Man loses wrong leg after hospital goofs

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Just before he went into surgery, Willie King joked with the hospital staff to be sure they knew which foot they were going to amputate.

They got it wrong.
"Now he'll be without any legs at all," his brother, John Hollis, said Tuesday.

King, a 51-year-old diabetic, was listed in good condition at University Community Hospital, where he's recovering from the Feb. 20 operation that cost him his left leg from the knee down.

The hospital is investigating the mistake, spokesman John Andreas said. The state Department of Professional Regulation and the Health Care Administration will also investigate.

"Willie never would have consented to have the right leg removed if he didn't feel he had a good left leg the rest of his life," said his lawyer, Peter Brudny.

"He's very depressed about it,"

Prosecutors said the defense has been hiding a July interview with maid Rosa Lopez in which she never mentioned O.J. Simpson's white Bronco. Defense attorney Carl Douglas said that was an innocent oversight.

Judge Lance Ito postponed Lopez's next appearance until Thursday, to give the prosecution time to review a newly disclosed tape of the July interview.

Speculation continued over the fate of a juror. Ito is likely to dismiss a 46-year-old black man from Long Beach who sources said concealed a past incident of domestic abuse.

SAFEWALK back on track

Sheba Wheeler
The Daily Iowan

Students living in UI residence halls who are afraid to walk home alone late at night now have a safe alternative.

SAFEWALK, a student-run nighttime volunteer escort program for occupants of all UI residence halls, resumes its services tonight from 7 p.m. to midnight.

The program, which used to provide service only to residence halls on the west side of the Iowa River, suspended operations during the fall semester due to a lack of office space. However, the Women's Resource and Action Center is now providing office space, telephone services and volunteer training to help revitalize the program.

UI sophomore Heidi Foadre, who lives in Hillcrest Residence Hall, said she plans to use the program and become a SAFEWALK volunteer because it offers safety through numbers and a sense of comfort for those who are afraid to walk alone at night.

as you walk, you hear things behind you, and it makes you jump. I think women and men are just not comfortable walking around alone, but SAFEWALK helps give you a sense of comfort."

Volunteers will walk students to UI Hospitals and Clinics, fraternity and sorority houses, parking lots, athletics complexes and to downtown Iowa City businesses.

Williams, Johnson sail to victory

Despite meager turnout, juniors win in landslide

Sara Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

Garnering more of the vote than their three opponents combined, juniors Tim Williams and Jeremy Johnson were elected UI Student Government president and vice president Tuesday night.

The Williams-Johnson ticket won the election with 901 votes, or 61.8 percent. Their closest competitors, senior Christopher Styles and junior Nicole Ungeran, received 262 votes. Juniors Benjamin Bonte and Laura Carstensen were next in line with 148 votes, followed by sophomore Mark Sands and junior Lucas Greenwalt, who received 147 votes.

There was a 3 percent voter turnout. In all, 1,458 votes were cast — 943 fewer than last year.

Johnson said he was surprised at the outcome and the margin of victory.

"It's amazing," Johnson said. "I've been worried about this for a month now, so it's so strange it's over. It's great."

Changing students' negative feelings toward student government is a top priority, Williams said.

"It's about changing perceptions, changing attitudes about student government," he said. "It's about bringing it back to the students."

Student involvement will be vital to the new administration's success, Williams said.

"We have a lot of energy and great ideas, but we need student input and involvement," Williams said.

Runner-up Styles said while a victory would have been nice, he is satisfied by the outcome.

"I am 70 percent relieved and 30 percent disappointed. Now I feel like I'm going to get more done as a senator than I would as president," Styles said. "But I lost to good people."

Styles said his biggest disappointment is not being able to implement his proposed four channels of communication.

"Of course, I regret not winning because I won't be doing the things for the student body that I wanted to," Styles said. "But it's going to be nice to have them in office."

Vice presidential candidate Greenwalt said he was happy for the new administration.

"They ran an excellent campaign, and they are excellent people," he said. "I'd be lying if I said I wasn't upset, but I plan to still be involved with student government, like with United Students of Iowa."

Greenwalt was not surprised by the low voter turnout.

"That's typical. From the very onset, I expected low turnout," he said. "There wasn't a lot of controversy like in the past to increase voter turnout, and it was

Budget amendment vote put off

Legislation shy of passage as parties woo swing Democrat

David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In an atmosphere of excruciating tension, Senate Republicans forced an overnight delay Tuesday for a final vote on a balanced-budget amendment to the Constitution. One vote shy, GOP leaders struggled to salvage the centerpiece of their drive to shrink government.

Both sides wooed one wavering Democrat: Kent Conrad of North Dakota. After feverish negotiations, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole decided to postpone the vote rather than risk defeat.

Senators said the discussions focused on a Republican offer to place Social Security trust funds off-limits to deficit-cutters gradually over several years.

"This is a sad spectacle," said the amendment's principal foe, Democrat Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

"This has every appearance of a sleazy, tawdry effort to win a victory at the cost of amending the Constitution."

But Dole said the vote was the most important in the careers of many members of the Senate and that majority Republicans have every right to see if they can find the votes to prevail. "And I intend to do that," he said.

His announcement stunned a chamber packed with senators ready to cast their votes after an epic monthlong battle on the Senate floor. Aides ringed the back of the chamber, and tourists peered down from the gallery as the final showdown was unexpectedly put off.

The decision to delay was by voice vote.

President Clinton, who opposes the amendment, watched on television as events unfolded on the Senate floor.

BONANZA BURGLARY 'VERY SIMILAR'

Happy Joe's theft linked to 12 others

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

Coralville police have found a link between two local armed robberies in which victims were left in walk-in restaurant coolers and managers were knocked out cold. The two suspects also may be connected to at least 12 other robberies throughout eastern Iowa and western Illinois, police said.

The gun-wielding, bandana-wearing duo may be responsible for the heist at Happy Joe's Pizzeria & Ice Cream Parlor, 225 S. Gilbert St., on Sunday and for a similar incident at Bonanza Family Restaurant, Coralville, last November.

Happy Joe's was robbed at about 1 a.m. Sunday by two African-American gunmen wearing dark clothing and bandanas over their faces, according to reports by the Iowa City Police Department and the victims. The suspects were described by employees as being about 6 feet tall with medium builds.

After one of the assailants struck Happy Joe's manager Todd Danneman on the head with a gun, the employees were forced into a cooler, and the thieves made off with an undisclosed amount of cash from the restaurant and from employees' wallets.

A similar heist occurred Nov. 20 at Bonanza, when a manager was struck on the back of the head and all the victims were ated from the UI with a bachelor's degree in English last December and has been spending his weekends behind the wheel since then.

The alarm wakes Haddad at 5 a.m. on a typical Saturday morning, and he punches in at the cab depot 30 minutes later. No breaks are scheduled during his 12-hour shift, and if hunger pangs stab at his stomach, he picks up a snack at a fast-food restaurant.

"I'll usually go to Wendy's and get a bacon cheeseburger or some fries," Haddad said. "I usually buy lots of dollar items so I don't need to worry about change. Anything that's a buck."

drunks have ever thrown up in the back of his cab.

"There's a $25 fee for vomiting in the cab," Haddad said. "It doesn't pay for cleaning expenses; we usually do that ourselves, but it deters people from doing it."

If a passenger gets too rowdy and out of control, Yellow Cab drivers threaten to call the Iowa City police, who cruise up in their blue "cabs."

The going rate for a lift these days at Yellow Cab is a minimum of $2.75 for the first mile and 75 cents for each additional mile. Haddad said the busiest and most lucrative time of the year for the company is winter, when snow and ice deter most people from braving the roads and sidewalks.

Despite the early mornings, hectic pace and occasional drunks, Haddad said he likes his job and can usually navigate the city without checking a map. He delivered for Godfather's Pizza for two years before he was hired by Yellow Cab and said the knowledge of the city streets he gained from his previous job gave him an advantage.

"I was lucky," he said. "I walked in at the right time."

When Haddad is not cruising the streets of Iowa City, he's practicing his tenor saxophone. A member of the University Concert Band, a good chunk of his time is dedicated to lessons and rehearsals.

Because of his love of music, Haddad enjoys his job all the more. Not only is his station tuned to KCCK, a favorite jazz station, but touring musicians and actors are often lounging in the back of his cab.

"Members of casts and bands usually stay at the Canterbury Inn, and I'll drive them where they need to go," he said. "It's always interesting to meet new people, and the next person to get into my cab is a mystery."

And where Haddad will end up is a mystery. He has dropped clients off at grocery stores, hospitals, bars and in cities as far away as Muscatine.

"Drivers have even gone to Des Moines and Chicago," he said.

At times, Haddad said the person giving him directions is trying to locate a person instead of a destination.

"We've had guys who want to drive by their ex-wife's house or a boyfriend who wants to check up on his girlfriend," he said.

When Haddad's shift is done and the last person has been safely delivered to their destination, he said the last thing he wants to do is take trips, especially with other people.

Haddad said he knows the short cuts of Iowa City by heart and can't stand to be a helpless passenger when friends are needlessly driving out of their way.

"Of course, I hate to tell anyone how to drive," he said.

Actors protest water proposal at public forum

NEW YORK (AP) — Susan Sarandon and a couple of fellow New Yorkers, Christopher Reeve and Alec Baldwin, showed up at a crowded public hearing to oppose changes in state water treatment rules.

The three, joined by environmentalist Robert Kennedy Jr., said a plan aimed at keeping disease-causing parasites out of the city's tap water doesn't go far enough.

"There's no reason to have sewage in our drinking water," Sarandon said Monday.

The plan was proposed by the city Department of Environmental Protection to avoid the need for a costly filtration plant. The proposal would control development, farming and sewage treatment in and around upstate reservoirs.

Sarandon, Reeve and Baldwin said the proposal still allows more than 100 sewage treatment plants to discharge into the region.

A decision on the plan is expected in the spring.

Nabors returns to concert circuit after transplant

HONOLULU (AP) — Jim Nabors is fattened up and ready for the stage, a year after a lifesaving liver transplant.

He's scheduled to sing twice next month — at a telethon in St. Louis and a concert in Phoenix. He also plans to perform at Constitution Hall in Washington in April.

The "Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C." star had the transplant because hepatitis had destroyed his liver.

Nabors, 64, said he has regained the 50 pounds he lost to illness. He said he's back up to 200 pounds and "getting kind of fat."

Last May, a few months after the operation, he sang at the Indianapolis 500.

"You want to feel like a viable person," Nabors said from his beach-front home. "You can't sit looking at the ocean all day."

Singer Lovett crashes motorcycle, cancels shows

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — Lyle Lovett broke his collarbone in a motorcycle accident over the weekend and postponed three concerts in Canada.

Perryscope Concert Productions Ltd. of Vancouver released no details of the accident but said shows in Vancouver on Saturday, Edmonton on March 6 and Winnipeg on March 9 were canceled. They will be held in May.

A Lovett spokeswoman in Los Angeles didn't immediately return a call Tuesday.

CONVOCATION TO National Women's Month to celebrate

Prasanti Kantamneni
The Daily Iowan

Activist Susan B. Anthony, Supreme Court Justice Sandra O'Connor and Ms. magazine editor Gloria Steinem have all struggled for women's rights and equality. Their lives will be celebrated during National Women's Month, which begins today.

National Women's Month named in 1911 to identify and honor women who have made a difference, said UI Associate Professor Florence Babb, chairwoman of UI women's studies program.

"The month focuses on women who have overcome historical odds — significant ways women have participated in education, science, writing, arts and leadership," Babb said.

The month gives women opportunity to celebrate progress, said Monique DiCarlo, director of the Women's Resource and Action Center.

"The importance is to recognize and celebrate the achievements of our foremothers," DiCarlo said. "At the same time, it lets us voice collective concerns — the extent that violence affects women, poverty and racism."

More than 60 activities and programs have been scheduled to celebrate women's achievements. Celebration will kick off at 1 p.m. today with a convocation ceremony in the Main Ballroom of the Union.

UI Professor Ursula Delwos, associate dean of the UI College of Education, and Jael Silling, assistant director of instruction and research for the UI Center for International and Comparative Studies, will be keynote speakers at the ceremony.

Laurie Haag, coordinator of month's events and program assistant at WRAC, said the month represents a variety of interests.

"All of the programs are by, for and about women in our community and represent the great diversity of interests and experiences."

American Cancer Society hopes flower sale blossoms

Devon Alexander
The Daily Iowan

The American Cancer Society is jumping into the spring season a little early with its Daffodil Days sale.

"Since daffodils are the first flower of spring, they symbolize a renewal of life — which cancer patients hope for in their own experiences," said Anne Hesse, a cancer survivor and chairwoman of Daffodil Days.

Daffodil Days, a national event for the American Cancer Society, which has a local branch located at 500 E. Market St., is in its 10th year in Johnson County, said Jana Egeland, ACS district vice president. This year's Daffodil Days will take place March 28-30 and will be a kickoff for April — designated cancer-control month.

Egeland said the event is well-received in Iowa City.

Johnson County ACS workers hope to raise more than $20,000 this year, after raising $7,000 in 1994. In 1994, ACS paid for the daffodils. This year, City Carton Co. Inc., 3 E. Benton St., donated $5,000 worth of flowers. Therefore, all proceeds from the sales will go to ACS.

UI Hospitals and Clinics is one of many beneficiaries of the money raised. In 1994, UIHC received approximately $1.2 million from ACS for cancer studies and research.

UI Professor Richard Williams, chairman of the UI Department of Urology and deputy director of the UI Cancer Center, said the urology department received $90,000 in grants.

"The American Cancer Society's funds help immeasurably in cancer research and in beginning careers of cancer research specialists," he said.

The flowers sold by the ACS are grown in Washington by Pacific Flower Distributors.

"We think the ACS is a good organization, and the money goes to a good cause," Pacific owner Bob Gates said.

Pacific has been supplying ACS with flowers for 15 years. Gates said his own experience with cancer made him realize the importance of lightening the burden for cancer patients. Gates lost his mother-in-law to cancer 1½ years ago.

"Flowers bring a smile to people's faces, and that is important," he said.

The daffodils can be ordered until March 8 by calling the Johnson County ACS at 1-800-227-2345.

SIMPLE AMENDMENT PROPOSED

ERA proponents seek addition to Constitution

Mike Glover

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Supporters of a proposed Equal Rights Amendment have renewed their drive, saying it's time to move past the amendment's 1992 defeat at the polls.

They're getting initial strong backing from the solidly conservative Iowa House.

"We need an engine to move this on down the track," said Rep. Janet Metcalf, R-Urbana, one of the supporters of the measure.

On Tuesday, a resolution was introduced in the Republican-dominated House calling for a constitutional amendment to guarantee the rights of women. It was sponsored by 65 members of the 100-member House.

Supporters insist it's time to get started again on the cumbersome process of seeking to amend the Constitution and say they've devised a far simpler amendment this time around.

The ERA that was proposed last time was a fairly complex amendment to the Constitution, while this year's proposal simply adds the words "and women" to the Constitution's guarantee of rights.

"A majority of the people who I talked to who didn't vote for it said it was because of that extra wordage," said Rep. Betty Grundberg, R-Des Moines. Grundberg is the lead sponsor of the ERA proposal introduced Tuesday.

"They didn't understand," she said.

Interactive fiber-optics network hindered by lack of finances

Jen Dawson
The Daily Iowan

Although Iowa initially had big plans for a statewide fiber-optics network, eastern Iowa school districts are having difficulty generating money for the program.

Since the cost of outfitting one classroom with fiber optics is estimated at $30,000 to $40,000, some school districts are torn between the need for advanced technology and a lack of funding for the project.

Although eager to take advantage of the opportunities fiber optics provides, the Iowa City Community School District is questioning the project's financial feasibility.

"The cost is prohibitive as far as we're concerned," said Barbara Grohe, superintendent of the Iowa City Community School District.

The district is estimating the cost of outfitting one classroom with fiber optics to be $100,000; the total cost of outfitting classrooms at each of its 21 schools is estimated at $2.1 million.

"At those kinds of costs, we would start out with one classroom at each high school," Grohe said.

Through fiber optics, high-school students will be able to take courses not offered at their schools. They will also be able to take upper-level courses for college credit.

College professors and students are able to participate in classes from different locations through the interactive communication fiber optics provides. Unlike courses offered through cable networks — in which students watch the professor teach on television — fiber optics allows students to interact with the professor through video cameras.

Special equipment is needed to implement the system. Districts would need to purchase equipment for a special classroom, including two video cameras, two television sets, microphones and speakers.

An hourly fee — similar to a long-distance telephone call fee — of $8 would also be charged to districts.

Districts with more than one high school are having difficulty finding the money to connect each of their buildings to the network.

"I think for it to be useful for us — we need to have all of our secondary schools connected," said Waterloo Community School District Superintendent Jim Kimmel.

The Waterloo district, which has 10,600 students, is interested in providing community access to the network by allowing people to take night courses, Kimmel said.

"In order for us to provide access to the community, we'd have to provide three or four classrooms, and we can't afford that," he said.

Smaller school districts are also having difficulty finding room for fiber optics in their budgets.

The 800 students in the West Branch Community School District may miss out on fiber optics if the state government does not provide more aid for schools, said Superintendent Jim Bailey.

West Branch district administrators are now reviewing their budget to determine whether hooking up to the network is feasible.

"If (legislators) are not going to pay for it, I would see us postponing our decision," Bailey said.

Implementation of the fiber-optics network was divided into three phases by the Iowa Communications Network, the organization coordinating the program.

The first phase involved connecting each of Iowa's county seats to the network.

Phase two connected 123 sites — including 53 schools and the three state universities — to the system.

Plans are being developed for implementation of phase three.

Last fall, the Iowa Legislature approved a letter of intent submitted by ICN, giving it the right to award a contract for the connection of phase-three sites, said Tommy Thompson, executive director of ICN. The $139 million proposal would connect 543 sites in Iowa by 1997.

Phase-three sites include libraries, area education agencies and schools which have expressed an interest in being connected to the fiber-optics network.

Although funding for fiber optics is a major problem for many school districts, the Legislature has yet to offer a bill which would aid districts in funding fiber-optics classrooms.

Two bills have been introduced in the Legislature to increase the state's allocation of funds to schools, but neither would provide funding for development of fiber optics without cutting funding from other areas, said Sen. Robert Dvorsky, D-Iowa City.

House File 120 calls for aid in the form of $15 million to schools for four years for the purpose of developing technology. The money would come from the state's allowable growth fund, a general fund through which schools' general costs are paid.

"They could use (the fund) for pretty much anything in the district," Dvorsky said. "A great portion of that money would be for salaries."

Dvorsky said he is wary of dipping into the allowable growth fund for development of fiber optics.

"(Senators) are interested in technology, too, but we don't want to take anything away from allowable growth," he said.

Arsonists hit fifth California abortion clinic

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An abortion clinic was slightly damaged in an early morning arson Tuesday, the fifth such attack in California in February.

The clinic at the Cathedral Professional Building was hit shortly before 6:30 a.m., said San Francisco Fire Department arson investigator Marshall Granger. It was unoccupied at the time, and no one was injured.

It appeared someone pushed a tire with flammable liquid through a clinic window and ignited it, investigators said. The same method was used in the first two attacks, federal investigators said.

San Francisco Mayor Frank Jordan visited the scene and condemned the violence.

"This kind of activity is totally unacceptable and something we will not tolerate in San Francisco," Jordan said.

The string of fires began in a Ventura County family planning clinic on Feb. 9 and has moved up the coast. Three days later, arsonists hit a Santa Barbara doctor's office.

Apple compensates secretary for stress injury

HASTINGS, Minn. (AP) — Apple Computer has settled with a secretary who blamed her crippling hand and arm injuries on Apple and IBM keyboards, dropping out of the first such lawsuit against the two companies ever to go to trial.

Terms of the settlement, which came eight weeks into the trial, were not disclosed.

IBM, which remains as the lone defendant, said it doesn't intend to settle.

Nancy Urbanski, 30, claims Apple and IBM didn't adequately warn her about the risk of repetitive stress injury, or RSI.

Urbanski typed 95 words a minute at her job as a high-school secretary and said her disability caused her to lose her job.

"She can't tie her kids' shoes. ... She can't chop or cook. She can't bathe her kids," her lawyer, Steven Phillips, said Monday.

Phillips said the settlement reached Friday included a requirement that the terms be kept secret. He said Apple settled after supplying the plaintiff with confidential company documents that he described only as "explosive."

Apple spokeswoman Betty Taylor disputed Phillips' characterization, saying the company settled because its attorneys turned over the materials too late.

Simpson lawyers squabble over Lopez's testimony

Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — An investigator "handed a script" to a key O.J. Simpson witness and "coached" her through an interview, an incensed prosecutor contended Tuesday after listening to a tape recording the defense initially denied exists.

Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark also said the interview, taped July 29, was inconsistent with a second statement Rosa Lopez gave the defense on Aug. 18.

"I have never heard anything like it," Clark said after listening to the newly disclosed interview in Superior Court Judge Lance Ito's chambers. "I have never heard a witness basically coached and told what to say through every bend and turn."

She demanded that Lopez's videotaped testimony be halted and that the defense, as punishment for withholding the tape, be required to call Lopez while presenting its case, which is still weeks away.

The judge denied that request and instead gave prosecutors until Thursday to study the new statement more closely before cross-examining Lopez outside the jury's presence. The judge ordered the defense to pay Lopez's hotel costs.

The defense won permission to preserve Lopez's testimony on videotape after she told the judge she planned to return to her native El Salvador to escape intense media exposure.

The newly disclosed 15- to 20-minute interview of Lopez, a maid for Simpson's next-door neighbors, was conducted by defense investigator William Pavelic. In it, Lopez never mentions seeing Simpson's white Ford Bronco parked on the street outside his estate shortly after 10 p.m., Clark said.

Lopez does say in the interview, however, that she saw the Bronco earlier that night.

The dispute over the interview delayed resumption of Lopez's videotaped testimony, which began Monday after two days of fighting about when and how her testimony should be taken.

Lopez reluctantly agreed to stay in Los Angeles briefly to testify. While her testimony is being videotaped so it doesn't interrupt presentation of the prosecution case, the decision whether to show the tape to jurors later in the trial rests with the defense.

She told her story in meticulous detail Monday, drawn out by defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. She said she saw Simpson's Bronco parked at a crooked angle outside his estate just after 10 p.m. on June 12, the hour when prosecutors claim Simpson was killing his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

Cochran read into the record a portion of the July 29 interview in which Lopez mentions seeing the Bronco on the street but places it there between 8:30 and 9 p.m. rather than after 10 p.m. She also mentions a visit from a friend named Sylvia who is also said to have observed the Bronco.

Cochran asserted the only difference between the July and August interviews is the mention of Sylvia. On Monday, prosecutors marched into court a woman named Sylvia Guerra, who was identified as the disputed witness. She has not yet testified.

Meanwhile, the sequestered jurors, who have not heard a word of testimony since last week, were absent from court Tuesday. The judge expressed concerns about additional delays and refused to give Clark the entire afternoon to have the tape transcribed.

Published and broadcast reports have said Ito has tentatively decided to dismiss a black male juror who works as a courier. He reportedly made a bet before the trial that Simpson would be acquitted.

CELEBRANTS PARTY ON

Mardi Gras flourishes despite rain

Mary Foster
Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Skimpy feathered and beaded costumes gave way to plastic ponchos and slickers as New Orleans' Mardi Gras celebration turned into a huge sloppy party in the rain on Fat Tuesday.

Intermittent driving rain flooded streets, drenched floats and parade-goers, and pushed hard-drinking Bourbon Street revelers indoors or under awnings and balconies.

"The only bad thing is it waters down my beer," said Ron Edmund, 38, of Chicago.

Hotel and bar employees in the French Quarter shoveled plastic cups and other debris from clogged drains to help empty shin-deep water from the narrow streets.

An estimated 300,000 tourists were in town. The rain appeared to have kept the crowds below the projected 1.2 million.

Associated Press

The Zulu parade winds its way through the streets of New Orleans on Fat Tuesday.

"This isn't bad. In fact, it's good," said Connie Smith, a Harvey, La., teacher clad in a skimpy harem outfit. "It clears out the lightweights."

New Orleans Mayor Marc Morial, dressed as a Western sheriff, watched parades from a reviewing stand. "I wish we could arrest the weatherman," he joked.

The deluge drove many participants from the Bourbon Street Awards pageant, an annual French Quarter costume show featuring cross-dressers in elaborate head-dresses and flowing capes.

Alexander proclaims candidacy in '96 race

John King

MARYVILLE, Tenn. — Pitching himself as a Washington outsider with small town values, Republican Lamar Alexander declared his presidential candidacy Tuesday with a pledge to radically shrink and humble Washington's "arrogant empire."

Clad in a red-and-black flannel shirt, the former Tennessee governor said he was the only GOP candidate with experience as a chief executive.

Alexander proclaims candidacy in '96 race had recognized the nation was on the wrong track and had elected a Republican Congress to set it straight.

"We need a new Republican president to help that Congress turn the country around," Alexander said. "We need a president who is part of the people's revolution."

To that end, Alexander said he would shift more than $200 billion in programs from Washington to the states, abolishing the Department of Education he headed under President Bush and giving states control over welfare, most job training and Medicaid. He also pledged to support political term limits, a cut in the capital gains tax and equal opportunity but not special privileges for minorities.

He entered the race with polite but still pointed pokes at his leading rivals for the GOP nomination and at House Republican leaders.

"They are legislators," Alexander said of Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and Texas Sen. Phil Gramm. "I have experience as a chief executive."

As he strolled through Maryville, Alexander suggested another chief executive, California Gov. Pete Wilson, should keep his 1994 promise not to seek the White House if re-elected — an indication the Alexander camp is worried about competition for the outsider's label.

As for Republican House members, Alexander said their crime and welfare proposals were full of dictates to the states at a time voters wanted more and more power returned to the local level.

"This sounds to me like Democrats giving orders from Washington," Alexander said. "The worst thing we could do is replace the arrogant empire we defeated last November with one of our own."

From Maryville, Alexander headed to New Hampshire and the picturesque Hopkinton Town Hall. There, he repeated most of his announcement speech and told a small group of supporters the New Hampshire primary was special because it gave little-known candidates like himself "a chance to compete for the presidential nomination."

Alexander's campaign stance as an outsider — one that worked well for recent presidents Clinton, Reagan and Carter — is sure to be questioned in the coming months. He served in the Nixon White House as a senior Capitol Hill aide and as Bush administration education secretary. And while Alexander had a modest upbringing in Maryville, he attended law school in New York and is a millionaire attorney who now practices and lives in Nashville.

Ecstatic troops depart from Somalia

Reid G. Miller
Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Hundreds of U.N. peacekeepers sailed off singing from Somalia on Tuesday, ending a frustrating tour of duty in a country so riven by clan warfare that world powers have given up trying to help.

American and Italian troops filled sandbags and dug firing positions in the dunes at Mogadishu's airport Tuesday, preparing to cover the retreat of the last 1,500 U.N. peacekeepers.

The prospect that Somalis will be left to fend for themselves in a nation no closer to democracy than when peacekeepers arrived 26 months ago to help deliver aid didn't hearten the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"All of us hoped against hope the Somalis would get their house in order," Gen. John Shalikashvili told reporters in Washington, D.C. "They're on their own."

The U.S.-led coalition troops completed the first half of their mission to safeguard the withdrawal of U.N. peacekeepers by coming ashore without incident Monday night and Tuesday morning.

They landed on the beach just off the seaside airport and at the nearby seaport, where they relieved 903 Bangladeshi U.N. peacekeepers. The Bangladeshis left for home about eight hours later.

"They were all singing and having a good time when they left," said Eddie Jones of Baltimore, who has been managing the seaport for the United Nations.

The departure of the Bangladeshis left only 1,500 Pakistani peacekeepers to be extracted by the U.S.-led multinational force, but the force's commander said that could be the trickiest part of the mission.

Marine Lt. Gen. Anthony Zinni noted that his force had landed on territory held by U.N. peacekeepers. But after the Pakistanis leave, the Americans and Italians will have their backs exposed as they follow.

Zinni and his subordinates expect to see looters, perhaps by the hundreds, pour into the airport as the Pakistanis pull out, with possible fights breaking out as Somalis scramble for booty left behind.

Most valuable equipment already has been shipped out, and the looters will be fighting "for treasures that we'd call trash," said Army Sgt. 1st Class Jose Bailey of El Paso, Texas.

"We expect to see a lot of looting and some firing when the pullout takes place," said 1st Lt. Craig Price of Williamsburg, Va., commanding a Marine platoon dug into a forward position on the American perimeter.

"We filled about 500 sandbags today," Price said. "The guys haven't had any sleep, except perhaps for some 10-minute naps. They're pretty tired, but we'll get about three hours' sleep tonight before the fun begins."

That will be before dawn today as the Pakistanis, who have been holding the airport, begin to pull back through the American and Italian lines and prepare to depart Thursday.

Work with war on drugs

While presidents — namely Ronald Reagan — have stirred Americans into a frenzy over the “war on drugs,” they are fighting this war blindfolded, crippled and ignorant of many crucial facts. These “soldiers” must come to terms with the reality that we have lost the war on drugs. There is no war. Drugs are a part of society that we need to work with, not against.

The irony is almost laughable when we overhear middle-class suburban junior-high students discuss marijuana-smoking experiences while attending classes at a school where the door-mats read, “Say no to drugs.” People need to accept that it is not feasible simply to cut off the supply of substances that are both in demand and pervasive to the point that they have proven to be unstoppable. Prohibition is one historical illustration of this concept. Things are much more desirable when they require rule-breaking to obtain, and people can and will get drugs regardless of the fact that they are illegal. No significant progress has been made, and drug use has spread across boundaries of race, class, gender and age.

By law, drug violations are victimless crimes, but offenders must serve mandatory-minimum sentences that have contributed to the crisis of jail overcrowding.

It was in poor judgment not to anticipate the consequences of legislation imposed on drug offenses. By law, drug violations are victimless crimes, but offenders must serve mandatory-minimum sentences that have contributed to the crisis of jail overcrowding. If they have served the minimum sentence, offenders guilty of assaults ranging from domestic violence to manslaughter are set free to make more room for drug offenders. As drug violations put a strain on the court system, time and attention are distracted from the protection we need from the crimes that really do victimize people. We have put a great deal of time, money and energy into punishing drug users while neglecting to take effective measures in prevention or rehabilitation.

Society is not addressing the actual issue of drug use rationally or realistically. Although legalization could be too drastic a measure, decriminalization may be an ideal solution. Punishment is ineffective because it is a negative reinforcement that does nothing to prevent drug use, nor does it help people deal with their habit to avoid relapses. If we continue on this route, drug use will be as rampant as the crimes caused by the murderers and rapists set free to roam the streets to make space in prison for offenders guilty of a self-inflicted crime.

'And if I'm serious ...'

To the Editor:

Nida Cline was right. You godless commie pinko liberals at The Daily Iowan need to get your collective heads out of your rears and face the music. Stop blaming fundamentalists for everything wrong in the world. Just because a few extremists employ violence (justifiable in many cases) to get their point across, you lump us all into the same group. This isn't fair now, is it? Did I say I condone such actions?

The Bible is God's word, and everything in it should be taken literally. I know this to be true. How? It says it! Duh! (Galatians 1:7-9.) Besides, God told me I'm right! We fundies do not deny you left-wing liberal socialist idiots the right to your beliefs (even though you're wrong). Just stop spreading your heinous ideas to the rest of the world! (This is not censorship by the way, even though I know you think it is.) I'm not telling you what to believe; I'm just saying that you should accept Jesus into your hearts and wake up and see the light. Perpetuating violence and injustice

To the Editor:

Death is an incredibly hard thing to deal with, I know. But having a loved one murdered must be 100 times worse — I hope I'll never know. But even without knowing, I can still wonder if any amount of personal pain can justify our imposing a crude but legal machinery of killing onto an entire state.

It is especially urgent that all of us consider this question now because the Iowa House of Representatives has just passed a bill to reinstate the death penalty. If the Iowa Senate passes it and Gov. Branstad signs it, state-sponsored murder will become law, and all Iowans will be accomplices in these killings.

Much self-righteous talk about justice has dominated debate on this issue. However, I've yet to hear proponents of execution explain how justice will be served to the family of the first innocent victim of a false conviction and execution. Wouldn't that wronged family be entitled the same “satisfaction” as others who demand the “justice” of someone else's death?

Couldn't such a family rightly demand that the governor, who spearheaded this death campaign, receive a lethal injection? Would justice demand similar executions for the legislators who voted for it? What about the trial judge, the prosecuting attorney, the jurors and the arresting officers? No, I'm afraid even those deaths wouldn't be enough justice. Every voter who re-elected Branstad would share the guilt, having known that killing was at the top of his agenda. Also accessories to the crime would be the apathetic thousands who, though inwardly opposed to execution, did nothing to prevent it from becoming law.

In short, virtually all of us would be in some way culpable for allowing this sick cultural regression to take place. Wouldn't all of us then deserve to die by the same sword we've chosen to live by? Time is running out, Iowa, but we still have a choice. We can keep our current legal system that allows sentences of life imprisonment without chance of parole and financial compensation for survivors of murder victims. Or we can score a lethal injection fix, get high on vengeance and ultimately crash into the truth of how the death penalty perpetuates violence and injustice.

Please contact your state senator now at the Senate switchboard at (515) 281-3371.

CHELSEA CAIN

The death penalty: another samurai in spurs

When I was 7 years old, my mother took me to a museum where a Japanese woman dressed in a kimono talked to us about Japanese culture. She explained how much Japan had changed in the past 50 years and how instead of kimonos, the Japanese now wear Western clothing.

For the next four years, I imagined Japan to be filled with men in cowboy hats and women in bustles riding buggies up and down the set of “High Noon.”

When I discovered my error in fifth grade, my world was thrown on its ear. The modern Japanese men and women in my textbook were wearing the same polyester as the rest of us. Yet even as my vision of Japan was blown, I held on to the possibility that there were still rural enclaves outside Tokyo where cowpokes sat around campfires singing the Japanese version of “Happy Trails.”

It is sometimes hard when you have your mind set on something to let it go. For instance, in 1992, I supported the death penalty. Not in a zealous way, but in the same vague “sounds good to me” way that most people do. I was living in California at the time, and the state was winding up for the execution of Robert Alton Harris, who was convicted of murdering two teen-agers after he stole their car in 1978. Californians enjoy a good execution the same way they like to watch live car chases on TV, so Harris' name was everywhere as the days drew closer to his death.

In California, they kill you in an off-green airtight octagonal gas chamber that was built in the 1930s. I know this because the press ran photographs of it along with stories about how the gas makes you “air hungry,” causing intense chest pains like those felt during a heart attack, exquisitely painful muscle spasms and acute anxiety. It is considered one of the more gruesome methods of execution, but most Californians — including me — thought that Harris deserved what he got.

But my roommate at the time would change my mind.

Her name was Mary Ellen, and she was one of those quiet girls who still have all of the Sweet Valley High books, never read the paper and cover their walls with black-and-white posters of people kissing. She was positively apolitical, but somehow vehemently against the death penalty. We stayed up late talking the night of the execution.

“When is it OK to kill a human being?” she asked me, and then she went through my argument with a chisel and dismantled it piece by piece. The death penalty isn't a deterrent because it has been proven that people don't think about getting caught when they commit crimes. A life sentence is less expensive to the state than an execution, and when you kill someone, there is always that small chance that they are innocent. Last year, two people were let off death row when they were cleared by DNA testing.

“Who are all those people on your walls?” I asked, pointing to the kissing posters. “Do you know them?”

“Don't change the subject,” she said. “Do you want to live in Plato's ‘Republic’? Is that the price you're willing to pay for order? Why is it that the vast majority of death row inmates are African-American men? Is revenge the same thing as justice?”

About two hours later, she had completely exhausted me, and I was beginning to suspect that she was a plant sent by the American Civil Liberties Union.

She was good, too, because the next morning I found myself relieved to see a banner headline in the Los Angeles Times screaming that Harris had been granted a stay of execution.

The state and I had seen the light at the same time, there was hope for all of us and the gates had held against the onslaught of barbarians.

I half expected small animated birds to swoop out of the sky, land on my finger and start singing.

Of course, when I arrived at school, I found out that they had gassed Harris a few hours after the Times had gone to press. One of my professors announced it in class, and people cheered. Their applause sent chills down my arms.

I felt that same chill last week when I heard that the Iowa House of Representatives had passed the death penalty. It will go to the Iowa Senate next, and if it passes, it will be made into law. As written now, a lethal injection will be sentenced for violent multiple murder, the killing of law enforcement officers and the murder of children under 12.

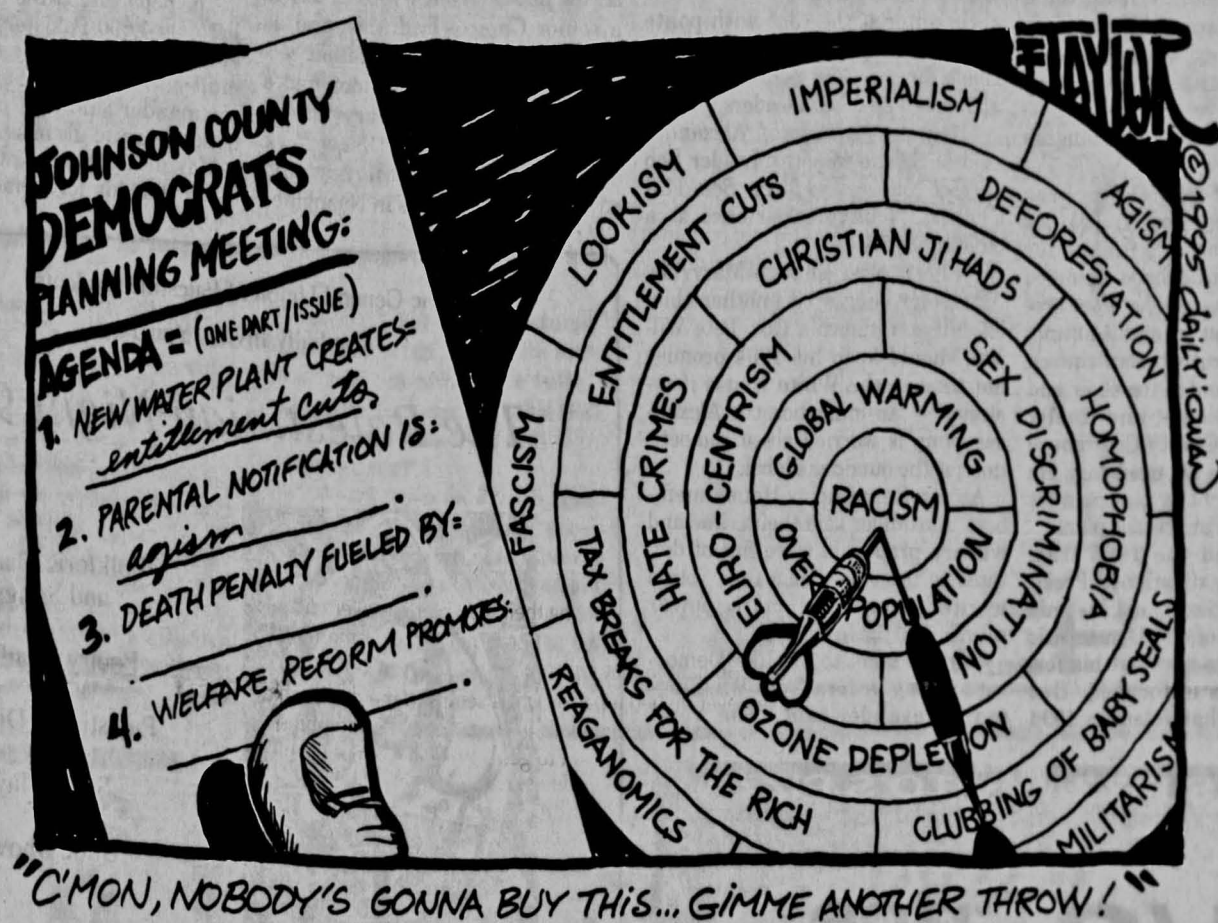

I understand the motivation of capital punishment supporters. They are scared and angry or just haven't thought about it much. (Though I am curious as to how the Iowa House can deem the life of an 11-year-old any more or less valuable than that of a 13-year-old.) But when we as a state decide that it is somehow justifiable to sentence people to death, we arrive somewhere from which there is no return.

I think of that Japanese woman in the kimono, and I wonder how many children she talked to dreamed of samurai soldiers in chaps and silver spurs. It's a nice image, but it doesn't hold true. There are no authentic cowboys in Japan, and I suspect that the only ghost towns are shells of building destroyed by the atomic bomb.

But then, as we all know, sometimes the ideas we hold onto the tightest are the ones with the most holes.

GUEST OPINION • MAURENE M. MORGAN

A critical time politically and environmentally

The way politicians in Washington are acting, one might suppose that Americans are angrily demanding wholesale gutting of the nation's environmental laws. And Congress is moving at breakneck speed to enact into law portions of the “Contract With America” that will do just that.

In reality, the “Contract”'s real contents had to be hidden from the American public because House Speaker Newt Gingrich and his allies knew Americans would not vote against the environment on Election Day. The document that was so widely advertised before the elections never mentioned the word “environment” because most Americans say they want a cleaner, healthier environment and are willing to pay for it. It was only after the elections that its anti-green agenda became known.

Instead of directly attacking popular laws like the Clean Air Act and Clean Water Act, the deceptively titled “Job Creation and Wage Enhancement Act” will simply dismantle them rule by rule. This sneak attack has been so successful that even Business Week magazine is calling the Job Creation and Wage Enhancement Act a “stealth environmental policy” that amounts to “a guerrilla war on green laws.”

At its heart are four radical proposals that are buried in 400 pages of legislative fine print and buzz words carefully honed to appeal to the public hunger for government reform, lower taxes and less bureaucracy. Given euphemistic titles such as “Corporate America Legal Protection Bill,” these procedural bills add up to a veritable polluter's bill of rights, couched in the rhetoric of smaller, cheaper government but with frightening implications.

The legislation would give polluters, land speculators and other special interest groups unlimited opportunity to feed at the public trough. If someone claims that an environmental rule reduces the value of their property by only 10 percent, all it takes is a letter and a 32 cent stamp to halt all agency action and demand the government make them a cash offer.

The new laws would grant panels of outside experts employed by the special interest groups with veto power over environmental, health and safety regulations. For example, the tobacco industry's experts could simply attack government science, veto new rules and potentially rewrite cancer regulations. In other words, the corporate fox will run the hen house.

The legislation would also give environmental, health and safety violators an arsenal of new weapons with which to dodge prosecution. Thus, the government would have to tip off suspected lawbreakers before inspecting them, so they can have a lawyer or accountant present. With that warning, the polluters can clean up falsified records or hide illegally dumped chemicals. They will even have the right to sue government employees personally to scare them off the case.

If that's not enough, the risk-assessment bill will effectively paralyze environmental protection by requiring agencies to produce an avalanche of new cost-benefit studies and risk assessments before they can issue a rule — paralysis through analysis. If air polluters, sewage dumpers or pesticide makers don't like an environmental control, it's no problem. They can just sic their lawyers on the Environmental Protection Agency while they continue to pollute. We pay the price in doctors' bills and wages lost to illness.

Carol Browner, EPA administrator, sums up the Job Creation and Wage Enhancement Act with a warning, “Under the provisions of H.R. 9, EPA could not have banned lead from gasoline or dangerous pesticides like DDT. This means 20 years of protections for our children and our air, our land and our water are being rolled back in the dead of night without even a thoughtful debate in Congress.”

These hidden bills could be enacted without Americans even knowing they exist because Congress is rushing this stealth act to a vote before the public can find out what's in it. We're all for efficiency and cost effectiveness, but the bills rolling through Congress under this banner will achieve neither. The Job Creation and Wage Enhancement Act will overturn 25 years of health, safety and environmental laws by putting them to a new test that requires the highest priority to be reducing costs to industry — while costing taxpayers billions to implement.

In the next few weeks, Congress will determine the direction of U.S. environmental, health and safety policies for the next two decades. This is a critical time politically as well as environmentally. If Americans, by their silence, allow the illusion of a backlash against the environment to go unchallenged, they and their children will pay a formidable price. Contact Congressman Jim Leach today. If you don't speak for yourself, someone else will claim to speak for you. Let them know that a clean, healthy environment is the only basis for a sound, stable economy.

UIHC generates considerable profit

To the Editor:

Each year, I ask Blue Cross of Iowa to send me a copy of the UI Hospitals and Clinics' annual Medicare report. The financial statements in this report, available through the Freedom of Information Act, give a comprehensive picture of the year's financial performance.

Fiscal year 1994 information that would be of interest to many Iowans is as follows:

- Patients admitted to the hospital increased 3 percent to 27,887. Not included are normal newborns and outpatients who stay overnight because these people do not receive acute-care services.
- Average charges for an acute-care patient admitted to the hospital were down slightly to $12,461.
- However, total revenue from patient charges increased almost 5 percent to $476 million. This reflects an increase in outpatient services.
- The net worth of the hospital increased $23 million to $431 million. Part of this came from profits of almost $14 million, and the remainder came from contributions and UI support.

- Earnings on investments were about $7 million from "cash on hand" of $110 million. State appropriations were more than $35 million, while other income (not earned from patient services) amounted to more than $16 million.
 - When depreciation charges of $29 million are added to profits and other sources of funding, the hospital was able to generate more than $43 million in cash to increase investments and finance new facilities. However, $4 million of cash was needed to cover increases in patient accounts receivable, which now total $77 million.
 - Expenditures for new buildings, remodeling and equipment were more than $46 million — resulting in a five-year total of $228 million.
- UIHC's financial performance is exceptional for a university-owned teaching hospital. In fact, a landmark of sorts was reached in 1994 when total UIHC assets exceeded half a billion dollars. By comparison, most university hospitals I have studied earn a smaller profit, and with less external support, their wealth (net worth) grows much more slowly than at UIHC.

School of Music's purchases outdated

To the Editor:

I was disappointed but not surprised to read about the UI School of Music's $180,000 purchase of Steinway pianos, because due to a supposed shortage of funding, there are no longer instructors in the experimental music department.

There are three studios full of electronic music equipment that cannot be used by students because of the lack of instructors. This is very unfortunate for music majors (and also for the art, communications and other students who attended experimental music courses before they were axed) because knowledge of and experience with electronic music equipment is essentially not only to expand the possibilities of composition and performance of music, but also for finding work after they graduate. If the UI School of Music's idea of supporting its students is to stock up on Steinway pianos, then it is stuck in the past.

Australian adjusts to Iowa City

To the Editor:

After reading David R. Askew's letter (DI, Jan. 30), I have realized that I am part of a very small minority here in Iowa City. I am extremely distressed at the lack of sensitivity here in Iowa City. I just moved here from Brisbane, Australia, in May. While I've been here, there have been almost no Australian movies in the theaters or Australian shows on television. This is obviously just another example of the extreme insensitivity shown by the "establishment."

I knew that when I moved here, I'd have to make some adjustments, but that realization does not ease the pain. To rephrase what Askew wrote, "For many undergraduate students, this is their first extended period away from home. If home was a predominantly Australian environment, attending any of America's universities is an adjustment."

Has anyone bothered to wonder what Australians have to do when not working, doing schoolwork, eating or sleeping? There are no AET (Australian Entertainment Network), Australian-oriented movies in Iowa City, parties at Australian fraternity or sorority houses or Australian clubs because there are none.

But wait. Maybe the problem does not lie with Iowa City. Maybe it lies with me. I guess I'll just have to start growing up.

Modern, classical liberalism distinguished

To the Editor:

Classical liberalism has espoused the gospel of objectivity, tolerance, open discussion, limited government and protection of our individual rights. Surprisingly, most of the agenda of classical liberalism is currently being promoted by intellectuals within the neo-conservative movement.

Modern liberalism has become perverted by the warped agenda of the political correctness crowd. This bunch of intolerant bigots has corrupted modern liberalism by demanding absolutism, crushing civil rights, misrepresenting the truth, rewriting American history, violating academic freedom, indoctrinating students and arrogantly resorting to goose-stepping tactics in their obsession with absolute obedience.

Their nefarious ooze continues to clog the arteries of the free flow of information in our republic. They should slither back into their caves to conduct introspection about their reactionary goals. Be on guard against the political correctness drones masquerading as liberals!

Branstad a death penalty parrot

To the Editor:

If I were to come across a parrot named Terry Branstad, it would not surprise me if its vocabulary was "Awk! Death penalty! Death penalty!"

For the last 12 years, Branstad has claimed that the only thing we have to do is enact the death penalty. Then drugs will disappear from our streets! The deficit will shrink! Our prison system will empty! Flowers will fall from the sky! Cracks will disappear from the sidewalk!

Yeah, right.

Republicans in general, and Branstad in particular, have always seemed to have simple solutions to complex problems — in the same manner as a person might try to beat gasoline prices by using water in his car. And like an electoral parrot that sees votes as crackers, these Republican officeholders keep repeating their watery ideas over and over until they convince themselves (and weaker members of the population) that it is true.

I've never owned a parrot, but it seems to me that such a beast would grow tiring, quickly repeating the same phrases. I think it's time for Iowa to get tired of the Republican / Branstad parrot act. And I know a good way to do it. Let's make sure that Branstad's proposals to deal with crime in Iowa get the "Awk! Death penalty! Death penalty!"

Let me demonstrate two pieces of data you possess but are not aware of their contradictory nature.

No. 1. As quoted by many "knowledgeable authorities," we share 99 percent of our genetic makeup with chimpanzees. Inference: that we are 99 percent similar to chimpanzees.

No. 2. Also known is the fact that we have not even scratched the surface as far as mapping out the genetic codes that make us human, as well as the fact that DNA research is a relatively young and active arena, which implies there is much we do not know about DNA and our genetic code.

Consider the following two codes: CGATACA and CGATACT. They are 85.7 percent similar, differing only in the last letter. Suppose that the position of this last letter dictates something important in what that "thing" will be. What if that position determines having lungs vs. gills, eyes vs. a temperature-sensitive serpentine tongue, legs and arms vs. tentacles, spirit vs. none.

What are we to think of our scientists? Why should we accept everything they say as truth when their world view is couched in atheism / evolution. Let them worship the creature. I will worship the Creator who made us different from all creatures.

destinations. Escorts maintain constant audio contact with an operator stationed at the WRAC headquarters by relaying their positions and arrival times at various checkpoints during the walk.

The UI Department of Public Safety does not directly monitor the escorts' activity. However, if the escorts do encounter a problem, they transmit a code through their walkie-talkies to the operator on duty at WRAC, who then contacts Public Safety.

UI senior Dave Howard has worked as a committee member and organizer of SAFEWALK since its initiation in spring 1993. The program was implemented to increase safety awareness on campus and to provide an additional measure of security for men and women who need to travel on the UI campus at night, Howard said.

SAFEWALK will offer its services only to students who live in residence halls until further operation evaluations and discussion of extending services to faculty and to students living off-campus are initiated, he said.

"Basically, we are doubling the population SAFEWALK can offer its services to," Howard said. "We are going to take this time to determine how things will work out and how many more volunteers are needed per shift when we try to serve approximately 5,000 people."

SAFEWALK does not provide self-defense training for volunteers, but Howard said the program embraces the philosophy that "safety can be found in numbers."

"Our philosophy is that someone will be less likely to attack a group of students as opposed to a single person," Howard said. "The routes we take (while escorting) are always well-lit, and we try to stick with main streets or nearby blue cap phones."

During the year SAFEWALK operated — spring 1993 to spring 1994 — it escorted students living in residence halls on the west side of the Iowa River 450 times and racked up more than 250 volunteer hours a week, totaling approximately 4,000 hours a semester. Hillcrest Residence Hall provided office space for the program.

WRAC director Monique DiCarlo said she is impressed with student effort to organize the expanded program.

"I was impressed with the number of students who volunteered and the level of the student group to grow as an organization and their personal commitment to grow as individuals," DiCarlo said. "This program will provide a much-needed service by keeping the university community aware and conscious that safety education needs to be kept within a larger context."

Ashley Sovern, director of education for the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, said SAFEWALK may heighten awareness that no one — male or female — can be guaranteed safety while walking around campus. Each volunteer escort attended training programs sponsored through WRAC and RVAP to prepare them to deal with obstacles they might encounter.

"During our one-hour training session, we tried to give (volunteers) information and a few ideas on some of the different reasons someone might be calling SAFEWALK for their services other than providing safety," Sovern said. "For example, someone may call to disclose some form of sexual abuse. We wanted to offer some information for how they could have more sensitivity for topics like sexual abuse."

Students can arrange for escorts to pick them up from classes, jobs or anywhere within the destination parameters by calling the office. Those who use the service are told beforehand who their escorts will be, and a password is exchanged so students can identify their escorts. If students have a conflict with an escort, the operator on duty will contact the SAFEWALK committee member on call to arrange for a different escort.

Approximately 55 volunteers work as SAFEWALK escorts and phone operators. Applications for volunteers are available at all residence hall front desks. The UI Student Government Safety and the Anti-Violence Education Commission will fund SAFEWALK.

The service will operate from 7 p.m. to midnight Sundays through Wednesdays and 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Thursdays through Saturdays.

difficult to campaign during the midterms. Last week, I had three midterms, so I know that interfered with our campaign plans."

Sands, Greenwall's running mate, was disappointed with the results.

"Obviously, I'm not real happy about the outcome. I went in the elections expecting to win," Sands said. "But I would like to congratulate Tim and Jeremy; I think they'll do an outstanding job as president and vice president."

Three positions on the Student Publications Inc. Board were also on the ballot. Junior Patricia Baccam, graduate student Shannon Heim and freshman Robert Wagner were elected to those seats with 595, 590 and 584 votes, respectively. The other candidate, sophomore Paul Schiavone, received 427 votes.

AMENDMENT

ate floor, said White House press secretary Mike McCurry. He said Clinton met with White House chief of staff Leon Panetta and planned to call wavering senators.

The amendment, which already has been approved by the House, would require a balanced budget by 2002 unless three-fifths of both houses voted otherwise.

Earlier in the day, Republicans coughed up a last-minute concession barring federal judges from ordering tax increases or spending cuts to balance the budget and pocketed two Democratic votes in return.

Still short of the support necessary to prevail, they negotiated for the support of Conrad — and perhaps other Democrats — offering companion legislation that would place Social Security off-limits to budget-cutters gradually over several years.

"It's a cliffhanger," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a leading supporter.

As the time for a vote came and went, the 46-year-old Conrad was at the center of an intense series of meetings — on a crowded Senate floor, then in one party's cloakroom and the other — as the two sides sought the vote that could determine the amendment's fate.

The centerpiece of the Republican revolution in Congress, the proposed amendment to the Constitution is designed to end the run-up in federal debt that exceeds $4.8 trillion. A similar measure cleared the GOP-controlled House in January. Senate passage would mean the House would have to vote on the newly modified version before submitting it to the states for ratification.

Before Dole's dramatic delay, both sides had delivered final arguments on the measure.

"This vote is one of the most important many of us will have cast in decades," Dole said. "Congress needs the discipline" of an amendment to make actual spending cuts, he said.

Byrd, 77, said, "Change merely for the sake of change" had become for some a virtue above all others. "But I will never, never bow to those messengers of expedience or to the managers of any political party's agenda," he said.

Countered Hatch, "The salvation of our country depends on it. The future of our children depends on it."

Conrad, the man at the center of attention, declared in an interview last week, "Persistence is my best quality."

He has said for days that his concerns focus on protecting the Social Security trust funds and making sure the amendment doesn't cripple efforts to help the nation out of future recessions.

Elected to the Senate in 1986, Conrad renounced re-election in 1992, saying he had failed in his effort to bring the deficit under control. He changed his mind when the state's other senator, Quentin Burdick, died, and Conrad was easily returned to office.

The Senate chamber, normally all but deserted, was alive all afternoon with senators waiting to cast their votes on a series of roll calls.

Privately, some Democrats worried the measure would fail by a single vote, exposing all senators to a campaign charge that they were responsible for the death of the politically popular provision.

Still, Republicans had their own holdout: five-term Mark Hatfield of Oregon. He cited "enduring protections of the Constitution" in reaffirming his opposition.

Supporters said they had 66 votes after picking up support from Democrats Sam Nunn of Georgia and John Breaux of Louisiana. They climbed aboard after the GOP accepted Nunn's demand that judges be stripped of authority to order tax increases or spending cuts except as Congress may authorize in future legislation.

That means follow-up legislation would determine how the amendment would be enforced. In addition, the amendment includes a provision requiring a three-fifths vote for Congress to raise the federal debt limit.

The Democrats still uncommitted as the final vote approached were Conrad; Byron Dorgan, also of North Dakota; and Kentucky's Wendell Ford, No. 2 in the party's leadership.

Republican sources said the GOP had exchanged draft legislation with Dorgan that would leave the Social Security trust funds off-limits. It wasn't clear whether a compromise was achievable or whether the Republican leadership could keep its membership in line for it. The trust funds run a huge surplus, and budget-cutters may want to tap it to reduce deficits.

forced into a cooler. The assailants fit the description of the suspects in the Happy Joe's robbery, police said.

"The (modus operandi) of the two incidents are very much the same," Coralville Police Department Detective Britt Johnson said. "They are very consistent and very similar."

Although he would not reveal specific details and did not want to speak for other cities' police departments, Johnson said the Iowa City and Coralville holdups may have been part of a six-month crime spree which involved 12 or 13 incidents. He said the Coralville police have the names of possible suspects but will not release them while the cases are being investigated.

Other similar robberies occurred between Aug. 26 and Sunday morning, Johnson said. The two local incidents are similar to robberies in Muscatine; Cedar Rapids; Clinton, Iowa; Galesburg, Ill.; and three or four incidents in Davenport.

The circumstances surrounding the Happy Joe's incident sounded familiar to Dave Lanning, assistant manager of Bonanza. Lanning was at Bonanza the night of the robbery and said the Happy Joe's incident "has a strong correlation" to the Bonanza heist.

"I can't say what the police have told me, but it sounds to me almost like exactly the same thing," he said.

Iowa City police are being more cautious in linking the Iowa City and Coralville incidents because they lack picture identification of the suspects, said Iowa City Police Department Sgt. Craig Lihs.

"The detectives on the case are consulting with Coralville to see what the two incidents have in common," Lihs said. "They don't know if it's the same two men. We can't get a photo lineup because they had their faces covered."

Although Lihs was reluctant to comment on the Coralville connection, he said Iowa City police are looking into other robberies for clues. Lihs didn't say if the ICPD is surveying the same set of incidents that Coralville police are examining.

Johnson gave only sketchy data but said the Coralville investigation is almost over.

"We're extremely close to coming to a conclusion and bringing this case to an end," he said. "We're at a point where I just can't say anything else because we don't want to alert the suspects."

BUDGET

funding, the SPI Board will decide how our cuts go, and that might be one of the first things," he said. "We have been chosen the Society of Professional Journalists' best newspaper in the country three times in the last 10 years, and if our funds are cut, the quality might also go."

Jones' amendment was defeated. SPI was allotted the full $4.67 per student, which pays for home delivery of the newspaper to each student at the UI.

Gina Falconio, chairwoman of SABAC, said she was happy the budgets were passed.

"We tried to be fair, accurate, nonbiased and consistent in our decisions," she said. "I am very pleased."

Falconio said SABAC determines groups' funding by taking into account their fiscal soundness and budget needs.

"With (SABAC), the group does not look at how valuable a group is to the campus or the success of the group," she said. "That would be placing a value judgment on them. We do not make value judgments when determining a budget."

Negotiators hint at minor progress

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — While peace didn't break out Tuesday between striking baseball players and owners, both sides talked calmly again and actually reached preliminary agreement on some side issues.

"I don't want to suggest that everybody's lovey-dovey — far from it," union leader Donald Fehr said. "I do want to suggest that there are efforts being made to avoid the kind of discussions which produce hostility for its own sake."

Talks at the Gainey Ranch resumed today, when the exhibition season starts with a game between the California Angels and Arizona State.

Rather than trading and rejecting proposals with specific numbers, the sides are discussing the pieces of a deal would come together.

Fehr and acting commissioner Bud Selig said it was too early to tell if negotiations would progress.

"There is a different feeling. You can just tell in the focus," Selig said. "It's hard to say why I'm not sure any of us really knows."

With the strike completing its 201st day, it appears the moderate on both sides are getting heard.

"There is an appreciation that the calendar has advanced so far that if there isn't some kind of agreement reached then it's unavoidable this will have effect on the '95 season," Fehr said.

Away from the table, 11 of the Orioles' spring training opponents sent Baltimore a letter saying they would cancel their exhibition games against the Orioles unless the team reversed its opposition to facing replacement players by 2 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Former 49er all-purpose back signs with Jets

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — New York Jets have agreed to terms with Dexter Carter, who spent five years with San Francisco as a kick returner, backup running back and third-down receiver.

Carter's agent, Blaine Pollock, said the deal is worth $1.8 million over three years.

Last season, Carter was eighth in the NFC in both kickoff returns, with a 23-yard average and punt returns, at 8.7. He had a 96-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

He also has averaged 4.3 yards per carry in his career as a backup running back and has scored touchdowns on runs of 50 yards or more.

"One of the priorities we needed to address when I got here was to bring in a returner who has the ability to turn around a game," said Jets coach Rich Kotite.

"That is exactly what Dexter Carter can do."

Carter, who played at Florida State, was the 49ers' first-round draft choice in 1990.

DOING IT RIGHT

RUN
WITH IT.

FLY
WITH IT.

LIFE'S AN ADVENTURE. RIDE IT OUT WITH THE AMERICAN EXPRESS CARD.

Life's full of twists and turns. Some great, some not so great.

But with the American Express Card, we can help you get more out of the good times, and help you through the more challenging times.

For starters, you'll have ready access to an exclusive collection of benefits and services you won't find anywhere else. Like savings on many of the things you like to do. Fly. Talk long distance. Shop. Dine out. And much, much more. You'll be more in control of your finances, too. Because you pay your bill in full each month. So you start each month with a clean slate. And if you lose the Card or have a question about your bill, you can call on us, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, for help whenever you need it.

Granted, it's a lot to expect from any card. But then, we're not talking about just any card.

New, bigger airline discounts — for you and a friend.

As a Cardmember, you'll not only save when you fly Continental Airlines, you can bring along a friend for the same low price. And this year, our travel savings are even bigger and better than before.

You'll get five (count 'em, five) Travel Savings Certificates.* Three Certificates (each valid for you and a friend) for roundtrip Coach class tickets anywhere Continental or Continental Express flies within the 48 contiguous United States (except Florida between February 12 – April 30 and between June 15 – August 25, 1995). And all you'll pay is $159 roundtrip for travel on your side of the Mississippi. Or $239 roundtrip when you fly across the Mississippi.

You'll also save with a special Florida Certificate valid between February 12 – April 30 and between June 15 – August 25, 1995. Because you pay just $239 for roundtrip Coach class travel between Florida and other destinations on the east side of the Mississippi, $299 between Florida and destinations on the west side of the Mississippi.

Planning an overseas trip? You'll get an additional Travel Certificate that can take some of the sting out of those higher-priced fares. It's valid for $50 off an international roundtrip Coach class fare of $400 or more; $75 off an international roundtrip Coach class fare of $600 or more.

Spend less, talk more when you call long distance.

You'll also get up to 30 minutes of free long distance calling on MCI every month for a year—without having to change long distance companies. So you can spend more time talking to the people you care about—and save up to $44 a year.

Just enroll for these savings when you apply for the Card. Then use the Card as your calling card. Your calls will appear on your monthly Card statement, so they can't get mixed up with your roommates' calls.

Save at places you actually go to, on things you actually use.

What good are discounts you don't use? Our Value Certificates help you save on many of the things you want, from the names you know—like J. Crew, Software Etc. and the Princeton Review. And these aren't one-time-only offers. You'll get new offers every year you renew your Cardmembership while you're in school. And even after you graduate and start your career.

Then, as your life changes, your Cardmembership benefits do too. You'll be offered benefits that fit your life—throughout your life.

A point of great interest: no interest charges.

With the Card, you pay your bill in full each month. So you won't be saddled with automatic interest charges. It's a great way to start building a solid credit history.

When you use the Card, your purchases are approved based on your ability to pay as demonstrated by your past spending and payment patterns, as well as your personal resources. And, unlike credit cards, there's no pre-set spending limit.

Get a little extra protection for most of the things you buy.

Let's face it, a new computer or CD player can be a major investment for you. But when you buy it with the Card, you help make it a safer one. Because The Purchase Protection Plan covers most items purchased with the Card against theft and accidental damage, for up to 90 days from date of purchase, up to $1,000 per occurrence. The coverage is in excess of other applicable insurance. Just call 1-800-322-1277 for details.

Find help no matter where you find yourself.

Our worldwide network of over 1,700 Travel Service locations† in over 100 countries—is there to help Cardmembers like you. To rearrange your travel plans, cash personal checks† and, in many locations, even pick up your letters. And if you need a referral to a local doctor or lawyer on your travels, or to get an urgent message home to your family, just call our Global Assist™ Hotline. It's available 24 hours a day, toll-free, from anywhere in the world.

Your questions won't go unanswered.

It's 2 a.m., you're still up, and you remember a question about your bill. As a Cardmember, you don't have to wait for your answer. Just call our toll-free customer service line 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

The Card. Why sooner is better than later.

Forget about carrying the American Express Card someday. Why not get it today? By becoming a Cardmember now, you'll get great travel savings you can share with friends, have more control over your spending, enjoy retail savings that help stretch your budget and personal service when you need it—all for just $55 a year.

And getting the Card now is probably easier than it will ever be—because we're relaxing the usual requirements just for students like you. So apply right now. And get ready for the ride of your life.

*To be eligible, you must apply for the Card by July 31, 1995. For domestic travel, reservations must be made and tickets charged to your Card account within 21 days of travel, maximum stay is 14 days and must include a Saturday night. For international travel, reservations must be made and tickets purchased at least 7 days prior to travel or as required by the fare purchased, whichever is earlier. A minimum 8-day stay is required and must include a Saturday night. Seats at these fares are limited. American Express makes these certificates available solely as a service to its Cardmembers and incurs no liability in connection with their use or non-use. Continental is directly responsible for the fulfillment of this offer and the delivery of travel services. Your Travel Savings Certificates, along with complete terms and conditions, will be sent to you upon credit approval.

A credit of up to $3.70 for long distance phone charges will appear on each billing statement for 12 months after enrollment. $3.70 is equal to the charge for a domestic 30-minute night/weekend MCI Card Compatibility call and appropriate surcharge. Call from any phone, using the American Express Card as your calling card. You must enroll by July 31, 1995. MCI is a registered service mark of MCI Telecommunications Corporation.

The Purchase Protection Plan is underwritten by AMEX Assurance, Administrative Office, San Rafael, CA. Maximum coverage is $50,000 per Cardmember. Theft from automobiles and loss are not covered. Coverage is subject to the terms, conditions and exclusions of Policy AX0951.

†Comprises Travel Service locations of American Express Travel Related Services Company, Inc., its affiliates and Representatives worldwide.

††Check cashing is subject to program limits, cash availability and local regulations.

Negotiators hint at minor progress

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — While peace didn't break out Tuesday between striking baseball players and owners, both sides talked calmly again and actually reached preliminary agreements on some side issues.

"I don't want to suggest that everybody's lovey-dovey — far from it," union leader Donald Fehr said. "I do want to suggest that there are efforts being made to avoid the kind of discussions which produce hostility for its own sake."

Talks at the Gainey Ranch will resume today, when the exhibition season starts with a game between the California Angels and Arizona State.

Rather than trading and rejecting proposals with specific numbers, the sides are discussing how the pieces of a deal would come together.

Fehr and acting commissioner Bud Selig said it was too early to tell if negotiations would progress.

"There is a different feeling. You can just tell in the focus," Selig said. "It's hard to say why. I'm not sure any of us really knows."

With the strike completing its 201st day, it appears the moderates on both sides are getting heard.

"There is an appreciation that the calendar has advanced so far that if there isn't some kind of an agreement reached then it's unavoidable this will have effects on the '95 season," Fehr said.

Away from the table, 11 of the Orioles' spring training opponents sent Baltimore a letter saying they would cancel their exhibition games against the Orioles unless the team reversed its opposition to facing replacement players by 2 p.m. EST Wednesday.

Former 49er all-purpose back signs with Jets

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Jets have agreed to terms with Dexter Carter, who spent five years with San Francisco as a kick returner, backup running back and third-down receiver.

Carter's agent, Blaine Pollock, said the deal is worth $1.8 million over three years.

Last season, Carter was eighth in the NFC in both kickoff returns, with a 23-yard average and punt returns, at 8.7. He had a 96-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

He also has averaged 4.3 yards per carry in his career as a backup running back and has scored 6 touchdowns on runs of 50 yards or more.

"One of the priorities we needed to address when I got here was to bring in a returner who has the ability to turn around a game," said Jets coach Rich Kotite.

"That is exactly what Dexter Carter can do."

Carter, who played at Florida State, was the 49ers' first-round draft choice in 1990.

Iowa seeks revenge at Purdue

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

With Jess Settles, Chris Kingsbury and Cuonzo Martin on the court, it seems unlikely that tonight's Iowa-Purdue rematch will again come down to Todd Foster.

It was Foster's free throws that sent Iowa reeling to its third of four one-point losses in the Hawkeyes' first meeting with Purdue back on Jan. 14.

Now Iowa is on the NCAA tournament bubble and in need of every win it can muster up.

With four games remaining, Iowa (17-9, 7-7) finds itself smack dab in the middle of one of the most competitive Big Ten fields in years. The Hawkeyes currently lie in seventh place.

"We think Iowa is a Top 20 team. They lost a few games by only one point, so their record is misleading."

Gene Keady, Purdue coach

Illinois and Indiana are just one game ahead of Iowa at 8-6. Minnesota stands at 9-6. And ahead of the Gophers at 9-5 is Iowa's opponent on Sunday, Michigan.

Davis said for the Hawkeyes to have serious NCAA tournament consideration, they must finish at least 10-8 in Big Ten play, which means they can lose only one more game.

Purdue (20-6, 11-3) is one of only two Big Ten teams which can already bank on making the NCAA tournament. This despite losing its best player from a year ago in consensus all-American Glenn Robinson.

Picking up the slack for No. 17 Purdue has been Martin. The senior is fourth in Big Ten scoring, averaging just over 18 points per game. Purdue coach Gene Keady

CAREER NEARS AN END

Jackson battles painful season

Mike Triplett
The Daily Iowan

In the fall of 1993, Tia Jackson never would have expected to be preparing for this weekend's Big Ten tournament. Especially not as a No. 9 seed.

The 6-foot senior forward thought last season would be her final one with the Iowa women's basketball team. Named to a pair of preseason honorable mention all-American teams, she was supposed to lead one of the Hawkeyes' best teams ever into the NCAA tournament.

It never happened. In the fourth game of the season she went down with a tear to the anterior cruciate ligament of her knee, an injury that still plagues her today, and she was forced to watch her fellow seniors from the sidelines.

Now she is a member of Iowa's losingest team in over a decade (10-16, 6-10 in the Big Ten).

Who would blame her if she was bitter? Last season the Hawkeyes spent eight weeks as the No. 2 team in the nation. This year Iowa is nowhere to be found in the polls. But Jackson's not ready to lay down and play dead.

"I would like to win. I don't think too many people like to lose," she said. "But I'm just happy I'm out here playing."

"Yeah, I would have liked a more successful season — a much more successful season — but it didn't turn out that way. So now we have to, or I do, have to accept what we already have and try to take it all the way. I mean, we still have a chance."

Jackson laughs when she thinks about the opportunity Iowa has. Although it's her fifth season with the Hawkeyes, this will be her first Big Ten tournament. The Big Ten added a postseason tournament this year, giving all 11 teams a chance to fight their way into an NCAA tournament bid if they win — no matter what the team's record might be.

"That's the funny thing about it. I mean, we're ninth in the Big Ten and we still have a chance to go (to the NCAA tournament)," Jackson said. "Any other year we wouldn't have that chance. So somebody knew Iowa was going to be struggling and gave this tournament to us."

"Thank you, whoever that was." Jackson hasn't had too many people to thank in the last year. She hasn't gotten too many breaks. She struggled for 10 months, watching the Hawkeyes win without her, then watching them lose in the second round of the NCAA tournament, knowing she could have helped.

"I play with pain. It's just pain that I've learned to live with. It's kind of like a toothache. It's going to be there for a while."

Tia Jackson, Iowa senior forward

She had surgery in January. She worked and worked her knee, trying to get into shape for the '94-95 season, a season that seemed like it would never come. And then she got hurt again.

The knee was reinjured and another surgery loomed. It was possible that she could be healthy for the first game, for the Big Ten season, or not at all.

"I listened to the doctors and what they had to say," Jackson recalled. "One was saying, 'If you really work at it, you could come back in two weeks.' But that's not every case."

"I mean, they told me I would be

Montana keeps Chiefs guessing

Doug Tucker
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs came to the defense of Joe Montana on Tuesday, saying the star quarterback will not be pushed into any decisions regarding retirement.

"I talked to Joe 2½ hours ago," general manager Carl Peterson said. "He will make that decision on his own. The media won't make it for him. I won't make it for him. He might have already made it at this particular point. But he will do his own thing. Maybe that's what makes him so special and unique."

Safety David Whitmore also said he was "misquoted or misunderstood" when he recently told a television interviewer Montana is "probably done."

However, there was no direct word from Montana himself, who recently returned from a vacation in Mexico. He has been the subject of numerous reports saying the four-time Super Bowl winner would not return for a 17th season.

Whitmore, who came from San Francisco in the Montana trade in 1993, told WIBW-TV in Topeka, Kan., on Monday, "He's probably done, that's all I can say. I have to be careful what I say. I talked to him last night. There's a lot of things he's real unhappy about with the organization and things of that nature."

But at a news conference Tuesday at Arrowhead Stadium, Whitmore said he was misled by the interviewer and did not mean to say he had spoken with Montana the night before.

"When I talked to the guy before the interview, he gave me the impression Joe had already retired," Whitmore said. "I'm upset about the whole thing. The guys come off and before the interview and give me one impression about something, and then it's something totally different."

"I wake up this morning and I'm all over the country in the papers and on ESPN. I didn't talk to ESPN."

Gophers put Badgers in a hole

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Voshon Lenard scored 22 points and Jayson Walton added 19 points and 14 rebounds as Minnesota held off Wisconsin 78-70 Tuesday night in Big Ten basketball to keep its NCAA tournament hopes alive.

Minnesota, 18-9 and 9-6 in conference play, had dropped back-to-back games against Illinois and lowly Ohio State last week to put itself on the NCAA playoff bubble.

But the Gophers outscored the Badgers 24-11 at the start of the second half to break open a 41-40 game before 14,548 fans at Williams Arena, the largest crowd of the season.

Wisconsin (12-12 and 6-9) led by as many as eight points in the first half and pulled to within four points late in the game, but lost its fourth straight.

Rashard Griffith led all scorers with 25 points and 11 rebounds for Wisconsin and Michael Finley had 20 for the Badgers.

Finley and Griffith scored Wisconsin's first 21 points before Andy Kilbride hit a 3-pointer at 10:35 of the first half to give the Badgers a 24-16 lead.

Griffith hit five of his first six shots, but then didn't convert a field goal for nearly 18 minutes. Finley was only three of 11 from the field in the first half, but all three were 3-pointers and he had 11 points by halftime.

Townsend Orr added 15 for Minnesota, which has games at Northwestern and Penn State and at home against Purdue.

No. 9 Wake Forest 79, No. 2 North Carolina 70

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — It was the right time to throw a party, but Randolph Childress didn't care to have one.

Childress took care of the perimeter and Tim Duncan patrolled the inside as No. 9 Wake Forest beat No. 2 North Carolina Tuesday. It was Wake Forest's first victory in Chapel Hill in 13 years, but Childress had too much to think about to savor the moment.

"I didn't say 'Good win.' I didn't say anything," Childress said. "The first thing I told these guys — while everybody was in the midst of celebration — was that it's not over. We have one more game to play, then we have two tournaments to play, so don't get too enthusiastic about it."

Childress, who had four 3-pointers, finished 8-for-10 from the field and had 26 points, indulged him-

AFTER NECK INJURY

Packers release Sharpe

Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Sterling Sharpe, the star receiver recovering from neck surgery, was released Tuesday by the Green Bay Packers.

The move occurred a day after Sharpe's agent demanded the Packers release the All-Pro or increase their salary offer for 1995.

The Packers offered Sharpe $200,000 while he sits out next season. His contract calls for $3.2 million as part of a six-year deal he signed last season.

"We regret that the Packers' association with Sterling Sharpe has come to an end," Packers general manager Ron Wolf said. "This difficult decision comes after gathering the best medical opinion we could get from the foremost specialists around the country and after exhausting every contractual option available to us."

Over his seven years with the Packers, Sharpe caught 595 passes for 8,134 yards and 65 touchdowns. He suffered a momentary paralysis to the arms after colliding helmet-to-helmet with an Atlanta safety on Dec. 18. He had another nerve-related injury a week later and was pulled from the lineup for Green Bay's two playoff games.

Sharpe, 29, underwent surgery Feb. 3 and had a two-by-three inch piece of bone from his pelvis transplanted to the back portion of his first and second cervical vertebrae. The bone fragment was held in place by a wire and two screws on each side.

If the bone graft successfully fuses and is given nine months to a year to heal, there is a 90 percent chance of Sharpe achieving a solid fusion that could let him to play in 1996, said Dr. Craig Brigham.

MEN'S TENNIS

Iowa rides momentum into meet with Drake

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

Breaking a losing streak is one thing, keeping a winning streak going is another.

But that's what the Hawkeyes hope to accomplish tonight as they take on intrastate rival Drake at 6:30 p.m. in the UI Rec building.

"This is a very pivotal match for us," Houghton said.

"Drake always has a strong team and we have a long rivalry with them."

Iowa is coming off a pair of 7-0 sweeps of Marquette and Gustavus Adolphus on Sunday raising its dual record to 3-3.

Iowa senior Bob Zumph said he hopes to carry the momentum into tonight's meet.

"Sunday's wins were huge for us. It was real important for us to win a couple to get back on track and to gain some confidence," Zumph said.

"Drake's going to come in here and be ready to play but so are we."

Even though Drake is not in Iowa's region, senior Bryan Crowley said intrastate matches are always important.

"When you play teams from your own state there's always added incentive," Crowley said. "There is a lot of pride on the line when you play teams like that, so its important that we play well."

Drake defeated the Hawkeyes last year 5-2, a fact not lost on Zumph.

"Its going to be a battle, and, to be honest, we really don't like those guys. So emotions will be running high," Zumph said.

"Its going to be a battle, and, to be honest, we really don't like those guys. So emotions will be running high."

Bob Zumph, Iowa senior tennis player

Houghton said Iowa has cleared up its position problems with the return of Crowley and should be a full strength come match time.

"We've had some bumps and bruises," Houghton said.

"But everybody came out of Sunday's doubleheader OK. So everything should be in place for Drake Wednesday."

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

History haunts No. 1 Bruins

Beth Harris
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — UCLA is No. 1 in the nation, owns a nine-game winning streak and is playing its best basketball of the season. Even that may not be enough to satisfy this title-starved city.

No one realizes it more than much-maligned Bruins coach Jim Harrick, whose annual flogging in the media usually coincides with the start of the NCAA basketball tournament.

UCLA's postseason record since 1990 includes first-round losses in 1991 and 1994 with a second-round overtime defeat sandwiched in between.

"I get sick of people saying you come out of the gate and you fade," Harrick said Tuesday. "That's a bunch of malarkey."

But it's the foremost thought of many fans and alumni spoiled by John Wooden's 10 NCAA championships.

Harrick recalled a radio show appearance he made during which a caller described UCLA's recent NCAA tournament performances as failures.

"I don't like that. That's not me. I'm not into that," Harrick said.

"Even though we lost to Tulsa last year, we were 21-7, tied for second in the conference, and people deemed us being a failure."

Harrick is answering the doubters earlier than ever because the Bruins haven't been No. 1 this late in the season since Feb. 19, 1979.

Taylor slated to wrestle in WWF

Larry McShane
Associated Press

NEW YORK — After 13 years of terrorizing quarterbacks from Joe Theismann to Troy Aikman, future NFL Hall of Famer Lawrence Taylor hoped for an acting career.

On Tuesday, his wish came true.

Taylor, to the delight of some former teammates and the disbelief of many others, signed with the World Wrestling Federation to battle 390-pound Bam Bam Bigelow in a feature match at Wrestlemania XI.

Goodbye, LT. Hello, Lawrence the Giant.

The deal was sealed with a kiss, planted by Taylor on Bigelow's big, ugly, bearded, earringed, tattooed head. The very odd couple will meet in the ring on April 2 in Hartford, Conn., with LT picking up a reported $500,000 paycheck.

"Whether you believe it or not, these guys are real athletes," said Taylor, sharing a podium with "real athletes" Big Daddy Cool Diesel, Sid Vicious and Shawn "Heartbreak Kid" Michaels.

IOWA STATE BASKETBALL

Seniors bid farewell to Hilton

Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

AMES, Iowa — Iowa State had the misfortune of playing at Oklahoma State on senior night and got blown out. Wednesday night, the Cyclone seniors get their turn in the spotlight.

No. 16 Oklahoma will visit for the final regular-season appearance at Hilton Coliseum by Fred Hoiberg and five other Iowa State seniors. Such occasions often give the home team a lift, and No. 24 Iowa State could use one right now.

The Cyclones shot only 16.7 percent in the second half of a 77-49 loss at No. 18 Oklahoma State on Monday night and fell to 5-7 in the Big Eight and 19-8 overall.

With a 7-7 league record probably needed to ensure a berth in the NCAA tournament, Iowa State has no room for error. ISU's final game is Sunday at Nebraska.

Associated Press

Oklahoma State center is sandwiched between Iowa State seniors Julius Michalik and Loren Meyer Monday night in Stillwater, Okla.

top six career scorers, while Meyer is 16th with 1,159 points. Iowa State has gone 53-9 at home during their careers and 74-45 overall.

The other seniors are Hurl Beechum, Shaun Jackson and James Hamilton. Beechum is third on Iowa state's career list for 3-point field goals.

"I think it's a special group, specifically because three guys are from the state of Iowa," said Floyd, who's in his first season at Iowa State. "I think the fans feel like they know them and have been able to respect them through the years."

"They've been free of controversy, they've all played great minutes since they've been here and they're all on track to graduate. It's a special group and I feel fortunate to have an opportunity to coach them. I just wish I could have coached them a little longer."

Hoiberg is from Ames and is so popular that he's nicknamed The Mayor. Meyer is from Ruthven in northern Iowa and Beechum is from Des Moines.

Oklahoma (21-6, 8-4) comes in as the hottest team in the Big Eight, having won four straight and five of the last six. But the Sooners are just 1-4 in league road games and after meeting Iowa State, they finish at No. 19 Missouri.

First-year coach Kelvin Sampson said it will take a "monumental effort" just to get a split this week.

"You guys know as well as we do that going to Iowa State we'll be the underdog," he said. "Iowa State is a great team. We know how tough they are in Ames. That's a game we'll have to play as well as we can possibly play to win."

The game will match two of the leading candidates for the Big Eight player of the year — Hoiberg and OU's Ryan Minor.

BAND TO RELOCATE SOON

Slugeplow to take Metro stage, continues quest for drummer

Clint Marsh
The Daily Iowan

The local noisemakers of Slugeplow will perform one of their final Iowa City shows tonight at the Metro.

Slugeplow, which has been playing in Iowa City for more than three years and has toured extensively throughout the western United States, is ready for a change of atmosphere.

"Modus vivendi," a Latin phrase for "way of life," was Slugeplow's moniker in their early days. And although the band's two core members seem ready to make the band a lifestyle, they have yet to find a drummer who feels the same way.

Slugeplow bassist Chad Hartgrave said the band is in need for a "real" drummer; throughout the band's history, Hartgrave and guitarist Jeff Cornell have gone through several. Wednesday's show will feature drummer No. 5: Nate Girtman of Scrid.

Drawing influences from bands such as Tool, the Melvins and Black Sabbath, Hartgrave said he has always felt there has been an audience for Slugeplow in Iowa City. However, inconsistency in crowds and a craving for larger recognition are driving the band northwest to Washington.

Slugeplow will hook up with Voodoo Gearshift drummer Mark Bruggeman after their move but will continue to look for an exclusive drummer.

"We want to try to find somebody real," Hartgrave said.

This lack of a solid lineup has also caused the band problems with releasing their latest recordings. Slugeplow recorded eight songs, but their drummer quit before they could release them.

"We can't support our music with different people," Hartgrave said.

The songs won't be lost, however.

The band hopes to rerecord the music in Washington for the band's third album. Previous recordings from Slugeplow include the demo albums Turned Earth and Everything. The band also appeared on Southeast Records' Iowa Compilation #4.

Slugeplow fans can expect a few more local shows out of the band before the big move. Hartgrave said there are plans for an upcoming performance at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., with Thee Duma and Unsane, and a tentative show at the Que Sports Bar, 211 Iowa Ave., in April.

While they have enjoyed their time in Iowa City, Slugeplow is looking forward to its move to Washington.

"It'll be an ongoing quest until we find the person who's perfect," Hartgrave said.

Slugeplow will be performing with Scrid and Cedar Rapids' Gremlin tonight at the Metro, 121 Iowa Ave. The show starts at 9. Cover will be charged.

GROUP COVERS HANK WILLIAMS SR. TUNES

Country music fans entranced by The The's new tribute album

Stuart Reid
The Daily Iowan

Matt Johnson of The The said he has found that Hanky Panky, the rock group's tribute to Hank Williams Sr., has "been embraced more by the purists, the country people" than the alternative music crowd that has typically supported the band's work.

"A lot of people think I've misunderstood him by drawing out the bluesier side, the darker side, but the purists understand that I pretty much got it right."

"A lot of people think I've misunderstood him by drawing out the bluesier side, the darker side, but the purists understand that I pretty much got it right."

Matt Johnson of The The

but the purists understand that I pretty much got it right," Johnson said of the album.

Johnson said Hanky Panky has generally been well-received, particularly in America.

"The reaction has been very warm, and I think it's because he's something of a cultural icon here," he said, adding that cowboy imagery is "such a deep part of the American psyche."

Johnson said Hanky Panky is a natural extension, but not a lyrical extension, of the band's work.

"It's not the follow-up to my last album," he said. "People often wonder why I did this album. It's a supplemental album. I think one thing that people who don't sing don't understand is that it is just pleasurable to sing, and it takes a big weight off my shoulders to do this and just focus on the music."

The The has always stood somewhat on the periphery of the music world and has never been part of "the rock fraternity in England," where Johnson used to live.

"I don't really pay much attention to what's going on musically," he said. "It's especially bad in England — different things are going in and out of fashion every other month. You just have to follow your own course."

Johnson said the true follow-up to 1993's Dusk, tentatively titled Gun Sluts, will be out this time next year.

Described as "more of a sort of glam-rock terrorism" by Johnson, the album is likely to continue The The's unique outsider role in alternative rock.

New Music Revue

The The Hanky Panky

Hank Williams Sr. could be described as the Kurt Cobain of country music. Dying at the age of 29 under somewhat mysterious circumstances after a brief but prolific recording career, Williams' lyrics often suggest a profound sense of pain and isolation.

Hanky Panky, The The's new album covering Williams' recordings is a thoroughly enjoyable listen, although it never becomes clear how seriously the project is meant to be taken.

On the one hand, the songs themselves are beautifully recorded and, in some cases, left in a very traditional format. The song structures, instrumentation and Matt Johnson's evocative voice all suggest a real reverence for the material.

At the same time, however, the album's title itself and its packaging play up the campiness of the cowboy motif, from Johnson's wild-eyed image on the cover to the branding effect used with the band's logo. This subtext is difficult to ignore, especially given lyrics which rhyme "darling" with "quarrel" and song titles such as "There's A Tear In My Beer."

Ultimately, the overall effect is successful, if a bit disconcerting.

"My Heart Would Know" in particular would fit seamlessly into The The's back catalog, featuring delightfully straightforward chord progressions and sweet, memorable lyrics. Similarly, "Honky Tonkin'" and "I'm a Long Gone Daddy" are reminiscent of the darker, brooding side of past The The material. Both create powerful moods emphasizing Johnson's deep, foreboding voice.

Hanky Panky is recommended for those who already are fans of The The or the darker side of the often-covered Williams. Those unfamiliar with The The might find 1993's "Dusk" or 1986's "Soul Mining" more accessible gateways into The The's bluesy back catalog.

Love Spirals Downwards
Ardor

Ardor is the latest from Projekt, the California-based ethereal/ gothic indie label that may well be the 4AD of the '90s, and the album is true to the label's image.

Its sound floats somewhere between that of the Cocteau Twins and Sarah McLachlan, but while that may seem a narrow range, Love Spirals Downwards finds plenty of room for creative freedom. The band is more accessible than the former and more credible than the latter, sculpting an aural space that seems to envelop everything around it with anesthetizing waves of sound.

While Ardor is filled with carefully crafted song structures, the framework never hinders the band's ethereal wanderings. Held aloft by wispy guitars and distant percussion by Ryan Lum and guided by the starkly angelic voices of Suzanne Perry and Jennifer Ryan Fuller, Love Spirals Downwards creates an otherworldly semipreciousness that is nothing short of astonishing.

"Depression Glass" and "Subsequently" show off some wonderful choral effects, and "Sunset Bell" does even more with no vocals at all.

Ardor is simply one of the most sensual albums likely to be released before the turn of the millennium. It proves, quite happily, that ethereal rock isn't dead — it just doesn't live in England anymore.

Baby Week

The infant grip bottle is a great item. When my son was old enough to hold objects in his hand, I attempted to teach him how to hold his own bottle. After several tries with a regular bottle, and hearing from my customers how wonderful the infant grip is, I tried it. The infant grip is shaped in a way that lets infants drink with ease and I highly recommend it!

"Listen to Everyone in Your Company"

Once a year, I have a Wal-Mart baby shower in my department for expectant and new mothers. I demonstrate some of our products and ask customers questions to get their input on items they would like to see us carry. Our customers are an important part of our company. We must listen to them, so we can learn how to better serve them.

"Exceed Expectations"

I've had sign language training to talk easily with my deaf friend. I never thought about using it at work until one day a deaf gentleman was in my department. I asked if I could help him. He pointed to his ear and said deaf. I then signed, "Can I help you?" Suddenly a big smile came across his face and he said yes; he was wondering about a price. I signed the price to him and helped him make his purchase. He has returned many times and each time he comes to sign with me.

"Community Involvement"

At our store, we believe giving the customer a little bit more than expected includes getting involved in our community. When associates, customers and our community businesses and organizations work together, we can achieve great things.

Our community and Wal-Mart associates have rallied together and, for the last four years in a row, been #1 in fund raising for the Children's Miracle Network.

We salute Sam and our community for such a dedicated ongoing partnership — friends working together, Always!
