groundhogs — whose forecasts are actually determined in advance by members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club — have predicted an early spring, depending on whose count you believe. The last time was in 1990.

The National Weather Service near Pittsburgh also forecast above-normal temperatures for the next few weeks, in keeping with the relatively mild trend this winter.

"We haven't had winter yet. Spring feels like it's already here," said meteorologist Bob Reed.

The Groundhog Day tradition is based on a German superstition that an animal casting its shadow Feb. 2 is an indication of bad weather to come.

Dole hints at run for presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole says he has not ruled out entering the 1996 presidential race with a pledge to serve just one term.

The Kansas Republican, in a television interview to be broadcast tonight, said some advisers have suggested he make the pledge as a way of deflecting any concerns voters have about his age. Dole is 71 and will be 73 by the November 1996 election. Only Ronald Reagan has been elected at that age, and in Reagan's case it was to a second term.

Interviewed for the PBS program "Talking with David Frost," Dole joked that anyone worried about his stamina should "just follow me around for a few days and that, that will be gone." And he joked that when he interacts with 93-year-old Sen. Strom Thurmond, "I feel like I just finished high school."

Still, he said he hadn't ruled out the idea of announcing he would serve just one term.

On other subjects, Dole said he did not expect House Speaker Newt Gingrich of Georgia to enter the 1996 race, "but who knows?" And he said he doubted Ross Perot would run again but had no firsthand knowledge of that.

As for President Clinton, Dole said he expected Clinton would be the Democratic nominee and a formidable candidate for re-election.

"Don't sell President Clinton short," Dole said. "He's smart. He's articulate. He's bright. He knows how to communicate — maybe a little long from time to time, but he knows how to communicate."

Looking at the GOP legislative agenda, Dole said it was too close to call when asked if the balanced-budget amendment would clear the Senate. He repeated his personal opposition to congressional term limits but said he would vote in favor of limits because the idea has overwhelming public support.

911 tapes played in Simpson case

Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Prosecutors let the jurors hear for themselves O.J. Simpson's capacity for rage Thursday, playing the 1993 tape of him ranting and cursing as his ex-wife, her voice trembling, pleaded with a 911 operator to send help.

"He's O.J. Simpson. I think you know his record. ... He's ... going nuts," Nicole Brown Simpson said in the now-famous recording.

Earlier, jurors were shown items from a safe deposit box in which Brown Simpson documented a New Year's 1989 beating through photos, newspaper clippings and letters from Simpson that asked, "How I got so crazy?"

In the tape, a frantic Brown Simpson is heard telling the 911 operator in a phone call the night of Oct. 25, 1993, "My ex-husband has just broken into my house, and he's ranting and raving outside in the front yard. ... He's crazy."

The transcript was not provided to jurors, and much of what Simpson shouted in the background was unintelligible. Deputy District Attorney Christopher Darden told reporters, "The tone was more important than the content."

Jurors, who said during jury selection that they all had heard at least portions of the tape, gazed at the ceiling or closed their eyes to concentrate. All but one were expressionless — a woman who appeared to wince as the voice of the now-dead Brown Simpson became more and more hysterical.

Some of the jurors took notes. Simpson was impassive and appeared to be reading a transcript of the call as it was played.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito allowed the tape to be played in its entirety except for one statement in which Brown Simpson tells the 911 operator, "He's going to beat the shit out of me."

Simpson didn't hit his ex-wife during that incident, prosecutors have conceded.

Prosecutors offered the tape in an attempt to demolish Simpson's good-guy public image and show what they called his other side. Prosecutors contend the slaying was the culmination of years of terror inflicted by a jealous, obsessive Simpson.

In another development, defense jury consultant Jo-Ellan Dimitrius said there have been reports of possible juror misconduct. "It's serious enough that the judge has thought that it needs to be evaluated by another agency," she said without elaborating.

Authorities found the safe deposit box evidence — three letters, photos of Brown Simpson's bruised body, her will, newspaper stories about the beating and other items — when they drilled the box open in December, six months after Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were stabbed to death.

"It appears to us what Nicole Brown was doing was leaving a trail for us of what happened in 1989," Darden said. Simpson pleaded no contest to wife beating in the incident and was placed on probation.

Simpson's handwritten letters, composed after the 1989 fight, were projected page by page on a large courtroom screen. Each page was held there briefly for the jurors to read.

"Let me start by expressing to you how wrong I was for hurting you," Simpson wrote to his then-wife. "There is no exceptible (sic) excuse for what I did."

"As we drove home New Years nite (sic), I felt great about everything and have never been more in love with you. Thinking and trying to realize how I got so crazy?" Simpson wrote.

The judge didn't allow the newspaper articles to be entered as evidence, and the jurors weren't immediately shown the photos.

Prosecutors turned their attention to the domestic violence evidence after completing questioning of former policeman Ronald Shipp, who fought off defense attempts to portray him as a liar and a star-struck wannabe friend who lusted after Brown Simpson.

Under a second day of cross-examination, Shipp said he once had a serious drinking problem and acknowledged he was treated by a psychiatrist and left the police department because he was "burned out."

GLAD TO MOVE ON

Parent cleared in newborn's death

Juan Elizondo
Associated Press

LANSING, Mich. — The father who unhooked his premature baby from a respirator was acquitted Thursday of manslaughter in a case that examined the rights of parents in determining treatment for their children.

Dr. Gregory Messenger showed little emotion other than a smile when the jury returned its verdict after deliberating for four hours.

"Like we said from the very beginning, the hardest part has been losing a child," Messenger said after the verdict. "We're glad to get it over with and move on."

Messenger acknowledges he took the 1-pound, 11-ounce boy off the respirator a little more than an hour after he was delivered by Caesarean section on Feb. 8. Messenger and his wife, Traci, feared the child had suffered brain damage.

The 40-year-old dermatologist could have received up to 15 years in prison if convicted.

Assistant Prosecutor Mike Ferency argued that Messenger made a decision about his son before getting enough medical information.

"It definitely was an emotion case," he said after the verdict. But "not bringing a prosecution would have been equally unacceptable in our view."

The baby, Michael Ryan, was delivered about 15 weeks premature. Before the delivery, the couple had been told the baby had less than a 50 percent chance of survival.

WOMAN DIES AFTER NIGHTTIME JAUNT

Rest home workers blamed for cover-up of resident's death

Paul Nowell
Associated Press

SHELBY, N.C. — The staff of the Whispering Pines rest home convinced a doctor that Ellie Wall died of natural causes. After all, by the time he arrived, she was tucked in bed.

That's not where she died, however. The 77-year-old woman had left the home unsupervised, wearing only her underwear, and froze to death in a ditch.

Employees found her, took her back inside, cleaned her up, put her nightgown back on and put her to bed.

An anonymous tip led to an autopsy that brought out the truth. Wall's 64-year-old sister, Viola Philbeck, wants to know what really happened.

"It's a terrible tragedy she died this way," Philbeck said.

She isn't the only one with questions.

"I need to talk to a lot of people," Cleveland County District Attorney Bill Young said Thursday.

Wall was found dead at about 7 a.m. Sunday in a drainage ditch outside the small rest home between Shelby and Boiling Springs. A local physician signed a death certificate saying she died in her sleep of natural causes.

Philbeck got a call that morning from Blanche Yelton, who owns the 23-bed home along with her husband, Leonard.

"She told me she passed away that morning, and she didn't tell me anything else," Philbeck said.

On Sunday night, Sheriff Dan Crawford got an anonymous tip. He retrieved the body from the funeral home and ordered an autopsy. The North Carolina Medical Examiners Office determined Wednesday that Wall died of exposure.

Crawford said overnight temperatures were in the 20s.

Young will decide whether charges — possibly including criminal neglect and manslaughter — are filed.

The rest home's 18 residents are supposed to remain inside after 9 p.m., and alarms on the doors are supposed to sound if anyone goes outside, the sheriff said.

"The owners told me they don't know how she got out after 9 p.m.," Crawford said. "Apparently no one missed her or checked on her."

"We're not sure if anyone was there," he said. "Apparently they have a grandson who's supposed to be there."

The owners, in their 70s, live next door to the rest home, Crawford said.

Blanche Yelton ordered a reporter and a photographer off her property Thursday.

"I've done all the talking I'm going to do, and I'm not saying any more," she yelled. "Half of what they are saying in the paper and on TV is wrong."

Whispering Pines has been cited for several safety and health violations.

It lost state permission to admit new residents for two months in 1992 and has been penalized four other times for improper patient care, said Lynda McDaniel, state Division of Facility Services deputy director.

FOREIGN POLICY VICTORY

Clinton takes a stand

For those of you who think Bill Clinton is a wimp or a waffler who doesn't have the leadership skills to lead a group of ants, think again.

On Tuesday, Clinton scored a foreign policy victory that Republicans can't stop. He single-handedly — at least temporarily — saved Mexico's economy and, in turn, thousands of American jobs.

Mexico's 1 1/2-month-long economic crisis was on the verge of becoming America's crisis. With the peso hitting an all-time low on Monday, Mexicans were running out of money to buy American goods, and Mexican employers were running out of money to pay their workers.

Congressional stalling on a $40 billion loan guarantee was worsening Mexico's crisis and threatening American jobs. Clinton made the correct decision in using his executive authority to authorize a $20 billion credit line from a currency stabilization fund. This money, along with almost $30 billion from international sources, will solve two problems which could have led to dire consequences for the American people.

First, the aid will enable Mexicans to continue buying American products. The United States is exporting more goods to Mexico now than at any other time in history. If this were to stop — or even slow down — thousands of American jobs would be lost.

Not only did the president and congressional leaders know this, so did governors. Governors understand their state's dependence on Mexican buying power and knew their citizens would lose jobs and part of their livelihood if America hadn't stepped in to stop the crisis.

Second, illegal immigration would have increased at an alarming rate. Border states would have been hit increasingly hard with an increase in crime and a decrease in jobs. Arrests at border crossings had already increased in the last month, and as the crisis in Mexico worsened, the situation had the potential to become an American crisis. In the age of Proposition 187, California's referendum to halt benefits to illegal immigrants, the United States should increase efforts to stop illegal immigration before it starts.

The Great Depression and the subsequent global recession happened because the international community refused to help those who were in trouble. The Mexican crisis would not have amounted to a global one, but it would have had dire consequences for the American, Mexican and other Latin American economies. President Clinton was correct in finally taking a stand and doing what he knew had to be done.

REMEMBERING AUSCHWITZ

More attention deserved

Fifty years and one week ago, Soviet troops liberated a living hell named Auschwitz. Scores of emaciated, tortured and scarred people whose lives were robbed of any semblance of humanity by German Nazis walked away from that purgatory but not from its wrath.

Fifty years and one week ago, those who once were prodded into cramped cattle cars which moved toward an unknown and terrifying destiny were finally able to begin the task of locating lost relatives and friends, most of whom were tortured and murdered.

The anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz — which was only one of many death camps where millions of Jews, Gypsies and Polish intellectuals were deliberately killed under Nazi rule — should be a cause for a kind of celebration wrought with reflection and remembrance.

And it should have been remembered better than it was in Iowa.

Most of the national coverage of the tragic history of Auschwitz was scattered, as if the main media outlets couldn't decide whether or not the Super Bowl or the Holocaust should be their top story. Only CNN peppered their newscasts each hour with videos of the gathering of Holocaust survivors, whose memories of the site of their living graveyard were just as horrifyingly vivid and unjust as their lives fared 50 years ago.

In Iowa City, newspapers ignored local spins on the commemoration, preferring instead to shuffle away a wire service story into the inside pages. Local television newscasts may have made brief mention in their 60-second coverage of national news, but the ice storm that painted the state took an overwhelming precedence over the memory of the millions of innocent people who were murdered.

Results of a 1992 poll conducted through the American Jewish Committee revealed another reason why the Holocaust and the stories of its survivors should be covered, reported on and paid prominent attention to in the media: 38 percent of those polled denied the existence of the Holocaust or didn't know what it was.

Even beyond the unacceptable ignorance of those 38 percent, Polish President Lech Walesa only grudgingly admitted to the fact that some 90 percent of those who died at Auschwitz were Jews.

The ice storm, no matter how perilous, should not have garnered a monopolistic coverage over the marking of the 50-year anniversary of the liberation of Auschwitz. The remembrance and acknowledgment of the unspeakable suffering of millions of people whose nightmares of a living hell still taunt them 50 years and one week later deserve more attention.

Psychic hot line to offer former gym teachers

You can tell we're approaching the turn of the millennium.

What else could explain the dramatic rise in the psychic powers of the general population?

It's apparent from the most cursory examination of daytime or late-night television that there are hundreds — even thousands — of qualified "psychic friends" out there, selflessly harnessing their extrasensory powers for the benefit of the world's 900-number users.

Whether or not I'm right to attribute this phenomenon to the approach of the year 2000, you have to be impressed with what a blow for democracy this is. Just think, in centuries gone by it was largely kings and emperors who had access to the wisdom of seers and prophets.

Now anyone with a tolerance for $500 telephone bills has access to the untapped mysteries of the mind.

Of course, I realize some of you are skeptics; the psychic friends realize it, too. Fortunately, their TV commercials are there to assure you of the good faith and genuine skills of the better psychic hot lines.

"Are you tired of psychic hot lines using phony psychics?" one narrator bellows.

The narrator takes pains to convince us that his hot line uses only the very best psychics — psychics who will be there for you whenever you might need them.

(Not like those pesky psychiatrists with their office hours, appointment books and prescription drugs.)

"But how can they screen psychics?" some of you with lingering doubts might be asking.

That's a tricky question, but it might get easier if a proposal I heard the other day on National Public Radio is ever taken up.

The proposal, which is the brain child of an apparently conscientious professional tarot card reader, is that we create a national certification board for psychics.

And if the term "folk psychology" is anything like "folk medicine" or "folk music," we can take "folk" to mean "pretty much anybody can do it."

"It's folk psychology," she said. "We need to be accepted into the mainstream."

We may never see the day when the words "certified psychic" appear under names in the telephone book, but I think the modern-day proliferation of psychics, astrologers, numerologists and past-life channelers is evidence enough of the integration of "folk psychology" into the mainstream.

And if the term "folk psychology" is anything like "folk medicine" or "folk music," we can take "folk" to mean "pretty much anybody can do it."

Following this interpretation, I have been led to consider the possibility that I, too, have psychic abilities or at least the ability to greatly expand my income by starting my very own 900 number.

It sounds easy enough, given that the phone company will be happy to charge calls to anyone who dials my number — as long as people have advance warning of how much they'll be charged.

But starting a business is not a venture to be undertaken lightly, which is why I'm at work on a plan to shatter the competition with my new psychic hot line, "Surrender Total Control of Your Life!"

My psychic hot line won't have namby-pamby operators reading vague horoscopes off 3-by-5 cards and then throwing in a couple of "specially selected" lucky numbers.

My hot line will give people what they really want: someone to tell them what to do about every aspect of their miserable lives.

It'll have everything from sports predictions to financial advice, using every alternate reality we at "Surrender" can dream up.

I envision something like this: "Historically, a win by an NFC team raises the chance that the lottery will be won by Leos whose names begin with B. And if you win that money, keep in mind that the Year of the Pig is always an excellent year to invest in long-term bonds."

We'll be up and running as soon as I finish training my talented team of former high-school gym teachers.

So, don't delay. Call 1-(900)-HELP-ME.

Computer tip: Never read the instructions

To better understand why you need a personal computer, let's take a look at the pathetic mess that you call your life. We'll start with your so-called "financial records," which I'm guessing consist of a cardboard box marked "Taxes," I have an overflowing cardboard box marked "Quicken."

Quicken is the name of a program I have on my computer that's supposed to handle my finances. Unfortunately, before Quicken can do this, I have to type all the information on my pieces of paper into the computer, and Quicken is very snippy about the format. I cannot just type, "This is either a tax-deductible receipt or a wad of pocket lint." No, Quicken demands exact information, which is why I send all my financial records to a guy named Evan, who, unlike Quicken, is able to work with very rough estimates regarding dates, dollar amounts and total number of children.

Note to the Internal Revenue Service: I am, of course, just kidding and will personally vouch for the accuracy of every statement on my tax return, including the one about using the Jet Ski exclusively for commuting.

But here is my point: By not entering financial information into Quicken, I have saved many hours of valuable time, which I am able to use productively by playing hearts. This is a card game that you can play on a computer. In the version I have, you play against three computerized opponents, which the computer labels "Anna," "Lynda" and "Terri." They are vicious sluts, and I hate them. I played Hearts against them for three solid weeks, thinking I was winning every single game, always scoring way more points than they did, marveling at the sheer stupidity of the decisions they were making. Then I read the instructions.

Important computer tip: Never read the instructions.

It turns out that the object of Hearts is to score the lowest number of points. So all that time I thought I was winning, Anna, Lynda and Terri were actually snickering at me at a rate of 3.7 million snickers per second.

They are able to achieve these speeds thanks to the microprocessor, a tiny device inside the computer that can perform millions of complex calculations almost instantaneously and come up with the wrong answer. At least that's what sometimes happens with the newest and most advanced microprocessor, the Pentium, which has a flaw that causes mathematical errors. Also, it believes that Tokyo is the capital of Vermont. And when you play Hearts with it, it sometimes tells you to "go fish." This is the computer that handles the federal budget.

I'm not saying that the only reason you need a personal computer is to play games. Once you become experienced, you might also be able to use your computer to activate the Rome Lab Snowball Cam. This device was developed by a computer engineer named Scott Gregory, who works at an Air Force facility in New York called the Rome Laboratory, which deals with high-tech information and surveillance technology. It's also part of something called the World Wide Web, which is sort of an advanced version of the Internet, an international network of tens of thousands of computer users who are constantly using their combined brainpower to think up fantastically innovative ways to waste time.

The Snowball Cam is a video camera located in the Rome Lab and hooked into the World Wide Web. Web users can use their computers to look through this camera and order it to "throw" a simulated "snowball" at engineers in the lab. The camera puts a white circle on the screen to show you where you "hit."

Gregory set the Snowball Cam up in December. ("I considered doing a Disgruntled Postal Worker Cam," he told me. "But that didn't seem like the holiday spirit.") Since then, more than 1,500 snowballs have been thrown by people all over the world.

But my point is that if you don't have a computer and you wish to throw snowballs at military surveillance personnel, you must do so in person, thereby greatly increasing your risk of being eaten by professional Air Force dogs.

And if that doesn't convince you, consider this: According to Bill Barker, the alert reader who told me about the Snowball Cam, you can also use a computer to find out, from anywhere on the planet:

- Exactly how much coffee is in a certain coffee machine at Cambridge University in England.

- Exactly how many sodas are available in certain vending machines at certain major universities.

- And much, much more.

This is the kind of vital information you could have access to if you owned a computer, which is why I urge you to purchase one today, ideally an advanced model such as mine, which, thanks to its state-of-the-art Pentium microprocessor, enabled me to check the spelling of every word in this column in under five seconds.

Note to computer geeks: For more information on the Snowball Cam, you can contact the Rome Lab at this e-mail address: webwww.rl.af.mil. The secret military password is "booger."

'Throttling' freedom of speech

The UI administration has stepped up its harassment of the Campaign for Academic Freedom by requesting that the Student Activities Board investigate the group for holding unauthorized literature tables on the Pentacrest. In a December letter, Dean Jones asked the board to consider rescinding CAF's student-group funding and such "privileges" as holding meetings on campus. Moreover, Dean Jones earlier indicated in The Daily Iowan that he would not rule out suspending or expelling students staffing the unauthorized tables.

The administration's heavy-handed efforts to silence CAF should be cause for alarm to all concerned about issues of free speech and basic fairness. What Dean Jones' letter fails to mention is that when CAF first applied for permission to hold a table, its request was denied by UI administration. Although prior approval is ostensibly a simple matter of record-keeping and accountability, this refusal made clear that the UI can and will use the regulation to silence groups which vigorously and publicly challenge its actions.

Recent events demonstrate that the anti-policy mobilization has had an impact, and clearly administrators would prefer that CAF's arguments remain unheard.

Understanding the denial to be a flagrant violation of free speech rights, CAF proceeded to place on the Pentacrest both the literature table and the box containing "unusual and unexpected" materials. Although the dean of students' office later attempted to justify the ban by arbitrarily labeling the box a "structure" under an obscure Pentacrest policy, CAF can document that permission was in fact denied for both the table and the box.

CAF members only wish that the entire student body could have witnessed the absurd spectacle of Campus Security officers ordering students off the Pentacrest for the grievous crimes of distributing leaflets, collecting petition signatures and discussing objections to the classroom materials policy. Can the administration really expect anyone to believe that CAF's occupying a few square feet on an open, grassy public space constitutes an intolerable hazard of some sort? Particularly chilling is the fact that UI representatives photographed those present at the table and that these photos are now on file with Campus Security.

It is evident that CAF has been targeted because of its effective and damaging criticism of UI policies; when a number of other student groups placed unauthorized tables on the Pentacrest in protest of the ban, still it was only CAF's table that security officers approached and photographed. Unable to present coherent arguments in favor of its restrictive and homophobic classroom materials policy, the administration evidently hopes to silence the opposition through censorship and intimidation. Recent events demonstrate that the anti-policy mobilization has had an impact, and clearly administrators would prefer that CAF's arguments remain unheard.

CAF also stands accused of using its own bullhorn at a Pentacrest rally, an action taken to challenge the requirement that sound equipment for Pentacrest rallies be rented at a cost of more than $60 from the UI. This rule effectively discriminates against groups with little or no funds while conveniently creating a rental monopoly for the UI.

It is not CAF that should be targeted by the board, but rather the maze of bureaucratic requirements aimed at throttling the expression of free speech on our campus. Dean Jones has indicated that groups opposing the administration are free to engage in "orderly dissent" in a "reasonable time, place and manner," but these terms are to be defined at the whim of the very administration whose policies are being challenged. How can healthy dialogue flourish when almost any public expression of political opinion requires prior approval by the administration and when even the simple posting of an unauthorized flier is subject to punitive measures? It is not any legitimate concern for public safety that lies behind Dean Jones' charges, but rather a desire to suppress dissent and to paint the UI as a sterile campus peopled by happy, complacent automatons.

How can healthy dialogue flourish when almost any public expression of political opinion requires prior approval by the administration and when even the simple posting of an unauthorized flier is subject to punitive measures?

CAF urges the Student Activities Board, as the student organization governing student-group activities, to reject Dean Jones' frivolous charges against our organization and to publicly condemn this unwarranted harassment. We further urge the board's support for student groups' right to peacefully disseminate information on UI property, as well as to use their own sound equipment when holding Pentacrest rallies.

Anyone interested in defending the right to free speech of CAF and other student groups is urged to write to Dean Jones and the Student Activities Board, or to sign CAF's petition opposing the Pentacrest policy. For more information, call 339-5481 or 358-0884.

Iowa City inflation taking from students

To the Editor:

The student in Iowa City is about to be saddled with higher prices for rental apartments and rooms because of the doubling of water costs over the next two years. Several years ago, the Iowa Legislature doubled all misdemeanor fines. The city of Iowa City has recently raised parking meter costs, lowered the towing level of unpaid fines, shortened the time on meters and lengthened the hours of enforcement. The student is affected by all that because many UI classrooms on the east side of the river are next to downtown, and many students absorb tickets as part of the cost of getting to class on time. More than 500 meters have been eliminated near the downtown area over the last 20 years, and one-side-only parking has been instituted on the farther-out streets.

Inflation is well under control in America, and prices are falling on many basic items. The wild inflation of the 1973-1978 era brought about the annual 5 percent to 6 percent increases in tuition and residence hall fees. The state of Iowa has had a property tax freeze in effect for several years, and this has kept rents from going up — until now.

Government has caused a new and permanent round of inflation for Iowa Citizens, a startling development at a time when the rhetoric of politics is all tax cuts and freezes.

Inflation of about 100 percent on nontax money collections is giving us

Latin American levels of inflation. This kind of government economics is beyond anything previously imagined or identified by critical thinkers. Is there a cabal or clique with a theory responsible for this, or is it just mindless? The student population has long been viewed as an unending gold mine in this area, but government is taking way too much.

tions suggest that there might be sanctions taken."

Jones denied that CAF's opposition to the classroom materials policy was a factor in the decision to take action against the group.

"We have over 300 student organizations that we expect to abide by the rules laid out by the university," he said. "We treat them all the same way, regardless of their political persuasion."

The list of charges submitted to the board includes the use of unauthorized literature tables and sound equipment. CAF members used a bullhorn during an Oct. 19 rally intended as a response to the Iowa state Board of Regents meeting that took place in the Union that day.

Sanctions against CAF could range from no action at all to the group losing its status as a UI student organization, which would also result in loss of UI funding.

The charges against CAF are absurd, said CAF Co-chairman Tom Lewis.

"Our view is that the bringing of charges against CAF is outrageous," he said. "We requested permission for a table last spring and were denied, so we put up tables, and so did several other student groups in solidarity with us."

The charges are motivated by the UI's animosity toward dissenters, Lewis said.

"CAF was the only group that was targeted to receive a warning and a reprimand," he said. "It's clear to us (that the UI administration) wanted to silence protest and debate over the policy."

The request for the Student Activities Board to investigate CAF came at the end of the fall semester. The process will proceed without bias, said UI junior Bob Frick, chairman of the board.

"I'm trying to do this as fairly and objectively as possible," he said. "You always want to get it done right."

CAF's vehement protest against the "sex act" policy will not influence the board's decision, Frick said.

"We're treating (CAF) as any other club. We don't look at ideology; we look at what is being charged," he said. "You have to look at it that way."

Frick said the average Student Activities Board investigation takes less than two months.

The board has jurisdiction over all student organizations. It is composed of nine student members who serve one-year terms.

BURGLARIES

and stereo equipment at their fingertips, cash was all that was stolen, Lihs said.

Other businesses burglarized included Futon Discounters, 529 S. Gilbert St., on Jan. 30; Sky's The Limit hair salon, 935 S. Gilbert St., on Jan. 24 and Dec. 24; QuikTrip Corp., 955 Mormon Trek Blvd., on Jan. 26; Christ The King Lutheran Church ELCA, 325 Mormon Trek Blvd., on Jan. 18; First Mennonite Church, 405 Myrtle Ave., on Jan. 23; and St. Thomas More Church, 405 N. Riverside Drive, on Jan. 23 and Dec. 21.

Lihs said investigators have not pinpointed any suspects.

"We have no idea whatsoever — no clues as to anything and no witnesses because (the burglaries) were all reported after the fact," he said.

The Iowa City Police Department is concerned about the possible connection between the burglaries, Lihs said.

"It appears they are related," he said. "With the rash of burglaries, we're trying to concentrate on the businesses more than we might usually."

John Tvedte, owner of Computer Solutions, reported a small amount of cash was stolen and his company's back door was damaged.

"I'm very happy that nothing really nasty happened," he said. Although the store is insured against theft, Tvedte said stolen computers would have created a hassle.

Scott Allen, the owner of The Grand Illusion, said approximately $300 was stolen from his company's cash register, which was pried open with a file.

He said the robber ignored three stereo systems in lieu of the cash but couldn't resist pocketing candy from a dish on the front desk.

"We're calling them the cash-and-candy gang — they emptied our candy dish," Allen said.

After emptying the cash register and rummaging through the store's files, the burglar left the building, Allen said.

"I think they were just looking for a quick in and out," he said.

The "Contract" includes the balanced-budget amendment, tax cuts for the middle class, re-evaluation of the crime bill, welfare reform, term limits and other plans relating to the role of the family and government influence in America.

Although some people criticize the "Contract" as a political toy which influenced the voters during the 1994 GOP takeover, Cary Covington, associate professor of political science, said the "Contract" is not so much a tool as it is a symbol.

"It has become a symbol for what Republicans stand for," Covington said. "I'm not sure it had that emphasis during the election, but now it dominates what's going on in Washington."

Arthur Miller, professor of political science and director of the UI's Social Science Institute, said the "Contract" was an essential part of the Republicans' capture of the political agenda.

"For the Republicans, it was a very creative mechanism by which they have regained the political agenda," Miller said. "Right now that contract is an agenda-grabbing piece of political domination."

Although the "Contract With America" may dominate the present political spectrum, Miller said many Americans are still unfamiliar with the "Contract."

"Right after the election, open polls showed 40 to 45 percent of the public didn't have a clue what it was all about," he said. "Now many more people would have heard of it. If it continues to grab the headlines and set the agenda, then eventually people will become aware of it."

As the public becomes more informed about the "Contract," the Democrats have been looking for ways to snipe the Republicans at their own game, Covington said.

"The Democrats will try to play up what the Republicans didn't act on," he said. "They'll look for hypocrisies in their behavior, but that won't play well in the big picture. The Republicans have the field now, and the Democrats will have to wait until the Republicans make a big mistake."

Although the majority of Democrats do not support the "Contract With America," some have given support on certain issues within the "Contract," said Iowa Rep. Mary Mascher, D-Iowa City.

"Some things they're proposing Democrats are in favor of, so it's not a matter of totally partisan issues," Mascher said.

However, this dissension in the ranks of the Democratic Party has caused concern among party members who feel Democratic support of the "Contract" is a 1996 election ploy.

"For myself, I don't see where that 'Contract' holds much where the Democratic Party prides itself on, such as supporting education and helping the elderly," said Cathy Kern, chairwoman of the Johnson County Democrats.

The Democrats need to regain their solidarity and find a common perspective to defeat the Republicans' "Contract With America," Covington said.

"The Democrats need to find a vision of their own and prepare to create wedge issues in order to cause division in the ranks of those who support Republicans," he said.

work places and various area sites. Persuading Japanese businesses to locate in Iowa will be beneficial for residents and students, Kally said.

"This could mean better jobs for people in Iowa," Kally said. "What we want are Japanese companies that are interested in the U.S. market to consider locating in Iowa. We have several Japanese companies, and we want more. They provide high-tech, well-paying jobs. And if we show them the educational system, they may recruit our students to work in Japan."

Rose Rennekamp, director of research marketing in the UI Office of the Vice President for Research, said there are plans to incorporate UI students into welcoming the Japanese business leaders.

"We are arranging for students that speak Japanese to greet at the airport upon arrival," Rennekamp said. "There will also be opportunities for students to be involved in the entertainment. We want to show student talent. We want to find a way to bring everyone together."

Michigan was the last Midwestern site to hold the conference, Kally said.

"Two years ago when it was held in Michigan, the governor went to the conference and extended an invitation to hold the conference in Iowa," Kally said. "In '94, he informally extended the invitation again in Japan, and they accepted to hold the '95 conference in our state."

FANTASY MAN

to discuss it further.

Meanwhile, newspaper reports of Fantasy Man have brought new claims from women who said they, too, received calls from Mitchell.

Police said there were at least three such complaints.

David Raybin, a former prosecutor-turned-defense attorney, said,

"The government is going to have a very heavy burden to carry — to establish that the women were deceived."

Raybin serves on the Tennessee Sentencing Commission, which in 1989 updated an 1870 criminal code on "fictitious husband rape" and came up with Tennessee's current rape-by-fraud statute.

Mitchell's accusers are:

- A 26-year-old woman who realized that Fantasy Man wasn't her boyfriend as soon as he touched her. She feared he would hurt her if she resisted.

- A woman in her mid-30s who thought Fantasy Man was a man from Texas she had met a week before. She had sex with Fantasy Man twice before calling the Texan and realizing the truth.

- A woman in her early 20s who said she had sex with Fantasy Man twice a week for two months because she believed he was her boyfriend. She realized the truth when her blindfold slipped.

Former champion dies at age 85

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Fred Perry, a three-time Wimbledon winner and one of the greatest players in tennis history, died Thursday. He was 85.

Perry was hospitalized after breaking four ribs in a fall at a hotel in Melbourne on Jan. 29, Australian Associated Press reported. He was in Melbourne to watch the Australian Open, which ended Sunday.

He was released from the hospital but readmitted after reportedly falling again.

No cause of death was immediately available.

Perry was the first player to win all four major singles titles, although not concurrently. And he was the last British man to win the men's singles title at Wimbledon.

NFL

Ware comes to terms with Jaguars

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Jacksonville Jaguars have reached a contract agreement with 1989 Heisman Trophy winner Andre Ware and will sign the quarterback today, the Florida Times-Union reported.

Ware, 26, who worked out for the Jaguars in December, was released by the Minnesota Vikings last summer after signing as a free agent in May. He spent four seasons with the Detroit Lions after being selected seventh overall in the 1990 draft following his junior season at the University of Houston.

NBA

Williams steps down as Nuggets captain

DENVER (AP) — Denver Nuggets forward Reggie Williams stepped down as a co-captain, saying he "didn't like a lot of things that were going on."

"It was a personal thing," Williams said on Wednesday night. "I'm just being myself. If I can't be myself, I can't function. I'm not going to try to be something for somebody just to make them happy. I've got to satisfy Reggie."

Williams is averaging 11.3 points and 4.3 rebounds, but his playing time has diminished in the past week.

He was left out of the starting lineup for the first time this season against Houston on Tuesday night and played just seven minutes.

"I don't care about starting," he said.

"But to not play at all, that's the thing that's upsetting to me. That's real disappointing, but I'm still out there supporting the team, and I hope we can get it together."

The Nuggets are 1-7 since interim head coach Gene Littles took over for Dan Issel on Jan. 15.

"I would have liked for him to stay on as captain, but that was his decision," Littles said. "No one asked for him not to be captain. So right now, Bryant Stith is our only captain."

Owners back off on salary cap

Ben Walker
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Maybe, possibly, a small step toward progress was made in the baseball strike.

Owners, in their first meeting with players in 40 days, made a major shift Wednesday and presented a proposal that does not include a salary cap.

Union officials, while privately saying the exact plan is unacceptable, saw a chance that its structure could eventually lead to a settlement.

"We have removed the chief objection expressed by players," said Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington, management's chief negotiator. "Our proposal tracks much of the framework first offered by the union."

The meeting follows President Clinton's call last week for talks to resume. With spring training supposed to start in two weeks, Clinton has checked in almost daily to see if the sides are serious about his Monday deadline for making some progress.

"There was a recognition by both sides that there was significant pressure being applied," union head Donald Fehr said after the six-hour meeting.

Fehr said the union and players planned to spend today reviewing the proposal, but the two sides were expected to get together later in the afternoon. It was not clear if the union would respond to the proposal at that time, however.

The owners were to spend part of the day talking about expansion. They may discuss whether the two teams being added in a couple of years will be in the same league or different leagues; if they're split, it could lead to interleague play.

Also Wednesday, the National Labor Relations Board said it will rule within two weeks on the unfair labor practice charges filed by both sides.

The owners' new proposal included a luxury tax and moved off their main demand to reduce player salaries to 50 percent of revenue.

"It looks similar to the proposal given earlier," free agent outfielder Brett Butler said of the new offer.

Still, owners hoped it would prompt players to make a productive counterproposal. In their last

10TH ANNIVERSARY

Iowa women renew rivalry with Buckeyes

Mike Triplett

The Daily Iowan

When the Ohio State women's basketball team came to town 10 years ago today, an NCAA-record 22,157 fans packed Carver-Hawkeye Arena to watch the Buckeyes defeat Iowa 56-47.

Chances are slim that 22,000 fans will be in attendance when the teams meet again tonight. No biggie, though. The Hawkeyes will just be happy with a win.

Tipoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

The Hawkeyes (7-11, 3-5 in the Big Ten) will then travel to Indiana Sunday afternoon and attempt to pick up their first road win of the season.

The Buckeyes (13-6, 6-3) are in the midst of a four-game winning streak and are led by Katie Smith, the coaches' preseason choice as the Big Ten's top player. Stringer credited Smith, as well as point guard Marcie Alberts and center Peggy Evans.

"We're gearing up real tough for them," Iowa coach C. Vivian Stringer said. "Katie Smith is always outstanding and their point guard, Alberts, is quicker than anyone we will play this year."

"They stunned Purdue at their home court and they stunned (Big Ten leader) Penn St."

Smith is averaging 22.6 points and 6.3 rebounds per game this season. She also leads the team with 3.8 assists per game.

Evans has tallied 16.3 points per game, as well as a team-high 7.1 rebounds. Alberts is averaging 3.1 assists per game.

Tonight's game is the only meeting between these two teams this season. Last year, the Hawkeyes won both games against the Buckeyes. But every time these teams meet, it promises to be interesting.

"It's recognized as one of the bigger rivalries," Stringer said. "No matter how poorly we may be doing or no matter how poorly Ohio State may be doing, you can always expect a great, great game."

"We will throw all the scores out the window as we always have."

If Iowa manages to end its slide (one win in the last seven games) tonight, it will face an even tougher test at Indiana Sunday. The Hawkeyes are 0-8 on the road this year.

"We have not proven ourselves to be road warriors," Stringer said. "But I'd be happy with taking care of business at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. And then to win at Indiana would be a real big boost."

Vivian Stringer

Iowa will get its first rematch of the year. Earlier this season, the Hawkeyes beat Indiana 60-55 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"Indiana has always been a difficult place to play," Stringer said. "And, yeah, there will be the revenge factor. But we won't even try to bring that into the game, though I'm sure the Indiana coach will."

"The second time around we should know the team better. I'm anxious to see what we've learned. It would really go a long way for us if we could handle that kind of situation."

The Hoosiers (14-5, 4-5) are coming off of a one-point win at Michigan last weekend. This time around, they will look to leading scorer Lisa Furlin, who did not play against Iowa earlier this year.

Furlin, a junior forward, is leading the Hoosiers with 18.3 points per game. Also looking to make a big impact will be senior forward Shirley Bryant. Bryant leads Indiana with 9.8 rebounds per game to go with her 15.9 points.

In both games, Iowa will look for a variety of big contributions. So far this season, senior Tia Jackson and freshman Tiffany Gooden have provided most of the scoring, while freshman Tangela Smith is the top rebounder and shot-blocker.

Gooden is averaging 12 points per game (16.4 in the Big Ten), while Jackson is averaging 11.6 (11.5 Big Ten).

"I'd be happy with taking care of business at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. And then to win at Indiana would be a real big boost."

Vivian Stringer, Iowa women's basketball coach

Smith has pulled down 8.1 rebounds per game in Big Ten play. She also leads the team with 30 blocks in eight games. Smith, third on the team in scoring with 9.4 points per Big Ten game, has blocked at least three shots in the 12 of the last 16 games.

Her 2.94 block-per-game average is first in the Big Ten, and her 2.9 overall block-per-game average is sixth in the nation.

Fans attending tonight's and all home games will get the chance to be brought onto the court at halftime to shoot for $50,000.

Two fans are selected to shoot three half-court shots. Anyone who makes two of them wins the money.

Iowa's next home games are next Friday and Sunday against Michigan State and Purdue.

Penn State relies on defensive prowess

David Schwartz

The Daily Iowan

Two years ago, a basketball matchup between Penn State and Iowa would have been a no-brainer. Penn State was new to the Big Ten Conference; Iowa had a future NBA center in Acie Earl.

Times have changed. The Nittany Lions (12-4, 4-3) have adjusted well to the rigorous Big Ten schedule, and have become one of the conference's premier defensive teams.

Penn State has held its opponents to less than 65 points per game, tops in the Big Ten. Iowa, at just under 77 points per game, leads the Big Ten in scoring.

"Come Saturday we play at Penn State on national TV and we'll try to get ourselves together and make a good showing," guard Kevin Skil-

Wildcats serve as tuneup for Iowa

Shannon Stevens

The Daily Iowan

It's been a rough early season for the Northwestern wrestling team, and a date with top-ranked Iowa probably won't cure many of their ills.

When the Wildcats invade Carver-Hawkeye Arena Saturday night, they will need more than a strong performance out of all-American Rohan Gardner to defeat the soaring Hawkeyes. Northwestern (4-5) has lost four of its last five matches and is only 1-5 against Big Ten opponents.

Iowa (11-0) appears to be almost invincible this season. The Hawkeyes are coming off a 24-12 victory over Minnesota and have four wrestlers currently ranked No. 1 at their respective weight

Senior John Amaechi, averaging 16.5 points and 10.4 rebounds per game, leads the Lions' attack. Amaechi is second in the Big Ten in rebounding and blocks, and first with a 61.5 field-goal percentage.

If Iowa's inside defense during Wednesday night's 79-74 loss to Illinois was a preview of things to come, Amaechi can expect to have a big afternoon. The Hawkeyes allowed Illinois forward Robert Bennett to shoot nine-for-nine from the floor. Six of his field goals were tive counterproposal. In their last few meetings, the sides have ridiculed each other's plans.

At the main meeting of the day, the owners proposed a two-tiered tax: 75 percent on the amount of payrolls between $35 million and $42 million and 100 percent on the amount over $42 million.

The Detroit Tigers, under the owners' method of calculation, had the top 1994 payroll at nearly $56.8 million. The new plan, if fully implemented last season, would have cost them an additional tax of more than $20 million.

SEARCH IS OVER

Eagles nab 49er assistant coach

John F. Bonafatti
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Ray Rhodes, an assistant coach who won five Super Bowls with the San Francisco 49ers, was hired Thursday as head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles.

The appointment ends a six-week coaching search by the Eagles that involved at least five candidates.

Rhodes, 43, in his second stint as defensive coordinator for the 49ers, replaces Rich Kotite, who was fired Dec. 26.

He becomes the NFL's second black head coach, joining Dennis Green of the Minnesota Vikings. Earlier in the day, Art Shell, who is black, was fired as coach of the Los Angeles Raiders.

With the departure of Rhodes, the 49ers have lost their offensive and defensive coordinators four days after winning their record fifth Super Bowl.

Mike Shanahan was hired as head of the Denver Broncos on Tuesday.

Thursday's announcement came as Eagles fans began wondering if rookie owner Jeff Lurie would ever find a new coach.

Associated Press

Ray Rhodes, an assistant coach with the San Francisco 49ers, goes over some charts with his squad last summer in Rocklin, Calif. Rhodes was hired Thursday as head coach of the Eagles.

The candidates Lurie considered included former Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson; Dick Vermeil, the only coach to take the Eagles to the Super Bowl; Gary Stevens, the offense and quarterbacks coach for the Miami Dolphins; Mike Shanahan, the Denver Broncos' new coach; and Dennis Erickson, the Seattle Seahawks' new coach.

Others reportedly on Lurie's short list included Tony Dungy, the defensive coordinator for the Vikings; and Paul Hackett, Kansas City Chiefs offensive coordinator.

Rhodes, who also interviewed for the coaching job in St. Louis, inherits a team that went 7-9 and failed to make the playoffs.

With the 49ers, he won four Super Bowl titles as assistant defensive backs coach and defensive backs coach from 1981 to 1991. After two seasons as defensive coordinator in Green Bay, he returned to San Francisco as defensive coordinator this season.

Rhodes interviewed for head coaching positions in Denver and New England after the 1992 season.

Rhodes was drafted out of the University of Tulsa by the New York Giants in 1974.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

NCAA clears Kentucky of any wrong-doing

Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky players didn't make a recruiting pitch when visiting a top prospect in a locker room, and that was the deciding factor in concluding no violation of recruiting rules occurred, an NCAA spokesman said.

"Coming into the locker room, ipso facto, isn't necessarily a recruiting activity," said Stephen Mallonee, a director of the NCAA's Legislative Services department. "You have to look at the facts."

A report by Kentucky on the locker room visit by several Kentucky players to prospect Ron Mercer was the basis for the NCAA's judgment, Mallonee said.

There was no evidence that a Kentucky coach had asked or directed any of the players to speak with Mercer in the locker room and no recruiting took place during the visit, which was estimated to have lasted 10 minutes, Mallonee said.

Kentucky compliance officer Sandy Bell had given the school's report to Mallonee on Monday. The report was examined by the NCAA on Wednesday.

The staff of the Legislative Services department concluded that NCAA rules do not specifically forbid college athletes from visiting prospects in a high school locker room, Mallonee said.

The college athletes can even make a recruiting pitch if the contact with a high school prospect is "unavoidable," and "incidental," he added.

Mallonee cautioned that the ruling was not a green light for visits to high school locker rooms. He said each instance puts the burden of proof on the college to show that no violation occurred.

Smith makes his mark on ACC

Associated Press

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — There's no longer any question of just how good Maryland center Joe Smith is. The only mystery surrounding the sensational sophomore is will Joe go pro, or will he stick around for another season or two?

Smith solidified his status as a possible lottery pick Wednesday night with a 29-point, 21-rebound effort in the fifth-ranked Terrapins' 71-62 win over Virginia.

"Unfortunately, it was on national television," noted Maryland coach Gary Williams, who would prefer to keep Smith all to himself.

Smith hardly needed the publicity. He came to Maryland from Norfolk, Va. as a shy 18-year-old, and now it's as if his face is on a wanted poster.

After every game, several agents and NBA scouts lurk outside the dressing room hoping to chat with the 6-foot-10 star. For the first time in school history, security measures have been taken to keep away autograph seekers.

His future is of such interest that Maryland officials and Smith have set up rules governing post-game interviews: no questions about the NBA. The policy was strictly enforced Wednesday night as Smith patiently dealt with wave after wave of reporters.

Smith has said all along that he will make a decision after the season. Until then, the speculation will continue.

MIKE WHITE NAMED NEW HEAD COACH

Raiders give Shell the boot

John Nadel
Associated Press

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — Saying he wants to win the Super Bowl and needs a new coach to do so, Los Angeles Raiders owner Al Davis fired coach Art Shell on Thursday and replaced him with Mike White.

Shell, a member of the Raiders organization for 27 years and the Pro Football Hall of Fame, had been the coach since 1989, becoming the first black head coach in pro football's modern era.

Shell's dismissal was anticipated when the Raiders failed to make the playoffs after being dubbed preseason favorites to win the AFC. They finished 9-7, a 19-9 loss to Kansas City on Dec. 24 ending their playoff hopes.

"We want to win the Super Bowl," said Davis, whose team was the last AFC team to accomplish the feat in 1984. "I felt if we were going to get there, we would have to change the environment. I offered this job to no one else."

"I've known about Mike White for 40 years. I watched him grow, become an assistant coach. His history, his records, are tremendously unique. I think he comes extremely qualified, he has a vibrant personality."

Davis wouldn't divulge terms of White's contract, saying only, "It's not for one year and not for five."

Davis said he told Shell of the change Wednesday night.

"I'm going to look for another job. I want to stay in coaching."

Art Shell, former Raiders head coach

"We spent an hour, two hours, reminiscing," Davis said. "He was one of the great contributors we have ever had. Art is a part of my life. He's going to do well, he's going to be OK."

Shell spoke briefly before leaving Raider headquarters more than an hour before the news conference.

"I'm going to look for another job," he said. "I want to stay in coaching."

It's been reported Shell might hook on with the Miami Dolphins as offensive line coach.

White takes over a team that has managed to win only two playoff games since its third and most recent Super Bowl victory.

"This is a challenge, believe me," he said. "I've prepared for this all my life. I think if I have a skill, it's administratively. I intend to inventory the past."

"I've been in these kind of job situations before. It's obvious that Al Davis expects and demands success. We feel equal to that task. The most important thing is I feel prepared, I'm very grateful for this opportunity."

White joined the Raiders as an assistant in 1990 to work with quarterback Jay Schroeder. He was re-assigned to coach the offensive line in 1993.

Before coming to the Raiders, White was assistant with Bill Walsh at Stanford and Cal, and worked for him as an assistant when Walsh was head coach of the 49ers.

Hawks look for help at home

When you only get one chance to do something, you better do it right.

That's the philosophy the Iowa women's track team will follow when they host their only home meet of the track season at the Iowa Invitational on Saturday. The field will include Missouri, Purdue, Iowa, Western Illinois, and Augustana College. The meet is scheduled to begin at 11:00 a.m. in the UI Recreation Building.

Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said he is excited about the team's first scoring meet of the season and is anticipating a dogfight.

"I don't think there is a big difference between the teams," Hassard said. "Some of the teams are more balanced than the others. Other teams are weak in some areas, but stronger in others. I think it's going to be a good competition and it should be pretty close."

Hassard said the Hawkeyes will employ different strategies to overcome weaknesses in some of the jumping and hurdling events.

"I think we should stack up well against all the teams in the middle distance and distance events and we'll hit Missouri hard in the sprints because they aren't as strong there," Hassard said.

The runners are anxious to compete in front of the home crowd.

"I think it's exciting to run at home. It's nice to have a chance to do well at home, when people come out to support you," sophomore Briana Benning said.

Men's track and field

The Iowa men's track team is hoping the confines of the UI Recreation Building will become friendly this weekend.

Coming off of two losses last weekend in Minnesota, the Hawkeyes are looking for a much-needed confidence-building victory when they host Missouri and Western Illinois on Saturday.

Coach Ted Wheeler doesn't see too many weak spots when he looks at the Missouri roster.

"They've got a pretty well-rounded team with a good balance of athletes through all the events," Wheeler said. "Their weaknesses really don't exist."

But the Hawkeyes are not about to roll over for the Tigers.

"If we get a little help from our middle distance, we should be very competitive," Wheeler said.

Wheeler expects four athletes in particular to be very competitive this weekend.

"Right now, I'd say that Andre Morris, Chad Ohly, Chris Davis and Edward Rozell are running the best for us," Wheeler said.

Leading the charge is Andre Morris. Morris, a team co-captain along with Chad Ohly, took second in the 200- and 400-meter dashes last weekend.

"Right now, Andre Morris is running really well," Wheeler said after last weekend's meet.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

"He took two seconds against outstanding athletes and a ran a good leg of the 4x400 relay."

Field events are scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. on Saturday, with running events starting at 11:30 a.m.

Men's swimming

When two powerhouses collide, something has to give.

The Iowa men's swim team hopes it will be Ohio State that gives in when they travel to Columbus this Saturday.

Both teams come into the meet undefeated.

"This will be a big meet for them," coach Glenn Patton said. "It's the first time we've had a dual meet against each other since (Watley) became head coach there. I would imagine it's kind of a big meet for him."

The winner puts itself in the drivers seat to finish the Big Ten season undefeated and takes some added confidence into the Big Ten Championships February 23-26 in Minneapolis.

"We would like to make significant progress toward our final preparation for the Big Ten Championships. We only have one dual meet left after this and then it's the Big Ten Championships."

Saturday's meet with Ohio State is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. The meet at Northwestern on Sunday is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Women's gymnastics

The Iowa women's gymnastics team travels to Cedar Falls Sunday for a matchup with UNI.

Diane DeMarco's squad is coming off a loss last Saturday to fourth-ranked Michigan, 194-188.575.

Iowa (0-2) is led by junior Kim Baker. Baker took second in the all-around with a score of 38.67, finishing .03 points behind Michigan's Kelly Carfora.

In addition to her second-place finish, Baker broke her own school record on the vault with a score of 9.90, and tied for third on the uneven bars with a 9.55.

Women's swimming

The Iowa women's swimming team wraps up its regular season this weekend when it travels to Carbondale, Ill., to face the Southern Illinois Salukis.

The Hawkeyes are looking to gain some momentum with the Big Ten championships coming up on Feb. 16-18.

Coach Pete Kennedy said he just hopes his team stays healthy.

"We got some kids fighting the flu right now," Kennedy said. "Hopefully it won't spread to the whole team but right now we're a little depleted."

Southern Illinois stands 6-6 in dual meet action this year.

"Southern Illinois has an excellent squad. They came up here last year and stole one from us so I know we will be up for this meet," Kennedy said.

Men's tennis

The Iowa men's tennis team opens its spring season Sunday when it hosts Northern Illinois at 1:30 p.m. in the UI Recreation Building.

The Hawkeyes will be short-handed, though, playing possibly without its top three players. Coach Steve Houghton said this is not the way he hoped to open the spring season.

"Northern Illinois has a very strong squad this year," Houghton said. "The injury situation doesn't help us either. If (Bryan) Crowley, (Bob) Zumph and (Marcus) Eckstrand don't play we could be in some real trouble."

Northern Illinois is led by Marc Engel and Sunu Thomas, both of whom are ranked in the top 20 in the country in singles and doubles play.

Iowa is coming off a rough outing when they dropped 12 of 16 matches at the Big Ten Singles Championship last week. Houghton said he hopes for a better effort this time out.

"We have the talent to win the match so its just a matter of coming out and putting in the effort to get the job done. If we come out flat like we did last week it's going to be a long afternoon," Houghton said.

Jazz guard John Stockton, holding his infant daughter, Lindsay, accepts congratulations for making his 9,922nd assist Wednesday in Salt Lake City. Stockton's assist broke Magic Johnson's all-time record.

Stockton surpasses Magic

Bob Mims

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — John Stockton's record-setting assist was almost predestined: a crisp pass from near the foul line to the corner for a jump shot by Karl Malone.

But Malone's 18-footer, which gave Stockton his 9,922nd career assist with 6:23 left in the first half against Denver on Wednesday night, nearly didn't happen.

A minute before, when Stockton's pass to Tom Chambers tied Magic Johnson's NBA record of 9,921 assists, Malone — the recipient of so many of Stockton's passes over the past decade — was on the bench.

"All the guys were looking at me and sort of saying, 'Why don't you go check in?' And I thought, 'I'm not the coach, I don't make those decisions,'" said Malone, who had 30 points in Utah's 129-88 victory over the Nuggets.

Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said he had good reason for cutting short Malone's stay on the bench: the crowd of 20,000 at Delta Center.

"I wasn't going to put Karl back in the game, but the people jumped on me pretty hard. This is a pretty big crowd and I couldn't fight them all off," Sloan said.

Seconds later, Malone was back on the floor — and Stockton's record-breaking pass came on the next play.

Stockton, who finished with 12 points, 16 assists and no turnovers, was thrilled Malone was the recipient of his record-breaker.

In all, Malone accounted for six of his fellow All-Star's assists.

"Being the person that he is, and the player that he is, I'm glad it worked out the way it did," Stockton said. "You never want to point to one guy and say I hope it's him, but now at this point, he had been responsible for so many of them, it does seem fitting."

"When I got the basketball, I didn't want to take a weird shot," said Malone, who finished with 30 points on 13-for-19 shooting and 14 rebounds.

IOWA STATE

Cyclones hurting for practice time

Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

Wouldn't you know it? Just when Coach Tim Floyd and his Iowa State basketball team get two days between games, they can't even use one of them.

The 11th-ranked Cyclones had only one day to get ready for each of their last two games and lost both, 80-71 to No. 18 Missouri at home Monday night and 79-78 at No. 24 Oklahoma on Wednesday night.

There's a two-day break before the next game, Saturday at No. 3 Kansas, but there's also a hitch.

"We need time and the unfortunate thing is we're not going to get an extra day before the Kansas game because the NCAA requires us to take a day off during the week," Floyd said Thursday. "Today is our day off. So we've only got a day for Kansas, also."

Still, two days between games is twice as good as one, even if a team can't practice on one of them. The players get a chance to rest and regroup and the coaches have more time to work on a defensive game plan, which is where the Cyclones have been short changed, Floyd said.

"I feel better about it," he said. "We were prostituting ourselves as far as our approach to playing the game by playing a lot of zone because of lack of preparation time."

"And you don't do that against outstanding basketball teams like Oklahoma and Missouri, and they both played terrific against us. We were unable to stop either team on the defensive end. A lot of that has to do with how well both those teams played and how well prepared they were.

"But we played 20 minutes of zone both games and that's not something we do very well."

Missouri shot 72 percent (13-for-18) against Iowa State in the second half and a season-high 59.6 percent for the game. Oklahoma shot 51 percent and got a career-high 22 points from reserve Dion Barnes.

"Oklahoma throws probably 20 different looks at you offensively," Floyd said. "There's just no way for guys to retain that in a two-hour practice the day before a ball game."

In addition to turning up the defense, Iowa State (17-4, 3-3 Big Eight) needs to get more help for Fred Hoiberg, who has carried the offense the last two games.

Hoiberg scored 29 points against Missouri, making a school record eight 3-point shots, and had 30 Wednesday night. Fellow seniors Loren Meyer and Julius Michalik both had just 12 points at Oklahoma and both managed only one basket in the second half of the Missouri game.

"We need other guys to step up and we're going to continue to emphasize that," Floyd said. "It's not about one guy ever. It never has been the way we do things."

"Missouri did a tremendous job on Loren in the second half. Give them credit for that. Oklahoma did a nice job of showing great awareness where Loren was. But we need to do some things to get those other guys involved more."

Kansas will be the second of three straight road games for Iowa State, which plays at Missouri next Wednesday.

And while it's possible the Cyclones could lose all three and return home with a four-game losing streak, Floyd said there's no reason to panic if that should happen.

This is not a make-or-break stretch, he insists.

"We just have to keep playing hard and keep playing the best we can and be realistic," he said.

PACIFIC OPEN

Pierce's winning ways continue in Tokyo

Associated Press

TOKYO — Mary Pierce, in her first match since winning the Australian Open champion last week-end, led the advance to the quarterfinals of the Toray Pan Pacific Open with a victory Thursday.

Lindsay Davenport and top-seeded Conchita Martinez of Spain also moved along to the quarterfinals.

Second-seeded Pierce, a Canadian who lives in Florida, defeated

Japanese wild-card entry Kyoko Nagatsuka 6-4, 6-0 in one hour.

Wimbledon champion Martinez outlasted Yayuk Basuki of Indonesia 6-2, 5-7, 6-2 and Davenport trounced Japan's Mana Endo 6-2, 6-1.

Japan's popular Naoko Sawamatsu, who made it to the quarterfinals of the Australian Open, came from behind to upset fourth-seeded Natasha Zvereva of Belarus 1-6, 6-3, 6-3.

PORTLAND COACH

Carlesimo has no regrets

Bob Baum

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Halfway through his first season as an NBA coach, P.J. Carlesimo isn't second-guessing his decision to leave the college game even though his Portland Trail Blazers are performing far below his expectations.

Brought from Seton Hall to inject some life into the aging, often unmotivated Trail Blazers, Carlesimo has been frustrated by his team's maddening inconsistency. He's in a particularly sour mood this week after consecutive home losses to New Jersey and San Antonio.

Eventually, Carlesimo believes things will turn around for the Blazers.

"I'm gonna be very happy," he said. "I'm not going to be unhappy. But now I'm unhappy with our record. We're not doing as good as we think we should be."

The Blazers are 22-20 and mired in fifth place in the Pacific Division. They're 0-10 against the teams with the four best records in the Western Conference — Phoenix, Utah, Seattle and San Antonio. They're 5-14 in games decided by seven points or less, and they're 13-9 at home.

One night the team will play

NBA

Ewing, Grant earn top league honors

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks and Brian Grant of the Sacramento Kings won NBA monthly awards on Thursday.

Ewing earned Player of the Month honors, averaging 24.1 points and 12.6 rebounds as the Knicks went 13-2 during the month of January.

He shot .518 from the field, making 143 of 276 field goal attempts, and .811 on 73-for-90 on free throws.

In 15 games during the month, Ewing scored 20 or more points 12 times and 30 or more points three times. He was in double figures for scoring and rebounding in 13 games.

Grant, the Rookie of the Month, averaged 16.8 points, 9.7 rebounds and 2.1 blocks in 15 games.

Chosen eighth in the NBA draft last June, Grant helped the Kings to a franchise-best 9-4 record for the month.

well, especially on defense. The next night they'll play horribly.

"The truth is we're still that fragile," Carlesimo said. "We're halfway through now and we're still that way. I keep using the same analogy. It's like trying to get up a hill. We keep going up and back."

"We've been more consistent with our effort on the road, and as to why I have no clue."

P.J. Carlesimo, Trail Blazers head coach

Some of the worst examples have come at home, where the Blazers were virtually invincible not long ago.

"We've been more consistent with our effort on the road, and as to why I have no clue," he said.

Through it all, the intense coach prowls the sidelines, continually shouting instructions. He goes out of his way to leave the referees alone, though, perhaps in an attempt to shed the Blazers of their image as one of the league's leading whiners. He's yet to get a technical foul as an NBA coach.

The players think he might be a little too intense.

"I think he's a quick learner, but I think in the NBA you've got to learn to pace yourself and I don't know if he's learned to pace himself yet," Portland's Buck Williams said. "Not to pace yourself in terms of wins or losses, but pace yourself mentally as to how you approach the game."

Carlesimo insists he doesn't read the papers and hasn't seen the criticism that's begun to surface about his game coaching ability, particularly in the final minutes of close games.

"I'm unaware and unconcerned about criticism," Carlesimo said. "I took criticism in college and, if I go to high school, I'll take criticism in high school. When you don't win, you take criticism. That goes with the territory."

The players seem to like Carlesimo personally but whether he has their respect is uncertain.

"I think he's gaining respect from the players," Williams said. "It's not going to happen overnight."

Clyde Drexler, who has had run-ins with coaches earlier in his career, said he's reserving judgment on Carlesimo's coaching ability.

"I've gotten along with him fairly well and I've got nothing bad to say about him," Drexler said. "But as far as his coaching ability, I think I'll wait and give him a full year."

Writer scheduled to stop in I.C. for 'Fermata' reading

Greg Stump
The Daily Iowan

"Don't shake this man's hand."
That's just one of the headlines that Nicholson Baker's funny and provocative novel "The Fermata" inspired amid a wellspring of controversy when it was released a year ago.

Ignore the suggestion Saturday, when "Live from Prairie Lights" provides the opportunity to listen to Baker's read from his novel at 4 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium.

His fifth and latest book is the story of Arno Strine, a 35-year-old office temp who uses his extraordinary ability to stop time — which Arno refers to as the "fermata" — to undress and examine women, completely unbeknownst to them. The ethical turpitude and artistic questions raised by the main character's actions make the book Baker's most intriguing work yet.

Initially, Baker resisted the idea of going on a reading tour for "The Fermata" but changed his mind "after a year had passed and the book had time to be digested," he said.

"I think it takes some time, and it takes the transmutation into paperback form for a book to stabilize in the public's perception," he said. "So far (the tour) is turning out to be a lot of fun. But after all the forced self-scrutiny that goes on all day long, by the end of it the last thing you want to do is be introspective."

Baker described the process of writing "The Fermata," which stems from his boyhood fantasies about freezing time to disrobe his fourth-grade teacher, as "wildly liberating."

"There's a certain danger there," he said. "There's no way of knowing in advance who will love it or hate it because each reader is different. ... If it isn't a funny book, if I haven't been able to transform it and come up with new synonyms for the old appendages, then I feel I've failed."

If there's a problem with "The Fermata," it's the possibility of overdoing on Baker's highly concentrated style. His often brilliant insights are perhaps best enjoyed in small portions, played out over 300 pages, the premise of the book threatens at times to wear thin.

Nicholson Baker will read from "The Fermata" Saturday at 4 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium. Admission is free.

Prairie Lights Readings

A number of noted writers, including W.P. Kinsella and Gloria Steinem, will be part of Prairie Lights' "Live from Prairie Lights" reading schedule this spring.
All readings are at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., at 8 p.m., unless otherwise noted. The readings are also broadcast on WSUI (AM 910) and WOI (AM 640). Selected events from the spring schedule:

SATURDAY, FEB. 4 "Vox" author Nicholson Baker will read from "The Fermata" at 4 p.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium.	WEDNESDAY, FEB. 22 "Shoeless Joe" author W.P. Kinsella will read from "The Cornbelt League" in Shambaugh Auditorium.
TUESDAY, FEB. 7 Charles D'Ambrosio, winner of the Paris Review's 1993 Aga Kahn Fiction Prize, will read from "Point."	THURSDAY, FEB. 23 Journalist Mark Danner will read from "The Massacre at El Mozote" in Shambaugh Auditorium.
WEDNESDAY, FEB. 8 The director of Creighton University's writing program, Brett Spencer, will read from his novel "The Lost Son."	FRIDAY, FEB. 24 Former Iowan and traveling journalist Bill Bryson will read from "Made in America."
FRIDAY, FEB. 10 Knox College poet-in-residence Sheryl St. Germain will read from her new book, "How Heavy the Breath of God."	SATURDAY, FEB. 25 Martial arts expert Mark Salzman will read from his new novel, "The Soloist."
THURSDAY, FEB. 16 NPR correspondent Tom Gjelten will read from "Sarajevo Daily" in Shambaugh Auditorium.	MONDAY, FEB. 27 Greg Williams will read from his autobiography, "Life on the Color Line," in Buchanan Auditorium.
FRIDAY, FEB. 17 Ms. magazine founder Gloria Steinem will read from her latest book, "Moving Beyond Words," in Macbride Auditorium.	TUESDAY, MARCH 7 Critic William Gass will read from "The Tunnel" in Shambaugh Auditorium.
	THURSDAY, MARCH 9 Writers' Workshop alumna Bonnie Friedman will read from "Writing Past Dark."

Steinem headlines Prairie Lights events

Greg Stump
The Daily Iowan

Noted feminist author Gloria Steinem and baseball novelist W.P. Kinsella highlight this spring's "Live from Prairie Lights" reading schedule, which began Jan. 26 and runs through March 31.

"We look for international and national book authors out on tours and local authors that we think will have a listening audience," Prairie Lights owner Jim Harris said. "We don't get everybody that we'd like all the time, but we get a lot of them."

More than half of this spring's featured authors will appear at the bookstore, which seats approximately 100 people in the upstairs reading area; the rest will read at the larger Shambaugh, Macbride or Buchanan auditoriums.

"It's basically the old show-business adage: Book the hall for the act," Harris said. "In the case of Gloria Steinem, for example, you're going to have a lot of people that will want to see it."

Harris also singled out former UI law Professor Greg Williams' appearance on Feb. 27 as one of particular interest to himself and the UI community. Williams will read from his autobiography, "Life on the Color Line," which examines the changes he experienced in 1954 upon learning that his father — who had been passing as white — was actually black.

"It's a real interesting book," said Harris, who mentioned that Williams was set to appear on "The Oprah Winfrey Show" and also with Tom Brokaw. "There's going to be a big blitz for it all over (the media)."

"Live from Prairie Lights" — which this year has already featured novelist Kyoko Mori and Civil War historian Steve Meyer — is sponsored by Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., and hosted by Julie Englander. The show is produced and broadcast by WSUI (AM 910), a UI-sponsored radio station. Admission is free, and all readings begin at 8 p.m. on the upper level of Prairie Lights unless otherwise noted.
