WASHINGTON (AP) — Triumphant Republicans swept to victory, betting that the country has turned a page of fiscal responsibility after the federal government posted its first balanced budget in 12 years.

Republican leaders in both chambers of Congress hailed the balanced budget as a milestone that could help them attract moderate voters and win the support of the business community.

"This is the beginning of a new era in government," said Senate Majority Leader Bill Frist, R-Tenn. "This is a turning point in our history.

"The White House praised the president's efforts. "This is why we came to Congress," said House Budget Committee Chairman John Kasich, R-Ohio. "This is why we put the future over the present."

"This is why we came to Congress to put America over politics, to put America over future over the present,"

UI RESEARCHERS NEED ADDITIONAL PARTICIPANTS FOR TESTOSTERONE STUDY

Student Affairs

Men, ages 21 to 40, are invited to take part in the project, being conducted at the General Clinical Research Center.

The study will look at the physical and psychiatric effects, and possible changes brought about by various doses of testosterone and withdrawal from testosterone therapy. Testosterone is the principal male sex hormone and has been used in an illicitabolic scheme among weight lifters and other athletes.

Participants will receive doses of testosterone and cyproterone, and be observed for acute and withdrawal effects. All participants will be closely monitored throughout the study to ensure medical and psychological safety.

The study will consist of 26 visits, ranging from 30 to 150 minutes each.

Subscriptions are available for $335, or $2.22 per issue.

Summer '95 enrollment found lower than 1994's

Iowa City

Lana Harmon, Iowa City's chief animal control officer, has written several letters to the Daily Iowan claiming to be the owner of a vicious cat named Cabo. Harmon has been involved in a series of animal control incidents, including the case of the cat that was found to be free of rabies in Iowa City.

The Daily Iowan has reported on the story, stating that Harmon has written several letters to the newspaper claiming to be the owner of Cabo. The newspaper has published articles about the case, including details about Harmon's letters and the ongoing investigation.

The story has generated considerable interest, with readers expressing concern about the safety of Iowa City residents. The newspaper has also received feedback from readers who have expressed their support for Harmon and the investigation.

The Daily Iowan has been praised for its coverage of the story, with readers commending the newspaper for its thorough and impartial reporting. The newspaper has also been criticized for its portrayal of the story, with some readers expressing concern that the newspaper has not done enough to verify the information presented by Harmon.

Overall, the story has been a significant event for the Iowa City community, with the newspaper playing a key role in bringing the story to light and keeping readers informed about the ongoing investigation.

Virginia flood rescue continues

Rescue workers using a dog search the waters of Courser Creek in front Royal, Va., for Alena Doutre on Wednesday. Three-year-old Alena was swept away by flood waters while on a camping trip with her parents.

In Tuscarora and the Roanoke River in Campbell County. "It's still a very dangerous situation," Terry Starks, a National Weather Service forecaster in Stu­fford, said Thursday.

"People were driving their cars to get out, but it was too late. We got them to the other side and they walked by water up to their waists and of course after that they couldn't walk any further," said Terry Starks, a National Weather Service forecaster in Stafford.

For Virginia, the flood damage is estimated at $1.5 billion. According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the state has suffered $1 billion in property damage and $500 million in economic losses over the past decade.

"We had a kind of a dry spell a few weeks ago, said Governor Davey L. Fralin, who was addressing a news conference Thursday. "But there was a flood event on Wednesday night and the flooding continues to be an issue today."

"It's important to note that this is not a one-time event," said Fralin. "We continue to work with our federal partners to ensure that Virginia is well prepared for future floods."

Virginia's governor also announced the creation of a task force to address flood mitigation efforts. The task force will work with local and federal partners to identify and implement solutions to reduce the risk of future floods.

In addition, Fralin announced a $5 million investment in the state's floodplain management program. The funding will be used to support local governments in their efforts to develop and implement floodplain management plans.

Fralin also announced the creation of a new position within the state's Department of Emergency Management to coordinate flood preparedness and response efforts.

"We are committed to ensuring that Virginians are prepared for the next flood event," said Fralin. "It's important that we continue to work together to protect our communities and improve the resilience of our state."

Killer's execution delayed for organ donation appeal.

Elliot Miller

Visitors

Jackson Co. — A convicted killer who was sentenced to death more than two decades ago is seeking to stay while appeals for a method that may allow him to donate his organs.

Larry Lonchar, who was convicted of trying to kill a police officer, was sentenced to death in 1993. He has been on death row since then, but his lawyers say he wants to donate his organs before he dies.

Lonchar, who was convicted in 1991 of killing a police officer and a store worker, said in a letter to the U.S. Supreme Court that he wants to donate his organs to help save others.

"I believe that death row inmates should be given the option of donating their organs before they die," Lonchar wrote in his letter.

Lonchar's lawyers say they intend to pursue a method that would allow him to donate his organs before he dies. They say his execution has been delayed for more than 15 years, during which time he has been refused a request to delay his execution to allow him to donate his organs.

"We support Elliot Miller's efforts to donate his organs," said Lonchar's lawyer, David A. Nevin. "We believe this is a win-win situation for everyone involved."

The case is Miller v. Miller, 12-1507. The petition for a writ of certiorari will be filed on Monday, October 16, 2015. The case is being argued on Monday, October 19, 2015, before the U.S. Supreme Court. The Court will consider the case on November 10, 2015.

In a letter to the court, Lonchar's lawyers say they have found a method that allows inmates to donate organs while they are on death row.

"We believe this method is a reasonable compromise that will allow Elliot Miller to donate his organs and save the lives of others," said Nevin. "We urge the court to consider this request and grant us a stay of execution so that we can proceed with this method."

Lonchar's lawyers say they have also filed a petition with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit in Richmond, Virginia, seeking a stay of execution so that they can pursue this method.

"We believe this is a reasonable compromise that will allow Elliot Miller to donate his organs and save the lives of others," said Nevin. "We urge the court to consider this request and grant us a stay of execution so that we can proceed with this method."

Bomber threatens to kill again

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Unabomber said Friday that he's poured over 100,000 words of a 35,000-word manifesto and is sending the manuscript to newspapers.

The threat, in a letter the self-described anarchist says he sent the newspapers he wants one of, is the latest in a series of mail bombings since 1978 — the bomber hasn't received the manuscript for General Media, the parent of Guccione said he would print the

The newspapers' publishers said Thursday they were

"One thing we don't expect is summoning the demand that we sit out the next election, that's not our business, but then our papers for the last 10 years have been attacked by charlatans not by the public, not by the press."

"The author, a self-described anarchist, said for a political revolution, aimed not at governments and the political system, but at the people themselves."

"The bomber called for destruction, technical books burned and leaders overthrown, with the hope that the coming chaos would foster a return to 'wild times.' He called against the system of industrial society, and consumer capitalism."

"The author also devotes long passages to the psychology of mass, to the problems of modern life and the individual: 'We have a lot to learn,' the author said."

"The Unabomber offered the Times and Post for sale by touch-tone phone!

Hartberg takes over Blackhawks

Mike Nadel
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Craig Hartberg remembers the ditches and spares, the high slicks and heavy flint. He remembers the blood trickling out of his nose and over his upper lip. He remembers the blood streaking through his hair, the tears streaming down his cheeks.

Ten years ago, he said, "the tears pretty much gave way to the Chicago Blackhawks."

Now the former Minnesota North Star remembers the blood and the tears, and the way he still meant to be at the Chicago Blackhawks.

"There are six teams without base ball, and I know for a fact," Hartberg said. "Three of those have Hartberg number one on their lists." Chicago general manager Bob Pulford said: "He's a man who is well-respected, and he's well-organized. We feel he is the brightest young prospect out there."

David Palmer approaches No. 10 during the first round of the U.S. Senior Open in Bethesda, Md., Thursday.

Ringer and Sneed nab early lead

Just when he thought things couldn’t get any better for him around the midway point of his life Thursday, he didn’t make a bogey, had 12 one-under-par rounds and twice destined pairs of moneys in the bank.

"I played with the highest I ever played today," he said.

Palmer, meanwhile had a 72 despite a double bogey after three putts on the 18th hole. That left him 5 under par, but behind on No. 10 and 12 up on par for the day.

"I’m pleased that I hit the ball well, but I’m not pleased with the score," Palmer said. "I played better than I did today."

That distinction belonged to Ringer on the barber’s chair, and Sneed, who sank a 25-footTERFALI put on No. 10 to move into a tie for the lead.

"I missed one fairway and didn’t have a green. I didn’t drive much better than that," said Sneed, who had previously ranked third in 18 rounds.

Hartberg, for one, is pleased with his early-lead status. He has only four players over him, six to go.

Bob Murphy, a three-time winner on the Senior Tour this year, who tied with Tom Weiskopf and four others at 18.

Denzel Washington, Spencer Tracy and Lanny Wadkins were among several golfers who shot.

Irwin, Palmer and defending champ Hartsburg, the 39th tour in history, replace Barry Statton, who helped last week to spur more than 42,000 fans to the course.

Grades fall despite Proposition 48

Doug Tucker
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — For the first time since Prop 48 established stricter academic standards for freshmen athletes, graduation rates declined in men's basketball.

"We won't know what it means until we can study more data and see if there's a trend. But I think people are going to have to redefine what 'athletic' means," said Marvin Mendelson, director of the NCAA's Academic Standards Committee.

The most striking drop was among black male basketball players, whose graduation rate fell from 77 percent in the 1987-88 season to 51 percent for the 1988-89 group. The rate for black female players fell from 74 percent in 1987 to 60 percent in 1989.

"It's fascinating, but it's fascinating in a negative kind of way," said Dr. Frank James, on the drop in the college graduation rate.

The first two classes affected by Prop 48 saw their improved graduation rates fall right along with their class sizes.

The upward trend continued in the latest study for Division I, 259 men's basketball.

The study, conducted by a three-member panel for the Division I Basketball Committee, found that freshmen who met the academic standards of Prop 48 were more likely to graduate than those who did not.

The most striking difference was among black male basketball players, whose graduation rates fell from 77 percent to 64 percent.

"It's not that it's not a factor," said Mendelson. "But it's not the only factor.

There was better news for Division II, where the graduation rate for men's basketball rose from 63 percent to 64 percent.

"It's been a broad-based program in college sports," said Mendelson. "It's been a great shows that people have been doing a lot of things." But he added that there were also some fluctuations, especially among black men.

"I think people are going to have to redefine what 'athletic' means," said Mendelson. "And we're going to have to do more research on this."
