Coors Brewery visitors hit when car runs off road

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — A car plowed into a line of tourists waiting to visit the Coors Brewery on Saturday and injured 12 people, authorities said.

The driver had apparently blacked out, police Sgt. Bob Tortora said.

Tour guide Debbie Shafer said she was walking across the parking lot when she heard the commotion and ran to help a fellow guide. "She told me, 'Debbie, she ran right over me. She ran right over me.' There were track marks on her leg."

Witnesses said the compact car struck people waiting for a tour bus, bounced off a wall, then continued around a drive and back onto the street.

The driver was among six people hospitalized in fair condition. Two were in serious condition, both with broken legs. The others were treated and released.

Former team captain named acting coach

Shannon Stevens
The Daily Iowan

Eleven years ago, before starting her senior year, Hawkeye women's basketball captain Angie Lee met her new head coach.

On January 29, 1984, the spunky Iowa guard described head women's basketball coach C. Vivian Stringer:

"Vivian Stringer is a remarkable person and a remarkable coach. She's a lady who can take you all the way to the top and make those dreams come true."

Just over a decade later, Lee is on the other side of the ball.

Friday morning, Stringer resigned as Iowa's head women's basketball coach to become the head coach at Rutgers University in Piscataway, N.J., and Iowa women's athletic director Dr. Christine Grant named Lee as Iowa's acting head coach Friday afternoon.

Lee is far from a stranger to the Hawkeye program. Aside from playing under Stringer, Lee has also has spent the last six seasons as one of Iowa's assistant coaches.

Lee was Iowa's senior captain during Stringer's 1983 inaugural season at Iowa. That year, the Hawkeyes finished 17-10 overall, bettering the previous season's record of 7-20.

Lee averaged just 4.7 points per game, but was second on the team in both assists (82) and steals (41).

Rutgers Athletic Director Fred Gruninger knew the courting of Iowa's C. Vivian Stringer would be an agonizing process.

However, a tense month of waiting was worth it when Stringer announced Friday she was leaving the UI after 12 years as head women's basketball coach to assume the same position at Rutgers University in Piscataway, N.J.

Gruninger said Stringer was given a multi-year deal at $150,000 per year, making Stringer the highest paid women's coach in the nation.

"I know in my heart this is the right decision for me and my family."

Gruninger would not discuss a bonus package — reportedly worth $300,000 — also involved in the deal between Rutgers and the nationally renowned coach.

"This is the right place and the right time for me. It is time for me to return to the East," Stringer said after making what she called the most difficult decision of her life.

"I know in my heart this is the right decision for me and my family. It's a great place to raise children," she said. "I feel the quality of life here will be fine, and the area offers opportunities for them. Being a single parent and moving three people across the country isn't an easy decision. You never want to hurt the people you love and there were just so many thousands of things to consider."

Stringer began her coaching career in Pennsylvania, where she compiled a 251-51 record during 11 seasons at Cheyney State. She then brought her talents to the UI and continued her winning ways.

CHICAGO — Another 56 deaths were added to the grisly toll that five days of 90-plus-degree heat has taken on the people of this city, the Cook County medical examiner said Sunday.

The 56 deaths, added to the 65 others logged in Illinois since Wednesday, pushed the national toll from heat and storms over the same period to at least 172.

CAMPAIGN SUCCESS HINGES ON EXPOSURE

Political perception influenced by degree of media coverage

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

Presidential candidates can sling mud, block legislation and attack the current president, but before polls are opened or the votes are counted, they're all looking for the same thing — media exposure.

Like it or not, the media play an increasingly important role in poli-date or political party. But the media still largely affect political perception.

Nicholas Johnson, a former member of the Federal Communications Commission and now a UI visiting law professor, ran for Congress in the 1970s. He said the media were one factor around which his campaign was organized and things haven't changed in the last 20 years.

"My campaign manager told me there are three things you have to have if you want to get elected — money, media and voters," Johnson said. "If it doesn't relate to one of those things, you don't have to have it."

Many candidates hold small gatherings or show up in small towns to greet voters, shake hands and kiss babies. Johnson said voters should not be fooled when a candidate for president shows up somewhere like rural Iowa.

"The times they're meeting with people one-on-one are times when they're playing to the media," Johnson said. "The media is going to cover you when you're going door-to-door or meeting people at senior citizens' homes."

Silly Iowa City laws: Just ticket the idiots

Hey, I read in the paper last week it was hot. And people get more irritable when it's hot. Guess what else? They get more stupid, too. But there are some things that don't get more stupid — because they couldn't.

Those things are laws. Before I get into trouble, let me separate the laws from the people who enforce them. For the most part, enforcers are just doing their jobs, and at least they don't do it like enforcers in the movie "Judge Dredd" — playing the judge, jury and executioner. (Well, maybe some of them do.)

I'm sure everyone has their own least-favorite law. I know I do. And I realize there are some laws that are very beneficial and should be enforced to the utmost. But really, I think the majority of Iowa City's laws, primarily the alcohol and drug related ones, are crap. Oh yeah, and a $50 fine for rollerblading is also ridiculous.

The first law we need to look at is public intoxication. One real problem with this law is when it is documented on court reports, it is written: "Was intoxicated or simulated intoxication in a public place."

Simulated intoxication? Boy, that's pretty dangerous. It's a good thing we've got people on the streets looking out for fake drunks. It's a scary sign when stumbling is cause for arrest.

The second problem with public intoxication is I don't think it should be illegal to drink too much if you want to. People who get wasted will pay for their drunkenness in the morning.

The only good thing public intoxication does is take away the "I didn't mean it; I was drunk" excuse. If some drunken idiot breaks a car window, arrest them for that and fine them a lot, but don't charge them $50 because they were drunk.

In recent court reports, I read a case where a kid got a public intoxication charge and spent the night in jail for calling a cop "a f--- pig" from a half block away. Poor cop got called a mean name, but the kid did probably deserve some kind of ticket.

Maybe there should be an "I'm a dumb-ass law" instead of public intoxication. Dumb-asses are far more deserving of a ticket than drunken people, and then the city could collect extra money for a new city hall or whatever. Most weekends, there are more dumb-asses than drunks, so they'd make more money, anyway.

In keeping with the alcohol context, I also think the underage drinking law is silly. Of course, most underage drinkers in bars are stupid drunks anyway, so never mind.

John Mummey, owner of Mumm's Saloon and Eatery, 21 W. Benton St., has a good point, though. If you can't bust all the underage drinkers, why only ticket five? It's kind of like the "did you bring enough for the whole class" rule from elementary school. There's no way a bar taking up half a city block only had five underage drinkers in it. If cops want to curb underage drinking, get all of them — and if they're being stupid, ticket them for that, too.

And don't try so damn hard to penalize the establishments serving drinks. The sting operation, in which an undercover cop walks around downtown with a minor and says to doorknobs, "He's my son — can he come in even though he doesn't have an ID?" is pretty unfair.

Anyone who lets them in gets a $200 fine. How many doorknobs have $200 to throw away, especially for doing a favor to a "dad" who is supposed to know what is best for his "son"?

Sorry about the tangent. Anyway, doorknobs are only human and they make mistakes. So what? Nobody's perfect. (Is that a cliché?) But to all minors, if you get caught with a fake ID by a doorknob, just leave — and don't insult the doorknob's intelligence by protesting, because you just look stupid.

Here's another law I think is dumb: possession of a schedule I controlled substance. That means you had marijuana, usually only enough for personal use. Why is that illegal? It's a personal choice, and it's only a little bit.

A drug rehab counselor at Oakdale told me once that most recreational drugs (pot, mushrooms, LSD, etc.) are safer (as far as long- and short-term effects go) than smoking cigarettes or drinking alcohol. So the police are basically arresting people for being health nuts. Be careful when shopping at the New Pioneer Co-op next time; the organic cucumbers could be a schedule I controlled substance.

So what laws are good? Public urination laws are good, because it's gross and not to mention stupid. Why not just wait 'til you get home, or at least go in an alley or something?

Operating while intoxicated laws are good, because people could get hurt badly, but I think the Iowa City Police Department should sponsor a safer sort of thing, in which people could call the cops for a ride home if they're drunk — and not get arrested. It would be more productive than arresting young people or drunks.

Sex offender laws are good, but maybe not strong enough. Recently, a 19-year-old went to court for having sex with a 13-year-old and a 14-year-old. He should have been fined about $1 billion — and gotten tickets for being a dumb-ass, being in public without a clue and being selfish, rude and disgusting.

Being rude should be a big fine. There's no reason to be that way, even if you're drunk. Unfortunately, I'd even get ticketed for being a rude drunk. Here's another example I saw over the weekend:

A girl at a bar asked for a piece of gum, and a waitperson gave her one. Thirty minutes later, she spit the gum onto the floor (which the waitperson had just swept). She said, "They'll mop it up later."

Bam! A $50 fine for being rude, and a kick in the butt for bail. And I bet if anyone asked her later, she would have said, "I wouldn't have done it if I hadn't been drunk." Bam! Another $50 fine for being a dumb-ass. I think I'm beginning to like this law enforcement stuff.

Quotable...

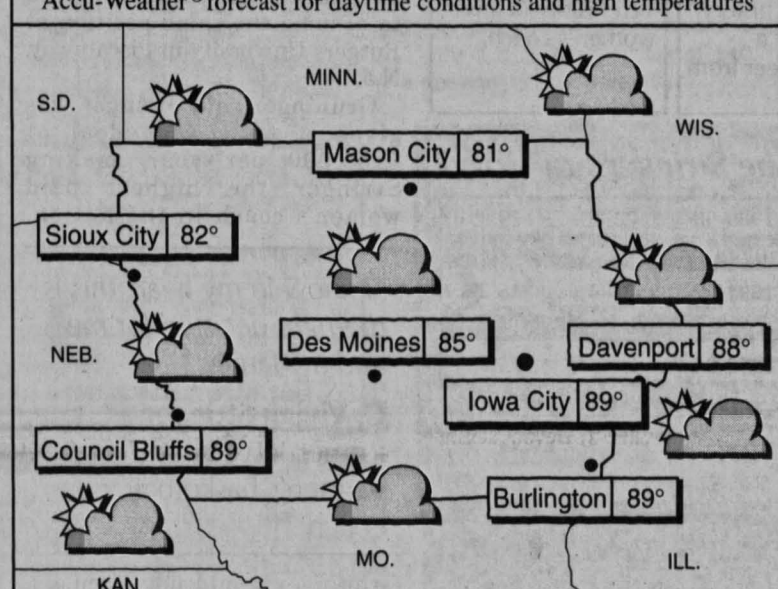

"The idea that O.J. Simpson simply is incapable of doing these murders has always been bizarre. It sort of highlights the weakness of the defense: They're trying to tell us that O.J. Simpson — one of the world's great athletes — is incapable of doing what 75 percent of adult males could. This is starting to strain credulity."

Apollo 13 crew member frequents movie version

He's seen the film four times. "The movie is very realistic," said Haise, one of three astronauts who managed to bring the crippled spacecraft back to earth in April 1970.

But Haise, a vice president at Northrop-Grumman Corp., said actor Bill Paxton exaggerates the misery he faced after coming down with high fever and chills when temperatures in the spacecraft plunged to the 30s.

"It was uncomfortable but not incapacitating," the 61-year-old Haise said. "The movie played that up too much."

'Lois & Clark' star discounts tabloid romance reports

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Television's man of steel is a bit thinned when it comes to tabloid talk of him as a club-hopping playboy.

Dean Cain, who plays Superman on ABC's "Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman," says he's completely devoted to girlfriend Gabrielle Reece, and that his relationship with former flame Brooke Shields is purely platonic.

"I'm going to dinner with Brooke Shields tonight. We haven't seen each other in over a year, and we're friends, but if someone takes a picture, (the tabloids will) be writing that Brooke and I are together again," Cain says in the July 22 issue of TV Guide.

Cain says he's "the most fiercely monogamous person there is. I've been with Gab for over a year and she gets so ticked, reading that all these different girls are linked with me."

A former member of the Buffalo Bills, he says acting is not much different. "In football it was this: You're a piece of meat. And in acting it's this: You're a piece of meat."

'Frasier' plot poised to heat up for fall season

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Struggling with flagging ratings, writers of NBC's "Frasier" are planning to spice things up next season with some major plot twists — including a visit from some of the old "Cheers" gang.

"We don't know who yet, but somebody will show up," executive producer Christopher Lloyd says in the July 22 issue of TV Guide.

Writers also hope sparks will fly when Dr. Frasier Crane, played by Kelsey Grammer, gets a new female boss. The station manager role is yet to be cast.

"Frasier," a spinoff from the highly-successful "Cheers" sitcom, has nose-dived in the Nielsen ratings from third in September 1993 to 48th on July 12.

Iowa caucus publicity for

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

The results of the Iowa caucus will make waves in the 1996 presidential race, despite Iowa's lack of media hype found before state caucuses and primaries later in the campaign.

Some say the media play a large role throughout the campaign; others disagree, saying states like Iowa and New Hampshire (the site of the first presidential primary) are less media-saturated during the campaign than states having primaries and caucuses later in the political season, like California.

"I don't think the media play an extremely important role in Iowa," said Jeff Birnbaum, a political correspondent in Time magazine's Washington bureau. "It's far more important to organize activists who will show up at the caucuses. It's more of a hand-to-hand campaign."

David Yepsen, a politics writer for The Des Moines Register, said the media blitz becomes more and more pronounced as the campaign wears on.

"One of the great things about the Iowa Caucuses and the New Hampshire primary is it's a chance for people to get out and meet the candidates. These (candidates) are spending a lot of time in these small towns meeting people, and it doesn't take too much energy to get out and meet Bob Dole or Phil Gramm and ask them some questions," Yepsen said. "After the race gets out of Iowa and New Hampshire, it's really media and money race."

Still, the Iowa caucuses are important in terms of rank and

Iowa caucuses provide publicity for candidates

Patricia Harris
The Daily Iowan

The results of the Iowa caucuses will make waves in the 1996 presidential race, despite Iowa's lack of the media hype found before state caucuses and primaries later in the campaign.

Some say the media play a large role throughout the campaign; others disagree, saying states like Iowa and New Hampshire (the site of the first presidential primary) are less media-saturated during the campaign than states having primaries and caucuses later in the political season, like California.

"I don't think the media play an extremely important role in Iowa," said Jeff Birnbaum, a political correspondent in Time magazine's Washington bureau. "It's far more important to organize activists who will show up at the caucuses. It's more of a hand-to-hand campaign."

David Yepsen, a politics writer for The Des Moines Register, said the media blitz becomes more and more pronounced as the campaign wears on.

"One of the great things about the Iowa Caucuses and the New Hampshire primary is it's a chance for people to get out and meet the candidates. These (candidates) are spending a lot of time in these small towns meeting people, and it doesn't take too much energy to get out and meet Bob Dole or Phil Gramm and ask them some questions," Yepsen said. "After the race gets out of Iowa and New Hampshire, it's really a media and money race."

Still, the Iowa caucuses are important in terms of rank and image — finish at the top (or better than expected) and watch media coverage increase.

"A lot of it is beating expectations," Yepsen said. "If you do better than expected, you win; worse than expected, you lose (in the media's opinion). It's frustrating for campaigns, because they don't know where the bar gets set that they have to get over."

MEDIA and POLITICS

Even Birnbaum, who downplayed the role of the media, acknowledged results in the Iowa caucuses can shape public and media perception.

"News of who won the early caucuses and primaries can have an impact on later caucuses and primaries — who won, who showed well and what candidates are saying about each other," he said.

It's this reporting of winners and losers and what the media do with the results that disturbs Jim Nareckas, editor of Extra!, a publication of media watchdog group Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting.

"The media are more centered on the race itself — the most important question is, 'Who won?' not 'What effect is this going to have on the country?'" he said.

Iowa family, town rejoices in release of Iraqi hostages

Melanie Chase
Associated Press

DES MOINES — The ribbons on the trees, store fronts and homes in New Hampton, Iowa, can come down now. They served their purpose — William Barloon has been freed from an Iraqi prison.

Barloon, 39, of New Hampton, and David Daliberti, 42, of Jacksonville, Fla., were released Sunday, four months after being sent to a top-security prison in Iraq for illegally entering the country.

"It has been exactly 4 months and 3 days, but who's counting?" asked Barloon's brother, Ed Barloon.

"We are very, very pleased that this has occurred and hopefully now, especially my brother and his wife and their families and the Daliberti family can move forward with their lives, as well as the extended families of both men," Ed Barloon said Sunday in a telephone interview from his home in Rosemount, Minn.

Barloon said his mother, Mary Rethamel, who lives in New Hampton — along with other relatives — was "elated" and planned to go to church. Barloon said she would not talk to reporters about her son's ordeal.

Barloon and Daliberti were sentenced by an Iraqi court to eight-year prison terms in March, 12 days after they were arrested inside Iraqi territory. The men said they strayed across the border from Kuwait by mistake.

To show their support for the two Americans, residents of New Hampton decorated the northeast Iowa town with ribbons.

"That ribbon is a big thing in New Hampton," said Merle Rethamel, one of Barloon's relatives who lives in New Hampton.

"There's ribbons on trees. There's ribbons on stores. There's ribbons hanging all over, out in the country," he said.

"We're definitely happy if this is all true. We believe it is. Yes, it'll make a big difference in our family," Rethamel said during a telephone interview on Sunday.

Ed Barloon said he had no warning his brother and Daliberti were to be released. He also said the waiting would continue.

"Until we all or one of us actually hears from my brother, everything is in limbo," Barloon said. "You just want them out of the country as soon as possible and back to where he can get a phone and call any member of the family — it makes no difference who — and just the first 'Hi, how's it going' and some pictures of him."

UI PRESIDENTIAL SEARCH CONTINUES

It keeps going and going

The latest news in the five-month-long UI presidential search process is that on-campus interviews will begin promptly in the next few months — more or less.

Rumor has it interviews must wait until after the beginning of the fall semester so an as yet unnamed candidate can walk to Iowa City from northwest Washington state. No one said the process would be easy.

Steve Collins, chairman of the UI Presidential Search and Screen Advisory Committee, has said he wants to interview the half dozen or so candidates all within a few weeks. Those weeks, he said, will be in the "very early days of the fall semester." Collins said there could be a new president in place by Jan. 1, 1996. All in all, the process seems to be crawling along very well.

It's a little too easy — and a little unfair — to poke fun at the search process and committee. They are looking for a college president, not just a computer science adjunct or an English department Teaching Assistant. After all, what's six months without a president when the alternative could be much worse?

Wouldn't Collins, the search committee members and others in the UI community have felt foolish if they had rushed to select a new president and horrible rumors of mismanagement, drunken tirades or even worse began to trickle in after the position was filled?

Meanwhile, across campus, another search is on. C. Vivian Stringer, one of the country's best women's basketball coaches and the most winning basketball coach in UI history, is moving to Rutgers. Stringer's top assistant, Angie Lee, will be the interim head coach until a permanent coach can be found.

UI Athletics says a new coach will be named by Aug. 1.

Let's get this straight. Finding a new UI president will take six months to a year, and finding a new women's basketball coach will take two to three weeks. Admittedly, the basketball coach will have to answer to very few people, compared to the new university president, but how can the search for one specialized professional take so much longer than the search for another specialized professional?

Certain people — it's not easy to begin to guess who — may be doing an exceptionally bad job or an exceptionally good job with their respective selection processes.

So the search for a new president continues. Coach Stringer was still recruiting basketball players for the UI while the search committee was looking for a new president. Stringer accepted the job at Rutgers, and the search for a new president continues. Stringer's replacement could be hired and on the road recruiting, and the search for a new president will go on.

LETTERS

Stealing of property was a 'grave crime'

To the Editor:

On June 27, The Daily Iowan ran an article about the plague of bicycle thefts in Iowa City. The article described an interview with Sgt. Craig Lih of the Iowa City Police Department. Lih claimed bicycles are being stolen right from citizens' properties. He then listed a number of "tips" on bicycle theft prevention.

Good for Lih and the police department to offer such illuminating advice. Actually, if five bikes are stolen in Iowa City every week, there is a problem. If one bike is stolen, there is a problem. Yes, there is a problem in Iowa City. The problem is not how many bikes are stolen; the problem is the police department doesn't care that bikes are being stolen.

Hopefully, readers will never have to encounter bike thefts in Iowa City. For those who have, the worst part about the theft is the lack of cooperation from the police department. Much like the victim interviewed in the DI article, our 16-year-old's bike was stolen from our back yard. We called the police and a report was filed on the phone.

When asked if an officer would be coming to the house, the response was that officers are too busy. When asked what would be done about finding the stolen bike, we were told the bike would probably not be found; too many bikes are stolen for the police department to be able to search for all of them.

I don't know where the police department developed their logic, but if there's a problem with bikes being stolen, my albeit meager arithmetic mind tells me, 'If 'a' then 'b' — or 'if bikes are being stolen, why not do something about it?'

The bicycle is the only means of transportation for many people in Iowa City. Without bikes, many people cannot get around town. A bike to one person is as invaluable as a car to another. Taking a bike away from a high school student who rides to school, to a minimum wage-paying job and home again is a criminal offense.

Once we put a monetary label on the property loss, it seems to be a pretty grave crime.

It's time for the police department to stop talking about how we can prevent a crime and begin locating stolen property and punishing criminals to stop the crime altogether. It doesn't matter what property is taken. The personal value of any item, no matter how small to one, can be priceless and toilsome to replace to another.

Column contained factual deletions

To the Editor:

Daily Iowan columnist Kim Painter's piece about America's use of atomic weapons against Japan contains several factual deletions and errors:

- American casualties on Okinawa were not 12,000. Total casualties were 12,000 Americans killed, 38,000 wounded.

- The 180,000 Japanese casualties on Okinawa were not chiefly civilians. Approximate Japanese military losses were 90,000 killed, 2,000 wounded.

- Secretary of War Stimson did not wait two weeks to inform Truman

DUANE NOLLEN

Minority-majority districting equals apartheid into the Dark Ages.

Liberals overlook the fact that the 1982 amendments to the Voting Rights Act mandating the creation of minority-majority districts creates — as Justice Sandra Day O'Connor so aptly stated — "political apartheid." The liberals' proclivity for contentious race-based politics, in the name of egalitarianism, is a contributing factor to the tense social climate in America today. It is based on the false assumption that racial groups are monolithic voting blocs.

The 1965 Voting Rights Act was conceived to protect Southern blacks from redneck whites who were hell-bent on shutting them out of the political process. However, the act was modified to re-engineer society by creating a quota system for congressional seats, making Congress politically correct.

This liberal overzealousness "ethnically cleansed" many congressional districts, herding Democratic-leaning minority groups into odd-shaped districts and leaving the bordering districts lily white and ripe for the Republican tidal wave that swept the country in 1994.

The contemporary insistence on racial and cultural diversity is tearing America apart at the seams.

In an essay for Parade magazine, emetrios Librarian of Congress Daniel Boorstin wrote, "The menace to America today is the emphasis on what separates us rather than what brings us together." He decried the divisiveness of race-based politics and advocated a return to what made America great: a sense of community. The Supreme Court backs this argument. It said racially gerrymandered congressional districts — like Georgia's 11th district — violate the 14th Amendment's doctrine of equal protection, and disaffected constituents have the right to challenge the validity of the district.

As stated before, the premise of minority-majority districts rests on the assumption race makes a group a unified voting bloc. This is far from reality. Groups display unity in the face of a perceived outside threat. However, once the threat is over, dynamics within the group deteriorate into bickering and disunity. If you place people like Colin Powell and gangsta rapper Snoop Doggy Dog in the same voting district, their world views and desires will collide — not merge for consensus politics.

The black community today is not monolithic, and gerrymandering a well-to-do area with an inner city ghetto will not further the cause of just representation.

Steven Gregory of Wesleyan University researched two black neighborhoods in Queens, N.Y. East Elmhurst is a middle class community of homeowners, and North Corona is a working class, poor district. His research discovered that after the common cause of the Civil Rights movement, economic issues divided the two communities.

Gregory points out that the irony of the struggle against discrimination is the bureaucratic reforms of local institutions undermined the significance of race in politics. After the end of discrimination, the middle class experienced a boom and then shifted the focus of its political activities from unity to protecting their neighborhoods from crime, drug abuse and the social problems of poverty by shutting out the poor.

As an example, East Elmhurst blocked the construction of a diagnostic center for foster care children in their area. The East Elmhurst residents displayed the "not in my back yard" attitude towards disadvantaged black youth.

Hispanics were included under the umbrella of the Voting Rights Act in 1975. Yet, Peter Skerry of the Brookings Institute discovered the Voting Rights act hindered, rather than enhanced, the political efficacy of Hispanics, especially Mexican-Americans.

Though Hispanics are treated as one race, the statistics say otherwise. According to 1990 census figures, 50.6 percent of Mexican-Americans consider themselves white, 1.2 percent said they were black and 46.7 percent identified themselves as "other race." Skerry pointed out that Mexicans — unlike blacks — marry across racial lines, assimilate into society and migrate from their initial urban enclaves.

A major problem for Mexican-Americans is illegal immigration distorting voting patterns. Low voter turnout, due to voter ineligibility, castigates them as a lazy electorate. As an example, in a new Los Angeles County district, less than 5 percent of the approximately 1.8 million residents voted in the County Supervisors race.

Though seeing more minorities in Congress gives us a warm feeling in our hearts, the fact remains that intentionally redrawing congressional districts for "race conscious" purposes artificially integrates voters with different world views on the altar of political correctness.

Duane Nollen's column appears alternate Mondays on the Viewpoints Pages.

GUEST OPINION • DOUG ANDERSON

Dole is not concerned for the American family

It seems to be an axiom of our political system that whenever politicians have nothing to say to the real problems facing ordinary Americans, they start talking loud and passionately against the immorality of Hollywood, television and the music industry. Like flag burning — the other perennial topic for political white noise — "The Evils of the Entertainment Industry" is a tune politicians love to play over and over, masking their silence on the real issues of inequality, poverty, homelessness, unemployment and more than 20 years of declining wages and living standards.

This old record has been dusted off so often and so recently by the likes of Dan Quayle and Tipper Gore, it is surprising to see another political figure make it the central "message" of a campaign for office. Yet here it is again — scratched and strident — in a speech given May 31 by presidential candidate Bob Dole and in follow-up guest opinions such as the one in the July 5 Daily Iowan.

In a reprise of Quayle's 1992 campaign rhetoric that blamed child poverty on out-of-wedlock births and out-of-wedlock births on the television show "Murphy Brown," Dole identifies rap music and movies like "Natural Born Killers" as the greatest danger to America's families and children.

That Dole makes no similar criticism of right-wing "hate radio" and that he wants to repeal the 1994 assault weapons ban suggests something of the hypocrisy of his election-year crusade against media sex and violence.

In order to fully appreciate the cynicism of his position, however, we need to consider this defender of families and children is even now helping to push through legislation (the so-called "Contract With America") that will cut school lunch programs for poor children, deprive single mothers and their children of welfare benefits, eliminate guaranteed student loans for low- and middle-income college students and cut a host of other federal programs benefiting ordinary Americans.

With a political agenda like this, Dole is certainly no friend of my family. But I don't mean to pick on Dole in particular, who is saying little different from the other Republican presidential candidates or — for that matter — the Democrat who occupies the White House. Like a well-oiled barbershop quartet, President Clinton and his Republican rivals may sing in different keys but they sing the same song, and they all pack wicked razors for cutting needed social programs.

Clinton and the Republicans agree the price of reducing the budget deficit, created in the Reagan years through a combination of corporate tax cuts and huge increases in defense spending, should be paid by poor and working people. The Republicans say they want to eliminate the deficit in seven years; Clinton's plan would spread the pain over 10.

Though the two parties are harmonizing as never before, another sound is growing in the background: the sound of people's anger. Dole is right when he says "a line has been crossed ... of human ... decency," but the line that has been crossed is one of economic — not media — violence.

When 40 percent of the American labor force face the economic distress of unemployment, part-time work and poverty-level wages — while corporations increase their profits and decrease their share of the tax burden — it isn't surprising that people are angry. And when 23 percent of all year-round, full-time workers cannot earn enough to keep a family of four out of poverty — while Congressional Republicans talk of eliminating the minimum wage — it isn't surprising people are beginning to organize and fight back ("Normalizing Poverty," Z magazine, June 1995).

From protests in Newt Gingrich's Georgia and Washington, D.C., offices and massive demonstrations against cuts in education and social services in New York to the Gaylord protest at the UI and demonstrations against the "Contract" in 40 cities on May 6, people are beginning to fight for justice as they have not done since the civil rights struggles of the '60s.

Though conservatives would have us despair in silence, these expressions of popular anger are important because they teach us that we can fight the economic attacks being mounted by corporations and the politicians in their pay. Like it or not, ordinary Americans are finding their voices, and I intend to use mine when Iowa City's Coalition Against the Contract welcomes Newt Gingrich to Iowa on July 24. Without justice, there can be no peace.

Doug Anderson is a graduate student in English and a member of the Iowa International Socialist Organization.

Clinton exercises despicable Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)

raise questions about his common sense, but President Clinton proved Saturday that he stands the heat. Clinton's temperature the mid-90s and an official "excessive warning" to golf on a day when legions of tourists deserted Washington's sizzling streets made detours through lawn sprinklers.

Clinton

The thermometer hit 94 degrees with a discomfort index of 117 while Clinton jogged along the Potomac River at morning. Looking fit after a three-mile run, he threw in stretches and toe touches for good measure.

Clinton was next sighted in straw hat, black shirt and shorts on the golf course at nearby Army-Navy Country Club, chomping on a cigar as the afternoon temperature inched up to 95, with a discomfort index of 123 degrees. Secret Service agents were making regular water runs to the president and his golfing partners.

The National Weather Service issued an "excessive heat warning" about the dangerous combination of high heat and humidity.

The president is known as an all-weather golfer; he's been spotted on the links during snow and sleet.

Serb onslaught pushes Bosnian 'safe area' to edge

SARAJEVO (AP) — As the world dithered Sunday over how to protect U.N. "safe areas" in Bosnia, a relentless Serb artillery and tank assault pushed the isolated Muslim enclave of Zepa close to collapse.

Aid agencies, struggling to cope with a mass of human refugees after the fall of the government-held pocket of Srebrenica, prepared for the possibility of thousands more refugees.

"The Serbs have the capability to overrun Zepa," said U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivankov. Serb forces, backed by tanks, mortar and artillery positions, were just one mile from the town.

Government forces tried desperately to beat back the assault. "Furious attacks on Zepa are continuing," said Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic. "Major battles are ongoing."

The Bosnian government, out at international inaction, charged that U.N. commanders repeatedly stalled requests for NATO airstrikes from Ukrainian peacekeepers in Zepa. NATO jets buzzed Zepa on Sunday afternoon, but the U.N. official said they did not request airstrikes.

Similar requests from Dutch peacekeepers in Srebrenica were ignored last week until Tuesday when pinprick strikes on Serb tanks failed to stop the capture of the "safe area" hours later.

U.N. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, have said commanders promised Serbs in early July that there would be no more airstrikes. The promise reportedly came a day before the Serbs released the of more than 370 peacekeepers held as human shields by the rebels in retaliation for NATO airstrikes in late May.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, gloating over the United Nations' reluctance to use force, served notice that his forces intend to conquer all the land between Sarajevo and Srebrenica.

"The Muslim enclaves are viable and must disappear, or will do it by force," Karadzic said in an interview with the Spanish newspaper El Pais.

Clinton exercises despite scorching Washington heat

WASHINGTON (AP) — It may raise questions about his common sense, but President Clinton proved Saturday that he can stand the heat.

Clinton braved temperatures in the mid-90s and an official "excessive heat warning" to jog and golf on a day when legions of tourists deserted Washington's sizzling streets or made detours through lawn sprinklers.

The thermometer hit 94 degrees with a discomfort index of 117 while Clinton jogged along the Potomac River at mid-morning. Looking fit after a three-mile run, he threw in a few stretches and toe touches for good measure.

Clinton was next sighted in a straw hat, black shirt and shorts on the golf course at nearby Army-Navy Country Club, chomping on a cigar as the afternoon temperature inched up to 95, with a discomfort index of 123 degrees. Secret Service agents were making regular water runs to the president and his golfing partners.

The National Weather Service issued an "excessive heat warning" about the dangerous combination of high heat and humidity.

The president is known as an all-weather golfer; he's been spotted on the links during snow and sleet.

Serb onslaught pushes Bosnian 'safe area' to edge

SARAJEVO (AP) — As the world dithered Sunday over how to protect U.N. "safe areas" in Bosnia, a relentless Serb artillery and tank assault pushed the isolated Muslim enclave of Zepa close to collapse.

Aid agencies, struggling to cope with a mass of human misery after the fall of the government-held pocket of Srebrenica, prepared for the possibility of thousands more refugees.

"The Serbs have the capability to overrun Zepa," said U.N. spokesman Alexander Ivanko. Serb forces, backed by tanks and mortar and artillery positions, were just one mile from the town.

Government forces tried desperately to beat back the assault. "Furious attacks on Zepa are continuing," said Bosnian Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic. "Major battles are ongoing."

The Bosnian government, furious at international inaction, charged that U.N. commanders repeatedly stalled requests for NATO airstrikes from Ukrainian peacekeepers in Zepa. NATO jets buzzed Zepa on Sunday afternoon, but the U.N. officials said they did not request airstrikes.

Similar requests from Dutch peacekeepers in Srebrenica were ignored last week until Tuesday, when pinprick strikes on Serb tanks failed to stop the capture of the "safe area" hours later.

U.N. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, have said commanders promised the Serbs in early July that there would be no more airstrikes. The promise reportedly came a day before the Serbs released the last of more than 370 peacekeepers held as human shields by the rebels in retaliation for NATO airstrikes in late May.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, gloating over the United Nations' reluctance to use force, served notice that his forces intend to conquer all the land between Sarajevo and Serbia.

Republicans dispense report for Waco hearings

David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With potentially combustible hearings just ahead, the House Republican leadership distributed its fact sheet to rank-and-file lawmakers concerning what it terms the "tragedy in Waco."

Designed to help Republicans field questions from reporters and thus shape public opinion about the hearings, it notes most of the dozens who died at the Branch Davidian compound, many of them women and children, "were not suspected of any criminal wrongdoing."

Questions about "excessive use of force, militarization of law enforcement, and due process of law must be analyzed," the material says. "The raid also raised serious questions about religious liberty in this nation."

That sober rationale for eight days of hearings is strikingly different from the view of the Democrats in Congress and the White House, whose misery this sweltering summer extends from Waco to Whitewater.

Investigating the events at Waco "without investigating the extreme activities of some militias seems to suggest that law enforcement agencies are the real threat to the safety of American citizens," Treasury Secretary Robert Rubin wrote journalists recently.

The 1993 events in Texas must be viewed in the context of the April 19 bombing at Oklahoma City, with its connections to anti-government militia groups, he said.

Whatever mistakes the government made, "the real villain at Waco was David Koresh," leader of the Branch Davidians, said Treasury Undersecretary Ronald Noble.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., was even more pointed. The run-up to the Waco hearings has, he said, "all the earmarks of a circus with the National Rifle Association as ringmaster."

The NRA has been critical of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, the agency heavily involved in the siege against Koresh.

Four ATF agents and six Branch Davidians were killed when the ATF initiated a raid against the Waco compound Feb. 28, 1993.

Seven weeks later, an additional 81 Davidians — including Koresh — died in a fire that raced through the compound after the FBI tried to force out the compound's occupants with tear gas. The government maintains the fire was set by those inside.

The hearings are to begin Wednesday, with testimony by an author — himself the subject of Democratic complaints — and CNN-supplied videotape with scenes from the siege federal law enforcement mounted against Koresh and his followers. The list of witnesses runs from Henry McMahon, a firearms dealer who sold to Koresh, to Attorney General Janet Reno, who approved the raid and is slated to appear on the eighth and final day.

Republicans hint at disturbing revelations about the arsenal the government assembled at Waco, said to include at least one Abrams battle tank.

The military provided equipment and reviewed federal agency plans for the initial encounter with the Branch Davidians, but did not approve those plans, Defense Secretary William Perry said Sunday.

Exercise video may shed light on case

Michael Fleeman

LOS ANGELES — If O.J. Simpson's defense wants jurors to believe he was too banged up to commit murder, it may then have to explain away abdominal crunches, tricep dips, squats and even the buttocks squeeze.

These are some of the exercises the former football star is shown doing in "O.J. Simpson Minimum Maintenance Fitness for Men," a workout tape produced just a few weeks before the June 12, 1994, murders of Simpson's ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman.

The tape is the most lethal piece of impeachment material in the prosecution's arsenal for the cross-examination of Simpson physician Robert Huizenga, who testified Simpson was so battered from his National Football League career that he walked "like Tarzan's grandfather."

Huizenga also testified last week that cuts on Simpson's left hand probably were caused by broken glass, as the defense says, rather than a sharp knife, as the prosecution alleges.

The defense has used the Beverly Hills internist to suggest Simpson, with his bad knees, wrecked ankle, gnarled hands and a bodywide plague of rheumatoid arthritis, wasn't physically fit enough to efficiently kill two young people.

Associated Press

Defense witness Dr. Robert Huizenga explains how he examined O.J. Simpson's head and neck as a picture of Simpson taken June 15, 1994, is displayed on a courtroom television screen Friday.

Legal observers said diminished physical capacity has always been among the weakest parts of the defense case, which enters its second week today when Huizenga resumes testimony. Also on tap this week: Simpson's arthritis specialist, Dr. Bertram Maltz.

"The idea that O.J. Simpson simply is incapable of doing these murders has always been bizarre," said veteran criminal defense attorney Harland Braun. "It sort of highlights the weakness of the defense: They're trying to tell us that O.J. Simpson — one of the world's great athletes — is incapable of doing what 75 percent of adult males could. This is starting to strain credulity."

Prosecutor Marcia Clark signaled in her opening statements that the prosecution was ready to counter the arthritis claims with the workout video.

In the one-hour tape, geared for professional men on the go, Simpson does light aerobics, shoots a basketball (one of his opponents is Brian "Kato" Kaelin), and does a number of specialized exercises designed for the office, hotel room and airplane seat. The buttocks squeeze, for instance, is done on a plane, Simpson says.

Several times in the tape, however, Simpson does refer to his creaky knees, and for long periods during the aerobics section the camera is noticeably off Simpson and directed at others.

Still, the tape clearly contradicts the picture Huizenga painted of a retired football star in such disrepair that he'll soon need knee joint replacement surgery.

Asked why Hussein agreed to release the two, Christopher said, "It's very hard to probe the mind of Saddam Hussein."

"Perhaps he was trying to court some international favor," he said. "There comes a point where the disadvantages of keeping them out-

Clinton postponed plans to attend Sunday church services to telephone the wives of the two men to inform them their husbands had been released, aides said.

Barloon, 39, of New Hampton, Iowa, and Daliberti, 41, of Jacksonville, Fla., both worked for U.S. defense contractors in Kuwait. They were sentenced to eight-year prison terms in March by an Iraqi court, 12 days after they were arrested inside Iraqi territory.

The men said they strayed across the border from Kuwait by mistake. They appealed their sentences, but the Iraqi courts upheld them in June.

Iraqi officials, bitter at U.S. efforts to maintain crippling U.N. trade sanctions imposed after Iraq invaded Kuwait in August 1990, claimed Barloon and Daliberti may have been involved in espionage. Washington denied that.

put together a .762 winning percentage. Iowa won at least 20 games per year from 1985 through 1994, and garnered six Big Ten titles in the process. Stringer also led Iowa to nine NCAA tournament appearances, including a Final Four entry in 1993.

Stringer, who is fourth on the all-time victory list with 520 wins, was named National Women's Coach of the Year by Sports Illustrated and USA Today and won a Naismith award in 1993. She was also named Converse Division I Coach of the Year in 1993 and 1988.

Another in a long list of Stringer's accomplishments at Iowa came in 1984, when Carver-Hawkeye Arena packed in 22,157 fans — easily an arena and national record — to see Iowa play Ohio State.

"I will always cherish my years at Iowa, but I feel that it is time for me to move on," Stringer said. "I am extremely appreciative of the love and support that I have received during my 12 years at Iowa. I will keep in my heart a deep love for my team, coaches, administrators and all my dear friends at Iowa."

She will replace Theresa Greutz, who left Rutgers after 19 years to take the head coaching job at the University of Illinois.

"We're grateful and obviously excited to have Vivian," Gruninger said. "And we're looking forward to a new era at Rutgers."

Gruninger said he was not bothered by the time Stringer took to make her decision.

"There was no question that she was the one we wanted," he said. "There was no way it was going to be something that would happen overnight. It was evident that it would be a step-by-step process, and we just wanted to make sure that she was comfortable with our approach."

UI Athletic Director Dr. Christine Grant wished Stringer the best.

"Although we will lose her as a coach, we will never lose her as a friend," she said.

Grant appointed assistant coach Angie Lee as the acting head coach and said a permanent coach will be named in the near future.

In other action, the regents will discuss a bicycle safety plan approved by the UI Campus Planning Committee. The plan would give the Department of Public Safety the authority to stop and ticket bikers who ride excessively fast where pedestrians are present.

Committee President David Forkenbrock said the plan, which would take effect in the fall if approved, was a compromise between trying to please bicycle enthusiasts and ensuring the safety of pedestrians.

"We wanted to encourage the use of bicycles as a means of transportation around campus, but we also wanted to address pedestrian safety," he said.

The plan defines speeding as failing to slow to the speed of pedestrians when biking in a group of people.

The plan also outlines bicycle parking violations, such as parking inside a UI building or blocking access to a UI facility. Fines for parking violations range from $5 for the first five infractions in a year to $100 if a person receives 10 or more violations in a year.

Taylor recently sent a press release to members of the media, claiming himself the victor in a local poll; however, the "poll" was taken at a picnic where he had just given a speech.

Long-shot candidates who want to be seen as contenders have to be treated as dark horses, said politics reporter David Yepsen, a 21-year veteran of The Des Moines Register.

"That's one of the hardest things you have to deal with. They all think they deserve to be treated like Bob Dole," he said. "Campaigns always try to set an inevitability about themselves."

2½ or 3 percent would have been sufficient."

Regent Tom Collins expected the issue to receive some attention at the meeting, to be held at Iowa State University in Ames.

"Standing alone, they look a little high, but there might be some valid argument for that; I don't know," Collins said. "It certainly isn't low."

Salary increases are granted based on the quality of teaching, research and scholarship and service.

"The budget, including all types of funding, gives the UI $1.14 billion in resources during fiscal year 1996, an increase of 2.3 percent over the last fiscal year. Fiscal 1996 runs from July 1, 1995 to June 30, 1996."

"The budget includes funding for the Biosciences Initiative — $680,000 — that previously had been rejected by Gov. Terry Branstad. The funding includes money for faculty hiring and start-up costs."

"The addition isn't unusual, said Collins, who said the regents office had been working to get the funding."

"It's not uncommon," he said. "Sometimes you don't get funded for one session, but you do the next."

on the basis of how well they can get desired media coverage.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said all politicians are painfully aware of the influence media can have on a candidacy.

"The mere fact that you hire a press secretary and a assistant to deal with just the press illustrate how important they are," Grassley said. "It's almost elementary — the importance of the media in a campaign. The smallest percentage of people are the people you meet face to face; the smallest number gets your message face to face. You spend a third of your budget on media."

Selecting the candidates

The media have too much political power — often to the point of self-importance, said Jim Nau-reckas, editor of Extra!, the publication of Fairness and Accuracy in Reporting, a media watchdog group based in New York.

"I think the media have a tremendous power in limiting the choices people have in terms of candidates," he said. "They have a great deal of power setting the agenda and determining the agenda and deciding which issues are taken seriously and which are not. There is too much of an assumption of the role of picking and choosing among candidates. There is something of an arrogance on the part of the media."

Candidates like Republican Morry Taylor, a Des Moines businessman who announced his candidacy in May, probably have about as much a chance of making it to the White House as Iowa football coach Hayden Fry.

But that doesn't mean Taylor won't do his best to make himself appear as a candidate with the prospects of Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole or Texas Sen. Phil Gramm.

Taylor recently sent a press release to members of the media, claiming himself the victor in a local poll; however, the "poll" was taken at a picnic where he had just given a speech.

Long-shot candidates who want to be seen as contenders have to be treated as dark horses, said politics reporter David Yepsen, a 21-year veteran of The Des Moines Register.

"That's one of the hardest things you have to deal with. They all think they deserve to be treated like Bob Dole," he said. "Campaigns always try to set an inevitability about themselves."

Tomorrow: A case study of Bob Dole's campaign. Will the media make or break him?

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col. Sweden's Annika Sorenstam off three consecutive birdies then survived a shaky finish day, capturing the 50th Women's Open for her first victory.

Sorenstam, capitalizing on the round leader Meg Mallon's bogey debacle at the fourth shot a 2-under-par 68 for a stroke margin. Sorenstam had under 278 total on The Broad Golf Club's East Course.

Sorenstam's birdies at Nos. 10 and 11, put her two shots in front, as she extended to three, helping overcome bogeys on 15 and 16.

Warner found Leonard Co. for a 12-yard pass. However, ley was stripped of the ball at waukee's four yard line. J then swept in to snag the bou football to score his third toofball of the half.

"Right now we're just playing and having fun; making sure fans get a lot of excitement out of it," Jacob said. "And, of course we're hoping our team wins."

Iowa led 34-13 at halftime. Figuring something had to be done quickly, the Mustangs started the second half with an on-ick. Unfortunately for Milwaukee, the strategy backfired Iowa began its first possession in Milwaukee's only sign of defensive play, but the Barnstamers added another touch before the quarter was over.

Despite being in first place only a few weeks remaining, doesn't believe the Barnstamers have a lock on the playoffs.

"I think we need to win more games," Blue said. "We take it easy now, we've got to working for home field advantage."

Jacob's explosiveness on field came from his year's pl college ball at North Dakota in the Canadian Football League. But if you ask him, it's an aspect of his game that helps him.

"The best thing I bring to team is my age and my wisdom," Jacob said. "I can help some younger players develop for the future down the line. They don't realize that have to enjoy yourself and do homework. It's not all one big party. You have to practice hard to win you have to talk to other."

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Perez foils Fernandez's Philly debut

MONTREAL — Carlos Perez spoiled Sid Fernandez's debut for Philadelphia, pitching 7½ strong innings Sunday and leading the Montreal Expos past the Phillies 5-1.

The Phillies lost for the seventh time in eight games. They haven't won consecutive games since June 24-25, and are 3-15 since that time.

Perez (8-2) improved to 7-0 at Olympic Stadium, allowing one run on seven hits. The 24-year-old rookie struck out four and walked one. Mel Rojas got his 17th save.

Fernandez (0-1), signed as a free agent Thursday after being released by the Baltimore Orioles, pitched 5½ innings and gave up five runs on seven hits. He struck out six.

Padres 3, Braves 1
SAN DIEGO — Steve Finley and Ken Caminiti hit solo homers and rookie Glenn Dishman allowed only two hits in 7½ innings as the San Diego Padres cooled off Atlanta and avoided a four-game sweep.

It was only the second loss in 14 games this month for the NL East-leading Braves. The Padres, last in the NL West, won for only the third time in 12 games.

Marlins 5, Dodgers 2
LOS ANGELES — Pat Rapp struck out a career-high nine and combined with two relievers on a five-hitter as the Florida Marlins defeated Los Angeles.

Rapp (4-5) pitched six-plus innings, giving up four hits and walking two. He left with stiffness in his lower back after a collision with Los Angeles' Roberto Kelly at first base, and is listed as day-to-day.

Robb Nen earned his fifth save by pitching a hitless ninth. Ismael Valdes (5-6) lost his fourth straight decision after five consecutive victories.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 0
PITTSBURGH — Steve Parris, in danger of going to the minors only last week, pitched six shutout innings in the latest strong start by a Pittsburgh rookie as the Pirates beat St. Louis.

Carlos Garcia and Steve Pegues hit solo homers, giving the Pirates 10 homers in their last five games. The Pirates have 70 homers in 70 games, compared to a major-league low 80 in 114 games last season.

Mets 2, Rockies 1
NEW YORK — Rico Brogna singled home the winning run with two outs in the 10th inning, giving the New York Mets a victory over Colorado.

The Mets, with the second-worst record in the league, won three of four from the NL West-leading Rockies.

Jose Vizcaino opened the 10th with a single off Mark Thompson (2-1) and was sacrificed to second by pinch-hitter Tim Bogar.

Indians 5, A's 4
CLEVELAND — Manny Ramirez hit a two-out, two-run homer in the 12th inning off Dennis Eckersley, and the Cleveland Indians rallied past the Oakland Athletics 5-4 Sunday for a four-game sweep.

Carlos Baerga opened the 12th with a single for his fifth hit. Pinch-runner Kenny Lofton stole second with two outs and Ramirez hit his 21st home run into the bleachers in left field on a 2-2 pitch.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1
MILWAUKEE — Brian Givens, who underwent five elbow operations during 12 seasons in the minors, earned his first major league victory, leading the Milwaukee Brewers past Chicago.

Givens (1-2) gave up three hits in eight innings as the Brewers completed their first four-game sweep of the White Sox since July 1982.

Givens, a 29-year-old left-hander, worked 1,029½ innings in the minors. The rookie was called up by the Brewers on June 24 and lost his first two starts before a pair of no-decisions.

Blue Jays 9, Mariners 3

SEATTLE — John Olerud hit his first career grand slam and added a solo home run for a career-high five RBIs as the Toronto Blue Jays defeated Seattle.

The 1993 AL batting champion, was hitting .252 entering the game and homered Thursday night for the first time in 48 games.

Angels 6, Tigers 4

DETROIT — Jim Edmonds homered twice and drove in five runs as the California Angels defeated Detroit in a rain-shortened second game for a double-header sweep.

The Angels swept the four-game series. The Tigers, after starting 5-0 on an 11-game homestand, lost five of the last six.

Edmonds went 4-for-5 and scored three times. The second game was called in the top of the ninth inning after a wait of a half-hour.

California tagged Mike Moore (5-8) for six runs and nine hits in just 1½ innings. Rookie reliever Mike James (1-0) was credited with his first major league win.

Orioles 3, Royals 2

BALTIMORE — Jamie Moyer pitched 7 2-3 innings of three-hit ball, and Rafael Palmeiro and Cal Ripken homered as the Baltimore Orioles defeated Kansas City.

Moyer didn't walk a batter and had a season-high seven strikeouts in winning his fourth straight start. He retired 16 straight batters in the middle innings.

Yankees 5, Twins 1

NEW YORK — Rookie Mariano Rivera pitched six scoreless innings before leaving because of a torn fingernail, and Wade Boggs hit a two-run single as the New York Yankees beat Minnesota.

Rivera (3-2) remained unbeaten in his five daytime starts but was forced to leave after tearing the nail on his right middle finger with two on and no outs in the seventh. Reliever Bob Wickman allowed an RBI double to Pat Meares, but escaped a bases-loaded jam.

Sorenstam birdies way to Open win

Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Sweden's Annika Sorenstam ran off three consecutive birdies and then survived a shaky finish Sunday, capturing the 50th U.S. Women's Open for her first career victory.

Sorenstam, capitalizing on third-round leader Meg Mallon's triple-bogey debacle at the fourth hole, shot a 2-under-par 68 for a one-stroke margin. Sorenstam had a 2-under 278 total on The Broadmoor Golf Club's East Course.

Sorenstam's birdies at Nos. 9-11 put her two shots in front, a lead she extended to three, helping her overcome bogeys on 15 and 16.

"I was five shots out starting the day," Sorenstam said. "I went off today with the attitude that I had nothing to lose."

Sorenstam, 24, the LPGA's rookie of the year in 1994, had three second-place finishes over the last two seasons, but never a victory.

Mallon had a chance to tie at No. 18, but missed a 20-foot birdie putt. Her 74 gave her a 279 total.

Senior Players Championship

DEARBORN, Mich. — J.C. Snead beat Jack Nicklaus on the first hole of a playoff in the Senior Players Championship, making a curling 4-foot birdie putt after a 5-iron approach from 182 yards.

"I hit a real good tee shot and as good a second shot as I could have hit unless it went in the hole," said Snead, who lost the 1992 tournament to Dave Stockton when he double-bogeyed the same hole — the 417-yard 18th on the Nicklaus-designed TPC of Michigan. "I think about that every time I play that hole, but I've birdied it a few times before today. I think I played it well both times, on the 72nd hole and again in the playoff."

Snead, who had a four-stroke lead with six holes to play, shot a 3-under-par 69 and Nicklaus had a 67 for 16-under 272 totals. That sent them back to the No. 18, where both players had four pars in regulation.

Warner found Leonard Conley for a 12-yard pass. However, Conley was stripped of the ball at Milwaukee's fourth yard line. Jacox then swept in to snag the bouncing football to score his third touchdown of the half.

"Right now we're just playing and having fun; making sure the fans get a lot of excitement out of it," Jacox said. "And, of course, we're hoping our team wins."

Iowa led 34-13 at halftime. Figuring something had to be done quickly, the Mustangs started the second half with an inside kick. Unfortunately for Milwaukee, the strategy backfired and Iowa began its first possession from the Mustangs' 10-yard line.

Iowa had to settle for a field goal in Milwaukee's only sign of solid defensive play, but the Barnstormers added another touchdown before the quarter was over, putting them up 44-19.

Despite being in first place with only a few weeks remaining, Blue doesn't believe the Barnstormers have a lock on the playoffs.

"I think we need to win one more game," Blue said. "We can't take it easy now, we've got to keep working for home field advantage."

Jacox's explosiveness on the field came from his year's playing college ball at North Dakota and in the Canadian Football League.

But if you ask him, it's another aspect of his game that helps his team the most.

"The best thing I bring to this team is my age and my wisdom," Jacox said. "I can help some of the younger players develop for their futures down the line."

"They don't realize that you have to enjoy yourself and do your homework. It's not all one big party. You have to practice hard and to win you have to talk to each other."

THE BARN

I watched kickoff returners facing away from the kicker and waiting for the ball to ricochet off a giant net.

I saw a successful field goal by a Milwaukee Mustangs kicker who teed the ball up at his own six-yard line.

I especially enjoyed several ferocious tackles into the wall reminiscent of NHL board checks.

Then there was a 32-yard touchdown reception by former Hawkeye Carlos James.

Yes, James was, and still is, a defensive back. But in this league, many players can be seen on both sides of the ball.

As a matter of fact, another former Hawkeye, Larry Blue, was named the Riddell Ironman of the Game for his performance on the defensive, and offensive, line.

Blue was a crowd favorite. The very big body in the black and gold No. 99 uniform sent the sold-out "stadium" of 11,411 people into chants of his name early on. But, then again, the crowd seemed to be into everything.

I don't blame them. The acoustics alone got me pumped up. I guarantee, whether you like football or not, you could have a good time just listening to the music.

Don't worry, football fanatics can have a good time too. Just don't expect to see a traditional game of football.

The most obvious difference is the field, which is half as long as a regulation field, half as wide and surrounded by padded walls.

At the end of the field is a giant net with a nine-foot-wide hole in the middle. The net is used to keep kick-offs from sailing into the stands. The hole in the middle is a little more complicated.

No one punts in the Arena League. Why? Because you can make a field goal from anywhere. The league's record-long field goal of 60 yards was kicked from two yards into the kickers' own end zone.

Sound simple enough? Just wait.

The kicker can kick his field goal for three points or he can drop kick the ball through the uprights for four points. But if he misses either style of field goal, it may bounce off the big net. A defensive player can catch that bounce and return it.

Oh well. Who needs to kick anyway. The Barnstormers used their kicker only twice. The rest of the time, they were using Willis Jaycox, a CFL veteran that had everyone in the press room talking.

One of those gossipers was former Iowa State basketball coach Johnny Orr, who called Jaycox "as slippery as a bar of soap in the bathtub."

Jaycox scored five of Iowa's 10 touchdowns. He caught seven passes for 97 yards, which is quite impressive on a 50-yard field even if their are only eight defenders.

Oh yeah, that's another rule difference. There's only 16 players on the field. But don't worry about them getting lonely. The coaches are allowed to stand out on the field with them.

Yeah, I know what you're thinking. This league seems a little screwy. But when you miss football as much as I do, you can have yourself a good time in "The Barn."

Colts send Emtman packing

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Steve Emtman, the overall No. 1 draft choice in 1992, was waived by the Indianapolis Colts on Saturday.

Bill Tobin, the team's director of football operations, said they couldn't reach an agreement on restructuring his contract.

The Colts wanted the defensive lineman to accept a $1.3 million salary reduction for the upcoming season to help the team remain under the league's $36.7 million salary cap.

Emtman, who played in only 18 games in three seasons due to injuries, could not be reached for comment Saturday. On Friday, he called the Colts' latest offer "realistic," but said he was upset by the way the team had treated him.

Emtman was told Thursday he had to accept a $1.3 million salary reduction for the upcoming season or be placed on the waiver list.

NBA

Magic up in the air over return to Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Magic Johnson's agent says the former NBA star still hasn't decided whether to return to the Los Angeles Lakers.

In a story in Saturday's Boston Globe, Johnson seemed to strongly indicate that he wouldn't return to the Lakers, saying he wanted to concentrate on his new movie theater complex in Los Angeles.

But his agent, Lon Rosen, said Johnson's remarks were taken out of context.

Earlier, Johnson said he needed to have a "father-son talk" with Lakers owner Jerry Buss before making a decision. Rosen said Johnson has yet to discuss the matter with Buss.

Johnson, who turns 36 next month, retired in 1991 after learning he had HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. He started a comeback prior to the 1992-93 season, but retired again before the season started after some players expressed concern about his condition.

Johnson later coached the Lakers for a brief period.

BASEBALL

Lack of control costs Dibble spot on White Sox

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fiery reliever Rob Dibble was placed on waivers Sunday by the Chicago White Sox, who want to give him his unconditional release.

Dibble, who signed with Chicago as a free agent Feb. 27, was 0-1 with one save and a 6.28 ERA in 16 games this year. He'd given up just seven hits in 14 1-3 innings, but walked 27 batters.

The move came as the 6-foot-4, 230-pound Dibble, known for a temper that led him to start fights and get suspended over his stormy seven-year career, was appealing a three-game suspension for throwing at Milwaukee's Pat Listach and igniting a brawl at County Stadium on June 29.

Cubs salvage Game 4

Mike Nadel
Associated Press

CHICAGO — For three days, the Cincinnati Reds were bullies who broke into the Chicago Cubs' house and roughed them up.

"The Reds pretty much kicked our butts," Brian McRae said. "We were joking that they came into town and took our lunch money and we had to try to get some of it back."

They did, thanks in great part to McRae. He homered, tripled and singled twice Sunday as the Cubs avoided a four-game sweep.

Even in losing, the Reds beat up on the Cubs. They hit four home runs — two by Bret Boone and one apiece by Reggie Sanders and Eddie Taubensee. All four were against Kevin Foster (7-5), who allowed only one other hit in seven innings.

Foster survived by issuing no walks. He struck out eight.

"I just tried to pitch real aggressively," said the second-year right-hander, who has allowed an NL-high 18 home runs. "You can't afford to pitch up in the strike zone in Wrigley Field with the wind blowing out. But the home runs really don't bother me as long as they're solo shots and as long as we're scoring runs."

Chicago, which won for the first time in five games since the All-Star break, moved within nine games of the NL Central-leading Reds.

The Cubs led 2-1 on McRae's homer and Sammy Sosa's RBI single before scoring four times in the fourth inning to chase Pugh.

Jose Hernandez, batting .236 going into the game, drove in a run with a bases-loaded single. Todd Pratt, a .132 hitter, followed with a two-run double. Shawon Dunston added an RBI single off Xavier Hernandez for a 6-1 lead.

McRae's speed gave momentum back to the Cubs in the bottom of the seventh. He tripled just over the glove of center fielder Jerome Walton, and scored on a wild pitch by Hector Carrasco.

Chris Nabholz pitched a perfect eighth for the Cubs, and Randy Myers followed with a scoreless ninth to earn his 22nd save.

Associated Press

With temperatures in the 90s at Wrigley Field Sunday, Cincinnati pitcher Hector Carrasco keeps cool with a towel over his head.

Glasper guides comeback win

Jon Basso
The Daily Iowan

Just call them the Prime Time comeback kids.

First National Bank came back from another 20-point deficit to top New York Life 133-122 Sunday. It was the third straight game in which First National has erased a double-digit lead and won.

Jermain Wilform paced First National with a hot shooting performance. Wilform hit 14-of-22 from the field on the way to a game-high 37 points.

Monter Glasper came through with a triple-double, finishing with 22 points, 10 rebounds and 12 assists.

"We just keep on fighting," Glasper said. "The key was rebounding and getting to the free throw line once again."

New York Life was forced to play with nobody on the bench and began to wear out in the second half.

James Moses led New York Life with 36 points and 12 rebounds. Chris Kingsbury hit six three-pointers and finished with 33 points.

Glasper said that his team is starting to come together as a unit.

"Once playoff time comes, I think we'll be a top notch contender," Glasper said. "We'll be able to read off each other real well, and hopefully everything will come together at playoff time."

In the other early game, Goodfellow Printing/Imprinted Sportswear ran all over Nike, 96-77.

Goodfellow Printing led by as many as 41 points in the second half before holding off a late Nike rally.

Hawkeye freshman J.R. Koch led a balanced Goodfellow Printing attack with 26 points and 10 rebounds.

"Tonight I just wanted to hit the boards and get the weak stuff such as put-backs," Koch said.

Anthony Harris scored 20 points and pulled down 13 rebounds. Kenyon Murray scored 18 points, and Acie Earl added 16 for Goodfellow Printing.

Koch said despite solid competition, Goodfellow Printing is the team to beat.

"When we're playing as a team, getting out running and hitting our shots, I think we're the best team," Koch said.

In one of the late games, Andre Woolridge came through with his fourth consecutive triple-double to lead Hills Bank to a hotly contested 131-123 win over Fitzpatrick's.

Woolridge scored 39 points, dished off 16 assists and grabbed 10 rebounds for Hills Bank.

"They had all big men, so I just wanted to push it up," Woolridge said. "I knew that they would get tired in the second half."

The game was marred by questionable calls, pushing matches and technical fouls.

"When you play, you play hard," Woolridge said. "When emotions come up, they come up. I guess they came up today."

Hills Bank ran out to a 20-point lead in the second half before Fitzpatrick's rallied to cut the lead to four. But Woolridge put the game out of reach with several spectacular drives.

Russ Millard scored 36 points, pulled down 18 rebounds and handed out eight assists for Fitzpatrick's.

Gerry Wright was a force inside with 37 points. Woolridge had the unfortunate task of guarding the much taller Wright for most of the game.

"It was very tough (guarding

ARENA FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Indoor league brings excitement to Iowa Milwaukee's lack of 'D' leads to blowout

David Schwartz
The Daily Iowan

Players and fans of the Barnstormers were thinking playoffs as Iowa took the term blowout to a new level at Veterans Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines, known more appropriately as "The Barn."

Iowa capitalized on several Mustang turnovers and uninspired defense to down Milwaukee 74-35 in Arena Football League action Saturday night.

"We had a lot of fun out there," Iowa defensive lineman Larry Blue said. "If you do things right, you get the victory."

The win boosted the Barnstormers' record to 6-3, moving them into first place in the Central Division of the American Conference and one step closer to a playoff berth in the franchise's first year of existence.

The top eight teams in the 13-team league advance to a three-round postseason tournament, with the champion to be determined at Arena Bowl IX.

The Barnstormers showed their aggressive nature from the get-go as Iowa's Tony Young recovered a Milwaukee fumble on the opening kickoff to give his squad first and goal from the seven-yard line.

The Mustangs held Iowa for two plays before a penalty gave the Barnstormers a first down. Iowa quarterback Kurt Warner capitalized two plays later by finding a wide-open Willis Jacox in the back of the end zone for the Barnstormers' first score.

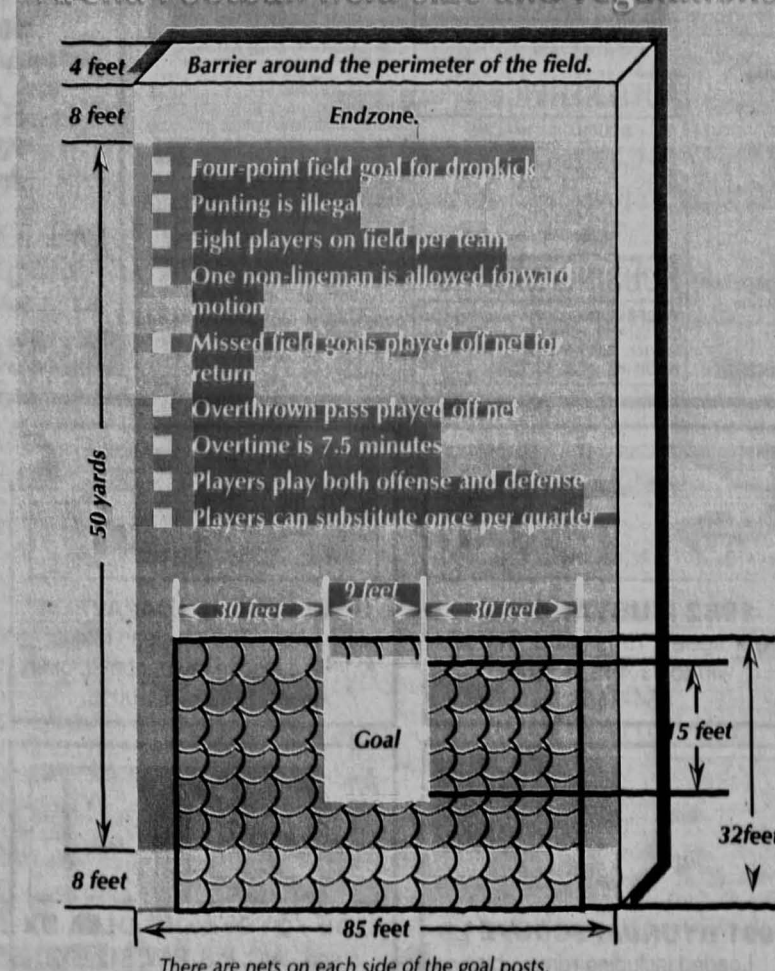

It was the first of Jacox's five touchdowns, a feat which earned him the game's MVP award.

Milwaukee managed just three points in the first quarter, a field goal by Kenny Stucker from the Mustangs' own six-yard line.

Iowa was relentless in the second quarter, scoring on their first play from scrimmage, a 14-yard pass from Warner to Jacox.

After Milwaukee scored its first touchdown, a three-yard run by Craig Taylor, Iowa stormed back down the field for a drive that climaxed with a spectacular play.

'The Barn' has plenty to offer

My advice to anyone that plans to check out the Iowa Barnstormers in Des Moines: Don't blink.

The Barnstormers are a rookie franchise in the Arena Football League, a professional league where there appears to be strong emphasis on scoring.

I spent Saturday night in "The Barn," more commonly known as Veterans Memorial Auditorium. And during a span of two and a half hours, I got an eyeful.

I witnessed a mini-fireworks display after each of the Barnstormers' 10 touchdowns.

UI professor of internal medicine dies at 62

The flag atop the Old Capitol will fly at half-staff today in honor of Annette Fitz, 62, a UI professor of internal medicine who died cancer July 11 at UI Hospitals Clinics.

Fitz earned a bachelor's degree from the UI in 1954 and her medical degree from the UI in 1958. She was a professor in the Department of Internal Medicine and nephrology division.

In 1968, Fitz became an assistant professor and was promoted to associate professor in 1972. She was a member of 16 state, regional, national organizations and served on 32 university and Veterans Affairs Medical Center committees.

She received the 1995 Merit Award for Faculty Excellence in Service to the University.

Simpson trial update

Monday, July 17, 1995

O.J. Simpson's damaged, arthritic wrists would not have prevented him from yanking back his ex-wife's head and slashing her throat, Dr. Robert Huizenga acknowledged in a cross-examination. He said none of Simpson's physical limitations would have made him incapable of the murder.

Prosecutor Brian Kelberg, handled the cross-examination, asked Huizenga if it were possible that football trained Simpson turn his emotions on and off. Huizenga said football players are "probably no different than lawyers."
