Residents warned of local bank scammer

The Iowa City Police Department is alerting Iowa City residents to an attempt made to pull the "bank examiner's scheme" Tuesday.

An alleged bank examiner, who called himself Mr. Andrews, asked an Iowa City senior citizen to withdraw a large sum of cash and turn it over to him.

Detective Ed Schultz warned Iowa City residents to be suspicious and aware of the scheme.

"If someone wants to examine your account, tell them to meet you right at the bank," Schultz said.

If a person asks to examine a bank account, the account holder should demand identification and ask a lot of questions. Schultz said bank examiners usually have official bank ID.

A person contacted by a suspicious examiner should contact the bank or the police department for advice, Schultz said.

"If someone ever asks you to take out large amounts of money in small bills, the red flag should immediately go up," Schultz said.

Prosecution claims Simpson's hands swelled due to medication lapse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A prosecutor accused O.J. Simpson of skipping his daily dose of arthritis medicine so his hands would swell, making them too large to fit into gloves linked to murder, a courtroom transcript showed Thursday.

Simpson's lawyer, Johnnie Cochran Jr., called the allegation by prosecutor Christopher Darden "paranoid."

In private talks with Superior Court Judge Lance Ito Wednesday, Darden demonstrated the prosecution's dogged determination to put Simpson's hands in the murder gloves one way or another.

Foster denied nomination

Nita Lelyveld
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Dr. Henry Foster's wrenching ride came to an anticlimactic end Thursday, with supporters still stuck three votes short of gaining a yes-or-no Senate vote on his nomination to surgeon general.

Allies said after five grueling months in the public eye, the Tennessee doctor was defeated simply because he had performed abortions. President Clinton said that sent a "chilling message" to the nation. Thursday's Senate vote to cut off debate and have a final vote on

"This is not a good day for the United States Senate."

President Clinton, responding to the Senate's vote against Dr. Henry Foster for U.S. surgeon general

Foster was 57-43 — three votes short of the 60 needed — exactly the same as a day earlier.

Clinton conceded defeat, saying "a minority in the Senate may have denied him this job, but I am confident that he will go on to serve our country." White House aides suggested Foster would be named to an advisory post on teen pregnancy.

The president declined to say when he might offer a new nominee.

Senate Majority Leader Bob

Dole and Sen. Phil Gramm, both vying for the GOP presidential nomination, led the opposition. Eleven Republicans joined the 46 Senate Democrats in voting to cut off the debate.

Last-minute telephone calls from Clinton made no difference.

"By choosing to side with extremists who would do anything to block a woman's right to choose, those senators have done a disservice to a good man, done a disservice to the nominating process and sent a chilling message to the rest

Workers swelter for summer cash

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

Essentially, two kinds of summer jobs exist: the cushy, fun ones — like lifeguarding or hocking ice cream — or the other type, the stand-in-the-heat, I-didn't-volunteer-for-this-kind-of-job.

Meet three people whose jobs fall into the second category.

Hundreds of people probably walk by Jon Fogarty every day. The UI senior is working outside the Madison Street entrance of the Union, replacing old — and very large — concrete tiles.

With Lenny Kravitz pumping out of a radio stashed in one of the few shady areas Thursday afternoon, Fogarty tried to put a positive spin on his work, but admitted his job has its drawbacks.

"The ups are definitely up," Fogarty said. "I spent all last summer indoors. This is better than being inside. It's during orientation, so there's lots of people to look at. I've got my music — I have a sack full of CDs. The downs — well, they're pretty obvious."

Congress GOP sets budget proposal

Alan Fram
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House and Senate Republicans reached agreement Thursday on a compromise seven-year budget-balancing plan that would cut taxes by nearly $250 billion and slow spending for Medicare and Medicaid, Speaker Newt Gingrich said.

"We have a deal," Gingrich exclaimed to reporters as he came out of a meeting with Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and Senate Budget Chairman Pete Domenici.

"... You're going to love it. You get more take-home pay," Gingrich said. The negotiators eyed a compromise budget plan that would cut families' and investors' taxes by nearly $250 billion and slow spending for Medicare and Medicaid.

In putting the final touches on a spending outline, Republicans had ignored President Clinton's call for a slower, 10-year blueprint and much smaller tax cuts. The budget resolution worked out in conference committee Thursday does not require the president's signature.

"I think we're going to be wrapped up by early in the morning," one of the bargainers, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, had said earlier.

The budget, which claims to end the government's three-decade string of deficits in 2002, charts the course the GOP-dominated Congress would follow this year for trimming government and easing the tax burden for families and businesses. But since later bills containing actual tax and spending cuts will need Clinton's assent, bargaining between the two sides seems likely later.

Prayer to begin UG senate meetings

A prayer of some sort will open every senate meeting of the University of Georgia Student Government Association, but the type of prayer used will be at the discretion of the senator delivering it, the president of the SGA said.

The practice began at the end of the spring semester, when a meeting was opened with a Christian prayer, citing Congress' religious invocation as its model. SGA President Jud Turner said the practice will continue at all future senate meetings.

While the vice president of the SGA said the prayer would not be a major issue for the group, some students disagree with the planned use.

"Prayer has no place there," said UG junior Melissa De Feo. "I think it's in poor taste, and it's a compromise of church and state."

Gainesville club incites proposed ban on public nudity

If you plan to go out in the buff in Gainesville, Fla., you may end up behind bars if a proposed ordinance to ban public nudity within the city limits passes.

City officials' interest in the legislation began after Cafe Espresso opened in March 1995, offering nude entertainment.

The ordinance was supported 4-1 at the first of two scheduled public hearings, and if passed, it would make it illegal for anyone to appear nude in public. It would also require women to cover 1/4 of their breasts and wear a strip of cloth at least 3/4 inch wide along their buttocks.

Cafe Espresso's attorney said if the ordinance passes, the debate would not stop at City Hall.

"If this goes to court, I believe we'll win on constitutional grounds," Gary Edinger said.

The proposed ordinance states that businesses offering nude entertainment encourage prostitution and rape.

Northwestern raises price of student sports tickets

For the first time in the history of Northwestern University football, students will have to pay to see the games this fall.

The NU athletic department recently announced that student seats for both football and basketball games will cost $5 a game. The basketball tickets were raised for the first time since 1986 from $3 a game.

"We took a long look at our ticket policies for students and decided it was time that we brought Northwestern up to an accepted norm in the country as well as the Big Ten," Athletic Director Rick Taylor said. "While we are raising the price for basketball and will begin to charge admission to football games, Northwestern students will be paying the lowest ticket prices in the conference."

Ohio State hospital dispenses pill to help AIDS patients

A drug being sold at Ohio State University Hospitals is helping AIDS patients gain weight, increase strength and build a stronger immune system.

The drug, called Marinol, is used to help cancer patients who experience vomiting during chemotherapy. In 1993, the Food and Drug Administration approved Marinol's usage as an appetite stimulant for people with AIDS, said Jerry Wojta, president of Roxane Laboratories, a pharmaceutical company distributing the drug.

"If used properly Marinol certainly works in well over 50 percent of patients," Wojta said.

Marinol is an oral cannabinoid, which means its therapeutic effects are similar to marijuana. Those effects are an increase in appetite and weight gain and a decrease in nausea.

Director Howard still recognized as '60s favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Can Ron Howard make the leap from Opie to Oscar?

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't dream of someday winning an Oscar," he said in last Sunday's USA Weekend. "At the same time, it's not something you can target. I just have to do projects I understand, believe in, give it 110 percent."

The director's upcoming "Apollo 13," starring Tom Hanks, is a potential summer blockbuster.

The 41-year-old Howard still hears from people who think of him as Mayberry's favorite son on "The Andy Griffith Show" in the 1960s.

During the two-day event, students sample residence hall food, view skits about UI student life, take placement tests and register for fall classes.

"From a student's perspective, the academic advising and registration are probably the most important part of orientation," said Tom Deprenger, assistant director of orientation for pre-enrollment services at UI Admissions. "It is also important that students get to know one another. Orientation is almost a rhetoric experience. A lot of students continue their friendships into the first semester."

Incoming freshman Cindy Ahrens said that after participating in orientation, she is excited about attending fall classes and said she made new friends. However, Ahrens said she will still be clutching her campus map on the first day of classes because she "still gets lost."

Twenty-three student orientation advisers, who have had more than 150 hours of training, guide the students through their first glimpse of college life.

"The new students learn from the old students," Deprenger said. "Communication is better in a peer relationship. We try to make it a friendly experience. Change is stressful. We are here to make it smooth."

But the new students aren't the only ones apprehensive about their new lives. Parents also storm the campus in orientation programs designed to educate them on the life of a new Hawkeye.

"Our daughter is going through growing pains and so are we," said Brenda Horaney, of Dubuque. "It was nice to hear the students' panel and get a kid's perspective after they've been in college."

The parents are often more nervous than the students, Deprenger said. Orientation helps calm fears and makes "letting go" easier. Highlights of the parents' stay include bus tours, discussions on health and safety and a question session with students who have already survived a few years on campus. A technology presentation teaches parents to use e-mail so they can "reach out and touch someone" at a fraction of the cost.

"This is my first trip to Iowa, so it is all very new," said mother Mary Gail Masters, of Arlington, Texas. "I enjoyed the students talking about their life here. Every other comment was about pizza. My daughter already came and told me, 'It's really cool. I love it.'"

Leslie Gay and her husband, Tim, spend more time in their garden than most people do at part-time jobs.

Proof lies in more than 200 flowers and 80 trees and shrubs decorating their backyard lot.

The Gay's garden, at 627 S. First Ave., is one of four city gardens highlighted in the 25th annual Project GREEN Garden Tour this Sunday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The gardens are decorated with everything from railroad ties to ponds.

"Last year, we had 1,400 people come and this year we are expecting even more," said Emil Rinderspacher, chairman of the tour.

Tour proceeds will be distributed to Iowa City schools for landscaping and will fund work being done between Dubuque Street and Interstate 80 where flood damage occurred.

For 27 years, the project has raised money for landscaping on Iowa City public land.

"Project GREEN is a group of people who united in a common goal to enhance our natural surroundings," Rinderspacher said.

Other gardens on display belong to Gary and Julene Dutton, 4351 Magowan Ave.; Jim and Pam Ehrhardt, 1029 Court St.; and Steve and Diane Winkey, 2645 Princeton Road.

Tickets are $3 and available at any of the four gardens on the day of the tour.

"The selection committee was impressed with Mr. Reed's experience and educational background," said Philip Leff, chairman of the Mercy Hospital board of directors. "He is well qualified to lead Mercy in health issues in the future."

Reed served as president and CEO of St. Joseph Hospital in Clinton, Iowa from 1987 to 1989, where he merged Clinton's two hospitals into Samaritan Health System, INC. Since that time, Reed has served as the senior vice president and chief operating officer of Samaritan systems.

Reed said he is impressed with the vision and commitment of Mercy Hospital and looks forward to his presidency.

Pedestrians' sound stops traffic

Shayla Thiel
The Daily Iowan

Clear the street for Pedestrians, yet another Minneapolis band with a surprisingly simple recipe for music on its brand-spanking new album, Lisa.

Using a level-headed pallet conjuring images of R.E.M. fused with an aroma of silliness reminiscent of the Dead Milkmen, Pedestrians forth catchy tunes with sharp lyrics that make them worth a listen.

Of course, naming the album and two of its more inviting tunes after one of the most common names of the feminine gender — minus an explanation — may have been somewhat of an artistic risk for the band. After all, look at past precedence here: there's Christopher Cross' "Laura," Jefferson Starship's "Sara," Kenny Rogers' "Lucille," Winger's "Madeline" — you get the idea.

Going with the Lisa theme kind of sticks Pedestrians in this frightening genre of sorts, but the possible handicap doesn't hinder them from spewing forth enticing melodies with lyrics that are both understandable and cute.

I mean, how could a song title like "Cookie Suppers" not make you smile? And when guitarist / vocalist Kent Schoening lays down some absolute riffs, how could you not want to dance?

Pedestrians prove simplicity and silliness can be the key to some traffic-stopping music.

Pedestrians play tonight at the Que Sports Bar, 211 Iowa Ave., with Iowa City alternative rockers Marble Orchard. Cover will be charged at the door.

Trekkies launch I.C. weekend

True Love is a Lawn Gorilla. Spiral Mountain. Freshmen Without Shirts. Spitting Phlegm (From the Sky). Weaselflower.

There's nothing like lying on the grass in the foreboding shade of the Engineering Building thinking of creative monikers for bands. Yeah, I know, it's hardly an original way to begin a column — but give me a break. It's still sweltering out here. Of course, having finally found my true calling as a professional band and song namer (lyrical engineer, you idiots), color me stoked for some weekend revelry.

Ready to boldly go where you probably haven't gone before and probably will never go again? Yes, stargazers and sci-fi geeks, it's time you head at warp speed 10 miles south to Riverside, Iowa, to celebrate Trek Fest at the future birthplace of one of the greatest Starfleet Captains, James T. Kirk. Since 1965, when Riverside City Council members declared the site of the town barbershop Kirk's birthplace, they've all grown their hair long and committed themselves to throwing a big bash in honor of the commander. This year's Trek Fest guest star is Bruce Hyde, who played Lt. Commander Kevin O'Riley on the original TV show (you know, the guy with the yellow suit).

Klingons and Romulans will be driven away by non-stop playing of William Shatner's rendition of "Tambourine Man."

Saturday at the Que Sports Bar.

211 Iowa Ave., (a "Star Trek" reference all its own) is the ever-open Big Window and Matchbook Shannon.

Perhaps beaming up is too much effort for you in the 100-degree heat. If so, you might want to catch the original blues of Robert "One Man" Johnson at the Sanctuary Restaurant & Pub, 405 S. Gilbert St. Johnson is probably the only guy worthy of the tacky Big Johnson T-shirt (See Devon Alexander's June 21 DI column) for his soul on guitar, harmonica, foot piano and percussion.

Holy Floyd of Rosedale! Are those Minnesotans planning a corn state takeover? Tonight at Gunnerz, 123 E. Washington St., are Gear Daddies-esque The Billys. The four-man band's latest release, Roses and Flowers and Plants, has received high marks from Midwestern critics. The Billys are joined tonight by Tom Jensen and the Dimestore Outfit. Gunnerz's Saturday lineup brings a plethora of blues-inflected rock in Dennis McMurrin with Joan & Simone of Shade of Blue and members of High & Lonesome.

And down the street at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., Saturday night is Sheltering Sky.

Don't let the name scare you. The Austin Lounge Lizards, who do not sound like Bill Murray covering the "Star Wars" theme, hit The Mill Restaurant, 120 E. Burlington St., Sunday at 8 p.m. Catch their Frank Zappa-like anthem, "Gingrich the Newt," something even non-salamanders' rights enthusiasts can appreciate.

"From the land of sky-blue wa-ha-ter (wa-ha-ter) ..." Yes, I believe the theme song from Disney's new flick — with yet another brunette heroine (Hooray for Walt!) — was stolen from an old beer commercial. Of course, I've only seen the previews of "Pocahontas," so my opinion is no better than what any moron could derive from the latest overplayed Burger King commercial. Check it out for yourself at Friday's opening at Cinemas I & II. Or if the theater's full, try Taco Bell's "Congo" or McDonalds' "Batman Forever."

Ordeals of 'out' evoked

"Queer! Fag! Fairy!" screams a charcoal drawing.

A clay figure of two nude women confronts a subject about which many wonder, but few dare to ask questions.

Only with a closer look — after a step back to focus on the show as a whole and not individual parts — is an identity felt.

The "Coming Out is an Art" exhibition showcases 13 artists in many distinct mediums: photography, painting, collage, sculpture and quilt. At first glance, the show may seem to revolve around the act of "coming out." Yet, a second trip to the show can both sharpen understanding and free personal inhibitions.

"Names My Classmates Taught Me," the third charcoal on paper of the "Childhood Dreams" series, may strike chords with anyone remembering days on the playground and insults that reeled from children's lips. The piece conjures up a time when "fag" was a childhood word of the unknown — fostering fear, hate or acceptance later on. The unframed drawings capture a terse representation of a misunderstood life.

Artist Lindsay Park transforms a ceramic urn planter into an expression of an ancient Greek amphora, "Greek System," reminiscent of the black painted style. However, that is where "ancient" ends.

Michael Dickbernd/The Daily Iowan

Parks' "Greek System" is on display at the Eve Drevelow Gallery and the Checkered Space in the UI School of Art and Art History.

Each figure in Park's piece defines a specific presence: a mythical woman holds a paddle, while her male counterpart grasps a fraternity artifact. The register below has both Foghorn Leghorn and Bugs Bunny, of Looney Tunes fame, reclining in Greek fashion.

A twisting turn from classical Greece to the Greek community make this piece a humorous anecdote by placing the present in the past.

Another masterminded piece is the set of collages by Jeffri Palermo titled "Survivor Series." This collection of three separated charcoals, pastels and photocopies transforms a photo album of childhood memories into a reflection of inner thoughts. Its third panel depicts a hand, giving the illusion of a family growing together out of each member's fortune.

The exhibition delivers what a heterosexual audience might find disturbing, but it also forces a deeper look into stereotypes and misunderstanding. The shock value associated with the exhibition's pieces is intentional, but the artworks' meaning reaches deeper — especially at a second glance.

Two visits to the exhibition can foster an intense passion and deep respect for works symbolizing difficult recollections of life.

Spunky Chicago band boasts British beat with a twist

Shayla Thiel
The Daily Iowan

Don't let the accordion fool you. The Webstirs are not the band your great-uncle Eddie hired to play at his 80th birthday party.

Not that he wouldn't have liked them. Out of Chicago, The Webstirs spring happy pop almost unheard of in this age of flannel 'n' grunge. On Smirk, the band's June 1995 release, their unfashionable lack of angst is like a refreshing glass of ice water in the face.

Critics have actually had the gall to compare The Webstirs to The Beatles for the band's catchy tunes and light harmonies, and guess what? It's a pretty decent comparison.

While The Webstirs are Windy City rocky through and through, the influence of British pop shines through on such tunes as "Maurice Klybatzia" and "Only Thirty-Three." On "Stone on the Ground," his accordion plays the role of both keyboard and rhythm guitar without allowing a listener to even think of a zydeco band.

And just when you get accustomed to The Webstirs' perkiness, listen to the lyrics and realize these are not perky fellows. "It's Over Now" sounds like a bitter Nirvana tune.

So, maybe The Webstirs are a flannel 'n' grunge sort of group in their own unique way. All labeling aside, the Seattle scene could definitely use a good accordion player.

The Webstirs are playing tonight at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., with local act These Days.

Boston mayor orders early curfew after two rapes in park

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Common, the greensward where redcoats mustered, witches were hanged and political firebrands mounted the soapbox, has been ordered closed at night after two rapes in the nation's oldest public park.

Mayor Tom Menino has also extended the 11:30 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew to the neighboring Public Garden, home of Boston's beloved swan boats.

Civil libertarians, who have long fought curfews, criticized the decision, and people who use the parks each day questioned whether he was overreacting.

Menino pointed out Wednesday he hadn't created any new rules — just decided to enforce an existing ordinance that prohibits people from entering public parks late at night.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which is challenging a new citywide curfew in Washington and has criticized a four-year-old curfew in Dallas, said the Boston action is unnecessary.

Three homeless men are accused of the rapes, which occurred in the past two weeks. Police said one victim was a homeless woman who was attacked by two men while she slept in the park. The other woman was walking home about 2:45 a.m. when she was attacked by a third man.

The mayor said the curfew would be part of a larger plan to revitalize both parks. The city plans to spend $200,000 repairing lights, benches and pavement.

Likelihood of U.S. tariffs on Japanese autos increased

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Japan failed to stop the clock on the biggest U.S. trade sanctions in history Thursday, increasing the chances that Americans will pay substantially more for their Japanese luxury cars.

The stalemate in trade talks increased the likelihood that punitive tariffs of 100 percent will be imposed Wednesday on 13 luxury automobiles, including the Toyota Lexus and Honda Acura.

The Clinton administration said the sanctions are necessary because Japan markets are too closed to outsiders. Japan said its auto markets are as open as America's.

"My frank impression is that the positions of Japan and the United States are still wide apart," Atsushi Ohi, a senior Japanese trade ministry official, said after more than three hours of negotiations in Geneva.

"At this point, there is no basis for optimism or pessimism," said Ira Shapiro, legal adviser to U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor.

Chechen, Russian mediators see end to political battle

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — Chechen and Russian negotiators clashed Thursday over Chechnya's political future, but said they were optimistic about agreements on disarmament and troop withdrawals that could end their six-month war.

Lead negotiators left the talks early to prepare for today's round, which was expected to concentrate on resolving Chechnya's political status within Russia.

"I expect the next round to be the most difficult," said Arkady Volsky, a Russian delegate.

The talks were called after a group of Chechen rebels stormed the city of Budonovsk in southern Russia and seized about 2,000 hostages. The gunmen released the hostages and fled into Chechnya on Tuesday after winning Russian concessions.

The Chechen delegation was angered Thursday by Russian demands that Chechen leader Dzhokhar Dudayev be barred from elections, the Interfax news agency reported.

The head of the Russian-backed provisional Chechen government, Salambek Khadzhiyev, called for elections on Nov. 5.

The Russian and Chechen negotiators signed a protocol Wednesday night setting up a commission to begin disarming the Chechen rebels. In return, the Russians agreed to gradually withdraw all but two army brigades, totaling 2,000 to 6,000 troops.

The agreement also calls on both sides to turn over prisoners of war.

Associated Press

British Prime Minister John Major, followed by an unidentified aide, arrives to address a press conference in the Rose Garden of No. 10 Downing Street in London Thursday.

Major steps down as right-wing head

Maureen Johnson
Associated Press

LONDON — Battling for his political life against right-wing rebels, Prime Minister John Major resigned as Conservative Party leader Thursday, forcing a leadership election next month.

"I am no longer prepared to tolerate the present situation," declared Major, who must resign as prime minister if he loses the July 4 vote. "In short, it is time to put up or shut up."

The sudden announcement by the 52-year-old leader, followed increas-

"... it is time to put up or shut up."

John Major,
British Prime Minister

ing opposition and insults from right-wingers within the party who are opposed to Britain's closer integration with the 15-nation European Union.

Tensions have worsened recently — so much so that Conservatives have hit record lows in popularity after 16 years in power and are widely expected to lose national elections that must be held by spring 1997.

Despite its own splits, Major's 22-member Cabinet rallied behind him, removing the immediate threat of a heavyweight challenger. A strong candidate could emerge, however, if there is a second-round ballot.

But critics noted that even a victory for Major will not remove the Conservatives' deep divisions over European unity or the prime minister's vulnerability to party revolts because of his tiny majority in Parliament.

"It is a bold move and it will clear the air," commented Margaret Thatcher, Major's predecessor, whose criticisms have added to his political torment.

"I believe the prime minister will be re-elected and by this move he will have strengthened his authority," she said in a statement.

Under party rules, Major must get at least 50 percent of the votes of the 329 Conservative Party members of the House of Commons, and be 15 percent ahead of his nearest rival to win the first ballot outright.

If he fails, new candidates can run in a second ballot a week later.

Thatcher resigned in November 1990 after failing to get sufficient votes in a first-round challenge from Michael Heseltine, now Major's trade secretary.

Major refused to say whether he will withdraw if he is short of outright victory July 4.

Teresa Gorman, one of eight right-wing legislators whom Major temporarily suspended from the Conservative caucus in the Commons for voting against the government, said getting rid of Major could be the last chance of saving British sovereignty.

"The power of our country is slipping away to Brussels," Gorman said in a TV interview, referring to EU headquarters in Brussels, Belgium.

"And this may be the only opportunity we will have to go forward with a policy which will put British interests and the British nation above any interests in Brussels," she added.

Possible challengers include Gorman or an ally — or Norman Lamont — fired by Major as treasury chief in 1993.

Tony Blair, leader of the opposition Labor Party, said Major "has now accepted that the Conservative Party is unfit to govern."

SECOND CONFIDENCE VOTE INTRODUCED

Yeltsin threatens to dismiss parliament

Julia Rubin
Associated Press

MOSCOW — A defiant Boris Yeltsin raised the stakes Thursday in his conflict with lawmakers, warning the parliament that dealt him a no-confidence vote that continuing its course would be "signing its own death sentence."

Yeltsin, whose presidency has been a near-constant power struggle with the legislative branch, made it clear he would rather disband parliament than sacrifice his Cabinet.

"As never before, Russia needs consolidation of power and unity," he said in a speech to the Cabinet. "I cannot and will not allow anyone to weaken the central link of the Russian state's executive branch at this moment."

With that assurance, Prime Minister Viktor Chernomyrdin's Cabinet decided to provoke a showdown with lawmakers now, rather than drag it out. It introduced a second confidence vote — this one binding — within 10 days, which would force parliament either to back down or face likely dismissal.

Yeltsin can ignore Wednesday's no-confidence vote, but a second such vote within three months would force him either to dismiss the Cabinet or disband parliament and set new elections.

The clash is the most serious Yeltsin has had with parliament since it took office in January 1994, three months after he dissolved the previous legislature with the help of tanks and troops.

A hostage crisis this week in southern Russia gave the parliamentary opposition in the lower chamber, the State Duma, enough strength to push the no-confidence vote through on Wednesday. The government has been accused of bungling the crisis, which ended Tuesday with more than 120 people dead and the escape of the Chechen hostage-takers.

In what could be a concession to parliamentary anger, Yeltsin did sharply criticize his so-called "power ministers" Thursday for allowing the gunmen to cross the border from Chechnya and take 2,000 hostages in the city of Budonovsk. Yeltsin suggested he would make personnel changes.

The vote called by Chernomyrdin will be on confidence in the government — which ups the ante. If lawmakers don't support it, Yeltsin could dismiss them. If they do, the government has an actual vote of confidence.

"The Duma may sign its own death sentence," Yeltsin told reporters. "If the Duma doesn't want to be dissolved, it's OK. But it shouldn't even try to topple the government."

Yeltsin appeared to be gambling that lawmakers aren't ready to risk early elections. Factions have been preparing for elections in December.

Viktor Ilyukhin, the Duma's security affairs committee, said Yeltsin's threat "may push society toward a civil war."

Reformist lawmaker Grigory Yavlinsky, a vocal critic of the war in Chechnya, told the Interfax news agency he would vote no-confidence again and said the government's actions were "a fit of political hysteria."

have a negotiation over the final product," White House budget chief Alice Rivlin told Congress' Joint Economic Committee on Thursday. "It may not come until September; it may not come until later than that."

As word of the near-agreement spread on Capitol Hill, it received the endorsement of Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. The presidential candidate had threatened to oppose it unless it exceeded the tax cuts and defense spending the Senate's budget allowed.

"I see it as a clear victory for the things that I believe in," Gramm told reporters.

The bargaining between House and Senate Republicans has taken three weeks. Though both chambers share the goal of eliminating the deficit, they were sharply split over tax cuts.

When contacted, Lucille Kirk denied her husband made the statement. She refused to put her husband on the phone, claiming he had heart trouble and had been in and out of the hospital. Lucille Kirk said the house was rented to a local couple and Davis' race wasn't a factor.

"It wasn't because of that," Lucille Kirk said. "He didn't say it to mean that. He just didn't believe ..."

Lucille Kirk's voice trailed off and she centered the rest of her comments on the current tenant, Stepanek.

Fogarty attempts to beat the heat by drinking water and taking frequent breaks, seeking occasional reprieve in the air-conditioned comfort of the Union. He said he can't rationally analyze why he spends eight hours each day replacing tiles at 90-degree heat.

"I was assigned to this job — there's no other way to explain it," Fogarty said.

Still, Fogarty said getting down and dirty for a paycheck beats having to look good for work.

"I don't have to get fresh and pretty to go to work," he said. "Every day can be a hat day. Clean clothes are optional. Deodorant — optional. I get up, eat, brush my teeth and go to work."

Up the hill, David Stookey, owner of the Oriental Express cart on the Pedestrian Mall, said his business has been slow because people don't want to brave the heat and humidity — even for a glass of cold lemonade.

"People aren't coming out. They're staying in because of the heat," Stookey said. "Usually between 12 and 1 p.m., this place is like an anthill, but this week you can stand here all day and not tell the difference."

The heat affects more than the business — Stookey said it's also a personal nuisance. The cart has grills to make food, but Stookey said they haven't been fired up in two days because extra heat is unbearable with the regular temperature noon.

The Davises, who have been married a year and a half, are expecting their first child — Sara Davis is nine weeks pregnant. After a miscarriage last summer, doctors warned her to avoid stressful situations to increase her chances of carrying her pregnancy full-term. Sara Davis said Wednesday's incident was unlike any she had experienced since marrying Howard.

and humidity.

However, Stookey asserted conditions are somewhat tolerable, and he tries to beat the heat by drinking lemonade and keeping profit motive in mind. But even lemonade can get monotonous.

"It's hot right now, but the majority of the time it's not too bad. It's the downside of the business," Stookey said. "Don't get me wrong; I'm sick of lemonade, but it tastes good when it's 98 degrees."

of the country," Clinton said in Edison, N.J., where he was touring a Ford Motor Co. plant.

Dole suggested Clinton had been the one looking ahead to the next presidential election — seeking to split the Republican party on the emotional abortion issue.

And he said Democrats complaining that Republicans were denying Foster a clear-cut Senate vote had forgotten numerous cases in which a Democratic majority did much the same thing to Republican nominees.

"Facts can be stubborn things. And the facts show that the double standard is alive and well in Washington today," Dole said.

For his part, the 61-year-old doctor seemed upbeat.

Standing with Senate Democrats — including Barbara Mikulski, whose eyes were full of tears — Foster said:

"I am disappointed in today's outcome, certainly. Would I have liked a different outcome? Absolutely. But I remain strong and honored by being the president's choice for surgeon general and I intend to keep fighting for the things I believe in my heart."

Foster said he was glad that his nomination put the issue of teen pregnancy in the national spotlight.

Republican opponents — accused of playing presidential and abortion politics at the expense of the Nashville, Tenn., obstetrician-gynecologist — said much more than abortion was involved in Foster's defeat. They said he was the wrong person to follow Joycelyn Elders' stormy tenure in the job.

They also accused Foster of lacking credibility — primarily for giving various answers about how many abortions he had performed in 38 years as a doctor, before settling on a final number of 39.

In Thursday's debate, Sen. Bob Smith, R-N.H., who is sponsoring a bill to ban late-term abortions, held a plastic fetus in front of the television cameras and displayed graphic pictures of a rare type of late abortion.

Furious Democrats lashed out at the attempt to link Foster — who has delivered 10,000 babies — to that procedure.

"If you want to outlaw abortion, if you want to make it a crime, if you want to put women in jail for having them, if you want to put doctors in jail, bring the legislation to the floor," Sen. Barbara Boxer said in a fiery speech.

hydrate itself. Symptoms can include headaches, nausea, inability to sweat and a high body temperature.

Mercy Hospital, 500 E. Market St., treated several cases of heat exhaustion this week as Iowa City's temperatures averaged in the high 90s.

To treat heat exhaustion, the body is hydrated using intravenous fluids and cooling blankets.

Anyone is susceptible to heat exhaustion, especially those working outside in the sun, small children and senior citizens. However, the heat shouldn't force people to abandon all of their outdoor activities, said Karen Vittergruen, charge nurse in Mercy's emergency room.

People should avoid strenuous activity during the hottest time of the day, which is between noon and 4 p.m., Vittergruen said. She also stressed the importance of keeping hydrated.

"As long as you drink a lot of liquids, it's possible to keep jogging and doing your normal activities," Vittergruen said.

But, if left untreated, heat exhaustion can lead to heat stroke, which can be fatal.

While UI Hospitals and Clinics haven't treated any cases of heat exhaustion this week, Mark Graber, faculty member of UIHC's Family and Emergency Practice Unit, said when the temperatures are this high, everyone is at risk. Graber advised people to wear cool clothing and avoid overexertion. Ideally, he said, people should just take it easy.

"In this kind of weather, the best thing to do is just stay in the shade and sip lemonade," Graber said.

have a negotiation over the final product," White House budget chief Alice Rivlin told Congress' Joint Economic Committee on Thursday. "It may not come until September; it may not come until later than that."

As word of the near-agreement spread on Capitol Hill, it received the endorsement of Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. The presidential candidate had threatened to oppose it unless it exceeded the tax cuts and defense spending the Senate's budget allowed.

"I see it as a clear victory for the things that I believe in," Gramm told reporters.

The bargaining between House and Senate Republicans has taken three weeks. Though both chambers share the goal of eliminating the deficit, they were sharply split over tax cuts.

The House had approved $350 billion worth of lowered levies over seven years, including a $500 per child tax credit, a reduced capital gains tax rate on sales of assets and other reductions for corporations and individual retirement accounts. The Senate had endorsed $170 billion in unspecified reductions, to occur only if Congress passes a legitimate balanced-budget plan.

According to House and Senate GOP sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, the two chambers' bargainers were nearing agreement on tax reductions in the $230 billion to $249 billion range.

The compromise is to vaguely describe the reductions as helping families and economic growth, but will leave room for the House versions of the children's tax credit and capital gains tax. It will also call for improved IRAs, a credit for people who owe higher taxes after getting married and eased estate taxes for small businesses and farmers.

It remained unclear how the tax cuts would be paid for. One option under discussion had been to simply allow higher deficits during the early years of the plan than the Senate had envisioned with its smaller tax-cut package.

PRIME TIME

seen one out in California where he was coaching at Stanford." Prime Time League founder Randy Larsen said.

Iowa sophomore Greg Helmers played in the league last year.

"It keeps you in shape over the summer and it really gives you more playing experience against guys that are the same height or bigger," he said.

Helmers also explained that it was a big benefit to play with future Hawkeye teammates.

"It lets you know a little bit about their playing style before the season starts," he explained. "It gives you a feel for how they are as a person and how they play with other guys out there on the court."

One future Hawkeye that is reaping the benefits now is Davis, who will be a junior at Davenport North High School in the fall.

"It's fun," Davis says of the league, "and it helps me work on my game, defensively and offensively, play good team ball and play against good competition."

Murray says he likes playing with high school stars like Davis and Koch as much as they like playing with him.

"Those guys are gonna' be superstars, especially Ricky," Murray said. "It's going to be scary how good he can get."

Murray isn't just involved in the league for a good time though. He explained that the league can be extremely beneficial if you have the right attitude.

"If you just want to come in here and run up and down the court and play halfheartedly, then you're not going to develop any," he explained. "But I'm coming in here this year trying to work on my whole game, my passing, my dribbling and those types of things."

Murray will continue developing over the next year as he strives to reach the next level. But one player that is already there finds the league equally helpful.

Matt Fish, who spent last season with the Los Angeles Clippers and the CBA's Quad-City Thunder decided to return to the league he played in as a sophomore in college.

"It went real well (the first time), it keeps you in shape and Randy was trying to get me to come back, so I thought I'd give it a try," Fish said.

White Sox' John Kruk crosses home to score against the Seattle Mariners in the second inning Thursday.

Mariners edge White Sox, 3-2

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Dan Wilson's first homer of the season broke a seventh-inning tie as Salomon Torres earned his first American League victory.

Torres (1-3) allowed just three hits over six innings to record his first victory since May 27, 1994 when he was with San Francisco. Bobby Ayala pitched 1 2-3 innings for his 11th save.

Jim Abbott (3-3) allowed 10 hits, including the two-out homer to Wilson, who was in a 7-for-46 slump, that broke a 2-2 tie. Abbott walked one and struck out seven in his first complete game of the season.

Brewers 9, Blue Jays 0
TORONTO — In a game in which seven fans were injured by falling tiles, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 9-0 Thursday.

Five people were treated for cuts at the SkyDome's medical center and released, and an elderly man was given stitches.

A teen-age girl with head cuts was brought to Toronto Western Hospital.

The 30-pound wooden panels fell 40-50 feet from the facing of the fifth deck to the crowd below.

Red Sox 4, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE — Roger Clemens

stymied Baltimore over 6½ innings, his longest outing of the season, and Mo Vaughn hit his 18th homer to tie Oakland's Mark McGwire for the league lead.

Clemens (2-1) allowed six hits and no earned runs in his fifth start since leaving the disabled list June 2. He struck out one, walked three and hit a batter.

Reds 9, Braves 8

CINCINNATI — Pinch-hitter Eddie Taubensee hit a two-run homer to cap Cincinnati's five-run eighth inning as the Reds out-homered the Atlanta Braves 9-8 Thursday.

Jerome Walton, Reggie Sanders and Eric Anthony also homered for Cincinnati, while David Justice, Charlie O'Brien and Chipper Jones connected for the Braves.

With Atlanta leading 8-4 in the eighth, Mark Wohlers relieved Greg McMichael with runners on first and second. Anthony, who was pinch-hitting, hit Wohlers' 0-2 pitch for his first homer of the season.

Rockies 3, Padres 2

SAN DIEGO — Armando Reynoso combined with five relievers on a six-hitter to win his first start in 13 months as the Colorado Rockies beat the San Diego Padres 3-2 Thursday.

Colorado won its fourth straight game this season over the Padres, who are 2½ games behind the NL West-leading Rockies. San Diego entered the game the closest it had been to first place this late in the season since June 1986.

Phillies 8, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Mariano Duncan had four hits and scored three times as the Phillies won their sixth straight.

The Phillies completed a four-game sweep and won their eighth in a row on the road. Tom Marsh, who drove in three runs, Charlie Hayes and Jim Eisenreich each had three of Philadelphia's season-high 19 hits.

Michael Limbs (6-1) doubled and scored the go-ahead run in the fourth inning. He began the game 1-for-17 as a hitter in the majors, and had never scored.

Cubs 13, Astros 2

HOUSTON — Sammy Sosa hit a three-run homer and drove in five runs and Shawon Dunston returned from a two-game suspension with a two-run double as the Chicago Cubs handed Houston its seventh straight home loss, 13-2 on Thursday night.

The Astros had just returned from winning seven games on a nine-game road trip and dropped to 7-16 in the Astrodome. They are 19-9 on the road.

Dwight and Darryl reunited

Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Drug-troubled Darryl Strawberry moved to new turf Thursday as New York Yankees boss George Steinbrenner promised to be tough.

Strawberry pal Dwight Gooden, suspended one year because of drug use, promised home-cooked meals.

"We've been through the good times together and the bad times together, and now it's time for the good times again," said Gooden, offering support to his former New York Mets teammate.

"Whenever he comes in, my mother always cooks him a big dinner, so I know we're going to have a big meal," added Gooden, a four-time All-Star who lives in nearby St. Petersburg.

Strawberry, beginning his comeback from a suspension for cocaine use, was reporting Thursday to the New York Yankees' minor league complex.

He agreed Monday to a one-year contract guaranteeing him $850,000. To start, he will play under a minor-league contract that pays him $10,000 per month.

Strawberry's signing came in for criticism Tuesday by White House drug policy adviser Lee Brown, who said the club "struck out" by the hiring and was sending a terrible message to young people.

Los Angeles Dodgers manager Tom Lasorda, for whom Strawberry once played, suggested that the outfielder belonged in prison stripes rather than pin-stripes.

Steinbrenner defended the signing.

"He'll be working for the toughest boss in sports," he said. "I demand loyalty in return. He'll be working for a disciplined organization. He'll be trying to save his life, help his family. Who knows? I could have egg on my face at the end of this thing."

Gooden, 30, and Strawberry, 33, were stars of the Mets in the 1980s, but both since have been suspended for drug-related problems.

'THE MICK'

Recovery hits snag

Terry Wallace
Associated Press

DALLAS — Mickey Mantle began a new round Thursday in his fight for life with a transplanted liver — a battle within his body to reject the vital organ implanted two weeks ago.

The "light rejection" was expected and is being treated with high doses of steroids, said Dr. Goran Klintmalm, medical director of the Baylor Institute for Transplant Sciences.

Doctors performed a biopsy of the baseball great's new liver Wednesday morning after blood tests showed signs of diminished function, Klintmalm said.

"His body has realized that,

"Gosh, that liver is not my own" and the body is responding as if that liver is a large virus — and it's trying to kill it," Klintmalm said. "We are able to moderate this response. This is something we expected, it happened, and we are treating it."

Mantle, listed in stable condition, is feeling no discomfort, his doctors said.

"He's kind of hoping he can get on the golf course before too long," said Dr. Daniel DeMarco, a gastroenterologist treating Mantle, who has been hospitalized since May 28.

Mantle will continue to receive precautionary chemotherapy for the liver cancer that prompted the June 8 transplant. He was to undergo a round of chemotherapy Thursday or Friday, Klintmalm said. Mantle received his doctors' diagnosis on Wednesday somberly and in a fashion typical of those whose elation over receiving a life-saving transplant is deflated.

JONES VS PAZIENZA

Let's get ready to rumble

Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — It ought to be clear by now that Vinny Pazienza lives to fight.

After all, he's fought and won 11 times since he was told he'd never fight because he broke his neck in an auto accident Nov. 12, 1991.

Still, he's being asked why he does it — and especially why, at age 32, he wants to fight unbeaten Roy Jones Jr., arguably the best pound-for-pound boxer in the world.

"Any time you get in a boxing ring you endanger your health," Pazienza said Thursday. "It's a crazy game. You live and die with the sword. I'm not going to get hurt, but if I do, it's the way I choose to go out. Same way with Roy. He's a warrior. If something happens to him, it is the way chooses."

As for being overmatched in his challenge to Jones for the IBF super middleweight championship Saturday at the Convention Center, Pazienza said, people say it'll be a tough fight for me. Well, it'll be a tough fight for Roy, too.

"Yes Roy's a great fighter. He's got natural talent, but I know in my heart I'm going to pull it off," Pazienza said. Should Pazienza pull an upset, he would become a champion for the third time, having held the IBF light-weight and WBA super middleweight titles. His record is 40-5, with 27 knockouts.

Associated Press

Roy Jones Jr. and Vinny Pazienza at a news conference at the Trump Regency Hotel in Atlantic City Thursday.

"I know of his will, his heart and his determination," said Jones, 28-0 with 24 knockouts.

"I ain't going out like James Toney. I ain't going to get knocked out like Antoine Byrd."

Vinny Pazienza, on his fight with Roy Jones Jr.

But, added Jones, he has a lot of desire, too, and "a whole pile of skill on top of it."

Jones, a former IBF middleweight champion, won the 165-pound title on a surprisingly one-sided decision over James Toney last Nov. 18. In his only defense, he stopped top-ranked Antoine Byrd at 2:06 of the first round March 18 in Jones' hometown of Pensacola, Fla.

"I don't feel like I've been getting any respect," said Pazienza, of Cranston, R.I. "I ain't going out like James Toney. I ain't going to get knocked out like Antoine Byrd."

Pazienza also put himself above Jorge Castro, the first man to go the distance with Jones, and Bernard Hopkins, out-pointed by Jones for the middleweight title in 1993.

"I know he's not James Toney, Jorge Castro or any of those other guys he mentioned," Jones said. "But they're lucky, they're not next."

Pazienza also said Jones is not like Roberto Duran, who he outpointed in two of his last three fights.

"Jones is a good guy," Pazienza said.

Over 100 players agree to decertify union

NEW YORK (AP) — One-third of the NBA's players went forward Thursday with their effort to decertify the union, the day before team owners and player representatives were to vote on a new labor agreement.

A lawyer representing Michael Jordan, Patrick Ewing, Scottie Pippen and other dissident players submitted to the National Labor Relations Board the names of more than 100 players wanting to decertify.

The union has 324 members, and at least 30 percent must ask the NLRB to hold a decertification election.

The NLRB wouldn't confirm the number of signatures submitted.

Raiders move not just talk

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Raiders' possible return to Oakland might be more than a simple flirtation.

Radio reports say the team is ending its 13-year stay in Los Angeles. John Madden, the broadcaster and ex-Raiders coach — when the team played in Oakland — insists the move is coming. A league spokesman terms word of a "done deal" as "premature."

Through it all, Al Davis, the club's maverick owner, seems as puzzled as anyone.

A move back to Oakland, the city the Raiders abandoned in 1982, would leave Los Angeles, the nation's second-largest television market, without an NFL team. Two months ago, the Rams' move from Anaheim to St. Louis was approved by the league.

Madden, who has remained close to Davis, declared on KNBR radio in San Francisco on Wednesday that the Raiders were returning to Oakland and an announcement was forthcoming. KCBS radio also reported the Raiders were returning.

BASEBALL

Seven injured in Skydome accident

TORONTO (AP) — Two 30-pound tiles fell from the upper deck of the SkyDome during a baseball game Thursday, injuring seven fans and sending other spectators scrambling for cover.

Two people were removed on stretchers after the panels fell 40-50 feet from the facing of the fifth deck to the crowd below.

Five people were treated for cuts at the SkyDome's medical center and released, and an elderly man was given stitches. A teen-age girl with head cuts was brought to Toronto Western Hospital.

The game wasn't stopped, and many in the crowd of 43,490 weren't immediately aware of what happened.

Baseball dealt media blow

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC and NBC told major league baseball Thursday they are quitting The Baseball Network following this season.

Long walks away from football ... for now

Mike Triplett
The Daily Iowan

One of the greatest players in Iowa football history has decided, with a little help from the Detroit Lions, that it's time to stop playing the game he says he's always had a passion for.

Quarterback Chuck Long, who holds the career records for passing yardage, completions, attempts and touchdowns at Iowa, has retired from the NFL after nine seasons, spent mostly in Detroit.

"I was fortunate to play nine years in the NFL and I can say that I beat the averages," Long said Thursday. "But I still have a passion for the game, which is why I'd love to return to coaching."

Long also mentioned that he's always wanted to return to the Midwest, but had no comment on the possibility of returning to the Hawkeyes in a coaching role.

Detroit Free Press writer Curt Sylvester, a University of Iowa graduate that covered the Lions during Long's tenure, said that he could envision Long returning to Iowa as an assistant.

"He would really like to get into coaching and to coach at Iowa," Sylvester said. "He's really a sharp guy and it was a shame to see him (leave Detroit)."

The Lions, who drafted Long in 1986, then picked him back up in 1991 and 1994, didn't need Long this year with Scott Mitchell, Don Majkowski, Don Hollis and Gino Torretta either on the roster or near the roster, according to Sylvester.

"Last year I was out of football and I could have been done then," Long said. "Then Detroit called me back."

"I pretty much knew it was over when I left (after the '94 season). I was lucky to get in one last year."

Long nearly won the Heisman Trophy in his senior season at Iowa, falling to Auburn's Bo Jackson in the closest vote in history. But once Long reached the pros, he was no longer on top of the game.

"There's guys that play, there's guys that don't play and there's guys that get injured," he said. "I was all three, but mostly the latter. Injuries set in for me at crucial times."

"I never got to establish what people want to know — Can he play or can't he? — which is disappointing. To this day, people still want to know if I can play."

Long explained that injuries and bad timing led to the fact that he never really got to shine in the NFL.

"With Detroit I went through five or six different offenses, three or four offensive coordinators, and the head coach that drafted me was fired, he said. "It was a difficult situation."

But, he added, "I was very loyal to Detroit. I wanted to be loyal to Detroit. That means more than anything to me."

Long spent seven loyal seasons with the Lions, and one with the Los Angeles Rams. He had his highlights — 12 games and over 2,500 yards passing in 1987 and a touchdown in his very first NFL play — but for the most part Long's career was spent in a backup role.

But if he has any regrets, they don't show.

"I never thought it would go this far," he said. "I always had a goal — I wanted to take it as far as I could. And I did."

Devils shut down Wings

Mike Nadel
Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Determined to show they could excel at the Meadowlands Arena, the New Jersey Devils earned the right to win the Stanley Cup there.

New Jersey, the NHL's record-setting road team this postseason, used a rare dominating home performance to defeat the Detroit Red Wings 5-2 Thursday night and move within one win of a championship series sweep.

The Devils can wrap up their first title Saturday night at home, where they are only 5-3 in the playoffs compared with 10-1 on the road.

If Detroit is to end its 40-year Stanley Cup drought, it must become only the second team to overcome a 3-0 deficit in the best-of-7 finals.

Toronto beat Detroit in 1942 after dropping the first three games. The New York Islanders were the only other team in any round ever to stage such a comeback, defeating Pittsburgh in 1975.

Detroit had opened 3-0 leads in each of its three previous series.

Claude Lemieux scored his league-high 13th playoff goal. And led by rugged defenseman Scott Stevens, the tight-checking Devils again kept the NHL's top regular-season team from mounting any sustained pressure on goalie Martin Brodeur.

Brodeur made 22 saves and led 5-0 until Sergei Fedorov and Steve Yzerman scored power-play goals in the final 3:03. New Jersey has allowed two or fewer goals in 16 of its 19 playoff contests.

Bruce Driver, Neal Broten, Randy McKay and Bobby Holik also scored for New Jersey, which outshot Detroit for the third consecutive game. The Devils' 31-24 edge gave them an 82-59 series advantage against a Detroit team that averaged 36 shots this season. The Red Wings were outshot only once in the first three rounds.

The Devils, usually content to make life miserable for their opponents and wait for mistakes before taking the offensive, had such control Thursday that they were able to open their attack on several occasions.

BORN-AGAIN RAIDERS

From soft and pretty to sadistic and violent

I had this horrible dream.

In favor of a larger television market, my beloved Raiders actually left Oakland just a year and a half after downing the Eagles in Super Bowl XV.

The city: Los Angeles. The same city where fans show up for Dodgers' games in the third inning and leave in the seventh to avoid traffic.

A city where athletes like Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Merlin Olson and Fred Dryer were more concerned with their acting careers than their athletic careers.

A city where a beautiful day means you can actually see the sun and don't half to wait in three hours of traffic just to get to Baskin Robbins.

The citizens of Oakland were crushed by the loss of the NFL's most feared team. Now, searching for some sort of release, they had to look across the San Francisco Bay for quality football.

Instead what they found was the 49ers, a team led by a pretty boy from Notre Dame robed in bright red and gold. A good team, but one-tenth the character.

The Silver and Black was gone to a city that already had a team of its own, the Rams. Left behind by the Raiders was a legacy of intimidation, relentless punishment and success.

For a few years, the Raiders were successful in L.A.; they even won a Super Bowl. But something still seemed wrong: The Raiders were playing in the "City of Angels."

Season by season, more Raiders who had experienced playing in Oakland were retiring or leaving for other clubs and the team's success began to dwindle.

Finally, there was only one Oakland Raider left on the team — Howie Long — and the team's fire was smothered by Los Angeles smog. Even hiring Art Shell as head coach, a former Oakland offensive lineman, couldn't save the franchise.

Names like Alzado and Matuszak, men who would forego the ball-carrier just to rip the helmet off a Denver quarterback, were replaced by pretty-boys looking for the big shoe endorsement. Instead of Plunkett to Branch, it was Maranovich to "Rocket."

Commentators still talked about the Raiders' tradition of intimidation, but that's all it was — talk.

Los Angeles was just like all the other teams: soft, unmotivated and pretty. Occasionally, some Raiders would try to regain what was once theirs. They'd push and shove their opponents, trying to look tough, but in the end they'd just hurt themselves with stupid penalties.

In Oakland, the Raiders were more intelligent than they were in L.A. They knew how to cheap shot

Clinton lauds working-class housing during Arkansas visit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President Clinton denounced GOP budget cuts at a newly renovated low-income apartment project Sunday, calling it the kind of "practical partnership" Republicans want to dismantle.

Wrapping up a three-day visit to his home state, Clinton praised the 45-unit Mahlon Martin Apartments in downtown Little Rock as "a concrete, specific example of what I have been trying to say to the American people now for two and a half years."

There has been a heavy political undercurrent to Clinton's trip, which included $1 million re-election fund-raisers in Little Rock and in New Jersey.

"These facilities ... are going to give homes to working people who don't have enough money to get by," Clinton said.

"The real heroes in American society today are the people who get by every day, work a full week, raise their kids the best they can and do not have enough money to get by," he added.

"You don't have to be a genius to understand that if people are working for a living and trying to raise their children, they ought to have a decent place to live."

Woman dies in car crash after being kidnapped by boyfriend

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A man who didn't want to break up with his girlfriend kidnapped her and slammed head-on into another car at about 130 mph as police chased him, authorities said.

The girl and the two people in the other car were killed. Carl Ford, 22, was hospitalized in serious condition.

Police believe Ford beat and choked Kimberly Maatta, 17, to the point of unconsciousness, but that she was killed by the highway wreck Saturday, said Detective Danny Navarre.

Where else but in the Prime Time League?

Where else can Hawkeye basketball fans see the past, present and future Iowa greats?

Where else can someone see future Hawkeye star Ricky Davis and current Iowa big-man Russ Millard trade spectacular dunks at the end of one game, then see former Hawkeye guard James Moses nail a game-winning 30-footer at the end of another game on the same court?

Where else can someone find a team roster that includes Davis, incoming freshman J.R. Koch, senior forward Kenyon Murray, NBA center Acie Earl and a pair of Hawkeye football players?

The ninth annual Prime Time League holds its games in two gyms at Iowa City High on Sunday, Wednesday and occasional Friday nights. Eight teams play 40-minute games beginning at 6:30 or 8 p.m.
