N.J. paper: Stringer to leave UI

The Daily Iowan
JULY 10, 1995

NATIONAL

PRESIDENT?

Two of the most prominent questions that have plagued Stringer during his tenure at UI are who will fill the vacancy in March 1996 and how will he use his remaining months to help formulate a strategy for the mid-term and long-term goals of UI.

Defending against Stringer's actions, students have charged that he was acting in the best interest of the university - that UI was in dire need of a new direction due to the institution's fiscal crisis and the declining enrollment.

However, Stringer's detractors are quick to point out that the current fiscal situation at the university is not as dire as Stringer claims. The university's budget for the current fiscal year is projected to be $280 million, a $30 million increase over the previous year.

The university's enrollment has also been declining, with the number of undergraduate students down by 4% from last year. Stringer has attributed this decline to the increased competition from other universities and the national economic downturn.

Despite these challenges, Stringer has been successful in attracting new programs and faculty to the university. In the past year, UI has added several new programs, including a new law school, a new engineering college, and a new health sciences center.

Stringer has also been instrumental in attracting new faculty members to the university. In the past year, UI has hired several new professors, including a Nobel laureate in economics and a MacArthur fellow in computer science.

Stringer has also been a vocal supporter of the university's efforts to expand its research capabilities. In the past year, UI has received several major grants from the National Science Foundation and the National Institutes of Health.

Despite these successes, Stringer's detractors argue that he has not done enough to address the university's fiscal crisis.

"It's clear that Stringer has been spending more than the university can afford," said one of Stringer's critics. "He's been cutting programs and laying off faculty members, but the university's financial situation is still as bad as it was when he took over.

"Stringer's actions have only served to further erode the university's reputation and its ability to attract new students and faculty members," the critic added.

Stringer has defended his actions, saying that he has been acting in the best interest of the university. "I have been working hard to address the university's fiscal crisis," he said. "I have been cutting programs and laying off faculty members, but I have also been attracting new programs and faculty members.

"I believe that the university is in a better position now than it was when I took over," Stringer added.

Stringer has also been criticized for his handling of the university's media relations. Stringer has been accused of being too secretive and too secretive about the university's financial situation.

"Stringer is too secretive," said one of Stringer's critics. "He never tells us the truth about the university's financial situation, and he never tells us what he's doing to address the problem.

"Stringer is too secretive," the critic added.

Stringer has defended his handling of the university's media relations, saying that he has been acting in the best interest of the university. "I have been working hard to address the university's fiscal crisis," he said. "I have been being too secretive about the university's financial situation, and I have been being too secretive about what I'm doing to address the problem.

"I believe that the university is in a better position now than it was when I took over," Stringer added.

Stringer has also been criticized for his handling of the university's media relations. Stringer has been accused of being too secretive and too secretive about the university's financial situation.

"Stringer is too secretive," said one of Stringer's critics. "He never tells us the truth about the university's financial situation, and he never tells us what he's doing to address the problem.

"Stringer is too secretive," the critic added.

Stringer has defended his handling of the university's media relations, saying that he has been acting in the best interest of the university. "I have been working hard to address the university's fiscal crisis," he said. "I have been being too secretive about the university's financial situation, and I have being too secretive about what I'm doing to address the problem.

"I believe that the university is in a better position now than it was when I took over," Stringer added.

Stringer has also been criticized for his handling of the university's media relations. Stringer has been accused of being too secretive and too secretive about the university's financial situation.

"Stringer is too secretive," said one of Stringer's critics. "He never tells us the truth about the university's financial situation, and he never tells us what he's doing to address the problem.

"Stringer is too secretive," the critic added.

Stringer has defended his handling of the university's media relations, saying that he has been acting in the best interest of the university. "I have been working hard to address the university's fiscal crisis," he said. "I have been being too secretive about the university's financial situation, and I have being too secretive about what I'm doing to address the problem.

"I believe that the university is in a better position now than it was when I took over," Stringer added.
Newsmakers

Roxanne endorses violent brand of feminism

NEW YORK (AP) - Roxanne, the violent feminist who endorsed the New York Times in a provocative profile last week, is now a serious candidate for the vice presidential nomination of the New York Times. According to sources, Roxanne endorses the violent brand of feminism that she has always advocated.

"I am running for the vice presidential nomination of the New York Times," Roxanne said in a press conference yesterday. "I believe in the violent brand of feminism and I will not back down on that issue."

Roxanne, who has always been active in the feminist movement, told reporters that she is ready to take on the challenges of being vice president.

"I am ready to be a force for change," she said. "I will not be intimidated by anyone."

Roxanne's candidacy has caused a great deal of controversy. Some have praised her for her bravery, while others have criticized her for her extreme views.

"I will not allow anyone to silence me," Roxanne said. "I will speak out and I will be heard."

Roxanne's campaign has been endorsed by many prominent feminists, including Gloria Steinem and Betty Friedan.

"We are proud to support Roxanne," Steinem said. "She is a strong woman and she will be a strong vice president."
Iowa City, Iowa - Monday, July 10, 1989

Viewpoints

PROSECUTION ENDS IN SIMPSON TRIAL

Is justice really blind?

"To thee not much might mean..."

With these words from prosecutor Melvin Clark, the O.J. Simpdon trial cast a shadow on that simple, one-sentence phrase: "To thee not much might mean..."

It might mean the end of the road for O.J. Simpson, who is charged with first-degree murder and robbery. It might mean the beginning of a new life for Simpson's victims, Ron Goldman and Nicole Brown. It might mean justice for all those who have been wronged by the criminal justice system.

But for now, the trial has come to an end, and the question remains: Is justice really blind?

As we stand at the crossroads of this trial, we cannot help but wonder: Can the system ever truly be fair? Can justice ever truly be served?

To answer these questions, we must first consider the basics of justice. Justice is a fundamental right that all people have, and it is the foundation upon which our society is built.

Justice is the ability to hold those who break the law accountable for their actions. It is the process through which we seek to ensure that everyone is treated fairly and equally, regardless of their background or status.

In the Simpson trial, we saw the power of the legal system at work. We saw the strength of the prosecution, as represented by Melvin Clark, and the skill of the defense team, as represented by Johnnie Cochran. We saw the incredible evidence that was presented, and the incredible testimony that was given.

Yet despite all this, we are left with the question: Is justice truly blind?

The answer is complicated, and it is not one that can be easily summed up in a single sentence. But we can say this much: Justice is not perfect, and it is not always fair. But it is the best system that we have, and it is the system upon which we must rely.

As we move forward, we must continue to work to improve the justice system. We must work to ensure that it is fair and just, and that everyone has access to it.

And as we do so, we must remember: Justice is blind. It does not see color, nor does it see race. It sees only the truth, and it seeks to ensure that the truth is always served.

The end.
NATHAN
Continued from Page 1
I was helpful. This will be a kind of opening salvo that people will talk about the president's residence, 102 Chicago.

The adjustment to president

I'm sure it will also focus on some new issues, some current issues - how can the university be more appealing? How can we do

Peter Nathan, acting U.S.

I haven't been an extreme change in my thinking. Nathan said. We Nathan seemed confident-all told. Friday's still working out of the president's office building, it was said or an attempt at shaping the community.

I am sure it will also focus on the university's future. Nathan said.

We need to look at the future.
We've got an opportunity to

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a

people here who knew Nathan as a

and be a part of this process.

"If you want to do what I've been doing
in my position, you have to be a Armistice Day, November 11, 1995

Survivor discovered after 9 days

A 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman at the store, was found alive in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Sunday morning.

Rescue workers lift Rescue workers lift

"Find the missing!" they found him, Choi, who had been entombed in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Saturday.

"Find the missing!" they shouted, as they searched the rubble of the store. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

On Friday, the rescue workers had found him, Choi, who had been entombed in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Saturday. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

"Find the missing!" they shouted, as they searched the rubble of the store. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

On Friday, the rescue workers had found him, Choi, who had been entombed in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Saturday. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

"Find the missing!" they shouted, as they searched the rubble of the store. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

On Friday, the rescue workers had found him, Choi, who had been entombed in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Saturday. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

"Find the missing!" they shouted, as they searched the rubble of the store. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

On Friday, the rescue workers had found him, Choi, who had been entombed in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Saturday. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

"Find the missing!" they shouted, as they searched the rubble of the store. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

On Friday, the rescue workers had found him, Choi, who had been entombed in the wreckage of the ritzy South Korean department store in Seoul Saturday. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.

"Find the missing!" they shouted, as they searched the rubble of the store. They were looking for the 21-year-old part-time shoe salesman, who had been entombed in the wreckage.
Baltimore takes care of Chicago, 11-2

Lions 4-0 gives up three hits in nine innings

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Mattingly hit a home run and drove in four runs as the Chicago White Sox beat the Minnesota Twins 4-0. Mattingly hit his first career home run in the third inning and added a solo shot in the fourth to help the White Sox win their second straight game.

Mattingly said he was pleased with the team’s performance, particularly in the final two games of the series.

"It’s great to see the guys hitting and playing well," Mattingly said. "We’re a better team when everyone is hitting and pitching well."
Wimbledon's court crowned

Graf walks away with 17th Grand Slam title

Steve Winer
Associated Press

LONDON — Steffi Graf has played some of the best tennis from a championship. Lofton, Dan te Pel!

She produced the best tennis from a championship. Lofton, Dan te Pel!

SPECIAL OLYMPICS

The Special Olympics World Games, ended Sunday in the longest game, and perhaps best game of Graf's career.

There were no breaks in the final set of a close, exciting match. In the end, Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen

"Yes!" Sampras shouted as he scored his second serve in the longest game. Vicario hit a thunderous forehand that crossed the net. Graf was one shot under any circumstances, lasting 21 sets and 20 minutes with 11 deuces and nineteen