Escape foiled by daughter

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A convicted murderer who broke out of jail earlier this week by using a blowtorch might have eluded police by hiding in the refrigerator, except his 2-year-old daughter pointed at it and said, "Daddy's in there."

Clad in gym shorts, 21-year-old Daniel Mitchem surrendered to police Thursday at his girlfriend's apartment 35 miles east of Albuquerque.

Mitchem, sentenced this month to 36½ years in prison in the 1993 shotgun slaying of a 44-year-old man, was awaiting transfer to the state penitentiary when he and another man escaped.

With jurors dismissed for the day, DNA lawyers set the stage for a battle over the heart of the prosecution case — the analysis of blood found at the crime scene.

Prosecutors say that a witness had come forward and will testify he saw O.J. Simpson put a bag on a trash can at Los Angeles International Airport before leaving for Chicago.

Simpson attorney-confidant Robert Kardashian was given until April 5 to inform the court whether he will testify. Prosecutors want to call him as a witness Thursday to ask about a TV clip that shows him carrying one of Simpson's bags June 13.

Verdict expected this weekend

Eight jurors to begin deliberations today in Street trial

Shayla Thiel
The Daily Iowan

MARENGO, Iowa — Following Thursday's closing arguments, eight jurors were dismissed from the packed courtroom to determine who was at fault in the Jan. 19, 1993 accident that killed UI basketball star Chris Street.

The Street family is suing Johnson County and snowplow driver Charles Pence for negligence in a multimillion-dollar civil lawsuit. Street's passenger, Kim Vinton, also is suing her insurance company for damages sustained in the fatal accident. Pence has filed a countersuit arguing Street did not yield the right of way. The jury of two women and six men is expected

"Speed is what killed Chris Street. Had the snowplow been going 45 (mph), there would have been no accident."

Randy Duncan,
Street attorney

to deliver a verdict before Monday morning.

A framed photo of a beaming Street with his arm around Vinton, his girlfriend, leaned against the court reporter's table while Randy Duncan, one of the Streets' attorneys, addressed public criticism of

Bruce Walker,
defense attorney

the Streets for suing Pence and the county.

"It's true there is nothing in this world that can bring Chris Street back," Duncan said. "The only remedy the Street family has is this lawsuit. Clearly, if Chris Street had been injured in this accident, no one would question him bringing up a lawsuit."

Duncan contended James Summers, one of the defense's expert witnesses, made a mistake in his interpretation of data that said Pence was driving about 55 mph in a 45 mph zone when he applied his brakes. Other expert witnesses testified Pence was going at least 60 mph.

Although Duncan said Pence's speeding was the leading factor in the accident, he said the high placement of lights on the snowplow created an optical illusion that confused Street. Johnson County road managers were not concerned with the problem, he said.

Street Trial Update

Attorneys for the Michael and Patricia Street family, Kim Vinton, Johnson County and Charles Pence delivered closing arguments.

Defense attorney Bruce Walker said Chris Street was responsible for his fatal accident because he did not turn to see Pence's snowplow on Hwy. 1 and he failed to yield.

Street attorney Randy Duncan said the collision would not have occurred if Pence had driven the 45 mph speed limit.

William Graham, attorney for Kim Vinton, said she is entitled to $193,196 for medical bills, physical and emotional pain and suffering sustained in the accident.

The six-man, two-woman Iowa County jury was dismissed just before 4 p.m. Deliberation is set to begin this morning at 8:30.

JUDGE BLOCKS DISMISSAL OF GAYS

'Don't ask, don't tell' ruled unconstitutional

Richard Pyle
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The first federal judge to rule on the Clinton administration's "don't ask, don't tell" policy on homosexuals in the military declared it unconstitutional Thursday.

U.S. District Judge Eugene Nickerson's ruling barred the Pentagon from discharging six homosexuals. Though it applies only to the six, it represents the first step in a process that could lead to a Supreme Court ruling on the policy.

Nickerson said the policy is "nothing short of Orwellian" because it equates sexual orientation with misconduct.

"We believe the challenged policy is constitutional, and we remain committed to defending it."

Carl Stern, Justice Department spokesman

"To presume from a person's status that he or she will commit undesirable acts is an extreme measure," he wrote. "Hitler taught the world what could happen when the government began to target people not for what they had done, but because of their status."

Lawyers for the plaintiffs welcomed the ruling.

New mall to revive I.C. shopping scene

Sara Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

By July 1996, UI students will have a new place to look for clothing and jewelry as well as professional employment when a downtown mall opens.

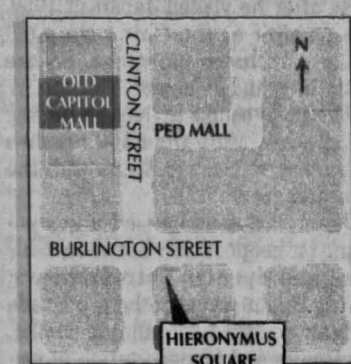

Hieronymus Square, which will be built on the corner of Burlington and Clinton streets, will be a five-story complex that will contain two floors of retail stores and three floors of deluxe offices.

The project, which is sponsored by Hieronymi Partners, 328 S. Clinton St., was in part started to provide a larger quantity and better quality of offices in the downtown area, Wilfreda Hieronymus said.

These offices may provide career opportunities for UI graduates by bringing in new businesses,

Catching the attention of passers-by is the new billboard for UI College of Law events — specifically the "LawLawPalooza II Concert Benefit" on Saturday. The concert will feature law students playing rock, zydeco, Irish folk and country — just

MORE THAN 40 TO LEAVE OLD JOBS

UIHC budget cuts impact nursing staff

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

After an anonymous news release charged UI Hospitals and Clinics with inappropriate hiring and employment practices Thursday, hospital administrators said the shuffling of at least 40 nurses to other positions is proper and necessary.

The nurses aren't necessarily going to be placed in jobs with a pay level equal to their current positions, said UIHC Department of Nursing interim director Colleen Goode, whose name was listed on the press release as a contact person. But Goode said she had nothing to do with the release.

"The nurses are being reassigned to a number of different positions. In some situations that means an administrative nurse might be reassigned as a staff nurse," she said. "In those

The UI furlough policy applies to the nurses in this case because it applies to all scientific and professional UI staff members. They are losing their jobs through no fault of their own, said Mary Jo Small, UI associate vice president of Finance and University Ser-

School bans furry friend's visits

Teacher's pet Lesha was forced to drop classes in the School of Social Work because of a UI policy banning animals from buildings.

Students in the UI School of Social Work have been classmates with an unusual looking and non-traditional student who is about 1½ feet tall, very furry and four-legged: Lesha the dog.

However, due to a stringent UI animal policy, Lesha, an Australian shepherd and spitz mix, is on permanent sabbatical.

Over the weekends last winter when visiting Professor Betty King needed to work on her computer at the School of Social Work in North Hall, she would bring her dog Lesha with her.

"I brought her as a safety element because I've never felt safe in this building alone," King said. "She'll bark, but she's never bitten anything in her life."

Receptionist lends a grin to local center

Jami Peterson
The Daily Iowan

In an age when more and more daily tasks can be done by computer, there is something to be said for the personal touch of a smile.

A grin is just what Amee Ellinger, 19, offers to all who come to the Broadway Street Neighborhood Center, 2105 Broadway.

DAY IN THE LIFE

The smile of Ellinger, a receptionist at the center, is the first thing people see when they visit the center. During her day, Ellinger helps out at the cooperative day-care center by answering the phone and preparing newsletters.

The center offers a variety of programs for the community, including after-school tutoring, cooperative day care, a group for teens and an after-school program for children. Ellinger said there are activities for just about every age group of children.

"I like to work with the community, and it's been a really good experience for me to get more involved," she said.

The programs the center offers take on a new importance for the economically disadvantaged, Ellinger said.

"In low-income areas, there's a lot of violence when there's nothing to do," she said.

Although it can sometimes be trying, those involved with the programs find their jobs rewarding.

"There's a few days when it's really frustrating," said Jolene Talbott, youth program coordinator at the center. "But it's nice to see the kids come here and do something positive."

The center tries to bring the community together, Ellinger said.

"It is set up to work with low-income families and the community,"

she said. "It gets the community involved."

This level of involvement extends into the offices of the center as well. "Everybody tries to get involved," Ellinger said.

Although Ellinger enjoys her job, she said it can take its toll.

"There's a lot of rude people," Ellinger said. "If I don't give them an answer they like, they get really rude. You just have to take it as it comes and try to be nice."

At the center, there is an overall tone of respect, Ellinger said.

"The thing I like most is how you're treated here," she said. "Everyone is treated with respect. Everyone tries to be really positive."

Ellinger said that since the birth of her daughter three and a half months ago, she's been trying to find a way to balance her job with motherhood.

"If she's sick and I can't come to work, they understand," she said. "They are very accommodating here."

Even with the center's understanding, Ellinger's life has been altered drastically since she became a mother.

"I used to be able to go out a lot, but I rarely get to anymore," she said. "I go to bed later and wake up earlier. I get a lot less sleep."

Ellinger's focus in life also has changed since her daughter was born.

"All the time, everything I do is pretty much for her," she said.

Although her amount of free time has been lessened considerably, Ellinger still finds the time to belong to a group for teen-age mothers.

Somehow she manages to balance everything in her busy life — and faces it all with a smile.

Spanish monarchs open art exhibit in China

BELING (AP) — King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia of Spain cut a red ribbon Thursday to open an exhibit of works by the Spanish artist Joan Miro.

The exhibit reflects a period when Asian art influenced Miro, particularly after he visited Japan in 1966. The exhibit at the China National Gallery includes paintings, bronze sculptures and etchings.

The royal couple arrived in Beijing on Tuesday. More than 100 Spanish businessmen came to China with the king and queen.

Juan Carlos addressed a symposium on cooperation between Chinese and Spanish entrepreneurs, saying Spain wants to help upgrade China's energy, telecommunications, electronics and transportation industries.

Boston hits the concert circuit again

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — That rock 'n' roll band outta Boston is going back on the road.

After seven years, the group Boston kicks off a world tour May 16 in Mankato. The original lead singer, Brad Delp, will share vocals with Fran Cosmo, who sang on the group's latest album, Walk On.

The 22-city tour of the United States and Canada will run from mid-May to late June.

The band's first album, Boston, came out in 1976 and sold more than 15 million copies. The group had hits with "More Than a Feeling" and "Peace of Mind."

'All in the Family' actress returns to stage

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Remember Edith? Jean Stapleton doesn't care.

With a children's video and an off-beat role in repertory theater, the actress said she isn't afraid of being stereotyped as Archie Bunker's ditz wife.

The role on television's "All in the Family" won her three Emmys.

"I reap the advantages all the time in that people cast me in interesting things," she said.

She will star as the eccentric psychic Madame Arcati in the Noel Coward comedy "Blithe Spirit" in Costa Mesa for a month, starting April 14.

"I call it a plum role," Stapleton said in a recent interview. "As soon as we read it aloud — the cast — we were roaring. It's so funny."

Stapleton is featured as "Mrs. Piggle-Wiggle" on six newly released cassettes of a Showtime children's series. She will also play Eleanor Roosevelt in a one-woman show in San Francisco in June.

TEAM RANKS IN TOP 16

UI debaters vie for national title

Moir Crowley
The Daily Iowan

The UI debate team will attempt to argue their way to a national championship this weekend at the 1995 National Collegiate Debate Tournament.

Three two-person teams from the UI headed to the national debates at West Georgia College in Carrollton, Ga., Wednesday to compete with teams from 64 other universities in the nation, including Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges, Dartmouth College and Northwestern University.

Four UI debaters — senior Tiffany Earl and juniors Laura Veldkamp, Ernie Wagner and Alison Werner — are among the top 16 teams in the nation.

Werner, a three-year veteran of the UI debate team, said competing with Ivy Leaguers is no different than going toe to toe with a Michigan Wolverine.

"The atmosphere is always friendly," she said. "You get used to being cooped up in a hotel room with someone, even if they're from Dartmouth."

The UI debaters take their work seriously — no matter who they are up against or from what school their competition hails.

The UI debaters began researching their arguments for this weekend's competition last July. This year the question posed to the students is whether reformations need to be made concerning the federal justice system.

Before classes began in August, the debaters were spending up to 16 hours each day researching the debate question. During the school year, debaters devoted 20 hours a week to pouring over facts, figures and research in the library. Several thousand pieces of evidence on the topic have been examined.

Despite the hours of research, UI debaters are not allowed to let assignments and midterms take the back burner. They are required to maintain a 3.0 GPA to remain eligible for the team.

Any extra time — including spring break — was dedicated to the art and science of debate.

"I felt the pressure over spring break in preparing for nationals," UI junior Corey Rayburn said. "Now I'm too tired to be stressed."

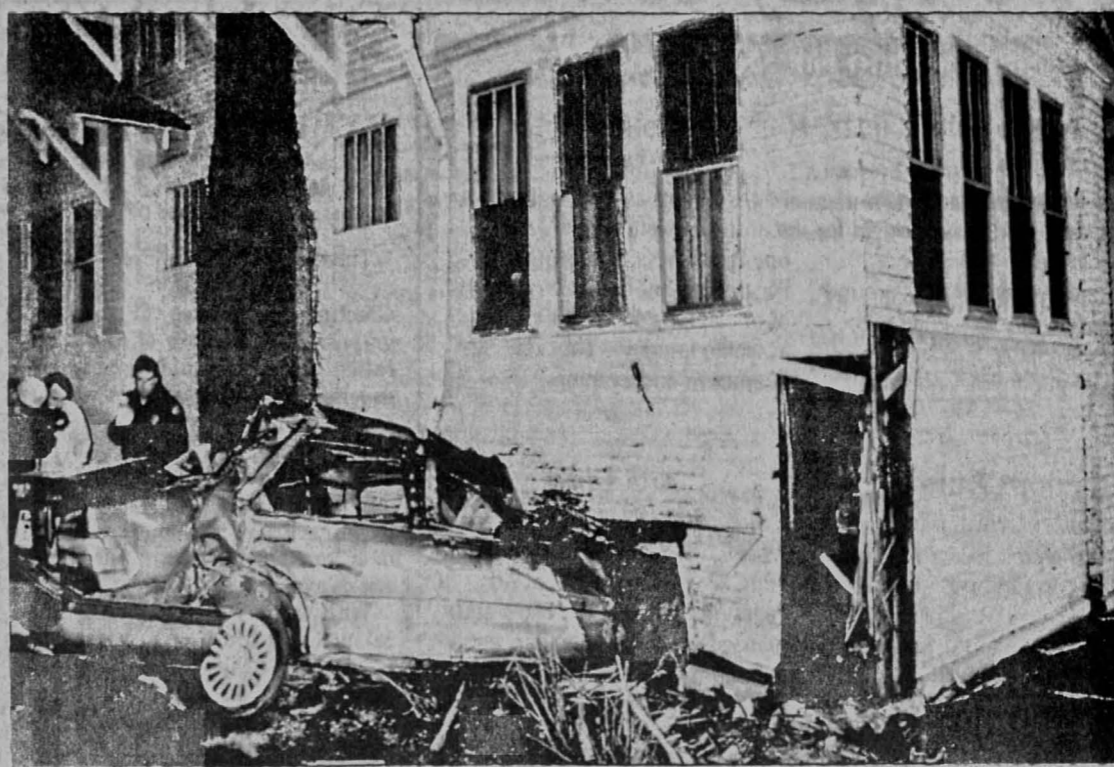

David Hingstman, the UI debating coach for eight years, said he is confident his teams are ready for some stiff competition and does not feel threatened by the reputation of Ivy League schools.

"Based on our record throughout the season, we're treated well," he said. "We compete and beat teams from those schools."

The closest the UI came to a national championship was in 1985, when the team reached the final round after surviving eight preliminary rounds and four elimination rounds.

Paul Slapette, director of forensics, also feels optimistic.

"We're probably not the best team in the country, but we're definitely in the top 10 — but that doesn't mean we still can't win," he said.

Fatal crash

The driver of this car, Chester Walton Jr., 40, was killed when the vehicle jumped the curb and struck this house in Waterloo early Thursday morning. Police reports say Walton's car had just passed another car when it crossed over the median, veered onto the lawn and struck the house. The impact of the crash moved the house a few inches, officials said.

Breast milk sulfate may deter HIV

Tracy Naden
The Daily Iowan

A component in breast milk may reduce the chances of a mother transmitting the AIDS virus to her nursing newborn, according to findings by UI College of Pharmacy Professor Robert Linhardt.

The component, chondroitin sulfate, interferes with the ability of HIV — the virus that causes AIDS — to attach to human white blood cells, which is the binding process leading to HIV infection.

If the baby doesn't contract the AIDS virus from the mother during birth, chondroitin sulfate can significantly reduce the chances of the baby becoming infected, said Linhardt.

"Even with the component present in breast milk, mothers with HIV can spread the virus to their babies through breast-feeding," Linhardt said. "What we're suggesting is that chondroitin sulfate be added to infant formula to protect the baby and decrease the problem."

Researchers from Harvard Medical School and Johns Hopkins School of Medicine asked Linhardt to join their study to pinpoint the compound. Linhardt discovered the compound in UI medical laboratories.

The research has led to follow-up studies by doctors in sub-Saharan Africa. Researchers are comparing an infant's health status with the amount of chondroitin sulfate present in their mother's breast milk.

"The study is particularly important to sub-Saharan Africa due to the prevalence of the HIV epidemic and other viral infections in that area of the world," Linhardt said.

The key step toward furthering the study was taken when it appeared in the March issue of the Journal of Nutrition, giving the scientific community a chance to evaluate it, Linhardt said.

Whether mothers living in Third World countries breast-feed their newborns can be a major determinant in the health of their children.

"The women breast-feed their babies in Third World countries have healthier children than women who don't," Linhardt said. "The component also helps decrease the transmission of other viral diseases, such as dysentery."

The next move in the study is to research the use of the component as a food additive in baby formula, which is mainly made up of soy protein and vitamin additives, Linhardt said.

"Chondroitin sulfate is a major component of cartilage commonly found in foods we eat all the time," he said. "Chondroitin sulfate could be used potentially as a dietary additive to formula to decrease viral infection."

MEMBERSHIP FEES USED

Sheriffs, deputies group guns for funds

Jen Dawson
The Daily Iowan

Training sessions, donations to Special Olympics and a lobbyist are just three of the reasons the Iowa state Sheriffs and Deputies Association is using mailings to ask for financial help.

The association is in the midst of a drive for honorary members, an annual fund-raising program that uses the $20 membership fees to pay for its projects.

As the only organization dedicated solely to employees in Iowa's sheriff's offices, the association uses honorary membership fees to provide annual training workshops and to employ a lobbyist.

The association's lobbyist helped to pass a majority of bills endorsed in 1994 by the state's sheriffs and deputies.

"Last year, we had 13 priorities, and I believe we had seven of them passed," said Marvin Van Haften, president-elect of the association. "I suppose the norm would be having one or two passed."

The organization lobbied the state Legislature on juvenile justice bills, stronger penalties for drug-related charges and providing false reports to police officers, and funding for courthouse security.

"We want to strengthen penalties for possession of controlled substances," said Ken Runde, association president.

Last year, the organization brought in $243,350. The current membership drive has already garnered $61,087 in profits for the association, which once had to scrape up whatever it could to survive, Van Haften said.

"Our net worth, I guess you would say, is $244,264.43," Van Haften said. "We're slowly trying to save money. We hope to have an office and a full-time executive."

Although the money raised through the association's drive will not go directly to the counties, Iowa residents will indirectly receive benefits, said Johnson County Sheriff Robert Carpenter.

Disabled 'walk' through group's miracle program

Michele Kueter
The Daily Iowan

Three-year-old Claire Broderick has never walked because of a condition affecting her muscles called arthrogryposis. But because of a program called Miracles in Motion, she has experienced the sensation of walking by riding a horse.

Training in and providing horseback riding to mentally and physically disabled people is the therapy offered by Miracles in Motion, said board member Ann Broderick, Claire Broderick's mother.

With warm weather approaching, Miracles in Motion — which was started in 1987 in Swisher, Iowa — is ready to begin its season. Tim McCue, 11, has been in the program for six years. Socializing and building up his leg muscles, which have been affected by cerebral palsy, are some of the benefits he receives.

"It's helped me by saying, 'You're handicapped; there's things you can't do, but there's a lot of things you can do,'" McCue said.

Being able to get out of the house was another plus for McCue, and he said his mother got him involved for that reason.

"She thought it would be good for me to get out and get a little more active," he said. "It's a good idea, and it's been good for me."

Judy Cilek, whose 13-year-old daughter Carrie is in the program, said it's an experience for her daughter to be in an activity instead of having to watch. She said the program helps Carrie, who has cerebral palsy, with her balance. It also helps her limited speech because she has to give commands to the horse.

"She really looks forward to coming out here," Judy Cilek said. "Her biggest thing is her sense of accomplishment."

Riding the horses around the arena and other activities — such as playing Nerf basketball on horseback — give the children a sense of independence, said UI graduate student Greg Harden, who is a Miracles in Motion volunteer.

"The thing that allows them to build their self-confidence is the instructor won't let them just sit on the horse," Harden said. "The child must lead it. I think it's a rare opportunity for them when they are the ones in control."

It's the kids' own special program, Harden said. After Miracles in Motion participants see their siblings in other activities they can't do, they get involved in a program designed specifically for them.

"They see themselves as special," he said. "Not because they are different, but because they're doing something others want to do."

Miracles in Motion had 100 students in its 1994 program and more than 200 volunteers, Ann Broderick said. But she said the program loses a lot of volunteers because many move or graduate. The program has seven horses right now, but Ann Broderick said the group's goal is to have nine.

The volunteer staff makes do with a budget of $50,000 to $60,000 a year, received through fund-raisers and contributions, Ann Broderick said.

Doderer blames dislike of nominee on racism

Tom Seery
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Opposition to Dr. Henry Foster's nomination as U.S. surgeon general has racial overtones, an Iowa legislator charged Thursday.

"The opposition to Dr. Foster and other African-Americans is beginning to appear racist," Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City,

"Dr. Foster has been the target of groups who would destroy all of our public servants if given the opportunity."

Rep. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City

said at a news conference to rally Iowa support for Foster, who is black.

Doderer cited opposition to other Clinton appointees who are black — including the previous surgeon general, Joycelyn Elders.

"Dr. Foster has been the target of groups who would destroy all of our public servants if given the opportunity," Doderer said.

Foster's opponents have said their opposition stems from his professional medical history, which includes performing abortions. Thursday's news conference was part of a nationwide effort by pro-choice groups to muster support for Foster, who must be confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

"It is unconscionable that a small minority of extremists is attempting to block his confirmation by noting that Dr. Foster has performed abortions — a legal, constitutionally protected procedure — when he and his patient deemed it to be medically necessary and appropriate," said Jill June, president of Planned Parenthood of Greater Iowa.

"I believe that Dr. Foster would be the last person in this world to claim or insist that abortion and contraceptive services are the solution to teenage pregnancy or escalating numbers of mothers and children on welfare," said Mary Grefe of Pro-Choice Iowa Republicans. "But as surgeon general, I believe that he will insist on an integrated approach to health-care services, which will certainly include reproductive self-determination despite the efforts of those who want to keep women powerless in their reproductive lives."

FCC ruling cuts cost of long-distance calls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' long-distance telephone bills could go down as much as $1 billion this year because of a federal agency's decision to reduce the payments big carriers must make to local companies. But the new plan will translate into mere pocket change for the average customer.

The Federal Communications Commission voted 4-1 Thursday to order a cut in the charges long-distance carriers pay to local phone companies to begin and end long-distance calls.

Long-distance customers will see roughly 2 percent trimmed off their total bills by the action, said Mark Uretsky, a chief economist at the FCC's Common Carrier Bureau.

The average long-distance bill for an American Telephone & Telegraph customer is $17 a month, according to spokesman Herb Linnen. Two percent off that would save a customer 34 cents.

AT&T Corp. is the nation's largest provider of long-distance service.

"It's just a little bit of pocket change for the average long-distance telephone customer," said Bradley Stillman, legislative director of the Consumer Federation of America. "We're glad to have it, but it's nowhere near what customers deserve," he said.

The federation and long-distance companies said the FCC didn't cut the payments to local companies deep enough.

In general, local phone companies said the agency went too far, depriving them of a fair price for their service and penalizing them for being efficient.

Bell Atlantic Corp. plans to appeal the FCC's order, which Jim Young, vice president and general counsel, described as "punitive."

FBI investigates charges of cover-up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has opened a criminal inquiry into allegations that the National Security Agency or Army intelligence destroyed files relating to the death of an American in Guatemala in 1990 and of a Guatemalan rebel leader two years later.

At the same time, President Clinton ordered a review of all aspects of allegations surrounding the deaths or abuse of three other Americans in Guatemala dating back 10 years.

Clinton's directive followed published reports as well as allegations by a congressman that have raised questions about CIA ties to the Guatemalan military, which is regarded by many as the most brutal in the hemisphere.

The directive supplements separate investigations already under way at the CIA, the NSA, the State Department, the Army and possibly other agencies.

Clinton to oversee turnover of troops in Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — "Operation Uphold Democracy" is ending in triumph for President Clinton, who will arrive today to transfer responsibility for the U.S.-led mission to the United Nations.

But as Haiti gears up for June elections, the smaller U.N. force will have to deal with a new kind of insecurity resulting from political killings, a frightening crime wave and the unfinished business of economic recovery.

The new violence has raised doubts about whether the American intervention has produced the "secure and stable environment" that U.N. resolutions set as a precondition for the hand over to the smaller U.N. force.

American troops landed Sept. 19 to oversee a deal by which the military regime agreed to step down peacefully and turn over power to President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, whom they had overthrown three years earlier.

Aristide returned Oct. 15 to begin re-establishing democracy, which will get a crucial test in June 4 legislative elections.

Clinton will make an 11-hour visit to the country today to oversee the transfer of responsibility to 6,000 U.N. peacekeepers and 900 police officers. The force will still have 2,500 Americans — down from a peak of 21,000.

Pope reiterates pro-life stance

Frances D'Emilio
Associated Press

VATICAN CITY — On Thursday, Pope John Paul II denounced a spreading "culture of death" in an encyclical that represents the church's most forceful condemnation of abortion, euthanasia and capital punishment.

The pope, addressing himself to politicians, declared that abortion and euthanasia are "crimes which no human law can claim to legitimize."

"Evangelium vitae," or "Gospel of Life," the 11th encyclical of Pope John Paul's 16-year papacy, also refines the church's stand on the death penalty, saying its justification is "very rare," if not "practically nonexistent."

Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, the Vatican's guardian of orthodoxy, said the encyclical goes beyond the 1992 revision of the catechism in hardening the stance against capital punishment.

As for abortion and euthanasia, the encyclical is not a pronouncement of new doctrine because the church already condemned those practices, Cardinal Alfonso Lopez Trujillo said. Rather, it is a "systematic defense, broader and stronger" of the fundamental right to life, he said.

The encyclical grew out of a request by a 1991 meeting of cardinals who asked the pope to help combat a culture they said was increasingly geared toward attacks on life. Publication of the encyclical follows the vigorous Vatican campaign to try to influence positions on abortion and birth control at last September's U.N. population conference in Cairo, Egypt.

The new encyclical restates the Vatican's ban on birth control and notes the pope is well aware of the assertion that "contraception, if made safe and available to all, is the most effective remedy against abortion."

But a "contraceptive mentality" could lead to the "temptation" for abortion, he said.

"Indeed, the pro-abortion culture is especially strong precisely where the church's teaching on contraception is rejected," the pope said in a possible reference to liberal wings of the Catholic Church, such as in western Europe or in the United States.

However, he said it would be permissible for lawmakers to back legislation allowing abortion under

Associated Press

Pope John Paul II signs the encyclical "Evangelium vitae," or "Gospel of Life," at the Vatican Thursday. In the 11th encyclical of his pontificate, the pope delivered the Catholic Church's most forceful condemnation of abortion, euthanasia and experimentation on human embryos. Pope John Paul, addressing himself to politicians, declared that abortion and euthanasia are "crimes which no human law can claim to legitimize."

restrictions if the alternative was letting a law stand that was even more liberal.

Cardinal Adam Maida of the Archdiocese of Detroit praised the document and called on U.S. lawmakers and voters "to work together to develop" legislation with "a new moral conscience."

The pope expressed understanding for women who live through the often "painful and even shattering" experience of abortion. But he said no reason, "however serious and tragic," justifies abortion — including a woman's "desire to protect certain important values, such as her own health or a decent standard of living" for the rest of her family.

"I declare that direct abortion — that is, abortion willed as an end or as a means — always constitutes a grave moral disorder since it is the deliberate killing of an innocent human being," the pope wrote in the church's strongest expression yet on the practice.

He affirmed the Holy See's penalty of automatic excommunication for anyone "who actually procures an abortion."

But he appeared intent on injecting a note of mercy in his overall harsh pronouncement, offering a "special word to women who have had an abortion."

"Certainly what has happened was and remains terribly wrong," the pope wrote. "But do not give in to discouragement and do not lose hope."

Probe of cult intensifies after attack on official

Laura King
Associated Press

TOKYO — Officers mounted a huge manhunt in a quiet neighborhood Thursday after a brazen daylight ambush on Japan's top police official and threats of new attacks if police continue investigating a doomsday cult.

The sect — called Aum Shinri Kyo, or "Supreme Truth" — is the prime suspect in the March 20 nerve gas attack on the Tokyo subway that killed 10 people and sickened 5,500 others. It denies involvement, but police have seized a cache of chemicals and equipment for making nerve gas in raids at the sect's compounds.

The cult also denied involvement in the attack on National Police Agency head Takaji Kunimatsu, who was shot four times from behind by a masked assailant as he was leaving his Tokyo condominium for work Thursday morning. Kunimatsu was in serious condition after surgery, in which he needed 21 pints of blood.

The shooting was a fresh shock to Japanese already reeling from the subway attack and marked another assault on a self-image of safety and security in a country where guns are banned.

"We can only say, 'It's scary; it's so scary,'" said author Kaoru Takamura. "I think this is very sad."

Prime Minister Tomichi Murayama called the shooting a contemptible act and ordered an all-out investigation. He also called for tighter security for top government officials.

Kunimatsu did not have a bodyguard with him at the time of the attack.

Blue-uniformed police combed the quiet neighborhood in eastern Tokyo where Kunimatsu lived for signs of his assailant, described as a thin middle-aged man in a black coat who wore a surgical face mask. He fled by bicycle.

Several people believed to be cult followers were seen at Kunimatsu's building on Wednesday, handing out leaflets criticizing police actions against the sect.

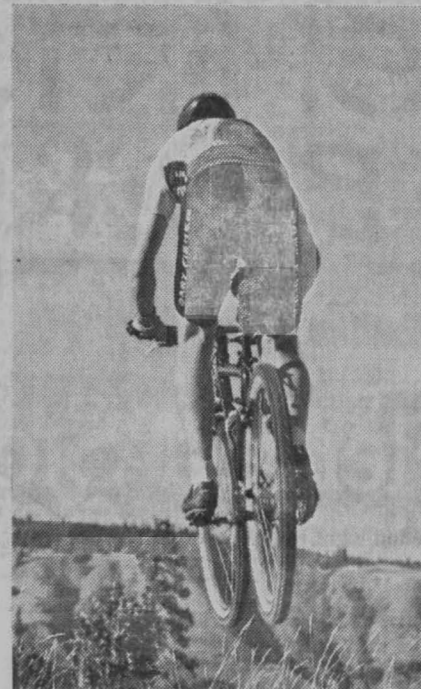

Transportation officials ordered special vigilance on buses, trains, planes and stations for suspicious objects or people. Subway officials have earmarked $11.1 million for new security cameras at nearly 150 stations.

The first of those were installed Thursday at Kasumigaseki station, next to the headquarters of the national and city police.

It is widely believed that police were a primary target of the subway attack because all five trains that had nerve gas parcels planted on them were bound for Kasumigaseki.

The timing of the attack — just as police officers were to arrive for their early shift — lends further credence to that theory. The cult has had a history of trouble with the police, whose actions it has bitterly denounced as religious oppression.

Specter officially tosses hat
into ringJohn King
Associated Press

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Challenging his party's conservative tide, Sen. Arlen Specter declared his presidential candidacy

Thursday, warning President Clinton will win re-election if Republicans fall "captive to the demands of the intolerant right."

Specter, 65, launched his uphill bid with a forceful rebuke of forces he said threatened to tug the Republican Party away from its winning message of smaller government and lower taxation by pursuing "a radical social agenda which would end a woman's right to choose and mandate school prayer."

The third-term senator made his announcement in Washington between the Lincoln Memorial and Washington Monument — and then again at the state Capitol in his home state of Pennsylvania.

He pledged to "lead the fight to strip the strident anti-choice language from the Republican national platform." And he criticized religious broadcaster Pat Robertson and other cultural conservatives who he said opposed the constitutional barrier separating church and state and would blacklist Republicans who support abortion rights.

"There is no doubt that people with deep religious and moral convictions must be active in the political process," said Specter, the son of Russian immigrants. If elected he would be the first Jewish president.

As a dozen or so abortion opponents at the Washington event waved placards denouncing his candidacy, Specter said, "Neither this nation nor this party can afford a Republican candidate so captive to the demands of the intolerant right that we end up by re-electing a president of the incompetent left."

Specter, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, took only brief aim at Clinton. He said the president was not tough enough in pushing North Korea to end its nuclear program or in combating terrorism and the spread of weapons of mass destruction.

"My commitment to America is to replace a president who has been inattentive, inactive and indecisive when it comes to America's vital foreign-policy interests," he said.

As for his own ideas, Specter's centerpiece economic proposal is to junk an income tax system he said is riddled with loopholes for the rich and special interests in favor of a 20 percent flat tax, with deductions only for mortgage interest and charitable contributions.

And he said his 12 years working in the Philadelphia district attorney's office — as well as his long-standing support of the death penalty and tougher sentences — gave him unique crime-fighting credentials.

Specter, the fifth Republican to formally declare a 1996 presidential bid, promised to balance the federal budget by 2002 through spending cuts. And on a hotly debated educational issue, he backed privatization of some public schools.

The other official candidates are Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, commentator Pat Buchanan and radio talk host Alan Keyes. Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas plans to announce his candidacy April 10, and Indiana Sen. Dick Lugar will announce his on April 19. California Gov. Pete Wilson says he intends to run with an announcement likely in May.

Whether Specter's positioning will get him far is the subject of considerable doubt in the GOP ranks.

"Making abortion your main issue is a no-win strategy in Republican primaries," said GOP pollster Fred Steeper. "It will be a long time before this party nominates another moderate."

Robertson, whose Christian Coalition is influential in GOP affairs, issued a statement saying he did not, as Specter said, oppose the separation of church and state.

New witness, evidence may be called in for Simpson trial

Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Prosecutors plan to haul an airport trash can into court along with a new witness to suggest O.J. Simpson disposed of something before leaving town the night his ex-wife and her friend were murdered, according to a court transcript released Thursday.

Deputy District Attorney Marcia Clark said a witness had come forward with recollections of seeing Simpson standing by a trash can at Los Angeles International Airport before his late-night flight to Chicago on June 12.

"This witness will state that he saw Mr. Simpson reach down, then reach back up and go into his bag and zip it up," Clark told attorneys and the judge at a sidebar conference Wednesday.

"The trash can is coming, too," she said.

The witness's name was not released, but Clark said his testimony would corroborate limousine driver Allan Park's statement that Simpson placed a duffel bag on a trash can as he checked his luggage around 11:30 p.m.

Airport skycap James Williams has also testified that Simpson stood near the trash can as he was checking his luggage, but Williams didn't see Simpson do anything involving the can.

Only one witness testified at the double-murder trial Thursday — Susan Silva, a Westec Security Inc. employee who explained the workings of the alarm system at Simpson's estate.

With jurors dismissed for the day, DNA lawyers set the stage for a battle over the heart of the prosecution case — the analysis of blood found at the crime scene, at Simpson's home, in his white Ford Bronco and on the glove discovered on his estate.

The defense also asked for a hearing outside the jury's presence about scientific methods used to analyze some blood samples. The defense had waived such a DNA admissibility hearing in an eight-minute courtroom session Jan. 4, but lawyers now claim that procedures employed after the waiver require exploration.

Simpson, 47, is accused in both murders. Prosecutors say the killings occurred about 10:15 p.m. June 12 and are trying to construct a time line that would have given Simpson enough time to have driven home from the crime scene — his ex-wife's condominium — then clean up and meet his waiting limousine.

NO BARS ON WINDOWS YET

Still safe in Iowa City

Here's a simple task: Walk through the parking lot of any Iowa establishment. You will find at least a handful of unlocked cars. Why? It's safe in Iowa.

The next time you take a trip to a big city, attempt the same task. You will most likely find locked cars, steering wheels secured with the Club and a blinking car alarm threatening to go off the moment your hot breath makes contact with the car window. Why? It's not so safe in big cities.

If you live in Iowa, you probably don't have that temperamental crick in your neck from constantly looking over your shoulder, as most big cities have. You probably don't latch a chain lock, a dead bolt and double door lock on your front door immediately after you arrive home. You probably don't stare outside through the thick bars lining your windows.

That's because it's safe in Iowa, right?

A recent NBC-TV national news report highlighted Des Moines as the Midwest's grand central station of crack cocaine. Their twist on the story was that the world has gone to "pot" and now even safe little Iowa isn't any more immune than anywhere else.

Even local Iowa television news reports dangle the thought that crime is a problem, that Chicago gang activity is festering in our midst.

Let's put this in perspective. The fact is, Iowa is tied with North Dakota as having the lowest murder rate in the nation. This is one of the safest, tamest places to live.

Keep the news in check with the rest of the world. A robbery at a gas station would not make news in New York City. A $100 drug sting would never be mentioned on Los Angeles television. Here in Iowa and relative to the rest of the world, it's top news. But that doesn't mean top news is a local trend.

So don't let TV news reports or headlines scare you into becoming neurotic about crime. This is still Iowa. It's still safe here.

Gratitude extended to I.C. lesbian community

To the Editor:

I read the article about someone writing on a bathroom wall that Lea Haravon is the "No. 1 Lesbian on Campus" (DI, March 7). I am not a lesbian, and until I came to Iowa City, I had not knowingly known any lesbians. But I am a woman, a mother and a human being. Oh yes, I am black, 47 years old and overweight according to the masses. I don't have a college degree and right now I'm temporarily out of money. I don't say "poor" because being poor is a state of mind. According to the description I've just given you, my name needs to be on the bathroom wall under the label "Nothings of Society" right next to Haravon's. I would be very proud to share that space with her.

When I came to the Iowa City area almost 15 years ago, I had just lost everything I had worked for over 20 years to accumulate. With the blink of an eye, it was all gone. My children and I came here with $66 and a few clothes. We didn't know anyone here, we were homeless and we felt dead inside. Our lives were a living hell for about a year — until we met some women who were lesbians. They opened their hearts to us and showered us with understanding, hope, information and love. I didn't know that I was depressed or that depression was a very serious illness that could be treated. Where I come from, one didn't go to counselors; you worked your problems out for yourself. Through one of the friends that I made — who, by the way, was a lesbian — I came to understand that I could get the help I needed and it was OK that I needed it.

When I think of it, it seems to me that being gay goes past sex. It seems that it is a new world of acceptance, helping and loving people that other people don't want to love. It's helping. No matter why I am in the place I am in life and finding the good underneath the bad. If all of the people in America could band together with the love that the lesbians in Iowa City, including Haravon, have shown me and my family, there would be no hungry people, no homelessness, no crime. To Haravon and all the lesbians of Iowa City, I give my commitment to try like all of you to make this world a better place to live.

Look at both sides of affirmative action

To the Editor:

Why would we throw away an idea that has made progress in decreasing the discrimination of minorities and women? Just the same, why would we want to keep something in act that has led us to further problems in employment and brought about reverse discrimination? Well, according to Kim Painter's article, we can be "of divided mind" in the recent development of affirmative action (DI, Feb. 20).

Painter revealed to her readers that two California Republicans have recently suggested an act called the California Civil Rights Initiative. This potential change to the state Constitution in California is proposed for 1996 and if passed would absolutely wipe out any partial treatment toward minorities or women as applicants. Is this really a solution to the unintended results that we have felt from affirmative action? Painter brought in her viewpoint that a strictly liberal or conservative view on the issue of affirmative action will not get us anywhere.

Why people will always vote for their political party without more closely considering each issue is beyond me, but people do it. We cannot, however, adopt these extreme viewpoints as a society when dealing with this issue. If we ignore the fact that affirmative action has led to more discrimination and resentment in our society and keep this legislation, we will end up further into the problem. On the other hand, if we completely dismiss the idea behind affirmative action, we will regress from the progress that has already been made for women and minorities. So which option is better? It seems fairly obvious that neither is a reasonable approach.

As a liberal myself, I see the positive aspects and results from affirmative action; however, I myself have also felt the negative effects of this legislation. I have been a victim of reverse discrimination. In my case, I was a woman but not a member of a minority group. I was denied scholarships that I was highly qualified for because there were minorities who applied for the same awards. It didn't matter whether or not they were less qualified because there were a certain amount of the scholarships to be given to minorities. It seems that I was then at a disadvantage for being of the majority group. These types of situations happen all the time, and it is leading to more resentment from the majority groups toward minorities and women for getting jobs and awards that they don't deserve.

More thoughtful, fair solutions necessary

Are drug tests necessary for prospective junior-high athletes?

This is part of the question that the Supreme Court is about to give its ruling on in the case of a brave, determined young man named James Acton.

Acton was a seventh-grade student in 1991 who wanted to participate on his school's football team. He is also described as an exceptional — even model — student.

Acton attended junior high school at Washington Grade School in the small logging town of Veronia, Ore. Washington Grade School has a drug-testing policy in place for members of its student body who wish to participate in sports. When Acton, with his parents' backing, refused to take the drug test, he was barred from the team.

The Veronia School Board, which oversees Washington Grade School, voted in 1989 to implement the drug testing in order to combat what its members viewed as out-of-control student drug use. The drug test chosen checks urine for evidence of marijuana, amphetamine, LSD and cocaine use but does not check for alcohol use.

The court is reviewing the question of whether urinalysis of this sort is a form of unreasonable search and seizure — a violation of a citizen's Fourth Amendment rights. The case was brought to their forum by Acton's parents, who sued the school district over the incident.

The question of whether this action is a form of unreasonable search and seizure seems to have been answered by at least one coach at Washington, who told "CNN Headline News" that giving up "a little" of our Fourth Amendment protection might be necessary to effectively combat the drug problem in the school district.

And to some degree, the staunchest of liberals must understand the school district's side on this issue: Faced with a proliferation of what some described on National Public Radio's "Morning Edition" as flagrant use of controlled substances — a sort of arrogant juvenile taunting — the school board and school officials are today struggling to find solutions.

On a somewhat local scale, those aware of the situation in some of Iowa's larger school districts may also sympathize. The use of the drug crank is surprisingly widespread in the Des Moines school system, according to students from public schools in the area. The same can be said for the Waterloo Community School District, where crack was only recently the "in" thing.

Solutions must be found that are more effective than the rose-tinted glasses approach of movements such as the "Just Say No" campaign. Somehow, the use of dangerous, addictive substances such as crack and crack must be answered and counteracted, and society's anti-drug stance on much less harmful substances such as marijuana must be simultaneously relaxed if that movement's positions are to be taken seriously by those it targets.

But aside from being a barometer primarily of what one does on one's own time, drug tests cannot be seen as the solution. They are too easy to fool, and they do not even marginally deter the use of controlled substances. Just ask the kids.

Deciding how a person will perform at work or in school or in sports based upon what you learn from scrutinizing their urine is no solution. And because such scrutiny examines citizens' private activities, it certainly appears to be an unreasonable form of search and seizure.

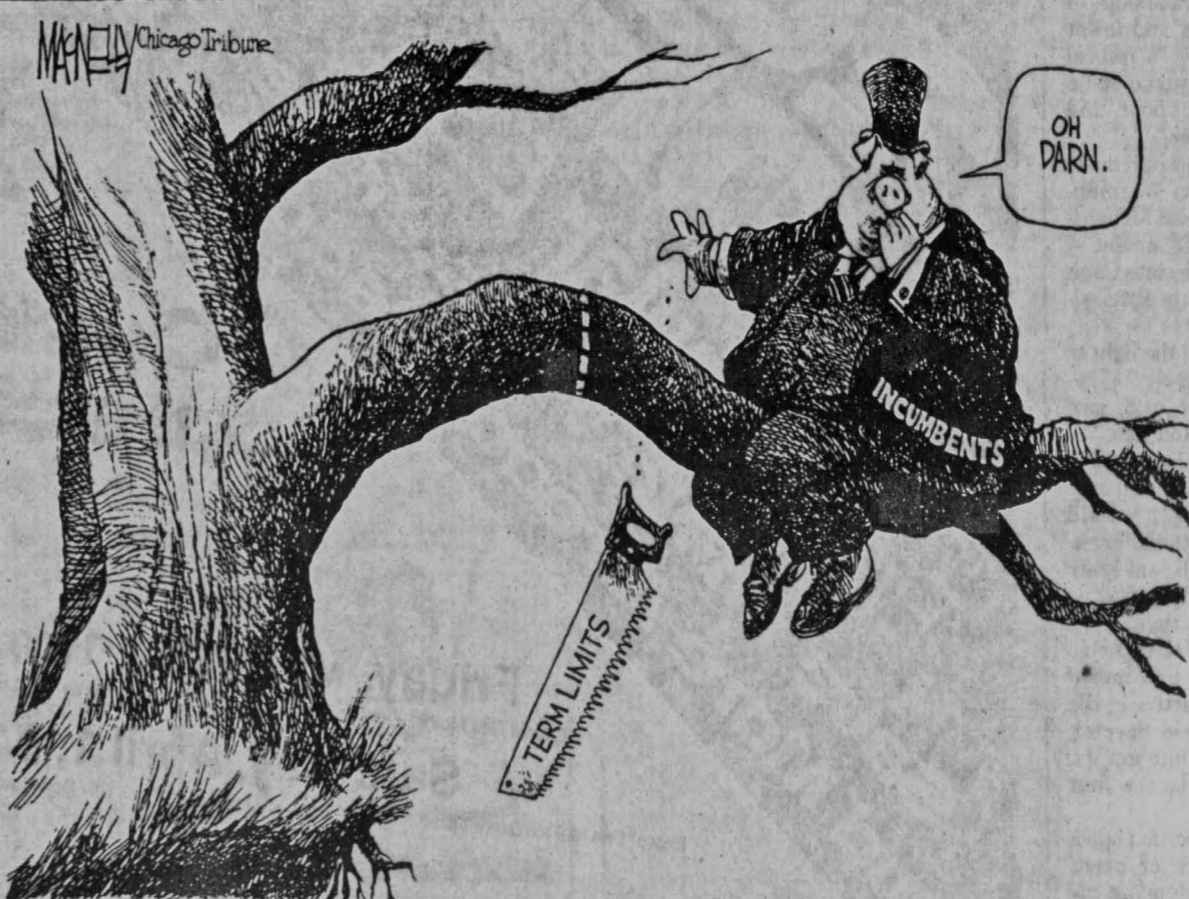

Acton knows that he did the right thing. "It's not too difficult to understand the right of privacy," he said in a March 28 report by The Associated Press. "I think everybody should be taught that they have that right before it's taken away."

An upstanding student, he felt that his example would be the right one to pit against the drug-testing mentality governing the Veronia School Board at the moment.

Let's hope that the Actons come out on top and that for the sake of the students, Veronia officials find more thoughtful and fair solutions to the problems they face.

Jonathan Lyons' column appears Fridays on the Viewpoints Pages.

DAVE BARRY

Female action figure has nothing on Barbie

As an American, I am ticked off about Sailor Moon. What is Sailor Moon, you ask? Shut up and I will tell you.

Sailor Moon is a licensed cartoon-character merchandising concept that is about to be dumped on us by the people who brought us the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers. If you've never heard of the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers, go to a window right now, open it and listen. You'll hear the high-pitched, irritating sound of small children all over America demanding in whiny voices that their parents take out second mortgages so that they can buy official Power Rangers action figures, lunch boxes, backpacks, underwear, snow tires, fork lifts, assault rifles, ponies, marital aids, members of Congress and hundreds of other licensed spin-off products.

The cause of this whining is a daily TV show starring the Power Rangers, a group of low-IQ trailer-park dwellers who have extramarital affairs with their in-laws and screech at each other in front of a live studio audience.

No, wait, that's the "Jerry Springer" show. The Power Rangers are a group of teen-agers who have the ability to transform themselves into crime fighters with the power to beat the living starch out of evil beings while speaking very bad dialogue. I don't see this show very often, so to obtain more information, I called up my research department, Judi Smith, who has young children and therefore has Power Rangers coming from her pores.

"How do the Power Rangers transform?" I asked her.

"They call on the power of their Zords," she explained.

"The power of their swords?" I asked.

"No," she said, in the tone of voice that you use to talk to a dog. "THEIR ZORDS. Z-O-R-D-S. Zords."

A few minutes later, Judi called back to report that she had discussed this issue with her husband, Tim, who is a college history professor.

"Tim says they don't call on the power of their Zords to transform," she reported. "He says they just morph."

"I see," I said. "I asked him how they morph," she said. "And he said, quote, 'They have morphing capability.'"

"Well," I said, "that certainly clears—"

"He says the morphing capability must come from that guy with his head in the tube."

"Ah," I said.

"But they definitely call on the power of their Zords for something," she said.

So we see that the Power Rangers can have a dangerous impact on our brain function, and now we face the additional menace of Sailor Moon. According to an Associated Press story, Sailor Moon is the blond ponytailed heroine of a wildly popular Japanese cartoon show. Sailor Moon leads a team of female superheroes who wear miniskirts and go-go boots. According to the AP story, they "combat evil and sexism" using special powers that they get from their "magical brooches, scepters and compacts."

That's right. These heroines, striking a bold blow against sexism and outdated stereotypes of women, get their power from jewelry and makeup.

We can only try to imagine the plot action.

First Female Superhero: Uh-oh! It's the evil villain Lord Pustule! He's going to destroy the world!

Second Female Superhero: Not if I can help it! Toss me the eyeliner!

The AP story also says that parts of some Japanese episodes will not be shown to American audiences, such as the one in which a member of Sailor Moon's team "proudly refers to the size of her breasts."

Do you want to know what really ticks me off? What ticks me off is this quote from a male spokesperson for the company that's importing Sailor Moon to the United States: "Today's little girls want to be just as strong as boys. Barbie is not really an appropriate role model anymore."

Do you hear that, Americans? He's putting down Barbie. He's trying to tell us that Barbie — who smiled perkily through the entire Cold War, who has remained fiercely loyal to Ken despite the fact that her hair is combed and his is molded plastic, who has been used to set fire to a set of underwear on the David Letterman TV show, who has never felt any need to refer to the size of her breasts — this guy is trying to tell us that Barbie is not strong enough.

Well, Sailor Moon spokesperson, perhaps you would change your tune if you took a gander at the Nov. 28, 1994 issue of Fortune magazine, sent in by several alert readers. On page 170, you will see two photographs showing the kind of grueling tests Barbie is put through by the Mattel Corp. The top photograph shows Barbie in a complete scuba outfit (of course, it's pink), submerged in a tank where she has been underwater for 15 straight hours — and her hair still looks perfect.

The bottom photograph — which is, for my money, the most fascinating photograph ever published in Fortune magazine — shows Barbie in a machine labeled "Bite Testing Fixtures." This tests to see whether Barbie will crack when young people, for whatever reason, bite her. Barbie is wearing black hot pants and a pink blouse, her right foot is clamped tightly inside the jaws of a scary-looking machine and there's a noose-like string going around her neck.

You'd think Barbie would feel depressed, being treated like this by her own manufacturer, but she looks just as chipper as ever. Her right arm is raised in a cheerful wave, as if she's saying, "It takes a lot more than strangling me while crushing my foot to make THIS licensed character lose her fundamental American spunk and perkiness, Sailor Moon spokesperson!"

You tell him, Barbie! The rest of America is standing behind you on this! We're sick and tired of seeing our precious cultural heritage undermined, and we're going to defend our traditional licensed characters against attacks from abroad, no matter what it takes, even if this means — and I do not say this lightly — that we must call on the power of our Zords.

Bob Furhman, UI senior

"Players, because they're the ones who make the game work. If it's not for them, the owners wouldn't have anything to own."

Brian Wicks, Iowa City resident

"I'm mixed. I believe (the players) are getting paid way too much for doing what they're doing, but it's kind of hard to put a price on how much their bodies are worth."

Darryl Moore, UI sophomore

"I side with the owners. I think the players are making enough already. There should be a salary cap because things were going well up to this time."

STREET

"They were not only worried about what the driver could see, but they were concerned with damaging their equipment," he said. However, he said, "Speed is what killed Chris Street," Duncan said. "Had the snowplow been going 45 (mph), there would have been no accident."

The Streets' other attorney, Randy Larson, told the jury the Streets are entitled to their son's estate. Chris Street would have earned millions, he said.

William Conway, an economics professor at Augustana College in Rock Island, Ill., determined Street would have earned $13.8 million if he played in the National Basketball Association for 12 years and saved 40 percent of his earnings. Conway's estimation was based on last week's testimony from Marty Blake, an NBA scout who said Street would have been drafted in the first round of 1994.

"It wasn't a question of predicting what kind of basketball player Chris Street would've been in 10 years," Larson said. "It was a fact all he had to do was stay alive for 18 months and he would have been drafted into the NBA."

Larson handed the jury a list of the top 27 picks in 1994, pointing out that none of them was a household name but that most signed million-dollar contracts. Blake said Street would have been chosen between ninth and 15th in the first round of the 1994 draft.

William Graham — Vinton's attorney, who is suing the county and insurance company in a separate lawsuit — suggested the jury award Vinton $193,196 in damages, which includes $119,600 for past pain and suffering, $42,300 for future pain and suffering, $13,946 for medical expenses, $13,700 for past loss of function and $3,650 for future loss of function.

"A little over two years ago, she held her fiancé's hand and he told her he loved her — and all that was lost in a second," Graham said. "We can't replace all that was lost that night. We can't give Kim back the hopefulness of youth. ... Her only remedy is for her to be fairly compensated for the physical and mental pain she suffered."

In his closing statements, defense attorney Bruce Walker insinuated Vinton felt guilty and suffered emotional anguish because she may have contributed to Street's distraction when he pulled out in front of Pence's snowplow. Her suicide attempt last year may have been due to her believing she was responsible for Street's accident, Walker said.

"We are asking you to look at (Vinton's) psychiatrist's and counselor's testimony and ask you to think about what could be causing that guilt, conflicting loyalties and stress," he said.

Walker contended the accident was caused because Street did not remain stopped at the sign on Highway 1. Street was in a hurry to get to his 7 p.m. class, Walker said.

"This accident was caused because a young man was in a hurry to get to class and he didn't wait five more seconds at a stop sign," he said. "Instead, he was looking at his girlfriend and, unfortunately, that cost him his life."

brought chuckles from the courtroom as he ripped apart the testimony of expert witnesses who said Pence was driving over 60 mph, including statements from Iowa City police officer Troy Kelsey. The officer estimated Pence's speed on the night of the accident was 46 mph; after conducting tests, he testified it was closer to 58 mph or 60 mph.

"If this trial had gone on any longer, who knows what it would have been?" Riley said. "The whole thing is scientific voodoo. It's all speculation."

Riley also brought up Street's four traffic violations that occurred within two years of his fatal accident.

"That doesn't mean Mr. Street was a bad person," he said. "Anybody can get a ticket. I've gotten a speeding ticket. But you have to work at getting four in a short period of time — or you're awfully unlucky."

Pence's wife, Diana, who is six months' pregnant, held her stomach through Riley's closing statements about her husband.

"Unlike the Streets, who seek millions for the money their son would have earned, (Pence) doesn't want any money," Riley said. "All my client wants is for you to lift the cloud that has hung over his head since his involvement in this accident in which a popular basketball player lost his life."

The jury must determine whether Street or Pence was at fault in the accident and what percentage of fault lies with each of them.

If each is found to be 50 percent culpable, both the Streets and Pence may recover damages. The jury must also determine if and how much Vinton will receive in her lawsuit.

in Iowa City but don't have job opportunities, so they're forced to leave," she said. "The offices will provide opportunities for people to get jobs downtown."

Hieronymus said she also wanted to provide more facilities for retailers who want a downtown location.

"There are no spaces in downtown Iowa City for rent," she said. "It's forcing people out of downtown. It's time to expand downtown and take care of the people who want spaces."

In addition, Hieronymus said she wanted a new location for her store, Gifted Ltd., currently located in the Old Capital Mall. The lease for Gifted Ltd. runs out in 1996, so Hieronymus said she wants the new building completed by then.

In its Tuesday night meeting, the Iowa City City Council voted 7-0 to approve the design of Hieronymus Square, making it eligible for property tax exemption. The exemption is part of the near commercial urban revitalization plan and is used as an incentive for developers.

Councilor Karen Kubby said since Hieronymus Square has met all design guidelines, its owners will save about $1.3 million in taxes over 10 years.

"A plus of the building is that it can be a beginning of further development south of Burlington (Street)," Kubby said. "We want very dense commercial development and it follows that vision of the plan."

Although Kubby supports more retail and office space in the downtown area, she said a potential problem would arise if firms move out of offices in the heart of downtown into Hieronymus Square.

"If businesses move out of the central part of downtown and the vacancies fill up, it's positive," she said. "But if they are left vacant, it's a negative. It's not a negative yet, but it's a potential negative."

combed the ruling but cautioned that it doesn't prevent the Pentagon from taking action against other homosexuals.

"We don't want people to read the paper and think they can come out tomorrow," said Beatrice Dohrn, legal director of the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Fund, which helped represent the plaintiffs.

Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said the government will appeal.

"We believe the challenged policy is constitutional, and we remain committed to defending it," he said.

Under the "don't ask, don't tell, don't pursue" policy, homosexuals can serve as long as they keep their sexual orientation to themselves and do not engage in homosexual acts. Otherwise, they can be honorably discharged. In addition, commanders may not ask service members their sexual orientation.

The Clinton administration adopted the policy in 1993 as a compromise between the views of gay rights advocates and those flatly opposed to homosexuals in the military.

majoring in social work, said Lesha was an amusing part of his social work curriculum.

"She was a part of our natural learning environment," Edwards said. "It sounds stupid, but she added a comforting element to class."

But Lesha has recently been expelled from North Hall and social work classes due to a UI policy which prohibits "dogs, mammals, birds and reptiles from UI buildings."

The UI policy preventing Lesha from continuing her college education is in accordance with Iowa law, said Allen Stroh, an administrative associate with UI Planning and Administrative Services.

Planning and Administrative Services is also located in North Hall.

Stroh said he saw Lesha in the building and sent a memo to the director of the school March 8 telling her the dog would have to go.

Pat Kelly, director of the School of Social Work, said she had been aware of Lesha's classroom attendance but had not known dogs were prohibited from the building.

The students obviously enjoyed having Lesha around, Kelly said. But since animals are not allowed in the building, Kelly had no choice but to enforce the ban.

King said she is upset over the situation, not only for herself, but also for her 14-year companion.

"I got Lesha into a routine, which was the highlight of her day, and then I had to change it," she said. "It's hard because I can't explain it to her."

Every day before class, King used to dress Lesha in a scarf and head to North Hall. King said that now Lesha looks longingly at the scarves while her owner gets ready to leave.

Tuesday was King's first day of class without Lesha and students' emotions ranged from sadness to anger and confusion.

"It's like (Lesha) died; people have come up to me with tears in their eyes asking about her," King said.

Although it has been hard for her, King said she understands Lesha has to stay home.

"Somebody was doing their job enforcing the rules," she said. "I can't fault them for that. But I hate bureaucracy as much as anyone."

vices. The policy, outlined in the UI Operations Manual, lays out a schedule for notification before losing one's job. Six months' notification must be given in the first four years of an employee's tenure. Nine months' notification must be given to an employee of five to nine years, and one year's notice is required for an employee of more than nine years.

The nurses will receive notice of the changes within the next two weeks and all the reassignments will be finished by July 1, Goode said.

The reassignment of nurses — most of whom hold management positions — is a result of funding cuts and immediate demands in other areas of UIHC, said Dean Borg, UIHC information director. The nurses will be put into one of 14 different classifications for nurses at UIHC, Borg said.

Borg would not say if the affected nurses would be assigned to jobs with pay equal to that of their current positions.

"They will be reassigned to other responsibilities, but there are 40.8 of them, so I can't comment about pay of new jobs on any specific one of them," he said. "People are just being moved to where the need is."

"This isn't a layoff. This is simply taking people from one area and giving them other responsibilities."

Borg said a news release sent to local media stating 55 UIHC nurses face "demotions" was not distributed by the UI.

Lynette Hartsock, nurse manager of UIHC's neurology outpatient clinic, said the reassigned nurses have the option of taking new positions as other classifications of nurses. Hartsock's position, considered part of UIHC's middle management, won't be affected by the cut.

"If they choose not to take a position that's available, they'll be out on the street," she said. "Someone who was a nurse manager might not want to go back to being a bedside nurse. But if they have to make money to feed families, they'll have to."

Re: Creating Positive Relationships in Our Community

To Our Friends:

Hills Bank recognizes the importance of positive relationships in our community. We believe that the quality of our community and our work place is reflected in the way its members treat one another.

Positive interpersonal relationships are evident throughout our community. We see them when:

- Strangers greet strangers with smiles
- A salesperson welcomes a customer with a sincere, "How may I help you?"
- A supervisor sends a personal note of acknowledgement to a co-worker who has done a good job
- A teacher spends extra time with a student who needs help
- A neighbor helps out the folks next door

We believe there is a common bond among people which fosters a sense of teamwork and trust among customers, friends and neighbors that we appreciate and value. We believe that these relationships serve as a stable foundation for the future of our community.

In April, Hills Bank will sponsor activities, displays and bank related products to support this theme. Please watch your local newspaper and stop by any of our locations to learn more about these events.

Please help us create positive relationships in our community by taking part in this celebration.

Sincerely,

Dwight O. Seegmiller

Tyson talks: King can stay and Showtime gets bouts

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mike Tyson needed only 61 seconds — almost as fast as he knocks out some opponents — to reaffirm that promoter Don King will lead his quest to regain the heavyweight championship.

"Don is the greatest promoter in the world, as we know," Tyson said Thursday in his first public comments since being released from prison Saturday.

With those words, Tyson ended speculation of a rift with King. He did not take any questions after reading a brief statement.

Tyson also said close friends John Horne and Rory Holloway would co-manage him, his fights would be televised by the Showtime cable network and his bouts would be at the MGM Grand in Las Vegas. Tyson didn't mention a fight timetable, but the chairman of the MGM Grand expects him to fight "within six months."

Looking trim in a black suit, the 28-year-old fighter began his statement to the hundreds of reporters who had gathered in Gund Arena by discussing how he spent his three years in prison on a rape conviction.

"For the past three years I've had a chance to reflect on my life and to develop my mind," Tyson said, "and I will continue my journey to making myself a better person so I can help others."

Tyson, sporting a mustache and beard, appeared smaller than the Iron Mike who terrorized the heavyweight division in the last half of the 1980s.

He read his statement, stumbling once over some words, his face the blank mask that has given his boxing opponents jitters. He ended his statement by saying, "May Allah bless you all. Thank you."

Jordan scores 23 in Bulls' blowout of Celtics

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan followed his 55-point masterpiece with a low-key 23-point performance Thursday night, adding 11 rebounds and six assists in leading the Chicago Bulls to a 100-82 victory over the Boston Celtics.

Unlike Tuesday at New York, when the Bulls needed Jordan's outburst to defeat the Knicks 113-111, Chicago was in control throughout against Boston.

After the Celtics pulled to 69-63 late in the third quarter, the Bulls used a 15-2 run to sew up their 12th win in 16 games and pull within one game of Cleveland for the fifth Eastern Conference playoff seed.

Jordan scored 8 points during the run, including a soaring slam after Scottie Pippen's nice feed. Pippen added 17 points.

Toni Kukoc, who had been struggling since Jordan came out of retirement six games ago, had a triple-double with 14 points, a career-high 11 assists and 10 rebounds.

Derek Strong scored 17 points for Boston, which fell a half-game behind Miami in the race for the final playoff spot in the East. Dee Brown, coming off a 41-point effort, scored only 9 on 2-of-10 shooting.

Hawks denied Duprey's request

Quarterback asked to return after quitting team in the fall

Mike Triplett
The Daily Iowan

The Hawkeyes won't be heading into the 1995 football season with a quarterback controversy as they did last season. One thing they will be missing, however, is the depth.

One player that would have helped that situation is senior Mike Duprey. Duprey started three games for an injury-riddled Hawkeye team last year, but chose to leave the team after the season ended in hopes of graduating in May and finding a job.

This spring, however, Duprey wavered on his decision. He decided a couple of weeks ago that it might be a nice idea to return. That left Hawkeye coaches and players in a bind, which led to discussion, a vote and eventually a decision:

Duprey will not return to the team.

"I really don't have a comment on it because it's something that was dealt with by the team and it should stay within the team," Duprey said of the situation.

According to players, Coach Hayden Fry discussed the possibility of Duprey's return with them on Wednesday, March 15, then allowed the team to make the decision.

"Coach Fry discussed it by saying that he didn't want this to be a coaching decision. He wanted the players to decide because we're his teammates and we're the ones who would be playing with him," Hawkeye receiver Richard Carter said. "Coach Fry also talked about the depth situation at quarterback."

Carter was referring to the fact that sophomore Matt Sherman and junior Ryan Driscoll return to the Hawkeyes this coming season as the only two quarterbacks with experience.

According to junior defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge, Fry then asked the players for their thoughts.

"He said, 'What do you guys think?'," Ennis-Inge said. "It's probably more of a coaching decision in the end, but (Fry) probably wanted to know where the team was at."

Carter said he was one of several players that felt Duprey should stay on the team.

Big-play threats highlight special teams

Patrick Regan

Perhaps the most exciting aspect of the 1994 Iowa football team was its special teams and things shouldn't change much this season.

Redshirt freshman Tavian Banks and true freshman Tim Dwight electrified Kinnick Stadium all season, returning kickoffs and punts for the Hawkeyes.

Iowa coach Hayden Fry confirmed Tuesday that heading into spring practice, the Hawkeyes have every intention of keeping Dwight and Banks on special teams.

"Both Dwight and Tavian give us an all-the-way threat every time they touch the ball," he said.

Dwight finished first in the Big Ten Conference in punt returns with 12.4 yards-per-return aver-

Gophers pursue first road victory at Iowa

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

With 13 returning letter winners from last year's Top 25 squad, Minnesota baseball is primed for another run through the Big Ten Conference.

But heading into consecutive doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday at Iowa Field, the Gophers are playing in the worst possible location: On the road.

"...everybody struggles at some time. But once you get into the Big Ten, Minnesota will probably be pretty tough."

Matt Austin, Iowa pitcher

Minnesota (10-11) has yet to win a game on the road in seven attempts.

A three-game sweep at the hands of Central Florida set the tone early for a Gopher squad that has since dropped two road series, playing at Mississippi State and Oral Roberts.

Combine Minnesota's road woes with a 2-9 daytime record (both of this weekend's doubleheaders begin at 1 p.m.) and it would appear that Iowa has a distinct advantage.

The Hawkeyes are coming off a 22-3 trouncing of Mankato State on Wednesday, but realize that Minnesota is capable of giving Iowa all it can handle.

"(Minnesota) has one of the most solid programs in the Big Ten, if not in the country," Iowa pitcher Matt Austin said.

Pitching is one area that clearly distinguishes the two squads. Iowa's pitching staff has emerged as one of the Big Ten's finest, while Minnesota's is still struggling to find an identity.

In their last 12 games, Gopher pitchers have given up 10 or more hits just once, but rank eighth in the Big Ten in ERA, sporting a lofty 5.87. At 3.89, Iowa pitching finds itself behind only Indiana for the Big Ten lead.

Austin boasts an ERA of 2.29. And when it comes to giving up hits, no Big Ten pitcher is stingier. Austin allows less than six for every nine innings he works.

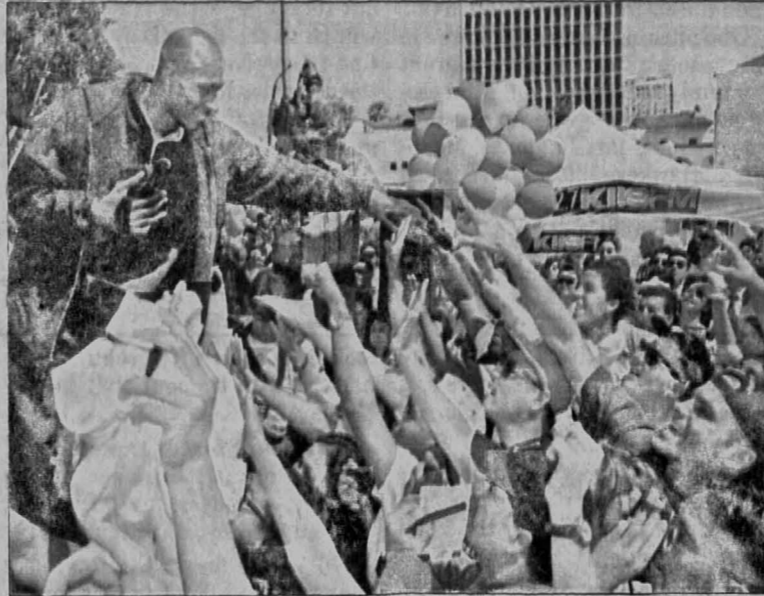

"I really worked hard this summer on developing three solid pitches, a fastball, curveball and changeup," Austin said. "I'm hoping I can carry over what I did this summer on through the season."

But Austin is not alone. Iowa freshman Jeremy Meccage also carries an ERA under three and ranks right behind Austin in fewest baserunners allowed.

Not one Minnesota pitcher has managed to secure an ERA under three, but Iowa outfielder Jeff Schley said statistics can be misleading.

"As far as ERAs go, everybody struggles at some time," Schley

SEATTLE — The 11th Final Four to cap a 64-team tournament has a veteran field of coaches with an average age of almost 57 and a combined 90 seasons of Division I head coaching experience.

It is the fourth in 57 NCAA tournaments — all since 1991 except last year — to have four schools advance to the national semifinals without at least one looking for its first title.

Saturday's matchups have UCLA, the champion of champions with 10 national championships, against Oklahoma State, the first repeat champion in 1946, and the two most recent winners, North Carolina, one of four schools with at least three titles, and Arkansas, the defending champion.

Jim Harrick of top-ranked UCLA is the lone Final Four rookie among the coaches, and only once since the tournament went to 64 teams (1993) has there not been at least one first-timer among the coaches.

"From my standpoint, we don't change anything we do," he said. "It's one of the biggest social events

Final Four tops all sporting events

Life is good. It really is. Spring is finally here. There is even a chance that we will be spared the agony of watching replacement players on our national holiday (opening day).

Most of all, however, life is good because, at last, it is Final Four time.

Like a pacifist waiting for world peace, the sports junkie waits anxiously for the Final Four.

The Final Four has become, for all intents and purposes, the last truly remarkable sporting event.

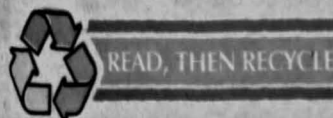

If we get past our state of denial, it has become obvious that the Super Bowl is anything but remarkable. Rather it has become a barrage of commercials interrupted occasionally by a predictable 60 minutes of NFC domination.

Series of breaks aid the Bruins

Beth Harris

SEATTLE — Ed O'Bannon doesn't believe in fate, yet he admits a series of coincidences have conspired to land UCLA in the Final Four for the first time in 15 years.

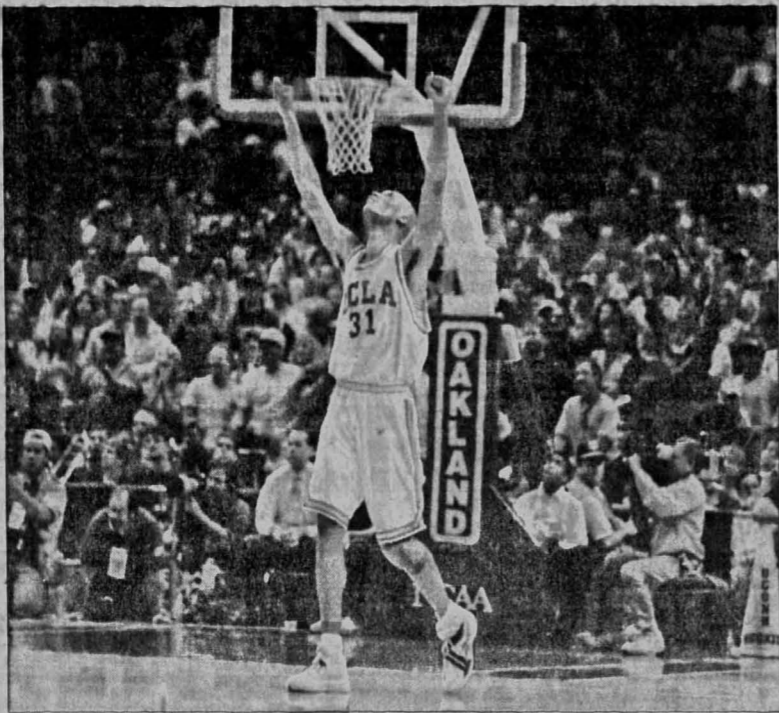

Consider:
— O'Bannon wouldn't be playing for the Bruins now if the NCAA had not investigated UNLV's program five years ago. The ensuing troubles convinced him to change his commitment and stay close to home.

— Charles O'Bannon — their best dunker — came to UCLA because of Ed and started as a freshman last season.

— Charles wouldn't have played a second season with his older brother if not for the devastating knee injury Ed sustained in 1990.

— The injury gave Ed an extra season and a chance to redeem himself after UCLA's first-round NCAA loss to Tulsa in the last year. The sequence of events "is weird," O'Bannon said.

UCLA's Ed O'Bannon raises his arms in victory as he leaves the Oakland Coliseum court after UCLA defeated Connecticut, 102-96.

souri by 1 point in the second round on a one-handed layup by Tyus Edney at the buzzer.

"If the guy on Missouri had shot the ball two seconds later, they would have won the game," he said. "If Tyus wouldn't have shot it as hard as he did, we would have lost."

Recalling the Tulsa loss, O'Bannon jokes, "If we'd have known where Tulsa was, maybe we would have beat them."

O'Bannon is one of several current Bruins benefitting from UCLA's glorious past. Marques Johnson, who played on the 1975 team that gave John Wooden his 10th NCAA championship, regularly attends practice as de facto team counselor.

Johnson, a radio commentator for the Bruins and the father of freshman reserve Kris Johnson, advised O'Bannon on what to expect at the Final Four.

"He's played so hard and so well this year, it's very easy to get mentally exhausted and say, 'Oh, I'm done,'" Johnson said, "but I told him he's got two games left and his college career is over."

Kris Johnson has learned not to doubt his father's wisdom.

"At the beginning of the year, he told me that if everything went right we would go to the Final Four and win the championship," he said. "We're at the Final Four and only the championship part (remains) now. He's been right about everything."

3-POINT MARKSMAN

OSU puts faith in Rutherford

Owen Canfield
Associated Press

SEATTLE — In order to beat UCLA on Saturday, says Oklahoma State coach Eddie Sutton, the Cowboys have to slow down UCLA's running game and do a good job on the defensive boards.

Oh, and one other thing.
"The biggest thing you hope is that Randy has that great shooting afternoon," Sutton said. "He can light it up."

That's Randy Rutherford, the Cowboys' All-Big Eight guard. Rutherford has torched opponents with his 3-point shooting all season, providing the perfect complement to Bryant Reeves' inside game.

Like Reeves, Rutherford is the product of small-town Oklahoma. He's from Broken Bow, a town of almost 4,000 in the far southeastern corner of the state. Football is king in Broken Bow, and Rutherford played the game early in high school, but grew tired of the contact and turned to basketball.

Good move.
He averaged 28.5 points and 14.6 rebounds in his senior year of high school, then spent one year at a junior college before joining Oklahoma State and redshirting during the 1991-92 season.

As a sophomore in 1992-93, Rutherford started most of the year and averaged 14 points while shooting a league-best 43.7 percent from 3-point range.

Last season, he continued to progress. He averaged 13 points per game, made 78 3-pointers and was named to the Big Eight's all-defense team.

This season, Rutherford has improved all parts of his game. He is scoring 19.7 points per game, and his 142 3-pointers are the most in conference history. He is averaging 6.3 rebounds per game — 7.3 in the four NCAA tournament games — and his 69 steals are second-most on the team.

"Randy has developed into a complete basketball player," Sutton said. "He's always been able to score and shoot the ball well. In the last year-and-a-half, we've seen tremendous improvement in his ball-handling, his dribbling, his passing, but probably more than anywhere else his rebounding and his defensive play."

UNDERCLASSMEN TAKE OVER

Tar Heels counting on Stackhouse, Wallace

Tom Foreman Jr.
Associated Press

SEATTLE — For years, North Carolina has relied on senior leadership for its success. In reaching this year's Final Four, the underclassmen have taken charge.

Despite predictions that North Carolina would again be an early casualty in the NCAA tournament, the Tar Heels have returned to the Final Four, and will meet defending champion Arkansas in the second semifinal game on Saturday in Seattle's Kingdome.

Senior Donald Williams has assumed his role as scorer to help North Carolina earn another shot at a national championship. But it's sophomore Jerry Stackhouse who has taken the Tar Heels on his shoulders, taking classmates Rasheed Wallace and Jeff McInnis with him to the next level.

The Tar Heels arrived in Seattle Thursday afternoon aboard the Charlotte Hornets jet, then rode a bus with the sign "WRONG BUS" on it to their hotel in suburban Bellevue, Wash.

Some teams have been greeted with bands and a hotel lobby festooned in their school's colors. North Carolina was greeted with a blue banner bearing the word "Carolina" with a basketball goal under it.

There was a small group of autograph seekers to greet the players and coaches as they filed off the bus and headed immediately to their rooms.

Stackhouse lingered long enough outside to respond to endless requests for autographs.

"The only thing we've got to do is win it now," Stackhouse said as he got off the bus.

IOWA SOFTBALL

Hawks tackle Big Ten opener

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa softball team begins the Big Ten portion of its 1995 season as it travels to West Lafayette, Ind., for a four game set with Purdue this weekend.

The Hawkeyes come into the game 14-10 overall, ranked No. 26 in the nation. Purdue, in its second season of softball and first as a part of the Big Ten Conference, stood at 8-14 coming into the week.

Iowa coach Gayle Blevins hopes having played a lot of games early in the season has prepared her Hawkeyes for the tough Big Ten schedule.

"You use the games up to this point to prepare for the conference schedule," Blevins said. "What you have to do is develop consistency."

The Big Ten schedule forces teams to play four consecutive games with the same team, so being able to remain consistent game-in and game-out is important.

Despite being in only their second season of softball, Purdue could present a problem for the Hawkeyes.

The Boilermakers are coached by Carol Bruggeman, a former Iowa infielder, who served as a graduate assistant for the Hawkeyes in 1988.

Joe Murphy/The Daily Iowan

Bruggeman led Purdue to a 21-17 record last season. This year, the Boilermakers have been led by a pair of freshmen. Jenny Schoen has paced the team with 28-hits, four doubles, four triples and a .368 batting average.

"You use the games up to this point to prepare for the conference schedule. What you have to do is develop consistency."

Gayle Blevins, Iowa softball coach

Jenn Markert has the team's lowest earned run average at 2.33. She has struck out 60 batters in 83 and one-third innings of work.

The Hawkeyes come into the game after a disappointing loss to Illinois State in their home opener. "I wasn't happy," Blevins said regarding the Illinois State game. "We need more intensity and tenacity."

One thing Blevins has been happy with recently is the play of freshman Erin McGee.

McGee replaced shortstop Christy Hebert, who was having troubles with her knee, in the starting line-up over spring break. Since then, she has given the Hawkeyes solid performances both offensively and defensively.

Blevins was also happy with the play of Hebert on both sides of the ball before she went out of the line-up.

On the mound, Iowa has relied on a trio of young pitchers, Debbie Bilbao, Leticia Castellon and Jenny McMahon. All three will see action this weekend.

"For as young as our pitchers are, they're coming along nicely," Blevins said.

The Hawkeye and Boilermakers will play two doubleheaders, one Saturday and one Sunday. Both contests are scheduled to begin at noon.

Men's golf tees off in Texas

The Iowa men's golf team starts its spring season today in the Dr. Pepper Tanglewood Invitational Tournament in Pottsville, Texas.

Competition continues Saturday and concludes Sunday.

The Hawkeyes will try to build on the momentum they built with a strong fall season.

"We're coming off a successful fall," Coach Terry Anderson said. "I want all the guys to remember all the good things we did in the fall."

While other Big Ten schools have gotten a head start by playing in earlier tournaments, Anderson said he is encouraged that none of them have been very impressive in their tournaments.

The Hawkeyes will be counting on two of its seniors, Sean McCarty and David Sharp, to lead the way this weekend.

McCarty is coming off a superb fall and comes into the spring season ranked No. 1 in the district. He is also ranked 25th in the country, based on average scores.

Sharp is another experienced golfer who should help the Hawkeyes cause.

"David Sharp has played in almost every tournament," Anderson said. "He's got some great expectations for himself."

Other golfers who will be performing for Iowa this weekend include junior Laine Bratner, Sean Rowen and senior Chad Lydiatt.

Anderson said he is expecting each golfer to have a strong tournament.

"Individually you just have to take care of your own game," Anderson said.

"You take care of business and if you do it the right way then the team thing works."

Women's Golf

The Iowa women's golf team travels to Bloomington to compete in the Indiana Invitational on Saturday and Sunday.

The Hawkeyes are coming off an 11th place finish at the Texas A&M Bookstore/Monica Welsh Memorial.

Iowa finished with a total score of 972.

Senior Jennifer McCullough and junior Jenny Nodland led the way for the Hawkeyes, tying with an overall score of 242.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

While Iowa finished 58 shots behind winner Texas A&M, Coach Diane Thomason said she is not concerned.

"We have a long way to go, but I think we're about where we should be at this time," Thomason said.

"Most played pretty well at Texas."

Iowa is an experienced squad with eight returnees, which should make for a fairly smooth spring.

The Hawkeyes will be counting on McCullough, Nodland, sophomore Candy Schneekloth and senior Lynette Seaton to perform well in the Indiana tournament.

"I'm hoping that all the golfers step it up," Thomason said. "In particular we're looking for Jennifer McCullough to play well."

McCullough led Iowa in the fall with an average of 80.8. Nodland was second for the Hawkeyes with a 82.4 stroke average.

According to Thomason, putting will be decisive for Iowa to be successful in Indiana.

"We're always working to improve on our short game," Thomason said. "You'll hear me say that all spring."

14 other teams will join Iowa for the tournament in Bloomington.

Men's tennis

The Iowa men's tennis team hopes to top the .500 mark this weekend as it travels to Ohio State and Indiana.

Iowa takes on the Buckeyes on Saturday then travels to Indiana on Sunday.

This will be the Hawkeyes fourth straight Big Ten road match. Iowa is looking to improve its record of 7-7, 1-3 in the Big Ten.

Iowa has been playing well of late winning three of its last four matches. But Hawkeye coach Steve Houghton said being on the road is starting to wear on his team.

"We've been road warriors almost this whole month," Houghton said. "I'm glad we're winning the close matches which is something you have to do down the stretch. But playing on the road for the third straight week does take its toll. I hope we can keep things together this weekend."

Ohio State is led by junior Doug Bloom who is 11-6 at the No. 1 singles position. The Hoosiers are paced by Erik Barrett and Derek Pope, who sport a 16-4 record and are ranked fourth in the region in doubles.

Iowa looks to sophomore Tom Derouin to continue his hot streak. Derouin is 4-0 in Big Ten singles play and 3-1 in doubles with junior Mattias Jonsson.

Derouin said he expects this to be the toughest weekend yet.

"Indiana and Ohio State need these matches as much as we do so they will be ready," Derouin said. "If we can get a pair of wins it would put us in an excellent position heading into the home stretch of the Big Ten schedule."

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Hawks end five-month road trip

Chris James
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's tennis team will see something this weekend it hasn't seen since late October.

Its home court. The Hawkeyes host the Golden Gophers of Minnesota on Sunday for a pivotal Big Ten battle. The match starts at 9 a.m. at the UI Rec Building.

Both teams come into the match at 1-3 in the Big Ten Conference. Iowa is 5-8 overall while Minnesota sports a 6-6 mark.

Iowa senior Cara Cashon said it will be a big match for both teams.

"We're coming down to the time of year when we have to make a push to finish in the upper half of the Big Ten," Cashon said. "I hope we can get there because it would give us an advantage in the seeding at the Big Ten tournament."

Iowa is coming off a rough spring break during which the Hawkeyes dropped two matches to Auburn and San Diego State.

The Hawkeyes continue to be led by senior Laura Dvorak who holds a 7-6 record at the No. 1 singles position. Juniors Sasha Boros and Nikki Willette are 6-5 and 5-8 at the No. 2 and 3 positions respectively.

Cashon and her doubles partner sophomore Kristen McCracken are 5-3 overall and a perfect 4-0 in the Big Ten at the No. 3 doubles position.

Minnesota enters the match coming off a 8-1 thrashing of Furman University. The Golden Gophers are led by sophomore Tiffany Gates who has a 17-8 record overall. Junior Dana Peterson is hovering at the .500 mark for Minnesota with a 12-11 record.

The Hawkeyes edged out a 5-4 win in Minneapolis last year. Cashon said it will be just as tough this year.

"They've changed their starting lineup a few times this year so we really don't know what to expect," Cashon said. "I know they will come in here wanting the meet just a bad as we do. So its going to be a matter of who wants the meet more."

STRIKE UPDATE

Owners OK replacement games

Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball owners voted 26-2 today to authorize the use of replacement players during the 1995 season.

The vote, considered a formality, was taken during a major league meeting conducted by telephone.

The Baltimore Orioles, who have refused to hire replacements, voted against the resolution, as did the Toronto Blue Jays, according to a source who participated in the telephone call.

In a statement issued after the meeting, owners said all games with replacements would count in the standings.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig said he would travel from Milwaukee to New York later in the day for the anticipated resumption of strike talks.

With a federal judge set to hold a hearing Friday on whether to issue an injunction that would end the walkout, the union prepared a counteroffer to the plan owners gave them Monday.

Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Curt Schilling said he thought the union will move toward the position of the owners, who claimed in court papers filed Wednesday the strike has cost them $700 million.

Schilling thinks the union's new offer will contain a tax of 30 percent with a threshold of $49 million or $50 million.

That would have caused six teams to pay a tax in 1994, five more than the players' previous plan but five less than the owners' proposal.

"We'll find out how serious the owners are when we make our counterproposal," Bobby Bonilla of the New York Mets said after the union's executive board concluded its two-day meeting.

U.S. District Judge Sonia

Sotomayor has scheduled a hearing for Friday — just two days before the scheduled season opener — on the petition by the National Labor Relations Board for a preliminary injunction against owners. The NLRB has accused them of illegally changing the terms of the expired collective bargaining agreement before an impasse in bargaining.

The union's executive board voted unanimously Wednesday to end the 7½-month strike if Sotomayor issues an injunction restoring salary arbitration and free-agent bidding.

"If the prior terms and conditions of employment are restored effectively by the injunction, the players will end the strike and return to work," union head Donald Fehr said.

If players do end the strike, owners could lock them out. But that possibility is decreasing.

"I don't personally know whether there's 21 votes there or not," said Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris, who is said he's inclined to vote against a lockout.

WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Sophomores lead Georgia to Final Four

Associated Press

Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — It's a long way from 17-11 and no NCAA tournament berth to 28-4 and a berth in the Final Four. The Georgia women made that leap in one year.

There are a couple of reasons. One is the aging of last year's six highly touted freshmen into more mature, confident sophomores. They've been around the block a time or two now. They know what to expect.

The other factor is just as important. She's Saudia Roundtree, a dynamic 5-foot-8 junior who plays with a pizzazz the Lady Bulldogs had lacked.

Roundtree stepped onto the Georgia campus last fall after being named the national junior college player of the year at Kilgore, Texas, and in one package gave the team someone who could drive, dish, pull up for the jumper, hit the 3-pointer and play defense.

Those skills gave her the ability to lead, to make a difference, though she's much too modest to give herself that much credit.

"I knew I was joining a great bunch of players," Roundtree said. "They're young, but they're very experienced. I knew they would be ready to play with me, but I wasn't trying to make a difference. I was just trying to blend in."

But there's no denying her contributions. Tennessee coach Pat Summitt, winner of 563 games and three national championships, certainly has noticed. Tennessee will play Georgia in the national semifinals at the Target Center on Saturday, to be followed by Connecticut against Stanford. The championship game is Sunday.

"In Saudia Roundtree, you have someone who can run the show and really complement the other players," Summitt said. "That right there elevated their team tremendously when Roundtree stepped on the floor. She not only creates for herself but creates for her teammates."

"That's when Georgia started to show their maturity and come into their own."

Joining four sophomores in the starting lineup, Roundtree is Georgia's No. 3 scorer with a 14.9 average. She leads the team in assists at 6.9 a game and even averages 4.7 rebounds — a hefty figure for a point guard.

Her assist-to-turnover ratio is excellent at 2-to-1 and she also averages two steals a game.

"She's given us a dimension of quickness on the perimeter," Georgia coach Andy Landers said. "Where that's really made a difference is in our defense. With Saudia out there, our other four kids can just stay back and play good, solid defense."

Roundtree's defensive abilities never were more apparent than in Georgia's 82-79 victory over top-seeded and No. 2-ranked Colorado in the Midwest Regional finals last Saturday. Basically, she took Colorado's All-American point guard, Shelley Sheetz, out of the game down the stretch.

Sheetz didn't score in the final 17 minutes and committed five second-half turnovers.

THIRD HEAD COACH IN THREE YEARS

UNLV names UMass assistant as coach

Tim Dahlberg
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — UNLV hired its third head coach in as many years Thursday, signing University of Massachusetts assistant Billy Bayno to take over a troubled basketball program that once ranked among the nation's elite.

At a news conference announcing his hiring, Bayno promised he would work to return the UNLV program to the prominence it once held under former coach Jerry Tarkanian.

"I grew up watching UNLV basketball. Every time I watched them play, their hearts and souls were left on the courts. They were the hardest playing team in the country."

Billy Bayno, new UNLV basketball coach

"The enormous opportunity that presents itself here, to run this program and be the head coach of what was once obviously the greatest basketball program in the country, is a dream," Bayno said.

It is the first head coaching job for Bayno, who served as the graduate assistant under Larry Brown at the University of Kansas and under T.J. Carlesimo at Seton Hall before joining the University of Massachusetts.

Bayno's determination to land the job apparently was the key factor in winning out over a field of six finalists to replace Tim Grgurich, who lasted only five months as the university's coach.

The 32-year-old Bayno said he preferred to look at the greatness the program had once achieved rather than dwell on the turmoil that has caused it to sink to its lowest depths over the past three years.

He vowed to produce a group of hard-working players in the mold of the teams that once competed for national championships.

"All I looked at was the positives that occurred in the past, the great teams, the great coaches," Bayno said.

"I grew up watching UNLV basketball. Every time I watched them play, their hearts and souls were left on the courts. They were the hardest playing team in the country."

Bayno was an assistant at UMass for seven years, and was John Calipari's first hire when he took over a downtrodden program that went 29-5 this season.

He was introduced by UNLV interim President Kenny Guinn, who said Bayno was the best choice for the financial package of $300,000 a year, which was the most UNLV could offer.

STEVE ALFORD

Former IU star accepts Division I coaching job

Jerry Nachtigal
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Steve Alford, the sharpshooting guard who helped Indiana to the 1987 NCAA championship and became a successful small-college coach, was hired today to coach Southwest Missouri State.

Alford, who coached NCAA Division III Manchester (Ind.) College to a 78-29 mark the past 3 1/2 seasons, at 30 became the second-youngest coach in Division I. Marshall's Billy Donovan is 6 months younger.

Alford replaced Mark Bernsen, who was forced to resign this month after failing in three seasons to match the standards set by his predecessor, fan favorite Charlie Spoonhour.

"As far as experience at Division I as a coach, I have none," Alford told a news conference. "But ... from my NBA experience, I've played with some of the greatest players in the world. I think that supersedes the lack of coaching experience I've had at this level."

Alford received a 3-year contract at a base salary of $70,000 per season, plus a $30,000 radio and television show contract and incentives.

Alford said he's bringing one of his assistants at Manchester, Kenny Cox, with him to Southwest Missouri.

He said his father, Sam Alford, head basketball coach at Chrysler High School in New Castle, Ind., for 29 years, also is considering joining his staff.

Alford was a member of the U.S. gold medal Olympic basketball team in 1984 and played four seasons in the NBA with the Dallas Mavericks and Golden State Warriors.

31 WINNERS DECLARED

San Francisco gay lifestyle show, NBC series net Peabody Awards

Associated Press

ATHENS, Ga. — A controversial public television program about gay life in San Francisco and three NBC prime-time series were among the 31 winners of 1994 Peabody Awards announced Thursday.

The awards, administered by the University of Georgia's Henry W. Grady College of Journalism and Mass Communications, honor broadcast and cable excellence.

More than 1,100 entries were received this year, said Barry Sherman, director of the awards program, which is in its 55th year. Awards will be presented May 8 in New York.

"Armistead Maupin's Tales of the City," which aired on the PBS "American Playhouse" series, was honored for its "courageous depiction" of San Francisco's gay lifestyles and freewheeling sex and drug culture of the 1970s.

NBC, the only network recognized for a prime-time entertainment series, was honored for "ER," "Frasier," and "Mad About You."

ABC News won Peabodys for a "PrimeTime Live" report about error rates at laboratories that test for cervical cancer and a "20/20" story on one woman's fight to save victims of anorexia.

Three episodes of "The American Experience," produced by Boston public television station WGBH, also were honored. One recounted the Battle of the Bulge; the others were biographies of Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Malcolm X.

Other winners included HBO, MTV, Nickelodeon and National Public Radio.

INDEPENDENT DIRECTORS MOVE TO DRAMA

Art-house filmmakers scare up thrilling, suspenseful movies

John Horn

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Independent filmmakers have delivered a steady flow of thoughtful and often provocative stories about life, love and heartbreak — a "Red" here, a "Howards End" there.

These directors have failed, however, to produce old-fashioned, edge-of-your-seat thrills. In some cases, their films may be as good for your mind as they are for your insomnia.

A new crop of art-minded directors is working to reverse that soporific stereotype. These current and upcoming titles may lack the million-dollar casts and eye-popping special effects the big-studio pictures trumpet, but they are nonetheless entertaining in the classic movie way: They rattle your bones.

Charles Burnett, who made 1990's domestic drama "To Sleep With Anger," will release in May "The Glass Shield," a police corruption drama. James Gray's debut feature — "Little Odessa," which will be released April 28 — tracks a Russian hit man.

One of the most notable filmmakers in the middle of this new creative confluence is Steven Soderbergh, the maker of 1989's art-house hit "sex, lies and videotape" and 1991's "Kafka."

Despite the vaguely pretentious title "The Underneath," Soderbergh's April 28 release is a bank heist flick at heart. Based loosely on the 1949 Burt Lancaster movie, "Crisis Cross," "The Underneath" follows a drifter (Peter Gallagher) whose return to Austin, Texas, rekindles all the problems he once left behind.

One of the movie's more memorable scenes is as nerve-racking as any you might see this spring. Injured in a shooting, a hospitalized Gallagher fears for his safety. He asks a hospital visitor to sit in his room — not to keep him company, but to protect him. Is the visitor just that? Or is he a bad guy posing? It takes agonizing minutes to find out.

Unlike "sex, lies and videotape" or Soderbergh's 1992 work, "King of the Hill," "The Underneath" is what Hollywood could call a "genre" film — a work adhering to the storytelling formulas refined through hundreds of dramas.

"Most people who grew up loving those movies liked those kind of films," Soderbergh said.

"The main reason is they're such fertile ground; drama is about conflict, and these films have lots of conflict on many different levels. So the stage is set to have lots of subtext and watch these people bounce off each other in really interesting ways."

Not too long ago, some of Hollywood's most acclaimed films were genre films — "The French Connection," "Dirty Harry" and "Serpico" among them.

These days, the major studios have turned the thriller formula into just that: formula. You can see the plot twists a mile away because you've seen them all before. When Gene Hackman's submarine commander shows up with a pet Jack Russell terrier, you know how "Crimson Tide" is going to turn out — a navy guy with a dog has gotta be nuts.

Other Hollywood films don't have the courage to follow one storytelling premise. Instead of sticking to its "killer virus wipes out the world" hook, "Outbreak" wanders into a story about rogue military agents and helicopter chases. "Disclosure" isn't just about sexual harassment. It's also about computer hacking and corporate ladder-climbing.

"The Underneath" — like another arty thriller, "The Usual Suspects" — puts a premium on story, making sure the plot is inventive without being unbelievable. Working on lower budgets, these independent filmmakers don't have to start the cameras the second Bruce Willis or Sharon Stone is available. And since less money is at risk, fewer people will try to interfere.

"You can't fly blindly forward to a start date because a few actors happen to sign off on an incomplete screenplay — then you often end up with a mishmash," said Bryan Singer, whose whodunit, "The Usual Suspects," is due in theaters this summer. "You have to take care and develop the material and really understand it."

John Dahl has become one of the hottest independent directors even though his genre films were considered too uncommercial to merit a theatrical release. Dahl's "Red Rock West" debuted in home video stores, while his "The Last Seduction" premiered on cable TV. But critics — and audiences — propelled both films into theaters.

Even with the growing popularity of the arty thriller, these movies retain an offbeat style. "The Underneath" doesn't have a typical lovable hero, mixes time frames and uses an unusual color palette. "The Usual Suspects" is so complicated in parts you have to see it twice to catch all the subtleties, and you don't know what's real and what's imagined.
