Snake slithers into shorts of Ohio man

BROOKLYN HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — A man was arrested with a boa constrictor in his boxer shorts. How it got there we may never know.

Brian Dawson of Garfield Heights was arrested Saturday on charges including speeding and driving with a fictitious license.

Officers noticed him scratching himself. Because Dawson couldn't pay his $100 bail, officers at the police station asked him to get into prison garb.

That's when the 1 1/2-foot snake popped out from his underwear. Dawson remained in jail Tuesday.

United Airlines slapped with discrimination suit

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Two pilots have sued United Airlines, claiming they were illegally fired after the company learned they have the AIDS virus.

"United forced two airline pilots into medical retirement based on unfounded fears and stereotypes," lawyer Peter Laura said at a news conference Tuesday.

The lawsuit, filed in federal court Friday, seeks unspecified damages under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Defense attorney Barry Schick showed a videotape which he claims shows that criminalist Dennis Fung mishandled and contaminated evidence, including a bloody glove at the crime scene.

The defense requested a probe of whether prosecutors are trying to cause a mistrial through selective dismissal of jurors, based on misconduct claims.

Fung admitted he has never been taught about the dangers of contaminating samples when collecting evidence for DNA testing.

Regent appointee faces rocky path

A multi million dollar lawsuit threatens chances of Senate confirmation for Iowa state Board of Regents nominee David Fisher.

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

A $20 million lawsuit against one of three new appointees to the Iowa state Board of Regents may threaten his chances for Senate confirmation to the board.

David Fisher, a Des Moines resident, was named to the board by Gov. Terry Branstad March 15 and is awaiting Iowa Senate approval this week. He is a former director of the Des Moines-based United Fed-

Fisher's past work found troublesome

Patricia Harris

Iowa state Board of Regents nominee David Fisher's connection to Gov. Terry Branstad may be more of a curse than a blessing to his chances of being confirmed by the Iowa Senate this week.

Fisher was chairman of Branstad's 1986, 1990 and 1994 election campaigns and was named head of Branstad's Committee on Government Spending Reform in 1991.

Sen. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City, said she is more concerned with Fisher's work as chairman of the Fisher Commission (as the Committee on Government Spending Reform came to be called) than with his recent legal troubles. The commission was created to weed out wasteful government spending. During Fisher's tenure, one of the committee's proposals was to raise tuition at the three state universities by 50 percent.

Fisher defended his work on the commission, saying he did not agree with every idea put forth by the 22-member committee.

eral Savings Bank of Iowa. The organization, now closed, is at the heart of the lawsuit.

Iowa District Court records list the Resolution Trust Company as the plaintiff in the suit, asking for $20 million in damages from Fisher and 11 other defendants. The trust company is the organization in charge of handling litigation relating to the savings and loan scandals that rocked the banking world in the 1980s. Fisher was director of United Federal from January 1987 to March 21, 1991, according to court documents.

The suit charges the defendants with "gross negligence, breach of fiduciary and contractual duties, and other wrongful and improper misconduct" when making real estate deals during the mid- to late-1980s.

Fisher maintained his innocence Tuesday, saying he joined the bank near the end of its existence and "hopes to be out of the suit soon."

"I was not at the bank when 99 percent of this stuff happened," he

STREET ESTATE TO PAY

Pence to recoup trial costs

Charles Pence will be reimbursed for money spent to prove he was not at fault when the Johnson County snowplow he was driving killed UI basketball player Chris Street.

Although defense attorney Tom Riley did not charge Pence for his services, more than $500 was shelled out for deposition and court reporters' expenses.

Written depositions were submitted at the trial by numerous traffic experts and doctors testifying to the safety of county snowplows and Pence's driving.

Common court procedure maintains the losing party of a civil suit pays the expenses of the winner. Court documents filed Monday in Johnson County report Pence is seeking money from the Street estate to cover deposition costs and court reporter fees.

The procedure is normal, said attorney Randy Larson, who represented the Street family in the trial.

"It's not any sort of a new lawsuit," Larson said. "It's just the aftermath of a civil suit. This is completely routine."

Members of Street's family sued Pence and Johnson County for the millions they said their son would have earned in a projected lucrative career in professional basketball. Pence countersued the Streets, saying Street was responsible for the accident because he did not yield to Pence's snowplow, and was awarded $1.

"Under the law, when you use depositions, you are charged for the court reporter's time and you're entitled to recover your costs," Riley said. "These are only out-of-pocket expenses we're talking about."

Judge L. Vernon Robinson — who oversaw the lawsuit in Marengo, Iowa, two weeks ago — will determine how much compensation Pence will receive.

Riley said he does not expect the $500 to be completely recovered. He said he also paid a $650 fee charged by a professor for a crash course in traffic logistics at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., which he did not include in the costs submitted to the court.

Expenses will be paid by the Streets' insurance company, United Fire and Casualty Company, Riley said.

Protesters storm into, delay lecture

M. Scott Mahaskey/The Daily Iowan

Although Joseph Gaylord, House Speaker Newt Gingrich's political coordinator, was scheduled as Tuesday evening's keynote speaker, about 50 protesters entered the ballroom of the Union to present a speech of their own. The protesters, a combination of five campus organizations, used Gaylord's Republican Party ties to raise issue with the House-supported "Contract With America."

Speech turns into ruckus

Shayla Thiel
The Daily Iowan

As more than 50 protesters marched into the ballroom of the Union Tuesday night, a sparse crowd strained to hear the words of House Speaker Newt Gingrich's political coordinator over chants of "Give Newt the boot."

The outcry centered around UI alumnus Joseph Gaylord — Gingrich's political coordinator — a man protesters blamed for tuition increases, corporate greed, pollution and a host of other local and world enigmas.

After meeting outside the Union, members of five UI groups — the Iowa International Socialist Organization, the Campaign to Organize Graduate Students, the Rainforest Action Group, the Campaign for Academic Freedom and Tallgrass Prairie Earth First! — waved protest signs and banners and shouted as they marched into the ballroom, where they halted Gaylord's speech and provoked officers from the UI Department of Public Safety to line the back walls.

Randy Childs, UI senior and member of the socialist organization, deemed the protest an outcry against the "Contract With America."

"I don't think there's really anything redeeming in the 'Contract

With America,'" said Childs. "Everything in the 'Contract' is designed to negatively affect the poor people and make the rich richer. It's Robin Hood in reverse."

A petition with "Hey Newt — we didn't sign any 'Contract'" across the top was handed to people entering the Union. About 200 signatures were collected, Childs said.

Jeremy Prouty, protester and member of the socialist organization, said the rally was designed to attract attention to citizens opposed to Republican ideals.

"We're hoping more people will notice us with the protest and trust the Republicans are not

FEW MAKE IT TO COUNSELING

Sex offender works through therapy

Kathryn Phillips
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man convicted of child sexual abuse said he is trying to understand what prompted him to molest a 10-year-old girl.

"I have to try to understand what got me there — to the point of destroying a life," he said. "I'm not sure what part of my life contributed to that behavior, that it is OK to do that. I didn't grow up thinking I wanted to be a child molester or a rapist."

The man said he grew up pondering easy ways to ditch school and where he could score his next bag of pot. He said he dropped out of high school and poured much of his energy into maintaining a series of fleeting romances and a serious drug and alcohol habit.

Sex as a Weapon

Part 3 of 3

"I don't say, 'I had a screwed-up childhood so I turned into a child molester,'" he said. "At the time of the offense, I wasn't employed, I was miserable and I was looking toward committing suicide. I turned to alcohol and drugs and deviant patterns and then committed my offense. But abuse is abuse; there is no rationale."

This Iowa City man is one of the few sex offenders who get treatment.

Less than one-fourth of sexual assault and abuse offenses reported in Iowa City go to court and even fewer receive convictions, according to police reports.

The few offenders who are found guilty are required to go through an intensive sex offender counseling program at the Department of Corrections' field services in Coralville.

Shawn Simmons, a parole officer at the department, has spent the past 14 years counseling sex offenders — more time than most offenders spend in jail and counseling combined.

Simmons said he dedicates eight to 10 hours a day to child molesters and rapists because it is important to learn what goes on in the minds of the criminals. He meets with the convicted Iowa City man once a month.

"The reality is, most of these people will remain in our communities," he said. "They are our brothers."

PROJECT CHANGES EMPHASIS

Homeless shelter runs out of room

Shayla Thiel
The Daily Iowan

The director of an Iowa City homeless shelter said Monday she can't continue to accommodate 40 homeless people every night in her cramped 21-bed facility.

"We simply cannot go on housing that many people," Pat Jordan, director of the Emergency Housing Project, said. "It's not fair to our staff, not fair to the clients and not fair to the community."

The announcement to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors followed the April 2 Emergency Housing Project meeting, in which a new mission statement was proposed.

The 21-bed shelter, located at 331 N. Gilbert St., has housed about 40 people each night since August 1994, said Jordan. The Iowa City Fire Department inspected the facility and said people can no longer sleep on the floors and in the aisles due to safety concerns.

Jordan told the board Tuesday that the project's new mission changes the emphasis of the shelter. Rather than providing a tem-said a mechanic diagnosing a car is much like a doctor diagnosing a patient.

"Sometimes people are vague when they are describing what's wrong with their car," he said.

When the engine won't start or smoke billows from the tail pipe, concerned car owners call the auto shop and describe the symptoms of their unhealthy cars. The mechanics at Bontrager's shop will then assess the problems, check out the cars and make estimates.

Bontrager said people are usually wary of mechanics and outrageous bills, so he makes sure there are no surprises when it comes time for a customer to haul out the checkbook.

"Sometimes I wonder why I'm in business for myself when I could be making more money somewhere else."

Richard Bontrager, owner of Bontrager Auto Service, 525 Southgate Ave.

"We'll give the customer an accurate estimate or even one a little bit higher," he said. "People only remember the $50, not the $75. I'll give them the $75 estimate."

off, Bontrager said a federal law that states repair costs must be within 10 percent of the written estimate cuts down on crooked business dealings in the automotive repair industry.

"I want my business to be an honest place," he said. "I don't necessarily want to be the cheapest, but I want to be the most honest."

Bontrager said he hires his crew on a commission basis and the minute an employee tries selling an unnecessary part to a customer, he or she is fired.

"If I find they have cheated a customer, that's it," he said.

Although the automotive repair business has made him a good living, Bontrager said it doesn't seem all that lucrative after he pays the monthly bills.

"Sometimes I wonder why I'm in business for myself when I could be making more money somewhere else," he said.

Bontrager started his business in 1979 after working for 19 years as a mechanic in various Iowa City garages. His love of cars began when he was a teen-ager and used to fix his own automobiles.

"We were a poor family with no extra money to repair cars," he said.

Bontrager still takes care of repairs on the cars he owns: a 1983 Saab and a 1988 Dodge Caravan.

Friends and relatives occasionally rely on Bontrager to diagnose the ailments of their cars, but he said he doesn't mind and he loves his work.

"I really enjoy tinkering and fixing things," he said. "The thing I like most about the job is that every day is different. I'd go berserk in a factory."

Bontrager's workdays begin at 7:45 a.m. when he opens his shop for business. After the office and shop are cleaned up, he looks forward to a day of greeting customers, making appointments and fixing impaired automobiles.

Bontrager said all customers are treated alike at his shop and the popular stereotype of women who know nothing about the cars they drive is false.

To make sure everyone is treated equally, everything is explained and put down in writing, even if the customer knows his or her car inside and out.

Bontrager also said his shop does not follow the stereotype of having Playboy centerfolds hanging over the tool bench.

So who keeps the lonely mechanics company among the socket wrenches and rusty car parts?

"We do have a calendar, but there's no nudity," Bontrager said. "There's just some attractive ladies."

Freed boxer buys house fit for a king

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mike Tyson is going from a prison cell to an 11,000-square-foot home patterned after a French castle.

The former heavyweight champion paid a reported $3.7 million in cash for the house, which has seven bedrooms, a gourmet kitchen, a wine cellar, an exercise room, a tennis court, a swimming pool and a guest house. And it's near Wayne Newton's ranch.

"Everyone is excited. Everyone is rushing to accomplish this and try to get everything done today," said Phyllis Schwartz, the real estate agent handling the transaction. "It's a quick deal."

Tyson, 28, was released from an Indiana prison March 25 after serving three years for rape. He signed a six-figure deal with MGM-Grand Hotel and a two-year deal with the Showtime cable TV network, which gave him a $20 million advance.

Hole's computer message board yanked off-line

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Fans went a little too far so the Love line got cut off.

America Online took the unprecedented step of deleting a computer message board devoted to grunge-rock singer Courtney Love and her band, Hole.

The network said fans repeatedly broke the computer network's rules, USA Today reported Tuesday. One user made a death threat and was stripped of membership, America Online spokeswoman Margaret Ryan said.

The rules prohibit criminal activity, profanity, and racial, ethnic, religious or sexual slurs.

The Hole forum contained messages detailing Love's relationship with Nirvana singer Kurt Cobain, who committed suicide a year ago.

Roger Clinton belittles first lady in book

NEW YORK (AP) — Hillary Rodham Clinton can't get a break, not even from family.

Roger Clinton, President Clinton's half brother, says in a soon-to-be-published book that he was not impressed when he first met Rodham Clinton.

Quotes from the book appear in this week's New York magazine.

"Hillary didn't fit my definition of particularly attractive. She wore Coke-bottle glasses and her hair was braided," Roger Clinton writes.

He also depicts her as being a bit stuck-up.

"Hillary came from a different culture, from a different society. Her family, she later told my mother, didn't have a crisis every few days," he says. "You get along with Hillary about as well as Hillary wants you to get along with her."

The book is to be published in July by Summit Group of Fort Worth, Texas.

Guitarist grounded before taking gun on plane

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — A loaded pistol was seized from Eddie Van Halen's carry-on luggage as he was about to board a United Airlines flight, police said.

No immediate charges were filed against the 40-year-old guitarist. He was detained for half an hour Friday, forcing postponement of his concerts in the San Francisco Bay area.

"He was very cooperative. He stated he normally travels by charter, where you more or less do what you like," said Airport Police Chief Tony Lo-Verme. "This time he traveled by commercial aircraft and forgot to take the gun out."

Glenn Close will anchor Tony Awards where she performs

NEW YORK (AP) — Glenn Close will be right at home at this year's Tony Awards.

The star of "Sunset Boulevard" will join Gregory Hines and Nathan Lane as co-hosts of the ceremony, which will be held at the Minskoff Theater.

That's where "Sunset Boulevard" is playing.

Tony nominations will be announced May 8. The awards ceremony will be broadcast on CBS June 4.

Close apparently has patched up her differences with Andrew Lloyd Webber, the musical's creator. She had complained that his production company inflated the box-office figures during her vacation to make her understudy look good.

Conservative writer to lecture at Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — George Will will bring his buttoned-down brand of politics to Harvard in the fall.

The conservative Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist will lecture on American politics as a visiting professor, the university said Monday.

Faculty members in the government department voted to invite Will despite objections from several professors.

"Sure he has a Ph.D. So does Newt Gingrich and we don't invite him to teach undergraduates," Louise Richardson said.

Will countered, "Oh, they have a terrible problem with affirmative action for conservatives. It's a problem worldwide."

Will, 53, has a doctorate in political philosophy from Princeton University and taught briefly at Michigan State University and the University of Toronto. He has not held a teaching post since 1970.

Bill to increase bad check fines falls short

Mary Neubauer
Associated Press

DES MOINES — The Iowa Senate voted down a bill Tuesday that would have increased the fee businesses can charge to customers who write bad checks.

But the Senate action also opened the possibility that all fees for bad checks could be eliminated when the state's new budget year starts July 1.

Sen. Andy McKean, R-Anamosa, sponsored the bill, saying the extra money from the increased fees would go to businesses that currently can only charge a $10 fee for insufficient funds. He said the measure is supported by consumer groups and by the Iowa attorney general's office.

"I think we would help discourage people from writing bad checks," McKean said.

But several senators lined up against the bill, saying it would penalize Iowans who can least afford to pay the fines: those who have just a little money in their accounts and end up overdrawn by just a few dollars.

Sen. Jack Kibbie, D-Emmetsburg, was worried about the harm the bill could cause college students.

"With insufficient funds, they get charged $10 for a $2 check. Now we're going to go to $20?" he asked. "This is a bankers' bill if I've ever seen one."

The bill to increase bad check fees fell just two votes short in the Senate, with 24 votes for it and 26 against.

McKean explained that under current law, banks and other financial institutions can set their own fees for customers who bounce checks, but stores are restricted to a $10 charge. The bill he sponsored would have increased that fee to $20 or 5 percent of the amount of the check up to a maximum of $100.

DES MOINES — Moving to shore up his conservative credentials, Bob Dole called for voluntary school prayer Tuesday and lashed out at Hollywood for promoting "casual violence and even more casual sex."

"We began as a people seeking religious freedom and have evolved into a nation whose government often seems the enemy of religion," the Republican presidential front-runner said as he campaigned in Ohio and Iowa. "The moral code we nurture in our churches and synagogues is under attack from our government."

Dole's overture to conservatives included tough talk on welfare reform and a promise to phase out federal funding for the arts and humanities, longtime targets of the Christian right. And he accused President Clinton of contributing to the nation's moral decline by abdicating leadership in the war on drugs.

Dole's courting of social conservatives came just a day after he made a major gesture to economic conservatives: pledging not to raise income taxes if elected president next year.

Taken together, the remarks underscored Dole's principal goal on his weeklong campaign announcement tour: to cement his position as the front-runner by strengthening his support among the conservative factions ascendant in GOP politics.

To rivals, these might be viewed as concessions to shore up weaknesses. But the Senate majority leader rejected that characterization during a conversation with reporters on his campaign plane.

He said he signed the tax pledge, after refusing to do so in his failed 1988 campaign, because this year's version allowed for the closing of loopholes.

As for his comments on values, Dole said that he had a proven conservative record on social issues but that it had received little attention in the context of his Senate career.

Nonetheless, in dropping his usual reluctance to discuss social issues, Dole highlighted the importance of religious conservative voters and the competition among GOP contenders for their support. He made values the centerpiece of speeches at the Ohio Statehouse and then later at the Iowa State Fairgrounds.

Wading into the school prayer debate, Dole said, "If students can discuss sports and music or drama at school, they should also be allowed to voluntarily — voluntarily — pray."

Some Republicans support a constitutional amendment allowing school prayer; Dole voted in favor of such an amendment in 1984.

His preference, however, is legislation allowing students to pray and lead peers in prayer; school officials could not lead or dictate prayers. Dole has not introduced such legislation and told reporters there was virtually no chance such a bill could clear the Senate next year.

In taking aim at Hollywood, Dole sounded much like former Vice President Dan Quayle, whose decision to sit out the 1996 race is one reason the Christian conservative vote is not seen as committed to any one candidate.

"Every parent knows the greatest challenge to family values is the way our popular culture ridicules them," Dole said. "Our music, movies and advertising regularly push the limits of decency, bombarding our children with destructive messages of casual violence and even more casual sex."

Vendor permits needed to set up for RAGBRAI

Sara Teasdale
The Daily Iowan

An ordinance passed uncontested Tuesday night by the Coralville City Council will require all local vendors participating in the Register's Annual Great Bike Ride Across Iowa July 28 to have a vendor permit.

The permits will improve the event, said Marie Ware, a member of the executive RAGBRAI committee.

"The permits will help to control the safety during RAGBRAI because if (vendors) decide to have food, then they will need a health permit. So this helps us to control things and see that everything is in order," she said.

The vendor permit also will support local merchants, Ware said. Now people from other cities will not be able to set up a vending site on a Coralville resident's property without a permit.

"We don't want someone from Davenport who may know someone here setting up on their land without a permit," she said. "Because they may decide to set up something that's not a safe thing, Ware delivered the RAGBRAI executive committee's report to City Council members and a handful of spectators. The committee created a theme for the annual bicycle ride, Ware said.

"We're calling it, 'Ride the Tide with Coralville Pride,'" she said.

Eight hundred volunteers of all ages are invited by the committee to participate in the event, Ware said.

Sidewalk cafés garner praise from businesses

Sara Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

The ordinance which would make it easier for restaurants to set up sidewalk cafés downtown received strong backing from various business owners at Tuesday night's Iowa City City Council meeting.

Tara Cronbaugh, owner of The Java House, 211 1/2 E. Washington St., said her business is successful because of its atmosphere. She said sidewalk cafés would improve the ambience of the downtown area in the same way.

"The council has a social obligation to help us sell our product," Cronbaugh said. "I'm very worried about the possible mall coming to Coralville, and we need more than one reason for people to come downtown."

"It doesn't promote drinking. If anything it has a chilling effect."

Mark Ginsberg, owner of M.C. Ginsberg Jewelers, 110 E. Washington St.

Mark Ginsberg, owner of M.C. Ginsberg Jewelers, 110 E. Washington St., said in addition to creating a better atmosphere, the cafés would bring more families into the downtown area.

Ginsberg also addressed a City Council concern that the cafés may cause an increase in public drunkenness. He said the cafés would deter more than promote public drunkenness.

"Eighteen-, 19- and 20-year-olds wouldn't want to be on public display getting drunk in front of these people eating their dinner," he said. "It doesn't promote drinking. If anything it has a chilling effect."

However, one restaurant owner said the proposal is unfair to businesses that don't have enough sidewalk area to set up cafés. Steve Strauss, an owner of Fries BBQ & Grill, 5 S. Dubuque St., said the cafés would draw customers away from his business.

"The concept is unfair to us in trying to compete with other downtown eating establishments," Strauss said. "It's using my money as a taxpayer to support my competitors. It's putting us at a gross disadvantage that we can't get free additional seating because our sidewalk isn't wide enough."

The public hearing will continue at the City Council's April 25 meeting so city staff can consider adding a café design review provision to the ordinance. They also will discuss who is responsible for litter cleanup.

Thieves take electricity along with loot

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Thieves apparently trying to knock out store burglar alarms accomplished that and a lot more, cutting electricity to tens of thousands of customers in the Florida Keys.

Someone broke into a substation Saturday and flipped a switch, blowing out a transformer. A hardware store was burglarized later in the day.

Then Monday, someone broke into another substation and knocked out power. A couple more break-ins occurred before power was restored, including the theft of thousands of dollars in merchandise from a J.C. Penny catalog store.

"The things that this person or persons did, I would never do," said Charles Russell, general manager of the Florida Keys Electric Cooperative. "They were risking their lives."

Russell said the FBI had been alerted.

Iraq may hope to gain higher ransom with publicity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration said Tuesday Iraq may mistakenly believe it can extract a higher price for the release of two imprisoned Americans by generating publicity about their case.

"There is nothing to negotiate," White House press secretary Mike McCurry said. "We are pressing through the United Nations as well as through other diplomatic channels for the release of the two Americans."

McCurry commented after a Polish diplomat, acting on behalf of the United States, visited with prisoners David Daliberti, 41, of Jacksonville, Fla., and William Barloon, 39, of New Hampton, Iowa. They were sentenced March 25 to eight-year terms for illegally crossing into Iraq.

The diplomat, Ryszard Krystosik, said their conditions were difficult.

"I'd make a reasonable point that Iraq may suspect that a lot of publicity and a lot of hyperventilation about the condition of the two might somehow or other force us to pay a higher price for their release," McCurry said.

"And that's wrong-headed thinking on their part," he added.

Shabazz confession ruled inadmissible

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Qubilah Shabazz's confession to FBI agents can't be used against her because FBI agents violated her constitutional rights when they entered her home without a warrant, a magistrate ruled Tuesday.

But in his ruling, U.S. Magistrate Franklin Noel denied a defense motion to dismiss the murder-for-hire charges against Malcolm X's daughter.

Shabazz, 34, is accused of plotting to hire her high-school friend Michael Fitzpatrick to kill Nation of Islam leader Louis Farrakhan.

According to transcripts of their telephone conversations, Shabazz believed Farrakhan was responsible for her father's assassination in 1965 and feared for the safety of her mother, Betty, who has publicly expressed her suspicion of Farrakhan.

Farrakhan, who denied any role in the assassination, has also said he believes Shabazz was set up.

Yalie accused of forging transcripts

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — One month before graduation, a Yale senior has been expelled and charged with larceny for allegedly falsifying his admission application.

Lon Grammer, 25, was accused of using falsified high-school and college transcripts and bogus recommendations to transfer to Yale two years ago.

Once at Yale, he received more than $41,000 in grants from the university and federal aid programs, the arrest affidavit said. He also received nearly $20,000 in loans.

A former roommate of Grammer's apparently put police on his trail, saying Grammer had bragged about getting into Yale with fake transcripts, the affidavit said.

Grammer of Brentwood, Calif., was arrested Thursday by university police in his residence hall room. He was released and his arraignment Tuesday in superior court was rescheduled for later this month. Grammer was charged with one count of larceny for allegedly accepting the financial aid under false pretenses.

Tuition, room and board at Yale cost about $26,000 a year.

"He applied for different grants to pay for his college tuition, and we were able to find that he was not who he portrayed himself to be," said James Perrotti, assistant chief of campus police.

Grammer wouldn't comment. His attorney, Norman Pattis, said being granted college tuition money does not constitute larceny. "If the university believes that's larceny, they should consult someone in their law school, perhaps a first-year law student," he said.

Pattis said Grammer "was performing quite well academically and there was no doubt of his ability to compete with other Yale students."

Last week, Harvard withdrew the admission of a teen-ager who pleaded no contest to manslaughter for beating her mother to death in 1989.

Grammer, who was studying political science, transferred to Yale in 1993 from Cuesta College in San Luis Obispo, Calif.

The affidavit said he submitted a phony transcript from Cuesta which showed he had a grade-point average of 3.91 out of a possible 4, or just below a straight A average. The transcript on file at Cuesta showed he actually had a grade average of 2.077, which translates to just above a C average.

Police said his Cuesta transcript was also falsified to show he had taken more classes than he really had.

In addition, Grammer's file included two letters of recommendation from nonexistent teachers and a forged recommendation from Cuesta's dean of students, the affidavit said.

The deception didn't stop there, police said. Grammer also submitted a high-school transcript in which his grades, test scores and class rank were falsified.

CHEST PAINS REPORTED

D'Amato lands in hospital

Associated Press

ROSLYN, N.Y. — U.S. Sen. Alfonse D'Amato was hospitalized Tuesday for tests after suffering chest pains.

The Long Island Republican was "awake, alert and in good spirits" at St. Francis Hospital, his office said in a statement. The statement said he was being held for observation and tests.

D'Amato, 57, was hospitalized following a stressful week in which he was hammered by Japanese-American groups over his assumption of a Japanese accent while discussing O.J. Simpson trial Judge Lance Ito.

D'Amato twice apologized for his botched attempt at comedy, once on the Senate floor.

I am the resurrection and the life.

Protest goes on in DePaulia newsroom

Lindsey Tanner
Associated Press

CHICAGO — M-Bs. That's police talk for "male blacks," and when the phrase cropped up in a story about a fight at a campus party, it led to a sit-in which has shut down the student newspaper at DePaul University.

Last week, dozens of DePaul students, most of them black, stormed the office of the weekly DePaulia, ordering staff members to leave. About 20 students have been holed up ever since, with no resolution in

"The DePaulia is representative of a bigger evil that DePaul University possesses and that's institutionalized racism."

Eric Wright, a DePaul sophomore who is participating in the sit-in sight. Negotiations are continuing with the administration.

Last week, DePaul's president, the Rev. John Minogue, asked newspaper staffers and protesters to reach an agreement, then suspended publication of Friday's edition.

The protesters, who include some whites and Hispanics, are demanding the ouster of DePaulia's editor in chief, 21-year-old Zack Martin, who is white. They are also demanding the paper publish weekly articles on minority concerns and that the school do more to curtail racism and punish offenders.

The takeover came after weeks of bickering over the Feb. 17 front-page article about a brawl at a campus party. The story quoted a police report describing "several M-Bs throwing chairs and trash into the crowd."

Associated Press

DePaul University student Eric Wright, foreground, and fellow students stand outside the university building that houses the DePaulia, the school's student newspaper, Thursday in Chicago.

Black students complained that the excerpt from the police report — the only mention of race in the story — was irrelevant and perpetuated negative stereotypes about blacks.

Black students also have charged that campus security officers who broke up the Feb. 10 fight made racial slurs that weren't reported in the article.

Following the complaints, the newspaper published an editorial saying the two reporters who covered the fight did not intend to write an unbalanced or insensitive article.

Martin was unsure when the newspaper would resume publication but said it won't be this week.

Racial tensions had been simmering at the Catholic university on Chicago's North Side before the protest brought the issue to the fore. Just under 10 percent of the nearly 16,800 students are black. Seventy percent are white.

Black students say administrators and campus security officers have been racially insensitive. Those complaints prompted the university to form a multicultural task force more than a year ago.

"The DePaulia is representative of a bigger evil that DePaul University possesses and that's institutionalized racism," said Eric Wright, a 20-year-old sophomore among those occupying the newspaper's basement office.

The editor in chief, who has resisted demands to print an apology, said he didn't initially see a problem with the story because it quoted directly from a police report. "We are sorry for the impact the article had on the community," Martin said in an interview Tuesday. He added, "It's a larger university issue. It just seems that the DePaulia has come under attack because we're ... a visible medium."

Caught in the middle is Randall Sawyer, a black DePaulia staffer and 20-year-old sophomore. He defended the article on free-speech grounds but also said he agrees with the protesters that racism pervades the university.

Sawyer said the administration isn't taking the protesters seriously, and that itself is another sign of campus racism.

Earlier this week, university spokeswoman Denise Mattson said officials viewed the situation as a "learning experience for the students" and had no plans to eject the protesters.

Health program fails on some points

Paul Recer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A program to improve Americans' health is making progress against killer diseases but is faltering in caring for the poor, reducing teen pregnancy and persuading couch potatoes to start exercising.

At the halfway point in a decade-long campaign called Healthy People 2000, federal officials said Tuesday the project is showing mixed results and may require increased efforts to achieve goals set in 1990.

"We have good news but not good enough," said Dr. J. Michael McGinnis of the U.S. Public Health Service, which is coordinating the national program.

McGinnis said deaths from heart disease, cancer and stroke are all moving down at a pace that will achieve the target values by 2000. But the rates of obesity, teen pregnancy, homicides and pneumonia and influenza deaths are actually worse than five years ago.

Also getting worse are efforts to provide disease-preventive medical care for the poor, McGinnis said at a news conference.

"We are failing to close the gap between the rich and poor in health care," he said. Financial barriers to preventive services existed in 16 states at the beginning of the program and now exist in 17 states, the report said.

Additionally, 15 percent of Americans are not covered by health insurance, McGinnis said. Among blacks, 21 percent are not covered and 32 percent are not covered among Hispanics, he said.

Healthy People 2000 is an effort by the Public Health Service, state health departments, professional organizations and voluntary organizations to systematically promote healthy habits and good medical care.

Among the improvements:

- Deaths from all causes — 426.9 per 100,000 at the start, 394.7 now and 341.5 target goals.
- Heart attack deaths — 135 per 100,000 at the start, 114 now and target of 100 per 100,000.

- Cancer deaths — 134 per 100,000 at the start, 133 now and target of 130.
- Life expectancy for Americans at a record 75.8 years.

Among the national trends getting worse:

- Teen pregnancies — 71 per 1,000 at the start, 74.3 now and the target is 50.
- Among black Americans, more hospitalizations for asthma and more cases of AIDS.

Fung rattled by defense's questioning

Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Spectators in the O.J. Simpson courtroom gasped Tuesday when a newly revealed crime scene videotape appeared to show two barehanded criminalists touching a key piece of evidence at the murder scene.

The defense attack on criminalist Dennis Fung, which frequently had the combative flair of a "Perry Mason" episode, came after a five-day hiatus dominated by juror problems and an investigation by the judge.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito appeared determined to get the trial back on track with testimony, although he disclosed someone tried to communicate with jurors on a weekend outing.

Fung, appearing weary and glum despite the five-day break, told defense attorney Barry Scheck that Scheck was wrong in his interpretation of the video. Scheck maintained the object in question was an envelope containing the glasses of Nicole Brown Simpson's mother, left behind at a restaurant and returned by waiter Ron Goldman. That envelope, with the glasses still inside, was later found in blood at the slain Goldman's feet.

"That's you getting the prescription envelope from (criminalist) Andrea Mazzola, grasping it in your bare hands, isn't it?" Scheck asked Fung after the video was played at various speeds both backward and forward.

"No," Fung said. "I know my fingerprints are not on that envelope." Under questioning, he agreed he was trained not to touch evidence with his bare hands because it could obliterate fingerprints.

Scheck showed the tape again, freezing a frame depicting Fung's colleague Andrea Mazzola, holding a letter-size object in her hand before passing it to him.

"There! There! How about that, Mr. Fung?" Scheck exclaimed. "Does that refresh your recollection that you took the envelope from Andrea Mazzola with your bare hand?"

When Scheck asked what the object could possibly be, Fung replied, "A note pad maybe? ... I'm saying it could be anything, but it's not the envelope."

Fung then noted the presence of two coroner's investigators on the video and said that solidified his opinion. "We did not start picking up evidence until well after the coroners were gone," Fung said.

Minutes later, Scheck produced another video that showed Mazzola picking up and bagging evidence with a coroner's investigator present.

"So you did begin evidence collection before the coroners left?" Scheck asked accusingly.

"Yes," Fung said. "So what you said before wasn't true?"

"It was to the best of my recollection at the time."

Last week, Scheck got the criminalist to admit he withheld information.

ARTISTS FIGHT BACK

'Contract' even adorns underwear

Larry Margasak
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — You can read it, debate it and watch Republicans praise it and Democrats trash it. And now a small number of Americans can also wear it, with the making of GOP "Contract With America" underpants.

Yes, they're here: artist-created, limited edition "Contract With America" underwear for men and women.

The 10 main points of the GOP's 1994 campaign agenda are on the back of the cotton briefs. On the front a handmade silk-screened picture of House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga, is featured.

The artists were not trying to be complimentary.

"There is a personal threat here to our personal lives and liberties, to reproductive rights and sexual orientation," said Marshall Reese, 39, who created the underwear with fellow artist Nora Ligorano. "So we thought, let's make a really ridiculous, absurd product."

"We feel they're trying to censor us in a way," said Ligorano, 38. "The 'Contract' is a very serious issue. You sit on the 'Contract.' It is a metaphor."

Reese and Ligorano, both of Brooklyn, N.Y., had 120 pairs of underwear silk-screened and enclosed a card numbering each one. Ten pairs, run off as tests before the signed copies, were sent to selected politicians, including Gingrich, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and President Clinton.

Defense attorney Barry Scheck rests his head on his hand Tuesday during questioning of police criminalist Dennis Fung in the O.J. Simpson double-murder trial in Los Angeles. Scheck poked holes in many key aspects of Fung's testimony, including his taking credit for collecting a crime scene glove, a hat and blood drops — work done by someone else.

mation from the grand jury about how much evidence Mazzola, a rookie, had collected.

Simpson is charged with the June 12, 1994 slaying murders of his ex-wife, Brown Simpson, and Goldman, her friend.

Scheck's pointed questions set the stage for a full-blown challenge of all DNA evidence in the case, eliciting testimony designed to show that evidence collection methods were sloppy, rendering test results unreliable.

Scheck showed jurors another crime scene videotape purportedly showing one of the famed bloody gloves lying at the edge of a blood-stained blanket. He suggested the glove was moved to three different locations and became contaminated with blood from the blanket, which had been thrown over Brown Simpson's mangled body.

Fung said he could not tell whether the dark spot on the videotape was a glove or just a "dark area on the video."

"You know it's the glove, don't you?" Scheck pressed.

"I don't know that," Fung replied, his voice soft.

"You know it's the glove and you just got caught by the videotape," Scheck insisted. The comment was ruled argumentative, and Fung didn't have to answer.

Prosecutors argued in vain to bar the videotape from the jurors' scrutiny. They said that camera angles and lighting were distorting the picture and the glove was not really sitting on the blanket. The judge ruled last week that that was for the jury to decide.

Scheck also probed Fung's training in the collection of evidence for DNA testing. Prosecutor Hank Goldberg repeatedly objected, saying DNA was not part of Fung's expertise, but Ito permitted the questions.

Scheck confronted Fung with textbooks on evidence collection which stated that wet stains, such as blood, should never be packed in plastic. Such packaging can foster the growth of bacteria, which can eat away at the DNA and distort test results.

Fung said he knew that but placed samples in plastic nevertheless. He said the plastic bagging was a temporary container for blood samples and other evidence.

He also acknowledged that multiple swatches used to sop up bloodstains were sometimes placed together in one test tube. He said there was no record of which swatches were placed in which tubes.

"The stain is the evidence, not the swatch," Fung said. "The stain is important. The swatches are a medium to carry the stains."

Marcia Clark alters look another time

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Prosecutor Marcia Clark returned to court Tuesday with darker, straighter hair, her trademark curls replaced by a modified shag.

It's the second time Clark has changed her hair style in the globally televised O.J. Simpson murder case. Last summer, she had her shoulder-length curls trimmed to the neckline.

But Tuesday's change was more like a transformation. Applause broke out among people waiting to enter the courtroom, including some reporters, when Clark walked past.

"Get a life," Clark told them with a laugh.

In this trial, appearances matter far more than in most court proceedings.

Much has been made of the expensive suits favored by defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. Clark and Simpson.

No one missed the new blue dress and shoes worn by Rosa Lopez, the maid of Simpson's next-door neighbor, when she came to testify on videotape, in contrast to the purple sweat suit she wore to a hearing the Friday before.

But it's the details of personal grooming that seem to attract the most attention. Standup comics have poked fun at prosecutor Christopher Darden, who generally shaves his head but sometimes comes to court with a cranial version of a 5 o'clock shadow. And the shaggy heads of witness Brian "Kato" Kaelin and defense DNA expert Barry Scheck did not escape comment.

PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFULS

Republicans losing sleep?

If Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich is the barometer by which the weather in the Republican Party is measured, then his appearance on the CBS News program "Face the Nation" last Sunday is good news for Democrats.

Gingrich showed support for federal financing of abortions for poor women in the cases of rape or incest, a major bone of contention among conservatives. He also said he opposed any kind of organized school prayer but offered an ambiguous explanation of legislation his party plans to offer later this year that would somehow explain that "this is a profoundly religious country."

This apparent moderation on social issues is a profound about-face for Gingrich, who has often sounded as if he wanted the entire nation to exist in an episode of "Leave It To Beaver." It also signals a possible stress point for the party as a whole as it prepares for the primary next year.

The growing list of presidential hopefuls is growing larger by the day and is indicative of the possible split in the party. Pro-choice Republicans like Gov. Pete Wilson and Sen. Arlen Specter have joined the race against pro-life conservatives like Sen. Phil Gramm and California Congressman Robert Dornan.

An issue of huge importance will ultimately become the allegiance of the Christian Coalition, whose support will undoubtedly be for a pro-life candidate. If a pro-choice Republican like Wilson wins the nomination, will the Christian Coalition's members defect? There has also been talk of third-party action in 1996. Perhaps that is where Pat Robertson and his minions will find a home. Despite Robertson's lap dog Ralph Reed offering olive branches to American Jews and others, the group is decidedly conservative and anti-Democrat. If the Republican Party is forced to go mainstream in order to appeal to the largest block of voters, it risks losing Robertson's support and that of his millions of followers.

Republicans are not likely to take back the White House on a straight pro-life, religious, conservative ticket. What the party and Gingrich need to take back the White House is a balanced ticket featuring social moderation and fiscal stinginess.

Of course, the issues are not so black and white as presented here, but Gingrich — who wants desperately for his party to take the White House — has got to be concerned about possible splits in the party.

The differences among party members on the budget issue is another hot topic. The so-called deficit hawks vs. the defense hawks is an issue that could become very divisive and threatens to split the party along another crucial philosophical line. Republicans are not likely to take back the White House on a straight pro-life, religious, conservative ticket. What the party and Gingrich need to take back the White House is a balanced ticket featuring social moderation and fiscal stinginess. Front-runners ought to start talking to New Jersey Gov. Christine Todd Whitman because she could deliver just that sort of balance.

It may seem a bit early to be predicting what sort of discussion will shape next year's primary, but be assured that Gingrich and other powerful Republicans are already losing sleep over the issue.

ANIMOSITY BETWEEN CULTURAL GROUPS

Discrimination puzzling

Sitting on the shelves in Nation of Islam bookstores are books calling the Holocaust of World War II a hoax. Without giving it much thought, one can conclude that there is something very wrong with this picture. It's hard to decide which is more disturbing, the reality that there are individuals who have the gall to publish such immoral ignorance or that its author is representative of an organization which works for the advancement of another minority group.

Although Louis Farrakhan and followers of the Nation of Islam have all been oppressed as members of a minority group, Jewish people have likewise experienced this as well. The hypocrisy is tragic: The very tool of ignorance and prejudice that has hurt their own people is used against another group in a parallel position. They're guilty of doing to others what has been done to them, perpetuating the practice of racism and discrediting their own battle against it.

Another facet of this dilemma is an argument that frequently transpires between Jews and African-Americans over which occurrence was more heinous, slavery or the Holocaust of World War II (when acknowledged).

To backtrack and compete over suffering is only self-defeating. Disputing the past keeps the two groups caught in a no-win situation and actually extends their misery. It creates extra animosity between the groups in addition to hostility from the outside. If the groups shared and identified with each other's experiences, they could create a strong support network for each other. Instead of fighting each other, the two groups could make a collective effort to fight racism in the present and prevent the possibility of any recurrences.

While the Nation of Islam has good intentions for their own people, their anti-Semitism remains disturbingly present. It's a mystery as to where they derived hostility toward Jewish people, but it's an even greater mystery as to why they would deny them respect by refusing to acknowledge suffering as real as their own.

The new Hillary: Same great taste, less filling

(SAP) is unlike any other currently in operation.

The idea was hatched in a meeting between David Gergen, Bill Clinton and George Stephanopoulos some time last fall. "Why not design a bionic first lady?" It seemed simple enough at the time. After the Republican landslide, the administration couldn't afford any more "headband incidents," and by investing in a spouse they could program, they would ensure a now lacking compliance.

From the Oval Office the job was sent down to the Pentagon where it was placed under the care of a general. His first order of business was to conduct a Gallup Poll of 900 adults to find out what they wanted in a first lady. Some of the questions were as follows: "If Hillary Rodham Clinton baked a pie, would you eat it?" "Who would you rather have as a first lady — Hillary Rodham Clinton or Katy Couric?" and "If Younkers came out with a Hillary line of clothes, would you buy anything?"

The results were worse than expected.

The data was then tabulated and entered into a mainframe computer that correlated the ideal specifications. (This technology was strangely prophesied in the teen film "Weird Science," every copy of which the Pentagon was later forced to hunt down and destroy in an effort to protect national interests. Oddly, no one seemed to notice.)

Once the computer had come up with a blueprint for SAP, Gates — who had just beaten out a Harvard-educated Martian broker for the title of Richest Man In The Universe — was brought aboard to fine tune the software. His concern was that the first lady be interactive and visually compelling, so he and his team developed a program that incorporated the more interesting traits of several former White House women. There was Eleanor Roosevelt's wave, Jackie Kennedy's penchant for hats, Pat Nixon's unwavering devotion and Mary Todd Lincoln's sense of humor. These traits were all integrated, along with a love of children and an anti-drug message, into the original chip.

Then the whole project was sent down to National Aeronautics and Space Administration where a special body shell was constructed out of used rocket parts. The final design was bulletproof, scratch resistant, fire retardant and could withstand underwater depths of up to 300 meters. The software was then implanted in the shell, and the newly finished SAP was shipped back up to Washington.

Finally, after a lot of product testing (picture Lindsay Wagner crushing that tennis ball in the opening of "The Bionic Woman"), the first lady was quietly replaced with the new prototype. Her first mission was a brief tour of South Asia, complete with lots of vacant smiling and photo opportunities. SAP passed with flying colors and not one of the American press corps who followed her around, writing long articles about her "new role as a traditional first lady," were the wiser.

This milestone, of course, represents a whole new era of technology. If we have a first lady we can program to fit our specifications, just think what we can do to the people we actually elect. I hear the Republicans are working on a prototype of Bob Dole that can recite the Constitution, wave a flag and kiss a baby all at the same time. It's called the Dole Ultralight Droid and supposedly will be able to campaign 23 hours a day with the 24th hour spent recharging.

In the private sector, Mattel and Microsoft have announced that they are teaming up to create a company called Dreamoties that will manufacture their own versions of automated public figures. The replicas will come with their own public opinion polls and campaign buttons and will require some assembly.

GUEST OPINION • DAVID NACOS

Decisions help maintain our role as world leader

It is hard to believe that in this information age the media have become tools of the rhetoric war that our elected leaders wage from Washington. Political strategists have mastered their craft of propaganda. The complicated issues facing our country are reduced daily into 30-second sound bites and slogans that bring about impulsive responses instead of constructive dialogue. Unfortunately, the success of this propaganda would make a Fifth Avenue advertising firm blush. In recent weeks, the Democrats have won the war of words with Republicans. The battles have centered on some of the items in the "Contract With America."

A few weeks ago, the balanced-budget amendment was passed in the House of Representatives and sent to the Senate where it was narrowly defeated. In the Senate, the vote took on a very partisan flavor, with the Democrats strongly against the amendment and the Republicans strongly in favor. Among those voting against the amendment were a handful of Democrats who had previously voted "yes" to the same amendment a year prior. There were also several Democrats who voted "no," hiding behind the cloak of champions for Social Security.

The sincerity of these individuals would not be questioned if the annual revenues generated by Social Security were tucked away in a vault earning interest. However, the annual surpluses from Social Security have routinely been placed in the general operating budget to make the deficit more palatable. Functionally, Social Security is bankrupt. It is rather troublesome to think about where the money is going to come from for those millions of baby boomers who will shortly start moving into retirement. The balanced-budget amendment would have forced fiscal discipline on a roguish, myopic Congress that has placed the country on a course for financial collapse. Evidence for this can be found in the report issued by the Bipartisan Commission, which estimated that our financial resources will be depleted around 2010. It would be naive to think that passage of the balanced-budget amendment will not call for sacrifices and difficult choices. Yet failure of fiscal responsibility could have potentially tragic consequences.

The current debate in Congress concerns welfare reform. The Republican-drafted legislation is controversial, and there are many legitimate philosophical differences that need to be worked out. Nonetheless, most Americans, including Congress, realize that the current system is more of a problem than an answer. Despite this national feeling the Democrats are once again trying to defend the status quo.

On C-Span, several Democrats made speeches on the House floor surrounded by "Sesame Street" puppets and a large purple dinosaur. Slightly more dramatic were the "Save the Children" ties and scarves donned by Democrats during their spirited misrepresentation. Instead of thoughtful debate, they have mounted a fervent defense, portraying welfare reform as an effort to kill Barney and to starve young children. It would be incredible to believe that an oversized dinosaur — whose gross earnings last year make Oprah Winfrey jealous — or the "Sesame Street" crowd who earned millions last year would be walking the streets without government support.

The one fundamental fact that all Americans must understand is that there is no money. In fact, we have piled up so much debt that the interest alone is quickly becoming one of the largest items in the yearly budget. The debt is not going to go away. It has to be dealt with now and dealt with effectively. Unfortunately, this means that many government functions and programs, including school lunches, will need to be re-evaluated. Many of these will be scaled back and some will be eliminated. Many people will view this as a mean-spirited campaign against the poor. On the contrary, it is owing up to the years of fiscal unrestraint that have placed this country in a perilous financial condition. The real injustice would be leaving this catastrophic situation for the next generation.

It is this author's opinion that everything in the budget should be looked at with a microscope and a nit comb. The new attitude in the United States must center around personal responsibility. Individuals must be accountable for their actions. The country as a whole can no longer afford the luxury of collectively paying for the mistakes and indiscretions of its individuals. As inhabitants of this great country, we all have a moral obligation to put in more than we take out. Our elected officials will have to make difficult, and many times, unpopular decisions in the next several years if we are to continue to prosper and maintain our role as world leader.

Roles of nurses should be understood

To the Editor:

As Nurses Week approaches, May 12, the timing is appropriate for the public to view nurses in a different light. Nurses are not physician assistants nor are they glorified maids. Nurses are capable of working independently with you to determine what your health-care concerns are.

Nurses are providing services not only in the hospital, but in your home, in your children's schools, at church and in the workplace. An increasing number of nurses today have advanced degrees with six or more years of college. These nurses are clinical specialists, practitioners, midwives, anesthetists, educators and administrators.

Nurses are at the forefront of health promotion. We are interested in assisting you with taking control of your own health. Nurses are researchers, consultants, therapists and are independently establishing their own clinics.

Physicians provide a role in treating illness. Nurses not only care for you during illness, they also focus on promoting health and preventing disease.

Nurses desire a future where you, the public, recognize their professional abilities and use their services. The public's understanding of the changing role of the nurse is vital to the success of a healthy society.

Border Patrol issue deeper than column

To the Editor:

It was interesting to read about Laura Fokkena's experience (DI, April 4) on the New Mexico bus. Two women were removed from the bus by the Border Patrol. Presumably these people lacked the proper identification to prove legal residence in the United States. Fokkena was outraged at this blatant act of discrimination and vented her uncontrollable rage by waiting two or three weeks to write about it in Iowa after she returned from vacation. She didn't ask the Border Patrol why they were removing the women and Fokkena apparently doesn't speak Spanish, so how could she possibly have any idea what was happening? I encourage her to write a letter to the Border Patrol and inquire about the status of the two women in question — if she still cares.

Fokkena later goes on to question the operating procedures of the Border Patrol: "... The Border Patrol should be patrolling a border." As it turns out, the government has decided to not only patrol the border — a huge task — but to follow up with further checkpoints within the United States. I don't work for the Border Patrol and I suspect that Fokkena doesn't either. How can either of us say that the Border Patrol wasn't operating due to an established procedure which is constructed within the bounds of U.S. law? If Fokkena has a problem with U.S. law, she should write to her legal representatives.

Columnist's 'sophistry' doesn't enhance debate

To the Editor:

Duane Nollen's "Getting set up for an affirmative action fall" (DI, April 3) was by turns frustrating, baffling and amusing. In the course of his discussion of affirmative action, Nollen actually treats three separate issues in the context of race relations: affirmative action, the battle over politically correct curricula in education and the scholarship race. He does justice to none of them.

Indeed, the civil rights movement did "change society for the better" in the 1960s. African-Americans are no longer being beaten for walking into the wrong waiting area at a Greyhound bus station nor are they being shot to death for registering to vote. Nevertheless, racial discrimination against African-Americans and other minorities is very much alive today.

Affirmative action has always been an inherently flawed means of redress for minorities. Not because minorities are undeserving of said redress after long centuries of oppression, but because compelling the white majority to correct its collective racial bias in such a manner treats the symptoms of that bias at the expense of aggravating the underlying causes. Expressly denying whites job opportunities in favor of minorities can only serve to exacerbate the animosity simmering between the races. One has only to look to Nollen's own flagrantly displayed resentment for proof of that.

Name questioned

To the Editor:

OK, I have a question. Why is it that in some years the RiverFest mascot duck is named "Eliot" and some years is named "Eliot"? Obviously, the correct spelling is "Eliot" with one L. This is an urgent problem that warrants immediate investigation!

GUEST OPINION • JEAN FALLOW

Rally to be held at Free Speech Wall

The Iowa state Board of Regents are returning to Iowa City this month, giving UI students, staff and faculty another opportunity to urge revocation of the homophobic classroom materials policy. This will also be our chance to bid a fond farewell to departing regents President Marvin "Rambo" Berenstein, the man who advocated rearming campus security to keep the rabble in line. The Campaign for Academic Freedom will hold a rally on the day of the meeting, April 19, at noon near the Free Speech Wall next to Calvin Hall.

Given that UI President Hunter Rawlings has done yet another about-face — now claiming he would like to see the policy removed before he leaves Iowa — some might think that it is no longer an issue. However, neither the administration nor the regents have taken any action to date to repeal this onerous regulation. And although the UI Faculty Council voted to oppose the policy several months ago, it remains a threat as long as it remains on the books.

The fact that there have been no further instructor reprimands this year should be seen as a victory for academic freedom: Although the policy has not been removed outright, widespread opposition has made it politically inexpedient for the administration to persecute instructors who use course materials which deal with homosexuality or might otherwise be construed as "unusual and unexpected." However, it should be remembered that if public pressure dies down while the policy remains in place, it risks being used to suppress course content not bearing the Christian Coalition's seal of approval.

The effectiveness of the anti-policy mobilization can be seen in the lengths to which the administration has gone to silence CAF. Last month, the Student Activities Board, at the behest of Dean of Students Phillip Jones, found CAF guilty of several heinous crimes: placing an unapproved information table on the Pentacrest, erecting an unauthorized box containing information about artists and writers banned throughout history (ironically enough), using its own sound equipment at a Pentacrest rally and refusing campus security officers' orders to vacate the Pentacrest. As punitive measures, the board curtailed CAF's funding as well as rescinding its phone, office space and some funds for office supplies.

Defeating the policy will make clear that homophobia has no place at the UI.

These measures come on the heels of a one-year ban imposed by Dean Jones, forbidding CAF from holding literature tables or rallies on the Pentacrest on the grounds that it had failed to acquire advance permission for previous tables. Both Jones and the board chose to ignore the fact that when CAF originally did request administrative permission, it was denied, thus necessitating the unauthorized actions.

CAF continues to defy the ban and further argues that the regulation requiring prior authorization for literature tables — a Pentacrest policy imposed to quash student activism in 1970 — is antithetical to free speech and should be repealed. Its sole function is to enable the administration to silence groups which criticize its actions, as the refusal of permission to CAF clearly demonstrates. Even board Chairman Robert Frick wrote to CAF, "It is felt by the Student Activities Board that the UI Pentacrest policy should be revisited."

In fact, a pattern emerges when one compares the administration's wielding of both the classroom materials policy and the Pentacrest policy. Here at the UI, diversity and academic freedom are trumpeted in presidential speeches, slick brochures and course catalogs. Yet beneath this superficial respect for different lifestyles and opinions lies a petty institutional compulsion to exclude course materials that challenge traditional notions of normalcy.

Finally, it is important to note that this is more than a local issue. Since the policy was first imposed, gay-bashing has become a national pastime, with Newt Gingrich and various presidential aspirants publicly advocating discrimination in employment, housing and education. Recently, homophobia caused the murder of a gay man who spoke on a talk show about his crush on his murderer-to-be. Especially given this larger context, the UI policy is not merely words on paper; rather, it participates in the vilification of homosexuality, and hence homosexuals, as repugnant and dangerous. It implies that students should be protected from the depictions of drag queens in "Paris is Burning," as though viewing them constituted a health hazard.

Defeating the policy will make clear that homophobia has no place at the UI and that our campus is united in demanding that the institution's stated ideals of tolerance and diversity be made more than public relations gimmicks. Please join us on April 19.

said. "I think my business record and community service records speak for themselves."

Court records state the allegedly unsound financial decisions were made between 1987 and 1989 "without adhering to fundamental underwriting principles or any safe and sound lending procedures."

The Iowa Senate must vote on the appointees by Thursday. Sen. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City, said the suit concerns the senators, but they don't want to rush in deciding how to vote.

"The senators are aware of the issue. It's a little bit of a problem because we don't like to approve a person, who will be in such a financially important position, with a suit like this hanging over their head," Neuhauser said. "But we don't want to convict someone before there's been a decision."

The lawsuit issue is important because Fisher will be partially in charge of handling money intended for the three state universities, said Sen. Robert Dvorsky, D-Coralville.

"It's a breach of fiduciary responsibility, and we don't want someone on the board of regents controlling a large amount of money if there's any question about their ability to handle finances," Dvorsky said. "Some senators are suggesting a one-year appointment to see what happens with the suit."

Wade Hauser, one of two Des Moines attorneys representing Fisher, said the suit might come to trial within the next 18 months to two years.

The governor's office was aware of the suit when Fisher was appointed to the board, said press secretary Christina Martin.

"That legal action has to do with issues prior to when Mr. Fisher was involved in the company," Martin said. "He should not have any problems being confirmed by the Senate."

to be appointed to the board of regents," he said. "The state was in dire need of financial help in 1991 and we came up with a number of proposals to help remedy that. The Legislature chose to act on some of our proposals and did not act on others."

Neuhauser said she questioned Fisher about his work on the committee and about student financial aid, especially the federal work-study program.

going to rule without getting a fight," said Prouty.

Protesters taking advantage of their right to assemble freely were infringing on others' rights, said UI Lecture Committee member Jeanna Edgington.

"They're protesting the speaker and the party he represents because they feel they're taking away rights from the citizens of our country," Edgington said. "And it's kind of funny (the protesters) are trampling people's rights in the process."

sively for Republicans during the 1994 elections. He was named co-campaign manager of the year along with Gingrich by the American Association of Political Consultants.

In his speech, Gaylord said poor campaigning and Bush's failure to follow up on Operation Desert Storm shattered the former president's chance to win the 1992 election.

"When you start out with a 91 percent approval rating, it's hard to get in the mindset of a tough election," he said. "The campaigning was as bad internally, inside, as it appeared Newly elected UI Student Government Vice President Jeremy Johnson, who attended the lecture, said the protest represented a healthy myriad of attitudes representative of the UI.

"I think it's great in all honesty," Johnson said. "It's exciting that the Lecture Committee is bringing in controversial people."

UI graduate student Omubo Fubara said he attended the lecture to learn but was disappointed he had to strain to listen.

"We came here to learn as much as we can," Fubara said. "A lot of people are opposed to the 'Contract,' but people should be allowed to listen and digest and an objective opinion can be made in that manner."

Harsher words came from UI graduate student David Levenstam. "I don't have any idea how these ignorant, spoiled, white middle-class group of students and so-called grad students got into the UI, and they obviously don't have anything better to do with their time," said Levenstam. "It's clear from what they did, they are not interested in having any real debate."

UI Student Government Vice President Jeremy Johnson said he and UISG President Tim Williams have received a number of letters in the past few weeks urging them not to support Fisher's appointment.

"We have received a number of letters, but we're not sure if the allegations in them are distortions of the truth," said Johnson. "I'd venture to say he probably won't have our support, but nothing's concrete yet."

majority, which the Republicans did in both the House and the Senate in 1994.

"The reason why Newt didn't get beat (in the election) was because he stood for something," Gaylord said. "The Republicans needed to have a policy in order to win and, hence, the 'Contract With America' was born."

Gaylord said he wasn't surprised at being interrupted by protesters at the beginning of his speech.

"The truth is, I did think it would happen," he said. "I can't imagine going someplace to lecture without some controversy."

pers, sisters, neighbors, employees, and if we have any real hope in curbing their reoffenses, we need to be at least aware of what goes on in their minds and what contributes to their offense cycles."

Many times, the cycle of sex abuse begins with low self-esteem, passes through phases of isolation and substance abuse, and ends with "triggers" like the loss of a job or the failure of a relationship, Simmons said.

In an effort to recognize the patterns preceding abuse, offenders learn to deal with their problems and emotions instead of allowing them reach a breaking point, he said.

The convicted Iowa City man has been in sex offense counseling for almost three years.

"I went into the program here scratching and screaming and fighting all the way," he said. "When the event became public, I was thrown out of my home and forced to face what I had done. I hit rock bottom." The Iowa City man, who would not allow his name to be used or the specific circumstances surrounding the abuse revealed, said he knew abusing the girl was wrong from the moment the idea crossed his mind. But he said he was unable to effectively deal with the problems in his life.

"I was never taught coping skills," he said. "I was taught to deny, ignore and stuff."

Counselors use role-playing in the sex offense program to help offenders realize what effect their pasts have had on decision making, said Rachel Hromidko, a counselor with the Department of Corrections.

"Role-playing helped me understand what I was thinking before, during and after the offense," the offender said.

The offender said role-playing also helped him realize the girl he abused is dealing with serious emotional trauma as a result of his actions.

"Sex offenders know their victim is a person," Hromidko said. "They just don't realize the victim is a person with feelings. Through the role-playing, they can see what the victim felt at the time of the offense."

As part of his therapy, the Iowa City man had to write a hypothetical letter to the girl he abused.

"I know this will never take away what's been inflicted, but there is no way for me to remove it," he wrote in the letter.

The Iowa City man said his offense will haunt him and his victim for the rest of their lives.

"It is something I am constantly aware of, just like an alcoholic knows there is a bar on the corner and one day he may end up there drunk," he said. "A sex offender is the same and could want to go back to a feel-good. I'll never be out of the woods. I have lots of things to overturn, to dig up and try to understand."

"I can work through counseling and try to understand what got me to commit abuse," he continued. "Victims, they go to counseling so they can function; that's the best they can hope for. It will never make sense to them no matter what."

porary stay for all persons, the project will conduct a more thorough evaluation of homeless persons wanting to use the shelter. The service will also give more attention to preventing homelessness.

"I have had a vision of a different type of Emergency Housing Project—a more progressive Emergency Housing Project," Jordan said.

The previous mission statement asserted the project would house anyone in need of shelter.

"It became quite obvious to me we can no longer be counted on to provide shelter and temporary housing to all people," Jordan said. "It's always been a question of what do you do. Tell a family with two infants to go out on the street?"

Although the project receives funding from both the city and county, the state grant which covered most of the shelter's past costs was slashed this year and the shelter will receive $10,000 to $11,000 less than it did last year.

With spring and summer weather on its way, Jordan said she and board members believe now is the best time to implement change. She said the fire marshal told her 29 people could safely stay at the shelter, which would displace about 200 homeless people a year.

"That's not to say there will be 200 people running around on the streets, but it does mean there might not be solutions for 200 people," Jordan said. "There will be people not served."

Bilbao named Big Ten pitcher of the week

Iowa Freshman Debbie Bilbao earned Big Ten Conference Pitcher of the Week honors, conference officials announced Tuesday.

"I think that it is a really big honor," Bilbao said. "It is reflective of the entire team. I never would have won it without the great support and encouragement of the upperclassmen."

The righthander from Sandy, Utah, went 3-1 for the week, with two saves and three shutouts. During the stretch, Bilbao posted a 0.38 ERA, including 23 1/3 innings of scoreless softball. She struck out 10 while walking only two.

In the final game of the week, on Sunday, Bilbao pitched 14 scoreless innings to help Iowa defeat Michigan, 3-0.

"I thought Debbie gave us a strong performance and showed good composure, especially against a good hitting team such as Michigan," Coach Gayle Blevins said. "She's the type of pitcher who allows the defense to assist her and that is how she succeeds. As a young pitcher, Debbie has made a lot of progress and I'm confident she will only continue to improve."

NFL

Rams set to offer owners one more bid

It's time for another round of let's make a deal for the Rams and the NFL.

Last month, league owners voted down the Rams' move from Anaheim to St. Louis. But a special meeting was scheduled for today in Dallas, and the league wouldn't go to all of that trouble just to give the Rams another thumbs-down.

Or would it?

Los Angeles attorney Maxwell Blecher, who would represent the Rams if they end up taking the matter to court, said Tuesday there has been significant progress in negotiations.

"I sense they're getting closer to some accommodation that will permit the move," Blecher said. "I would say there's room for cautious optimism."

Others weren't so optimistic.

"I wouldn't hazard a guess," Rams spokesman Rick Smith said. "Honest to goodness, I don't know what to expect."

The NFL certainly didn't shed any light on the situation.

"Nothing has changed from our previous statement that we have a long way to go," league spokesman Greg Aiello said. "I don't want to guess on what may happen. We do not know at this point whether there will be a resolution this week."

Talley becomes sixth free agent to sign with Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — Buffalo free-agent linebacker Darryl Talley, called the "heart and soul" of the Bills' defense, agreed Tuesday to a two-year contract with the Atlanta Falcons.

Details of the contract were not immediately available, but the Buffalo Evening News had reported Talley was considering a two-year deal worth about $1 million a season.

Report says Montana is done

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — This time, Joe is expected to go.

Joe Montana's long-rumored retirement from football likely becomes official next week, the Los Angeles Times reported Tuesday. The newspaper said the quarterback's friends and family will be in San Francisco for the announcement.

Montana, who spent two years with the Kansas City Chiefs after leading the 49ers to four Super Bowl championships, is retiring at age 38 because of aches and pains as well as the wishes of his wife, Jennifer, according to Montana's relatives, the newspaper said.

By retiring next week, Montana would free up his $2.4 million salary for the Chiefs to use in the NFL draft April 22-23.

Veteran Steve Bono would be the likely starter if Montana does retire, with Matt Blundin his backup.

Chiefs spokesman Bob Moore said Tuesday the club wasn't aware Montana had made a decision.

General manager Carl Peterson was out of town for a speaking engagement.

Montana could not be reached for comment and his agent, Tom Condon, did not immediately return a phone call from The Associated Press.

The Times story said relatives from Monongahela, Pa., already have flown to San Francisco to take part in the retirement ceremony.

"At the end of the year, his friends in Kansas City were telling me that Joe was just tired, really tired," said Dave Huffman, a friend of Montana's and a former teammate at Notre Dame.

"This shouldn't surprise anybody."

Montana has one year left on the three-year contract he signed with Kansas City after he was traded by San Francisco and replaced by Steve Young.

Last season, Montana completed 299 of 493 passes for 3,283 yards with 16 touchdown passes and nine interceptions last year and stayed relatively injury-free as the team gave up a club-record low 19 sacks.

There was talk of a possible retirement late in the Chiefs' 9-7 season and after Kansas City lost to Miami in the first round of the playoffs. Montana underwent knee surgery after the season, causing reports to surface again. Montana and club officials insisted at the time that no decision had been made.

EASTERN CONFERENCE ROUNDUP

Bulls extend lead over Cavs

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Michael Jordan's shot was off again but he still scored 25 points as the Chicago Bulls defeated the Indiana Pacers 96-89 Tuesday night.

Toni Kukoc added 18 points and Steve Kerr 16 for the Bulls, who have won seven of eight games to take a two-game lead over Cleveland in the race for the fifth Eastern Conference playoff seed.

Jordan, a .516 shooter during his first nine seasons, went 8-for-27, dropping his percentage to .396 in 11 games since coming out of retirement. He's at .338 over the last five games and .327 at home.

Nevertheless, the Bulls are 8-3 since his return, partly because of the many other things he does. Tuesday night, he had a season-high 11 rebounds and six assists. The 6-foot-6 Jordan also blocked shots by 7-4 Rik Smits and 6-10 Derrick McKey.

Smits scored 26 points for Indiana, which is two games ahead of second-place Charlotte in the Central Division. Reggie Miller, who outscored Jordan 28-19 in the Chicago star's return engagement March 19, had only 12 points on 3-for-13 shooting this time.

The Bulls pulled down a season-high 54 rebounds.

The Pacers trailed throughout but pulled to 79-77 on McKey's layup with 5:29 to play. After Jordan assisted on a layup by Scottie Pippen and Kukoc made two free throws, Miller made only one of three free throws. Jordan and McKey each made a foul shot before Kerr's 3-pointer gave the Bulls an 87-79 lead with 2:24 left, and the Pacers never threatened again.

Kukoc had 11 points, six rebounds and four assists as the Bulls took a 29-19 first-quarter lead despite Jordan's 1-for-6 shooting.

Kerr came off the bench to score 11 second-quarter points, helping the Bulls to a 60-43 halftime lead. Chicago scored only 11 points in the third period — eight by Jordan — but still led 71-62 entering the fourth.

Magie 107, Cavaliers 90

ORLANDO, Fla. — Orlando moved closer to clinching home-court advantage through the Eastern Conference playoffs beating the Cleveland Cavaliers behind a 30-point, 18-rebound performance by Shaquille O'Neal.

With All-Star guard Anfernee Hardaway back in the lineup after missing four games because of an inflamed esophagus, the Magic played with more poise and confidence and ended a two-game losing streak.

The Magic improved to 37-2 at Orlando Arena and reduced the number of combined victories and New York losses needed to clinch homecourt advantage in the East to two.

O'Neal was 6-for-6 from the field and scored 16 points to Cleveland's 17 in the third quarter. He didn't attempt a shot in the fourth period and joined Hardaway, who had 15 points and six assists, in leaving the game with 2:24 remaining.

Dennis Scott came off the bench to score 18 points for the Magic, which led 51-48 at the half and pulled away in the third quarter. Orlando shot 62 percent from the floor, while holding the Cavs to 46 percent.

Tyrone Hill led Cleveland, which lost for the fifth time in its last six games, with 24 points. The Cavs, in a race with Chicago for the fifth playoff position in the East, also got 18 points from Bobby Phillips.

Despite giving up 51 first-half points, Cleveland dictated the tempo much of the time and stayed close by outscoring the Magic 12-3 from the foul line. Scott's 3-pointer gave Orlando its three-point half-time lead and O'Neal led a 10-2 at the start of the third quarter to open a 61-50 advantage.

The Magic led 77-65 after three periods and increased the lead to 17 with Anthony Bowie's jumper and another 3-pointer by Scott in

Hawks host UNI... weather permitting

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

With a little cooperation from Mother Nature and the Iowa Field drainage system, the baseball team will host Northern Iowa today at 3 p.m.

Iowa's game against Luther College on Tuesday was canceled due to poor weather conditions.

The Hawkeyes (17-11, 6-6) are coming off a weekend series at Purdue in which they lost three of four to the Boilermakers.

Now with UNI (14-14) coming to town, Iowa has to play a team fresh off a four-game sweep of Missouri Valley Conference rival Illinois State. UNI is tied for sixth in the MVC, sporting a conference record of 5-7.

With five conference victories already in the bag, UNI has equaled its greatest number of wins in MVC play since joining the league four years ago.

The Panthers roll into Iowa City with an all-time record of 10-45 against the Hawkeyes, but took last season's meeting between the two teams 7-3.

"I think our talent level is a bit higher than (UNI's) this year," Iowa senior Matt Ostrom said. "We've just got to make sure that we play where we can and not down to them."

Tom Owen comes in as UNI's most dangerous bat in the lineup. While starting all 28 games for the Panthers, Owen has com-

Free agent frenzy continues

NEW YORK — Just two days before the start of exhibition games, baseball's free agent frenzy rolled on. And so did the salary cuts.

Outfielder Brett Butler, one of the union's most vocal supporters during the strike, got the big deal Tuesday, a $2 million, one-year contract from the New York Mets.

The new deal is $1.5 million less than his 1994 salary.

Todd Stottlemyre agreed to go to Oakland for $1.8 million — a $550,000 cut — and the Athletics announced pitcher Steve Ontiveros had accepted the team's offer to go to salary arbitration.

Pitcher Erik Hanson went to the Boston Red Sox for $1,125,000, down from $2.7 million last year.

Milwaukee came up with outfielder Derrick May, cut loose by the Chicago Cubs last Friday. He got a minor league deal that would be worth $325,000 if he makes the team.

Pitcher Greg W. Harris took a big cut, agreeing to a minor league contract with Minnesota that would pay him $525,000 in the majors. He made $1,325,000 in 1994.

Infielder Randy Velarde returned to the New York Yankees for $350,000, less than one-third his 1994 salary of $1,125,000.

Pitcher Jeff Russell, who finished last season with Cleveland, went to Texas for $500,000, less than a quarter of his $2,175,000 salary a year ago.

Butler, among the top leadoff hitters in the game, was offered $3.5 million by the Los Angeles Dodgers during the offseason, but that deal was pulled off the table when owners rescinded their salary cap plan.

New York entered the bidding this week with a $1.5 million offer.

"I got to be at a point," Butler said, "where I was fed up with what was going on. I said, OK, I've got a number I'm going to play for and if there is a number less out there, I'm going to retire. I'm financially secure."

Oakland general manager Sandy Alderson said last week he didn't expect to be able to sign Stottlemyre, but the market has fallen for free agents in recent days and the ST. LOUIS — Brendan Shanahan, Greg Gilbert and Glenn Anderson all scored in the final 2:12 of the game to give the St. Louis Blues a win over the Winnipeg Jets.

Shanahan's goal with 2:12 remaining tied the score 5-5 after Mike Eastwood had put Winnipeg ahead with 7:01 on the clock.

Gilbert scored the game-winner at 18:01 and Anderson scored into an empty net at the final buzzer for his second goal of the game.

Eastwood's goal came after Alexei Zhamnov tied the score just 19 seconds into the third period. The goal by Zhamnov gave him 26 and matched his career high set last season, his second year in the league.

Knicks 112, Heat 99

NEW YORK — With the playoffs just around the corner, New York's 13-for-19 third quarter was just the kind of thing Pat Riley wanted to see.

"You could see a lot more energy flowing through the team," he said after the Knicks' victory over the Miami Heat. "We did a lot of good things. The shooters are shooting, and the rebounders are rebounding."

The Knicks scored on their first eight possessions of the second half, stretching a nine-point halftime lead to 73-58 on a basket by Patrick Ewing, who had six points in the spurt and 13 in the period.

Derek Harper scored 11 of his 13 points in the quarter, and reserve Greg Anthony hit two 3-pointers on the way to an 18-point night.

"We're playing a lot harder, and it's showing out on the court," Knicks guard John Starks said.

The Knicks led by as many as 19 points in the fourth quarter, and Miami lost for the fourth time in five games to drop three games behind Boston in the race for the Eastern Conference's final playoff spot.

With the victory, New York reached the 50-win mark for the fourth straight year, the first time in franchise history the Knicks posted four such seasons. It was the 13th season in a row Riley has coached a team to that many victories.

Ewing had 12 rebounds for the Knicks, who have won six of seven. Starks had 19 points, including five 3-pointers to become the first player in NBA history to make 200 3s in a season. He leads the league with 203.

"They had a nice game from Anthony," Miami's Glen Rice said. "You know, some nights they've got a lot of shooters on that team."

Khalid Reeves led Miami with 24 points and Billy Owens had 18, but Rice, the Heat's leading scorer averaging almost 22 points a game, had only 13 on 6-for-16 shooting.

Hawks 110, 76ers 106, OT

PHILADELPHIA — Grant Long scored a career-high 33 points and Steve Smith added 25 as the Atlanta Hawks defeated the Philadelphia 76ers in overtime to clinch a berth in the NBA playoffs.

Andrew Lang had a season-high 21 points for the Hawks, who have defeated Philadelphia in nine of their last 10 meetings, including six straight at the Spectrum.

The Hawks (38-38) are the seventh of the eight teams to clinch playoff spots in the Eastern Conference and the fifth from the Central Division.

Dana Barros had 27 points and 10 assists for Philadelphia, while Clarence Weatherspoon added 25 points, 19 after halftime.

A jumper by Long gave the Hawks a 106-102 lead with 29 seconds left in overtime and Long's free throw with 17 seconds to go put them ahead 107-104.

After a tap-in by Tim Perry brought Philadelphia within 107-106, Smith made a free throw a second later to clinch the victory.

Atlanta had an 87-82 lead with 5:08 left in regulation, but Philadelphia went on a 9-2 run and took the lead, 90-89, on a layup by Shawn Bradley at 2:41.

A 3-pointer by Barros gave the 76ers a 96-93 lead with 1:02 remaining, but Smith's 3-pointer with 6.3 seconds left sent the game into overtime.

Atlanta played without leading scorer Mookie Blaylock. He was sidelined with strep throat.

Bradley, who fouled out with 3:41 left in regulation, had 19 points and 15 rebounds for Philadelphia.

Bucks 114, Pistons 109, OT

MILWAUKEE — Vin Baker scored a career-high 31 points and Glenn Robinson had 30, leading Milwaukee to an overtime victory over the Detroit Pistons.

Each player had four points in overtime as the Bucks pulled within one game of Boston for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff spot. Milwaukee, which won its third straight game, is 31-45.

Detroit was led by Allan Houston, who had 36 points to tie his career high, and Grant Hill with 25.

The game featured a matchup between the frontrunners for rookie of the year honors in Robinson, the No. 1 choice in the NBA draft, and Hill, the No. 2 pick. Robinson entered the game with an edge in scoring (21.4 to 19.4) and rebounds (6.3 to 6.0), but Hill had more assists (305 to 173).

Milwaukee's Marty Conlon hit a 3-pointer 21 seconds into the overtime period and Baker made another basket with 4:00 remaining to give the Bucks a quick 104-99 lead. Robinson scored for a 106-101 lead, but Hill pulled the Pistons to 106-105 with a jumper.

Baker fouled with 1:28 remaining, hit both free throws for a 108-105 lead and Robinson and Johnny Newman both had baskets that put the game away.

Ivano Newbill's basket in the final period finished a 10-2 surge and gave the Pistons an 83-82 edge. The teams kept trading the lead and Robinson sent the game into overtime at 99-99 with a pair of free throws with 37.4 seconds left.

Blazers shock league leader

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Spurs set franchise lows in scoring and shooting Tuesday night and had their 15-game winning streak snapped by the Portland Trail Blazers, 91-71.

The points were a franchise low for a game as was the Spurs' 31 percent shooting and 23 field goals.

Clifford Robinson had 23 points for the Trail Blazers, who took a 64-48 lead after three quarters, outscoring San Antonio 22-10 in the third period. It was the lowest scoring quarter for the Spurs this season.

The 15-game winning streak was a franchise record for San Antonio and was the longest in the NBA this season.

David Robinson led the Spurs with 21 points and 12 rebounds, but the All-Star center was only 6-of-23 from the field. Sean Elliott added 15 points for the Spurs and Avery Johnson had 11.

San Antonio's 38 points at half-time were a season low, but the bad night got worse.

The Spurs are still awaiting the return of forward Dennis Rodman, who has missed 13 games since separating his right shoulder March 19 in a motorcycle accident. Rodman did not participate in the team's shootaround Tuesday because of an eye infection.

Suns 96, SuperSonics 90
TACOMA, Wash. — Dan Majerle made three 3-point baskets in a 19-7 fourth quarter run as the Phoenix Suns reclaimed first place in the Pacific Division with a 96-90 victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Shawn Kemp had 27 points and 15 rebounds for Seattle and Sam Perkins added 24 points, but it wasn't enough.

The Suns led 68-66 after three quarters, then took command over the next 5:30, led by Majerle's nine points and Kevin Johnson's six points for an 87-73 lead.

The Suns (54-22) lead the Sonics (53-22) by one-half game in the battle for the division title and likely the second seed in the playoffs.

The Suns held all-stars Detlef Schrempf and Gary Payton to a combined 11-for-34 from the field.

Johnson had 18 points coming off the bench and Charles Barkley had 17 points and 14 rebounds. Majerle had 12 points.

Jazz 100, Lakers 93
SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone scored 30 points, five in the final 3:35, and John Stockton added 18, four in the final 1:25, as the Utah Jazz beat the Los Angeles Lakers.

Utah led 64-49 with 9:52 left in the third quarter, but the Lakers pulled within 74-71 on a 3-pointer by Eddie Jones with 6.2 seconds left in the period. They tied it 85-85 on a free throw by Tony Smith with 4:16 left, and again at 87-87 on two free throws by Vlade Divac with 3:12 to play.

But Blue Edwards hit a 17-foot jumper with 2:48 left to give the Jazz the lead for good at 89-87. After Jones missed on a 16-footer, Malone came up with a three-point play on a tip-in and Utah led 92-87 with 2:06 left.

The Lakers last hope came on a 3-pointer by Anthony Peeler with 55 seconds remaining to make it 96-91. But Edwards made a layup on the other end, Peeler missed a 3-pointer and Stockton hit two free throws to end the scoring.

Florida Marlins catcher Charles Johnson performs under the watchful eye of manager Rene Lachemann Monday at the Marlins training camp in Melbourne, Fla.

Catcher realizes his dream

Steven Wine
Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Fla. — Florida Marlins rookie Charles Johnson learned to catch as an 8-year-old dreaming of the big leagues and Big Macs.

Bored playing the outfield on his Little League team, Johnson switched to catcher and practiced in the back yard with a pitching machine and his father, Charles Sr., then the high school baseball coach at Fort Pierce Westwood.

"He'd throw balls in the dirt to me all day and would tell me that if I didn't block them well, he wouldn't take me to McDonald's," recalls Charles Jr. "I used to be crying a lot of days. I was very small, and I'd get beat up blocking those balls."

"But in the long run it paid off." The Marlins think so. Johnson, 23, who spent last year in Double-A, has been designated the team's starting catcher and successor to the departed Benito Santiago.

That makes Charles Sr. one proud parent.

"He talked to me as a young boy and said, 'Daddy, I want to play in the big leagues,'" the elder Johnson says. "We worked hard for many days in the back yard. A lot of tears were shed, and there were a lot of bumps and bruises on him. "But he learned the fundamentals at a very young age."

"(My Dad would) throw balls in the dirt to me all day and would tell me that if I didn't block them well, he wouldn't take me to McDonald's. I used to be crying a lot of days."

Charles Johnson, Marlins catcher

Johnson went on to become an All-American at the University of Miami, an Olympian in 1992 and a first-round draft choice. Now comes his biggest test, beginning with the Marlins' season opener April 25 at Joe Robbie Stadium.

"He's a fine talent," Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski says. "He's going to have to learn the pitchers, but he's a quick study, and you know he's going to work hard."

"We're looking for him to be our

No. 1 catcher. It's a big order, but he can handle it as far as talent and as a person."

Dombrowski has frequently said that Johnson's defense is already at an All-Star level. He throws well, moves quickly and — at 6-foot-2 and 215 pounds — benefits from a classic catcher's build.

But no one knows whether he can hit major-league pitching.

"I was always taught to be a catcher first, and then a hitter," he said.

Johnson surprised himself in his first professional season two years ago, leading the Midwest League with 94 RBIs and 230 total bases at Class A Kane County.

Promoted last year to Double-A Portland, Johnson hit 28 home runs, which tied him for the third-highest total in the minor leagues. And in May, he became the first Marlins farm product to reach the majors.

The team called him up while Santiago was serving a suspension, and Johnson made his big-league debut memorable. He homered off Philadelphia's Curt Schilling in his second at-bat and went 5-for-11 with four RBIs in four games before returning to Portland.

ST. LOUIS OUTFIELDER

This Jordan prefers to play baseball

R.B. Fallstrom
Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Brian Jordan didn't give up an NFL career to sit on the bench.

Finally, he's getting his chance with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Manager Joe Torre has said all offseason that Jordan would be a starting outfielder, and the Cardinals hammered home that guarantee when they traded right fielder Mark Whiten to Boston in the Scott Cooper deal last week.

"I've been telling him 'somewhere,'" Torre said. "Finally I can say right field."

It couldn't come too soon for Jordan, a one-time Pro Bowl defensive back for the Atlanta Falcons. In three frustrating seasons, he's averaged about 200 at-bats. The two-sport athlete was getting bored with the whole thing and thought about putting on the pads again.

"I hate sitting around watching," Jordan said. "Baseball is a boring sport if you're not playing, in my eyes. I've got to play and be in the fire every day."

"I get physically exhausted just watching it."

Jordan signed a three-year, baseball-only deal with the Cardinals in 1992, but always seems to have been the odd man out. A breakthrough year in 1993 — .309 average, 10 home runs and 44 RBI — was followed by more frustration.

Last season, Torre said he had four regular outfielders. Ray Lankford got 416 at-bats, Bernard Gilkey 380, Whiten 334 and Jordan 178.

"Last year, I never knew if I was going to play until the last minute," Jordan said. "I'm a nice person. I wanted to speak my mind many times, but I bit my tongue and held it in. But I've never yet enjoyed the game of baseball."

In December, Jordan signed a one-year deal with the Cardinals. After that, he could return to the NFL if he wants.

"My options are open, believe me," he said. "I'm not going to make any decisions until later."

HAWKEYE SOFTBALL

Coach Blevins guns for 300th win at Iowa

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

After recording her 600th career victory on Sunday, Iowa softball coach Gayle Blevins is now searching for magic number 300.

With three victories over Michigan last weekend, Blevins moved her career record at Iowa to 299-151-1.

Blevins will try to earn win number 300 as her Hawkeyes take to the road this afternoon.

The Hawkeyes travel to DeKalb, Ill., for a doubleheader against Northern Illinois. Iowa comes into the game 22-13-1. NIU is 18-11.

"They're going to give us a handful," Blevins said.

"We had trouble with them last year."

A year ago, NIU swept a pair of games from Iowa, 3-1 and 4-3, at the Hawkeye Softball Complex in the middle of a six-game Iowa losing streak.

But this season, the Hawkeyes will bring some momentum with them.

The Hawkeyes took three of four from No. 5 Michigan to move into first place in the Big Ten Conference last weekend.

"We're really looking forward to the rest of the Big Ten season," Iowa pitcher Debbie Bilbao said. "The team really has a new attitude."

Iowa trails in the all-time series against Northern Illinois, 12-13.

The doubleheader is set to begin at 3 p.m.

HOCKEY'S BAD BOY

NHL 'enforcer' eager to return

Mike Nadel
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Saying he's changed but not claiming to have cured his problems with alcohol and drugs, hockey bad boy Bob Probert is back on skates and looking toward the resumption of his NHL career.

"I wasn't crazy about going into the treatment center this time but I did learn some things about myself that needed to be changed," Probert said on at a press conference at Tuesday.

"I don't want to say that I've changed everything and I'm cured, because I know that's not at all cured. I haven't licked the problem. But I'm working on it."

His career remains on hold, waiting for clearance from NHL commissioner Gary Bettman and David Lewis, the doctor who runs the California rehabilitation center that Probert has called home the last six months.

"Right now, I'm working on after-care," Probert said at a United Center news conference called by his new team, the Chicago Blackhawks. "I'd like to come back today. It's a game I love. It's something I've always played. But other people will decide when I'm ready. And that's that."

Blackhawks coach Darryl Sutter wants Probert in uniform before the playoffs start next month. His team lacks the kind of physical presence that has always been provided by the 6-foot-3, 225-pound left wing, one of the NHL's most feared enforcers the last decade.

"Hopefully," Sutter said, "it's a matter of days."

Bob Probert stands by as Blackhawks owner Bill Wirtz speaks during a press conference Tuesday.

Probert, 29, who had eight stormy seasons with the Detroit Red Wings, has yet to play for the Blackhawks since signing a four-year, $6.6 million, free-agent contract last July.

A week before signing, the motorcycle he was riding in a Detroit suburb collided with a car. Probert was accused of having more than three times the legal limit for alcohol — as well as traces of cocaine — in his blood.

He still faces drunken driving charges, just the latest in a long line of alcohol- and drug-related offenses in his past.

NFL DRAFT

Westbrook's stock has risen

Associated Press

BOULDER, Colo. — Michael Westbrook, Colorado's exceptional wide receiver, is forecast to be picked as high as third in the upcoming NFL draft.

The 6-foot-3, 211-pounder is convinced he'll be picked either by the Houston Oilers as the third pick overall or by Washington as the fourth pick.

"It looks like the Redskins ... If I don't go to Houston," said Westbrook. "I worked out for the Redskins and it went pretty well, and Houston has been calling."

At any rate, he is expected to be the first wide receiver picked in the draft and the highest-drafted CU player since Bo Matthews was taken second by the San Diego Chargers in 1974.

Westbrook always has been a hot commodity with his size, speed and ability to get open. But never this hot.

A year ago, he was viewed as a late first-rounder if he decided to forego his senior year at CU. But he decided to stay.

Earlier this year, he was rated the second-best wide receiver in the draft, behind UCLA's J.J. Stokes. But now Westbrook is the consensus choice as the top receiver available, with Stokes second or possibly third behind Ohio State's Joey Galloway.

"Nothing but good things have happened since I decided to come back (to school). It wasn't an easy decision at all, but it's worked out," Westbrook said.

Westbrook has consistently run the 40 in the 4.4-second range for scouts. He also has high jumped 6-foot-7, which means he will be able to routinely reach over a defensive back to make a catch.

"He's got everything you want — size, speed, hands — and on top of everything else, he's a great kid from a great program," said Bob Ferguson, Denver Broncos director of player personnel.

BRESSON STICKS TO HARSH REALITY

'The Devil Probably' abandons slick technique for suicide study

Ian Corwin
The Daily Iowan

A hard question needs to be answered before Robert Bresson's "The Devil Probably" can be understood or appreciated for the disturbingly brilliant piece of work that it is: Is there a significant counter-force in Bresson's style and philosophy which balances the utter bleakness of his narrative treatment of suicide?

Released in 1977, "The Devil Probably" was never picked up for distribution in America until last year. Whether this is due to its gritty, hyper-real portrayal of a soul spiraling toward the ultimate act of despair is irrelevant — the film is finally available and it has to be seen to be believed.

The cultural and spiritual reality of Bresson's film issues from a style which the filmmaker has cultivated over decades of experimentation. Bresson uses no professional actors in his work, a tactic he employs to avoid emotional manipulation; he prefers to use unknowns and he calls them "models" rather than performers.

Bresson's central model for "The Devil Probably" is Charles (Antoine Monnier), a 20-year-old student who has seen too much of the world too soon. Deeply affected by the cultural upheavals of his time (the late 1960s and early '70s), Charles reacts against environmentalism, nuclear freezes and spiritual transformation by adopting a maddening philosophy of nonaction — remaining completely reticent.

Charles' friends offer him all the hope they can; Alberte (Tina Irissari) leaves her lover to care for Charles, although her efforts are balanced by Edwige (Laetitia Casta), who offers Charles a more physical form of acceptance than Alberte is willing to give.

Dissatisfied with all of it, Charles moves languidly through a Paris populated with disorganized leftist political groups; environmentalists who are all idea and no action; and cathedrals with vast, empty spaces and discordant organ music, which have no more to offer him than the friends he has left behind. The world Bresson creates comes dangerously close to being a world without hope, utterly devoid of heart, beauty or answers to man's existential dilemmas.

But when Charles asks out loud, "Who is responsible for all of this?" a man answers him with the title of the film, "The devil probably."

In that sequence, Bresson's ideas — allowed to show through his mask of nonmanipulation — offer a kind of hope of their own; the brutal reality of seal clubbings and deforestation succumbs to Bresson's own creative exploitation. In a way, Bresson's staunch refusal to influence his audience with emotional tricks and plays breaks down with the self-referral of that one line, creating a paradox in which the director unmasks the beauty of creativity while trying to keep it invisible to ordinary vision.

So the counter-force, although brief and unpleasantly sharp, does exist. Bresson's own refusal to dress up "The Devil Probably" in ideas and theorizing may be responsible for the unpleasant experience provoked by watching his film. But without that harshness, none of the beauty in "The Devil Probably" could be recognized.

"The Devil Probably" plays at the Bijou tonight, Friday and Sunday at 9:15 p.m. and Thursday at 7 p.m.

SHOESTRING BUDGET CRAMPS EARTHWORDS' STYLE

Little-known literary magazine puts forth an anniversary edition

Clint Marsh
The Daily Iowan

This year marks the 15th anniversary of the UI's only undergraduate literary magazine, and the Earthwords staff is celebrating by releasing a gala issue this week. Coinciding with the release will be a reading by the editors tonight at The Java House, 211 1/2 E. Washington St., at 8.

Earthwords editor-in-chief Brendan Wolfe said this year's issue is framed around the publication's anniversary. Along with work from current UI undergraduates, Earthwords has reprinted a handful of pieces from the first issue, published in 1981. Among the reprinted pieces is one from UI alumnus Dana Sonenshine, who has since become a professor of English at Southern Connecticut State College in New Haven.

Wolfe described the annually published Earthwords as "a quality forum for undergraduate writing and art." He said that while the magazine strives to give undergraduate writers a voice, he is disappointed that there is only one such venue at "a university that takes a lot of stock in its writing and art programs."

Earthwords is funded by student fees given to the UI's Associated Residence Halls, the magazine's sponsor. Wolfe said he enjoys working with Associated Residence Halls because the faculty stays constant each year.

However, limited funds have plagued Earthwords in the past, limiting production. As the current funding stands, the staff only has enough money to print 200 copies of the magazine, selling each issue well below the production cost. With this limited number of copies, Wolfe fears that Earthwords can't reach as many people as it should. He said he hopes this year's 50-plus

"I think we have an excellent magazine, but we're only reaching a microscopic amount of our peers."

page issue will draw more attention to the publication.

"I think we have an excellent magazine, but we're only reaching a microscopic amount of our peers," Wolfe said.

Earthwords fiction editor Julia Cibul shares Wolfe's opinion.

"Sometimes I don't think many people in Iowa City notice us," Cibul said, adding that advertising efforts have been boosted this year to promote the magazine to both UI students and Iowa City residents.

Nevertheless, Wolfe is pleased that Earthwords' money and final editorial decisions lie in the hands of a group like Associated Residence Halls, which has both students and UI employees on its staff. The funding now is meager but stable, and Wolfe would like to strengthen the bonds between the sponsor and the Earthwords staff.

Ideally, Wolfe said, funding would come from the UI's English department or the Writers' Workshop. These programs share similar interests to Earthwords' staff.

"I want to make sure that the purse strings of the magazine are held by people who have a vested interest in the magazine," he said.

Earthwords has featured poetry and fiction since its inception. Visual art, including photography and reproductions of paintings, was added to the magazine about 10 years ago. The addition of nonfiction writing to the magazine is something new, Wolfe said. Drama submissions were also accepted for the first time this year, although none were printed.

Current issues will be on the shelves at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., and Iowa Book & Supply, 8 S. Clinton St., starting today. Editors from the magazine will have an information and sales table at the English-Philosophy Building through Friday and they will also be handing out applications for next year's Earthwords staff.
