OKLAHOMA CITY — A car bomb ripped deep into America's heartland Wednesday, killing at least 31 people and leaving 800 missing. It is the least that police have pieced together in a federal office building that became engulfed in flames and candy and whose walls were ripped up by a giant force of 1,500 pounds of explosives that killed 12 in a building that will be gutted to its foundation. The death toll was certain to rise.

"They've got people still in there," said Superintendent Jerry Burns of the sectional district. "I want to see an investigation, and we need to know how many people are still alive."

Lynch has been clowing around since she was a child. But recently, she has expanded her act to include a more serious element. "I've always made kids laugh, but they are also capable of being very moved by something," Lynch said.

She began performing as a clown in high school, but it wasn't until she joined the Ground Round Restaurant and Lounge in Iowa City that she started taking her act seriously. "I never thought I'd be a clown," Lynch said. "But now I love it."

Lynch has been performing as a clown for about four years. She says she enjoys the challenge of entertaining children, but she also likes the opportunity to perform for adults. "I love doing both," Lynch said. "Sometimes kids will try and pull my wig off, and I have to put my brace set on."

A College of Engineering employee and author Ralph White Rasmussen spoke about things those great on campus Wednesday afternoon for his presentation on the ingenuity of Iowans City community members.

Martin Luther was an early 16th century book seller and printer who produced his first printed book in 1494, which was the book of the Bible. He was also a scholar, poet, theologian, and an influential figure in the Reformation. His ideas and beliefs, particularly his belief in the importance of faith over reason, had a significant impact on the development of modern Christianity.

Morgan Freeman & Andy Kaufman were among those who spoke to the group of people, in a panel discussion, to accompany the Rasmussen's talk. People Who Change Lives is the book's successor to Change is Right and appeared in Iowa City.

Hills Bank and Trust Co. sponsored the event to introduce to five community members for their achievements and to promote the important positive influence in so many people's lives, said Angie Berg, training- and human relations coordinator of the bank.

'They have great people in the community, and this has been kind of a responsibility of her own,' she said. Throughout the program, the five people got a chance to express how prominent people in their lives have influenced them.

Cook, a former UT football player and MQ player for the New En-

AMES — Students at Iowa State University will be taking a test sooner than they expected.

Because of problems during past quizzes, Iowa State University officials were going to delay the spring semester finals to allow students more time to study. But now they say the university will be giving the tests as scheduled.

The move will allow students to use the new dates to study for the exams.

The new dates are March 30 and April 2.

Students who do not take the test will be given a grade of zero.

MEASURE WAS SHORT 21 VOTES

Iowa House quashes bill adding alcohol sales hours

Mike Close

Associated Press

DES MOINES — The Iowa House of Representatives reportedly expected an effort to slightly expand the hours during which alcohol can be sold in the state. The measure failed.

"Let's get a grip on this thing," said Iowa House Speaker Terry G. Branstad. "We want to get tough on drunk driving. We want a lot of laws. Here's the House of Representatives. That's a 23 hour short of the number needed to pass. Bills dealing with liquor issues traditionally break a noisy fight after sundown. We're going to have a Wednesday's effort was to an end."?

Supporters argued that it would help foster a better sense of community and encourage people to come together and enjoy each other's company. However, opponents argued that it would lead to more alcohol-related incidents.

WASHINGTON - President Clinton promised to seek "swift justice" for the explosion at the Murrah Federal Building in Oklahoma City, and he warned the nation to expect more threats.

"Let there be no reason for delay," he said. "Let there be no reason toelter the people of this land.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that the explosion was "an act of cowards, an act of evil, an act of terrorism.

The White House said the President had ordered "the use of all federal power and resources necessary to bring those responsible to justice.

"We will not forgive, we will not forget. We will stand together, we will be strong.

"The United States will never be intimidated by this crime.

"And we will all - the people of this country, the people of the world - the United States will stand together.

"We are all Americans.

"And we will say that the American people will not tolerate this kind of behavior.

"We will be strong."

Criticisms were feeble

In the letter, the author criticizes the response to the protests, stating that the criticisms were "feeble." They argue that the "protesters were a bit excessive," but do not explicitly name the person they are referring to. The letter goes on to say that the protesters were attempting to make their voices heard, and that the criticism is not very convincing. The author mentions that they were attempting to improve the situation, and that the protests were a step towards making change happen. They also mention that the protesters were working towards a better future, and that the criticism is not very convincing. The letter is dated April 11, 1992.

More equal than others

In the letter, the author points out that many people are more equal than others. They mention that there are many instances of inequality, and that people are not treated equally. They argue that the status quo is not acceptable, and that there needs to be change. The letter is dated April 11, 1992.

Who will emerge as No. 1?

Chris Smith

Matt Sherman will begin his Saturday's spring game as the Hawkeye's No. 1 quarterback. But Sherman has any say in it, that wasn't last year.

During his final game, the Hawkeye quarterback completed 64% of his passes for six games before a broken collarbone sidelined him for the season.

From the looks of it, the Hawkeyes operated gate-to-game before quarterback Matt Sherman's final season. If that is the case, then knowing how the Hawkeye quarterback played in his final year, it's hard to predict his performance for the season.

We're sure to have one in mind, but Sherman's plan to take back what was lost should start on Saturday.

If you had a fun time at the Big Ten Championship last year, you can expect a similar one this weekend.

We're sure to have that kind of fun in mind, but under the right circumstances, we'll have that kind of fun in mind when the Hawkeyes take on the Ohio State Buckeyes in the Big Ten Championship.

If you have an idea on where to find the best deals on Saturday, you can expect a similar one when the Hawkeyes take on the Ohio State Buckeyes in the Big Ten Championship.

Northern Iowa holds Hawkeyes scoreless
Mike Hefley
The Daily Iowan

Maybe things will be better against Iowa State when Iowa quarterback Kirk Ferentz has a healthy receiver in wide receiver Terry Toolson. Toolson, who missed most of last season with a broken leg, returned to practice Wednesday and was expected to return to the lineup Tuesday. Toolson is expected to start against the Hoyas.

Ferentz said that Toolson is a key player for the Hawkeyes.

"He doesn't make as many mistakes as Kirk," Ferentz said. "He's going to be very steady."

The only Hawkeye with more than one hit was scoreless.

The Hawkeyes were led by quarterback Tyler Vail and wide receiver Terry Toolson. Toolson had two completions for 26 yards and a touchdown.

"We're going to be very steady," coach Kirk Ferentz said.

Eddie led the Big Ten in rushing.

Puckett plans to stay with Twins

By John Lardner Associated Press

"I think it's an honor to be named a starter on the American League All-Star team," said Kirby Puckett, who has been doing his job as a member of the Minnesota Twins for seven years. "I'm glad to be here," he added.

"Why didn't Hamilton get his chance?" Kirby Puckett asked. "I mean, why not let him play instead of me?"

"I think they should have given me a chance," Puckett continued. "I mean, I've been here for seven years, and I've done well for the Twins."

"I don't think I've done anything wrong," Puckett said. "I've been consistent and hard-working. I think I deserve to be up here."

"I wish I could have been named to the team," Puckett said. "I'm disappointed that I wasn't."

"I'll just have to work harder and prove myself next year," Puckett said. "I think I can do it."

"I'm not going to say I'm not upset," Puckett said. "I'm disappointed, but I'll just have to move on."
A Soldier’s Play” zooms in on racism

Black Action Theatre delves into history

Paul Ferguson

The devastating specter of racism and its effects on everyone is a theme in the riveting form of “A Soldier’s Play,” the US Black Theater production opening this week at Playwrights Horizons.

By Charles Fuller, “A Soldier’s Play” is a complex dramatic attempt to communicate the ways in which hate ends and that hatred is not as isolated a phenomenon as it might seem.

When a black private comes to the conclusion that the war is going to be won by white officers, he帅哥 may be a lesser evil than to kill himself, but is it better to take part in a war that is so clearly unjust?

The play allows us to get an idea of the kind of issues that African-American soldiers were confronting on the battlefield.

Harriette Pierce, director and UI graduate student

In addition to adapting “A Soldier’s Play” into a screenplay for the film, Fuller, “A Soldier’s Play” was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize-winning play which devoted a stark, powerful drama to the viciousness of racism and its effects on everyone.

'Glen or Glenda': a film so bad it's funny

Sally Robinson

The Daily Iowan

Thursday, April 20, 1995

Glen or Glenda' was released in 1946, but its notoriety is not due to its status as the first film to feature a transgender. 'Glen or Glenda' is so bad it's funny because of its attempt to incorporate Edward D. Wood Jr. story into the Hollywood film format.

The film starts with a scene warning that the film will portray a welding scene. "Taking to Weld... as they are today... you are society..."

It is not unusual to see a film as it was meant to be, but 'Glen or Glenda' is a different story. "It is a sad, melodramatic story that's just not that good."

The lead character is played by a woman named Glen (played by Wood), who is a transgender. The film is about her transition from male to female, but it's not presented in a very positive way. The film is variously described as a "nightmare," "a disaster," and "a joke."

Despite its flaws, 'Glen or Glenda' has become a cult classic and is often screened in film festivals and museums. It's a must-see for fans of bad movies and those interested in the history of LGBTQ representation in film.

The Daily Iowan

Many people were extremely upset when 'The Little Rascals' broke up. "The boys got off and the girls remained," said one person. "I was really sad when they left." The Little Rascals were a group of boys who became famous for their adventures and pranks. They were known for their humor and sense of adventure.

The material in 'The Little Rascals' is a bit too much for younger kids. "It's not really appropriate for kids under 10," said a parent. "They're a bit too wild for that age group."

The film is a sequel to 'The Little Rascals' and continues the adventures of the boys as they try to stop a group of bullies from taking over the school. It's a heartwarming story about friendship and loyalty.

ART

The Daily Iowan

The artwork on display at the Plaza Art Center is an eye-opener. "These pieces are truly amazing," said one viewer. "I was blown away by the talent on display."

The works on display are a diverse mix of styles and mediums. "There's something for everyone here," said the curator. "We have paintings, sculptures, and even interactive installations."

Although they may not be of the same quality as the ones in the gallery, they are certainly worth a look. "I was surprised by how good some of these works are," said one visitor. "I think they're a testament to the creativity of local artists."

The Plaza Art Center is open every day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and admission is free. It's a must-visit for anyone interested in art.

Honors at Iowa

Honors Recognition Week is a celebration of the philosophy of the Honors Program to recognize and reward all students at Iowa who plan ahead and choose a challenging course of study. The philosophy of the Honors Program is based on the belief that academic success, personal development, and leadership are interrelated. Honors Program students are encouraged to take advantage of opportunities such as honors courses, research programs, honors degrees, and internships. The program seeks to involve and reward all students at Iowa who place academics at the center of their lives. The Honors Program is open to students in all majors. It is a program dedicated to opportunities for students to achieve their full potential, to broaden their horizons, and to develop their intellectual, creative, and leadership skills. The program is designed to provide a challenging and stimulating environment for students who wish to pursue a rigorous and demanding academic program. The Honors Program offers over thirty lower division courses and sections and courses. The Program provides daily orientation sessions for eligible students.
