Music therapy reaches Alzheimer patients

By Nancy Hennes

Several months ago, Mary Lou Cates began to lose her appetite. She would eat only a few spoonfuls of food, then throw it away. She would sit quietly for hours, staring out the window, and would not return to everyday activities even though she had been an active and social person before her dementia set in. Mary Lou's family members were concerned and they feared that she was losing her dignity and self-worth. After seeking advice from a physician, they were referred to Music in Medicine, a program that uses music therapy to help people with dementia.

Music therapy has been shown to be effective in improving mood, reducing agitation, and increasing social interaction in people with dementia. In Mary Lou's case, the music therapist began by introducing her to a variety of music genres and styles that she enjoyed. They started with calming classical music and gradually moved on to more upbeat and familiar songs. Mary Lou responded positively to the music, often humming along and occasionally even singing along.

As the sessions progressed, the music therapist noticed that Mary Lou's apathy and anxiety were decreasing. She began to engage more actively in the therapy sessions, asking questions and expressing her thoughts and feelings. The music therapist also observed that Mary Lou's communication skills improved, and she was able to participate more fully in conversations.

In addition to the musical activities, the music therapist used storytelling and visual aids to help Mary Lou recall past memories and experiences. She found that Mary Lou was able to connect with the music and the stories, and this helped to improve her overall well-being.

Music therapy has been shown to have a positive impact on the cognitive function of people with dementia. In Mary Lou's case, the music therapist observed that her short-term memory improved, and she was able to recall past events more accurately. This helped her to maintain her sense of self and identity, which is crucial for maintaining dignity and self-worth.

Music therapy has also been shown to reduce the burden on caregivers. Mary Lou's family members felt more relieved knowing that their loved one was receiving the best possible care. They appreciated how the music therapy sessions helped to improve Mary Lou's quality of life and reduce her agitation and anxiety.

In conclusion, music therapy is a valuable tool for improving the lives of people with dementia. It provides a positive and engaging way to interact with individuals, and it helps to improve their overall well-being. Mary Lou's case is a testament to the power of music therapy, and it serves as a reminder of the importance of providing compassionate and effective care for people with dementia.

Supreme Court upholds term for abortion foe

Mike Closs

The Supreme Court has rejected Richard Chadwick’s bid to stop the State from making it illegal to drive his vehicle in successful efforts to block a woman from accessing an abortion clinic.

Two years ago, in a case involving Chadwick, the Iowa Supreme Court held that the State’s 35-foot buffer zone around the clinic was constitutional. The court said Chadwick had no free speech rights to enter the clinic.

Chadwick, who was also a defendant in a separate federal case involving the clinic, was arrested in April 2018. He has been charged with a crime under the state’s buffer zone law and is awaiting trial.

Lollapalots: Cost clouds frenzy tour

Toni Schoreberg

The 10th annual Lollapalooza music festival opened to a crowd of about 180,000 yesterday, yet despite being billed as the "largest musical event in the world," it seems more like a small-town fair in the middle of a large parking lot.

However, this Lollapalooza was the first to be held on a Sunday, rather than Saturday, as in the past. This is because the city council in Chicago has declared that the event's weekend has been extended to a three-day festival, starting at noon today.

The lineup for this year's Lollapalooza is more diverse than ever before, featuring acts from around the world. Among the most anticipated performers are Led Zeppelin, Pink Floyd, and The Band, all of whom are sure to draw huge crowds.

But despite the excitement, there are some concerns about the cost of attending the festival. The three-day pass, which includes access to all three stages and over 60 bands, is priced at $120. This is said to be more than double the price of a ticket to any other music festival in the country.

Nevertheless, many music lovers are excited to attend the festival and see their favorite bands perform live. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said one festival-goer. "I don't care about the cost, I just want to see my favorite bands play."

The trial of O.J. Simpson for the murder of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend, Ron Goldman, is the latest chapter in a saga that has captivated the attention of the world. The trial has been marked by dramatic testimony, heated arguments, and emotional outbursts, as both the prosecution and defense present their cases to the world. The trial has also raised important questions about the nature of justice and the role of media in contemporary society. The verdict, expected in the coming weeks, will have far-reaching implications for Simpson's personal life and his public image. Meanwhile, the trial has highlighted the ongoing debate about the role of media in criminal trials, and the tension between the rights of the accused and the public's right to know. The trial has also raised questions about the ethics of media coverage, particularly in the age of social media and 24-hour news cycles. The trial is being closely watched not only in the United States, but also around the world, as it is seen as a test of the principles of justice and fairness in a globalized society.

BRITISH FIELD

The two teams, with dramatically different styles of play, met in the 1985 Open, a match which many believe was the greatest in its history. It was a fantastic day of golf, with Palmer and Hal Sutton both topping their respective scores to 71 to finish in first place. But it was the course that was the real star of the show, as the Teeth of Steel lived up to its reputation.

The Open is the most prestigious tournament in the world of golf, and it has been held annually since 1860. The British Open is known for its challenging courses, and it attracts some of the best players in the world. The tournament is held in July, and it is one of the four major events in golf, along with the US Open, the Masters, and the PGA Championship.

The British Open is held at a different course each year, and it is known for its beautiful scenery. The course is set in the heart of the countryside, and it offers stunning views of the nearby mountains. The Open is known for its unpredictable weather, and it can be cold and rainy on any given day.

The Open is also known for its tradition, and it has a long history. The tournament was first held in 1860, and it has been held every year since then. The Open has been won by many great players, including Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, and Tiger Woods. The Open is considered to be the most prestigious tournament in golf, and it is one of the most highly anticipated events of the year.
Cyclists remember teammate Casartelli

Jean-Luc Courtois Associated Press

Dear friends -In a moving ceremony to pay tribute, the cyclists yesterday remembered their fellow rider who died last week.

The real essence of the minute's silence was captured in the words of Jean-Luc Courtois, the Canadian cyclist who witnessed the tragic accident.

"It's a silence that serves as a reminder of the fragility of our lives, and the importance of cherishing every moment together."

Casartelli, a member of the Motorola team, was killed during stage six of the Giro d'Italia.

Cyclists of the Motorola team cross the finish line together while the pack voluntarily rode behind as a sign of respects to their fallen teammate.

The defile of the pack was led by the Motorola team, followed by other riders of the Giro d'Italia, creating a moving tribute to the fallen cyclist.

Murray sparks overtime victory

Jon Bassett The Daily Iowan

Keenan Murray changed his uniform number and his performance since joining the Hawkeyes.

"If we were out there, I wasn't there. I clearly didn't want to return," Murray said.

The Hawkeyes struggled through the first half with five points. Murray changed his uniform number to number three and scored Goodfellow's first goal of the season.

Goodfellow led the team with a total of 13 points, including 33 points and 17 rebounds in the final minute of regulation and overtime. He finished with 19 points and 20 rebounds.

"I played the last half and I was just off the bench," Goodfellow said.

The Hawkeyes won the game with a 77-69 overtime victory.

"It's a great victory," Murray said.

In the overtime, Murray hit a 22-foot jump shot to give Iowa its first lead. The Hawkeyes went on to win, 82-75.

The field was stacked with talent, but the top players emerged victorious.

Norman, Faldo and Price battled for the leading positions. Norman finished in the lead, Faldo in second and Price in third.

"It was a tough match, but I managed to hold onto the lead," Norman said.

"I had to work hard to stay on top," Faldo added.

"Price was a strong competitor," Price acknowledged.
