GOP pulls off win in vote for tax cuts

Alan Fram Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Majority Republicans pushed $17 billion in spending cuts through the House and $100 billion more through its budget committee Thursday as furious Democrats accused them of reneging on a deal and using phony double-counted savings. The House voted 227-200 for a GOP plan slicing $17 billion out of already enacted programs, including public housing, summer jobs for youths and aid for the arts and public broadcasting. The cuts were the first the House has cleared in the Republican campaign to balance the budget.

The White House noted the occasion with a political swipe at recent GOP budget cuts and a veto threat.

"Everybody's for cutting govern-ment, but I think there's a real difference between closing 1,200 offices and cutting back on food stamps," President Clinton told a meeting of state legislators.

"There is no question that if the bill is in its present form, the president would veto it," Clinton's chief of staff, Leon Panetta, told reporters. He called the reductions "irresponsible and mean spirited."

Besides its spending cuts, the bill would provide $5.4 billion to help 40 states recover from recent nat-ural disasters. About $5 billion would go to California to aid its recovery from last year's Northridge earthquake.

Shortly afterward, the GOP muscled a plan through the budget panel that would make another $100 billion in reductions over the next five years to help pay for the See CUTS, Page 6

The combination of musical tradition and inebriation can make for some wild playing, he said.

New House bill cracks down on juvenile criminals

DES MOINES - More children could be tried as adults and their criminal records could be made public under a bill passed Thursday by a House

The bill drew both praise and criticism from members of the House Judiciary Committee, with opponents saying it could harm children's chances of rehabilitation and opponents saying it's the first step on the way to getting tougher on violent

"Right now, the system we have is not working. And juve-niles know this," said Rep. Paul Bell, D-Newton, a police officer.

The bill passed 14-3 by the committee is based on the juvenile crime package Gov. Terry Branstad pushed during his reelection campaign last year. However, one of the big changes between his plan and the committee's version of the measure is the age at which children could be sent to adult court for trial. Branstad wanted to lower the age to 12, but the committee decided to leave it unchanged at misdemeanors and felonies would immediately be made public, just as the names of adults are.

The measure would automatically send teens 16 and older to adult court for drug offenses involving weapons, gang activity and felonies. It also would raise the penalty for recruiting children into gangs, making it a crime punishable by up to 10 years in prison instead of the current five. The measure calls for a task force to be appointed and develop a plan for the juvenile courts and adult courts to share custody over child crime cases. The task force would have to report to the governor and Legislature by Oct. 1. Rep. Jack Holveck, D-Des Moines, said he thinks the bill is "regrettable" and he's disappointed with Branstad for "treating children this harshly."

"I think it's a sad commentary," Holveck said. Rep. Jeff Lamberti, R-Anke-ny, countered that by saying juvenile reform laws went too far in 1979 when they made all crime records private.

Lamberti, who sponsored the bill, said judges and juvenile crime officials are asking for the changes it makes.

The March 24-25 workshop will attract journalists from around the world in anticipation of September's Fourth United World Conference on Women in Beijing.

The forum is a chance for the public to get involved and gather information about the conference, said Judy Polumbaum, assistant professor of journalism and director of the event.

"The public forum is certainly an opportunity to learn about these meetings and women's issues.

"The object of our meeting is severalfold. One objective is to bring together journalists from China and North America so they will better understand and reach others' needs according to topics," Polumbaum said.

It is also a good opportunity for stu-

Since space will be limited and students will be on spring break, the Bijou Theatre will hold an additional screening of "Ermo" at 9 p.m. March 27 in the Ballroom of the Union. Admission is $3.50.

About 20 North American-based journalists and about 15 foreign journalists, including a delegation of Chinese women, will attend. All are experienced in covering women's events. UI graduate student Jian Wang will facilitate the "Media Preparations for Beijing '95" workshop. He said he is impressed with the fact a workshop like this can be held in the Midwest.

"It is a very rare opportunity to bring together media professionals who are U.S.-based and media professionals and scholars who are from the dents to network with professional Republic of China," Wang said.

Measure outlines penalty for fetus deaths during crimes

DES MOINES - Anyone accidentally killing a fetus while breaking the law could be charged with involuntary manslaughter under a bill approved by a House committee

The House Judiciary Committee approved the complicated bill, assigning the same penalty for accidentally killing a fetus as that imposed for unintentionally killing a person. "All we're saying is if you do the same thing that you do when you commit manslaughter but you kill a Rep. David Millage, R-Bettendorf, who sponsored the bill.

Unintentionally terminating a pregnancy would be punishable by up to five years in prison and a $7,500 fine if the law broken was not a Committee members explained the bill by using a traffic accident as an example. If a person was charged in an accident involving a pregnant woman and her fetus died as a result of that accident, the person could be charged with involuntary manslaughter, they said.

The committee approved the bill on fetus, that makes you guilty," said a 14-4 vote.

TELEVISION TALK SHOWS

Dishing it out for ratings

At a taping of an episode of "Jenny Jones" featuring people who harbored secret crushes, one man revealed he had a crush on one of his male friends. Sometime after the taping, the admirer was killed by the object of his affections.

Even though talk show ratings are dependent on the "truth is stranger than fiction" formula, Jones' spokespeople stated that they would not be airing this show. But the death of this man is an unfortunate truth, and it is certainly surrounded by strange circumstances. Jones' producers have probably reasoned that since the television viewers already know the horrific outcome of the truths unveiled during the taping of the show, why air it

After all, talk shows have a purpose. Their quest is to make you watch people whose lives are really horrible, embarrassing, seriously maladjusted and the like.

Just watching the show is enough to make you reflect on your own life and let out a loud sigh of relief. After all, talk shows have a purpose. Their quest is to make you watch people whose lives are really horrible, embarrassing, seriously maladjusted and the like. In comparison, you feel better about your own life. But no one can feel good about the death associated with Jones' "secret crush" show

Jones' show actively recruits people to say the ridiculous things we TV viewers hear. In one profile of Jones written for Chicago magazine, the writer detailed how the host would try and pump up the audience before a show. She reportedly would encourage audience members to ask bold and controversial questions of the guests.

But if these talk shows and their audience members didn't dish it out, who would watch? Rating estimates indicate that the average talk show garners some 7 million viewers per episode. That's a whole lot of people tuning in to see what today's ribald and bawdy talk show guests are up to.

Yet this recent incident involving the death of Jones' guest has stepped over the line.

It's time to realize that talk shows sometimes just don't click.

'Great change' vs. bloody revolution' To the Editor:

I'm writing in response to an article blished in the Feb. 2 Daily Iowan itled "Rutgers president retracts racist' statement" about student disapproval resulting from a comment made by Rutgers University's president, Francis Lawrence.

Lawrence said, "The average SAT for African-Americans is 750. ... Do we set standards in the future so that we don't admit anybody with the pational test? Or do we deal with a disadvantaged population that doesn't have the genetic hereditary background to have a higher advan-Tage?" Students and even the state Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were outraged by this and are calling for Lawrence's resignation, saying that he couldn't, as he claims, have just slipped and said that. Lawrence said he would issue a pubc apology, but he is facing no disciine from school officials

Lthink this article clearly demonstrates that even though the Civil War has been fought and is done, the lingering effects of slavery still hamper our nation. In a nation that claims life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for all, few people realize that the only way this is achieved for the najority is by oppressing the minority. There must always be some kind of prey for the capitalistic parasite to suck profit out of because without profit there is no system. And unfortunately, the more easily identifiable as different a population is, the more likely they will become the prey. This becomes clearer as we look back on history and see things such as crusades, colonization and slavery. The white majority in Europe began constructing a hierarchical system of ranks throughout the world. They marched onto the "new" frontier, blindly carrying on as if they had the right, dismantling cultures, stealing land and enslaving the indigenous populations when they wanted to.

These helpless "unadvanced" societies were left with no sense of cultural identity, no means of production and as a result were completely dependent on their oppressors. Thus, whites had an opportunity for profit through exploitation of these indigenous peoples. Whites successfully constructed a social ladder which they could easily ascend by stepping on the faces of the minorities.

The capitalist system — which encourages private ownership, private decision-making and friendly competition - seems to send the message that the end, profit, would justify almost any means. This hidden message seems somehow to be passed on, and oppression continues. But more and more, people are becoming aware of this horrific fact and standing up for their rights. How do we stop oppression? It seems to me that we have two choices: great systematic change and restructuring of the modern world or a bloody revolu-

Free Bjossa, Lolita and all the other captives

The Victoria Times-Colonist of Victoria, British Columbia, reported late last week that another baby orca, or killer whale, was born in captivity at the Vancouver Aquarium and died there moments later. This was the fourth cetacean infant to die - the third to an imprisoned orca named Bjossa.

The birth reportedly was planned to be a promotional primer of sorts for the aquarium. Aquarium officials invited the public to attend what they promised would be a memorable - even once in a lifetime - event.

And for reasons that aquarium officials had surprisingly not at all anticipated, it was. Bjossa's baby never made it to the surface for a single breath. The AR News newswire reported that as of Sunday, the baby's body was still adrift in the tank with its mother, while aquarium officials await what they describe as some sort of sign from Bjossa that divers may be sent in to retrieve the body.

The fantastic spectacle of new life that was promised has instead shown itself to be a sicklewielding indicator of why capturing and imprisoning cetaceans is nothing to celebrate.

To go into the intelligence of cetaceans in proper detail would most probably belabor the point. Suffice it to say that whales and other cetaceans are very intelligent; that they form close, lifelong family and community bonds; and that generally speaking, it is not in their interests to be tranquilized, captured or taken from the vast and open oceans to spend the remainder of their lives in the constricting tanklike confinement of an aquarium.

On Saturday, approximately 100 people gathered outside the Vancouver Aquarium to protest the capture and confinement of Bjossa and the death of yet another captive-born orca.

The Times-Colonist, to its credit, ran an editorial calling for the release of Bjossa, adding the voice of the media to those of the protesters.

The situation recalls the case of Lolita, the orca captured and held at the Miami Seaquarium and who ironically starred in the very popular movie "Free Willy." I say ironically because today there is a growing movement to free Lolita from her confinement in what Ken Balcomb, a marine biologist who founded the Center for Whale Research, describes as wholly inade-"Her tank is too small," Balcomb told the Knight-Ridder News Service in a March 7 interview. "It's basically a solitary confinement. It's archaic and, by modern standards, inhumane."

The Center for Whale Research is a nonprofit marine mammal research foundation that is hoping to offer the cash-motivated Seaquarium a monetary solution: buying Lolita from the

The center wants to purchase Lolita, rehabilitate her for survival in the seas and set her free among her pod, the social group of Puget Sound whales into which she was born. And they are willing to pay up to $2 million for Lolita. In addition, the Seaquarium would be granted rights to a documentary film to be made about her release.

But because the Seaguarium sees her as a source of continued revenue, it is unwilling to part with her. It's all for money, you see.

That certainly clears that up! I think all of us taxpayers should express our gratitude by filing Form 5213 this year as many times as humanly

Tibbits also sent me Form 8328, which was named by the IRS's state-of-the-art Random Noun generator; it's called "Carryforward Election of Unused Private Activity Bond Volume Cap." Simpson defense attorney lets Fuhrman make exit

Linda Deutsch Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - After six tense days and repeated attacks for alleged racism, Detective Mark Fuhrman escaped - for now - from O.J. Simpson's murder trial. F. Lee Bailey dropped his cross-examination Thursday, and a prosecutor spent just two minutes reinforcing her contention Fuhrman could not have planted a bloody glove.

Outside court, former lead attorney Robert Shapiro suggested disagreements in defense strategy, saying he regretted race had become an issue in "Different people have different ways of trying cases, and everyone has their styles and own way of doing things," said Shapiro, who bitterly quarreled with Bailey over news leaks earlier this year. "My preference was that race was not an issue in this case and should not be an issue in the case, and I'm sorry from my own personal point of view that it has become an issue in this case," Shapiro told reporters.

Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark, apparently judging her witness unscathed by Bailey and unwilling to open more cracks for inquiry, cup of melting ice cream on a banis-Fuhrman's testimony ended after a noniury session in which Superior Court Judge Lance Ito scolded the two trial lawyers for Wednesday's cannonade of personal insults and accusations and urged them to apologize to each other.

Ito told Clark and Bailey they had gone "beyond the bounds of professional conduct." He then issued an extraordinary seven-point order commanding all lawyers in the case to act professionally for the rest of the trial.

"Counsel shall not engage in gratuitous personal attacks upon each other," the order declared.

Clark and Bailey offered mutual apologies for their outburst, which occurred after Clark accused Bailey of lying about speaking directly with potential defense witness Max Cordoba, a black former Marine sergeant who has accused Fuhrman of calling him a "nigger."

Foster: Minority hopefuls challenged due to race

Nita Lelyveld

Associated Press WASHINGTON - Surgeon general nominee Dr. Henry Foster suggested Thursday that minorities nominated for high Clinton administration jobs are being singled out for attack because of their race.

Asked if he thought "nominees of color" faced orchestrated attacks, Foster said, "It certainly looks fishy."

"One thing you must keep in mind: The Clinton administration more than any other has brought diversity to its administration, so there are a larger number of minorities," the Tennessee obstetrician-gynecologist said at a luncheon attended by black jour-

Foster's nomination has been under attack from anti-abortion groups and conservative lawmakers since it was first announced last month. He has been criticized for giving varying answers about the number of abortions he has performed in more than 30 years in practice and for having performed hysterectomies on severely retarded women in the late 1960s and

Responding to another question, Foster also sought to defend himself against alleged links to the Tuskegee Project, a 40-year government study in which poor black men with syphilis in Tuskegee, Ala., were deliberately left untreated.

Critics have suggested Foster was present at a meeting of the Macon County Medical Society when the society members were told of the U.S. Public Health Service study in 1968. Foster contends he did not learn of

Despite the crowds, out-of-towners said they weren't distracted from the best wrestling in the country.

One satisfied wrestling spectator was Tom Jaworsky of Edmund, Okla., who was in Iowa City to watch his son T.J. Jaworsky, a national champion from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

"The weather's better than I ever even expected, and I think it's just great that we can get everyone together from all over the country and fill the arena," Jaworsky said.
"Of course, it puts a lot of pressure on my son T.J. and it puts a lot of pressure on me as a parent, but it's been great here so far."

months in advance to get a room at the Cantebury Inn, Coralville, but Mona Kleven — a wrestling fan from Madison, Wis. - said she and her husband booked a room two years

Dressed in University of Wisconsin colors of red and white, Kleven said she and her husband are die-hard Badger fans who have found Iowa City very accommodating.

"We are big Wisconsin fans and like to be prepared," Kleven said. "We already have reservations in Minnesota for next year."

UI senior Christy Haxmeier, an employee at the UI parking and transportation department, said workers had the influx of drivers under control. However, with preliminaries scheduled for a UI workday, it was a challenge to find parking spaces for everyone

"This morning there were cars everywhere," she said. "Tonight won't be as bad because we'll have all the faculty and hospital spots for them."

When lots across from Carver-Hawkeye were full, Haxmeier said Jaworksy said he called eight drivers were sent to the Finkbine commuter lot and the UI Softball and faculty were instructed to move their vehicles during the week of March 12-18 to free spaces adjacent to the arena

> Since hotel rooms in the entire area were completely booked three weeks ago, other wrestling fans found alternatives to dealing with crowds.

Mike Mueller, a student at the University of Wisconsin, Oshkosh, said he was staying with a friend in Cedar Rapids because his trip to the tournament was spur of the moment.

"We were out at the bars last night, and when we got home we decided to go, so we left at 5 this morning," he said. "First rounds don't seem to be so bad, but I expect there will be a lot more people later on."

Junior high school wrestling coach Jim McGrath from Independence, Iowa, said he figured out a way to eat and park simply.

"We parked over on Melrose, stopped at the hospital and ate and walked right to the front door here," McGrath said. "And we're commuting to save on a hotel room."

T-shirt vendor Charlie Dahl of Complex. About 3,000 UI students Nick's Sports World in Minneapolis set up a blue awning in the parking lot of the Heartland Inn, Coralville, where black-and-gold tournament shirts were selling fast.

"I've had probably over 100 here since I set up at 11 this morning," Dahl said. "This is as big as it gets for wrestling so it should be good."

Republican tax-cut package. The vote was 24-11, and like the House roll call, it was nearly party line.

The $100 billion in cuts would be in overall discretionary spending, which covers one-third of the $1.5 trillion budget - including defense, foreign aid and domestic programs

- but not benefit programs such as Medicare. Decisions about which specific programs would be trimmed were to be made later this year.

Nonetheless, the committee voted to recommend cuts in more than 140 programs to achieve the savings, including reductions in job training programs, subsidies paid to some corporations and foreign aid. Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio, said the reductions would shrink an excessively large government and return tax dollars to Americans.

"When you actually cut spending, good things happen," he said.

Tonight, the group will see the Drovers, an Irish rock band, at Cabaret Metro in Chicago. Saturday, they will attend Chicago's Irish parade and view the incandescent green shade of the Chicago River.

For the parade, the Chicago River will be transformed into a tribute to the Irish with more than 100 pounds of biodegradable green dye, said Ray Meyer, chairman of the Chicago parade committee.

Meyer said he expects the parade to draw a crowd of between 300,000 and 400,000 Irish revelers.

Riley's family waited in the surgery ntensive care waiting room for more than 12 hours Wednesday while he received the transplant, said his wife, Kathryn Riley. She arrived at the hospital from their home in Stronghurst, Ill., Tuesday evening and slept on the floor of her husband's hospital room as the hospital awaited delivery of the

"It was a big decision to make with a lot of factors to consider: how long he would live with cancer, how long e would live with the transplant, if he would die during surgery,'

Kathryn Riley said. Fabrega said while UIHC surgeons perform more double organ translants than many other certified centers in the country, two transplants in one day is especially unusual.

Richard Riley, who was referred to UIHC by his doctor in Illinois, has three married children and 10 grandchildren. All three children, three grandchildren, his sister and several in-laws were at the hospital during the surgery. Kathryn Riley said the family supported one another

Richard Riley decided on the surgery when he was diagnosed with liver cancer while pursuing a kidney transplant in January 1994. He underwent chemoembolization to shrink his liver tumor and was on dialysis due to kidney failure caused by diabetes complications.

He received the organs he needed about eight weeks after he decided to have the transplants, his wife said. Fabrega said Richard Riley's situation was exceptionally bad luck because of the rarity of a patient needing both a kidney and a liver.

Like Richard Riley, Tilly, a Cedar Rapids resident, was a diabetic. She was to start dialysis soon, Fabrega said. He said 50 percent of patients on dialysis die within a year, and the Richard Riley's transplants began process is costly and cumbersome with patients needing to have the four-hour treatment three times a

But Tilly's transplant, which took about six hours, has a very high success rate, Fabrega said. There is an 80 percent chance for kidneys to be working a year later and a 75 percent chance for pancreata.

The pancreas transplant, which has a higher success rate when combined with a kidney transplant, will cure Tilly's diabetes. Fabrega said Tilly's original pancreas could produce enzymes to digest food but couldn't make insulin, which caused diabetes. He said the new organs were placed in Tilly's pelvis; the original ones were not removed.

"The pancreas transplant is a quality-of-life issue," Fabrega said. "They're off insulin and won't experience any complications that they might have with diabetes.'

Fabrega said Tilly is doing well and should live a long time. Most double organ transplant recipients can go home with a week or two and are up and eating within a couple of days, he

Kathryn Riley and Wu said Richard Riley is also doing well, and his family visited him right after his rgery.

"He's thrilled to be able to have done this and that he woke up."

Every year, the retailers jump the gun a little sooner; Christmas decorations go on display in September, and bathing suits appear in February. Not to be outdone, this year Hollywood started the summer film season before the snow finished melting.

"Outbreak" has all the hallmarks of a summer action flick: a starstudded cast, a glittering cinematographic façade and a barrel full of exciting plot twists dumped onto a brittle skeleton of clichés. And like most summer movies, it's fun, compelling and exciting - as long as audience members remember to hang up their brains before buying their tickets.

Dustin Hoffman is oddly miscast and sadly robotic as Sam Daniels, an Army doctor in charge of researching and containing viral epidemics. Cable TV networks gear up for anti-violence initiative

Scott Williams

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Do not adjust your television sets.

Next week, 53 cable television networks, from A&E and Bravo to The Weather Channel and Z Music, will adjust themselves to accommodate special programming in an unprecedented initiative, "Voices Against Violence Week."

All 53 networks will use some aspect or aspects of their usual programming to create their own distinctive perspectives on violence in the real world:

· CNBC, in addition to presenting its own news and talk programs on violence, will be the anchor network" for the initiative, giving viewers a daily overview of what's available elsewhere in the cable universe.

· HBO is airing special documentaries during the week, including "5 American Handguns - 5 American Kids," on fatal cases of children and pistols.

• MTV: Music Television will showcase "MTV News Special Reports" exploring racism in the music industry, "hate rock," South rap." "Generation Under the Gun" offers a conversation with kids.

· The Weather Channel is offering "The Violent Seasons," a series on seasonal-affective disorders and other weather-related effects on violent behavior.

Those networks where anti-violence programming would be even more of a stretch - such as Home series of public service announcements specially commissioned for the event, including two spots by President Clinton.

Cox said that three years ago, argued that there is no connection between TV violence and violence in the streets.

The problem is they may be right, but there's an awful lot of research that suggests they're not and that isn't what the public believes, anyway," Cox said. "And if you stonewall it like that, you end up losing any credibility with those constituencies which eventually can have an impact on you: Congress and you (news media) guys.

"Look, if television didn't have the ability to influence people's behavior ... then a lot of advertisers have been conned for the last 25 years."

Cox acknowledged that cable's anti-violence initiative comes at a time when political pressure is focusing on the medium. A hardline response ("Let 'em pass legislation - we'll beat 'em in the courts") was politically untenable, he said.

"That's a high-risk strategy," Cox Central Los Angeles and "gangsta said. "Political advisers said, 'No, you've got to fight now because if you pull back all the way to your last line of defense - the Constitution - and you lose, then you're in big trouble.'

"The fact is, we don't do a good & Garden Television - will air a enough job telling our viewers what to expect," he said.

get rid of poorly written scripts."
Ridding TV of gratuitous violence and so-called "happy violence," which has no consequences, will go far toward lowering the absolute level of violence in television, Cox said.

ed four freshmen helped Iowa tally a school-record 109 errors. Now the infield will be a year wiser.

"It makes a big difference," Banks said. "Last year we got into a situation where we were starting four or five freshmen every day and they were our best players."

Banks will move sophomore C.J. Thieleke from second to third this year. Thieleke won Big Ten Freshmen of the Year honors last season and Banks hopes he can excel at third base as well.

The outfield will be a little more stable, or at least have less question marks than the infield.

"Our outfield is one of the strengths with Jeremy Lewis, Matt Ostrom and John Ostwald," Banks said.

This year, Ostrom's .286 batting average is the only average over .200 of the three, but the trio has committed zero errors in six games. Last season, Ostrom's .435 average was second on the team. Lewis finished with a .322 average.

So far this season, the offensive punch is coming from senior catcher Steve Fishman (.435, 4 RBI) and freshman shortstop Bryan Boesen (.438, one home run, 3 RBI).

Thieleke and sophomore Jeff Wick each have six RBI to lead the

The key to Iowa's success, however, will be the pitching.

"We'll be very competitive because of our pitching," Banks said. "We probably have more good arms right now then what we've had in the past. We're very confident that we have four pitchers that won't fall off very much on the weekends."

Junior Colin Mattiece, freshman Jeremy Meccage, junior Matt Austin and junior Mike Parenteau have thrown the most innings this year. Only Meccage and Brent ST. PAT'S DAY Glendinning are undefeated, with 1-0 records. Mattiece and Austin

Meccage's ERA of 2.00 is tops on the team (of pitchers with more than three innings). Parenteau's

"Jeremy Meccage is one of the best freshmen we've ever had here," Banks said. Last season, Austin finished with a 4.42 ERA and a 2-0 record. Mattiace was 6-4 with a 4.45 ERA. Another key to the pitching staff is Iowa's all-time save leader Kurt Belger. Belger, who finished with seven saves last season, has two already this year.

When the Wolverines come to Iowa City for a pair of doubleheaders Mar. 25 and 26, Hawkeye fans will get their first look at Iowa on its home field. By then, Iowa will have completed its first 12 games.

"We'll definitely have our work cut out for us," Banks said of Iowa's schedule, which is over 60 percent on the road.

The Hawkeyes, however, have shown that they can win on the road. They swept a three-game season opener in Missouri before losing two and winning one last weekend in Kansas.

lowa breaks for two tourneys

Coach Gayle Blevins and the Iowa before traveling to UC-Irvine for a Women's Tennis oftball team will keep themselves March 25 meet. busy over spring break.

This weekend, the Hawkeyes travel to California for the San Jose Tournament, beginning today and concluding on Sunday.

Hawkeyes will play a doubleheader with Connecticut in Sacramento. The Hawkeyes will remain in Sacramento for the Cal.-Sacramento State tournament March 23-26.

Iowa, which nearly cracked the USA Today/NSCA Coaches Top 25 Poll this week, peaking at No. 26, takes a 7-4 record to California.

The Hawkeyes have been led by sophomores Christy Hebert and Kari Knopf, as well as juniors Melissa Wielandt, Melissa Young and Tasha Reents in the early part of the 1995 action.

On the mound, sophomore Jennifer McMahon has shared duties with freshmen Deborah Dilbao and Leticia Castellon.

After spring break, Iowa returns home to host their first game of the season, a March 29 doubleheader against Illinois State.

Men's Tennis The Iowa men's tennis team hopes to catch some rays and take a break from the rigorous Big Ten schedule as it heads out to San Diego for its spring break trip.

The Hawkeyes face Dartmouth Saturday March 18 at noon from the Lajolla Beach and Country Club. Iowa then tangles with San Jose State on Sunday March 19 from the same site at noon.

"Losing Zumph is tough to swallow, but we'll head out west, catch our breath and come back ready to play. Things will only go up from here," Crowley said.

Men's Track and Field

For the Iowa men's track and field team, spring break represents a trip to California and a new beginning.

After a somewhat disappointing ndoor campaign, the Hawkeyes are looking forward to a very successful

Iowa will first compete in a Nike Meet at Cal-Poly Tech this Saturday

Coach Ted Wheeler is very excited to begin the outdoor season.

"Right now, this is a different team. We reduce the number of events and add the 4-by-100 and the On Tuesday, March 21, the intermediate hurdles," Wheeler

> "We feel we can improve in those areas as well as upgrade in other areas. We expect to be very competitive in all events except the javelin and possibly the triple jump.

SPARTS

At Cal-Poly Tech, the Hawkeyes will compete in the 100-meter dash, the 4-by-100, the 4-by-400, the 1500 meters, the high hurdles and a few decathlon events.

'On Saturday, we're going to shake out and have some good performances in our relays," Wheeler said. "It will give our athletes a chance to have a better meet at Irvine.

The recent good weather should also benefit the Hawkeyes. It has given them a chance to work on their relay hand-offs and field events, something they could only do on a limited basis indoors.

-Chris Snider Men's Gymnastics

The second-ranked Iowa men's gymnastics team prepares for the Big Ten Championships with an important battle against Nebraska

Nebraska is currently No. 3 in the nation.

Coach Tom Dunn said the team is not doing anything different in practice this week.

'We're not preparing too different-"We don't see teams like Dart- ly. We're kind of preparing for this meet in conjunction with the Big Ten Championships," he said.

Go west, young man. Or, in this case, young women.

The Iowa women's tennis team travels to sunny California for its spring trip to take on Auburn and San Diego State, March 18 and 20.

The Hawkeyes take on the Aztecs t 4 p.m. at the Mission Valley Health Club on March 18. Iowa then faces Auburn at the same sight on March 20 at 3 p.m.

Coach Micki Schillig said it will be nice to get away but insisted the Hawkeyes will have their work cut

"This will be a good trip for the team but they have to remember there is work to be done," Schillig said. "We're going to face two very good teams, so hopefully we can stay

The Hawkeyes are coming off a decisive victory over Drake, 7-2, on March 7. Iowa currently stands at 5-6 overall and 1-3 in the Big Ten. Auburn is 5-2, 1-1 in the Southeastern Conference. The Tigers lead the overall series with Iowa 1-0. San Diego State is ranked No. 19 in the nation and has compiled a 7-6 record for the year.

Schillig said while these matches aren't in Big Ten play, they are still very important.

"These would be very big wins. It would give us a lot of confidence heading into the home stretch of the Big Ten schedule," Schillig said. -Chris James

Women's Gymnastics

If it's not one setback, it's another. The Iowa women's gymnastics team will be without its top performer, junior Kim Baker, for the remainder of the year.

Baker decided to have surgery on her wrist which she hurt two weeks

"It is going to be very challenging to replace the scores Kim Baker has been contributing," Coach Diane DeMarco said.

DeMarco hopes that the return of freshman Molly O'Conner will help the Hawkeyes as they travel to Oklahoma to battle the Sooners Saturday at 7 p.m.

O'Conner has been out for most of the season with an injured knee.

"One door closes and another one opens," DeMarco said. "It has been like that all season, and we've been able to step up to the challenge."

Iowa will also be bolstered by the return of freshman Stephanie Wessely and senior Cathy Terrell.

Terrell has been suffering from shin problems and has only been competing on the uneven bars. She will compete on the balance beam as well on Saturday.

After Saturday's meet with Oklahoma, Iowa has a week to prepare for the Big Ten Championships. The Championships will be held March 25 at the University of Illinois
