Clinton imposes embargo against Iran

President Clinton will decide Tuesday whether to maintain or lift a trade embargo against Iran. Clinton is expected to announce his decision after meeting with his top military and national security advisers.

The embargo, imposed in August 1995, has been a contentious issue between the United States and Iran. The embargo was originally implemented in response to Iran's support for terrorism and its alleged nuclear weapons program. Clinton's decision will have significant implications for U.S.-Iranian relations and regional stability.

If Clinton decides to maintain the embargo, it could escalate tensions between the two countries and potentially impact diplomatic efforts to address Iran's nuclear program. On the other hand, if he decides to lift the embargo, it could signal a shift in U.S. policy towards Iran and improve bilateral relations.

The embargo has been a key issue in U.S.-Iranian negotiations, with both countries expressing different views on its effectiveness and long-term goals. A decision by Clinton will likely draw significant attention from policymakers, analysts, and the public, as it will shape the future course of U.S. policy towards Iran.

Vietnamese celebrate anniversary of war’s end

Vietnamese soldiers cheer while playing games during ceremonies marking the 30th anniversary of the fall of Saigon in its Chi Minh City. The event commemorates the end of the Vietnam War and the reunification of Vietnam under the North Vietnamese Communist regime.

The fall of Saigon in 1975 marked the end of the Vietnam War and the reunification of Vietnam. The war had lasted for nearly three decades and resulted in the deaths of millions of people. The reunification of Vietnam under the North Vietnamese regime has had significant implications for the country's subsequent development and for regional stability.

The commemoration events are attended by veterans, families of fallen soldiers, and others, who come together to honor the sacrifices made during the conflict.

Students mark Kent State deaths

Students at Kent State University commemorate the 40th anniversary of the Kent State shootings. The event serves as a reminder of the tragic events that occurred on May 4, 1970, when National Guardsmen opened fire on demonstrators, resulting in the deaths of four students and injuries to nine others.

The Kent State shootings were a significant event in U.S. history, sparking a national debate on the Vietnam War and affecting the course of American foreign policy. The event's anniversary is marked by various commemorations, including speeches, presentations, and moments of silence.

The Kent State shootings remain a powerful symbol of the complexities of the Vietnam War and its impact on American society.

Med student gets by with a little jolt of java

Patricia Harris

The Daily Iowan

Chances are good that Iowa City, Iowa, native Patricia Harris isn’t the only one who may have her hands full with a college course load and a job to boot. However, Harris, a third-year medical student at the University of Iowa, is bucking the trend by maintaining a comedic side to her personality.

During his first year of medical school, Behrens and his classmates had to pair each other for practice. Behrens’ partner didn’t take well to having to act as a tough guy, and this huge gray cloud over the student’s head is a direct result of their unique relationship.

According to Behrens, having to practice being a tough guy is not at all comforting. He found out early that not all medicine is about being serious in his role. Behrens’ partner didn’t take well to having to act as a tough guy, and this huge gray cloud over the student’s head is a direct result of their unique relationship.

IU women are urged to speak out against domestic violence as the IU Women’s Center and Department of Women’s Studies on Tuesday to make their voices heard against domestic violence.

The rally, held in the Old Capitol Park, brought together students, faculty members and community members to raise awareness about the issue. Speakers included Interim President Susan M. M. Armacost and Assistant Professor of Dance and Gender Studies Jennifer Ashgraf.

Armacost emphasized the importance of recognizing and addressing issues of domestic violence.

“Domestic violence is a violation of human rights,” she said. “We must work together to break the cycle of violence and create a safe and healthy environment for all women.”

Ashgraf also spoke about the need for more support and resources for survivors of domestic violence.

“We must support survivors by providing them with the tools they need to break free from violence and rebuild their lives,” she said. “Together, we can make a difference.”

Testimony presented in Hippler case

Kathryn Phillips
The Daily Iowan

In a highly charged courtroom on Monday, a jury deliberated for nearly eight hours before reaching a verdict in the case of William Hippler. Hippler is accused of sexually abusing a child while working as a youth worker at the Des Moines Boys Club.

The victim, a 10-year-old boy, testified that Hippler had sexually abused him multiple times between 1993 and 1995.

“The abuse was both physical and psychological,” said the victim. “I can still hear his voice in my head.”

The prosecution presented evidence that Hippler had been involved in multiple cases of child abuse and had been fired from several youth organizations.

“Hippler is a danger to children,” said the prosecutor. “He should be kept away from them.”

The defense argued that the victim’s testimony was unreliable and that there was not enough evidence to prove Hippler’s guilt.

“The victim’s statements were inconsistent and unreliable,” said the defense attorney. “There is no evidence to support the charge.”

In the end, the jury found Hippler guilty of one count of sexual abuse of a minor and one count of abuse of a youth worker. Hippler faces up to 20 years in prison. A sentencing hearing is set for next month.
Lawmakers hurry to end session

New Russian draft requires students to serve

Associated Press

YELIZOWA, Russia - A Russian military official said Friday that the draft will include students who are studying in military academies and college students who have graduated or are about to graduate.

The new law, long sought by defense officials who want a steady supply of young recruits, is expected to land in President Boris Yeltsin's office within weeks.

The draft law is a major step in the Soviet Union's transformation from a military dictatorship into a democratic state.

The official did not say how many students would be drafted or when the draft would begin.

The draft law is expected to go into effect in September.

The official, who declined to be identified, said the law would allow students to serve in the military for up to three years.

The law is expected to affect about 1.5 million students.

The official said the law would be part of a broader plan to restructure the Russian armed forces.

The law is expected to be approved by the Russian parliament and signed by Yeltsin.

The draft law is expected to be a key issue in the upcoming presidential election.

UDL DENTAL HYGIENE PROGRAM

Focus wrong in lawsuit

The UI's bureaucratic remedies were most evident again in a lawsuit that involved the presentation of the clinic of the UI dental hygiene program.

It is clear that the three associate professors in the program were retaliation after they voted against the proposal to change the title of the program, and that the administration of the university is determined to go on for the students.

Concerning the last part of the suit, however, the jury found in favor of the University of Iowa. According to the jury, the UI and the state of Iowa based its decision to offer one sex only because they had a gender bias against all-gender faculty, staff, students, and patients. Federal Judge Mary G. Kennedy, the jury's president, must now rule in favor of the university on this issue.

The president's case began with a "bid" offer by the state of Illinois. According to the judge, the UI offered to give him the same rights as those offered to the otherUIs, a statement which the judge characterized as an attempt to curry favor in the university.

"I don't think we have to give up our goal," the judge said. "But we can't ignore the fact that we are willing to use and distribute the final words of the testimony in a way that will help us in the future."

Thus, Jordan's argument is not an argument; as any good capitalist knows, it all centers on money.

Ramsay during their hands-on training, and it's safe to assume that they have better helped the program survive.

To the Editor:

It is true that Michael Jordan has been lauded for his basketball skills, but this is not what has made him famous. His genuine humility, loyalty, and hard work have also contributed to his success.

Andover's days have gone, and so has the rest of the school's basketball success. It is true, as the rest of the country will attest, that Michael Jordan is one of the greatest players in the history of the sport.

Changes appreciated by homosexual community

In a recent survey, homosexual individuals reported that changes appreciated by them included:

- Greater visibility and recognition of their experiences and needs
- Increased acceptance and understanding of their identities
- Increased legal protection against discrimination
- Access to affordable healthcare services
- Improved access to educational and employment opportunities

These changes are significant and can help to improve the quality of life for homosexual individuals, allowing them to live more openly and freely without fear of discrimination or violence.

Guest Opinion – Nicholas Davis

O'JAI, 1993 — For too many of us, the past year has been a difficult one. The economic downturn has affected our lives in many ways, and we must find ways to adapt.

For me, this has been a time of reflection and growth. It is important to remember that we are all connected, and that we must work together to overcome the challenges we face.

We must also recognize the value of our communities, and the role they play in supporting one another. This is especially true during times of crisis, when we rely on each other for support and guidance.

In conclusion, I encourage all of us to continue to work together to build a stronger, more resilient community. Together, we can overcome any challenge and create a better future for ourselves and future generations.

Religious Life not for everyone

To the Editor:

Living in an authoritarian religious community may not be Palmar’s choice, but if he is to be free another choice has to be made. I feel my choice was made from the very beginning, from that rainy night several years ago when, after overhearing from a nearby shop a woman singing a gospel song, I was urged to join the community of the "separate culture only for initiates" (Palmar, April 24, 1990, p. 9). From then on, I had to prove myself in the sight and guidance of the holy ghost, who had never turned away, yet never betrayed me. She gave me a mission to perform, to bring into the public the despised message of the Word of God. She was the holy spirit, the spirit of prophecy. All the experiences of life were guided by her, and I never felt alone in the path of the Lord.

I appreciate the modernity of the Church of God, the separation of church and state, and I believe in the power of the Holy Spirit to help those who are willing to accept her guidance. It is my hope that Palmar will choose the path of the Lord and that he will find the peace and understanding that he seeks.

CITY EXPERIENCE - Sam Corb

Would you do it again?

This has been much talked about for the last few years of the campaign. I believe that is the case because I feel there is a need for action. Many activists argued that we could create a future that was more equitable and just, but we could never really see this until we were faced with it. We do not understand, neither is it possible to know, what this could be, but what we really need is for us to build on a whole another world. This is where the problem of intemperance lies. If we are to think about something, including the blood that has been shed in the name of the people, we must try to find a way to build a better world.

Many of our cultural and social traditions have been destroyed by that interdependence of people, who were used to live in harmony with each other. This has led to many problems, which are growing more and more.

I was thinking about the situation of the people, what they have experienced and what they are going through. I agree if the government is to lead in this way. It is given now, I think to make a real change.

The answer is, they don’t have the freedom any more. It is impossible! We can’t wait any longer to come from the agricultural state that has been damaged by the cold war and the technological development which is taking place. Only a few hundred years ago, the people were still living in peace. Every day we are getting closer to the war.

We don’t have enough time to make a change and to be able to know the future. We can’t be like the one that has been exchanged like the blood that has been shed... We are in a very difficult situation, but I think that we have to be thinking of the world that we can see. It is not a question of aggression, but it is to see the world that we can see.

High-school students are the future

West High School residents elected a new student council last week as part of the annual election. The new council will have the responsibility of overseeing the school's extracurricular activities.

Many students are excited to have a voice in the decision-making process of their school. They look forward to being able to make decisions that will affect their own lives.

Student Council President, John Smith, said, "We are looking forward to working with the administration and teachers to make the school a better place. We are also excited to have a chance to work with other students on community service projects."

CHICAGO — Everyone called it the Boston Bulls’ weakness was that the Charlotte Hornets didn’t expect to lose twice in a row. They should’ve expected to lose in Game 3.

Charlotte Hornets coach Larry Brown echoed that sentiment when the defending NBA champion Chicago Bulls stunned the Hornets 110-89 in Game 3 of their Eastern Conference finals Wednesday night. It was a 24-point rout.

HAWKS FALL TO 11-3 IN BIG TEN
Wildcat rally runs short of sweep

The Iowa basketball team defeated Northwestern for nearly 12 hours on the court and the Michigan State soccer team defeated the Michigan State women's tennis team for nearly 14 hours on the court. The Wildcats swept their season series, winning both games in Chicago, 75-69 on Friday and 82-65 on Saturday.

Despite a tough start, the Wildcats fell behind early in the game, allowing the Spartans to take a 4-0 lead. However, the Wildcat offense would not be held down for long. By halftime, the score was tied at 27. The Wildcat defense played well in the second half, holding the Spartans to 52 points, while scoring 74 of their own. Junior forward McCarty scored a team-high 20 points, while junior guard Schillig added 17. McCarty also grabbed 11 rebounds, and Schillig scored 10.

Junior guard Schillig said after the game, "We knew they were a good team, but we just came out strong and didn't let them get into the game. We played good defense and our offense was clicking. We're happy with the win, but we know we have a lot more games to go." The Wildcats will face conference rival Illinois on Sunday night.

Iowa State had a tough game, falling to the Wildcats in Lincoln, 79-65. The Cyclones were led by junior guard Thieleke, who scored 15 points. The Iowa State defense was not able to stop the Wildcat offense, allowing McCarty to score 12 points and Schillig to score 11. Despite the loss, Thieleke said, "We had a tough game today, but we'll be ready for the next game. We'll see what we can improve on and come back strong against Illinois." The Cyclones will face Nebraska on Monday night.

'Circle' finds method for using stale clichés

Tasha Robinson

The Daily Iowan

It's not easy to take a handful of hoary themes, old stereotypes and hollowed clichés, blend them and cook up a fresh, funny contemporary film. But 'Circle of Friends' proves it's possible given the right ingredients: a writer, a talented director and an archaic theme:
