Police lose evidence for Snoop Doggy Dogg case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police accidentally destroyed some evidence in the murder case against rapper Snoop Doggy Dogg.

"The simple fact is, somebody screwed up," said Deputy District Attorney Ed Nison.

He blamed an error by a police computer operator for the destruction of a bullet, a shell casing and bloody clothing.

But Nison said the missing items will not weaken his case.

"All along, the case has been an eyewitness case," he said. "The only physical evidence that is significant are the gunshot wounds to the Lawyer David Kenner said he may seek to have the charges dismissed against his client, whose real name is Calvin Broadus.

"I'm very troubled by this," Kenner said. "The circumstances are almost suspicious."

100-year feud leads to deaths NewsBriefs of 3 men

Associated Press

COVELO, Calif. - As long as anyone can remember, the Brittons and Lincolns have hated one They've had fistfights, brawls and drive-by shootings. Even their children throw stones at one another.

But there were never any deaths - until now.

Relatives, friends and neighbors say the family feud - a disagreement compared to the feud between the Hatfields and McCoys - is behind the deaths Friday night of two men and a deputy caught in the middle.

The violence has gone beyond family members and has ended in a deputy - really an innocent bystander – being killed because of a long-standing feud," Mendocino County District Attorney Susan Massini said.

Friday's skirmish began around 6 p.m. in the parking lot of Covelo High School on a remote Northern California American Indian reservation, an hour's drive from the nearest cinema or stoplight.

Deputies found Reginald Britton, 48, sitting dead in his car with several bullet wounds. He was gunned down by one of three people who drove up, then sped off, Sheriff James Tuso said.

Within an hour, deputies arrested Lesley and Catherine Lincoln after witnesses identified

Around 10 p.m., deputies spotted another Lincoln family member, Leonard Francisco Peters, carrying a rifle on a road west of Covelo. Peters, 46, refused to drop his gun, and officers killed him during an exchange of gunfire, police said.

Moments later, as deputies approached Peters' body, someone started shooting from nearby bushes. Sheriff's Deputy George Robert Davis, 49, was killed in the ensuing gunbattle.

Arlis Peters, Leonard's brother, was arrested Saturday morning, police said. Police were searching See FEUD, Page 8A

David Fisher's support of the UI Foundation and involvement in a program which helps UI athletes find jobs were good reasons for the Des Moines businessman's confirmation to the Iowa state Board of Regents, said a local senator who voted for Fisher.

Fisher, 55, lost his bid to become a regent Thursday, when the Iowa Senate nixed his confirmation in an initial vote and a reconsideration vote. Sen. Bob Dvorsky, D-Coralville, voted for Fisher both times, saying Fisher has a history of supporting the UI. "There are a lot of people at the university who are very supportive of him," Dvorsky said. "I think most of the opposition came from (University of Northern Iowa and Iowa

State University)." Dvorsky said senators should have taken advantage of the opportunity of confirming Fisher. He said having a UI friendly regent nominee is sometimes difficult because Gov. Terry Branstad has a history of losing in Johnson County in elec-

He said Fisher's experience at the helm of his own businesses would have been an asset to the regents. Fisher, who now owns a real estate holding company, is a defendant in a $20 million lawsuit charging he and his former business associates of making unsound loan decisions during the 1980s.

"I think he clearly has a lot of business and financial expertise. He has done a lot of positive things, but you have to weigh the negative against the positive," Dvorsky said. "One of those negative things was the Fisher Commission, but Fisher was not involved in the education part of that."

Ancient Chinese art at home in Iowa City

Stephan, an acupuncturist for 30 years, explains his profession centers around what he calls the basic life force of all living things - ener-

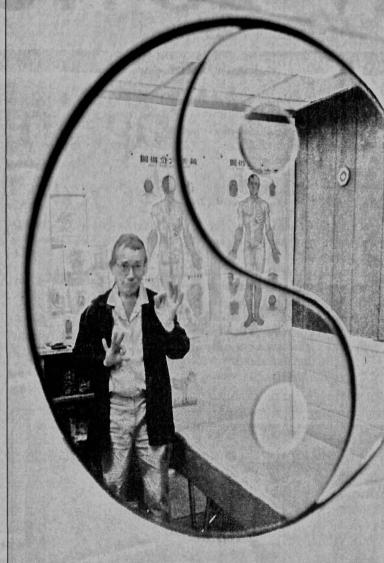

"There is the basic energy of life in all things that exist," he said. "If it's alive, it has energy.

The instruments Stephan uses to tap into that inner energy - disposable needles ranging in size from 1 to 4 inches long with the width of a human hair - have certainly made clients pause before lying down on his work table. However, the needles are almost pain-

When you think of acupuncture, do you picture painful needles stuck into your body? Kirk Stephan shows people otherwise. Acupuncture energy," he said. Upon facing the terminal diagnosis, he went to Singapore to see a Chinese acupuncturist.

"He gave me some goop, put a few needles in me and I felt completely better," Stephan said. "I was suitably impressed and went back to him and said, 'Do you mind if I hang out with you and practice with you?"

He then moved to Belize and spent 12 years practicing acupressure - an ancient healing art similar to acupuncture in which the hands are used to trigger certain responses in the body.

However, Stephan said he wasn't ready to jab his clients for 15 years. Although many acupuncturists have started using lasers and magnetic and electronic devices to apply pressure, he chooses to use only traditional methods. Needles are the most powerful method.

Stephan doesn't get stuck in a rut when business slows since he is an expert herbalist as well. After beginning each day with yoga, he prepares plant and mineral medicines with odd ingredients such as dried sea horses, dandelions, yams and dinosaur bone.

He recently returned from a trip to a rain forest in Belize, where he gathered hard to find herbs and flowers for special elixirs - not an unusual task for an acupuncturist.

"All traditional acupuncturists use acupuncture and herbal medicine like a horse and buggy," Stephan said.

Concocting herbal treatments makes up for the slow days in acupuncture. Because few Iowans are open to being poked by needles performed correctly, acupuncture in order to heal what hurts, Stephan said he is never booked for weeks in advance.

"I've been the only one in the telephone book for 10 years," he said. "We're in conservative Iowa, Needles are just a small part of so I don't spend all day treating Iowans might not be ready to embrace Stephan's prickly profession - a job he will always consider an art.

Thundering drumbeats and American Indian songs echoed through West High School, 2901 Melrose Ave., this weekend as 2,500 people gathered for this year's American Indian Powwow.

"The powwow represents a lot of different peoples coming together to celebrate connections and community," said Jodi Byrd, UI graduate student, Teaching Assistant in the rhetoric department and member of the Bureau of Indigenous Artists. "It is wonderful because it allows anyone to experience the cultures and see real Indians."

The event - sponsored by the UI American Indian Students Association - kicked off Friday with the Grand Entry, a parade of powwow participants in traditional American Indian dress. Northern and southern American Indian styles of music, drumming and dance competitions were featured throughout the event.

Cash awards were presented to winners of the adult dance categories of senior men's and men's traditional, grass and fancy bustle and senior women's and women's traditional, jingle and fancy shawl. Prizes were also awarded in the junior dance categories.

Along with traditional music and dance, American Indian food and arts-and-craft vendors from across the United States and Canada attended the event.

Powwow singer Cal Campbell of Prairie Island, Minn., said the combination of traditional American Indian songs and drumming made the gathering a success.

Gingrich wants D.C. to have full congressional rights

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Newt Gingrich would like to make Washington, D.C., a Maryland congressional district and give city residents full voting rights in Congress, a published report said Sunday.

The district's 600,000 residents currently have a nonvoting delegate in the House and no representation in the Senate.

Quoting unidentified federal and congressional sources, the Washington Times said Gingrich's plan calls for a House member with full voting privileges and the chance to vote for Maryland's two senators.

The House seat technically would become Maryland's 9th Congressional District

Gingrich and other Republicans have said they're sympathetic to the plight of city residents, who pay federal taxes without full representation. The GOP has opposed locally based proposals for the capital to become a state.

Aristide addresses congregation

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) -Making a surprise Easter Sunday visit to a church, President Jean-Bertrand Aristide told worshipers, "After three days, Jesus rose. After three years, the Haitian people rose."

U.S. Secret Service agents, U.N. troops and Haitian security forces stood guard during Aristide's visit to the Croix des Missions Catholic Church on the outskirts of Port-au-Prince. Anyone who arrived after him had to walk through a metal detector at a side entrance.

Invited to address the congregation at the end of the Mass, Aristide said, "The Haitian people are carrying a cross. The crossbar is insecurity and the other one is high cost of liv-

Aristide, a former Catholic priest deposed and exiled in 1991, returned to power in October after three years of brutal military rule.

He blamed his government's failure to sell off and reopen former state-run businesses such as cement and flour factories on "a plot" to keep the Haitian people suffering.

The government committed itself to privatization during talks in January with international donors in exchange for $1.2 billion in aid.

Haiti hasn't recovered from a devastating trade embargo imposed to force out the coup leaders. About 75 percent of the 6.7 million people in Haiti, the poorest country in the Western Hemisphere, are unemployed or underemployed.

Foreign businesses are waiting to see how secure the country is before investing. Few jobs have been created to relieve the oppressive poverty.

Pontiff delivers messages of hope

Daniel J. Wakin Associated Press

VATICAN CITY - Embracing the victims of unrest, Pope John Paul II sent a message of peace Easter Sunday to people seeking "recognition of their deepest aspirations," including the Palestinians and Kurds.

In Jerusalem, thousands of tourists and Palestinian Christians thronged the old city as drums and church bells

But Palestinians said Israeli restrictions kept many West Bank believers away - a reminder that despite ongoing Israel-Palestine Liberation Organization talks, peaceful coexistence is not yet at hand.

Elsewhere on the day Christians celebrated their belief in Jesus Christ's resurrection, armored personnel carriers and troops guarded worshipers in the Philippines amid rising tensions between Christians and Muslims. A Muslim group is suspected of raiding a mostly Christian town there two weeks ago, killing 53 people.

In Sarajevo, war-torn Bosnia's besieged capital, sniping and shell fire kept many of the city's Christian minority away from a traditional Easter concert.

Police also deployed around doomsday churches in South Korea. Some sects had predicted the world's destruction before dawn on Easter and dozens of the faithful prayed in anticipation of the end. When a predicted doomsday didn't pan out in 1992, sect members rioted.

In his traditional address from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica, the pope directed his message to the people of Algeria, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Burundi and southern Sudan.

"To families torn apart by war, to the victims of hatred and violence ... the church does not hesitate to renew the Paschal message of peace, reminding everyone of our common origin in the one God," he said.

Pope John Paul II waves to the faithful from the main balcony of St. Peter's Basilica during the traditional "Urbi et Orbi," Latin for "To the City and to the World," on Easter Sunday.

PROTEST AT GAYLORD SPEECH

Behavior was premature

he freedom of speech issue is a stickier wicket than it appears. The protest staged April 11 should prove a case in point: the behavior was irrational and immature.

Joseph Gaylord - Newt Gingrich's political coordinator came to campus and was met by 50 or so protesters from six campus groups. They effectively prevented him from speaking for nearly an hour and then they left.

Obviously Gaylord's right to speak was violated, although it seems rather silly to claim that a person with virtually unlimited access to the media could ever claim he'd been silenced. Besides, the First Amendment only guarantees the right to speak. It does not guarantee an appreciative audience. Sometimes rude protest is the only way the powerless can make themselves heard.

But that message would have been just as clear if the protest had been silent or at least quieter.

For example, toward the end of World War II, Joseph Goebbels was silenced by disrespectful university students stamping their feet.

But that was Nazi Germany, not Iowa City. People in the United States still have some options and alternatives.

UI protesters at minimal risk made clear their displeasure with Gingrich. And no doubt it will get back to him that the victims of his policies are not going to roll over and play dead. But that message would have been just as clear if the protest had been silent or at least quieter. Picketing, glaring, groaning, booing, making faces and other standard forms of negative audience response would not have violated Gaylord's rights and, more important, would not have unduly interfered with the right of others in the room to listen.

Drowning out a speaker representing hateful ideas or policies can be satisfying but — bottom line — it only enables those doing the drowning to vent. It doesn't convince anyone and usually alienates people who under other circumstances would be Gingrich's "Contract With America" may eventually have to be met with the kind of disrespectful protests that finally brought an end to the Vietnam War, but we are not to that point yet. There's still time for something resembling rational discourse - the notion that local governments, for example, are somehow more efficient and honest than the federal government really needs a good debate. But the kind of behavior engaged in April 11 is at best premature.

Attempting to stop a 'system of inequality' To the Editor:

On April 7, almost 50 women and men from around eastern lowa piled into a bus heading to Washington, D.C. They joined tens of thousands from around the country in support of a "Rally For Women's Lives" — an anti-violence mass action.

We must stand up and take action before we are swept away in the tide of dangerous regression introduced by the current Congress. This backlash against the women's movement strikes in our homes as poor women are blamed for everything from street crime to the federal deficit, while they struggle with tiny checks to support growing children — our future generations! Our workplaces are endangered - shown by the murders of people working in women's health care. Nowhere appears safe for women, with rape being the only violent crime that is actually increasing.

Telling young boys, "You throw like a girl," with the intent of belittling their endeavors perpetuates women hating. If they had said, "You jump like a Jew," there would be sanctions. Socializing kids in this attitude is not healthy. Any system of inequality has always relied upon force to keep others from stepping out - and rape, battery and murder are proof.

That is why we had to go on a long bus ride to Washington: to tell them that we are tired of the falsehoods that are held up as truths and that we demand the respect all humans deserve. I appreciate everyone that endured the 20-hour trip to let Congress know that we are here and that

Humanity cannot keep faith forever To the Editor:

Everyone desires to enjoy maximum safety and security, for everyone lives a life of anxiety when surrounded by hostility, hatred, anger and treachery and so does his or her utmost to escape such things. Without mutual help, humankind lives in utter wretchedness and is inevitably debarred from the cultivation of reason. To live safely and well, humanity must join together both in rights and in actions; they must be determined no longer by the force and appetite of each, but by the power and will of all. But this will not succeed if they are willing to follow nothing but the promptings of appetite, which draws all in different ways. So each must contract to bridle his or her appetite when it suggests anything harmful to another, to do to nobody what he or she would not wish done to himself or herself and to defend his or her neighbor's right as if it were his or her own. How must this contract be greater. Of the two evils, everyone chooses the lesser. Thus, no one will promise to surrender his or her rights to do everything except with intent to deceive and no one will keep promises save from fear of a greater evil or hope of a greater good.

To understand this better, suppose a pirate forces you to promise that you will do anything he wishes. If later you see that you cannot keep your promise without great harm to yourself, then you are bound to choose the lesser evil and to break this promise and take back your word. It does not matter whether your calculation is based on sound reasoning or on irrational conjecture, for you shall fear the worst and do your utmost to avoid it.

Thus, the binding force of any contract is the protection of the safety and security of all the contracting parties involved. When this protection disappears, the contract becomes

Hence, it is foolish to require humanity to keep faith with you forever, unless you also try to ensure that the breach of the contract will bring humankind more loss that gain. (The ideas presented in this letter are taken from Benedict Spinoza's "Tractatus Theologico-Politicus.")

Policy leaves us dancing with the devil

In a few days, the UI comaffairs. Given the increasing amount of time they spend telling us how to run the place, it seems we should be there in large numbers to show concern. The reasons for this are obvious. For those of you so tuned in to subtleties that the obvious appears as a tiny spore on your landscape, let me amplify.

You know it began with the policy or at least that the policy represents the most virulent type of regental tinkering. "The policy" we call it now, almost like a nickname, a diminutive term of endearment. Certainly we are on intimate terms with its restrictions, and certainly we cannot bear to ponder its implications for our future.

The policy that says we must warn students of impending unusual or unexpected material used as any part of a UI course has accomplished its mission. It has made a travesty of academic freedom. Even if you never teach anything "more" than cell biology, you should chafe under this affront to the open pastures of your delight in learning and teaching - in making connections between disparate things and experiencing a sense of wonder that disparate things do, in fact, connect. The policy was willed into being by the regents, its chief function being to keep us isolated from each other students, staff and faculty.

munity will get another are noted for their love of control and anti-intelchance to show the Iowa lectualism. Our governor has seen fit to appoint state Board of Regents how lions of commerce as regents, thereby ensuring underwhelmed we are with the greatest possible friction between the board their micromanaging of our and the institutions it oversees. It is clever, this dance of mutual irritation to which we have been consigned by a dimwitted politician.

The state's universities are houses of learning dedicated to the intellect as expressed in the arts and sciences. Commerce is neither art nor science. It is a way to pass the time from one fiscal year to the next, a way to make aging and death slightly more bearable; a means to fill the life that is one long road from birth to death with the fine things wealth acquires. It is, in short, a fiction crafted by those with no talent for fiction to provide them the privilege of not going insane over their utter uselessness

I am not saying that kings of business do not support the arts. Yes, indeed, they do. They much prefer to support the arts. This gives them the finest seats in the house from which to surveil the suspect activities of artists. You see them all the time, front and center: falling asleep at dance events, checking their watches at operas and making damned sure nothing emic freedom. Groups guilty of a hypocritical double standard

The Iowa City left is a bunch of hypocrites who preach academic freedom yet go out of their way to disrupt anyone who voices a contrary viewpoint. The Joseph Gaylord lecture at the Union April 11 and the resulting ruckus demonstrates just this. These 1960s retreads and Karl Marx wannabes claim they are striking a blow for the oppressed masses by disrupting conservative speakers. However, they are destroying what little credibility they have by turning an institution of higher education into a

The Iowa International Socialist Organization and its co-conspirator, the Campaign for Academic Freedom, are the biggest culprits. They paint themselves as the educators of us poor dumb college students. However, if you separate their rhetoric from their actions and look at the historical record of real-life communists, their thin veneer of deceit falls away.

Ever since the infamous "Taxi zum Klo" incident and the resulting reaction banning anything "unusual and unexpected" from the classroom, the socialist organization and the Campaign for Academic Freedom appointed themselves the vanguard of free speech. God help us if we have to rely on a bunch of blathering Marxists to keep our First Amendment rights alive. Their attempts to educate the masses and give us some class consciousness have been dis-

Well, their latest propaganda stunt was the protest against UI alumnus Joseph Gaylord, political coordinator for House Speaker Newt Gingrich. The night of April 11, 50 protesters from six student organizations - dominated by the socialist group and the Campaign for Academic Freedom - disrupted the UI alumnus's pre- and went out of his way to disrupt anyone's sentation. They added absolutely nothing to the debate on the merits of the "Contract With America" with their nonsensical chants of "Give Newt the boot" and "We didn't sign any 'Contract'" - really intellectually stimulating stuff.

The socialist organization and the Campaign for Academic Freedom were treading on some very thin ice because their actions can be construed as a violation of Article I of the UI Student Bill of Rights. It states, "The right to participate freely in University-sponsored services and activities without discrimination based on the student's race, creed, color, national origin, age sex or any other classifications that deprive the person of consideration as an individual." There were about 60 to 70 individuals who were more than likely not pleased to have their right to listen to Gaylord interrupted for 45 minutes by 50 chanting protesters. For all their hubris about stamping out all the world's evil, the socialist organization dropped the ball when Sen. Paul Tsongas appeared at the UI Feb. 22. In the paranoid Marxist "either you're with us or against us" mentality, Tsongas would be classified as a class enemy and traitor because he jumped from the liberal Democrat cause and supported the balanced-budget amendment and Social Security cuts. Yet there were not any chanting demonstrators to protest and disrupt his speech. So they are not as vigilant as they claim to be.

Iowa City lefties love to tow the Marxist line about stopping the exploitation of the working class and minorities - making society egalitarian. However, they overlook Soviet history which shows Marxists to be against academic freedom and insensitive to ethnic minority rights.

Lenin's actions during the beginning of the Communist era set the norm for Marxist doctrine in media and ethnic issues. He hated any sort of competition in the marketplace of ideas efforts offering a contrary opinion, much like the socialist group's present policies.

In the Gaylord case, the socialist organization and the Campaign for Academic Freedom stormed into the ballroom and chanted their babble before the speaker could take the podium. When they refused to state their case and yield the floor to Gaylord, campus security was called in. This is a flashback to the disgraceful days of the '60s protest movement. Contrary to their claims of open-mindedness, the historical record is not kind to Marxism-Leninism, the socialist organization's core belief.

During the struggle for power in the Bolshevik Revolution, Lenin was sick of having to contend with the liberal media laws under Aleksandr Kerensky's government because the bourgeois press and the rival Mensheviks were spreading "lies and slanders" against the Bolsheviks. So Nov. 10, 1917, Lenin published the Decree on the Press, outlawing any press organ which opposed Soviet authority. He saw the media as tools to mold the diverse imperial Russian society into model Soviet citizens.

People's ethnic identities and languages were suppressed in favor of "Russification" of the edu cation system. From 1917 until 1985, when Mikhail Gorbachev came to power, the workers paradise was a place of zero academic freedom.

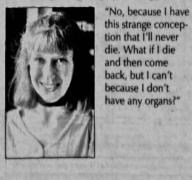

So in Iowa City, we have a group of agitators, who think Marxism is great, advocating academic freedom. Yet history shows the socialist system stifled freedom of expression. Thus, the socialist organization cannot say they favor academic freedom when they oppose any contraty view with protests, much like their Soviet prede cessors. They are guilty of having a hypocritical double standard.

Students unfamiliar with rules of power

A group of students last week took it upon themselves to advance political discourse at the UI through the time-tested and intellectually stimulating practice of chanting, shouting and disrupting a public meeting.

The occasion was the campus appearance of political strategist and 1967 UI graduate Joseph

As with any issue, there are two ways to look at the students' behavior. We could charitably say they were trying to welcome back an alumnus who graduated during the protest days of the summer of love. Or we could realistically say the protesting students avoided discussing the issues and instead acted like spoiled children when they don't get what they want, they yell, stomp their feet and interrupt the conversations Politics aside, both Gaylord and Gingrich deserve credit for their breathtaking political sweep of both houses of Congress in 1994.

The truly sad aspect of the incident is that the students could have learned something from Gaylord. He is the nationally recognized political coordinator for House Speaker Newt Gingrich. Politics aside, both Gaylord and Gingrich deserve credit for their breathtaking political sweep of both houses of Congress in 1994.

Tuesday's protesters were from six campus groups: the International Socialist Organization, the Campaign to Organize Graduate Students, the Campaign for Academic Freedom, Tallgrass Prairie Earth First!, the Rainforest Action Group and the UI Animal Coalition. Gaylord's national track record is much more impressive than the effects of the groups which protested him. Gaylord helped elect more than 50 new members to Congress. The national offices of the International Socialist Organization, Tallgrass Prairie Earth First! and the Rainforest Action Group together have not elected even five members to Congress.

Perhaps our local students aren't familiar with the rules of power: Those who have the power rule. Yelling and protesting won't change that.

The students may have good ideas, lofty ideals and the moral high ground. They unfortunately don't have the U.S. Congress; Gaylord, his employers and their supporters do. Rather than learn from one of today's best political strategists, the students chose to reinforce all of the negative stereotypes associated with their orga-

The Campaign to Organize Graduate Students and the Campaign for Academic Freedom certainly could use some free advice from a good campaign consultant, but intellectual exchanges aren't nearly as exciting as sign-waving. Slogans are better than facts, and posturing is more important than political positions.

So the students chanted, waved signs and then left. They probably stood in the hall and congratulated each other on a job well-done. The group didn't stay to hear how Gaylord is helping to engineer the next Republican Election Day sweep. When even more Republicans get elected in the next few years, the student protesters will continue to protest the actions of government leaders with whom they disagree.

They will continue to protest. And someone else will continue to make the laws.

One need only look at the DI's uncritical reporting of the "Contract" 's accomplishments (replete with full-color photographs of Gingrich and company surrounded by American flags) to see how successfully the perspective of Gingrich and Gaylord has dominated the media. To suggest then that this perspective has been marginalized or that the protest April 11 infringed on Gaylord's First Amendment rights is silly, cynical

Far from opposing the right to free speech, protesters at Gaylord's lecture were exercising theirs, expressing their opposition to the right-wing "Contract With America" with their presence and loud dissent. Read between the lines To the Editor,

I was very pleased after reading Donna Flayhan's announcement concerning the protest of the "Contract With America" (to be held April 19). Attending the protest provided me with an excellent opportunity to laugh at all the freaks and social deviants who showed up. Perhaps more pleasng than the opportunity for entertainment was the fact that Flayhan's letter gives us all an excellent look into her political motivations.

Throughout her article, Flayhan uses misinformation and outright lies to indict the "Contract." First, the tie-in between racism and the "Contract

With America" was very weak at best. Point to any speech by Newt Gingrich "immigrants and black women are living it up on welfare at the expense of the rest of society" and I will show you a dolphin smart enough to evade a tuna net. Also, many people who live below the poverty line - me, for instance — would benefit directly from a capital-gains tax cut. Not only the rich save and invest money. Moreover, the fact that Flayhan uses the word racism or racist seven times in the article to describe the "Contract" points to

Why does Flayhan oppose the "Contract"? Flayhan is an avowed socialist. Even though I am not a Republican, I can see that the principles set forth in the "Contract With America" will help set America back on the right track. Before the "Contract," America was headed for economic and social disaster. Now after the Republican revolution, America has made its first steps toward prosperity and strength. A strong America has no use for a socialist demagogue.

In closing, I would like to urge my fellow reluctant readers of the Daily Idiot to look a little closer at the Viewpoints Page. The real reading is between the lines.

Cyberspace has become a new front in the battle for control of the land known as Palestine and for strictly religious Islamic rule in Algeria, Egypt and other countries.

The other end of the Mideast political spectrum is online, too. Statements from Kahane Chai, a right-wing Jewish group banned in Israel and deemed terrorist by the U.S. government, are transmitted in Judean Voice, a new electronic newsletter from New York.

> For the second consecutive weekend, the Hawkeyes were able to squeeze just one win out of a fourgame road trip.

Iowa started off good, dropping host Illinois 6-2 in Saturday's opener. But Illinois took the next three games 14-6, 11-3 and 4-3.

Iowa's Big Ten record dropped below .500 for the first time this season. The Hawkeyes are now 19-14, 7-9 in the Big Ten.

1994 DRAFT: Henry Ford, the 4, Washington (3-13) No. 1 pick, looked like a major bust Fisher became head coach. He could become a good defensive end. The rest of the draft picks were questionable.

NEEDS: Long-term quarterback, defensive and offensive linemen who can help rebuild a team that probably the top priorities fell apart precipitously last year after seven straight playoff appear-

FREE AGENT PICKUPS: Mark Stepnoski, C, signed from Dallas, is a good building block, but they may have overpaid for him as well as for 33-year-old kick returner Mel expected. Gray, who is explosive but does only one thing.

LONG-TERM PROSPECTS: Not good. Jeff Fisher looks like he may be a good young coach, but the team is weak at owner, which makes everything it does a question mark. LIKELY FIRST PICK: Steve McNair, QB, Alcorn State; Sapp, Kevin Carter, Michael Westbrook, WR, Colorado.

1994 DRAFT: Heath Shuler, the until late in the season, when Jeff first pick, was inconsistent, not unusual in a rookie quarterback. Tre Johnson, OL, and Tydus Winans, WR, should contribute, and the Redskins also got a sleeper quarterback in Gus Frerotte.

NEEDS: A lot. Defensive line, and probably just about anyone running back and wide receiver are

Women's track

Prior to last weekend's Mount Sac Relays, Iowa women's track coach Jerry Hassard said he wanted some good times from his distance runners.

He got his wish lowa turned in another solid performance as distance runners Erin Boland, Becky Coleman, Briana Benning and Shawn Fleck all ran personal bests. Boland led the Hawkeye attack with her fourth-place finish in the 5,000-meter run.

Coleman and Fleck turned in solid performances in the 3,000, finishing in 9:53.34 and 10:37.61, respectively. Benning recorded her second consecutive personal best in the 1500, clocking a time of 4:33.63.

"There was quite a bit of wind in the 3,000 and I don't think it was a very fast condition for racing, so it makes Coleman's time all that more impressive," Hassard said. "There were 40 individuals competing in that event and I think her placing sixth in that event shows a lot of potential."

Iowa's 4-by-400 relay team looked sharp as well. The team consisting of Maria Philip, Wynsome Cole, Yolanda Hobbs and Tara Underwoood raced to a season-best time of 3:48.8.

Hassard said he felt his team did well in the meet which featured 8,000 runners.

"It was a meet that had a 'Who's Who' of running," he said. "I've never seen such strong fields in some of these distance

Trowers won the 110 high hurdles, the main event of the meet held in honor of former hurdler Lee Calhoun. Feeldy was victorious in the open 800 meters. Dave Novotny also ran an outstanding race for the Hawkeyes, finishing third in the 1.500 meters. "We ran very well," Coach Ted Wheeler

Rowing

The Iowa rowing team wasted little time in capturing two medals in it's first competition of the spring season

The Hawkeves took bronze medals in both the varsity eight and novice eight races at the Merrill Lynch Collegiate Regatta last Saturday. Both boat crews finished third out of seven teams. Wisconsin won the gold medal in the varsity race, while Ohio State captured the gold in the novice race.

"It was a very good confidence builder going into the Midwest championships," novice coach Lisa Glenn said.

Iowa finished ahead of only Rollins in the 15-team tournament.

Senior Jennifer McCullough led the way for Iowa with a three-round total of 246. McCullough paced the Hawkeyes with a solid 80 in the second round.

Senior Lynette Seaton and junior Tanya Shepley both fired scores of 248 for the tour-Coach Diane Thomason said the tournament provided quality competition for the "We finished exactly where we should have finished," Thomason said. "We are not a top-25 team right now." Iowa has struggled to put everything together for one tournament this season.

'We're not getting real low scores from our top players," Thomason said.

While Iowa's scores have been high, Thomason said the mistakes are not beyond "We've just got to work on the mental part of the game," Thomason said. Jon Bassoff

Men's tennis

The Iowa men's tennis team hit the road this weekend and the road hit back as the Hawkeyes dropped their sixth straight meet falling to Penn State 6-1. Coach Steve Houghton said he was disappointed with the loss but couldn't blame it on a lack of effort.

"Frustration is starting to set in and I think that definitely is a key right now," Houghton said. "It's hard to snap a losing streak when you don't get any breaks and don't have any momentum heading into

The Hawkeyes (7-12, 1-8) managed only two wins out of the nine matches played. Iowa's Mattias Jonsson won at the No. 3 singles position 6-4, 6-7, 6-2. Jonsson then teamed with Tom Derouin for an 8-5 win at the No. 2 doubles slot.

ENSEMBLE IMPARTS MYSTICAL CULTURE

For some, Drummers of Burundi give show fulfilling expectations

Ian Corwin The Daily Iowan

Although the Drummers of full house with thundering rhythm itself in Friday night, there was an inescapable feeling that a deeply religious and somehow private cultural ritual had been intruded upon.

ensemble took the stage, dressed in red and green robes and balancing barrel-size drums on their heads, a clear line seemed to be drawn between audience members who were there simply to watch and those who were there to experience. That difference in perception is inherent in any attempt to make ritualized expression available to spectators. Following their dramatic entrance, the drummers took up positions in a crescent facing the audience, rattling out a high rhythm on the sides of the balanced instruments. One by one, they each lowered their drums to the stage, deepening the pitch gradually from a quick ticking sound to low thunder. Their entrance complete, the drummers came to a quick halt.

It was the only break they would odd feeling of voyeurism. take during a set that lasted more than an hour.

Burundi delivered on their promise warm applause from the Hancher clear that they wanted the audience to hypnotize Hancher Auditorium's crowd, the ensemble began to ease to join them. But without the freemony. For the next 60 minutes, they leaped around the stage, taking turns dancing and playing at the central drum in the middle of the From the moment the 14-man crescent. Each man had his turn at the center spot, while his partners behind him filled in the holes.

The rhythms varied, offset and accented by the theatrics and dancing of the drummers around the semicircle. A collective decision-making process showed itself in the drummers' variance and quick changes, keeping most of the crowd enthralled, even though the constant drive of base rhythms never let up. But it was that same constancy and the willingness it created - in portions of Hancher's audience - to surrender to the hypnotic power of the drums that brought about an hard to bridge.

MIKE'S

MONDAYS

The drummers themselves were in a Zen-like state of concentration Greeted with whistles, shouts and produced by their fervor, and it was dom to move as the drummers moved or the intimacy of an authentic drum circle to provide a connector between the audience and the drummers, many people could do nothing but nod in and out of trance states. Others looked as though they wanted to get up and dance but couldn't, and many in the crowd simply looked bored.

The performance itself was flawless, full of subtle variation and soul-rattling thunder. The mixed reaction of the crowd - and indeed the mixed reaction of many people who refused to say if it was good or bad - hinged not on the skills of the drummers themselves, but on a cultural gap that even a seasoned expert from Burundi would find
