DEERFIELD — Family members of William Barloon and David Daliberti, two Americans who have been convicted of illegally entering Iraq, are appealing to the U.N. to intervene in the case.

Barloon and Daliberti, both former military policemen, were convicted of entering Iraq in 1995 and sentenced to two years in prison. They have been held in a Baghdad prison since their arrest in 1995.

The U.S. government is considering a diplomatic effort to secure their release, but has not yet made any formal request for intervention.

Daliberti’s father, William Barloon, and his wife, Linda, are seen in an undated family photo. They remain silent about Barloon and Daliberti, two Americans who have been convicted of illegally entering Iraq and sentenced to eight years in prison. In the meantime, the U.S. government remains silent about the case.

Afghan troops launch assault near Kabul
KABUL, Afghanistan - Afghan troops launched an assault Monday against Taliban forces near the capital, officials said, as the government announced it was seeking $50 million in foreign aid to fund its operations.

The announcement comes as the U.S. and its allies are under increasing pressure to provide more military and financial support to the Afghan government, which has struggled to gain control of the country.

The Taliban fighters were reportedly using the heavy equipment - including tanks and mortars - during the operation, which lasted about six hours.

Meanwhile, a new report released Tuesday by human rights groups shows that the situation in Afghanistan has become even more dangerous for civilians since the withdrawal of American forces in March.

The report, titled "The Human Cost of Withdrawal," accuses the U.S. and its allies of failing to adequately prepare Afghan security forces and civilians for the transition.

It details instances of violence against civilians, including extrajudicial killings, arbitrary detentions, and enforced disappearances.

The report calls for an immediate review of the withdrawal process and increased support for Afghan security forces.

Japanese continue quest for evidence

Monday, March 20

United Nations - United Nations officials said Wednesday that they did not have evidence linking the Japanese cult to any particular country but that "nations must be aware of the threat from networks of cults and their connections to criminal groups." They said that Japan had been the subject of several investigations by the United Nations because of its association with terrorist groups.

Police investigations began outside "No. 7 Paradise," one of the facilities of the cult's Grand Hotel in Tokyo. Officials said that police had been investigating since last year whether the cult's chemical stockpiles were being used to produce sarin gas.

The cult's leader, Makibashri Yoshihiko, had been visiting the facility and had been shown documents that suggested the cult had been using sarin gas to kill soldiers. The cult's leader, Makibashri Yoshihiko, said he had been using sarin gas to kill soldiers and had been shown documents that suggested the cult had been using sarin gas to kill soldiers.

Police said they had information that the cult's chemical stockpiles were being used to produce sarin gas. They said they had also found documents that suggested the cult had been using sarin gas to kill soldiers.

The documentary "Hope Dreams" will be all but ignored at tonight's Academy Awards ceremony. In a sick twist to the usual parade of scoundrels accepting awards for the worst in their respective fields, the subjects of Internet "scammers" have their moment of glory.

The bill itself is replete with Bibles, Bibles, Bibles, news groups and lists under the title of "Bible Group." It's a charming, legitimate Internet site that could well be the nucleus of a new religious movement. It's also the source of the complaint for the case.

The bill states that certain sites are banned from the Internet because they are "serving as a forum for the exchange of information concerning the subject of violence." It then goes on to list several categories of sites, including those that advocate the use of violence to achieve political objectives. The bill also prohibits the distribution of information about the use of violence for political purposes.

The bill is a classic example of the kind of legislation that is being proposed all over the country. It's a blatant attempt to censor speech, and it's one of the reasons why I'm opposed to it.

When I wrote that the problem of the color line was "the problem of the future," I was referring to the fact that it is a problem that will continue to be a problem for as long as there are black people in this country. It's a problem that will never go away, and it will never be solved if we don't face it head-on and try to do something about it.

It's important to remember that the problem of the color line is not just about race. It's about class, it's about gender, it's about religion, it's about everything. It's a problem that affects everyone, and it's a problem that we all need to work towards solving.

I am confident that we can solve the problem of the color line, but it will require a concerted effort on the part of all of us. It will require us to take a hard look at our own lives and see where we can make changes. It will require us to listen to each other and try to understand each other's perspectives. It will require us to work together and be willing to make sacrifices.

But I am also confident that we can do this. We have the tools, we have the knowledge, we have the ability. We just need to be willing to use them.

The bill is a step in the wrong direction, and I urge you to speak out against it. Let your elected officials know that you oppose this bill, and let them know why. Together, we can make a difference.
I don't emphasized in article.

PRISONERS

Dennis Parnell, the Washington Post's reporter in Iraq, reported that the Americans were planning to hand over the prisoners to the Iraqis. But, Parnell added, "the United States is using the prisoners as leverage in its negotiations with Iraq." The Americans are hoping that the Iraqis will release some of their own prisoners in exchange for the Americans releasing theirs.

The prisoners, who are suspected of being involved in the bombings of the U.S. embassy in Kuwait, were arrested in late September. The Iraqis initially refused to release them, but later agreed to do so in exchange for the release of Iraqi prisoners held by the United States.

The American government had until recently been pressing the Iraqis to release the prisoners, but had recently relaxed its demands. The Americans are now focusing on securing the release of the prisoners in exchange for the release of Iraqi prisoners held by the United States.

The prisoners, who are a mix of locals and foreigners, are held in a large, high-security prison in Baghdad. The prisoners are said to be in poor health and are being held in crowded conditions.

The Americans have been pressing the Iraqis to release the prisoners for several weeks, but the Iraqis have been reluctant to do so.

The prisoners are expected to be released within the next few days, but the exact timing is unknown. The Americans are hoping that the release will be a positive step in the ongoing negotiations between the two countries.

Hawkeyes split conference opener

Joe Schmidt

In Daily Iowan

The Hawkeyes started the season 6-6 in 1970, finishing sixth. For the first time in two years, there was no top-seeded team in the Big Ten Conference and the Hawkeyes had a chance to win the conference. The Hawkeyes had impressed with their nine wins in the regular season, but they knew they had to prove themselves in the conference tournament.

The Hawkeyes began their conference tournament with a loss to Ohio State. They were expecting a tough match, but they were surprised by the Buckeyes' dominate performance. The Hawkeyes had a solid start, but they couldn't keep up with Ohio State's offensive and defensive tactics. The Buckeyes won the match, 3-1, and the Hawkeyes were left with a tough loss.

In their next match, the Hawkeyes faced Michigan. They were determined to get their revenge from the previous year and were determined to prove their worth in the conference. The match was intense, with both teams playing their best. In the end, the Hawkeyes emerged victorious, winning the match, 3-2. They had proven themselves in the conference, and they were ready to face the next challenge.

The Hawkeyes continued their conference tournament with a match against Illinois. This was a crucial match for both teams, as they were fighting for a spot in the conference championship. The match was a hard-fought battle, with both teams pushing for the win. In the end, the Hawkeyes emerged victorious, winning the match, 3-1. They had proven themselves in the conference, and they were ready to face the next challenge.

UI workshop leaves Chinese film in its wake for special screening

John Robinson

The Daily Iowan

The UI student group enacting every scene addressing spring break, the UI Wind Ensemble and World Music bands and would like a little more international entertainment for the weekend collection of activities. And so on this Friday, "Tasha Robinson," which was released in 1995, opened in the Union Ballroom during the weekend of March 28 to 29. Viewers found the film "Lian Hui" is a story about a group of Chinese women who are sent to a small village in the 1930s to find work and shelter. The story centers around a young woman named Erma, played by Chinese actress Zhao Wei. Erma is a hardworking and resourceful woman who is determined to make the best of her circumstances.

Screening tonight at 7 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, the film will explore themes of womanhood, survival, and the strength of women in the face of adversity. The film has been praised for its strong performances and its portrayal of women as complex and multidimensional characters. The screening is free and open to the public, and we encourage everyone to come and enjoy this special presentation.
'Pulp Fiction' wins big with 4 Spirit Awards

Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif.— "Pulp Fiction" took top honors Saturday at the Independent Spirit Awards, winning best feature, male lead, director and screenplay.

"Speaking the Monkey," a short film about two people, won two awards, as did a pair of films selected for the 1994 Sundance Film Festival. The documentary "Bringing Home" earned a special distinction award.

Samuel Jackson was named best actor for "Pulp Fiction," although he had been nominated for an Academy Award in the supporting acting category.

The Spirit Awards are given by the Independent Feature Project to independent films. Special attention is paid to films that have not been released by major film companies. "Pulp Fiction" has been released by Miramax.

The Spirit Awards were presented by the Independent Feature Project.

July Flitzer received best female lead honors for "The Last Seduction."
Your MONEY hasn't gone this far since you lived with your PARENTS.

High-revving, 120-horsepower, fuel-injected engine (hey, this car's for driving, not just looking at)

Tubular rear axle with spring-over shock sport suspension and progressive ride tuning – it's great on curves – you'll understand once you drive it

Anti-lock brakes – why should only big, fancy, expensive cars have all the cool stuff?

Your choice of a great-looking coupe (shown) or sporty four-door sedan (both so good-looking, you might have a tough time choosing)

Clearcoat paint – paint you can't see keeps the paint you can see looking good (see?)

Dual airbags – two things you don't need until you really need 'em (and always wear those safety belts, even with airbags)

5-speed transmission – you expect that on a real set of wheels, but one for around $12,500? (yes)

Great sporty looks, inside & out, that say "Hey, ya wanna have fun?" (say yes)

Safety-cage construction – hey, we like you

Battery rundown protection – you accidentally leave the interior lights on, the Sunfire will turn ’em off – so you don’t walk home (remember to say "thanks").

AM/FM radio – what, you mean it's not standard on every car? (nope, it's not!) (you wanna spend a little more, you can have a built-in CD player)

A HUGE glovebox – big enough for a 12-pack of sodas (or some really, really big gloves)

Fold-down rear seats – in case you win some 9-ft. teddy bear at the carnival (hey, it could happen)

Pontiac CARES – call an 800 number, get free Roadside Assistance – for flat tires, dead battery, even if you run out of gas or lock yourself out (Pontiac wants to see you and your Sunfire™ driving)

Corrosion protection – tells rust to go chew on someone else's car

Oh, Courtesy Transportation – that’s part of PONTIAC CARES too (see? we really do care)

Air conditioning – Air conditioning? for around $12,500? (we told ya it was a cool car)

Single-key locking – one key locks & unlocks doors, trunk and all the fun of Sunfire

Finally, a real set of wheels for around $12,500:
