Burglars hit office building

Seven Iowa City businesses which share the same building were broken into Friday night, and an undetermined amount of cash was stolen, according to Iowa City Police Department officials.

Sgt. Richard Wyss said the main entrance of the building, 220 Lafayette St., was broken into and then the individual businesses were burglarized.

He said police do not know if Friday night's burglaries are related to the thefts at seven other Iowa City businesses and three Iowa City churches, which have occurred over the past two months.

Isys Technologies, NBS Southern Inc., Countryman Group Planners, the law office of Robert Jansen, Parametric Technology Corporation, Burken Marketing Group, and the accounting and tax preparation office of Ron Skubal were robbed.

The exact time the break-in occurred and the amount of cash stolen have not yet been determined. Police have no suspects, Wyss said.

Garage blaze takes life of unidentified victim

A garage fire Sunday afternoon at 2460 S. Gilbert St. claimed the life of one person and caused more than $75,000 in damage.

The Iowa City Police and Fire departments arrived at the scene around 3 p.m. During the course of their emergency response, they found a body in one of the vehicles in the garage. Johnson County Medical Examiner Dr. T.T. Bozek was summoned to the scene of the fire.

The identity of the victim was not released.

Organizers defend race financing

Promoters explain where charity event money ends up

Shayla Thiel
The Daily Iowan

Although questions have been raised about Iowa City Road Races Inc.'s use of hundreds of thousands of charity dollars, organization officials at 212 S. Dubuque St. and the United Way of Johnson County, 20 E. Market St., say all the money is accounted for.

In a March 4 article, the Iowa City Press-Citizen reported that the 1994 Parsons Technology Iowa City Road Races raised $750,000, which cannot be accounted for.

However, this figure was an "in-kind" estimate which includes donations of cars, hotel space, music at the finish line and what volunteers would have been paid if they had not been working voluntarily, said Peg Fraser, executive director of the race. Fraser said $750,000 is the amount the Internal Revenue Service requires from not-for-profit organizations.

Fraser said she cited the $750,000 figure to Stephanie Rosen, the Press-Citizen reporter who covered the story, as an estimate but lowered the figure to $521,954 after research. The second amount was not included in the story. "I sent a pie graph breaking down the expenses, but it just got left out (of the story)," Fraser said. "What's vital to understand is this event — which is really a series of fall festival events — cannot take place without significant in-kind support."

The article reported $101,000 was collected for allocation to charities. Fraser verified this and said that amount was only the first round of collections. The remaining $38,000 will be collected in the final mailing process, she said.

Lawyer errors may cost O.J.

Associated Press

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito fined two of O.J. Simpson's lawyers $950 each Friday for failing to provide the prosecution with an audio-tape interview in a timely manner during the Simpson double-murder trial in Los Angeles. Johnnie Cochran Jr. and Carl Douglas were both fined because a taped interview done with witness Rosa Lopez on July 29 was not turned over to the prosecution as required by law.

Simpson team fined for hiding evidence

Niko Price

LOS ANGELES — It took three members of O.J. Simpson's dream team to present the apology.

Carl Douglas offered the excuse. He said lawyers failed to turn over information because they were confused, because of an office move, because of the break-neck speed of the trial. He called it "falling through the cracks."

Gerald Uelmen submitted the plea for forgiveness. "We appear before the court as penitents," he because of his choice of lawyers, but should go to his lawyers who, in fact, are responsible," he said.

Late Friday, Johnnie Cochran Jr. and Douglas each were fined $950 for withholding from prosecutors taped pre-trial interview of potential alibi witness Rosa Lopez. If they try to introduce that testimony later, Judge Lance Ito said he would tell jurors the lawyers broke the law and caused a delay in the trial.

It wasn't the first time the high-profile defense team was caught withholding evidence. In January, Cochran was reprimanded for hiding other witnesses. The judge told jurors to ignore what Cochran said about them in his opening statement and gave prosecutors a rare opportunity to postscript their opening statement.

The offenses raise an important question for the judge: If the lawyers make a mistake, should the client pay? Prosecutors say yes. After all, it's the client who benefits from lawyer misconduct. Defense lawyers argue if defendants suffer because their lawyers goofed, innocent people will be convicted. See SIMPSON, Page 8A

AMONG BEST IN U.S.

UI ranks in list of superior hospitals

Moir Crowley
The Daily Iowan

UI Hospitals and Clinics has been lauded as one of the top health centers in the nation by a new book, "The Best Hospitals in America," which lists the best medical facilities in the United States and Canada.

The book, by John Wright and Linda Sunshine, lists 74 of the most superior medical facilities in the United States and 13 of the best hospitals in Canada.

John Staley, associate director of UIHC, said the complex is the best comprehensive tertiary-care center in the state.

"The UIHC's productive and efficient staff has a strong work ethic, and the talented clinical staff are leaders in their fields," he said.

The authors wrote in the book's introduction that while there are many first-rate hospitals, the general public finds it difficult to know which facilities practice the most up-to-date medical treatments.

"Our intention is to help remedy that situation by identifying hospitals and medical centers whose special qualities have earned them the highest standing in the medical community," the authors wrote.

The listing marks the second time UIHC has been praised in print. The hospital was also mentioned in the first edition of "The Best Hospitals in America," published in 1987.

The few medical centers that made the book's list had to pass rigorous evaluations and surveys.

"We based our choices on the recommendations of physicians from around the country and on information from government sources, professional and popular publications, and surveys or interviews with about 150 hospitals," Wright and Sunshine wrote.

Along with approximately 7,500 hospital employees, over 1,000 vol-

CHEMISTRY INSTRUCTOR FRUSTRATED WITH EARNINGS

Professor resigns over dead-end salary

Jen Dawson
The Daily Iowan

Still at the bottom of his department's pay scale after 34 years of service to the UI, an incensed chemistry professor will hang up his lab coat for the last time in May.

The $43,100 that chemistry Professor Edward Buchanan Jr. earns each year puts him on the lowest salary rung for professors in the UI Department of Chemistry.

Buchanan's salary is almost $30,000 less than that of the average chemistry professor, who makes $76,192 annually. And several of Buchanan's colleagues have surpassed the $100,000 mark.

In an ironic twist during Buchanan's three decades at the UI, he has assisted in hiring faculty members who are now making more than him.

"When it hurts is when you look around, and people you've hired in your department are making more than you," he said. "I'm fed up with it, and I'm retiring."

Buchanan cited the UI's emphasis on research and obtaining grants as one reason some professors make more money than others.

"(UI administrators) want us to bring in grant money. If you're bringing in outside money, you're going to get paid for it."

Edward Buchanan Jr., UI chemistry professor

"(UI administrators) want us to bring in grant money," he said. "If you're bringing in outside money, you're going to get paid for it."

Buchanan's research has not been subsidized by grants in several years, he said.

Judith Aikin, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said research is integral in the salary increases because of the nature of the UI.

"We have a special mission and that mission is the production and dissemination of knowledge," Aikin said. "It's part of our expectations for every faculty member on the tenure track."

Having friends in high places also helps professors move up the pay scale, Buchanan said.

"If you're in favor with the dean, you're likely to get paid more," he said.

However, Aikin said the College of Liberal Arts is not in the practice of handing out special favors.

"I certainly would hope that's not true in my college," she said of Buchanan's comment.

Professors with less tenure than Buchanan are also exceeding his salary. Buchanan noted several of those faculty members are women.

"Quite frankly, I think because they're women they get paid more," he said.

But one of Buchanan's colleagues disagrees with many of his assertions. Johna Leddy, an untenured assistant professor of chemistry, said her $43,200 yearly salary has not been boosted because of her gender.

"My salary is based on the work that I do. In fact, I would like it if they gave me a $10,000 increase for being a woman," Leddy said. "I personally think I should be making a little more, so I don't think being a woman has helped me."

Video business gives I.C. man new view on life

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

In a tiny room at the back of a large lavender house, Andy Small spends his days surrounded by the computer monitors, mixing boards and videocassette recorders that make up the heart of his independent video production business.

Small, 25, established The Video

DAY IN THE LIFE

Center, 924 Iowa Ave., when he realized his job at a Cedar Rapids video production firm was not satisfying. He said the initial jump from employee to owner was an uncertain one.

"I've been self-employed for nine months now," he said. "At the beginning I was self-unemployed."

Small handles various jobs — ranging from transferring photos to video and videotaping weddings to producing product marketing films for small companies and video résumés for graduating UI students — within the video production field.

Using an intricate computer program called Video Toaster, Small can create almost 300 different computer-generated effects using moving or still images. The effects vary from a text overlay to an outer-space themed introduction to an image.

Small, who graduated from the UI in 1993 with a degree in communication studies, said his desire to be his own boss was not hampered by his lack of a business-related degree.

"I've always wanted to be self-employed. When I'm 30, I can say that I've tried it and I've succeeded or failed," he said. "I had no business background at all when I started. I spent a half an hour with an accountant, and he showed me how to do the books."

The average day finds Small waking up to the irritating but profitable ring of the telephone.

"I never have to wake up to an alarm; the phone always wakes me up. Clients call me before 8:30 a.m. all the time," he said. "I get up, come back (to the equipment room) and flip 12 on switches," he said. "I have a list of what I want to get done for the day, and if I get half of it done, I feel like I've accomplished something."

Jonathan Meester/The Daily Iowan

Andy Small, owner and operator of The Video Center, 924 Iowa Ave., says owning a business it done, I feel like I've accomplished something. "I have a list of what I want to get done for the day, and if I get half of it done, I feel like I've accomplished something," he said.

Small said although he hasn't experienced any high-tech hindrances, equipment problems can and have left him in a bind.

"Once I bought a (recording) deck that was missing a transistor," he said. "I had to drive to Chicago to get the part, and I needed the deck for a job the next day."

After a day at the office, Small keeps up with ever-changing video technology by reading one of the seven video trade magazines to which he subscribes in order to spot new trends in techniques and equipment.

He said the workings of gadgets and buttons can be taught, but a good eye for a precise shot is essential. A video producer needs to have at least a minimal background in photography, Small said.

"It's not technical. It looks technical, but it's more involved with timing and getting the right shot," he said. "The technical aspect of it can be taught, but the timing and a feel for it can't be."

Small said his unassuming in-house setup may cause clients to be wary, but the finished product usually impresses customers.

"The average client is very skeptical. It's a small room with a lot of equipment. I have to approach the client in terms of wanting to keep things simple, clean and professional looking," he said.

Computer glitches and cramped quarters aside, Small looks at the experience of starting and running his own business as an education in itself.

"This is such a great learning experience for any job in any field. I've learned the various angles of running a business," he said. "This has probably been more beneficial to me than college; it's the best thing I've ever done."

Being able to make a living doing something he enjoys and having the chance to pursue his own ideas along with his clients' are two major advantages of his job, Small said.

"This is a big playground," he said. "Anything I think of, I can go out and shoot it."

QUOTABLE

"It's a credit to our entire staff. We are pleased to receive recognition of the health-care expertise that is concentrated here."

Fit politician helps nab thieves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two youths who grabbed trays of watches from a street vendor probably didn't know a Cabinet member could run so fast.

Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros saw the teen-agers as he was leaving a hair salon Saturday night and chased them down two alleys, across two streets and over lawns as wristwatches flew from the purloined trays.

One youth was grabbed by a police officer who joined the chase. The officer collared the other when the youth stopped short on confronting Cisneros.

Police charged the two youths, ages 15 and 17, with robbery.

"What kind of citizen or government leader would I be if I didn't try to help?" the 47-year-old Cisneros said afterward.

He also said he tries "to work out and stay in shape."

Shelley Long defends Cheers departure years later

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Here's the story ... of a star named Shelley.

Shelley Long, who plays Carol Brady in "The Brady Bunch Movie," says people are still asking her why she left that Boston bar.

For the record, she's doing just fine, thank-you, since her criticized departure in 1987 from the hit TV series "Cheers."

"I'm never going to give the answer that people or journalists want to hear," Long says in the March 11 issue of TV Guide. "I think they want to hear that I made a mistake."

She especially resents being compared to former "NYPD Blue" star David Caruso, who jumped ship after one season to begin a movie career.

"It's just not occurring to them that I was on the show for five years," she says. "I met David at a charity function and wished him well and said, 'You know — it's probably going to be tough out there, but you're going to do great.'"

Belafonte lectures Republicans for proposed cuts in arts

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Harry Belafonte says Republicans in Congress should enjoy their day-in the limelight without cutting money for the arts.

"Careless, unthinking rascals in Washington in verbose, unimindful and unintelligent ways are attacking the funding of the arts," the singer-actor said Saturday night.

Belafonte maintains that federal funds have helped countless artists and writers find their voices and styles.

"Subsidizing the arts is one of the most important subsidies this country undertakes," he said at a lecture sponsored by West Virginia's first lady, Rachael Worby.

His granddaughter, Rachel, performed a dance choreographed by his daughter, Andrienne Belafonte Biesemeyer.

TV actress reveals job concerns related to pregnancy

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Gillian Anderson feared that the perils of pregnancy could include losing her job.

The actress who plays FBI agent Dana Scully on Fox's "The X-Files" said the show's producers considered recasting her role after she got pregnant.

"I heard a lot through the grapevine, and it was not comforting," she said in the March 11 issue of TV Guide.

But executive producer Chris Carter says the grapevine got it all wrong.

"I never, ever considered replacing her. It's a lie. If anything, I was the loudest voice saying we have to protect this show and this person," he said. "We have to find a way to make this work."

Anderson says she was nervous because she knew she was never the ideal choice for the part. "They wanted somebody leggy and somebody with more breasts — somebody drop-dead gorgeous."

Anderson returned to work 10 days after her daughter Piper, now 6 months old, was born. She missed just one episode to start the second season.

What used to be called bottle caps is now known as Pogs. For many Iowa City elementary students, the high-stakes game is "like a kids' Las Vegas."

The game consists of Pogs, which are small cardboard discs, and a heavier disc called a slammer. Players ante up by piling the cardboard discs on top of one another and throwing the slammer down on top of them. If the discs flip over, the thrower wins the entire pile of Pogs.

There are two ways to play Pogs: professional and street. In professional Pogs, the player who flips the most Pogs wins the whole pile. In street Pogs, the players win what they flip.

Nick Mix and Mel Richards, both sixth-graders at Longfellow Elementary School, 1130 Seymour Ave., are avid Pogs players. They said most of their peers are too.

Students at Longfellow gather at recess to play the game, which Mix and Richards said is a lot like gambling.

"It's like a kids' Las Vegas," said Richards, holding his half-inch thick brass slammer with an "8-ball" on one side.

T. Scott Krenz/The Daily Iowan

Take a stack of half dollar-sized cardboard discs called Pogs, hurl a plastic or metal disc called a slammer at the stack and you've got a game of Pogs. The object of the game is to flip over the stack of Pogs with the slammer and collect the booty.

Mix said everyone at Longfellow — even the girls — plays the game. He said the girls play very well, using Spiderman Pogs similar to the ones the boys use.

He said kids trade Pogs, and sometimes play practice games, where players get to keep their Pogs.

Kids can buy a variety of slammers and Pogs decorated with superheroes or TV characters.

Dylan Moore, a clerk in the toy department at Wal-Mart, 1001 Highway 1 West, said basic plastic slammers are $2.50, metal slammers are $5 and a package of nine Pogs is $3.

Richards said metal slammers — his cost $7 — work best on high-stakes piles, but regular plastic ones work better on smaller stacks.

Finding the tools to play Pogs can be difficult, Mix and Richards said. Richards' mother bought his slammer in Davenport. The Fun Zone, 105 S. Dubuque St., and Bonnie's Toys & More, Eastdale Plaza, are the places in Iowa City to look for the pieces. Kmart, 901 Hollywood Bldv., sold out of Pogs. Wal-Mart also carries game pieces, despite the fact they were almost pulled off the shelves because they weren't selling.

"Before Christmas, the manager wanted to fire the guy who ordered the Pogs for us," said Moore, adding that sales have been booming since then.

Many kids go to Daydreams, 114 E. College St., asking for slammers and Pogs, said Crystal Zeadow, a clerk at the store. Daydreams doesn't carry the game pieces, and assistant manager Paul Tobin said the store never will.

But that's OK with Daydreams clerk Sheila Glennon.

"Kids only get so much allowance, and you kind of hate to see them blowing it all that way," Glennon said.

But money seems to be no object as the game gets more popular with Iowa City schoolchildren. Mix said Pogs can be sold to peers to recover lost money.

ARIZONA TICKET WINS JACKPOT

Powerball player scores $100 million grand prize

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — One Powerball ticket purchased in Arizona matched all six numbers Saturday to win the multistate game's $100 million prize.

The winner's identity wasn't immediately known Sunday.

There were 43 tickets that matched the first five numbers — but missed the Powerball — to win $100,000 each. They were sold in 13 states and the District of Columbia.

This was the game's third-largest prize. On Nov. 30, a $101 million jackpot was split between a woman from North Platte, Neb., and a man from Alexandria, Ind.

The game's biggest jackpot was the $111 million won by a Wisconsin teacher in 1993.

Woman's partially eaten remains found in lions' cage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The medical examiner was still trying to determine Sunday what killed an unidentified woman whose partially devoured body was found in the lions' pen at the National Zoo.

And police said they were working on figuring out how the woman got over the 9-foot wall and 26-foot moat that separate zoo visitors from a pair of African lions.

"All information about the autopsy results will be released by the medical examiner and the medical examiner only," said police spokesman Sgt. Joe Gentile. "Anything from any other source is not an official cause of death."

The Washington Post reported Sunday that the victim appeared to be in her mid- to late-20s and was carrying identification showing she was from Little Rock, Ark.

Homicide Detective Sgt. Clarence Muse confirmed that identification was found on the body but said police have not determined whether it belonged to the victim. He said he could not confirm it was issued in Arkansas.

Dole ponders vacating Senate position if he wins primaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole said Sunday he would consider stepping down from his post as Senate majority leader if early wins in Republican primaries next year make him the front-runner in the GOP presidential race.

The candidate who can capture the presidential contests in Iowa and New Hampshire is probably going to win the nomination, the Kansas Republican said on CBS' "Face the Nation."

"If I lose those two states, I can be full-time majority leader. If I win those two states, then I think I'd take a hard look at stepping aside," Dole said.

Nuclear weapons treaty inches toward expiration

Donald M. Rothberg
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — An atmosphere of suspicion among nuclear powers, nuclear aspirants and those who live in their ominous shadow is clouding prospects for permanent extension of a landmark arms control treaty.

The Non-Proliferation Treaty turned 25 on Sunday and is credited with slowing the spread of nuclear weapons and establishing safeguards to alert the world to the secretive programs of countries such as Iraq and North Korea.

"Nothing is more important to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons than extending the treaty indefinitely and unconditionally," President Clinton declared in a foreign policy speech last week.

To help achieve that goal, Clinton used the same speech to announce withdrawal of 200 tons of fissile material from the U.S. nuclear stockpile.

Earlier this year, the president said the United States would continue its moratorium on nuclear tests through 1996. Among the world's nuclear powers, only China is still conducting underground tests.

But for all the moves designed to win support from wavering nations, most counts still indicate there aren't yet enough votes for indefinite extension of the treaty.

And some backers of extension say the administration is overly optimistic in its vote count.

"Go outside of the administration and there are a lot of very nervous analysts out there," said Joseph Cirincione, executive director of the Campaign for the Non-Proliferation Treaty.

"Counting the votes, looking at the countries, figuring out what have you got to do between now and April to get these countries over, and we see that they're not coming over," he said.

Led by the United States, backers of indefinite extension will need 87 votes at the conference that opens in New York on April 17. And most counts put them about 10 votes short.

John Holum, director of the U.S.

Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, offered the upbeat administration assessment at a recent briefing.

"I expect that once we get the necessary 87 votes, the numbers will increase substantially because there no longer will be reason to hold out," he said.

"If the administration is right, then in the next few weeks we should see a flurry of declarations for indefinite extension," said Cirincione. "If we don't see that, that's a sign we're in trouble."

A major source of opposition to indefinite extension of the pact is the long-standing suspicion on the part of non-nuclear countries that the primary interest of the nuclear powers is maintaining their monopoly. They demand that the United States, Russia and the other nuclear powers do more to adhere to Article VI of the treaty, which commits nations to the goal of nuclear disarmament.

The Clinton administration points to the START II treaty that commits the United States and Russia to reducing their arsenals to between 3,000 and 3,500 warheads each — a drastic reduction from Cold War levels. Skeptics say that's thousands more than any other nation's arsenal. They also note that while the United States is moving ahead on ratification of START II, there is strong opposition to the agreement within the Russian parliament.

The third largest arsenal, that of China, is estimated at fewer than 500 warheads.

A second possible source of trouble at the conference is the status of Israel, which has never signed the treaty. Egypt is leading a move to demand that Israel join and submit to required inspections.

Widely assumed to be a nuclear power, Israel has declared it will not join the countries backing the treaty until there is comprehensive peace in the Middle East.

Critically ill baby defies death

Michelle Ortiz Ray
Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Four months after doctors told his parents they could do nothing to save him, Ryan Nguyen is going home — healthier, stronger and with a will to survive.

Born eight weeks prematurely with kidney damage, a bowel obstruction and possible brain damage, Ryan was at the center of a battle between his parents and doctors over how to treat the critically ill child.

Nghia and Darla Nguyen set aside their worst fears and held firmly to every wisp of hope. Now they're busy preparing for their son's homecoming today.

"We've ordered a crib. We are overjoyed that he gets to come home. It's a day we've been waiting for for so long," said Darla Nguyen.

Since his birth Oct. 27, Ryan has more than doubled his weight to upward of 14 pounds, and he's quick to smile at visitors at Legacy Emanuel Hospital in Portland.

Inside the neonatal special care unit, an audiotape plays love songs at the top of Ryan's crib as the Nguyens practice feeding him intravenously, checking his blood pressure and temperature and giving him medication.

Ryan was born by Caesarean section at Sacred Heart Medical Center in Spokane, Wash. The placenta had torn away from his mother's uterine wall, causing the baby to lose blood and suffer damage to his vital organs.

Doctors there doubted Ryan could survive and suggested he be taken off life support and allowed to die, the Nguyens said.

Continuing dialysis would be immoral, Sacred Heart officials said, and would only prolong Ryan's pain. Dr. Hrair Garabedian, director of the hospital's neonatal intensive care unit, thought Ryan couldn't live more than a week without dialysis.

In early November, Ryan was disconnected from dialysis machines.

"We were both very furious about it," Darla Nguyen said. "We didn't believe them. We knew that all the things they were telling us weren't true ... that he was a vegetable. He was moving his arms and legs and trying to look at us."

The Nguyens obtained an injunction from Spokane County Superior Court on Nov. 22 ordering the hospital to resume dialysis.

They also began searching for a hospital willing to admit their baby. They were rejected by three hospitals before Dr. Randall Jenkins, a pediatric kidney specialist at Emanuel, read about them and offered to treat Ryan.

"I knew that the hospital in Spokane ... lacked a children's kidney service," Jenkins said. "Since our hospital is well-equipped for handling infant dialysis, there was no reason not to offer help."

"Knowing that Ryan was alert with a good heart and lungs and a strong, loving family allowed for the early prediction that Ryan was likely to survive."

Unemployed and emotionally spent, the Nguyens found renewed faith. With an outpouring of public support, they also were able to resettle just across the Columbia River in Vancouver, Wash., to be near Ryan.

The couple have their own theories about the treatment they received at Sacred Heart. They claim the hospital botched the baby's delivery and not only wanted to cover up the alleged malpractice, but also were concerned about the family's inability to pay for extensive medical care.

Their lawyer, Russell Van Camp, is preparing a lawsuit alleging Sacred Heart violated Ryan's constitutional rights to live and is guilty of negligence.

Loners' rapport ends when bombs kill 5

Ben Dobbin
Associated Press

VICTOR, N.Y. — For a decade, theirs was a master-servant relationship of two loners with troubled pasts. But whatever loyalty existed between Michael Stevens and Earl Figley dissolved in a haze of blood, vengeance and betrayal.

Stevens, 54, an intense, manipulative man, goes on trial today in U.S. District Court in Rochester, charged with unleashing mail bombs that killed five people — including his girlfriend's mother, stepfather and sister.

And Figley, a harmless-looking alcoholic who did whatever Stevens asked, from cooking his meals to allegedly picking up a $225 case of dynamite using a phony Vermont driver's license, will be the star prosecution witness.

This is the story he is expected to tell:

Stevens' father, a grocer, often beat him severely. The effects were easy to see: He fidgeted, had difficulty concentrating and suffered a nervous breakdown in his teens.

After spells as a music promoter and cab driver, Stevens ran a series of small-time scams. His computer dating service attracted dozens of complaints in five states, and a coupon advertising scheme got him 20 months in prison.

His tendency to mouth off during his 1987 fraud trial didn't serve him well behind bars. An inmate smashed his jaw.

Just out of prison, Stevens met Brenda Lazore Chevere at a wedding. Her relatives said he was trouble for sure, and they knew it immediately; they say he threatened them several times. But Chevere, too, evidently had a temper; once, she slashed Stevens in the forehead with a pair of shears.

Prosecutors say Stevens' anger at Chevere's American Indian family was obsessive; he felt they excluded or slighted him. And at the end of 1993, Figley said in his 43-page statement that Chevere was threatening to leave Stevens and take their 2-year-old son, Noah.

After a pleasant Christmas Day dinner with Chevere's mother, Eleanor Fowler, and 15-year-old brother, Jonathan, Stevens decided "he would have to stop (Chevere's family) from supplying her with money or a place to live," Figley said.

Figley, 57, said he thought Stevens had disposed of the dynamite he bought for him in Kentucky that summer. But he said that when he and Stevens delivered the packages on Dec. 27 and Dec. 28, 1993 — by taxi, private courier and U.S. mail — he realized they were bombs.

One of them blew up in Fowler's face at her home in West Valley, 30 miles south of Buffalo. Another killed her husband, Robert, and a co-worker. Her daughter, Pamela, and a boyfriend were killed while baking pies in their kitchen in Rochester.

Fowler's brother, William, suspicious of the bundle mailed 350 miles to the St. Regis Indian Reservation near Canada, opened it outside his house with a rake. The blast threw him 15 feet, gouging his legs. Shrapnel killed his dog and injured his son, who was standing in the doorway.

Two bombs intended for another daughter and her husband failed to detonate or were intercepted by police.

Hours after the bombings, around midnight, police drove down the winding dirt road to Chevere's backwoods home. They wanted to make certain she was all right, to ask if she knew why her family had been targeted and to check on Stevens.

Stevens, a short, pudgy man with glasses, answered the door wearing his pajamas. He appeared nervous and upset and at first didn't want to accompany Chevere to nearby Rochester to possibly identify a body. Advised that the grieving woman could do with some moral support, he relented.

Just then, Figley poked his head out of the basement. Stevens told the detectives he'd forgotten his friend was visiting. Figley stayed behind to look after Noah but later agreed to come in for questioning.

Initially, police treated Stevens and Figley as potential victims or witnesses. But suspicions intensified as information from Chevere's surviving relatives and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms filtered in.

Investigators noted Figley's disfigured face. He lost his right eye and a chunk of his brain in a 1958 car crash in Michigan. And when investigators asked the former science teacher for identification, he pulled out a red wallet.

Through the night, Figley and Stevens were interviewed casually in separate rooms.

By daybreak, confronted with evidence that a look-alike with a droopy eye and a red wallet was seen in Mount Vernon, Ky., buying dynamite that matched an unexploded bomb, police say Figley admitted helping Stevens deliver half a dozen bombs to Chevere's family.

"We confronted Earl with things that we knew, and eventually I think he realized we had enough on him so he might as well cooperate," said William Barnes, a homicide detective renowned for ferreting out confessions.

In return for a 20-year sentence at a minimum-security prison, Figley pleaded guilty last month to conspiracy to mail dynamite sticks and shrapnel packed in fish-tackle boxes with intent to kill.

But Stevens' lawyer, Peter Pullano, contends Figley orchestrated the attack and said prosecutors have "shown that they'll deal with anybody to try and get evidence," including four inmates who allege Stevens tried to enlist them last year to kill Figley.

Computer users tap into Endeavour information

Marcia Dunn

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — It was bound to happen: Cyberspace meets outer space.

For the first time, NASA is providing public computer access to virtually all aspects of a space shuttle flight via the Internet, including occasional exchanges with Endeavour's seven astronauts and continuous updates on their astronomical observations.

Computer users can even come aboard and receive pictures and audio tapes of the crew.

It's causing a cyberspace stampede.

More than 350,000 requests for mission information have poured in since Endeavour blasted off Thursday.

Here is a sample of computer messages from people logging on around the world:

"One small step for NASA, one giant step for the Net."

"Absolutely amazing, beam me up!"

"This was great; I didn't even get airsick."

"Godspeed Endeavour! I always wanted to say that."

Becky Bray, a payload activity controller at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., is leading the "Welcome to Astro-2" effort. Astro is the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's name for the three ultraviolet telescopes aboard Endeavour; this is their second space flight.

"We're pretty out there in the realm of my wildest dreams," Bray said Sunday.

An engineer in Bray's software branch tapped into the Internet at work last summer, about the time NASA's public affairs office went on-line with news releases. The next thing Bray knew she was organizing NASA's first on-line shuttle mission.

NASA scientist Robert Stachnik calls it "a virtual reality tour of the shuttle."

"It's an opportunity to share our excitement in this exploration," he said.

Among the information available on the World Wide Web: Endeavour's exact location over Earth, stellar observations by the Astro telescopes and sky charts, crew and ground control team photographs, snapshots of the cockpit, taped conversations from four of the astronauts, even NASA-TV broadcasts of the mission that appear in a 1-inch square.

About the only thing missing is a live view out the shuttle windows.

"The technology is there," Bray said. "We'd like to do that, but it's always the dollar sign."

As always, the astronauts' medical conferences and family conversations are private. In addition, the astronomers involved in the 15-day mission are reluctant to send out their ultraviolet measurements of stars, galaxies and quasars.

"It's an open book other than that," Bray said.

Questions from computer users, many of them youngsters, range from astronaut pay and stellar discoveries to provisions for a shuttle search and rescue operation "if the need, heaven forbid, arises." Each inquiry is directed to a ground controller or scientist who responds by computer. Bray periodically sends up a question for the astronauts to answer.

NEW LEADERS HAVE A MANDATE

Is the UISG a mini-GOP?

Two great political bodies got thumped like overripe watermelons last week.

The GOP saw the first setback to their much-heralded and little-discussed "Contract With America" when the Senate failed to pass the balanced-budget amendment. Meanwhile, a little closer to home, the UI Student Government election drew a mind-numbing 3 percent to the polls.

The first provision of the "Contract" is the Fiscal Responsibility Act, and as the act's first part — the balanced-budget amendment — smolders on the south steps of the Capitol building, the second part — a line item veto — has yet to be discussed.

Very few people even realize what the "Contract With America" is, much less what it says and means.

Based on last week's election results, the same could be said about the UISG.

Although they probably don't realize it, most UI students know what the UISG does; they apparently just don't care.

Make no mistake: Students do not care. The vast majority don't care about tuition increases, increased fees, slumlord apartment managers, campus and city parking, or the way Iowa City laws are created and administered, for that matter.

It's not that students are too busy with class work, jobs, drinking or other interests. Most students, like their parents, don't care.

Americans are raised like crabs on a stove. If you drop them into a pot of boiling water, they'll jump out. But if you put them in and then slowly turn up the heat, they will stay there until they boil.

In unpleasant situations — times of tuition increases, lousy apartments, classrooms without air conditioning — students, like their parents, might complain, but they will not make the effort to climb out of the pot. Parents don't care about the state and federal governments, and students don't care about the city and campus governments.

A completely ignorant and apathetic public allows the Republican Party to believe they have a mandate from the people to wreck the nation's social structure and loot the economy. If Republicans have their way, they will transform the country from an indebted Amtrak train into a derailed steam engine with an empty coal car and a ruptured boiler. And their robber baron cronies and PAC-pumping CEO pals will make off with the national payroll.

New UISG President Tim Williams and Vice President Jeremy Johnson have a mandate. They shouldn't be concerned with the 3 percent of the students who voted; they should look to the 97 percent who didn't. Their silence was deafening.

They have a mandate to not only increase student fees, but to reward student senators with academic credit, reserved parking, cash payments, corporate sponsorships and scholarships and anything else they can get their hands on.

This is Democracy, as our parents teach us. The GOP is proving that in Washington, so it should come as no surprise if the UISG proves it in Iowa City.

'CONTRACT WITH AMERICA'

Signers can't be serious

The balanced-budget amendment went down in defeat last week amid the sort of histrionics associated with professional wrestling. As Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole insisted, it wasn't back-room dealing just because the doors were shut.

But it was tense down to the wire. Public opinion polls indicated that support for the amendment was high — around 80 percent — unless the pollsters asked for details. Then support dropped, or at least got confusing, because no one knew how the public wanted this balancing act done.

So how do we balance the budget?

The Republicans' "Contract With America" specifies that neither Social Security (22 percent of the budget) nor military spending (19 percent) be touched. Interest on the debt (14 percent) cannot be left unpaid. That means we balance on less than half. Either all programs in that touchable half are cut by one-fourth or we eliminate all spending for foreign aid, science, energy, natural resources and the environment, agriculture, transportation, community and regional development, education, training — get the picture?

Republican proposals to get our collective house in order are vague at best. For the sake of our children — as some of them keep insisting — it's to be done by flushing out welfare, child nutrition programs and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. But even if these Republicans get every single program and spending cut they want, we still come up at least $800 billion short by the end of the century.

Republicans, at least those who signed the "Contract," cannot be serious. If they are serious, they cannot possibly be sane.

Given the promises of the "Contract," there is no way the budget can ever be balanced. Therefore, the amendment is necessary in order to lock in certain provisions that under normal conditions would spell instant political death. More bluntly put, not only would going cold turkey on a slew of government services make a lot of people very unhappy, but destroying the mechanisms developed since the 1930s for controlling the economy could mean that the next economic downturn drops into genuine depression.

It's 1932 all over again, and members of the House and the Senate think a silly piece of paper is going to save their collective backsides once people figure out what's going on.

But maybe our elected representatives are not that stupid. The whole budget debate was a touch too calculated, as if our former minority party was the dog that finally caught the car it had been chasing.

Everyone — Republican or Democrat — coming up for re-election in 1996 voted for the amendment. Unworkable, impractical and gutted by the compromise to get Sam Nunn on board, its defeat seemed as if it was staged by two old men — Dole and Robert Byrd, D-W.Va. — going at each other like Hulk Hogan and the Macho Man.

With this round over, what's next?

Generalissimo Gingrich: Viva la revolución?

Cognitive dissonance is what the human mind endures when it perceives associations it resists piecing together. Like an alarm system, this set of bells sounds a warning knell when the brain confronts as reality something it knows cannot be true. It is a panic attack, as it were, of the reasoning mind.

Newt Gingrich triggers such panic attacks regularly. I would argue this is good because he's trying to get away with philosophical murder and now is no time for the nation to turn the other way.

Gingrich is a conservative idol who touts himself as a revolutionary. This verbal gymnastics stunt is made possible by an exertion of will that should send chills down our spines. Instead, people line up to buy. This is how our 104th Congress has come under the spell of an anti-revolutionary who uses warmed-over social and moral cant from the 1950s as the basis for his plan to send America back to the Eisenhower years. So far, he's succeeding.

Let's look at Gingrich's first 100 days to see what falls under the rubric of his revolution. First came prayer in school, which fueled the gossip mill for weeks. Nothing could be less revolutionary or more retrograde.

Gary Wills noted of the prayer issue, "It is odd because some of the new Republicans think our schools have failed because they have given up prayer yet also believe that Congress has been little better than a cesspool in recent years, and all that time its members have been praying constantly." Wills also pointed out the obvious — that the notion of formalized school prayer is an attack on the Constitution these same Republicans talk about but clearly have neglected to read.

The fact is, moral decay is something that has had conservatives frightened since humankind first began to write down its preoccupations and philosophies. Gingrich's new take on morality is a fabrication: we are in trouble; our art is degenerate; our families are disintegrating; our men are losing their strength; our women are losing their innocence. If we don't stem the tide, American civilization as we know it will end. I have news for the generalissimo of the "New American Revolution": American civilization as we have known it will end anyway. The question is when and how many people will get hurt in the process.

Gingrich is very fond of his laminated "Contract With America," into which he punches a hole each time a legislative initiative outlined there is passed by Congress. It should be noted, however, that the "Contract" would be full of holes even without Gingrich's paper punch.

The "Contract" is a lot of anti-elitist, neoconservative doctrinaire tripe. Considering what elites the Founding Fathers were, that's fairly bold on the part of historian Gingrich. Insidiously, the effect of the "Contract" is to dismantle the government envisioned in the Constitution. Term limits, the gag rule on free speech (when it pertains to abortion information), gutting congressional control over government spending — all these points baldly subvert the intent outlined in the Constitution.

Further, the "Contract" makes the hilarious declaration that the Founding Fathers would be appalled by the existence of professional politicians. This is flagrant falsehood. The Founding Fathers were professional politicians; they adored politics and would typically only leave Washington to accept state-level political office — if they left at all. Still, the "Contract" insists: "It would be unthinkable for them to imagine full-time politicians." Balderdash.

The "Contract" is little more than a temper tantrum on the part of the frightened — a boulder thrown onto the road to stop social progress. Such a measure is radical only in that it is likely to hurt many people. Already, cuts are targeting prenatal health programs, programs that feed schoolchildren, and programs that give single mothers and their children a place to live. National arts initiatives are in deep trouble. Injured parties hoping to sue corporations for malfeasance face drastic diminishment of available legal avenues.

No one would deny that many current government programs are disastrously run free-for-alls. But instead of trying to give government a good swift kick to make it work better, Gingrich wants to dismantle it. His goal has nothing to do with the Constitution, our Founding Fathers or traditional values. It is a loony escape, a cynical impossible dream taken up by the quixotic Gingrich and a core of friends. These friends are heavily involved in business and politics, most notably through GOPAC, a murky political action committee and Gingrich's favorite revolutionary toy.

Those who plot the revolution in GOPAC alongside Generalissimo Gingrich stand to gain huge profits from the dismantling of government programs and the repeal of legislation. Gingrich is crusading on behalf of the same old whiny robber barons always championed by conservatives, making him a truly underwhelming revolutionary force. Instead of greeting him with the cry "Viva la revolución," we should shout, "Hasta la vista, baby" and send him packing.

JAMEY PREGON

Running out of gas on the Internet highway

"Hi there. My name is Ryan. I'm a freshman at the University of Iowa. Where are you from?"

"I'm from Des Moines. I go to Drake University. My real name is Jen, by the way. What's up in Iowa City?"

"Not too much. I'm done with classes for the day, and I don't feel like studying today."

"Me neither. I'm just kind of bored, actually. I don't feel like going out, and there's nothing good on television."

As you read this, you may not notice anything out of the ordinary about this conversation. Conversations like this one occur every day. But this conversation is linked to the new wave of the future, and as the conversation progresses, it illustrates a problem this new wave cannot solve. The computer age has brought us communication abilities that generations before us never dreamed possible, and the information superhighway does indeed seem to be here to stay. Along the all-powerful Internet, there are countless computer-generated bulletin boards, and among them is one based at the UI known as the Iowa Student Computer Association. The above conversation was made possible by ISCA.

ISCA itself is not a bad thing; in fact, it is a very good thing, as are the many other similar bulletin boards that can be accessed on the Internet. There are many different forums on ISCA in which topics ranging from politics to sports can be discussed and debated. Unfortunately, a significant percentage of the thousands of ISCA users from across the Internet log on to ISCA not for its useful nature, but instead to establish high-tech relationships with people whom they have never really met. Many problems arise from this ill-advised use of the Internet.

Most of the problems on the surface of this substituted social environment involve the apparent addiction to this innovative way of "meeting" people. There are stories of people's grades falling — even to the point of dropping out of school — largely due to the fact that they find ISCA more alluring than their homework. And for those brave souls who find the courage to leave their computer terminals in favor of making a phone call to the person or persons that they "talk" to via the Internet, their habit becomes expensive, as often the phone call they make is long-distance.

Granted, the Internet provides us with a valuable opportunity to meet people we otherwise would not meet, but some have difficulties drawing the line at how far they will go.

Perhaps one of the most perplexing situations that arises on the Internet comes when users choose to log on to the system not for an intellectual connection, but a love connection. This exercise in futility boggles the mind. People meet, fall in love and plan their lives together — all through a computer. Some "couples" actually meet in person at least once or twice before declaring their undying love for one another, while others have a love that is strong enough that they do not even need to meet each other until the wedding day. Now maybe I'm just a cynic, but even George Lucas didn't envision this type of dating in "Star Wars." Someday, I would rather be able to tell my kids that I met their mother while saving her from Darth Vader, not that I met her while surfing the Internet in search of girls with the most suggestive user names and profiles.

The main problem with the cyber-relationships that ISCA and other bulletin boards make possible is one that not even the most advanced computer would solve. Where is the human contact? How can words on a screen, no matter what they're saying, replace the spoken word? How can computer conversations take the place of having a few beers with your buddies at the local bar? How on earth can you compare spending hours in front of a computer talking to your future husband / wife to actually talking to them in person? You can say anything in the world to another person if you are simply typing it and not looking them in the eyes and saying it. Tell me how a computer is ever going to replace that.

The age of technology is here, and it is here to stay. Computers can do almost anything today, and soon there will not be much that they cannot do for us, or even to us. But computers will never be able to replace the basic human need for other humans. They can provide substitutes, but they are at best highly inadequate. Clifford Stoll, whose book "Silicon Snake Oil — Second Thoughts on the Information Highway" comes out next month, said it best when he wrote, "A poor substitute it is, this virtual reality where frustration is legion and where — in the holy names of Education and Progress — important aspects of human interactions are relentlessly devalued." There really is no substitute for the real thing, and maybe we needed technology to show us that.

The Iowa Senate voted Thursday against reinstating the death penalty in Iowa. Do you agree with that decision?

Becca Kass, UI freshman majoring in premedicine and art

"I think it was an excellent decision. If we say we can kill criminals, it's like saying it's OK for other people to kill, too. Who can play God?"

Chad Kruse, UI sophomore majoring in biology

"I think it's a wrong decision. We have to have the death penalty to prove a point that we take murder and other crimes seriously. If we don't have the death penalty, we won't be making that point."

Irene Lewis, UI sophomore majoring in education

"Yes, I believe in life imprisonment with restitution. It would be a little more fair than when people who aren't guilty are put to death."

James Tinsley, UI senior majoring in communication studies

"I'm glad it didn't pass. It's against the law to kill, so the government shouldn't kill, either. No matter what status you are, you don't have the right to kill."

Parties should listen to people, not ambitions

To the Editor:

Could someone please explain to me why the Democrats in Iowa have changed their position on property taxes? The Republicans would like to give everyone a 15 percent income tax cut, while the Democrats want to cut property taxes. Are these not the same Democrats who two years ago fought against a property tax freeze which really only froze the rate at which the tax could be collected, not the fact that the assessed value could still go up, allowing for higher taxes? Now the Democrats change their tune when cutting taxes is politically correct. They say that a 15 percent income tax cut would be "welfare for the rich." Are they saying the rich do not own more property than the working poor? Many of the working poor do not even own property, so they would not benefit from a property tax cut. I have never heard of landlords lowering rent because they don't need as much, have you? Why do we have to cut anything? What has happened to saving for a rainy day? If Iowa could show that it has a surplus of funds to take care of Iowa when a disaster hits and not wait for the federal government to make up the difference, don't you think it would encourage more business? Saving surplus is a good idea; besides, the majority of the surplus is due to the 1 cent sales tax increase which affects the working poor more than the rich anyway. I wish both parties would listen to the people, not their own political ambitions.

Get involved in student government

To the Editor:

As the Graduate and Professional Student Senate (GPSS) executive officer, I have been encouraging students to get involved in student government. Most people say they are too busy or have too many other activities to worry about. That is understandable as most students do have busy schedules. I would like to share an example of when a little participation would have made a world of difference to some student groups.

As you may have read, the UI Student Government recently refused an appeal from three groups of dental students who missed a mandatory budget meeting. They said they were not notified. The senators were concerned with the precedent being set in such a way that a group could skip a mandatory meeting and still receive funding, so the appeal was denied. If the dental program had someone active as a senator on the GPSS, that senator could have informed these groups about the budgeting process and the dates of the mandatory meetings. While it is unfortunate that three groups will receive no funding for the upcoming year, it could have been avoided by having at least one person from the program become a student senator.

Student government usually has only two meetings a month, and the average meeting is about two hours long. For four hours a month, this problem could have been avoided. Seats are still available on the GPSS for the 1995-96 school year. If anyone is interested in becoming involved in student government, contact the UISC office at 335-3859.

Internet overloaded

To the Editor:

Hopefully, The Daily Iowan will take heed from Kathryn Phillips' story on Feb. 23 regarding the explosion of e-mail accounts on Blue. As the number of Internet users continues to grow, the problems at Weeg and the information technology centers will increase in their significance to the UI community. The fact that people are wanting to use e-mail for basic communication suggests that the cultural impact of the Internet is penetrating deeper than mere cyberdating.

The typical DI stories of full ITCs or difficulty of logging on are indicative of a more serious phenomenon, one that DI reporters should be more vigilant in covering. For example, there was no follow-up when Chris Preuss, the manager of information services at Weeg, noted that Weeg wants to "give service to more people and try to mediate their behavior with other things." What exactly are those "other things" that Weeg will be mediating? And how will Weeg mediate?

Another problem with Phillips' story was that it wasn't balanced. Phillips only spoke with casual users of Blue, people who were admittedly using the Internet because of peer pressure. While it is significant that people are using the Internet to sidestep long-distance charges, these users are in fact the source of the backlog on Blue. Ask any graduate student who is managing 50 pieces of e-mail per day whether they think access to Blue is important. Refused log-ins are not just "frustrating," but often set back research and timely correspondence with prospective employers or colleagues. By insisting on offering some service to everyone, Weeg is bringing down the quality of service for those who need it most.

As the system works now, a federal grant allows any student with a warm body to walk into Weeg and get an email account basically for free. This system is a remnant of the "olden days" not more than three years ago when the Internet was used entirely by scholars and scientists to communicate.

Why indeed is Weeg giving away e-mail accounts and bogging down the system for people who are trying to follow their professional listservs and research their theses? If the Information Arcade can ban games from their terminals, why can't Blue limit their accounts to people with legitimate research to do? These would have been tougher questions for Preuss to answer.

But this isn't really Phillips' fault. The example set by all the local news media is to treat the Internet like a toy and to fuss over disinformative issues like cybersex. The DI would do better to cover the Internet community in Iowa City as a regular beat.

GUEST OPINION • STEVE COLLINS

Search committee open to comments, concerns

As the search for a new UI president heads into March, I wanted to share some thoughts on the search process.

One of my goals is to make the search process open. That's why our early meetings have been open to the public and news media — to let the UI community and the public at large see how we are operating.

While being committed to making the process as open as possible, I'm also committed to maintaining candidates' confidentiality until on-campus interviews take place. I've gotten a lot of advice from people who've been involved in presidential searches and from candidates themselves, all of whom say confidentiality is the single most important factor in conducting a successful search. Without it the best candidates won't apply or will withdraw.

While being committed to making the process as open as possible, I'm also committed to maintaining candidates' confidentiality until on-campus interviews take place.

There's obviously a tension between the goals of openness and confidentiality. My hope is that we can attract the best candidates by promising confidentiality and that we can retain the trust of the community by keeping everyone informed of what we're doing. The on-campus interviews with candidates will provide an opportunity for people to voice their opinions before the search committee, and the Iowa state Board of Regents make a final decision.

Because we have opened our meetings to the public and the press, you may have already read about the committee's efforts to develop a list of 17 criteria for use in evaluating presidential candidates. I'd like to offer my own perspective on some of the issues raised.

We recognize that no candidate is likely to be exceptionally strong in each area. The search committee will need to decide how to weigh an individual candidate's relative strengths.

The search committee recognizes the major contributions that Iowans and UI alumni make to the UI and the importance of the next president being able to listen to and inspire the confidence of the many supporters of the UI.

The committee compromised on the issue of whether the next president should have a distinguished record in teaching and research.

Many committee members believe that only a person with such a record could provide the intellectual leadership necessary to be president. The other side of the argument is that being a university president is a complex task, requiring a broad range of skills and abilities. There are undoubtedly some individuals without distinguished academic backgrounds who would do a fine job.

In an effort to broaden the pool of candidates, we agreed to require "a record that would qualify for appointment to a tenured professorship" and that would add distinction to the appointing unit. Nonetheless, we continue to think that a distinguished record of teaching and research is quite appropriate for the president of the UI.

We also revised the draft of a personal qualification having to do with the ability to approach controversy constructively.

The first draft called for someone who can view controversy dispassionately, but the shortcomings of that phrase were brought to the committee's attention by Lea Har-avon, a graduate student on the committee. She pointed out that there is a significant difference between viewing controversy dispassionately and approaching it constructively. Committee members agreed and adopted her suggested language.

There was also some debate about the criterion that calls for a candidate who understands the mission of the health sciences. Some committee members noted that other UI programs are also under stress and facing significant challenges.

It came down to whether there is something unique about the health sciences in 1995 that warrants special mention. With a change in wording, the committee agreed there was. Thus, this criterion calls for an "understanding of the varied disciplines and functions that comprise the University, including the teaching, research, and patient care missions of the health sciences in the context of a dynamic and rapidly evolving market and policy environment."

This is not to say that the next president shouldn't be mindful of the challenges faced by other programs. But we felt that was encompassed in the first clause of this criterion and in the first criterion that calls for "an understanding of the mission of an internationally prominent public research university that has a historic commitment to liberal undergraduate education" and "that has distinguished graduate and professional programs."

There was also some debate about the criterion that calls for a candidate who understands the mission of the health sciences.

As the search proceeds, I'll do my best to keep you informed of our progress and the reasoning behind our actions. Meanwhile, send me your comments and concerns.

Steve Collins is a UI professor of electrical and computer engineering and radiology. He is also chairman of the UI Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee.

ROAD RACES

Road Races' board of directors and race operations coordinator, said the Press-Citizen story falsely led local residents to believe $649,000 was misappropriated. He said he and other Road Races directors met with a lawyer Sunday night to discuss the possibility of suing the newspaper for libel. Other options will also be considered.

"My fear is that the general public will believe we embezzled $649,000, and then we'll have a problem," Lubaroff said. "If this negative publicity ruins our reputation, I fear we're not going to raise the money, and then we're not going to have the race."

Dan Hogan, managing editor of the Press-Citizen, said he is standing by Rosen's front-page story. He said he had not heard criticism of the article or news of a lawsuit. Rosen could not be reached for comment.

Mary Anne Madden was director of the United Way, a primary recipient of Road Races' fund-raising results, for 16 years and worked with Road Races officials from 1980 to 1993, when she retired. She said the two organizations were open with each other about finances. The in-kind figure is understood to be symbolic of an hourly wage for each Road Race volunteer, she said.

Bob Rehffuss, a certified public accountant who was treasurer of Road Races' board of directors from the organization's establishment to October 1994, said there has been no misappropriation of funds. Rehffuss, who is currently the financial adviser for Road Races, said in-kind money cannot be misplaced or stolen.

"(Fraser) certainly can't misappropriate any time contributions," he said.

Rehffuss said although he reviews expenses with Fraser every year to look for discrepancies, Road Races' budgets have never undergone a formal audit. He said this is not unusual.

"It is very common for not-for-profit organizations not to be audited," Rehffuss said. "It's expensive, and there's not a whole lot of reason for it."

All money raised by Road Races is accounted for, he said.

"Road Races put on the race. They have the finances and the entry forms," Rehffuss said. "They handle the cost of postage, but the pledges go directly to the United Way."

Iowa State Bank & Trust Co., 102 S. Clinton St., processes the pledge money, he said.

"A not-for-profit organization has to walk a real fine line," Rehffuss said. "If it raises and saves money, people get upset and say, 'Why should I give them money?' If it doesn't have much money, people accuse them of misappropriating funds."

He said while he senses a recent souring in the relationship between Road Races and United Way, the two worked well together for years.

"We were all a bunch of runners and liked putting on races," Rehffuss said. "It was a beautiful relationship at first, but over the years something in our relationship just changed. It's hard to describe."

Richard Breon, who finished his term as president of the United Way's board of directors March 1, said the United Way and Road Races are bound by a contract in which United Way pays Road Races $10,000 for rising administrative costs. In return, Road Races provides a race and fund-raiser which guarantees between $100,000 and $150,000 for the United Way, he said.

The contract, which went into effect one year ago, may have caused hard feelings between the two groups, Lubaroff said. He said United Way asked Road Races to appear before its planning and allocations board — as do other United Way agencies. When Road Races refused — establishing it is not a United Way agency — the relationship became strained, Lubaroff said.

However, Breon said there has never been wrongdoing by either organization.

"We have always thought of the race as a great fund-raising event, and we're very supportive of the race," he said. "We've had questions and clarifications about things, but that's a normal routine."

"It would seem that the Road Races has done nothing at all inappropriate," Breon said.

Fraser said her budget figures are accurate, and she hopes to dispel any misconceptions about Road Races.

"I'm optimistic and confident about our future," she said. "We work very hard on this and want to ensure everything is on the up and up, so we encourage anyone to call us and we'll be glad to answer any of their questions."

Lubaroff said confusion about where money from the race itself goes also may be hurting the association's image.

While entry fees are sunk into race costs, the entry form clearly states runners' and sponsors' pledges are earmarked for charities, he said. If the entrant does not specify a charity, the pledge money is given to Hospice Road Races, 212 S. Dubuque St.

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. — Tim Allen was a double winner in the People's Choice Awards Sunday night for his roles on the ABC sitcom "Home Improvement" and in the Christmas movie "The Santa Clause."

Allen was chosen favorite male TV performer and favorite actor in a comedy motion picture.

The hit movie "Forrest Gump" and the NBC medical drama "ER" also won two awards apiece. NBC's "Friends" and ABC's "Ellen" tied for the award for favorite new TV comedy series.

Tim Daly and Annie Potts played host to an audience of 700 invited guests and 1,000 fans at Universal Studios.

During the program, Ron Howard was given a special tribute for his film and TV career as an actor, director, producer and film executive.

Unlike the Academy Awards and the Grammys, the People's Choice Awards are determined by a poll of the public rather than industry professionals.

More than 4,000 people were asked to list their favorite musicians, actors, actresses, TV shows and movies.

The winners included:

- TV comedy series: "Home Improvement," ABC.
- TV drama series: "ER," NBC.
- New TV comedy series: (tie) "Ellen," ABC; "Friends," NBC.
- New TV dramatic series: "ER," NBC.

- TV actor: Tim Allen.
- TV actress: Roseanne.
- Actor in a new TV series: Anthony Edwards.

- Actress in a new TV series: Ellen DeGeneres.

- Movie: "Forrest Gump."
- Movie comedy: "The Santa Clause."
- Movie drama: "Forrest Gump."

But even if lawyers intentionally hid the tape, it was they — not Simpson — who are responsible, Braun said.

"There is no logical relationship between what Cochran and Douglas did and O.J.'s innocence," he said. "It's just sort of nuts. Are prosecutors going to say, 'They broke the law, therefore their client is guilty?'"

"It is a specious difference to say, 'Hurt the lawyers, don't hurt the defendant,'" said former Los Angeles County District Attorney Robert Philibosian. The defense's actions hurt the prosecution's case and forced the judge to decide how much he would "level the playing field."

Simpson is accused of stabbing to death ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Prosecutor Marcia Clark asked the judge for stiff sanctions.

"They will continue to flout the law unless the court makes them pay," she told Ito. "It's a cost benefit analysis, your honor: If it doesn't hurt badly enough, then they're going to keep doing it."

But Friday's sanctions were $50 short of the threshold to report to the state bar association. And if the defense doesn't use Lopez's testimony, the jury will never even hear about their misconduct.

"Intentional or not, I think the order was just a slap on the wrist — $950 for these guys is just pocket change," Levenson said.

Will Friday's sanctions prevent future defense attorney misconduct?

Levenson doubts it.

Cochran already suggested the defense team was already putting the whole thing behind them: "He set the sanction at $950. We'll pay that and move on. Against me, it was imposed only because I'm lead trial counsel. And I accept that. We're big boys, big men, and we'll move right on."

"They should tread carefully, but these lawyers have a lot of chutzpah," Levenson said.

Cedar Rapids police have a key suspect in the murder but would not release the suspect's name.

Ingham's wife, Rebha, said police woke her early Sunday morning to inform her about her husband's death.

"At 5:30 this morning, an officer came to my door to tell me my husband had been stabbed," Rebha Ingham said.

Michael Ingham had gone to the bar Saturday night with a friend, his wife said.

Rebha Ingham said police began questioning suspects about the murder Sunday morning.

Michael Ingham is survived by his wife and a 17-year-old son.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

SALARIES

Leddy, in her fifth year as a UI faculty member, said she doesn't make much more than staff members who have recently been hired.

The UI makes an effort to keep salaries competitive with other universities in the nation. As a result, starting salaries increase each year, sometimes surpassing those of current professors, Leddy said.

"If you look at my salary and look at the salary of someone who just arrived at the UI this year, there's not much difference — and I've been here five years," Leddy said.

Although Leddy couldn't identify with Buchanan's complaint, she said salaries are a concern for all professors.

"I don't know why Professor Buchanan's salary is lower," Leddy said. "We all want to make the money we think we deserve due to our commitment to the field."

Pay increases are not based solely on the teaching a professor does, Leddy said.

"Over time, you have to sustain an excellent teaching record, excellent research record and excellent record of service," she said.

Research is an integral part of being a chemistry professor, Leddy said.

"Undergraduate students need to learn from research," she said. "Chemistry is changing all the time. My research is an important component of my ability to teach chemistry."

Leddy's workday is packed with activities that include teaching, advising, researching grant-funded projects, writing for the American Chemical Society journal and coordinating a summer undergraduate research project.

Such projects are examples of the criteria the UI uses to determine pay increases.

Each UI department is responsible for determining the increments of salary increases.

In the Department of Chemistry, a committee assigns scores to each faculty member based on several criteria. Raises are based on the scores, said Darrell Eymann, chairman of the department.

"I develop along with a three-person committee scores of up to 100 for each person in the department," Eymann said.

Rankings done by each department are based on their interpretation of the UI's three merit criteria. Salary increases and tenure recommendations are based on a professor's accomplishments in the areas of teaching, research and service.

"Salary increments are based on (Iowa state) Board of Regents mandates on merit," Aikin said.

Assessments of merit are interpreted according to the goals of each department.

"Merit of research in natural sciences would be the number of articles published," Aikin said, adding that the quality of publication and the ability of the research to generate money for the university are considered.

Student feedback on evaluation forms completed during the final days of each class also plays an important role in determining teaching merit, she said.

"In some departments like chemistry, there's even an attempt to quantify the value of the education," Aikin said.

A professor's service merit is determined by involvement in UI and community committees and contribution to the profession.

Because the merit system is based on the professor's work, length of time at the UI is not a factor. Professors who do not engage in research or grant projects may face stagnation in their salary levels.

"It's possible if over a long career a faculty member has not gotten a number of merit increases," Aikin said.

Gooden named Big Ten Freshman of the Year

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Iowa freshman Tiffany Gooden was named Big Ten Freshman of the Year Friday.

She led the Hawkeyes scoring in Big Ten play with 15.3 points per game. She also averaged 5.1 rebounds per game.

Purdue's Stacey Lovelace was named Big Ten Player of the Year.

Against Minnesota on Friday, Gooden scored seven points and grabbed five rebounds. On Saturday, she was second in team scoring with 12 points and six rebounds.

Gooden struggled to score in both games of the Big Ten tournament. She shot 3 of 13 against Minnesota and 6 of 19 against Penn State.

"The award was nice and I really enjoyed playing in my home state," Gooden said. "But I don't think it put any additional pressure on me. My shooting just wasn't there."

Strike talks break down once again

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Get ready for replacement players on opening day.

After a week of flickering optimism, baseball talks broke down once again Sunday, exactly four weeks before the regular season is scheduled to start April 2.

"Without a miracle," Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris said, "major league players will not be on the field opening day."

Both sides had agreed this weekend was critical if players were to end their 6½-month strike in time to return for the season's start. The 900 unsigned players need a week to negotiate contracts and all players need three weeks of practice to be ready.

"There's a pretty clear indication to me the owners have already decided to blow off the beginning of the season," union head Donald Fehr said.

Players and owners were angered by the proposals each made on Saturday. For now, there wasn't much for them to talk to each other about.

"We have to find a way to get back to the table and get back to work," acting commissioner Bud Selig said.

Owners began exhibition games last week with replacement players and minor leaguers willing to play and say they're prepared to open the season with them, even if attendance is cut substantially.

Hawks seize Big Ten title

Shannon Stevens
The Daily Iowan

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — It was just short of murder.

Iowa obliterated the competition en route to its 22nd consecutive Big Ten title last weekend.

Jeff McGinnis jump started the Hawkeyes with a first-round pin and the Hawkeyes never looked back.

The Hawkeyes pounded their opponents by capturing six individual titles and recording seven pins. All 10 Iowa wrestlers qualified for the NCAA Championships to be held March 16-18 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

No. 1 Iowa led the team scoring with 185 points. No. 5 Michigan State finished a distant second with 109.5 points followed by Minnesota (83) and Illinois (82).

Iowa coach Dan Gable was satisfied with the Hawkeyes' performance.

"Overall, I'd have to say that I had a pleasing day from a performance point of view," Gable said. "I think the potential of the team really came out. I thought they wrestled very well today even in the consolation."

Michigan State was led by Dan Wirsberger who won the 158-pound championship. The Spartans also captured two runner-up titles and had nine wrestlers qualify for the NCAA championships.

"This season has been a dream come true for Michigan State. We haven't done this well in a long time," Wirsberger said.

Gable also noted Michigan State's improvement.

"Michigan State scored a lot of points today," Gable said. "A lot of times 103 or 105 points might win a major tournament like this. It just so happened that we managed to qualify all 10 and to get most of them in the finals."

Lincoln McIlravy and Ray Brinzer sparked the Hawkeye attack with victories at 150 and 177 pounds, respectively.

Top-ranked McIlravy beat the Illini's No. 2-ranked Steve Marianetti, 6-4. With the victory, McIlravy won his second straight Big Ten title and Big Ten Wrestler of the Year honors.

McIlravy wasn't satisfied with the pace of the match.

"The match wasn't the type of the match I like to wrestle, I like a lot of points and a lot of action," McIlravy said. "I'll have to do that if I want to do well in the nationals."

McIlravy said he's looking for-

Hawks' best ball arrives too late

Mike Triplett

The Daily Iowan

INDIANAPOLIS — After struggling to a ninth-place finish in the Big Ten Conference, the Iowa women's basketball team came out last weekend playing the best basketball it's played all season.

And, boy, was it frustrating. "I just wish the way we played the last two games had happened all season," senior Tia Jackson said. "I just wish it had come sooner. Then this would have been a cakewalk trying to play Penn State."

It was top-seeded Penn State that knocked Iowa out of the Big Ten tournament Saturday, but the Hawkeyes didn't go down easy. Iowa ended the season at 11-17.

On Friday, Iowa used a 12-minute 24-4 run to end its 57-44 win over first-round opponent Minnesota.

Then the Hawkeyes came out in round two and hung with Penn State for 32 minutes until the nation's No. 8 team pulled away from a 45-45 tie to defeat Iowa 69-62.

Iowa builds case for NCAA tourney bid

David Schwartz

The Daily Iowan

If Iowa wanted to make a solid case to the NCAA tournament selection committee, Sunday afternoon's game against Michigan couldn't have been any stronger.

Iowa (18-10, 8-8) outscored the Wolverines 53-39 in the second half en route to an 89-69 blowout of a Michigan team that defeated Iowa in double overtime 83-82 back on Jan. 11.

Jess Settles and Chris Kingsbury each scored 19 to lead all scorers and Jim Bartels added 18 in Iowa's largest margin of victory over the Wolverines in 24 years.

Michigan (16-12, 10-6) managed to stay within reach of Iowa until a late 9-0 run put the Hawkeyes up 71-57.

Michigan freshman Maurice Taylor broke the run with a dunk, and on Iowa's next possession, point guard Andre Woolridge failed to recognize the shot clock winding down, forcing Ryan Bowen to throw up a long-range shot.

After an exchange of free throws between Settles and Taylor, Michigan's Ray Jackson hit a three pointer to bring the Wolverines back within 10, but that's as close as Michigan would get.

Following timeouts by both teams, Michigan began fouling. Solid free throw shooting down the stretch put the Wolverines away for good. In the final two minutes, Iowa hit 13 of its 16 free throws.

A Kenyon Murray three-pointer with two seconds remaining put Kenyon Murray shoots over Michigan's Maurice Taylor Sunday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Iowa whipped the Wolverines 89-69.

Iowa up by 20 and sent Michigan home still unsure of its hopes for an NCAA tournament bid.

One reason for Iowa's second-half dominance was its ability to shut down Michigan seniors Jackson and Jimmy King. The two combined for 15 first-half points, but Iowa coach C. Vivian Stringer also anticipates next season. She saw glimpses of the team's potential, but realized the Hawkeyes were not quite there yet. "Penn State is an outstanding team," Stringer said. "We were not healthy, and maybe quite honestly, we're not good enough. But we're going to be."

The Hawkeyes were hurting health-wise against Penn State. Iowa's only two centers (Tangela Smith and Jenny Noll) had four fouls apiece, which allowed Penn State easy access under the basket. The Lady Lions last 19 points were either free throws or layups.

While dreams of next season may have been in the minds of most Hawkeyes, there was another mood enveloping the locker room after the game.

The three Hawkeyes with their heads in their hands, looking down at the floor were seniors Arnedo Yarbrough, Antonia Macklin and "I feel better going into the nationals than I felt coming in here," he said. "Now all of the hocus pocus is gone."

In a repeat of last year's Big Ten championship finals, No. 2 Brinzer defeated Minnesota's top-ranked Brett Colombini, 4-1, to win his second straight 177-pound Big Ten title.

Brinzer pulled away from Colombini with a reversal early in the third period.

Brinzer said he wasn't surprised by the outcome of the match despite being ranked lower than Colombini.

"I feel like I did what I should have done," Brinzer said. "I would have been disappointed if I did anything less. Rankings are trivial, the only thing that counts is what happens on the mat."

Mike Mena, 118, McGinness, 126, Mark Ironside, 134, and Joel Sharratt, 190, all captured their first conference titles.

Ironside said he enjoyed his first Big Ten tournament.

"I've never been in a tournament like this," he said.

"I've never won a college tournament so it feels pretty good to win one this big."

Four other Iowa wrestlers also placed in the meet, including Bill Zadick, second at 142, Matt Norem, third at 167, Erik Stroner, fourth at heavyweight and Daryl Weber, fifth at 158.

Gable was encouraged by Iowa's victory, but wants to focus on the national championships.

"I still look at the Big Ten championships as a qualifier," Gable said.

"I don't want to take anything away from them... this is one of the toughest conferences. Mostly I see this as a stepping stone."

After coaching Iowa to its 22nd straight Big Ten title, Gable was awarded Big Ten Conference Coach of the Year.

Gable said he was grateful for the honor. He said he was surprised Iowa's streak has gone on for as long as it has.

"It's mind boggling when you think about it. So I don't want to think about it," Gable said.

were held to just nine in the second.

King, Michigan's leading scorer on the season, didn't score his first second-half points until less than a minute remaining.

"I think Kenyon Murray deserves an awful lot of credit. Our zone is kind of a unique zone defense and he's really our key player," Coach Tom Davis said.

Iowa turned the ball over only twice in the second half, while Michigan was forced into nine second-half turnovers, 22 for the game. Murray, the Big Ten Conference leader in steals, led all players with three.

Despite scoring just one point, Woolridge dished out 10 assists.

Woolridge suffered a sprained ankle during last Wednesday's game against Purdue and was still feeling the effects on Sunday, Davis said. Woolridge did not return to practice until Saturday.

"I think probably you get more assists sometimes when you don't look to score," Davis said. "He struggled a little bit with his shot and I think you can see that at the free throw line."

Woolridge, shooting just under 80 percent from the free throw line this season, connected on just one of four shots from the line.

Michigan, first in the Big Ten in defensive field-goal percentage, holds opponents to under 40 percent shooting per game. The Wolverines faltered Sunday as Iowa shot 51.9 percent from the field.

"To be up four or five with three minutes and then win by 18 or 20, I think that was a good sign for us today. We were able to have that killer instinct," Settles said.

Iowa was playing without big men Russ Millard and Greg Helmers. Helmers missed his second consecutive game with a sprained ankle. Millard, still recovering from pneumonia, checked into the hospital Sunday morning with a fever but was in uniform for the game. Although Millard was available, Davis said it was in the forward's best interest to sit out.

Picking up the slack in the middle for Iowa was John Carter and freshman Ryan Bowen. Carter and Bowen combined for 16 points in 23 minutes of play.

"Carter and Bowen hurt us. They got a couple of baskets when we were still in the hunt," Michigan coach Steve Fisher said.

Five minutes into the second half Michigan pulled to within nine. Then, from well beyond the top of the arc, Kingsbury sunk a 3-point shot that looked like a prayer and sent the Carver-Hawkeye Arena crowd into a frenzy.

Kingsbury insists that luck had nothing to do with the shot.

"King pushed me from behind on that one. I was coming off a double screen and I was off balance," Kingsbury said. "I kind of looked at the rim, caught him off guard and gave him a look away shot instead of a look away pass."

Hawks knock off No. 1 Lobos

The fifth-ranked Iowa men's gymnastics team continued its dominance on the road by upsetting top-ranked New Mexico on Saturday 229.925-229.60 at the Lobo Invitational in Albuquerque. Arizona State also competed and finished third with a 218.325.

Iowa set a season-high with its team score of 229.925. The Hawkeyes' previous best was 228.10.

Junior Jay Thornton led the way once again for Iowa (5-0). He set a season-high in floor exercise (9.875) and in the all-around (9.7375).

Thornton was individual champion in floor exercise and finished second on the vault (9.35) and in the all-around.

Sophomore Sean Juguilon was the only other Iowa gymnast to win an individual event, scoring a 9.4 on the vault.

In addition to the performances of Juguilon and Thornton, Iowa used a balanced team effort to win the meet.

Aaron Cotter, a junior, finished second on the pommel horse (9.65) and on the still rings with a 9.75.

Baseball

The Iowa baseball team got out the broom this weekend as it completed a three game sweep of Missouri.

In their season opener on Saturday, the Hawkeyes used a six-run fourth inning to get by the Tigers, 9-7, in Columbia, Mo.

Highlighting the Hawkeyes big inning was a grand-slam by first baseman Jeff Wick. Colin Mattiace picked up the win and Kurt Belger earned the save, the ninth of his career, setting a new school record.

Game two on Saturday was called after six innings due to rain, but the Hawkeyes had already done their damage. A six-run third inning, highlighted by Jeremy Lewis' two run single with the bases loaded, gave the Hawkeyes all the offense they needed.

Matt Austin shut down the Tigers for five and two-thirds innings, allowing just four hits, to earn the 6-0 victory.

On Sunday, Missouri score twice in the bottom of the ninth inning to take Iowa to extra innings, but the Hawkeyes once again prevailed.

Gabe Wyckoff singled in catcher Steve Fishman in the top of the 10th inning to put the Hawkeyes up for good, 5-4. Robert Holst came in to record the save, striking out two batters in one inning of work.

With the win the Hawkeyes move to 3-0 on the season. Iowa travels to Lawrence, Kansas, to battle the Jayhawks March 10-12.

Women's gymnastics

The Iowa women's gymnastics team finished out its home schedule in style with a 190.95 to 190.475 win over Big Ten rival Michigan State.

It was the final home meet for three Hawkeye seniors, Cindy Terrell, Cathy Terrell and Misti Blackledge.

Junior Kim Baker was brilliant, breaking the school record in the all-around (39.125), and on the vault (9.925). In addition, she tied the school record on the uneven bars with a 9.80.

Baker also took first place in the floor exercise with a score of 9.75.

"(Baker) is one incredibly tough athlete," Coach Diane DeMarco said. "Not only does she possess great athletic ability but she is also so strong in the mental aspects."

While Baker enjoyed her finest day as an Iowa gymnast, several other Hawkeyes shined.

Junior Jodie Gray finished first on the balance beam with a 9.80, and finished behind only Baker in the floor exercise with a 9.70.

Cindy Terrell said farewell by finishing third on the balance beam (9.675) and fifth on the uneven bars (9.45). Blackledge placed fourth on the vault with a 9.60.

On Friday, Iowa was defeated by Iowa State, 192.075 to 190.9.

Baker led the way with first place finishes on the vault (9.85), the uneven bars (9.77) and in the all-around (38.80).

Freshman Grace Lee continued to impress with a second-place finish in the all-around (38.27).

She competed in all four events, finishing second on the vault (9.67) and fifth in the floor exercise (9.70). Kamerman also opened up the night by singing the national anthem.

"I did four events and hit on all four, and it just felt great," said Kamerman.

Men's track and field

Three more Hawkeyes may be making the trip to Indianapolis for the NCAA Men's Indoor Track and Field Championships next weekend.

Ed Rozell, Chris Davis and George Page joined Andre Morris as provisional qualifiers for the NCAA meet at this weekend's Last Chance Meet in Ames.

Rozell, Davis, Page and Morris provisionally qualified for the NCAA's with a meet-best time of 3:08.77 in the 4-by-400 meter relay. Page's time of 21.62 in the 200 meters also made him a provisional qualifier.

Morris qualified in the 400-meter dash at the Big Ten meet February 24.

All four athletes will find out today if their provisional times are fast enough to earn spots at the NCAA Championships.

Men's track and field

When the Iowa men's tennis team headed out to South Bend, Ind., for a weekend battle with Notre Dame, it hoped to score a major upset of one of the top teams in the nation.

The Fighting Irish served the Hawkeyes and their three-game winning streak a reality check as Notre Dame swept Iowa 7-0 Sunday afternoon.

Iowa managed only one doubles victory in the match and lost all six singles matches. The lone Hawkeye victory came from seniors Bob Zumph and Bryan Crowley, who were victorious in the No. 1 doubles position.

Iowa coach Steve Houghton said it was just a matter of facing a stronger team.

"We played well and I'm proud of these guys," Houghton said. "Notre Dame is the 15th ranked team in the country, so it was just a matter of them being a little bit better than us. Any time you face a team like the Irish you hope they have a down meet and they didn't."

The Hawkeyes didn't escape the meet unscathed as senior Bob Zumph twisted his knee one game into his singles match. Houghton said it could be season ending.

"When Zumph went down things started to go down hill from there. We don't know how serious it is but it was tough to get things going when he dropped out of the lineup," Houghton said.

Iowa should have known things weren't going to go its way when the Hawkeyes showed up for the meet on Friday and were told the meet - which was scheduled for Saturday - wasn't going to be played until Sunday.

"There were some scheduling mix-ups but it was a little irritating to show up and be ready to play and be told the meet wasn't until Sunday," Houghton said.

Iowa State's Jacy Holloway tries to move past Erick Strickland during their game Sunday in Lincoln, Neb. Iowa State won the game 79-77 with a basket by Hurl Beechum in the last five seconds.

Kansas claims Big Eight title

Doug Tucker
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Maybe Tom Asbury has more work ahead of him at Kansas State than he thought. And maybe Joe Harrington has done more work at Colorado than many people had assumed.

The Buffaloes, who hadn't won at Kansas State in 30 years, watched Asbury's team embarrass itself with 26.4 per cent shooting Saturday and buried the Wildcats 70-51 in the regular season finale, dooming the Wildcats to the No. 8 seed in the Big Eight tournament.

In the other Saturday finale, No. 19 Missouri treated its crowd to one of the most entertaining games of the season. Paul O'Liney supplied the last-second heroics in an 83-81 victory over No. 16 Oklahoma that stopped the Sooners' win streak at five and halted Missouri's losing skid at four.

In the two Sunday games, No. 3 Kansas beat No. 18 Oklahoma State 78-62 to capture the Big Eight title and Julius Michalik hit a 14-foot baseline shot with 4 seconds left that lifted No. 24 Iowa State past Nebraska 79-77.

Kansas (22-4, 11-3), overcame a brilliant 45-point effort by Randy Rutherford, and, incredibly, held star center Bryant Reeves scoreless for the first time in his career.

Iowa State (20-9, 6-8) trailed 42-35 at halftime after Nebraska forward Melvin Brooks hit two 3-pointers in the final minute of the first half to give the Cornhuskers (17-12, 4-10) their biggest lead of the game. Iowa State got 31 points and 15 rebounds from senior center Loren Meyer. Fred Hoiberg, who scored 12 of Iowa State's final 14 points, finished with 26. Erick Strickland led Nebraska with 22 points.

Kansas will meet the No. 8 seed Kansas State (12-14, 3-11) in the first round of the Big Eight tourney on Friday. Oklahoma State is the No. 2 seed. Oklahoma (22-7, 9-5) finishes as No. 3 seed.

Iowa State (20-9, 6-8) is the No. 5 seed. Nebraska's loss means the Huskers are the seventh seed and Colorado (15-11, 5-9) is No. 6.

The conference tournament has the No. 1 seed meeting Kansas State and Missouri (19-7, 8-6), the No. 4 seed, going against Iowa State in the two early games on Friday. In the late games, it will be the Oklahoma State against Nebraska and No. 3 seed Oklahoma against No. 6 Colorado.

Saturday was perhaps the most embarrassing day for Kansas State since Bramlage Coliseum opened in 1988. The Wildcats made just 14.3 percent in the second half as Colorado easily overcame a 33-29 halftime deficit.

"It won't take me long to summarize this," said Asbury, Kansas State's first-year head coach. "We can't shoot. We couldn't throw one in the ocean. We were in a complete coma offensively."

At Columbia, O'Liney atoned for blowing two last-second free throws two weeks ago in a loss to Nebraska.

First he rolled in both ends of a one-and-one with 3.1 seconds to go, forcing overtime. Then with exactly 1.5 seconds left in overtime, O'Liney hit a leaning 12-footer for the win.

Yes, he admitted, he was thinking about the two free throws he missed against Nebraska.

"It won't happen to me again," he said he told himself as he stepped to the line.

This time, it's Oklahoma's John Ontjes swearing never to let it happen to him again.

Charles Barkley struggles to hold on to the ball with Golden State's Donyell Marshall Sunday at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

the flurry, Johnson had five and Danny Ainge's 3-pointer at the end put Phoenix on top 108-99 with 6:05 remaining.

Hardway's sixth 3-pointer cut it to 108-105 with 5:28 left but the Warriors lost ground from that point and there would be no repeat of their last meeting with the Suns, a 139-128 OT victory at Phoenix on Feb. 17.

The win at Phoenix was the first for coach Bob Lanier, who slipped to 2-9 since taking over for the fired Don Nelson.

Down by four at the break, the Suns went back in front 73-71 midway through the third on A.C. Green's stuff and took an 89-88 advantage into the final period.

Golden State trailed early but came back to take a 62-58 halftime lead behind 20 points from Marshall.

BIG TEN WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

Penn State, Ohio State advance

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Penn State knew it had an edge over Indiana, an edge named Missy Masley.

The senior forward scored a career-high 27 points to propel the top-seeded and No. 8-ranked Lady Lions to a 72-64 victory in the semifinals of the Big Ten women's tournament Sunday.

"You have to go with your advantages," said Masley, who also led her team with 11 rebounds.

Indiana coach Jim Izard was convinced.

"Missy has hurt us every game," Izard said. "She moves well in the paint."

The Lady Lions finished with a 48-34 rebound edge, including eight first-half offensive rebounds that resulted in 10 points.

When Masley wasn't doing the damage, all-conference forward Angie Potthoff was.

Coming off the bench because of a shoulder injury, Potthoff scored 13 of her 17 points in the first half in just 10 minutes.

Penn State coach Rene Portland relished her team's effort, which began with a 15-2 run in the early going that established the Lady Lions' dominance.

"It was fun to watch them today," Portland said. "They did go out with a lot of intensity, and that's a reflection of the Iowa game yesterday."

Indiana failed to close the gap through the 7:37 point in the second half, when the score stood 65-44.

But the Hoosiers then tightened their defense, led by freshman center Quincy Barnes and her five second-half blocks.

Barnes finished with eight rebounds and center Stephanie Gray had 10 points, the only Hoosier in double figures.

Penn State faces Ohio State today in the championship game.

The Buckeyes (17-12) beat Michigan State 70-63 behind the hot shooting of Peggy Evans and Katie Smith to advance

Smith, the league's leading point-producer, scored 15 of her game-high 22 points after intermission.

Evans, who came into the semifinal game as the tourney's top scorer, finished with 19.

Suns keep Warriors reeling

Dennis Georgatos
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Charles Barkley scored 31 points and Kevin Johnson had 22 — 20 in the second half — as the Phoenix Suns beat Golden State 122-112 Sunday to send the Warriors to their sixth straight loss.

Donyell Marshall had 29 points and 11 rebounds and Tim Hardaway added 25 points, but it wasn't enough to reverse Golden State's tailspin. Hardaway made six 3-pointers, increasing his season total to 142 to surpass by one the team mark Latrell Sprewell established last year.

Pacific-division leading Phoenix, up by a point heading into the fourth period, lost the lead 93-91 when Sprewell hit a 3-pointer with 10:42 remaining.

Barkley quickly helped the Suns regain command, pulling up for a 6-foot jumper to trigger a 17-6 run. Barkley had seven points during

BIG TEN ROUNDUP

Spartans, Purdue battle to the wire

Associated Press

Michigan State and Purdue continue to share the Big Ten Conference lead, after the two won their weekend games.

Shawn Respert scored 24 points, including four free throws in the last 30 seconds Sunday, as 10th-ranked Michigan State held off Indiana 67-61.

In a game played in Champaign on Saturday, Cuonzo Martin scored 29 points, including five 3-pointers, to lead 17th-ranked Purdue to a 69-56 victory over Illinois.

In other games over the weekend, it was Iowa 89, Michigan 69; Minnesota 82, Northwestern 70 and Wisconsin 80, Ohio St. 69.

Michigan State's victory over Indiana wasn't easy. In fact, Michigan State coach Jud Heathcote compared it to a trip to the dentist.

"After the game I told my team that when I open my mouth to each pull out a tooth, because that game was like going to the dentist," Heathcote said.

"It seemed to us that during the eight days we were off Purdue won eight games. Actually, they won three while we were off but by winning today we still have our destiny in our hands."

Michigan State, which led 61-51 with 6:47 left in the game after a three-point play by Jon Garavaglia, managed only one more field goal the rest of the way. But Respert's four free throws and a key block by Jamie Feick on Alan Henderson's attempt for the tying basket kept the Spartans in the lead.

Henderson, who had 26 points and 13 rebounds, picked up a loose ball and scored on a layup with 1:32 left. He was fouled and hit the free throw to cut Michigan State's lead to 63-61.

The Spartans turned the ball over on their next possession. But Michigan State's Eric Snow goes up for a basket as Indiana's Andrae Patterson reaches in to stop the effort during the first half in East Lansing, Mich., Sunday. The Spartans won 67-61.

Feick blocked Henderson's shot from inside the free throw line and Michigan State's Daimon Beathia got the rebound. Respert was then fouled and sank both free throws.

For the Boilermakers, Martin hit 9-of-14 from the field, a perfect 6-of-6 from the foul line and was a big factor in Purdue (22-6, 13-3) forcing Illinois' 16 turnovers.

"I feel Cuonzo is the best player at both ends of the floor in the Big 10," said Purdue coach Gene Keady.

"It was possibly our best defense of the year."

Behind 33-20 at halftime, Illinois (17-11, 8-8) went on an 8-2 run to open the second half trailing 35-28. But Martin hit a 3-pointer to steady the Boilermakers.

BIG EAST

St. John's downs No. 24 Hoyas

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Freshman center Zendon Hamilton scored 21 points, 14 in the second half as St. John's rallied for an 86-77 victory over Georgetown in the final Big East conference game of the season Sunday.

James Scott had 19 points and 11 rebounds for the Red Storm (14-12, 7-11), who probably clinched an NIT berth with its fifth win in seven games. Felipe Lopez had 15 points and Roshown McLeod 12, all in the second half.

Allen Iverson, another freshman, had 28 points for the No. 23 Hoyas (18-8, 11-7) who had won four in a row. Jerome Williams followed with 20 and a game-high 20 rebounds.

The loss dropped Georgetown to fourth seed in the Big East tournament and the Hoyas will start off against Miami Friday. The tournament begins Thursday, when St. John's plays Pitt.

St. John's trailed 44-35 at halftime but outscored the Hoyas 13-4 in the first 4:48 of the second half for a 48-48 tie. Hamilton led the way with 5 points, and Scott had 4. Iverson gave Georgetown its last lead, 67-65, with two foul shots with 5:20 to play.

St. John's then took over, outscoring Georgetown 17-7 for an 82-74 lead with 52.4 seconds left. McLeod sparked the surge with 7 points.

St. John's led 11-10 on a free throw by Scott with 14:18 to play in the first half. Georgetown then scored 10 straight points, 5 by Kevin Millen, for a 20-11 lead with 12:04 left.

Georgetown led 31-23 with 7:45 to play before halftime when the Red Storm went on a 10-3 run behind Hamilton's 7 points, closing within 34-33 with 4:25 to go.

The Hoyas came back with the next 10 points, the last 6 by Williams, and took its biggest lead at 44-33 with 19.3 seconds showing.

FOUR-WAY TIE AT THE TOP

Cavaliers' victory hands Wake Forest ACC title

Associated Press

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — Virginia tied up the Atlantic Coast Conference like it never has been.

The 13th-ranked Cavaliers beat No. 6 Maryland 92-67 Sunday and the ACC finished in a four-way tie for first place for the first time in its 41-year history.

Wake Forest, North Carolina, Maryland and Virginia all finished the regular season with 12-4 records and that's the way they will be seeded by tiebreakers when the conference tournament gets under way this week in Greensboro, N.C.

"This is very satisfying, but not as satisfying as if we had sole possession," Virginia coach Jeff Jones said.

"The team worked hard and this senior group was able to accomplish one of its goals."

Virginia (21-7) won for the ninth time in 10 games as Junior Burrough scored 24 points, Harold Deane added 19 points and 14 assists and Curtis Staples had 18 points, all on 3-pointers.

Deane, whose 14 assists tied the school record, landed hard on his left wrist late in the game.

"They think it's a sprain and he'll have precautionary X-rays tonight," Jones said. "It's pretty sore and (the doctor and trainer) want to take a look at it, but they said in all likelihood it's just a sprain."

Maryland (22-6) was never able to get untracked offensively in having a four-game winning streak snapped.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Carolina wins ACC tourney

Associated Press

ROCK HILL, S.C. — No. 12 North Carolina entered the 18th Atlantic Coast Conference women's basketball tournament on a mission.

Mission accomplished.

On Sunday, the Tar Heels rolled past No. 22 Duke 95-70 in the Winthrop Coliseum to capture their second straight ACC Tournament championship. It's the third tournament title for North Carolina (28-4), which also won the title in 1984 and 1994.

North Carolina head coach Sylvia Hatchell said her team wanted to prove it was a better team even than its enviable record.

"We'd had a few losses. But I never want to go into a tournament undefeated. It's just too much pressure," she said.

The Tar Heels, who also are defending NCAA champions, showed Duke (21-8) that they were ready for the tournament.

"We knew what we had to do to get through regular season and we were waiting on the tournament to get here. These kids accept the challenge," Hatchell said.

North Carolina forward Charlotte Smith, the tournament's Most Valuable Player for the second straight year, said the Tar Heels are satisfied because they've earned each respect.

"We achieved that by going out there, playing hard. Everybody was ready to play today," she said.

Smith had 25 points and 15 rebounds Sunday. Marion Jones added 23 points.

Duke head coach Gail Goestenkors called Smith and Jones phenomenal players.

"They've improved every game, every year. You just can't stop them. We tried everything. We had nothing left to try to stop those two," she said.

North Carolina, which has a 12-game postseason winning streak, trailed Duke 39-38 at halftime. But five minutes into the second half, the Tar Heels went on a 17-0 run that lasted four minutes. Smith had seven points in the outburst.

Duke could not recover. "It's always tough when a team gets hot like that," said Duke center Alison Day.

"It seemed like they could do no wrong and we couldn't buy a basket. It's mentally tough when you keep going at them and couldn't get the easy shots to fall for us."

Colorado 76, Cowboys 58

SALINA, Kan. — No. 3 Colorado advanced to the championship game of the Big Eight women's basketball tournament, but it wasn't as easy as the score sounds.

The Buffaloes beat Oklahoma State 76-58 on Saturday behind 21 points from Isabella Fijalkowski and 19 more from Stacey Sheetz — but Colorado (26-2) had to overcome an ice-cold start.

The Buffaloes hit just one field goal in the first nine minutes, and Oklahoma State (17-11) raced to a 16-6 lead.

But the Cowgirls turned the ball over 18 times from that point on, and Colorado rallied with a 20-4 run, including four baskets by Fijalkowski, to take a 26-22 halftime lead. The Buffaloes never trailed after that.

"We came through in the clutch," said Sheetz, the Big Eight player of the year. "We kept going inside and we hit our shots we missed earlier in the game. We had to play until the horn sounded."

Colorado kept Oklahoma State at bay for nearly the first 16 minutes of the second half, never leading by more than seven, but never falling behind.

With 4:04 to play, Oklahoma State's Yogi York, who led the team with 12 points, was called for a charge and given a technical foul when she briefly argued the call.

DeCelle Thomas hit both free throws that followed, and Sheetz, who finished with 19 points, made both technical-foul shots for a 63-53 Colorado lead.

The Buffaloes hit 10 of their last 13 free throws to put the game away.

Oklahoma State head coach Dick Halterman was ejected with 39.2 seconds left when he drew his second technical foul.

Colorado advances to the finals for the sixth time in program history and for the second consecutive year. The Buffaloes were upset by Missouri in last year's championship game. Colorado will face the winner of Sunday's Kansas-Oklahoma game.

Johnson County Landmark

Johnson County Landmark, the traditional big-band jazz ensemble of the UI School of Music, will present a free concert of enduring jazz masterworks featuring guest trombonist George Paterson tonight at 8 in Clapp Recital Hall. The concert will be directed by John Rapson, head of the jazz studies program in the UI School of Music. The ensemble will play two scores that are on loan from the Smithsonian Jazz Masterworks Orchestra, which recently performed at Hancher Auditorium. "Shiny Stockings" and "I Never Knew" are both from the Count Basie Library. The ensemble will also become the first college band to perform Charlie Mingus' "Ecclusiastics," which was lent to the group by Mingus' widow.

'KATO' ONCE CONSIDERED A SUSPECT

Kaelin's incomplete manuscript divulges angles unseen in Simpson murder case

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Brian "Kato" Kaelin, the young actor who was living in O.J. Simpson's guest quarters when Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were slain, claims in a book manuscript he was briefly considered a suspect in the murders, New York magazine reports in its upcoming issue.

The magazine said in a news release Friday that St. Martin's Press will publish the book as soon as Kaelin finishes testifying in Simpson's double-murder trial.

E! Entertainment television reported separately from Los Angeles that Kaelin had signed a $500,000 book deal with St. Martin's.

John Murphy, a spokesman for the publisher, said Friday that no deal had been signed and no manuscript had been turned in. Murphy said he didn't know if a deal might be in the works.

New York magazine said the book was co-written with Marc Eliot.

In its March 13 issue, on newsstands next Monday, the magazine quotes a source close to Kaelin as saying it reveals Kaelin was considered a suspect in the hours after Simpson's ex-wife and her friend were found stabbed to death.

Prick
Prick

Now that Nine Inch Nails' Trent Reznor has stepped into the label game, it remains to be seen how much more influence he'll have on an industry that already worships him. Perhaps the first clue is Prick, a fledgling band whose eponymous debut is one of the first non-Nine Inch Nails releases on Reznor's Nothing label.

Prick sounds something like early David Bowie shoved through Reznor's seething, brutal consciousness — a wicked sideshow act led by a cyberpunk harlequin.

The strange combination of glam-rock preening and industrial noise is more disconcerting than Reznor's faux fetishism could ever be. Songs like "Riverhead" and "Other People" display that side very well, while "Animal" veers in a more dance-oriented direction.

Unfortunately, Prick, essentially a one-man band like Nine Inch Nails, covers just about every "Reznorism" there is — probably a direct result of Reznor's involvement. All the distorted screams, edgy whispers and swirling layers are there, and Prick's Kevin McMahon even seems to have borrowed Reznor's sound effects boxes and drum machines.

Overall, Prick is actually a bit weirder than Nine Inch Nails, but fans of the latter will probably find that Prick never really steps out of Reznor's shadow.

Associated Press

Brian "Kato" Kaelin has reportedly signed a $500,000 book deal in which he claims that he was briefly considered a suspect in the murders of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman.

Simpson is standing trial for the murders. Kaelin testified at Simpson's preliminary hearing last summer that he and Simpson went to McDonald's about 9 p.m. on June 12, then parted ways some 30 minutes before the time prosecutors contend the murders occurred.

The magazine news release said police took Kaelin into custody early the next morning and held him until 3 or 4 p.m.

In Los Angeles, police spokesman Lt. John Dunkin said he couldn't discuss specifics of the Simpson case and wouldn't say whether Kaelin was taken to a police station or considered a suspect.

The magazine says Kaelin would earn "in the mid-six figures" for the book, which it said was tentatively titled "Star Witness: My Life With Nicole and O.J."

Before moving into Simpson's guest house, Kaelin lived at Brown Simpson's home and helped look after the Simpsons' two children.
