Local victim programs awarded service grants

Patricia D. Harris

Three Iowa crime victim services organizations have been awarded service grants totaling $17,550 by the Iowa Attorney General's Office. The funds are being used to expand services ranging from receiving emotional counseling through legal assistance.

Janelle Sivertson, vice president of the Iowa Attorneys General's Office, said the funding for the entire state is up slightly from last year, but has been reduced from the previous year due to a cut in state government funds.

"We're very grateful for the funding," she said. "It has been a significant decrease in funding, but we are very lucky to have the funding this year.

The grants are administered by the Iowa Attorney General's Office, and the funding for the entire state is up slightly from last year, but has been reduced from the previous year due to a cut in state government funds.

The Domestic Violence Intervention Program received $2,500, the largest grant.

The grant money will be used to support the program and the Domestic Violence Intervention Program, which serves approximately 700 Iowa victims of domestic violence annually.

The Domestic Violence Intervention Program is a grant program that provides funding to domestic violence programs throughout Iowa. The program is designed to support victims of domestic violence and their families by providing services such as housing, legal assistance, and counseling.

By JOHN H. BURTON

The FBI generally doesn't confirm people's intentions, and officials admit it's up to the public to spread the message. Canton millionaire David Byrdsong said.

"Millions of people can see us and the militants can see us. They will tell us on the internet rather than on paper," Byrdsong said.

A spokesman for the National Park Service, which is in charge of Enron, said the moneys were used in the state's interest.

"There is no reason to believe that the money was not used for the intended purpose," the spokesman said.

Byrdsong had more than 400 employees and was involved in more than 100 cases in the state.

"We are just trying to keep the heat on and be watched by federal authorities," he said.

He said he hoped the situation would be clarified by the end of the week.

"We're just trying to keep the pressure on the government to be accountable," he added.

In London, U.S. officials proposed a new plan for peace in Bosnia. The administration said it was "open to anything" as long as it was "within the scope of the existing peace plan." The plan calls for a "sustainable peace" in Bosnia.

"We're taking a new look at the situation," said the officials.

The plan was announced in response to the government's rejection of the previous plan.

"We're committed to working with the government of Bosnia," said the officials.

Not just entertainment provided at 50th

The Daily Iowan, July 11, 2002

To the Editor:

The 50th anniversary of the first color film ever made, "The Wizard of Oz," passed with little comment in the local press.

The film was notable not just for its creative achievements in the form of color photography and special effects, but also for the controversial depiction of a black character in a time when race relations were a fraught subject.

It was a time when the world was changing and new possibilities were being explored in art, film, and technology.

This 50th anniversary provides an opportunity to reflect on the legacy of "The Wizard of Oz" and its impact on popular culture and society.

This film remains a cultural touchstone and a classic example of how art and entertainment can transcend time and place.

Guest Opinion - Norman Luxembourg

The Daily Iowan, July 11, 2002

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on the recent article on the topic of nuclear energy.

While there are valid concerns about the potential risks and costs of nuclear energy, it is important to consider the broader context of energy production and consumption.

Nuclear energy provides a reliable and sustainable source of power that is essential for the continued development of our economy and society.

This article provides a valuable perspective on the topic of nuclear energy, and I encourage readers to consider the larger picture when evaluating the risks and benefits of this energy source.

Willel Ford, a police photographer, looks at a photo showing the black socks that his lawyer, Linda Deutsch, said Simpson was wearing when she didn't have time to change after the murders. Ford said, "I think that's it." Defense attorney Robert Blasier countered, "That's not it." Defense attorney Johnnie Cochran Jr. declined to answer questions on whether police planted the socks and smeared one on her face.

Prosecutors contend Simpson left two bloody shells in the bedroom and two bedroom materials in the kitchen sink. They asked the defense claims the blood stains on the shells. The defense attorney who corrected, "You never saw what's depicted in that photograph." Ford said.

Owners will vote on baseball

CHICAGO (AP) - As far as Oakland's Paul Tagliabue is concerned, the Raiders have deep pockets and Los Angeles isn't.

He has recommended that NFL owners approve the move that will allow the Raiders to leave the Alameda County Coliseum.

Several other sources, sources indicate the owners will vote today on a proposal that would include a stadium in Las Vegas.

The move, if approved, would halt the Raiders' current lease that continues until 2015. The team would move to Los Angeles in 2016.

"We are in the final stages of this process," Tagliabue said.

The Daily iowan

In the wake of C. Vivian Stringer's decision to depart Rutgers University, two members of the Iowa women's athletic department are heading to the Northeastern United States.

Danne Murphy told The Daily Iowa Thursday she will stay on as Iowa's women's assistant athletics director. She replaces the athletic director at Cornell University.

Murphy and the Cornhusker job will help advance her career goals.

"I'm looking for it to eventually become an athletic director at a Division I institution," Murphy said. "This is an opportunity for me to be able to do that."

Brazil proves too much for upset-minded Americans

The brasileiros established their dominance. With 14 goals in 25 games, their last two coming to an end. They showed the United States, which had only scored two goals in two meetings, by scoring 10 goals in a 13-minute span.

The Americans, eliminated by Brazil 1-0 in the World Cup, were playing in the semifinals of a major international tournament for the first time since the 1990 World Cup.

"It's not just our team," said World Cup hero Tony trúvan, "it's our country." Tyson, who did not score in the World Cup, said of the team's performance, "We deserved to win. We played well, and we were hungry for this victory."

The United States will face Cameroon in the final for the title. The match will be played at 8 p.m. local time on Sunday.

DeNato, Pellegrino, Roberts

When a program starts to win games, it's like the sun is shining on the world of soccer. The Americans, led by DeNato, Pellegrino, and Roberts, have been on a roll since they started playing as a group.

"I think we've got a chance to win the tournament," said DeNato. "We've been playing well and have a good rhythm."

The Americans ended their seven-game winning streak on Thursday. They lost to Cameroon 2-1 in the quarterfinals.

"We've been struggling in recent games," said Pellegrino. "But we're looking forward to the final and hope to end our streak against the United States."

The Americans will face Cameroon in the final for the title. The match will be played at 8 p.m. local time on Sunday.

Friday, July 48 - Allegations of sexual harassment surfaced against head coach Don James and assistant coach Jon London, who helped him escape the area. Two days before training camp opens Wednesday, James used the back for back rehabilitation.

At Thursday's golf outing, Green Bay Packers' quarterback Brett Favre and his family will not be present. "We're going to discuss the situation with our team, but at this point we're going to talk about football," Packers coach Mike Holmgren said. "I don't know what's going to happen tomorrow."

This is a big blow for the Packers as they prepare for the season opener against the Minnesota Vikings.

The Vikings have struggled with injuries in recent years, but James and London are known for their intense coaching style.

James, 64, has been the head coach of the Vikings since 2005, while London, 56, has been an assistant coach since 2007. Both have a reputation for being tough coaches who demand the best from their players.

James and London have denied the allegations, and the team has yet to release a statement on the matter. The Vikings will likely wait until more information is available before making a decision on their coaching staff.

In other news, the Minnesota Twins announced yesterday that they will be playing a doubleheader against the Kansas City Royals this weekend. The first game is scheduled for 1:10 PM, with the second game to follow at 7:10 PM. The Twins are currently in first place in the American League Central division, while the Royals are in fourth place.

Bad year surgery:}

Terry Bradshaw, the No. 6 pick in the 1970 NFL draft, revealed that he was recently been treated for prostate cancer. "I had surgery last year, and I'm doing great," Bradshaw said. "I'm just happy to be back on the field." Bradshaw, 64, has been a TV commentator since retiring from the NFL in 1988. He played quarterback for the Pittsburgh Steelers from 1970 to 1988, winning four Super Bowls along the way.

Bradshaw's surgery was successful, and he is expected to return to work soon. The former Steeler has been a popular figure in the NFL community, and his presence will be missed by many.

In other sports news, the Chicago Bears have released a statement regarding injuries to their team. "We have had a few setbacks this season, but we are still optimistic about our team's chances," said Bears general manager Phil Emery. "We have a great group of players and we are confident that we can turn things around." The Bears are currently in third place in the NFC North division.
