BORN-AGAIN RAIDERS

From soft and pretty to sadistic and violent

I had this horrible dream. In favor of a larger television market, my beloved Raiders actually left Oakland just a year and a half after downing the Eagles in Super Bowl XV.

The city: Los Angeles. The same city where fans show up for Dodgers' games in the third inning and leave in the seventh to avoid traffic.

A city where athletes like Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Merlin Olson and Fred Dryer were more concerned with their acting careers than their athletic careers.

A city where a beautiful day means you can actually see the sun and don't half to wait in three hours of traffic just to get to Baskin Robbins.

The citizens of Oakland were crushed by the loss of the NFL's most feared team. Now, searching for some sort of release, they had to look across the San Francisco Bay for quality football.

Instead what they found was the 49ers, a team led by a pretty boy from Notre Dame robed in bright red and gold. A good team, but one without the character.

The Silver and Black was gone to a city that already had a team of its own, the Rams. Left behind by the Raiders was a legacy of intimidation, relentless punishment and success.

For a few years, the Raiders were successful in L.A.; they even won a Super Bowl. But something still seemed wrong: The Raiders were playing in the "City of Angels."

Season by season, more Raiders who had experienced playing in Oakland were retiring or leaving for other clubs and the team's success began to dwindle.

Finally, there was only one Oakland Raider left on the team — Howie Long — and the team's fire was smothered by Los Angeles' fog. Even hiring Art Shell as head coach, a former Oakland offensive lineman, couldn't save the franchise.

Names like Alzado and Matuzsak, men who would forego the ball-carrier just to rip the helmet off a Denver quarterback, were replaced by pretty-boys looking for the big shoe endorsement. Instead of Plunkett to Branch, it was Jarvanovich to "Rocket."

Commentators still talked about the Raiders' tradition of intimidation, but that's all it was — talk.

Los Angeles was just like all the other teams: soft, unmotivated and pretty. Occasionally, some Raiders would try to regain what was once theirs. They'd push and shove their opponents, trying to look tough, but in the end they'd just hurt themselves with stupid penalties.

In Oakland, the Raiders were more intelligent than they were in L.A. They knew how to cheap shot

Clinton lauds working-class housing during Arkansas visit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — President Clinton denounced GOP budget cuts at a newly renovated low-income apartment project Sunday, calling it the kind of "practical partnership" Republicans want to dismantle.

Wrapping up a three-day visit to his home state, Clinton praised the 45-unit Mahlon Martin Apartments in downtown Little Rock as "a concrete, specific example of what I have been trying to say to the American people now for two and a half years."

There has been a heavy political undercurrent to Clinton's trip, which included $1 million re-election fund-raisers in Little Rock and in New Jersey.

"These facilities ... are going to give homes to working people who don't have enough money to get by," Clinton said.

"The real heroes in American society today are the people who get by every day, work a full week, raise their kids the best they can and do not have enough money to get by," he added.

"You don't have to be a genius to understand that if people are working for a living and trying to raise their children, they ought to have a decent place to live."

Woman dies in car crash after being kidnapped by boyfriend

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — A man who didn't want to break up with his girlfriend kidnapped her and slammed head-on into another car at about 130 mph as police chased him, authorities said.

The girl and the two people in the other car were killed. Carl Ford, 22, was hospitalized in serious condition.

Police believe Ford beat and choked Kimberly Maatta, 17, to the point of unconsciousness, but that she was killed by the highway wreck Saturday, said Detective Danny Navarre.

Justice Burger dead at 87

Former Supreme Court chief suffers congestive heart failure

Richard Carelli
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Retired Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger, who wrote the opinions that legally defined obscenity, established busing as a tool to end segregation and forced President Nixon to release the Watergate tapes, died Sunday. He was 87.

Burger died at Sibley Memorial Hospital of congestive heart failure, said Toni House, spokeswoman for the court.

The nation's 15th chief justice, Burger served from 1969 to 1986, the longest tenure this century.

"Justice Burger was a strong, powerful, visionary chief justice who opened the doors of opportunity," President Clinton said in a statement issued in Little Rock, Ark. "As chief justice, he was concerned with the administration of the court, serving with enthusiasm and always making sure it was above reproach.

"His expansive view of the Constitution and his tireless service will leave a lasting imprint on the court and our nation."

A champion of judicial reform, Burger retired in 1986 and devoted full attention to his duties as the unpaid chairman of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

In that post, he led the national celebrations of the Constitution's 200th anniversary in 1987 and the Bill of Rights' 200th anniversary in 1989.

"Warren presided with great distinction over some of the most significant decisions in the court's history," said William Rogers, secretary of state under Nixon and attorney general in the Eisenhower administration. "With the passage of time, his great contribution to the history of our nation will be more and more understood and appreciated."

Former President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, issued a joint statement offering condolences to Burger's family.

ENID, Okla. — Trying to put a human face on the man charged with killing 168 people in the Oklahoma City bombing, Timothy McVeigh's attorneys released photos and videotape Sunday showing him smiling and relaxed.

"The principal purpose behind it is to present our client as he really is," attorney Stephen Jones said at a news conference at his office.

Jones wanted to counteract pictures of a stone-faced McVeigh, dressed in an orange prison jumpsuit, as he was led from jail two days after the April 19 bombing of the Alfred P. Murrah Federal

GOP ISSUES CHALLENGED

Foster rejection fuels 2-day abortion debate

Nita Lelyveld

WASHINGTON — When Dr. Henry Foster lost his battle to be surgeon general, President Clinton gained a potent campaign issue. His allies think a passionate defense of abortion rights could revitalize his fight for re-election.

"It's a terrific issue and the Republicans gave it to us," said Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., who pulled no punches in defending the Tennessee obstetrician-gynecologist in the two-day Senate debate.

Boxer and other Democratic supporters watched for five months as Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole and Sen. Phil

Gramm, both contenders for the GOP presidential nomination, positioned themselves against Foster.

For months, they railed that Gramm and Dole were bending over backwards to please the Christian right — succumbing to

NEW YORK — Tens of thousands of people, from men dressed as fairies on stilts to Buddhists to police officers, celebrated their homosexuality and mourned losses to AIDS as they marched Sunday in the annual gay pride parade.

No arrests were reported in the parade down Fifth Avenue as rumors that marchers might disrobe in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral proved groundless.

One woman did briefly bare her breasts, but wasn't arrested.

Conformity: Don't leave home without it

Not that many people like Mondays, but Sundays are almost worse. I got up to come to work and was ready to write a happy, please-all-of-the-people kind of column, but as I was driving my motorcycle to work, I got caught in the rain.

Needless to say, I wasn't in the best of moods when I arrived. So I sat down, shivering and wetter than 10 kids and two hippies in the Ped Mall fountain, when I began to think about stupid things.

Specifically, I read some graffiti that said "All conformists will burn in Hell." Good sentiment, but it's a little bit vague.

Does the author mean all the backwards-baseball-cap-wearing, plaid shirt people who run around like idiots, but are cool because they all look the same?

Or is the author talking about preppy little kids who come to the UI and all of a sudden grow long hair and beards, smoke the same cigarettes as their friends do and have a fetish for patchouli?

Or maybe the author is referring to the unnamed, oppressed conformists who fight back by anonymously littering public places with inane ranting.

Don't get me wrong, I'm all for individuality, but this "non-conformity" thing is too broad for my taste. Being your own person rules, because you can do what you want, but some people who conform make me pretty damn glad they do.

For instance, I like people who conform to clean air and water acts and people who conform to most aspects of the law. (Maybe not underage drinkers — they're OK.) It's nice to know that for the most part, citizens don't have to worry about getting killed because someone out there decided not to conform to society's unfair, fascist rules.

If nobody conformed to anyone else's standards, there would have to be 35,000 bars on campus — one for each person. The problem is everyone would have to conform to the bar owners' standards; so really, everyone would have to open their own bar, just to hang out and non-conform in.

Or imagine this: "Did you watch 'Friends' last week?"

"No, 'cause there's this guy in Colorado who turned it on first, and so I couldn't watch it. You see, I'm a non-conformist."

I certainly don't advocate being just like everyone else, and would recommend you don't do something you don't want to just 'cause everyone else is. If everyone else jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge, would you, too?

Just think a little bit about your actions and words so you don't do anything stupid like write "All conformists will burn in Hell" under a bridge without any explanation.

Speaking of thinking, people have said some pretty stupid things to me that got me to wondering, "Why would they say that? They must be stupid."

About a week ago I was working, and it was getting close to closing time. My girlfriend, the best one in the whole world, was waiting outside for me when this guy comes in and says:

"There's some chick waiting for you outside — good job, man."

So I said, "Yeah, it's my girlfriend," thinking he'd shut up.

And so he says, "Man, she's got great t--"

I was really torn between leaving him alone and beating the crap out of him, so I just said, "That was the most un--ing cool thing I've ever heard."

What would possess anyone to say that? Must be stupid. Maybe he thought he was giving me a compliment, or he thought I'd say, "Hey, thanks — you like 'em? Would you like to have a feel? Go ahead, you big lug."

I'm not sure what makes people say things like that, but I'm glad most people conform to not making rude, stupid comments about other people's intimates.

Here's something else: I rode my bike through a red light a while back (you see, I'm a non-conformist), and some guy waiting in his car yelled, "You just rode through a red light."

So I said, "Yes, I guess I did," and rode past him. What was his problem? I hate when people feel like everything is their business. Like the lady I passed as she was walking one night, who yelled to me, "Get a light for that thing!" But she sounded like she enjoyed giving orders more than being concerned for my safety.

These are the kind of people who probably sit at home watching "Wheel of Fortune," yelling out the answers before the contestants do and thinking, "I should be on this show; I'm so smart."

Get off my case — what am I going to do, go back and wait at the light? If people want to jaywalk, ignore red lights, use fake IDs or buy weed, it's their choice — and their risk. Police are there for a reason, so all of you morale cops out there can keep it to yourself — these people are non-conformists.

Quotable...

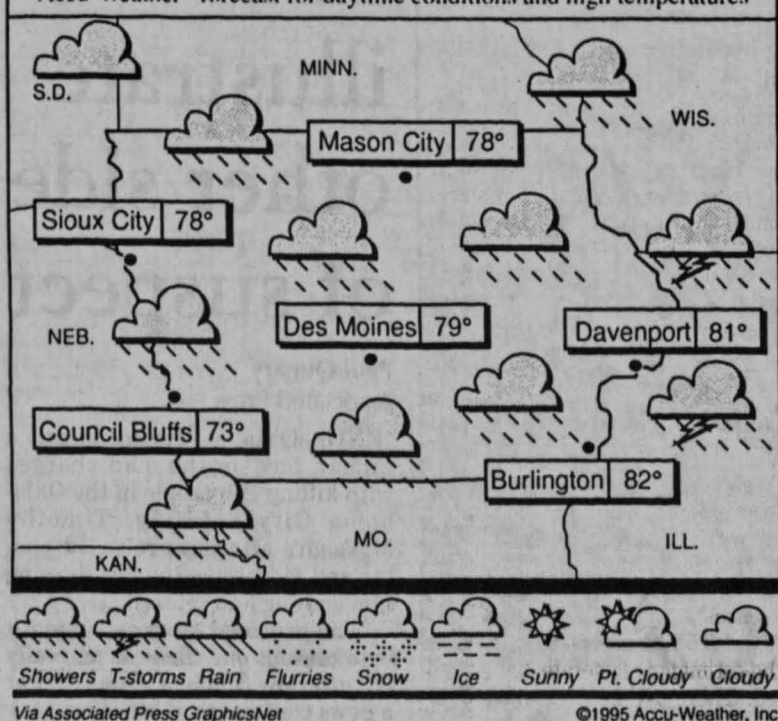

"To have a woman's body displayed on the floor of the Senate in that graphic way and to try to say that that type of abortion has something to do with Dr. Foster was really beyond belief."

Neil Young entertains disappointed Pearl Jam fans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Neil Young went from guest to fill-in at a Pearl Jam concert when singer Eddie Vedder walked off with the flu.

Vedder called it quits after six songs Saturday night at Golden Gate Park. He had been treated at a hospital emergency room a few hours before the show.

"I just went through the worst 24 hours of my life," he told the crowd of about 50,000.

Young played for 1 1/2 hours, mixing classics with new songs from his album Mirror Ball, due out this week.

There was no mistaking the crowd's disappointment.

"We want to know where the hell Eddie is," said Lissa Harrison of Dublin, Calif. "We don't care if he's puking. I didn't go to Neil Young. I came to Pearl Jam."

"We're extremely bummed out, kind of like disappointed," added Julie Gerbel of San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Novelist reluctant to trust Hollywood screenwriting

WINTERGREEN, Va. (AP) — After five best-selling crime novels featuring a sleuthing coroner, author Patricia Cornwell is taking no chances on her first movie adaptation.

She is penning the screenplay herself from her upcoming book, "From Potter's Field," and is determined to retain control of how protagonist Dr. Kay Scarpetta is portrayed on film.

"There is a tradition in Hollywood to disrespect authors and their work," Cornwell told a gathering of newspaper editors.

"The reason there has been no movie is that every time I get close to the altar, I run like hell."

Cornwell's most recent novel, "The Body Farm," spent about three months on best-seller lists last fall. Two earlier books, "Cruel and Unusual" and "All That Remains," had similar success.

Bulls superstar visits namesake science gallery

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — As he toured a new children's science exhibit that bears his name, Michael Jordan was asked if he could toss stuffed "bugs" into the mouth of a toy Venus flytrap.

"If I can't, I'm in trouble," Jordan said. Then he calmly sank the shot.

The basketball superstar was the initial donor to the Michael Jordan Discovery Gallery at the Cape Fear Museum. Saturday night's opening was his first public appearance in his hometown since a stretch of highway was dedicated in his honor four years ago.

Along with interactive displays, such as the flytrap and a mini dune-making machine, the gallery includes a display of old Jordan jerseys and other memorabilia from his high school and college days in North Carolina.

'All My Children' star won't miss Lucci

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Susan Lucci has a way of getting on people's nerves as a soap opera femme fatale, and her television daughter says it carried over off screen.

"Susan and I were not best friends, and we're never going to be," said Sarah Michelle Gellar, who next week leaves her Emmy-winning role of Kendall Hart on ABC's "All My Children."

"Basically, the best I can say is that we worked together — on top of each other — for so long that problems were inevitable," she says in the July 1 issue of TV Guide.

Gellar, 18, said she asked to leave the show — before her contract expired next February — to work in films.

Lucci has never won an Emmy in 15 nominations. Gellar won the award her first time nominated.

NRA assets exhausted due to extensive deficit spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Rifle Association, engaged in a vigorous struggle against gun control, has operated in the red for four years and been forced to deplete its cash reserves and investments drastically, according to confidential NRA documents.

The documents, prepared for the NRA board of directors and obtained by The Associated Press, show that the powerful gun lobby has run cumulative operating deficits of $69 million between 1991 and 1993. An additional $3 million deficit is projected for last year.

The trend prompted a former NRA president to say that the organization's current leadership is spending its money like "young heirs who came into an estate built up by their parents and grandparents."

The largest components of recent spending — according to the documents — have been expensive fundraising efforts, and construction of a shimmering, six-story headquarters in the Washington suburb of Fairfax, Va.

The internal balance sheets show that over four years, NRA officials have drawn down the group's assets — mainly cash accounts and investments — from $103 million in 1991 to a projected $47 million in 1994.

Rock station ads provoke Simpson lawyers

DENVER (AP) — Attorneys for O.J. Simpson are not amused by tongue-in-cheek billboards for a rock radio station that pair his picture with Charles Manson's and the words "Bad Company."

In a cease-and-desist letter last month to radio station KRFX — which specializes in music by rock groups of the 1970s and '80s such as Bad Company — Simpson's lawyers threatened to file a lawsuit unless the ads are removed.

To put Simpson in the same company as Manson, "a man convicted of heinous murders," is to suggest that Simpson is guilty, the letter said.

Jack Evans, KRFX operations manager, said the radio station might consider removing the ads if it receives a deposition from Simpson in which he spells out "how he's being wronged."

Russian army leaders claim Chechen attack not truce infraction

VEDENO, Russia (AP) — Russian commanders said Sunday their forces attacked rebels in southern Chechnya, but they insisted it was not a violation of a week-old truce intended to bolster new peace talks.

They said the attack was permissible because it targeted fighters loyal to rebel commander Shamil Basayev, who led a recent assault and hostage-taking in southern Russia.

"The artillery guns were used to suppress incessant armed resistance of Basayev's armed group and detain the terrorists," a Russian command spokesman said in remarks reported by the ITAR-Tass news agency.

The attack occurred Saturday near the mountain village of Dargo, 35 miles southeast of Grozny.

With voter registration cards in hand, frustrated Haitian voters wait in line Sunday for polls to open during legislative and local elections in the Port-au-Prince slum of Cite Soleil.

and blocked a U.N. truck carrying ballot papers because the name of a legislative candidate was missing.

"It's fraud! It's fraud!" they yelled as they knocked boxes of ballot papers off the truck and stamped on them. U.N. troops from Canada, France and Nepal got the ballots back.

In the northern towns of Limbe and Borgne, where voting stations were attacked Saturday, elections were postponed until July 23.

Aristide, asked after voting at a school whether such attacks would scare away voters, said, "I think it will not stop the Haitian people. We have the will to move toward democracy and we are demonstrating that we will."

In Bas Limbe, also in the north, police were called in after 200 people staged a peaceful protest march because their names weren't on the voters' list, although they had registration cards, Moncion said.

Port de Paix legislative candidate Josue Lafrance was arrested Saturday, and weapons were seized at his home, because "he was so unruly and threatening," said U.N. spokesman Eric Falt.

Falt said Lafrance, an anti-Aristide legislator, was upset that his name had been printed on ballots for a neighboring district instead of his own.

In Petionville, a middle-class suburb, about 200 people lined up outside a polling station at Guatemala High School.

"We've got a lot of patience, if it means patience for freedom. And today we're going to make certain that our freedom has arrived," said Sylvestre Menezil, 70, waiting outside the school.

About 3.5 million voters, 90 percent of the estimated electorate, have registered. There are 28 political parties and 100 independent candidates.

Few fast results expected from telecom regulation

Shawn Cole
The Daily Iowan

With a federal overhaul of national telecommunications regulations imminent, many Iowa City residents are wondering what effect the changes might have on them.

According to a local cable operator, the answer for now is "not much."

"A deregulation bill is likely to pass," said Bill Blaugh, general manager of TCI of Eastern Iowa, 546 Southgate Ave. "And in the long run, increased competition will decrease rates for cable and phone services. But it's not something that's going to happen overnight. Competition will probably take 5 to 10 years to come."

The Senate passed a deregulation bill on June 15, which would allow local and long-distance phone companies to compete with each other and cable companies in phone and cable markets. The measure would ban "obscene materials" on the Internet.

The House Commerce Committee has passed a similar deregulation measure, but the Clinton administration said it wouldn't decide until it comes out of the Senate-House conference later this summer. Proponents of the legislation promise lower prices and better service through competition.

Deregulation

But another expert said deregulation's effect on prices is far from certain. John Soloski, acting director of the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communication, said that although he expects cable prices to go down, he doesn't know about phone prices.

"No one has done this before; we can't be certain," he said. "Before the AT&T long distance breakup in 1982, long distance rates were used to subsidize local rates. When long distance was deregulated, long distance rates went down but local rates went up."

Soloski said it's certain there is no turning back.

"Once a decision (to deregulate) was made in the '80s, we were guaranteed to move into a competitive communications environment," he said. "People in Iowa would have a choice in providers of local telephone and cable services. Right now, if you don't like TCI, your only choice is to shut it off. Deregulation would allow phone companies to enter the cable market and cable companies to sell phone service."

Deregulation, in addition to lowering prices, could let consumers choose from a wider scope of services, Soloski said.

"There will be a larger variety of services offered, including connections to the Internet," he said. "You'll be able to spend money to your liking."

The Internet

While the bill passed by the U.S. Senate is intended to deregulate industry, it would also increase regulation of the Internet.

The bill would make having "indecent" material accessible to people under 18 or transmitting pornography electronically illegal, both punishable by two years in prison or a $100,000 fine.

Chris Pruess, policy and information services manager at Weeg Computing Center, said the bill would affect the UI communications policy.

"It will add a layer of administration (to distribution of e-mail accounts)," she said.

But she said it would not mean drastic changes.

"Iowa law already prohibits distribution of pornography to minors," Pruess said. "We make sure we only give accounts to people who are 18, or have a parental signature."

But to prevent minors from accessing such material could be impractical or even impossible.

"We don't check IDs at computer lab doors," Pruess said, and UI students under 18 can get accounts.

Skepticism

Many local experts were skeptical of the government's ability to regulate the Internet.

"No one even knows what the Internet is," Soloski said. "I don't know how you would do it."

Pruess said she isn't even sure new legislation was necessary.

"We've relied on laws and policies already in place," Pruess said. "The complaints of misuse we get — such as harassment or threats — are covered by existing law. Just because it's delivered via e-mail doesn't change the nature of the problem."

Criminal trespass — James M. Walters, 613 E. Court St., fined $50.

Disorderly conduct — Steven M. Luke, 331 N. Gilbert St., fined $50.

The above fines do not include surcharges or court costs.

District

OWI — Steven B. Jacobs, South English, Iowa, preliminary hearing set for July 13 at 2 p.m.

She made a lemon meringue pie and topped it with a dish called "rhubarb." Dad's fretting over the demise of the pie. It became apparent as the pie was eaten — too tired to resist. At 9 p.m., she lay in bed with an array of medical crises and a ferocious cloudburst to sweep the house.

Later, at 11:02 p.m., she breathed a sigh of relief. The whole family. We were alone, preferring to set day and night. Dad, cajoled, stroked, prayed. "Wheel of Fortune" in attempts to win. Finally, at Dad's urging, we gathered to sing "Amazing Grace" or told us it would not be long.

deep conviction, and yet brought balance to the bench," they said.

Burger had performed no judicial duties since 1986. In recent years, he suffered from recurring pulmonary problems. He was hospitalized several times with pneumonia.

On the bench, Burger was a politically conservative judge who rarely showed sympathy for criminal defendants or their asserted rights.

But he also wrote numerous opinions praised by liberals. Burger spoke for the court in decisions that approved busing as a tool for the racial desegregation of public schools, expanded public access to the nation's courts and enhanced women's protections against sexual discrimination.

He wrote the opinion that in 1974 forced Nixon — the man who had nominated him to the court — to surrender White House tape recordings and papers for use as evidence in the trial of presidential aides accused of covering up the Watergate scandal.

The ruling was a major factor in Nixon's decision to resign.

Burger also wrote the landmark 1973 decision that supplied the still-used legal definition of obscenity.

Burger said material is obscene, and therefore not protected by the Constitution's free-speech guarantee, if it appeals to a morbid interest in sex with patently offensive depictions of sexual conduct, and on the whole has no serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value.

In 1971, Burger wrote for the court as it established a landmark in the area of religious freedom. The decision said a law or government practice is invalid if it has a religious purpose, if its primary effect advances or promotes religion or if it fosters excessive governmental entanglement with religion.

At the Supreme Court, he was known as a man with an eye for detail. He chose the carpeting for the court's public cafeteria and much of the building's furniture.

During the energy crisis of the mid-1970s, Burger took to touring the court building to turn off lights not being used. "I'm a hands-on kind of administrator," he told a reporter.

About his many projects for improving the administration of justice, Burger once said, "I didn't initiate them because I loved them; it wasn't that kind of work. I initiated them because they were 30 or 40 years overdue."

A longtime campaigner for prison reforms, Burger said the country should move away from "prison warehouses" and instead build "factories with fences" in which inmates learn a marketable skill so they can earn a living after their release.

Burger was also an outspoken opponent of televising federal court proceedings, especially the Supreme Court's public argument sessions in which lawyers present their cases to the justices.

Although most state court systems allow some television, radio or still-photography coverage, federal courts do not.

Burger had owned sporting guns all his life, but in 1990 he supported stricter regulation of gun owners and would-be gun buyers to put a stop to "mindless homicidal carnage."

Sixteen years earlier, Burger's ownership of a pistol had made news when the armed chief justice confronted a newspaper reporter who had gone to Burger's home late one night seeking comment.

Burger was engulfed in controversy in 1981 over reports that the proofs of a book by John Ehrlichman, a former top aide to Nixon, said Burger in 1970 went to the White House and discussed a pending Supreme Court case with Nixon and then-Attorney General John Mitchell.

Such a discussion would have violated the Code of Judicial Conduct.

Burger refused to comment on Ehrlichman's assertions.

Aside from the chronic back pain he suffered since contracting polio as a youth, Burger generally enjoyed good health throughout his judicial career.

He began having serious health problems in 1988.

Burger's wife of 61 years, Elvera, died last year. They had a son, Wade, and a daughter, Margaret, and two grandchildren.

R.N.H., took to the Senate floor armed with a plastic fetus and a graphic photograph and poster-size drawings of a rare type of late-term abortion. Smith, the Senate sponsor of a bill to ban late-term abortions, tried to link Foster to the procedure.

"When Bob Smith brought that photo onto the floor, that was the turning point," Boxer said. "It showed two things: that these Republicans are out of the mainstream and that they're unfair."

Other Democrats agree.

"To have a woman's body displayed on the floor of the Senate in that graphic way and to try to say that that type of abortion has something to do with Dr. Foster was really beyond belief," said Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash.

"I think people are going to bring it up no matter what the president does," she said.

Democrats have had a lot of trouble this year trying to define themselves against the ramrod unity and crystal-clear agendas of the new GOP congressional majority. Abortion, they think, is one issue where they can out-unify the other party. They also see it as an issue that could bring them a chunk of moderate Republican votes.

Recent polls have shown as many as 70 percent of Americans support abortion rights.

Gramm, speaking Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," suggested that from the first the White House used the Foster nomination for political purposes.

"It is very interesting that the president appoints people who have radical views and then he attacks Republicans for opposing them," Gramm said. "You've got to say one thing about Bill Clinton, and that is he is good at this p.r. game."

Whether Foster himself will become a key symbol in the political race is unclear. Democrats say the Senate's treatment of him will be just one of many examples of the Republican Party's clamping down on abortion rights.

GOP lawmakers in the 104th Congress, after all, are attacking abortion rights on many flanks — from trying to ban abortions at overseas military hospitals to Smith's efforts to make doctors face criminal penalties for performing late-term abortions.

Women voters in the GOP may rebel when they begin to see the impact, said Kim Gandy, executive vice president of the National Organization for Women.

"President Clinton should go on the offensive with the abortion issue," said Gandy.

SAILING

Sunday for the club's free teaching weekend. All participants obeyed Woodward's orders, and he said they learned one of the most important lessons right away.

"We are very safety-conscious," he said. "Everyone pitched in to get everyone in the boathouse, and we were well within the safety range."

Senior members of the club had anticipated the storm, Woodward said, and even when the weather seemed clear, all the boats sailed close to shore.

"We knew the storm would come after the wind shifted," he said, reassuring all those waiting in the boathouse. "We just did everything we would have normally done a little bit faster."

Woodward invited everyone to stick around to see if the weather would clear, and many used the time to learn more about sailing.

Michael Rogers, 12, the youngest novice present, struggled to learn how to tie a bowline knot.

"I just have to do the knots to get my (Light Weather Helmsman rating), then I can take a boat out alone," he said. "I was in New Zealand for four years, and learning to sail was a school requirement."

In addition to learning to tie a half-dozen knots, students must learn to sail, rig a boat and recover from a capsize, and be familiar with safety regulations, said UI sophomore Jayne McQuillen, club membership chairwoman.

"You have to learn a lot, but it is not as hard as you might think," she said. "Although the time required depends on the individual, someone could learn enough to take a boat out in two to four days."

Celebrating its 30th anniversary, the club is one of the UI's largest clubs, and membership rolls can swell to 300 people in the summer, treasurer Jenny Meyer said.

The club is open to both the UI community and the public, with membership fees ranging from $30 for a single, $50 for a couple and $60 for a family membership.

The club relies on membership fees and alumni donations for most of its operation, but does receive some money from the UI, said Tom Gleason, a club member.

"The Flying Junior boats cost around $4,000 new, and we buy two new boats every two years," he said.

For Joe Hermanstorfer, a UI engineering technician who had never sailed before this weekend, said he couldn't sail without the club.

"The price is right," he said. "You certainly couldn't afford to buy a boat."

Torrential downpour saturates I.C. area

Patricia Harris

The Daily Iowan

After almost two weeks of dry skies and scorching temperatures, the Iowa City area was bombarded by rain and thunderstorms Sunday, causing flash floods, leaky ceilings and headaches for local cleanup crews.

The rain started around noon, pelting Iowa City with five inches of rain in three hours, said Pete Berg of the National Weather Service's Quad Cities bureau.

"There was a flash flood warning posted for the Johnson County area," Berg said. "There has been some road and creek flooding in Iowa City and Coralville."

Despite the flash flood warnings and vivid memories of the flood of 1993, water levels are far from those of two years ago, said Randy Haas, supervisory park ranger at the Coralville Lake and Dam.

"We're in no immediate danger of extensive flooding," Haas said. "We've got enough storage in the reservoir. There's plenty of area."

Al Goldis/The Daily Iowan

Thanks to the 5 inches of rain in three hours that caused leaky ceilings and flooded basements, roads and ditches like this one near North Dubuque Street were a common sight Sunday.

The reservoir's pool of water was up one-tenth of a foot between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Sunday, which is not a significant increase, said Haas. He said the total outflow from the reservoir was "on the low end," holding steady at 2,000 cubic feet per second.

Flash flooding plagued many low-lying areas near Iowa City creeks, said Sgt. Richard Wyss of the Iowa City Police Department. Most flooded streets were cleared by 5 p.m., but he said Gilbert Street south of Highway 6 remained a problem.

"We've had many reports of cars stranded in the water," Wyss said. "For the most part, people just waited for their cars to dry out. They try to drive through the water and they have no idea how deep it is."

The deluge caused many UI buildings to leak extensively or flood. The UI Department of Public Safety received calls from the Communications Center, the Main Library, Iowa Advanced Technology Laboratories and the Engineering Building, said Sgt. Haden Feldt.

"I guess we needed the rain, but not two weeks' worth in one day, Feldt said."

mously."

The 13 photographs show a grinning, youthful-looking McVeigh in a short-sleeved khaki shirt and pants. The video, released earlier Sunday to CNN, shows similar images of McVeigh sitting at a table and talking with his lawyers, even laughing at one point. It has no audio.

The news conference came a day after Newsweek released excerpts of an interview with McVeigh from the federal prison in El Reno. Thursday's interview appears in today's issue.

Newsweek said McVeigh wouldn't answer directly when asked if he bombed the federal building in Oklahoma City.

"The only way we can really answer that is that we are going to plead not guilty," McVeigh said.

Jones said Sunday that he instructed McVeigh not to say whether he committed the bombing.

Pressed for his personal reaction to the bombing, McVeigh told the magazine he was "horrified" by images of the children killed.

"It's a very tragic thing," he said.

McVeigh and Terry Nichols are the only two people accused in the bombing, which killed 168 people and injured more than 500. Both are held without bail under a federal anti-terrorism law that carries the death penalty.

McVeigh's attorney said he gave the 70-minute interview to Newsweek because of his respect for contributing editor Col. David Hackworth, who Jones called a hero to so-called military "grunts."

"Hack wrote him and said that he wanted to talk with my client, soldier-to-soldier," Jones said.

PARADE

Two men on a float simulated a sex act but kept their shorts on; they seemed to particularly relish performing in front of about 15 counter demonstrators, including neo-Nazis shouting "Sieg heil" and giving the Nazi salute.

Some marchers chanted "shame, shame" as they passed the Roman Catholic cathedral, the focus of gay protests because of Cardinal John O'Connor's past condemnations of homosexuality.

But shortly before the parade started, the cardinal delivered a conciliatory sermon at St. Patrick's.

"Most people whose sexual orientation differs from the majority are good, decent people who try to live responsible lives. They have their struggles as we all have our struggles," O'Connor said from the pulpit.

The Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights had asked city officials to move the parade route so marchers wouldn't pass the cathedral, saying they would commit acts offensive to churchgoers.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani refused to overrule the police permit for the march and participated in the parade. Police sealed off the sidewalks in front of the cathedral.

Olympic diving champion Greg Louganis, who made public his homosexuality a year ago and more recently disclosed that he is HIV positive, helped lead the parade as a grand marshal.

"There are no more secrets. They're seeing me as the whole person," Louganis said before the parade. "I hid for a long time and I felt like I was living on an island with barely a phone. This (dis-sure) has been wonderful, because it's kind of my ticket off the island."

Pop singer Cyndi Lauper danced and sang her hit song, "Girls Just Wanna Have Fun," from a float.

Marchers from the group Gay Men's Health Crisis struck a more somber note, chanting about AIDS: "People are dying — where's the church?"

Two men on stilts wore fairy costumes with large green wings and sprinkled pixie dust on spectators. Other marchers included organizations for gay police officers in New York City and New Jersey and gay Buddhists.

Police Commissioner William Bratton said he had heard of no arrests and called the march "a very respectable parade, one that I think gays and lesbians could feel quite proud of."

back within 15 when Woolridge was slapped with a technical foul. The setback was only temporary as HB&TC reduced its deficit to just two points off a Woolridge 3-point-er.

But that's as close as Woolridge and company got.

Solid free-throw shooting by Fitzpatrick's and a Millard offensive rebound with nine seconds remaining solidified the 107-102 victory.

Millard finished with 40 points and 23 rebounds, while Hawkeye teammate and Prime Time oppo-

Woolridge scored 18 points in limited minutes.

Millard wasn't alone in his efforts. Adding 25 points, 12 rebounds was ex-Hawkeye Gerry Wright, more commonly known as "Sir Jam-a-Lot."

"Normally, we don't have a lot of bench help, and tonight we did," Rawson said. "We had 'Sir Jam-a-Lot' here and he sort of inspired us."

HB&TC was one of two undefeated teams coming into Sunday. With the loss, its record falls to 3-1.

GP/IS, at 4-0, is the only undefeated team remaining in the league.

A battle between Active Endeavors/Lepic—Kroeger Realtors and U of I Credit Union completed Sunday's schedule. AE/LKR got the best of its opponent by pulling off the 126-103 win.

Chris Lehman led the way for the victors with 31 points. Kent McCausland added 23.

Despite 30 points from Iowa State's Klay Edwards and 24 from both Tony Brus and Paul Doerfeld, the credit union still came up short.

Tyson. "I could beat him," he said. "I want to do something no one thinks I can do. That's what a champion does."

Thing is, some people think he could beat Tyson. Remember, the only way Tyson wins is if he hits you.

As for now, however, he will settle for being the super middleweight champion of the world.

STANLEY CUP WRAP-UP

What's next for Devils?

Tom Canavan
Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Now that they have the Stanley Cup, will the Devils keep it in New Jersey or skate off to Tennessee?

Owner John McMullen has been seriously considering a lucrative offer to move the franchise to Nashville, while simultaneously trying to renegotiate his Meadowlands arena lease.

While the talks have been heated, and both sides have considered legal options, the Devils' victory on the ice may have done more to keep the team in New Jersey.

No sports team has ever moved the same year it won a title.

"I think it makes it awful hard for them to move," Gov. Christie Whitman said Saturday night after the Devils' victory.

"This is where the Cup belongs," she added. "It's New Jersey's Devils that won that Cup. We want them to defend it right here and bring it back next year."

Ken Daneyko, John MacLean and Bruce Driver spent 12 years working for New Jersey's first NHL title.

"It's home to me," MacLean said. "I came here when I was 18. Now I'd like to enjoy the benefits of winning the Stanley Cup. I would like nothing more than to finish my career here, but I have no control."

DREAM TEAM III

unable to reach Thorn on Sunday.

The newspaper said that in addition to Olajuwon, other centers on "Dream Team III" could include Orlando's Shaquille O'Neal and San Antonio's David Robinson, the NBA's MVP.

Forwards could be Utah's Karl Malone, Detroit's Grant Hill, Chicago's Scottie Pippen and Milwaukee's Glenn Robinson, the newspaper said.

Guards invited were Indiana's Reggie Miller, Orlando's Anfernee Hardaway and Utah's John Stockton, according to the report.

The final two spots on the roster have been left open to give the selection committee for USA Basketball some flexibility. Those players — Mavericks guard Jason Kidd will try to earn one of those spots — will be named once the 1996-97 regular season concludes.

The official announcement will be made in late July.

There are some notable omissions. Magic Johnson, who is considering a comeback with the Los Angeles Lakers and has proclaimed his desire to compete for another gold medal, is not on the team. Chicago's Michael Jordan, New York's Patrick Ewing and Phoenix's Charles Barkley also were left off. In the case of Jordan and Barkley, each had indicated they didn't want to participate.

Charlotte's Larry Johnson and New Jersey's Derrick Coleman also were omitted. Privately, members of USA Basketball said the attitude and behavior of Johnson and Coleman during last year's tournament killed their chances of being included in 1996.

NBA LABOR TALKS

Both sides frustrated

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Barely 10 days after a beaming David Stern handed the Houston Rockets their championship trophy, the NBA and its players have plunged themselves into labor turmoil.

The players' refusal to accept the collective bargaining agreement negotiated by their union and approved by team owners means the NBA could be headed for a long summer of litigation.

When players met in Chicago on Friday, they were supposed to accept or reject a new deal that contains across-the-board increases in salaries, ends restricted free agency and caps rookie salaries. Instead, they told their leaders, Buck Williams of the Portland Trail Blazers and Simon Gourdine, to come back with a better deal.

only two games along the way. But they had not seen a team as big, strong and fast as the Devils.

"We couldn't even win a game in the finals," center Dino Ciccarelli said. "Now everything is going to be overshadowed by losing four in the finals."

Only once during the abbreviated season did the Red Wings lose two consecutive games, April 25 and 27 at L.A. and Winnipeg.

"I don't consider that a repudiation," said Gourdine, the players' association's executive director. "I consider that a review and evaluation by player reps."

But clearly, Gourdine and the union leadership are in trouble. They thought they had a deal. So did Stern, who is in trouble, too.

The sides have little time in which to work things out.

The college draft is Wednesday, and the owners don't want another crop of lottery picks coming into the league expecting seven-year, $40 million salaries. The no-strike, no-lockout agreement — already extended once — expires July 1.

A lockout is "one possibility, but another possibility is an extension of the (no-strike, no-lockout) moratorium or making another deal," Stern said Saturday on NBC.

Nomo continues to heat up

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — If Hideo Nomo felt like the center of attention when he began pitching in the majors, perhaps it was only a harbinger of things to come.

Does the term "Fernandomania" come to mind?

With five straight victories, a 2.30 ERA and a National League-leading 96 strikeouts in 74 1/3 innings, the 26-year-old rookie is creating the kind of commotion not seen at Dodger Stadium since Fernando Valenzuela filled it frequently in his magical run of several seasons that began in 1981.

"It's growing, and it should," said manager Tom Lasorda, who through Nomo is reliving his memorable first season with Valenzuela. "He's very good. I've been trying to tell people that. This guy's for real."

If there was any lingering doubt, Nomo erased it Saturday night with a two-hitter and 13 strikeouts against the San Francisco Giants. The 7-0 victory was Nomo's first shutout and complete game.

Dodger Stadium's third sellout crowd this season came without an offering of free beach towels or batting helmets. This was a Nomo night before 53,551.

And no promotional gimmick baseball can devise can match the kind of excitement Nomo has created. After five straight no-decisions and a loss, he has a 1.09 ERA in his last five starts.

Associated Press

Dodgers pitcher Hideo Nomo is congratulated by his manager Tommy Lasorda, Saturday after completing his first shut out.

His 37 strikeouts in the last three outings is the most on the club since Sandy Koufax fanned 38 late in the 1965 season.

The Giants were interested in Nomo during the winter, but were no match for the Dodgers' bankroll, weather, ballpark ambience and scouting resources.

"You win some and you lose some," Giants manager Dusty Baker said. "Certainly, we didn't have the money to invest on an unseen prospect like the Dodgers did."

"Plus, all we had to see of Nomo was a 12-pitch, 2-minute tape from a year ago, when he was coming off an injury. It's hard to evaluate somebody like that."

Nomo, after Masanori Murakami only the second Japanese ever to pitch in the majors, was largely a curiosity at the beginning. But that's where the similarities end.

Nomo retired 22 consecutive batters Saturday. The only hits Nomo allowed were singles by Darren Lewis, leading off the first and ninth innings.

SUNDAY'S ROUNDUP

Cubs lose by 13; Sox sweep Indians

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Astros broke out of their Astrodome run drought in a big way Sunday.

Scoring the most runs in the majors this season and the most in the team's 34-year history, the Astros beat the Chicago Cubs 19-6.

Houston, which scored in every inning after the third, got nine runs in the eighth inning to break the team record of 18 set in 1971 and matched in 1974.

The Astros chased Chicago starter Frank Castillo (6-3) with three runs in the fifth for a 4-2 lead. After that, they got two runs off Mike Walker, four off Chris Nabholz and batted around against Bryan Hickerson in the eighth. "They just kept coming at us," Chicago manager Jim Riggleman said.

Pirates 1, Expos 0
MONTREAL — Esteban Loaiza combined with two relievers on a six-hit shutout Sunday.

Loaiza (4-3) scattered five hits in seven innings. Montreal's Jeff Fassero (7-5) pitched well despite losing his fourth straight start. He made a fielding error in the first that led to the game's only run.

Braves 4, Mets 2

ATLANTA — Greg Maddux allowed a season-high 10 hits in six innings but still won his fifth straight decision and Ryan Klesko hit a tie-breaking double as Atlanta defeated New York.

Maddux (7-1), who has given up seven earned runs in his last 56 innings, is now 18-10 lifetime against the Mets. Maddux did not walk a hitter and has a streak of 32 innings without one.

Marlins 5, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — David Weathers pitched five hitless innings before he was hit by a pitch while trying to bunt, and Terry Mathews gave up three hits the rest of the way in Florida's victory over Cincinnati.

The Marlins scored four times off ailing Jose Rijo (3-4) to take control. Mathews kept the Reds hitless until Reggie Sanders led off the seventh with a check-swing single to right.

Phillies 5, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS — Rookie Tyler Green came within one out of his third shutout and Charlie Hayes hit a three-run homer to lead Philadelphia over St. Louis.

Green (7-4) was removed after the Cardinals loaded the bases on a triple and a pair of two-out walks in the ninth.

Heathcliff Slocumb then allowed a two-run single by pinch-hitter Bernard Gilkey and an RBI single by Brian Jordan.

Rockies 11, Padres 3

SAN DIEGO — Andres Galarraga homered in three consecutive innings to drive in a career-high seven runs as Colorado beat San Diego to split a four-game series.

Galarraga, who reached base safely all five times he batted, lost a chance in the ninth inning to try for his fourth homer when Larry Walker struck out with the bases loaded.

Dodgers 3, Giants 2

LOS ANGELES — Tom Candiotti won consecutive starts for the first time this season and Raul Mondesi homered as the Dodgers won their fifth straight.

Candiotti (4-5) allowed two runs and nine hits over eight innings with 11 strikeouts and one walk to help the Dodgers complete their first four-game sweep of San Francisco since April 1980.

White Sox 3, Cleveland 2

CHICAGO — Robin Ventura singled home the go-ahead run with two outs in the eighth inning, and the Chicago White Sox completed a three-game sweep of the Cleveland Indians.

The loss extended Cleveland's longest losing streak of the season to four games.

The Indians played the game under protest after a disputed pickoff play in the sixth inning.

Chicago, which got only four hits, matched a season-high with its third straight win. Jose DeLeon (3-3) got one out to end a threat in the eighth for the victory.

Angels 7, Mariners 5

SEATTLE — Jim Edmonds extended his hitting streak to an AL-best 19 games and Lee Smith earned his 19th save as the California Angels beat Seattle.

Shawn Boskie (6-1) bounced back from an 8-5 loss to Kansas City. Smith pitched the ninth inning, giving him saves in 19 straight appearances.

Orioles 10, Red Sox 1

BALTIMORE — Cal Ripken hit a three-run homer and Arthur Rhodes pitched eight strong innings as the Baltimore Orioles routed Boston for a split of the four-game series.

Jeffrey Hammonds, Manny Alexander and Greg Zaun each had two RBIs for the Orioles.

Jose Canseco homered for the Red Sox, his second of the year and first since being on the disabled list from May 17 to June 20.

Tigers 6, Brewers 3

DETROIT — Alan Trammell hit the fifth grand slam of his career, capping

Associated Press

a five-run rally in the eighth inning that lifted the Detroit Tigers over Milwaukee.

The Tigers trailed 3-1 when Bobby Higginson led off the eighth with a triple against Graeme Lloyd. Ron Rightnowar (1-1) relieved and gave up Travis Fryman's RBI single with two outs.

Yankees 8, Blue Jays 2

NEW YORK — Paul O'Neill hit a two-run triple that sent the New York Yankees past Toronto for their first three-game sweep of the season.

Joe Carter's eighth homer of the season put Toronto ahead 2-0 in the first inning against Sterling Hitchcock (3-4). But Pat Hentgen (3-4) could not hold the lead, walking seven in six innings.

Athletics 6, Rangers 2

ARLINGTON, Texas — Steve Ontiveros won for the seventh time in his last eight decisions and Oakland snapped the Rangers' seven-game home winning streak.

Ontiveros (8-2) allowed seven hits, striking out six with one walk as Oakland beat Texas for only the second time in seven meetings this season.

Dennis Eckersley got the final five outs for his 14th save.

Oakland's Rickey Henderson walked twice, doubled and singled. His two runs scored gave him 1,680 for his career, breaking a tie with Bid McPhee for 21st place on the career list.

Davis signs letter of intent; Raiders will move this fall

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The money was a part of it, a big part. The chance to rebuild mystique, recapture that winning feeling and play in a renovated stadium made it a slam dunk.

On Friday, Al Davis made up with the city he jilted 13 years ago by signing a letter of intent to bring the team back to Oakland.

In return, the board governing the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum agreed to an $85 million stadium modernization and a $31.9 million loan to the team to help it complete the relocation in time to play in Oakland this season. In addition, terms call for the team to receive up to another $10 million for construction of training facilities here.

The Raiders are expected to practice in the Los Angeles area during the week and come to Oakland to play home games.

Bowen, Gooden lead all-star teams in scoring

KOBE, Japan (AP) — Ryan Bowen of Iowa scored 19 points and Andrae Patterson of Indiana added 18, leading a Big Ten men's all-star basketball team to a 102-80 victory Sunday over Japan's team for the World University Games.

Meanwhile, a three-game women's series ended in a sweep for Japan. In the final game Sunday, the Japanese team for the University Games defeated a Big Ten team 94-75.

Tiffany Gooden of Iowa led the visitors with 23 points.

Softball's King performs at West High tonight

Basketball has got the Harlem Globe Trotters, with legendary names like Meadowlark Lemon on its long list of clown princes.

Less known, but equally exciting, is fast-pitch softball's Eddie Feigner, known around the softball community as "The King."

"The King and His Court," his self-titled traveling team, will bring its antics to Iowa City West High tonight at 7:30 for a show-down with the West High women's team.

Nine professionals against nine high schoolers hardly seems fair, but that's the catch: There are only three other players on Feigner's "court," which means tonight's match-up will be nine against four.

Feigner's pitches have been clocked over 90 mph, which has helped propel his team to a winning percentage above 90 percent.

A very large crowd is expected, so fans are advised to bring lawn chairs. Admission is $5.

Former Hawkeyes will hook up in Toronto

NEW YORK — The Vancouver Grizzlies and Toronto Raptors picked through the NBA's castoffs Saturday and began building their teams with a pair of point guards.

Toronto used the first pick to get the prize of the expansion draft, Chicago and former Iowa guard B.J. Armstrong, and Vancouver plucked New York's Greg Anthony with the second pick.

Complete draft list, Scoreboard Page 6

The dilemma for Raptors vice president of basketball operations Isiah Thomas is whether to keep Armstrong, a solid veteran with championship experience and a sparkling image, or swap him. The Washington Bullets and Charlotte Hornets both are interested.

Thomas said Armstrong, a member of the Bulls' three-time NBA title winners, may be too valuable to trade.

"He's everything we'd like for our organization to represent," Thomas said. "He represents and brings a championship aura."

"There's no dilemma. I know there's a lot of interest in B.J. Armstrong. However, from what I know, when people are that interested in something you have, maybe you need to take a closer look."

Toronto picked up another former Hawkeye with its 11th pick, selecting Acie Earl from Boston.

In addition to taking some young players like Tony Massenburg and Dontonio Wingfield, the Raptors selected veterans Willie Anderson, Jerome Kersey and John Salley.

Among the better-known players selected by Vancouver were Indiana guard Byron Scott, Cleveland guard Gerald Wilkins, and New Jersey center Benoit Benjamin.

Jones has no equal in the ring

I could only find one person willing to put money against Roy Jones Jr. on Saturday night.

My friend was all gung ho about the challenger for the IBF super middleweight championship, Vinny Pazienza. He said that Vinny was "a tough mother who would never go down."

He was right about one thing, Pazienza is as tough as they get. The fight against Roy Jones Jr. was his 12th since breaking his neck in an auto accident in 1991. Pazienza won the previous 11.

What my friend and Pazienza didn't foresee is that Jones is pretty tough too. And quick. And strong.

In other words, Jones is simply awesome. The only question about him is if he can take a good punch. Borrowing from Norman Mailer, for Jones there is apparently something obscene about getting hit. We may never find out if he can take a punch. He is too quick.

The show that Jones displayed on Saturday was phenomenal. If anybody had doubts that he is the best pound-for-pound boxer in the world, they were forced to change their opinion.

Before the fight, my friends and I were subject to the usual hype-fest that goes into any big bout. After getting to the bar at 8:00, we sat through three undercard fights, and the meaningless pre-fight analysis by the "experts."

By the time the real fight began, I was beginning to fade as fast as the pitchers of beer on our table. I had been watching the undercards with marginal interest and was ready to see the fight billed as "The Devil and Mr. Jones."

As the fight got underway, it was apparent that the fight was a mismatch.

With the exception of one fairly even round, Jones played with Pazienza. He pounded him non-stop with lightning quick jabs, three or four of them in the matter of two seconds.

Meanwhile, Pazienza stopped punching. Occasionally he would pull Jones to the ropes and frantically try to give him several body blows, but it didn't faze Jones who would simply pull away and then continue his attack on Pazienza.

The eventual knockout in the sixth-round was simply a formality. Jones was too good. He bom-

Devils drop Detroit in 4

New Jersey goalie Martin Brodeur reacts after his team defeated the Detroit Red Wings 5-2 to win the Stanley Cup in Game 4 Saturday night at the Meadowlands Arena in East Rutherford, N.J.

Mike Nadel
Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Kansas City-born, Denver-raised and perhaps Nashville-bound, the New Jersey Devils won the Stanley Cup for the only fans who ever really loved them.

The Devils again overpowered the Detroit Red Wings to win their first NHL title, completing the four-game sweep with a 5-2 victory Saturday night.

Devils and Red Wings wrap-up, Page 7

As the final horn sounded, New Jersey goalie Martin Brodeur danced on the ice in front of his goal until he was knocked down by a mob of celebrating teammates.

Fireworks exploded in the Meadowlands Arena rafters and 19,040 fans cheered until they were hoarse. And then the treasured Stanley Cup was passed from player to player to player.

"I can't really say I'm surprised. We knew they were a great team," Detroit captain Steve Yzerman said. "Nothing they did surprised me. Maybe that they did it as well as they did."

Criticized for always thinking about defense first, the Devils scored five goals in each of the last two games of the finals.

"If you can tell me those games we just played were boring, you're crazy," Devils defenseman Bruce Driver said.

"You can criticize us now, but we swept Detroit," said forward Claude Lemieux, who received the Conn Smythe Award as playoff MVP. "If you don't like our style, well too bad. You can just watch a show somewhere else."

Neal Broten and Shawn Chambers each scored twice for the Devils, who held Detroit to one shot in the third period and three over the final 35 minutes to finish the 17th sweep in championship history.

Lemieux led all postseason scorers with 13 goals. Devils captain Scott Stevens, anchor of the Devils' nearly flawless offense-from-defense system, and Brodeur (1.67 goals-against average) also excelled throughout the playoffs.

Koch scores 40 to beat Fish-led Nike

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

When Nike center Matt Fish and Goodfellow Printing/Imprinted Sportswear center J.R. Koch took the court Sunday, it was supposed to be the veteran against the rookie; The ex-L.A. Clipper against the Iowa freshman.

So when Koch outscored Fish 40-25, it was little surprise that GP/IS had toppled Nike 102-97.

Koch hit from inside as well as outside, knocking down three 3-pointers. He also hauled down seven rebounds.

GP/IS teammate Kenyon Murray added 25 points and 11 boards while dishing out five assists.

Initially it looked as if GP/IS would lose its perfect 3-0 record as Nike jumped out to a 20-6 advantage after the first five minutes.

"This team showed a lot of poise in the first half," GP/IS coach Tyree Davis said. "The young guy (Koch) really stepped it up for us."

He played hard from the outset and just kept going."

Despite outscoring an ex-NBA center, Koch remained humble about his performance.

"I did gain some confidence, but I just came here to play hard and work on my game," Koch said.

The other early game saw First National Bank rout New York Life 124-80. FNB was led by ex-University of North Alabama standout Jermain Willform's 38 points and 15 rebounds. His point total was a team-high while he shared rebounding honors with Mon'ter Glasper, who also managed to hand out seven assists.

Willform connected on four of eight 3-pointers, 11-of-14 overall from the floor.

The marquis match-up for the night's second half of action featured Fitzpatrick's, led by Russ Millard, versus Hills Bank & Trust Company, led by Andre Woolridge.

The only problem was Woolridge didn't show up until his team was down 52-34 in the first half. HB&TC player-coach Brian Thomas did an admirable job filling in for the Iowa point guard, tallying four assists, but it wasn't until Woolridge arrived that his team climbed back into contention.

"(Woolridge) means a lot to their team," Fitzpatrick's Eric Rawson said. "He came late and made a big difference in their team."

When Fitzpatrick's built an 86-60 second-half lead, it looked as if Woolridge's presence would have no impact. However, HB&TC slowly crept back within striking distance.

Rabbi points to journalist as famous 'Deep Throat'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A rabbi who stood by President Nixon throughout Watergate said Monday he believes journalist Diane Sawyer was "Deep Throat," the source who helped the Washington Post uncover the scandal.

Sawyer, who was an assistant in the Nixon press office at the time, said the claim was laughable.

And Bob Woodward, the Post reporter who has never revealed the identity of his source, said there is no truth to the story.

"For 20 years we've always said that the source 'Deep Throat' was a man," said Woodward, now an assistant managing editor at the Post. "There is no evidence that Diane Sawyer in her kind of subsidiary role in the Nixon White House would have that kind of knowledge."

Rabbi Baruch Korff, 80, said he based his opinion on Sawyer's "special relationship" with press secretary Ron Ziegler, and his observation Sawyer had advance knowledge of what was going on at the White House.

Simpson trial update

Monday, June 26, 1995

Bruce Weir, a world-renowned genetic scientist, admitted his calculations of genetic frequencies in mixed blood stains were "consistently wrong" because of a computer glitch. He redid the math and testified the odds of matching blood samples in evidence used against O.J. Simpson were lower than previously thought.

Weir's testimony is expected to be followed by scientific analysis of dog and human hairs from the crime scene that prosecutors say tie Simpson to the murders.
