Residents warned about dangers of bridge-jumping

Tom Simpson

Bridge jumping may be a new national activity among 11-year-olds and Iowa City residents alike, but for UI Department of Public Safety Lt. D.L. Eastwood, it's an ominous warning to keep people away.

The presented Thursday afternoon, drowning of Jonathan Vogt, 19, near the Neal Smith Auditorium pedestrian bridge resulted in a bridge jump that he and his friend, Daniel Cox, 19, attempted. According to police, the two, both 19, were "jumping off the bridge doing a big flip.

"People jump off those bridges all the time, but this bridge seems to be an attraction for many," Eastwood said. "The number of complaints about bridge jumping averages one or two a year, but it is in numbers that many people don't report it."

A supposed eyewitness reported looking out to see Iowa City being a busy river is a hazard for river swimmers, Eastwood said, quite such as tree limbs and other debris in the water are a danger for bridge-jumpers.

"There's a bit of undertow in the river," he said. "When people jump they don't know what they're getting into — it's not like the City Park pool."

Clintons stand firm during trade dispute

Carolyn Dunwin

Border wars: The 1994 U.S.-Mexican trade dispute was so intense that President Clinton announced new sanctions on Mexican imports.

New York Knicks coach Pat Riley designed this T-shirt for his team.

Leading their team to victory the past season, Riley saw this as a way to show his support for his players.

"I did not and will not agree to extend the deadline," Clinton said.

The Clinton administration's stance on the issue is that it does not want to see the dispute continue.

"I'm not sure where the Clinton administration stands on this issue," Clinton said. "It does seem to me that we need to have a clear understanding of where we are going and where we are going to go."
Texas college tuition to increase by 10 percent

Student fees at state universities in Texas will rise 10 percent, raising the cost of attending college in the 1995-96 academic year.

Undergraduate resident tuition will increase from $2,270 to $2,490, or $820 per semester.

Undergraduate nonresident tuition will rise from $4,540 to $4,950, or $910 per semester.

Graduate resident tuition will rise from $2,720 to $2,970, or $450 per semester.

Graduate nonresident tuition will increase from $5,440 to $5,940, or $500 per semester.

The increase will be effective with the fall 1995 semester.

Dr. Robert Mogel, chancellor of the University of Houston system, said the increase is necessary to cover a $198 million gap between revenue from tuition and state funding.

The increase will also be necessary to maintain the quality of instruction, Mogel said.

"It is a matter of maintaining quality," he said. "If we don't increase tuition, we will have to cut programs."

Hospital error leads to death of cancer patient

WYOMING WY - A patient with a usually curable type of cancer died after a doctor mistakenly gave her chemotherapy instead.

The doctor, who has the authority to treat patients, was immediately removed from the hospital, University of Wyoming Hospital officials said.

Despite the hospital's strict policies against giving chemotherapy without a prescription, the doctor was allowed to give the patient the medication.

The patient, a 32-year-old woman, died Thursday of acute myelogenous leukemia, the hospital said.

The doctor was fired and the hospital was investigating the incident.

The patient's family was shocked and angry.

They said they had never heard of chemotherapy before and were not aware of its effects.

They also wanted to know why the hospital had not followed its own policies.

The hospital said it was reviewing its procedures to prevent similar errors.

The patient's family said they would seek legal action.

In other news, a 65-year-old man was hospitalized after being bitten by a dog.

The dog was a pit bull that had escaped from its owner's yard.

Dole attacks Hollywood

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., took Hollywood to task last week for why he thinks it has an irresponsible attitude toward sex and violence. His speech was written, he said, in part because of criticism he had seen of his films he envisioned. One would think he could have given an alternate reading.

Dole, like many presidential candidates before him, has shown some concern over the entertainment industry. But Dole might not have much to worry about. Of the major candidates, he has suffered the least from criticisms about the movies he has produced.

The most conspicuous absence from his "violent diarrhea" list were films by Sylvester Stallone and Bruce Willis. Even worse, Arnold Schwarzenegger's "True Lies" was on the list of infinitely films. Talk about an irresponsible attitude toward sex and violence. "True Lies" booth one of the highest depths of last summer's blockbuster and was basically misanthropic of course. Stallone, Willis and Schwarzenegger are all big GOP stars, as well as the traditional child actors.

Ultimately, neither Dole, Bennett nor Tucker are going to do much to change how films are made. As long as Americans are buying tickets, no one is going to ask questions later.

Dole attacks Hollywood

"I've told my staff that there will be no 'violent diarrhea' list. I've told them, 'No more.' I've had a change of heart." Dole was speaking on the phone last week.

Dole went on to say that his movie list was a joke and that the campaign would change its focus. "I'm doing more than just attacking the media. I'm attacking the movie industry," he said.

At the Democratic National Convention this week, Dole will be joining other candidates in criticizing the media and entertainment industry.

It was the Cardinals, who were limited to two singles, that had the lead in the 10th hole that led to his dugout victory. "I did exactly what I did the last time I went to the fairway," he said. "I just wanted one more chance."

"I did exactly what I did the last time I went to the fairway," he said. "I just wanted one more chance." And that was exactly what happened. It was a thrill to see him make it through the stretch. And make it in a seven-hole stretch from 4 to 10. He then got his 60 with a happy face.

The Brewers were also happy to have an easy win. They had been counting on this year as a team that was taking the lead in the NL East. They were playing well and had put a stop on their slide. But they knew the Reds were still hot. They had hit this season because internally, they broke them. It went on all season-long. It's just been hard to deal with that kind of behavior."

"He believed in my ability and said one or two more were going to come," Gubicza said Tuesday after pitching the first one-hitter of his 12-year career, a 7-0 victory over the Oak­land Athletics.

Gubicza was throwing his hardest overthrow in the 1980s before starter Cory Snyder set him back in 1989. He started the next month with a combination of his fastball and curveball about a month ago for a one-run-one walk-hitter start. Even closer, Gubicza is 3-1 with a 2.11 ERA.

He basically told me to go after people," Gubicza said. "He believed in me, with my stuff."

Gubicza (4-3) struck out five and walked one in his fourth career one-hitter. He struck out Mike Stanley for his 1,000th career strikeout in the ninth to tie off. Usually, a pitcher rem­ained with one out in the fourth was Oakland's only hit.

DEPARTMENT - Detroit took advan­tage of rookie Brian Buchanan's wildness and Cecil Fielder hit his 10th homer to lead the New York Yankees 9-2 Thursday night.

Backstopper (9-1), making his first major league start, walked six in the first inning, and the walks figured in the scoring.

Charles Furbush relieved and uncorked at least three of the six in eight straight outs, giving up just the two runs for his first major league win.

Ron Darling (2-3) was tagged for seven runs and seven hits in 21/3 innings. His ERA rose from 5.62 to 7.04.

Octopus legend revealed

Harry Atkins

DETROIT — Paul Doud, 88, an octopus on the Detroit Red Wings, was once a real octopus. And that's how the real octopus that was named Paul was able to venture into the ranks of the Red Wings during the 1958-59 season.

The story begins with the Red Wings' 1958-59 season, during which the team was playing in the old Detroit Times Press Building, a few blocks from the present-day Comerica Park. The octopus was a popular attraction in the building and was often seen at Rangers Stadium, home of the Detroit Red Wings.

When the octopus was in the Times Press Building, it was a regular feature during the team's games. The octopus was named Paul, and it was a favorite among the fans.

Some fans even brought their own octopuses to the games, and they would be placed on the ice near the octopus named Paul.

But the octopus named Paul was not the only octopus in the building. There were also several other octopuses that were in the building during the 1958-59 season.
