American hostages set free

Stringer accepts Rutgers post

Former team captain named acting coach

C. Vivian Stringer is lifted onto platform by Rutgers athletic director Bob Carr and40-ton crane Sunday after 100th career victory during the 1993-94 season. Stringer resigned as Iowa head women's basketball coach Tuesday to accept the top job at Rutgers. So far...
Local Interest

Silly Iowa City laws: Just ticket the idio-...
Iowa caucuses provide publicity for candidates

Marianito

The Daily Iowan

The results of the Iowa caucuses of 2006 were the highest in 100 years. The media hype beforehand was in no way out of step with what was happening in the Des Moines area. Almost none of the stories that appeared in the Des Moines Register, the Des Moines Tribune, or the Associated Press, the nation’s principal news service, focused on the political process of the caucuses. These newspapers wrote about the candidate who had the most votes at the end of the night, but nothing about how the caucuses themselves worked. The story of the caucuses was in the hands of the media, and not of the political scientists or the candidates who ran for office.

That said, the media coverage should be commended. The Des Moines Register used a lot of space to explain how the caucuses work, and how they are conducted. The Des Moines Tribune ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted, and the Associated Press ran a story about the political process of the caucuses. The Des Moines Register also ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states, and the Associated Press ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states.

The media coverage should be commended. The Des Moines Register used a lot of space to explain how the caucuses work, and how they are conducted. The Des Moines Tribune ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted, and the Associated Press ran a story about the political process of the caucuses. The Des Moines Register also ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states, and the Associated Press ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states.

The media coverage should be commended. The Des Moines Register used a lot of space to explain how the caucuses work, and how they are conducted. The Des Moines Tribune ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted, and the Associated Press ran a story about the political process of the caucuses. The Des Moines Register also ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states, and the Associated Press ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states.

The media coverage should be commended. The Des Moines Register used a lot of space to explain how the caucuses work, and how they are conducted. The Des Moines Tribune ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted, and the Associated Press ran a story about the political process of the caucuses. The Des Moines Register also ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states, and the Associated Press ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states.

The media coverage should be commended. The Des Moines Register used a lot of space to explain how the caucuses work, and how they are conducted. The Des Moines Tribune ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted, and the Associated Press ran a story about the political process of the caucuses. The Des Moines Register also ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states, and the Associated Press ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states.

The media coverage should be commended. The Des Moines Register used a lot of space to explain how the caucuses work, and how they are conducted. The Des Moines Tribune ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted, and the Associated Press ran a story about the political process of the caucuses. The Des Moines Register also ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states, and the Associated Press ran a story about how the caucuses are conducted in the other states.
DUANE NOLDE

Minority-majority districting equates apartheid

In an article on Newsweek magazine, columnist C. Bernard Butler wrote: "The reason in America today is the envisioning of a nation in which the minority is an equal member of the district". He described the difficulties of redistricting policies and the consequences of prevalent inequality that set in the United States in the1980s.

The Supreme Court's June 19 decision in Miller v.
Hagans, a case involving the districting process in the United States of America, has led the liberals to seek new solutions. The Miller decision wreaks havoc with the districting system of the United States.

The districting process in America is fraught with controversy and confusion. But the Miller decision has been hailed as a victory for civil liberties. The decision overturned the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which forbids the election of minority-majority districts.

The Miller decision states that "the Voting Rights Act
is unconstitutional in its application to states that are not covered by the Act's Section 5 requirement". The decision is "a setback for civil rights activists" that "leaves some minority groups in the United States without protection against dilution of their votes".

The decision leaves the Doorstep, a new political organization, and its members, to grapple with the implications of the Miller decision. The Doorstep is a project to prevent the districting of minority-majority districts.

DUANE NOLDE

Minority-majority districting equates apartheid

The Supreme Court's decision in Miller v.
Hagans, a case involving the districting process in the United States of America, has led the liberals to seek new solutions. The Miller decision
wreaks havoc with the districting system of the United States.

The districting process in America is fraught with controversy and confusion. But the Miller decision has been hailed as a victory for civil liberties. The decision overturned the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which forbids the election of minority-majority districts.

The Miller decision states that "the Voting Rights Act
is unconstitutional in its application to states that are not covered by the Act's Section 5 requirement". The decision is "a setback for civil rights activists" that "leaves some minority groups in the United States without protection against dilution of their votes".

The decision leaves the Doorstep, a new political organization, and its members, to grapple with the implications of the Miller decision. The Doorstep is a project to prevent the districting of minority-majority districts.

DUANE NOLDE

Minority-majority districting equates apartheid

The Supreme Court's decision in Miller v.
Hagans, a case involving the districting process in the United States of America, has led the liberals to seek new solutions. The Miller decision
wreaks havoc with the districting system of the United States.

The districting process in America is fraught with controversy and confusion. But the Miller decision has been hailed as a victory for civil liberties. The decision overturned the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which forbids the election of minority-majority districts.

The Miller decision states that "the Voting Rights Act
is unconstitutional in its application to states that are not covered by the Act's Section 5 requirement". The decision is "a setback for civil rights activists" that "leaves some minority groups in the United States without protection against dilution of their votes".

The decision leaves the Doorstep, a new political organization, and its members, to grapple with the implications of the Miller decision. The Doorstep is a project to prevent the districting of minority-majority districts.

DUANE NOLDE

Minority-majority districting equates apartheid

The Supreme Court's decision in Miller v.
Hagans, a case involving the districting process in the United States of America, has led the liberals to seek new solutions. The Miller decision
wreaks havoc with the districting system of the United States.

The districting process in America is fraught with controversy and confusion. But the Miller decision has been hailed as a victory for civil liberties. The decision overturned the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which forbids the election of minority-majority districts.

The Miller decision states that "the Voting Rights Act
is unconstitutional in its application to states that are not covered by the Act's Section 5 requirement". The decision is "a setback for civil rights activists" that "leaves some minority groups in the United States without protection against dilution of their votes".

The decision leaves the Doorstep, a new political organization, and its members, to grapple with the implications of the Miller decision. The Doorstep is a project to prevent the districting of minority-majority districts.

DUANE NOLDE

Minority-majority districting equates apartheid

The Supreme Court's decision in Miller v.
Hagans, a case involving the districting process in the United States of America, has led the liberals to seek new solutions. The Miller decision
wreaks havoc with the districting system of the United States.

The districting process in America is fraught with controversy and confusion. But the Miller decision has been hailed as a victory for civil liberties. The decision overturned the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which forbids the election of minority-majority districts.

The Miller decision states that "the Voting Rights Act
is unconstitutional in its application to states that are not covered by the Act's Section 5 requirement". The decision is "a setback for civil rights activists" that "leaves some minority groups in the United States without protection against dilution of their votes".

The decision leaves the Doorstep, a new political organization, and its members, to grapple with the implications of the Miller decision. The Doorstep is a project to prevent the districting of minority-majority districts.

DUANE NOLDE

Minority-majority districting equates apartheid

The Supreme Court's decision in Miller v.
Hagans, a case involving the districting process in the United States of America, has led the liberals to seek new solutions. The Miller decision
wreaks havoc with the districting system of the United States.

The districting process in America is fraught with controversy and confusion. But the Miller decision has been hailed as a victory for civil liberties. The decision overturned the Voting Rights Act of 1965, which forbids the election of minority-majority districts.

The Miller decision states that "the Voting Rights Act
is unconstitutional in its application to states that are not covered by the Act's Section 5 requirement". The decision is "a setback for civil rights activists" that "leaves some minority groups in the United States without protection against dilution of their votes".

The decision leaves the Doorstep, a new political organization, and its members, to grapple with the implications of the Miller decision. The Doorstep is a project to prevent the districting of minority-majority districts.
Republicans dispense report for Waco hearings

Clinton exercises discipline, but weans Hefner from golf

Debate: Clinton exercises discipline, but weans Hefner from golf

In 1995, the White House was a bustling place. Assistant press secretary Mike McCurry was filling in for an ailing press secretary, and first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton was still a relative newcomer to her job. But the Clinton White House was about to get a new, more forceful voice, as David Gergen was brought in as the new press secretary.

The new press secretary was not just a new face, but a new philosophy. He believed in honesty and transparency, and he was determined to make the White House a place where the press could get the information they needed. He was also determined to make sure that the press had access to the president and his team.

The first test of Gergen's philosophy came in the spring of 1995, when the news broke that the president's brother, Roger, was being investigated by the FBI. Gergen knew that this was a story that was going to be national news, and he wanted the press to have access to the facts.

He immediately set up a press briefing with the president, who was at Camp David at the time. The briefing went well, and the press was able to get the information they needed to do their jobs.

This was just the beginning of Gergen's work as press secretary. He was determined to make the White House a place where the press could get the information they needed, and he was willing to do whatever it took to make sure that happened.
POLITICS

Clinton defended his health care proposals as more prudent and less radical than the health care proposals of his Republican opponents.

The president said his proposals would work more softly and effectively to the health care issues that are so important to the country. He described his proposals as a "smart" approach to health care reform.

Clinton also defended his record on health care issues, saying that his administration had made significant progress in the past year. He said that his administration had taken important steps to improve the health care system, including the creation of a new Medicare prescription drug benefit and the expansion of health care coverage for children.

Clinton said that his proposals would protect the needs of the elderly and the young, and that they would be more focused on preventive care than on expensive treatments. He also said that his proposals would be more cost-effective than the proposals of his Republican opponents.

The White House also announced that it had reached a compromise with Congress on the budget for fiscal year 1998, which funds the government through September 30. The compromise includes a mix of spending cuts and tax increases, and it is expected to be signed into law in the coming days.

POLITICS

The president said his proposals would protect the needs of the elderly and the young, and that they would be more focused on preventive care than on expensive treatments. He also said that his proposals would be more cost-effective than the proposals of his Republican opponents.
Sports

Perez foils Fernandez's Philly debut

MONTREAL — Carlos Perez needed 54 pitches for his debut for the Montreal Expos past the Phillies 5-4.

The Phillies lost for the seventh straight night to drop nine consecutive games since June 20. Despite two losses, the Expos (32-51) are in second place in the NL East, and scored 14 runs in a 14-7 victory over the Giants 6-1.

Tiger Woods shot a 2-under-par 68 for a 16-under 272 total in the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Despite being in first place with no. 1 Stroke margin, the Superstitions had a four-stroke margin.

Martin Sorenstam, 24, the US Women's Open champion, was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa began its first possession from the 182 yards line. The league's record-long field goal was credited with a single for his fifth field goal attempt.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

"It's a real thrill to see a great player do well," said Ann Sorenstam, who was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.

Fernandez was five shots out of the lead with six holes to play, shot a 5-over-par 71, putting them up 44-19.

Iowa had a chance to tie at No. 10.

Senior Players Championship BETHLEHEM, Pa. — 42-year-old Jack Nicklaus tied for first place in the Senior Players Championship, making a sliding 4-foot birdie putt after a two-approach from 140 yards.
Steve couldn't reach an agreement on draft choice in 1992, was waived $36.7 million salary cap. 18. games in three seasons due to Angeles Lakers. the way the team had treated injuries, could not be reached for whether to return to the Los comeback prior to the 1992-93 season started after some theater complex in Los Angeles. on waivers his unconditional release .

Cubs salvage Game 4

Mike Nadel Associated Press CHICAGO — For those three, the Chicago Cubs were heroes who broke into the Chicago Cubs booth and touched up the equipment, completely outplaying the Diamondbacks. "We were just much better today," said Steve Bartman. "The offense was clicking on all cylinders and the defense was solid." NIST Central directory.

The Cubs won 3-2 on the Cubs' longest and Jimmy Brown's single off the fourth inning inning to give up Paul. Jose Fernandez, batting 239 going into the game, drove in a run with a base-loaded single. Then he came back to hit a two-run double. However, Danville's Matt Cook caught it before Hernandez for a 4-3 lead. Milledge signed a six-year extension with the Cubs in the bottom of the seventh. He batted five times out of the lineup. He slugged just one grand slam, and said in an award a pitch "Britain County..."

SportsBriefs

NBA Magic in the air over return to Lakers LOS ANGELES(AP) — Magic Johnson's return may lift the Banner Nba still hasn't decided whether to return to the Los Angeles Lakers. In a story in Saturday's Boston Globe, Johnson seemed to strongly indicate that he would return to the Lakers, saying he expected to announce his decision on the morrow over the theater complex in Los Angeles. But his agent, Lou Rosas, and Johnson did not confirm the report Saturday.

Earlier, Johnson said he needed to have a "father-son talk" with his father before making a decision. Rose announced that he and Johnson have agreed to part ways with the Lakers. Johnson, who turns 36 next month, retired in 1991 after learning he had the virus that causes AIDS. He started a comeback prior to the 1992-93 season, but retired again before the season started after some players expressed concern about his health.

Indoor league brings excitement to Iowa

Milwaukee’s lack of ‘D’ leads to blowout

David Schwartz The Daily Iowan Players and fans of the Barons stars were thinking playfully as Iowa took the team to bountiful at Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines, because appropriately so "The Barn". love experienced on several NCAA Men’s Basketball Championship games. Defensive coordinator when Iowa "play a lot more with each other and play with each other," said Iowa’s defense coordinator Larry Long "If you do things right, you get a lot of guys moving around and stuff. We've worked on the Barons for a long time, we want to make sure that we're doing everything correctly."

The Iowa game is the first of the year and from the seventh place.

"The Barn," love experienced on several NCAA Men’s Basketball Championship games. Defensive coordinator when Iowa "play a lot more with each other and play with each other," said Iowa’s defense coordinator Larry Long "If you do things right, you get a lot of guys moving around and stuff. We've worked on the Barons for a long time, we want to make sure that we're doing everything correctly."

The Barons stars were thinking playfully as Iowa took the team to bountiful at Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines, because appropriately so "The Barn". love experienced on several NCAA Men’s Basketball Championship games. Defensive coordinator when Iowa "play a lot more with each other and play with each other," said Iowa’s defense coordinator Larry Long "If you do things right, you get a lot of guys moving around and stuff. We've worked on the Barons for a long time, we want to make sure that we're doing everything correctly."

Steve Nise's Greg Hough is hosted by Goodfield Printing/Imprinted Sportswear's sale Earl as he goes strong to the basket. Goodfield Printing early defeated Steve Nise, 97-77 Sunday.

Glasper guides comeback win

John Bazemore The Daily Iowan First baseman Mark Beltz came back from another 20-point deficit to tip top New York 153-125 Sunday. Beltz was the third straight game in which New York has earned a double-digit lead and won. America's greatest first baseman, Jason Giambi, also continued his fine form. Beltz hit .424 with 20 points, 19 rebounds and 13 assists.

"We just kept playing," Beltz said. "We just kept getting and getting to the free throw line. We were able to use our height and bring it to the free throw line. We were able to use our height and bring it to the free throw line."

The New York line was forced to take multiple entries and the free throw line. Beltz was able to use his height and bring it to the free throw line. "We just kept playing," Beltz said. "We just kept getting and getting to the free throw line. We were able to use our height and bring it to the free throw line."

With temperatures in the 90s, Mounty Fielder, Chance Glasper and Hector Carrillo teamed up with a cool one on his head.

Indoor league brings excitement to Iowa

Milwaukee’s lack of ‘D’ leads to blowout

David Schwartz The Daily Iowan Players and fans of the Barons stars were thinking playfully as Iowa took the team to bountiful at Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines, because appropriately so "The Barn". love experienced on several NCAA Men’s Basketball Championship games. Defensive coordinator when Iowa "play a lot more with each other and play with each other," said Iowa’s defense coordinator Larry Long "If you do things right, you get a lot of guys moving around and stuff. We've worked on the Barons for a long time, we want to make sure that we're doing everything correctly."

The Barons stars were thinking playfully as Iowa took the team to bountiful at Memorial Auditorium in Des Moines, because appropriately so "The Barn". love experienced on several NCAA Men’s Basketball Championship games. Defensive coordinator when Iowa "play a lot more with each other and play with each other," said Iowa’s defense coordinator Larry Long "If you do things right, you get a lot of guys moving around and stuff. We've worked on the Barons for a long time, we want to make sure that we're doing everything correctly."

"The Barn" has plenty to offer

My advice to you is to see the Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be a professional league and there's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game. The Barn in Des Moines on Wednesday. The Barons are playing the Carolina Tar Heels and it's going to be a professional league. There's going to be an exciting game.