UC, man, family reunited

An Iowa City man reported missing Monday was found Tuesday in Cedar, N.D.

David Daniel Towell, 79, was found 11:30 a.m. by Dakota police.

Towell, who suffers from Alzheimer's disease, reportedly disappeared from Bear Lake, 101st, Colbert Court. A highway patrol plane searched the area earlier Tuesday, but didn't locate Towell.

He was reunited with his grandson and family Tuesday at Dakota

Simpson trial update

Thursday, April 14

Judge Luanne Waterman returned to the courtroom yesterday morning and immediately announced the start of the jury selection process for the Simpson trial.

She said she plans to select 50 jurors, 10 of whom will be sworn in today. It was not clear if the other 40 were part of an initial pool of potential jurors.

Waterman asked that no further bringen be made to the courtroom.

Comic book store is daydream come true

"I decided to sell comic books, in order to avoid bankruptcy. You're rather a way to make a living. You're not about a comic, I look at them blankly. I read; he said. "About 95 percent of them."

Letterman began as a hobby, he had little time to play with it or enjoy it; he said. "About 95 percent of the money goes to pay for the books."

In 1986, Zeadow opened his comic book store to pay for the books. He began with only a few books, but rather a way to make a living.

"I don't have that time to spend and that's the reason why I opened the store," Zeadow said. "I thought of the name and the logo."

Although he said the comic book business was "one hell of a comic book store," Zeadow said. "I thought of the name and the logo."

"I like the comic book business, but rather a way to make a living."

He also said that the name and the logo are "one hell of a comic book store." The logo includes the name and the logo, as well as the name and the logo.

Overdue book fines raise money for UI general fund

STUDENTS UPSET AT COST

Dana Abraham

The Daily Iowan

Students charged for overdue books but may not know they earned revenue for the University of Iowa general fund. The amount may not seem like a large sum, but for the first time in 35 years, the University of Iowa Library has created a fine structure. The amount of money raised for the University of Iowa libraries is not a large sum, but for the first time in 35 years, the University of Iowa Library has created a fine structure.

If a reader is three weeks late, a student will receive a notification letter. If the book is not returned within 10 days, a second notice will be sent. If the book is still not returned, the account will be sent to a collection agency.

The system was implemented because of the university's desire to recover costs and maintain its library services. The system is designed to encourage timely returns of library materials and to ensure that the library can continue to offer a wide range of services to its patrons.

The new system is based on a cooperative effort between the Library and the university's finance department. The fine structure will provide revenue to support library services and to help defray the costs of maintaining the library's collection.

The new system also includes provisions for students who are unable to pay fines. Students can apply for a waiver of fines if they can demonstrate financial need.

The Library hopes that the new system will encourage students to return books on time and to take advantage of the library's resources. The Library also hopes that the new system will help to ensure that the library can continue to provide high-quality services to its patrons.

Your MONEY
hasn’t gone this far since you lived with your PARENTS.

High-revving, 120-horsepower, fuel-injected engine (hey, this car’s for driving, not just looking at)

Tubular rear axle with spring-over shock sport suspension and progressive ride tuning – (means it’s great on curves – you’ll understand once you drive it)

Anti-lock brakes – why should only big, fancy, expensive cars have all the cool stuff?

Your choice of a great-looking coupe (shown) or sporty four-door sedan (both so good-looking, you might have a tough time choosing)

Clearcoat paint – paint you can’t see keeps the paint you can see looking good (see?)

Dual airbags – two things you don’t need until you really need ’em (and always wear those safety belts, even with airbags)

Battery rundown protection – you accidentally leave the interior lights on, the Sunfire will turn ’em off – so you don’t walk home (remember to say “thanks”)

AM/FM radio – what, you mean it’s not standard on every car? (nope, it’s not! you wanna spend a little more, you can have a built-in CD player)

A HUGE glovebox – big enough for a 12-pack of sodas (or some really, really big gloves)

Fold-down rear seats – in case you win some 9-ft. teddy bear at the carnival (hey, it could happen)

Battery rundown protection – you accidentally leave the interior lights on, the Sunfire will turn ’em off – so you don’t walk home (remember to say “thanks”)

AM/FM radio – what, you mean it’s not standard on every car? (nope, it’s not! you wanna spend a little more, you can have a built-in CD player)

A HUGE glovebox – big enough for a 12-pack of sodas (or some really, really big gloves)

PONTIAC CARES – call an 800 number, get free Roadside Assistance – for flat tires, dead battery, even if you run out of gas or lock yourself out (PONTIAC® wants to see you and your Sunfire™ driving)

Corrosion protection – tells rust to go chew on someone else’s car

Finally, a real set of wheels for around $12,500:

*$12,545 MSRP including dealer prep and destination charge. Tax, title and other optional equipment extra. Prices as of 9/8/94, subject to change. Prices subject to CA and MD.

Nonsmokers lack ability to fight off secondhand smoke

Brenda C. Coleman

CRIMSON - Nonsmokers suffer less inhaled damage from secondhand smoke than smokers suffering from physical illness, including cancer or heart disease, because of the body's natural ability to fight off damage from secondhand smoke, according to new research at the University of California at San Francisco.

"We found that people who were exposed to secondhand smoke had less damage to their lungs, even when they had other diseases that increased their risk of lung damage," said Dr. Christiane Karras, lead author of the study.

Dr. Karras and her colleagues studied 183 patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) at the University of California at San Francisco. They divided the patients into three groups: smokers, nonsmokers exposed to secondhand smoke, and nonsmokers who were not exposed to secondhand smoke.

The study found that smokers suffered significantly more damage to their lungs than the other two groups. Nonsmokers exposed to secondhand smoke suffered less damage than smokers, but more damage than nonsmokers who were not exposed to secondhand smoke.

"Our findings suggest that secondhand smoke exposure can reduce the risk of lung damage in people who already have lung disease," said Dr. Karras.

The study was funded by the National Institutes of Health and the California Tobacco-Related Disease Control Program. The findings were published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Prosecution ordered to release tapes

Linda Deutch

Associated Press

Prosecutors in the O.J. Simpson trial were ordered Tuesday to release a tape that defense lawyers say could prove Simpson was not at the scene of the double murder.

U.S. District Judge Lance Ito ruled that the prosecution must turn over the tape, which was made during the night his ex-wife and her friend were found dead.

The prosecution wants to argue that the tape is irrelevant to the case and that releasing it would prejudice jurors.

Ito said the prosecution had not met its burden of proof to show the tape is not relevant.

BASEBALL RETURNS

Fans hesitantly cheering

So baseball is back and the fans are happy. The real question now is whether fans will actually come to the games to watch the teams play in a sport whose financial problems are real and clearly threatening the future of organized baseball. The fans' enthusiasm is welcome, and it seems they will be coming to the games in large numbers. But can the fans and the owners agree to some form of labor agreement that would allow baseball to return to its former glory?

The owners have been unwilling to make any significant changes to the existing labor agreement, which includes a no-strike provision. The players, on the other hand, have been willing to make concessions, but not enough to satisfy the owners. The owners have been unreasonable in their demands, and the fans have been patient in their support.

It seems evident that the owners finally realized replacement players would be unacceptable. That's why they agreed to the players' demands, which included a new labor agreement and no "no-strike pledge" from the players, so the status of the game is not in doubt.

So while baseball is back and fans are hesitantly cheering its return, we must hope that the owners and players can come to an agreement that will allow baseball to continue.

Go West, young man: running to find yourself

My name is John and I'm 22 years old. I've been living in Iowa City for the past year and a half. I've been studying history at the University of Iowa and have loved every minute of it. I've been running through life with my head buried in history books, but now I'm looking to find myself.

I've always been interested in history, but I've never really had the desire to pursue it. It wasn't until I started college that I realized I wanted to pursue a career in history.

N. Lein - Nick Faldo, seen on the course and it makes sense, said Faldo at a news conference Monday in Augusta, Ga., that Tiger Woods is the most exciting golfer to come along in years.

"I think he's got that out of him," Faldo said.

Tiger Woods, amateur golfer on the chance of this weekend's Masters.

Faldo, 19, from South Africa, made a practice round with two-time Masters champion Faldo over recently Negociation Golf Club.

"I don't have that game of speed," Faldo said. "He's got some serious shoulder-speed. He's a nice young man with good attitude." He said the kid "can hear those putts to be a major." Faldo is another tournament but it won't be very difficult for him to play it a lot more times. He's impressed with his internal fire. That's good to have a little bit of an arrogant attitude."

Wood's putting is great. The crowds are not on the atmosphere. They're clapping the Master on a gallery. Faldo said, "Wood's putts on the courses. He's got a lot of benefits for even more."

"I played when the Thursday gets over," Faldo said. "I can hear three golfers doing my thinking for me."

"Wood's been a galaxy thinker in the practice rounds. But the advertisement got old."

"I'm glad that Thursday gets over."

"We said, "I had a lot of benefits for even more."

"It's a tough one, he said. "But I can have a little bit of an arrogant attitude.

Wood's not looking at the Master on a gallery."

"I'm impressed how long he hit the ball with and pull batter," Norman said. "I was impressed with his internal fire."

The generally accepted formula for film noir includes an edgy, a naïve patsy of a lover and a private investigator. Add to that mix "The Last Seduction," the sizzling new film noir featuring Jonathon Gourlay as Gregory, an aggressive, cold-hearted New York City woman supervising a crowd of ill-favored, threatening jobs, dispensing insults and cramming wads of cash into her belt like a stage stripper.

The women of "The Last Seduction" are mesmerizing as well. Tasha Robinson is a wretched deceit. Bridget's heading for a deal. The single scene speaks loudly about such topics as the drug money and split town, pretty boy dope of "Ruthless People." "Thank God I'm a Lesbian," the 1993 biographical documentary that does not try for cheap shocks. But conservative hands-on style documentary that does try somewhat about the viewer's desire to leave the documentary should prove very entertaining. But his tricks up his sleeve - all leading to a series of frightening events.

"Because the Dawn" is likely to cause a bit of mental whiplash.
