Branstad reappoints Pomerantz

Former board of regents president will begin interim term immediately

Brad Hicks
The Daily Iowan

After the Iowa Senate tabled his nomination late last month, Gov. Terry Branstad reappointed Monday by appointment a former regent who was rejected by the Senate two years ago.

Branstad's reappointment provokes lasted until April 2011.

Pomerantz oversees the hiring of UT President David Williams and Texas System President Martin Jarrett. Currently, there are prominent searches to progress as high as the University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth.

The university primary force for the next president has been a converted market manager, and Christian Martin, Branstad's special assistant.

The current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.

The construction of a placement at the Branstad residence. Though Branstad reappointed the executive director with a title of "chief of staff chairman Gen. John Stark, the current regents appointment comes after the former rejected Branstad's nomination of Dr. Kevin Cruickshank, the President of Dartmouth.

The artwork was removed this week from the Dartmouth College Art Gallery, which certain officials said the decision was made solely because it violated UI policy to have anything resembling a portrait of a political figure.

The artwork was part of a collection of local artists called "Exquisite Community." The pieces included literary renderings and poetic renditions of art and writing of one of the paintings, and the meaning of the turtles.

"It is scary to think some of these paintings might be treated with "charity ownership." He questioned whether the paintings would be considered as art of Public Safety offices that had the art and deployed directly.
Personalities

Waterloo fisherman keeps trying for the big one

Tom Schonberg
The Daily Iowan

"The sky is overcast, the river is running hard and fast, and I'm trying my hand on a largemouth bass."

"I'm mostly after big fish, but I'm also a bit of a sport for me. But later on in the year, I'm going to start spending more time in the water rather than putting put boats in every sunny."

"It's all knowing how to fish; it's not fishing that you're going to catch. It's about finding the right type of lure to catch them."

"Some people might catch their first catch after an hour or two. But I want to spend more time in the water to find the right type of lure to catch them."

"I'm trying to locate the rocks and then study today to get the right type of lure to catch them."

"It's all knowing how to fish; it's not finding the right type of lure to catch them."

"I want to spend more time in the water to find the right type of lure to catch them."
New parking ramp in the works

Sara Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

Downstate Iowa City will get a new parking ramp, as plans for the project were unveiled on the new campus. The question is where it will be.

University officials and city councilors met Monday to discuss work on the Iowa City Council, which is currently underway in favor of the new parking ramp. The discussion was held at the Shambaugh Park parking lot, where the new parking ramp will be located.

The proposed location for the new parking ramp is near the Shambaugh Park parking lot, which will be built on the north side of the property, just south of the donated land.

The project is being led by the state of Iowa, which has committed to cover the cost of the ramp, although the state has not committed to cover the cost of the ramp.

The City Council will vote on the final agreement in the coming weeks, but the issue of the new parking ramp is expected to be voted on by the City Council in the next month.

The new parking ramp is expected to be completed in 2020.
Alexander says senate to decide vote

Mike Glenn
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Former President Donald Trump is making his bid for the Republican presidential nomination tangible by attending an outside-group endorsement event on Monday. In addition, a handful of potential candidates are expected to campaign in Washington, D.C.

According to a Trump aide, the campaign hasn’t started as far as the candidates are concerned. Every day, you see the candidates playing inside baseball and doing their job. That’s on the news and they’re well-known,” Lamar Alexander, Republican presidential candidate, said.

A former governor of Ten­nessee, Alexander is making his bid for the Republican pres­idential nomination tangible by attending an outside-group endorsement event on Monday. In addition, a handful of potential candidates are expected to campaign in Washington, D.C.

Alexander said the relea­se of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of theendorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Alexander said the release of the endorsement letters was an attempt to comply with campaign-finance laws that require candidates to disclose any outside-group or independent political action committee that is supporting their campaigns.

“I think the fact the signal was sent, but no legislation was actually passed,” he said. “That’s why I think it’s so important that we have these kinds of conferences.”

Republican Sen. Craig Ruttle, who is prominent in the Senate, has expressed concerns that the Republican National Committee’s rules on endorsements are too lenient.

Ruttle said the rules are a “quid pro quo” that would allow candidates to buy endorsements from the Republican National Committee in return for financial support.
Simpson jurors receive crash course on DNA

Linda Deutsch
Los Angeles Times

The most vivid part of the evidence against O.J. Simpson was the DNA evidence that clearly linked the defendant to 1.5 grams of blood found on the victim's shirt. The prosecution's star witness was a forensic scientist named Paul Davies, who testified that the DNA evidence was "absolutely conclusive." But when the defense lawyer asked him whether he had considered the possibility that the DNA evidence could be "misleading," Davies replied, "No, sir." The jury was left with the impression that the DNA evidence was infallible.

Kevorkian present at death of No. 22

Brian J. Druker

The jury in the O.J. Simpson trial was told by a defense expert on DNA that the evidence against Simpson was "absolutely conclusive." But the defense lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said that the jury should be aware that the DNA evidence could be "misleading." He explained that there are three possible explanations for the DNA evidence: it could be from Simpson, it could be a contaminant, or it could be a mix of both.

Your NEW DEALS!!

GUMBY'S

Large Pizza $10.99
Medium Pizza $7.29
Small Pizza $5.29
Gopher Brother Extra Large 16" 1-Item only $9.99
Our Giant 20" Pizza - 1 Item $7.99
Call 35-6969
dammit!

How is your money running low?

Donate Plasma

DONATE PLASMA

and earn up to $30 per week.

SERA-TEC BIOLOGICALS

Call 408-502-0300

May 1 - 18

Surprise your folks.

When you step out in class, you need to learn more. (Unless you have an amazing talent of learning through economics.) So don’t let fatigue get in the way of your A. Revive with Vivaria. One tablet has the same amount of caffeine as two cups of coffee. And it’s just as safe. Hey, anything is possible if you’ve up for it.

Revive with Vivaria.
Clinton's crucial moment

President Clinton will be in Moscow this week to meet with Russian President Boris Yeltsin. This latest summit carries the same weight that President Reagan's meeting years ago with former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev may have had.

In 1987, the Cold War was at its height. An arms reduction was at issue, and the world watched as Reagan and Gorbachev established the basis for a future in which the two nations would cooperate, reducing their arsenals in a test of wills.

Today, Clinton will face the same kind of challenge with Yeltsin, and the world will watch. Clinton's meeting with Gorbachev will not generate the kind of excitement that the Reagan-Gorbachev talks did, but it will be an important moment in world history.

The meeting will be significant for several reasons. First, it will be a test of Clinton's leadership. Will he be able to show the same kind of vision and determination that Reagan showed when he met with Gorbachev?

Second, the meeting will be significant because it will be a test of the commitment of the two countries to arms control. Will Clinton be able to convince Yeltsin that the United States is serious about reducing its nuclear weapons?

Finally, the meeting will be significant because it will be a test of the willingness of the two countries to cooperate on other issues. Will Clinton be able to convince Yeltsin that the United States is committed to a peaceful resolution of the Middle East conflict?

The meeting will be a test of Clinton's leadership, a test of the commitment to arms control, and a test of the willingness to cooperate on other issues. It will be an important moment in world history, and it will be watched closely by the world.
DISPLAY

Continued from Page 1A

The students observed the paintings in the art gallery, enthusiastically discussing the works of various artists. The paintings were donated by the artists themselves, and the gallery was open from 10am to 6pm every day.

CAFFEINE

Continued from Page 1A

When the last period ended, students rushed to the library, where they found a variety of caffeine beverages. The library was open until last semester when she decided not to stay as late as usual. She was studying for her final exams and wanted to make sure she had enough energy to focus on her work.

HAWKEYES

Continued from Page 1A

Dawson, a member of the Iowa City Police Department, was always on the lookout for suspicious activity. He knew that the group of kids who hung around the gymnasium were troublemakers and had to be watched closely.

GANGS

Continued from Page 1A

The basketball seniors were known for their brash and aggressive style, and they had no problem with playing against other teams. Although some students liked to see them lose, they knew that the team was talented and capable of winning.

The Daily Iowan
Spurs put Lakers in a hole

Keller Wasden
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — They traded up before the draft and landed a pair of future stars by trading Tim Duncan and Avery Johnson to acquire David Robinson and Tim Finley.

The Spurs made a mistake in their escape attempt. They saw a chance but made it too late on a 3-pointer.

The Seattle SuperSonics were up 48-39 after five minutes of play when Robinson went to the line and made both free throws to cut the lead to 42-39 with 2:24 left.

The SuperSonics didn’t score again until Robinson hit a 3-pointer with 1:14 left to take a 51-42 lead.

After Robinson hit a 3-pointer, the Spurs fell behind and moved into second place.

Kim Smith scored a game-high 14 points, while Spurs leading scorer Chris Haynes scored 14 points.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

Meanwhile, the Lakers were toiling away, with a steady stream of 3-pointers.

The SuperSonics were up 39-35 after Tim Finley hit a 3-pointer with 2:45 left to cut the lead to 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, never got closer than 12 points.

The Spurs rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, but they couldn’t get closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.

The Spurs, who rallied to within 60-59 with 3:44 left, never got closer than 12 points.

The Lakers, who couldn’t make a basket in the fourth quarter, also struggled to make buckets.
Scoreboard

Quiz Answer

Baseball Bets

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>MLB Team Standing</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A's</td>
<td>A's</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Angels</td>
<td>Angels</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Athletics</td>
<td>Athletics</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blue Jays</td>
<td>Blue Jays</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Brewers</td>
<td>Brewers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cardinals</td>
<td>Cardinals</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Padres</td>
<td>Padres</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pirates</td>
<td>Pirates</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rockies</td>
<td>Rockies</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Main Events

Penguins rally for four goals in third period

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Penguins had 20 minutes to save the game, the series and their season. They made one of the five greatest comebacks in NHL history. The Penguins overcame a 3-1 deficit into the second period and beat the New York Rangers, 4-3, in the decisive Game 7 last night.

Penguins rally for four goals in third period

The Penguins, on the verge of being swept out of the Wales Conference final, scored three times in 5:35 early in the third period to turn a 1-5 deficit into a 4-3 lead.

"I told the guys between periods, if you're dominated, back into it in the dressing room," coach Eddie Johnsson said. "Turn it into a positive. Turn it up a little bit and play with some fix.

Continued from Page 10

At that point Jordan probably needed reminding that they were playing on their home floor. That's what he did to them. He told them to work better before heading up to the New York.

The New York Rangers had more than 20 minutes to save the game and series. They made one of the greatest comebacks in NHL history. The Rangers overcame a 3-1 deficit into the second period and beat the Pittsburgh Penguins, 4-3, in the decisive Game 7 last night.

MCCARTY

From Page 10

With four minutes remaining, a defensive zone faceoff, Jordan let Dick Anderson into the game. The Penguins needed two more goals to win.

"It's just not a team sport when you let them into the game. Anderson was just as bad as ever."

But the Pens' real hero was J.J. Armstrong. Armstrong came through with a chance to clinch the game for Pittsburgh on the left wing and scored the overtime winner.

"I'm not sure how he did it. He just scored."

Jarvis

From Page 10

Jarvis also adored a pretty good story about the Penguins' great game against the Rangers. He interviewed them for almost 10 minutes and wrote a story about them.
Tony nominations announced after lackluster year

Michael Kuchwara
Associated Press

NEW YORK - Reflecting Broadway's modest times in years, the Tony Award nominations were announced Monday with a ceremonial flair made up of the usual mix of good-natured ribbing and backbiting.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Sunset Boulevard," a stage version of Billy Wilder's classic, received a total of 10 nominations. In two other categories of the Tony Awards, the show was eliminated.

"Show Boat," the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein II creation that originally opened in Broadway in 1927, 30 years before the first Tony Award was presented, led the way with 16 nominations, more than any other show.