WPTM BIRMINGHAM, Ala. - The federal government used the July 1 deadline for building an apartment complex Monday, removing them — after a string of lawsuits against African-American neighborhoods. Several developers were accused of refusing to rent to blacks.

In the 1990s, discrimination in housing is not going to be captured by words or signs, said African-American lawmaker.

The lawsuits seek orders deeming landlords to discriminate and damages for any identified victims. Civil penalties could range up to $50,000 for each violation.

As most students look forward to summer, UI, Iowa City students rush to enjoy the remaining days of the academic year and to enjoy some time outdoors. Many are spending their last days of classes relaxing by the pool or on one of the many beaches around the city.

“The beach is a relaxing place to have some fun and to kind of get away from it all,” said UI sophomore Karla Benn.

Benn would likely kick off her flip-flops and go wading in the water, but she isn’t planning to spend too much time in the sun. “I’m not that into the sun much, so I’m just gonna relax in the water and enjoy the outdoors. Many students prefer the comfort of the beach or the quiet of the park to escape the hustle and bustle of daily life.

Many students are heading to the MacBride Raptor Center, which is located just a few miles west of Iowa City. The park offers a variety of activities, including bird watching, nature hikes, and educational programs. Students can bond with nature and learn about the local flora and fauna.

As the sun sets, students can enjoy the serene atmosphere of the park. They can also take a break from the demands of their daily lives and enjoy the outdoors. Many students prefer the comfort of the beach or the quiet of the park to escape the hustle and bustle of daily life.

Steve Harris, the MacBride Beach Park’s manager, said they are trying to keep the beach area clean and well-maintained. “We want to make sure that everyone has a good time here,” he said.

The beach area is open for regular swim seven days a week, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. It is closed on weekends, but it is open during the week and on holidays.

Supreme Court redeems federal affirmative action

Richard Catlett
WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, in a 5-4 ruling in favor of affirmative action programs, today affirmed the federal government's position on the issue.

The court's decision, in the case of University of Texas v. Texas, upheld the use of race as a factor in college admissions.

"It's now our responsibility in Congress to follow the court's lead and put the federal government's own house in order," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kans.

The decision overturned a lower court ruling that had struck down the University of Texas' affirmative action program.

"Now it's time for us to move forward and ensure that our nation's schools are providing equal opportunities to all students," Dole said.

The court's decision was a major victory for affirmative action advocates, who had been fighting for years to overturn lower court rulings that struck down such programs.

"This is a landmark decision that will help ensure that our nation's schools continue to provide a quality education to all students," said John Boll, president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Dole added that the decision would also help ensure that the nation's schools continue to provide a quality education to all students.

"This is a significant victory for all Americans," Dole said. "It's now our responsibility to work together to ensure that our nation's schools continue to provide a quality education to all students."

The announcement outside the jury's presence comes after the Sheriff's Office took the step of asking the Los Angeles County Medical Examiner to review the case.

NBA looking to avoid lockout

Wendy L. Larsen

Players stood down, and management continued to work without the presence of the 28 players who had signed the tentative agreement. The deal was scheduled for a vote today by the NBA Players Association.

The season has been on the brink of cancellation after the NBA Players Association and the NBA union failed to reach an agreement on a new collective bargaining agreement. The league has been seeking to avoid a lockout by trying to negotiate a deal that would keep the season alive.
