Players get the OK to vote down their union

Wendy E. Lane Associated Press

NEW YORK - After six week of arguing about the validity their union, NBA players will get to vote on it in late August or early September.

The National Labor Relations Board ordered an election or whether the NBA players' association should continue to be the of lective bargaining representative for the players. A majority voted the approximately 422 eligible players would decertify the union

In addition to dissolving the union, the vote also could imper the 1995-96 season, the NBA deputy commissioner said.

The election order came after group of players, led by Michael Jordan and Patrick Ewing, and several powerful agents began movement last month to dissolv the union. The effort split the union and scuttled a proposed labor agreement, and team owner began a lockout July 1.

Despite the threat of decertification tion, the NBA and the union has continued to negotiate. The twi sides met Tuesday and are set talk again Aug. 3.

Under the guidelines set forth for the election, players will vote person by secret ballot at region NLRB offices. Any player who was on an NBA roster, including the injured list, at the end of the see son is eligible to vote, as are thos who signed more than one 10-day contract during the season.

At stake in the election, bes the fate of the union, is the fate the 1995-96 season, Granik sail The league has said if it has him union to negotiate with, the owner would continue their lockout inde

"The league and the teams at going to have to provide player with adequate information of what's transpired," he said. " will explain that if the union decertified, we are putting at ril at least part of the season. That the choice the players are going have to make."

Possible asbestos exposed

"Something went wrong" was the reaction from one UI official when Gilmore Hall contractors unearthed what they believed to be asbestos Thursday afternoon.

Gilmore Hall's basement suspected they had exposed asbestos - a fireproof mineral known to cause cancer. The contractors immediately notified the UI, which proceeded to evacuate a portion of the basement. The building, which houses the UI School of Religion, was built in 1908.

Want a case of beer? They've got 650. Craving a bottle of Gatorade? They've got 2,880. Hit by "beer munchies" at 4 a.m.? They've got food available 24 hours a day.

Local businesses are ready for the Register's Annual Great Bike Ride Across Iowa.

About 8,000 bikers, 2,000 support staffers and other RAGBRAI tagalongs will roll into Coralville's S.T. Morrison Park today, and businesses are gearing up for what one store manager said could be a bigger draw than Dan Gable's boy

"I think this will have more economic impact than the NCAA (wrestling) championships did," said Bill Phillips, manager of Regal old are you?' (the police agent) will say their age.' Two plainclothes officers enter the establishment before the police agent, Lihs said, and observe whether alcohol is successfully obtained.

Fake or altered IDs are never used, he said, and if asked for identification, the agent will simply produce a valid driver's license indicating the agent is underage.

John Mummey, owner of Mumm's Saloon and Eatery, 21 W. Benton St., said if an underage person sent by police gave him an ID that said he was under 21, he'd cut it in half.

(The agent would be) using it for a fraudulent purpose," he said. "I've got a pair of scissors waiting for people under 21." Different bars are visited during each sting operation, Lihs said, but police will visit the same bars if they discover a pattern of liquor offenses. He said the police check bars because underage drinking is against the law, and police hope to prevent minors from driving drunk. "If we could save one person's life by (preventing them) from killing themselves, we've done our job;

ICPD funds are used to purchase the beer, but Lihs said if possible. the officers try to return the beer to

The end of the yellow brick road is close for local band Sludge Plow. Although the Emerald City is nowhere in sight, after four years of moving its heavy-handed alternative metal between Iowa City and the West Coast, its founding members are making the move to Seattle, the City of Grunge.

"We're pretty much just doing our thing," said Sludge Plow gui-tarist / vocalist Jeff Cornell. "The problem is, our music doesn't pay our rent, the parking sucks here and it's just as expensive as Seattle, so we might as well be there."

Practicing in a local warehouse with black, plastic-covered walls, Cornell — in ruby red Converse All-Stars and a Voodoo Gearshift T-shirt - recounted the story of Sludge Plow's history while searching for patch cords.

Eight years ago, Cornell met fel-low Cedar Rapids native and bassist /vocalist Chad Hartgrave. The two jammed together, formed the rock trio Modus Verandi and moved to Iowa City. After countless drummer changes, Hartgrave and Cornell started Sludge Plow.

"We sounded like a sludge plow," Cornell said of the name choice. "Modus Verandi was too hard for people to remember. We needed mething better than that."

Hartgrave spoke like a beat poet when he described the Sludge

Although Gunderson plans to stay behind to play with Scrid, he said he understands the pair's motive for leaving Iowa City.

The rock star image is fine when I'm up on stage playing, but once you go away, you go away. If you take it with you, you're stupid."

Cornell agreed, tapping his red high-tops on the rotting warehouse floor and picking the Astring of his guitar.

"I don't want for us to be considered 'cool,' " he said. "I want the hipsters to think there's something wrong with us. We're going to make it someday, but I'm in no

'Monkey' business: Band pounds punk-laced groove

Quad-Cities band Tripmaster Monkey brings its power pop to Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., Saturday. Cover will be charged.

The Daily Iowan

Despite what the name might suggest, Tripmaster Monkey is hardly of the same ilk as Curious

The power-popping primates are the Quad Cities' most recent hope for placement on the Midwestern musical map, and - despite the psychedelic name - are not to be taken lightly. Touting its year-old release, Goodbye Race, Tripmaster Monkey brings tunes like "Roman Catholic Haircut," "Faster than Dwight" (also the name of an 1993 released EP) and "Shutters Closed' to Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St. Saturday Tripmaster Monkey, a captivatingly good-looking bunch of performers, rock hard with the angst-ridden abandon of punk and the pop sensibility of an old Teenage Fanclub record.

The band, which has opened for the likes of Belly, alternates between sounding like a less whiny Smashing Pumpkins and a harderhitting Posies, coming up with a unique edge that pushes Goodbye Race beyond the typical, collegeradio band and raises its live performances to an adrenaline-pumping plane of hard pop. Although live Tripmaster Monkey performances are not for the weak of heart, the band repeatedly proves itself more fun than a barrel of you-

Businesses in the plaza, including Regal Liquors, are guessing their close proximity is going to make for swarms of hungry, thirsty RAGBRAIers.

"We're preparing for the worstcase scenario," said Craig Coughlin, food store manager of Hy-Vee Food Store, Coralville. "We've brought in help from other stores."

Coughlin said his store had recruited 16 people from two other Hy-Vee stores to work today and Saturday morning. Since this is the first time RAGBRAI has stayed overnight in the area, Coughlin said he and his employees don't know what to expect dur-

In March 1988, Russell admitted sexually assaulting Smith when she was 16, but she and her mother decided not to press charges.

"When the line was crossed, I failed you, Linda, God and the rest of my family," Russell wrote. "My remorse goes way beyond sorrow, getting caught or anything else."

Under cross-examination by prosecutor Tommy Pope, Russell acknowledged that after a long gap, his sexual relations with Smith resumed, the last time in August, just two months before she drowned her only children.

Smith and her husband, David, divorced in May. They were already separated when she drowned the children, but he stood by her during the search. David Smith now says he wants to see her executed.

Russell, a former member of the state Republican Party's executive committee and a leader of the conservative Christian Coalition, was choked by emotion as he testified.

He sobbed while jurors watched videotape of him playing with Alex. The tape also brought on tears from Smith's mother.

Russell talked of his family's devastation when they thought the boys had been abducted, then the shock when they learned the truth.

Even for an experienced rider, the day was tough, with heat, hills and headwind combined. Ralph Kuhn, a 14-year veteran of the ride, said Thursday was challenging.

"It was a tough ride, especially since I didn't train very hard this year," he said.

RAGBRAI is the 23-year-old, weeklong rolling party in which riders cross the state on bicycles. What makes people from all over the country and the world get up around 6 a.m. and pedal upwards of 60 miles per day? "Beer," said John Klinkenborg, of Parkersburg, and

Troy Calvert, of Jefferson, simultaneously. For others, the ride is just a chance to meet people and have a good time. Scott said everything about the ride is what keeps him coming back. RAGBRAI XXIII is The whole thing is great; you have to take the good with the bad," he said. "The camaraderie is what makes it fun." Camaraderie is easier to find when a rider is a part of a team. Although RAGBRAI is not a race, many people form social groups to ride, travel and party together. Team Cattlefeeder carries a big, red, plastic bull behind its truck; Team Mosquito from Iowa City hands out stickers with the insect on it. Other teams have named themselves after a unique or unifying aspect of that's pretty much what was on our minds," said Bill Weikel, relating the history of Team Spooge from Team Me-Off, a 12-year veteran of the ride, is based on friendship, said Rip Me-Off, a.k.a. Joanne Sheldon. Other members, who come from Texas, North Carolina and many other states, have adopted similarly appropriate monikers as members of Me-Off, such as Show, Scrape, Carry, Turn and Torque Duck calls help members of Me-Off find each other when they get to small towns along the route, said

Quadrabong are right there to pick up the alcoholic slack where Team Me-Off falls off. "It's just one big party; it's a great time where the people are cool, and we can drink some beers," Weikel said.

Quadrabong, named for its four-hosed beer bong which holds up to six beers, contains some hard-core partiers, Calvert said. We party every day, because you sweat out the beer," he said. "Most guys get up and drink and ride all day long." Although partying was the call of the day, thousands of tents set up in Sigourney — and as many tired riders sprawled out in various stages of exhaustion. For those whom exhaustion claims early in the day,

RAGBRAI offers a "sag wagon," which will take riders and their bike in a van to the next town. However, most riders have a support driver, who will take the gear and riders if necessary - to the next town. Jim Larson, who has been driving Team Me-Off's bus for 11 years, enjoys the chance to meet riders and make friends. Klinkenborg has a more cavalier attitude toward being the driver.

"I'm the bus driver, so I get there, throw out every-one's stuff and go drink," he said.

Another first for the ride was the ocurrence of two deaths. A 28-year-old man died of a heart attack shortly after tendorf woman drowned in the Des Moines River near Ottumwa.

Then thousands of bicyclists descend on Coralville streets today, there will be no bike patrols, but five other law-

Morrison Park, Coralville, for the 23rd annual Register's Annual Great Bike Ride Across Iowa, and though the festivities will double Coralville's population overnight, Coralville Police Officer Ron Wenman said he doesn't expect twice as much trouble. 'We anticipate heavy traffic and traffic delays, but outside of that, we don't anticipate many problems," he said. "There will be a lot of people, but the majority of them are goodnatured."

Up to 23 officers will be on duty at one time, Wenman said, which is about the size of the entire Coralville Police department. This is the first time RAGBRAI has been to Coralville, but Wenman said planning will prevent any major prob-

From the first day of planning, Wenman, chairman of the Coralville RAGBRAI public safety committee, knew the task of dealing with crowds of over-tired, sweaty cyclists and drunken partiers would be too large for Coralville police to handle alone.

The Iowa City Police Department, Coralville Police, Johnson County Sheriff's Office, UI Public Safety and the Iowa State Patrol will patrol the park area to help control traffic.

The economic benefits riding into town with the nearly 10,000 riders have generated wide community support, Wenman said.

Even residents of 14th Avenue, Coralville, who will have thousands of drunken revelers a few feet from their backyards tonight, don't seem

"I'm not concerned, but I won't leave my house unattended," said past RAGBRAI rider Betsey Standefer, who lives on 14th Avenue. "I'm sure there will be people that knock on my door and ask to use the bathroom.

A 3-foot fence is all that separates Standefer's property from the park, but instead of worrying, Standefer said she will probably join the party.

"My husband is going to have some friends over, grill out and get a-keg," she said. "He said he was." thinking about selling cups, but I told him no."

But capitalizing on the thousands of hungry and thirsty partygoers isn't far from the mind of 10-yearold Jonathan VanHouwe, who also lives on 14th Avenue. He is planning. on selling brownies, Kool-Aid and Rice Krispie bars from his back yard.

VanHouwe said he will do all the shopping and cooking himself, and may use the money to buy a bike so he can go on RAGBRAI next year.

"It was my idea to sell food, and my friends are going to help me out," he said.

David VanHouwe, Jonathan's father, said though RAGBRAI would cause some inconvenience for his wife on her way to work, he was happy the riders were coming. "It brings money into the community," he said. "The only thing I wonder about is all the garbage that's going to be around." Not all neighbors will be enjoying the festivities, though.

Tow it started ... A challenge between co-workers 22 years ago has developed into the state's oldest and longest touring bicycle ride.

In 1973, Des Moines Register feature writer and copy editor John Karras suggested to columnist Don Kaul that he ride his bicycle across the state and write columns about what he saw. Kaul challenged Karras to make the trip with him, and they named the excursion The Great Six- Day Bicycle Ride.

A month before the ride, Karras invited the public to go along. Three hundred people showed up, with about 115 finishing. Clarence Pickard of Indianola, who was 83 years old, made the entire trip riding a used ladies' Schwinn. He braved 100- degree weather while wearing a long-sleeved shirt, overalls and high-top shoes.

Ride was meant to be a one-time event, but reader response inspired Kaul and Karras to hold SAGBRAI-Second Annual Great Bicycle Ride Across Iowa. The number of participants jumped to about 2,000 and the event was lengthened to seven days.

IX — The 1981 race has been called the worst weather of any year in RAG-BRAI history. Continuous rain followed the riders during the ride's second day. On the third day, riders braved temperatures in the upper 40s, pouring rain and strong headwinds.

Few people made it past the first town reached that day. The rest were hauled into Lake City by farmers and local townspeople. However, the Lake City campgrounds were flooded and riders were forced into residential homes, garages and the high school gymnasium.

Key witness in Chicago sex trial continues to withhold testimony

CHICAGO (AP) — A judge sent Rep. Mel Reynolds' one-time accuser back to jail this morning after she again refused to testify about the sexual affair she allegedly had with the congressman when she was 16.

When prosecutor Andrea Zopp asked about her relationship with Reynolds, Beverly Heard, now 19, replied, "Ma'am, I respectfully refuse

When Judge Fred Suria advised Heard that she could not be held liable for answering the questions, she turned to him and said quietly, "I'm sorry, I can't answer that ques-

The former Reynolds campaign volunteer, who already spent Wednesday night in jail for contempt of court, told Zopp she also would not answer other questions.

Suria warned Heard that she could eventually be sentenced to as much as six months for each question she'tefused to answer in the hearing, which was held outside the presence of the jury.

"These proceedings were initiated by you," said Suria, who told her both the defense and prosecution have a great stake in the process that Heard began when she went to police last summer.

Defense finishes case in Heidi Fleiss trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense rested today in Heidi Fleiss' federal money laundering and tax evasion trial after a witness testified the Hollywood madam got all the money she needed from an exboyfriend.

Fleiss did not testify, despite suggestions by her attorney earlier this week that she might.

U.S. District Judge Consuelo Marshall dismissed the jury for the day after the defense rested and began to y jury instruction with law Closing arguments were scheduled to

The case's final testimony came from Fleiss' older sister, Kim, and Jessica Cornfeld, daughter of the late international financier and filmmaker Bernie Cornfeld.

Jessica Cornfeld, 18, testified she had seen her father give Fleiss money since Fleiss was 19.

"There was really no limit to his generosity where she was concerned," Cornfeld testified. She said her father, who died Feb. 27, supported Fleiss long after the relationship was over, continuing to send her money and gifts even after he moved to Europe in 1989.

The defense sought to demonstrate Fleiss' money came in the form of gifts from Cornfeld and that she therefore did not need money from prostitution.

Throughout the trial the defense has said Fleiss served as an "intermediary" between women and wealthy men, but that she was not a madam.

Irish Supreme Court allows family to stop feeding comatose woman

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) - The family of a woman who has been comatose for 23 years may stop feeding her and let her die, the Supreme Court ruled Thursday in the first such case in Ireland.

One of the five justices dissented, because the woman appears to respond to some people. The decision appeared likely to provoke a debate on the right to life, and whether the court has taken a step toward allowing euthanasia. "Here is a patient who is in a state of impaired but otherwise stable good health, and is effectively going to be killed," said Brendan Purcell, a member of the pro-life committee of the Fellowship of Catholic Scholars. But Tom Cooney of the Irish Council for Civil Liberties welcomed the decision, which he said affirmed a person's right to refuse treatment even if the consequence was death. In this case, Cooney added, that right was exercised for the patient by the government troops in the northwest enclave of Bihac, where rival forces massed Thursday amid U.N. warnings that Bosnia's war could spill over the nearby border into Croatia.

A NATO surveillance plane over the Adriatic picked up radar "tracks" that showed the plane approaching and returning from an airfield in Coralici, in the northern part of the Bihac enclave, in violation of the U.N. "no-fly" zone over Bosnia. The airplane landed Wednesday night and took off at 1 a.m. Thursday, said U.N. spokesman Chris Gunness.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Andy Pettitte shut out Kansas City on four hits for 71/3 innings, giving the Yankees a 1-0 victory over the fading Kansas City Royals.

Pettitte (6-6), struck out five and walked five as the Yankees won their eighth game in the last nine starts and took two out of three from the Royals.

Pettitte, who beat the Royals on July 12, was relieved by Bob Wickman with one out in the eighth. John Wetteland pitched the ninth for his 16th save.

Mike Stanley, knocked in the game's only run and stretched his hitting streak to 13 games.

Wade Boggs opened the New York fourth with a single into center and then was out on Dion James' fielder's choice. After Paul O'Neill's single put James at third, Stanley brought him home with a Todd Stottlemyre won his ninth game while Javier and Brent Gates homered for the A's, who won for just the third time in its last 14 games.

All three victories came against the Tigers.

Geronimo Berroa had four hits, Gates a two-run homer and Rickey Henderson doubled in both the first and second innings for Oakland. Seven of the A's 16 hits went for extra bases

Rangers 2, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE - The Texas Rangers ended their 10-game losing streak as Will Clark and Micklettleton hit consecutive RBI doubles in the eighth inning of a victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Rangers were on the verge of their fourth consecutive one-run loss before rallying to beat the Orioles for the first time in five games

The 10-game skid was the ongest in the majors this season and Texas' longest since a 12-game drought in 1982.

San Francisco left fielder Barry Bonds leaps in vain to catch Cincinnati Red Barry Larkin's second home run of the game Thursday at Candlestick Park.

Blue Jays 9, Twins 2 TORONTO - Roberto Alomar drove in three runs and rookie Edwin Hurtado hurled his first complete game, as Toronto defeated Minnesota for the Blue Jays' eighth victory in nine games against the Twins.

Hurtado (3-0) allowed only seven hits and two runs for his third win in as many appearances. He struck out five and walked two.

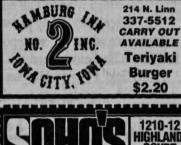

Padres 8, Marlins 2 Marlins 8, Padres 5

MIAMI - Phil Plantier drove in four runs for San Diego with two doubles in the first game of a raindelayed doubleheader the Padres split with the Marlins.

Plantier led the Padres to a victory in the first game.

In the second game, Russ Morman homered and had two RBIs to lead the Marlins to a win in a game filled with seven errors.

Plantier was part of a 12-man deal in December that sent him from the Padres to Houston. He was reacquired by San Diego in yet another trade with the Astros.

Expos 2, Cardinals 1 MONTREAL - David Segui's eighth-inning single scored Rondell White to break a tie and give the Montreal Expos a victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

White hit a two-out single and stole second before coming home on Segui's lined shot to left-center

Reds 14, Giants 6

PHILADELPHIA - Darren Daulton's RBI-single in the bottom of the seventh inning snapped a tie and as the Philadelphia Phillies rallied for four runs and went on to a victory over Pittsburgh, the sixth straight loss for the Pirates.

Michael Mimbs (7-5), making his first appearance out of the bullpen after 16 starts, pitched 2% hitless innings to gain the win. Heathcliff Slocumb pitched the ninth for his league-leading 24th save.

SAN FRANCISCO - Barry Larkin had five RBIs and hit two of Cincinnati's four home runs, and Benito Santiago's two-run single capped a four-run rally after two were out in the fifth, powering the Reds over the San Francisco Former Giant Dave Burba (5-2), part of the Deion Sanders trade, pitched three scoreless innings of relief to pick up the win. The Reds broke a three-game losing streak and sent the Giants to their 13th loss in 18 games. Astros 5, Rockies 4, 12 innings HOUSTON — Orlando Miller's pinch-hit single in the 12th inning scored Jeff Bagwell from third base, rallying Houston to a 5-4 victory over the Colorado Rockies. Bagwell tied the game at 4-4 in the 10th inning with a home run and then singled off Mike Munoz to start the 12th. Derek Bell followed with a single to center field that sent Bagwell to third base.

After all, why should players have to perform from both sides of the plate?

The 1960s saw the creation of the player's union. 'Nuff said.

Then, of course, there was the 1919 World Series. Even after baseball's most notorious scandal, the game trudged ahead another 77 years before the strike of '94.

So stop telling me that this is Baseball has always had problems, whether its been widespread drug use or money-hungry owners. But let's face it, that's part of the beauty of baseball.

the end of baseball, the decline of Rome, the massacre at Waterloo.

We can relate to the game. The players make mistakes, we make mistakes. Owners place too much emphasis on money, and so do we. Steve Howe has been suspended c'mon now, who honestly has never thought about sucking white powder up their nose after realizing their lifelong dream as Howe did?

Baseball is far from perfect, and maybe we've set the expectations too high for the game. Perhaps if we all realize it is a game ... and a business ... and that the players and owners are human, then we could more easily tolerate the game that has blessed this country seven times for drug use and, for 150 years.

defense - more speed than Northwestern has probably ever come close to having," Hamdorf said.

Eight starters return to the defense, most notably free safety William Bennett. The 6-foot, 200pound senior has started 31 straight games, and last year led the Wildcats with three interceptions. His 100 tackles ranked second on Northwestern.

Seniors Chris Martin and Rodney Ray also return to what should be a solid secondary. The front four in Northwestern's new 4-3 defense also contains three returning starters Hamdorf said that a strong defense will take a load off the offense's shoulders.

"Definitely the offense will be more comfortable, knowing that we don't have to do a lot of scoring or play catch-up ball," he said.

Northwestern's offense is more of a question mark than the defense. Six players return with starting experience, but the quarterback position is a toss-up.

"We definitely have some decisions to make as a staff in regard to this situation," Barnett said. "All four (candidates) have the ability to run the offense. However, one of them must display what it takes to run it effectively and consistently." Hamdorf, a junior, is one of the four hopefuls, joining senior Steve Schnur, junior Tim Hughes and sophomore Lloyd Abramson. Schnur and Hughes shared duties last season but combined for nine touchdowns and 18 interceptions.

"I came out as one of the top guys after the spring," Hamdorf said. "But I still have to keep up my play and win the job this fall."

The Wildcats lost all-time leadation, but sophomore Darnell Autry is a capable replacement as State last season

Wildcats lost their top five receivers from 1994.

But the Wildcats aren't worried about lack of talent. What Northwestern needs in '95 is production'. Sam Valenzisi, a second-team all-Big Ten kicker last year, said confidence will be the deciding factor

"I was pleased with how we came. out in the first three games last season, but those first couple Big Ten games seemed to just jump out at us," Valenzisi said. "If we play well early this year and the young guys get stronger, then they'll begin to show confidence and intensity beyond their years. That would be a good springboard to a very successful Big Ten season."

Valenzisi believes the young tal-ent is fully capable of competing ing rusher Dennis Lundy to gradu- this year, despite Northwestern's less-than-memorable past.

"One of Coach's little axioms is shown by his 171-yard output that you rarely exceed your own against Big Ten champion Penn expectations. So if we only aim for a winning season, that would be The wide receiver slot is not setting our goals pretty low," going to be as easy to fill. The Valenzisi explained.

Complain, complain - that's all you sports fans do. If a so-called "real" fan bothered to read Mari "Communist Manifesto," last years season-ending strike wouldn't have been such a surprise. So I say lets put all this talk of baseball's collapse behind us. It time to remember all that baseball has given us through the decades the attributes that made the game so great.

Baseball gave us so much in the 1980s. Who could ever forget Montreal's Tim Raines stealing second base head first so that he wouldn't break the cocaine vile in his back pocket? The Supreme Court found the owners guilty of collusion and fine them severely for restricting player salaries around one or two million. Bastard owners.

My personal favorite: 1987.1 suppose the players were so inse cure with their ability that they had to turn to cheating to enhance their games.

I can't remember the last time laughed so hard as when Howard Johnson's bat splintered into thousand pieces to reveal it was corked.

I.C. gunman holds police at bay

Police said they are continuing their investigation of a 59-year-old man who reportedly fired two gunshots in an eastside residence Thursday night and prevented police from entering for nine

The man's relatives reported the shots coming from a home at 3312 E. Washington St., and police said officers secured the area surrounding the residence and contacted the suspect by tele-

After nine hours, the police said they entered the home, found the suspect sleeping and brought him to UI Hospitals and Clinics for evaluation.

Discharging firearms within the city limits is a misdemeanor, but Sgt. Vicki Lalla said the police had not yet decided whether to file charges.

Police said they will not release the man's name because no charges have been filed yet.
