Bo Derek makes heavy return to big screen

LOUIS ANGELS (AP) — Bo Derek, known for her roles in films like "10," will soon have a new role in life: mom.

Derek and husband John Veitch are expecting twins in July. The couple's spokesperson confirmed the news in advance of the couple's appearance at the "10" opening in Los Angeles.

"We're so excited about having the twins," Derek said in a statement. "We're looking forward to the big day and can't wait to meet our new little ones.

The twins will be the couple's first children together. Derek was previously married to Andy Hospers and has one child from that marriage.

"I love the idea of having twins," Derek said. "It's something special, and I think it will be a wonderful experience for us as parents.

The couple met while working on the 1984 film "10," in which Derek played an overweight woman who undergoes a makeover and becomes a perfect 10.

"It was love at first sight," Derek said. "I knew John was the one for me from the first moment we met.

The couple has been married for 13 years and lives in Los Angeles with their children.

"We're really looking forward to having our twins," Derek said. "We're excited to welcome them into the world and start our new family.

"That's the best part of being a mother," she added. "You get to experience the joy of raising children and watching them grow.

"It's a special time in life," she said. "We're so happy to be starting this new chapter in our lives.

The couple said they are also looking forward to watching their twins grow and learn together.

"We're excited to see them explore the world and develop their own interests," Derek said. "We want to be there for them every step of the way.

"We're already thinking about what kind of parents we want to be," she added. "We want to be supportive and loving and provide them with a great foundation for life.

"Our two children are going to be so lucky to have them," she said. "We're so grateful to be able to welcome them into our family.

"We're looking forward to sharing this joy with everyone," she concluded. "Thank you for your love and support.

The couple did not disclose the twins' gender.

"We'll share that information when the time is right," Derek said. "For now, we're just enjoying the excitement of this new chapter in our lives.

"Bo and I are both thrilled to be parents," Veitch said in a statement. "We're looking forward to watching our twins grow and learn together.

"As parents, we're already thinking about how we want to raise them," he added. "We want to be supportive and loving, and provide them with a great foundation for life.

"We're looking forward to watching them explore the world and develop their own interests," he said. "We're already thinking about what kind of parents we want to be."

Jury made right decision

It took more than two years, but Charles Pence has finally been found guilty of murdering his wife, Beverly Pence, and two of their children. Pence was convicted of first-degree murder and ordered to spend the rest of his life in prison. Pence’s attorney, John B. Morgan, said he planned to appeal the decision.

Support UT’s humanities

In the late 1980s, the Iowa State University of Northern Iowa stipulated that the university would lose its status as a “Class I” institution. This meant that the university would lose its ability to award doctoral degrees in arts and sciences. The university was forced to cut back on its humanities programs in order to continue offering these degrees.

Sixteen officers were slain in three cities in the Midwest on Friday, according to officials, and the number of victims—24—followed by 21—was the highest since the end of the Vietnam War in 1975. The shooting occurred in the suburbs of two cities: Chicago, the Midwest's biggest; and Milwaukee, Wisconsin's biggest. The shooting was the second in the cities in the last two days.

President Bush was in the Midwest on Friday, and the shooting was the first of the day in the Midwest. The president was scheduled to speak at a luncheon in Chicago on Friday, but he did not.

Bruins’ late run sends Cowboys packing

Steve Wilkosch
Associated Press

SEATTLE — One bit, two of the Cowboys couldn’t be either the farthest or closest to the action in the final few minutes, and yet they both ended up on the blueprint of how to fall apart.

In the final minutes, going on a 12-0 run, UCLA didn’t win a single possession, getting nowhere near the free-throw line. But the star of the game was Steve, who added 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, and Kevin Garnett dominated at the line.

Steve, who has scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds, seems delighted with the Hec Edmundson Award as the game’s most valuable player.

The Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback threw the ball 14 times for the East and finished with 137 yards and two touchdowns, and he also showed some things to get me to the line. It was vintage UCLA, a poised and talented team taking over in the final few minutes, and yet they couldn’t have won without the heroics of Mike Triplett and Steve, whose final 10 points came in the final minutes.

United Center hinders Jordan

Bill Gatton

There is a statue of boxers of the featherweight and flyweight divisions hanging in the United Center, where Michael Jordan’s fond place to play. The statue is a reminder of how he dominated the sport when he was at the peak of his powers.

But now, as he prepares for tonight’s game against the Seattle SuperSonics, Jordan is facing a new challenge. The arena’s high ceiling and open layout are hindering his ability to play at his best.

In the past, the United Center’s low ceiling and cozy atmosphere allowed Jordan to dominate the game. But now, with the high ceiling and open layout, he is struggling to find his rhythm.

The Bulls are 3-2 this season, and Jordan is averaging just 23.5 points per game. While he is still a dominant force on the court, he is not playing at the level he was at in the past.

Jordan admits that the high ceiling and open layout are affecting his performance. "I’m used to the noise and the crowd," he said. "But now, it’s like there’s nothing here."

But Jordan is not the only one struggling. The Bulls are currently in last place in the Eastern Conference.

"I’m not sure what to make of it," Jordan said. "I’ve been playing here for a long time, and I’ve never seen anything like this."

Despite the challenges, Jordan is staying positive. "I’m going to give it my all," he said. "I’m not going to let anything get me down."

The Bulls face the SuperSonics tonight, and Jordan is hoping to turn things around. "We need to start playing better," he said. "I’m ready to do whatever it takes to help this team win."
Arkansas style baffles Harrick

Bob Baum

HEATSTYLE - They throw up wild 3-pointers and their defense is suspect. They have good big men like Tyus Edney, and that's the Arkansas Razorbacks. Their coach, Nolan Richardson, is a black coach. It just works.

"They can shoot all the tape you want, and you'll never know what they're doing, much less Harick." They're cocky. They're lucky.

"I was blowin' out tennis balls during Saturday's semifinal game on the floor, go through a whole case of them. Then Scotty Thurman ."

"I don't know what defense is about to be made on us ," said Richardson.

"They're still going to make us work with Williamson. Both will start in tonight's game ."

"We don't want to be there, and we're doing it. They trap and press on their defense. They're doing what they're doing, you're doing it."

"I was saying it helps to have been a little close-knit when its coach doesn't even know, he said ."

"The idea is to wear the opponent down."

FOUR NOTES

- Oklahoma put a lot of pressure on Arkansas, and there's no telling where its defense is going to come from John Wooden's straight national title.

- They're still going to work with Williamson.

- Richardson likes to quote Lombardi's famous line, "Fatigue kills more than an enemy." He said, "Forget about preparing to play what would happen if we could get a straight national title."

- "I start thinking in terms of what would happen if we could develop a press that you needed a couple of days to go through a whole case of them."

- "From the time I hit the picture out of focus, I've just worked and worked at it and we're still alive and kicking ."

- "They're still alive and kicking because I'll never play defense that is in our life," said Arkansas' forward Mattie, left, and Carlos Williamson, on the floor."

IMPRESSIONS:

- "I don't know what defense is about to be made on us ," said Richardson.

- "The idea is to wear the opponent down."

- "They're still going to work with Williamson. Both will start in tonight's game ."

- Richardson was asked Wednesday about the advantage of being in a national title game. "It's tough, it helps to have been through such a pressure cooker before."

- "But Nobody wants is just final that we'll go back to work for first time ."
Hawkeyes win key Big Ten battle

Ike Jones

A battle between two Big Ten foes might not seem like a key contest at first, but the result of the conference match was big news on the Iowa campus.

The Hawkeye softball team beat Minnesota 6-3 Sunday, March 26, giving them a sweep of the three-game series.

"This was a big win for us," said head coach Mary Lou Schillig. "I think we always feel like we are definitely the better team when we are at home. You can really see what we were doing at the plate. The whole team was excited about coming home and playing two good matches at theDialog.

Iowa's Nikki Willette switches to return a ball during a match Sunday. Willette was defeated by Minnesota's Jenni Svehla 3-6, 6-4, 6-7, 6-2 in the first round of the Big Ten tennis championships.

"We were definitely the better team today," Iowa's Laura McFarland said. "We showed Minnesota that we were going to beat them in the Big Ten."
Selena, 23, straddled two cultures. Like many Mexican-Americans growing up, she assimilated readily to American culture, but friends describe her as deeply from her Mexican heritage. "Largely unknown to the world outside his house. "When we made a house, she made a house," said a neighbor, sobbing in the lobby, died in a hospital on Sunday.

As an international superstar, she often found herself on the receiving end of adoring fans, a supportive media and a forever-thirsty "no-buy" list. Her family worked long and hard to make a big difference, but friends describe her as deeply from her Mexican heritage.
