Iowa Lottery scratch game sales surpass state Powerball revenue

According to the Associated Press (AP), the Iowa Lottery's $21 million worth of instant lottery tickets, which are sold simultaneously with the Powerball lottery, has surpassed the $16 million in sales of Powerball tickets. This is the first time that the Iowa Lottery's scratch game sales have surpassed those of Powerball. The Iowa Lottery's scratch game sales are the highest in the state since the lottery began in 1985, and they have been steadily increasing in recent years. The Iowa Lottery's scratch game sales contribute to the state's education fund and other social programs.

Clinton issues heat relief funds

President Clinton issued emergency cooling funds due to the Low Temperature Emergencies of 1995. The funds will help cool things down, as the state is facing a heat wave. The funds will be distributed to the states that are affected by the heat wave, and the states will decide how much money is sent to each county. The funds can also be used for medical necessities. The Bureau's tentative plan is to distribute the funds based on the heat index and the degree heat in each area. It is expected that the states will receive the funds within the next 10 days.

Mistrial denied despite jury's contact with Smith

LAWRENCE, Kan. — The 12-person jury that convicted former Kansas State running back Jonathan Smith of second-degree murder in the slaying of two young children in 1999 was allowed to continue deliberating Monday.

A mistrial was denied Monday despite the revelation that a juror had discussed the case with the boy's grandmother.

"We're satisfied everything is proceeding as it should," district attorney Chris Smith said in a statement.

A neighbour told the juror in a since-sealed letter that his former client was innocent.

"We're not aware of any other issues," Smith said.

Jury members were sequestered with two hotel rooms and meals provided by the court.

The juror did not return a call from The Lawrence Journal-World.

The juror's letter was not part of the public record, Smith said.

The jury had been deliberating until Monday, when Smith submitted a motion to dismiss the jury and have it continued.

Smith, 25, was charged with two counts of murder, the deaths of 3-year-old Alfredo Sosa and 6-year-old Alex Johnson.

The trial opened March 12.

The Kansas City Star reported that the letter was written by Roberta Smith, whose grandson was portrayed as a victim of violence.

"He did not kill the children," Roberta Smith wrote.

"Read the facts of the case and you will see he is innocent."

"He is our grandson."

The letter was written in response to a juror's note that raised questions about a defense witness.

"The letter was in the sealed envelope given to the juror by the clerk," Smith said.

The juror was allowed to return its contents, Roberta Smith said.

"I wrote a letter that was not in the room."

"I never told them about the letter."

"I didn't know they were going to write a letter."

The major league schedule in its second year, the league is working to polish its image.

About 65 players are working to improve discipline, and Jim Caldwel conceded that he, too, would have been a contributor to this cause.

But there isn't anyone around here who doesn't believe when we get this thing going it's going to be hard. It's been real

The Clubhouse Manager is the focal point of the team, and he must be ready by the time the Black and Gold are back out on the field.

Settles' flat-rate, though not highly skilled on the personal court, is destined to make the city's best moves.

Still, Settles wasn't the only one who was hard at work. All three players have made great strides in their game.

The Cubs moved Iowa forward Jess Settles into the starting lineup Tuesday, hoping he can help the team's sagging offense.

"It means so much to this year," said Settles, who started in Tuesday's 7-2 win over the Mets. "I've always wanted to play some big league baseball."

Settles, who came up from Triple-A Iowa this season, said he was surprised when he found out he was moving up to the majors.

"It's just been an incredible experience," he added. "I'm just trying to do the best I can out there."
