Prosecutor Marcia Clark suggested she might use photographs and videotapes to link O.J. Simpson to the pair of bloody gloves used as evidence against him. Those are the same bloody gloves that appeared too small when he tried them on in court.

A reporter for KNBC-TV refused to divulge the source she used in a story that said DNA testing had disclosed Nicole Brown Simpson's blood on socks found near Simpson's bed. Judge Lance Ito is debating whether the source s crucial enough to order the reporter to divulge it.

Bill jeopardizes public-access channels

The Daily Iowan

A new telecommunications bill in Congress could mean the end of public-access channels on cable TV - and the temporary end of a voice for Iowa City residents

Two versions of the bill, one in the Senate and one in the House, may put public-access channels

"This bill has something for every industry," aid Jeffrey Hops, director of government relations for the Alliance for Community Media, a lobbyist group in Washington, D.C. "There's stuff in it for Gannett, broadcasters, the phone company, even software makers."

Hops called the bill the most dramatic communications reform since 1934. The bill will offer a wider use of broadcast spectrum to corporations already licensed by the FCC. "Where is the public interest in all of this?" Hops asked. "Screwed."

The part of the bill causing public-access opercompanies, which want a share of the cable mar-

Up until one year ago, phone companies were prohibited by law - the Television-Cable cross wnership ban - from offering video services. However, the ban was struck down by a U.S. district court as unconstitutional.

If phone companies are allowed to offer cable, they will be able to do so at a cheaper rate than cable operators, because phone companies don't need to sign franchise agreements with individual cities, Hops said.

"Phone companies will be able to provide competition in cable, without the responsibility to the companies, and will consequently create an television board of directors, said the bill is economically motivated and could be very harmful not only to public access, but to many publicly funded communications programs.

"There's a political climate out there which says, 'If you can't make money at it, you don't need it,' and that's very destructive," Allaire said.

While the bill is pending, PATV director Rene. Paine and other advocates of public access are waiting to see what their next moves will be. A few new plans are in the works, including a possible interactive session and new children's

But until the bill's outcome is certain, no plans can be carried out.

"It's hard, because we're not sure how much we can dream when we never know when it might all be gone," Paine said.

What would the loss of public access mean to local producers? For some of them it would mean a moment in the spotlight; for others, a loss of

"They let me come on and say whatever I ators anxiety deals with a provision for phone want," said Tom Flanders, an aspiring stand-up comic. "It would be a shame to lose this."

access was worth the channel it took up. In a recent forum on the responsibility of publicaccess producers, a woman called and said she saw no value in public access and that it should be replaced with C-Span 2.

'But," Allaire said, "she watched the whole show, and she called back."

Overall, public access has gotten good support public," Hops said. "It'll be cheaper for the phone from TCI of Eastern Iowa, 546 Southgate Ave., and the Iowa City government. Since 1977, the program has catered to the over-55 crowd, hosting writing programs and activities and providing room and board. Peggy Houston, state director of Iowa Elderhostel, said the minimum age for the program was recently dropped to 55, though the UI has seen elderhostelers in their 90s. She said the original program began in 1975 in New Hampshire, though the UI program was the Midwest's first. The program has since expanded to every state in the country, to more than 2,000 elderhostels.

Houston said these programs offer any number of educational possibilities in the liberal arts area - ranging from philosophy to astronomy - though the UI pro-

UI museum garners pre-Columbian art

Megan McCabe The Daily Iowan

Most people who have accumulated treasures over 30 years are personified as pack rats, but the UI Museum of Art will soon relieve one Iowa City couple of the label.

Gerald and Hope Solomons have donated their entire collection might overwhelm any museum, so the Solomons started donating their treasure piece by piece in June - and the museum's acquisition makes its collection one of the best in the country.

Despite the remaining works in their living room, the couple agonized over which pieces would be donated first. While each has its distinctive characteristics and hard to single out one sculpture as his favorite.

"It's sort of like asking if you have a favorite child," he said.

While some may suspect the collection is a result of calculated buying from high-brow art dealers, the down-to-earth couple's hobby began with junk-store shopping sprees for furniture shortly after their 1955 wedding.

However, the Solomons are quick to point out they didn't know at the time that they were purchasing art. Living in Rhode Island, Hope Solomons taught at the Rhode Island School of Design and her husband practiced medicine.

"I was looking for (Japanese prints) which didn't have holes. In retrospect, I should have bought all of them," Hope Solomons said.

"We bought a Japanese art print instead of an air conditioner," Gerald Solomons added.

In the early years of their marriage, the Solomons' collection was anecdote about how the couple pur- dedicated to Oriental art. Soon chased it, Gerald Solomons found it after their move to Iowa City in 1966, they were outpriced in many mediums of Oriental art.

$179 billion by 1997, then declining steadily and turning into a $7 billion surplus by 2004. President Clinton's original budget in February had projected annu deficits in excess of $190 billion for the indefinite future. But, in a dramatic concession, Clinton in June offered to reduce projected Medicare spending — although not as much as Republicans — and balance the budget in 10 years. Shortly after, Republicans denounced his plan as based on overly optimistic economic projections and said that, even if it worked as advertised, it took too long to get

They also attacked Monday's new projection, which said if the president's plan were adopted, with in 10 years short-term interest rates would be 1.1 percentage points low er than otherwise and long-term rates, 1.7 percentage points. That in turn would reduce interest costs on the nearly $5 trillion national debt.

TECHNICAL FLAWS CLOUD ACTION THRILLER

'The Net' triggers technoparanoia

Paul Ferguson The Daily Iowan

Technology has always fascinated us, and the movie industry has always packaged that fascination and sold it back to audiences. From "Modern Times" to "Things to Come" and from James Bond to "Lawnmower Man," movies have broadcast our hopes and fears about machines ruling our lives.

Unfortunately, fears usually draw the biggest box-office crowds, and that must certainly have been the woman, frustrated and alone, whose computer is her only connection to the rest of humanity. It closes with the same woman comforting her Alzheimer's-stricken mother and planting flowers — finally content. What happens in between says a lot about the way irrational fears about technology are propagated in our culture.

The woman in question is Angela Bennett, played by Sandra Bollock ("Speed") in her most active role yet. Bennett, a software tester for Venice, Calif .based Cathedral Software, lives her life almost entirely through the Internet - chatting with other computer junkies, ordering pizza, making plane reservations and even avoiding face-to-face contact with employers by conducting business online or via phone. Naturally, Hollywood can't let her get away with that and be welladjusted - Bennett is lonely, looking for "Captain America meets Albert Schweitzer" and not having much luck.

Just before leaving for a muchneeded vacation in Cozumel, Bennett receives a disk in the mail containing a strange program allowing her access to just about anything on the Internet. She doesn't think much of it until a handsome "hacker" (Jeremy Northam) in Cozumel informs her she shouldn't have seen what she did. And the chase is on - well, the first of many chases is on - as duration of the film.

The bad guys, it turns out, are about as plugged-in as one can breaking into government computers and turn her into Ruth West, a which sends Bennett into a spiral never get it right.

of fear as she flees practically every character in the film.

The only one who actually knows her is Allen Champion, her former therapist / lover played sarcastically by Dennis Miller. Champion is of only marginal help, though, as he pays so little attention to the drugs he buys that the bad guys dispatch him easily with a bottle of penicillin.

If you've seen "Die Hard," "The Pelican Brief" and "Ghost in the Machine," you've already seen "The Net." The film's creators seldom went out of their way to devise an original plot twist and why bother, since so many handy ones already exist? Combine the techno-terrorists of "Die Hard," the plot of "The Pelican Brief" and the technophobia of "Ghost in the Machine" and you've got Bullock's latest action flick.

Pages could be written about the technical flaws in "The Net." In its naively constructed world, everything from UPC scanners to the New York Stock Exchange is connected to the Internet. Personal medical files are available via the World Wide Web, and if it's got a microchip in it, it must be accessible from any computer if you have the right password.

Given that the movie's bulk consists of one mindless chase scene after another, one needn't even mention the silly premise to pan "The Net," but unfortunately, too much of the film's audience is likely to believe this stuff is possible. It's not.

Ty Herndon's lucky break may be that he's so new to country audiences that they have yet to put his face with his music. In May, the 33-year-old singer topped the charts with What Mattered Most. A month later, he was arrested for indecent exposure and drug possession. The impact of those charges on his career is hard to measure. His latest single, "I Want My Goodbye Back," is still climbing the charts, albeit slowly.

"The general public doesn't really know who this guy is," said Johnny Gray, program director at WKHX-WYAY in Atlanta.

"If it had been Garth Brooks, it would have been over for him because he's much more well-known. One of the reasons the format is doing so well these days is that it's music-driven. There's more interest in songs than artists." Ten years ago, Herndon's career would almost log and masturbated in front of him. The singer had amphetamines in his billfold, the officer said. Herndon faces an initial appearance Aug. 7 on the indecent exposure charge. He has yet to be indicted by the grand jury on the drug possession. But if he goes to trial and is convicted, his promising career might turn out to be no more than a Gray and Paul Johnson, program director at WSOC in Charlotte, N.C., both said they were playing Herndon's single, "I Want My Goodbye Back," which is No. 36 in the July 8 edition of Billboard magazine. It still has a bullet, meaning enough stations are playing it to keep upward momentum.

Music City News, a country music fan magazine, was preparing its first major article on Herndon when he was arrested. That's been shelved.

"With that kind of public controversy and really unusual public discussion and criticism of the Court of Appeals ... you would think the sensitivity level would be absolutely acute to avoid any future perception or appearance of coziness," said Charles Lewis, executive director of the Center for Public Integrity.

Sentelle presides over the appellate court panel naming special prosecutors - also known as independent counsels - to investigate allegations against top government officials.

When the meeting between Fair-

But Faircloth and Sentelle denied ever discussing the Whitewater case during their July 14, 1994, lunch meeting on Capitol Hill.

Croats shell Serb base, threaten full-scale war

KNIN, Croatia - Threatening to reignite all-out war to recapture rebel territory, Croatian forces shelled near this mountain stronghold Monday in the heaviest assault on the Croatian Serb base since the 1991 civil war.

Some 10,000 Croatian and Bosnian Croat fighters were working their way north and west in Bosnia toward Knin, the self-proclaimed Croatian Serb capital that lies just across the border in Croatia.

Artillery shells were falling within 2 miles of Knin during a Croatian bombardment that lasted from morning to late afternoon. Fire and smoke were visible in the surrounding hills.

The attacks are a challenge to the rebels' goal of establishing a separate state on territory that they captured - with support from the powerful Serb-led Yugoslav army - in the six-month civil war.

Defense Secretary William Perry, meeting in Washington with his British counterpart, Michael Portillo, urged restraint by Croatia.

the Croatian forces take advantage of that situation to launch a fullscale offensive, because we believe that has the potential of widening the war," Perry said.

The Serbs also offered a meeting Monday between the rebel commander and his Croatian counterpart. But the Croatian general canceled, apparently after consulting Tudjman, said U.N. spokesman Rida Ettarashany.

Not everyone was lucky enough to find a truck, however. Josh Froebe, a UI alumnus moving to Minneapolis, said despite reasonable efforts, he found himself without one.

for intense scrutiny in the early 1980s. There is no way to test people for asbestos exposure except to monitor their health over a number of years, said Dick Gibson, UI director of planning and administration. However, he said the small amount of asbestos found in the tile, combined with the lack of the carcinogen found in the offices. makes for a very small chance of anyone getting sick.

There is an extremely low risk associated with dying of asbestos (exposure)," Gibson said. "This is nothing for people to get worked up about."

weren't the UI's main concern - he and masks while removing the prised — with the results of the office testing.

"What's really important is there was no asbestos found in the air the people breathe," Gibson said.

The area's remaining tiles must now be removed by an asbestos abatement firm — the UI's choice is Advanced Technologies, an environmental contractor based in Cedar Falls, Nagle said. They were contracted by the UI on an emergency basis for $8,000. The project will start today and tiles will be replaced.

The room will be sealed off and special filtering machines — called negative air machines - will keep asbestos from escaping into the air surrounding the area. The workers will probably take showers immediately after working with the asbestos before they change clothes and leave the building.

Although the levels of asbestos discovered in Gilmore Hall are low, Llewellyn said his company won't take any chances.

proprietor, Joe Shimek, objects to hemp's most infamous use - far from it. Dry the weed's leaves and flowers, grind them, and you have marijuana, and that's just fine with But to Shimek, hemp is more than a controlled substance. It's a

"The thing about hemp is that it's four times more durable than cotton," said Shimek, a native of Wisconsin. "In the agriculture world, over 50 percent of all chemicals and pesticides go into making cotton; hemp will grow with no pesticides and no fertilizer."

Hemp, or Cannabis Sativa, can be grown again and again on the same land, said Shimek, who has a license to import it and whose activities at the Hemporium are legal. The cloth repels water and doesn't mildew. Its pulp can be made into paper, saving forests. Not only that, hemp has played a long and distinguished role in America's past. Hemp historians say the original copy of the U.S. Constitution was written on hemp paper. In letters to people overseas, George Washington wrote fondly of the hemp plant and its flowers. Shimek said. And when George Bush bailed out of his airplane in World War II, Shimek added, hemp ropes were there on his parachute to carry him to safety.

"Hemp saved George Bush's life,"

With all this going for it, why was

United States in the 1930s?

"Mass hysteria," says Shimek. But he prefers to accentuate the positive — and profit from it. He set up shop in downtown Burlington in April, offering an array of products made from the tough stem of the hemp plant - boots, bags, dog leashes and collars, paper products, and jewelry - even soap and lip salve made from hemp oil.

Hemp lost some of its standing as a practical, tough weed after it was driven underground by legislators. These days, the first applications that come to mind are more, well, recreational. That's a side of the weed the Vermont Hemporium doesn't emphasize. But Shimek doesn't hide from it either.

"I do smoke pot, and I'm proud of it," Shimek said. He needs it for "stress reduction. If I don't get my stress reduction daily, I become more or less a bear."

But what if the police find out? Shimek shrugs. "They already know I use cannabis. I own a hemp

But he doesn't sell bongs, or anything else used to smoke the weed. "I wouldn't confuse the issues," he explained. Shimek, 25, could be the poster child for the hemp movement. Tall, calm and bespectacled, today he's wearing an elegant hemp shirt that looks like ironed black linen. He's articulate, unflustered and passionate about his cause. The store itself is a peaceful place. It's a little bit dark and it's cool. The walls are blue. On the hemp cultivation outlawed in the stereo, Midwestern folk singer Greg Brown sings, "Make hay while the sun shines.

Or something.

Most of the visitors are young, and many are in tie-dyed clothing. One is a dog with a bandanna around its neck. Some come in for one of the monster balls of the twine advertised outside; others drift in just for a look. At times the conversation does, well, wander; one cash register transaction seems to take a long, long time. Maybe that's because it's still early. With store hours of noon to 10 p.m., 2 p.m. is practically opening time.

But one thing's for sure: Down at this end of Church Street, surrounded by homes, a restaurant and bars, the Hemporium is doing a brisk business. Later, Shimek hopes he'll be able to expand his catalogue sales - now limited mainly to hemp hats - and parlay hemp's economic success into legitimacy for

Meanwhile, the Hemporium employs 15 seamstresses and a part-time sales force of four. Shimek helps produce a weekly cable television show promoting the legalization of industrial hemp and works continuously to spread his message in and out of the store.

He acknowledges winning widespread acceptance of the weed will be an uphill battle. Is it all worth

"I'm here for the safest drug on the planet," Shimek says. "And hey, we're paying our bills around here. We're paying taxes."

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. - Down on Main Street, near the Short Stop restaurant, across the way from the Home Plate memorabilia shop and next to the Babe Ruth bust in the wax museum, they're worried.

Listen to the fans in baseball's birthplace, hear what they're saying about the game outside old Doubleday Field, and it sounds like trouble.

Every day, it seems, baseball gets a new black eye.

"It's not the same as when I grew up," said Andrew DeLeo, 26, of Philadelphia as he left Monday's annual Hall of Fame game between the Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs after only two innings. "The game used to stand for family, for good things. Now, it just stands for Actually, there's been too much contact lately, it seems.

Two weeks ago Jack McDowell flipped his middle finger at the crowd in Yankee Stadium after fans booed him. Saturday, Baltimore Orioles scout Deacon Jones scuffled with some fans in the stands.

Then Sunday, Chili Davis of the California Angels gave baseball another bad mark when he poked a fan in the face after being heckled in Milwaukee. Problem was, the fan Davis poked was not the one who was hounding him.

AL president Gene Budig, in Cooperstown for the weekend ceremonies, said he had not had a chance to talk to Davis about the incident. Budig will be out of his New York office until late in the week, meaning it may take a week until the investigation is complete.

"Obviously, it's something we're concerned about," Budig said. "I don't know the facts yet, but certainly an on-field altercation is not the kind of thing we like to hear about, especially this year when we're trying to reach out to the Ralph Kiner, one of several Hall of Famers at Monday's game, pointed out that this is not the first time there have been problems between players and fans.

"You can go back to Ty Cobb going into the stands and punching out people," Kiner said. "I played the game, and I got booed and I got heckled, so I know what it feels like. You never like it, but there's got to be a point of control.

"I'd say it's understandable, but it's never excusable," he said.

Tigers general manager Joe Klein, who had not yet heard about Davis' incident, winced when he learned the details.

"You hate to hear that," he said. "This year, of all years."

"We have a lot of work to do, trying to win back fans," he said. "But leave." would say that some of the prob-coming stars at middle linebacker. The secondary is a major concern, Colletto said. It's a young group led by junior strong safety Reggie Johnson and sophomore cornerback Derrick Brown. Sophomore Willie Burroughs showed promise last year and could crack the starting lineup.

While the defense has many questions to answer, Purdue's offense should post big numbers behind its big fullback.

Senior Mike Alstott is a tough. hard-nosed runner and probable all-American. Alstott has rushed for 2,199 career yards, including 1,117 last season.

More impressively, Alstott who has a career 5.5 yards-perrush average - can became the first Purdue player ever to win three consecutive team MVP awards

Alstott "is the best fullback in the United States," Colletto said. "I would like to see one better. He makes a lot of his own holes." Senior Corey Rogers (764 yards, 10 TDs last season) leads a group of four capable tailbacks. However, who will be handing off Purdue's running game. the ball to Alstott and company is not clear. Senior Rick Trefzger is the strongest candidate. He started the first eight games last year before ly Dicken and senior Brian Goehl also challenge for the starting spot.

Whoever the starting signalcaller, he'll have plenty of targets to pass to. Senior Craig Allen is a Stephens started all 11 games a ago.

season ago and is a capable blocker as well.

Three regulars return to create openings for Alstott on the offensive line. Seniors Emmett Zitelli and Chris Sedoris will switch positions this year, to strong guard and center, respectively. This experiment could be key to the success of Colletto said he is confident his team will use last season's collapse as a motivating factor this year.

"This is the biggest goal of this football program: to be responsible suffering a knee injury. Junior Bil- and trust each other, and then lay it all on the line on Saturdays," Colletto said.

After opening its season Sept. 2 against West Virginia, Purdue will test its defense in its home opener burner who scored on a 90-yard against intrastate rival Notre touchdown pass against Ohio State Dame. The Fighting Irish blasted last year. Tight end Charlie the Boilermakers, 39-21, a year

Rockies land Saberhagen

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-time Cy Young winner Bret Saberhagen ended a stormy, injury-filled four years in New York on Monday night when the Mets dealt him to the Colorado Rockies for two young pitchers shortly before the non-waiver trading deadline.

The Rockies, who will also get a player to be named, gave up minor league pitchers Juan Acevedo and Arnold Gooch.

Saberhagen, 5-5 with a 3.35 ERA this season but a two-time 20-game winner with Kansas City, had been rumored to be going to the Boston Red Sox, but they dropped out of the bidding early Monday afternoon.

Padres deal Benes

The Seattle Mariners acquired righthander Andy Benes from the San Diego Padres for lefthander Ron Villone and outfielder Marc Newfield.

The Mariners also will receive a minor leaguer to be named.

Benes, 27, was 4-7 with a 4.17 ERA in 19 starts with the Padres this year.

He was second in the National League in strikeouts (126) and 10th in innings pitched (118.2).

In seven years with the Padres, he was 69-75 with a 3.57 ERA in 187 games.

The Mariners are 43-44 and in third place, 11 games behind firstplace California in the AL West. They are, however, in a race for a possible wild-card playoff berth.

Mantle lands back in the hospital

DALLAS (AP) — Baseball great Mickey Mantle is back in the hospital after undergoing a debilitating chemotherapy treatment, one of his doctors said Monday night.

However, Mantle's readmission to Baylor University Medical Center on Friday does not suggest any worsening in his liver condition, Dr. Daniel DeMarco said.

Mantle, 63, who underwent a liver transplant June 8 after he was diagnosed with a malignant liver tumor, was placed on the hospital's general surgical floor, administrative supervisor Jeff Place said.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

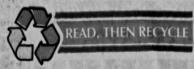

UNI pulls No. 19 ranking in preseason poll

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP) -Northern Iowa, usually a fixture in the Top Ten, is 19th in the preseason Division I-AA football poll compiled by The Sports Network.

The Panthers also have five players on The Sports Network's preseason all-Gateway Conference team.

Northern Iowa was 11th in the final poll of 1994 and finished 8-4. The only other Gateway Conference team in the preseason poll is Western Illinois, which is 25th.

Northern lowa's players on the preseason all-conference team are wide receiver Dedric Ward, tight end Matt Harken, offensive lineman Dan Bower, defensive lineman Brian Moretz and linebacker Kevin Hammond.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. - Scott Bullett and Howard Johnson each hit two home runs Monday, leading the Chicago Cubs over the Detroit Tigers, 8-6, in the 49th annual Hall of Fame game. The game was believed to be the first time the teams had met since Game 7 of the 1945 World Series. Hall of Famer Hal Newhouser, in Cooperstown during the weekend for the ceremonies, pitched the Tigers to that clinching victory. Mike Schmidt and Richie Ashburn threw out the first balls.

Bullett, who has hit just one home run this season for the Cubs, connected for a three-run shot off loser Kevin Wickander for a 6-5 lead in the sixth inning. The Tigers

"As soon as I walked in, there were pictures of players making catches, and there was one of me and another guy colliding. That was pretty neat."

Alan Trammel, Tigers veteran

had scored five times in the sixth, and Bullett ended that burst with a leaping catch in center field.

Bullett and Johnson hit consecutive home runs in the eighth off Mike Christopher. Bullett finished 4-for-5 and Johnson, who hit a tworun homer in the first inning, was pitched three scoreless innings. Tigers starter Mike Gardiner allowed two runs in three innings.

A sellout crowd of 9,719 saw the game at Doubleday Field, the supposed site where Abner Doubleday laid out the first diamond in 1839. Sosa, Johnson and Lou Whitaker also homered four times in 10 swings in the first round, and Sosa won by connecting three times in five swings in the second round. Cecil Fielder hit a total of two homers in the derby, and flied out as a pinch-hitter in his only appearance in the game.

Alan Trammell of the Tigers missed the home-run derby, instead taking time to quickly tour the Hall of Fame museum and library, located just a few blocks up

Being a baseball fan, I'd always wanted to come here, but never had gotten the chance," he said. "This was the third time I've played in the Hall of Fame game, but each time we'd flown into Utica, taken a bus to the park, played the game and then left. There never was any time allotted for the Hall itself.

Trammell, who is bound to get some consideration for the Hall when he retires, also saw himself in the shrine.

The Chargers' fluke win in the AFC Championship game will still be fresh in the minds of the not-sofriendly Steelers. By the time the clock winds down, the score will be Pittsburgh 40, San Diego 0; the Chargers will have gained minus-76 yards, 19 San Diego players will be carted off to the hospital three of them without heads - and Pittsburgh's Greg Lloyd will be arrested on nine counts of involu tary manslaughter.

4. Philadelphia and Randall Cunningham.

Adios Rich Kotite. Farewell. No at all sorry to see you go. Hey, do you think it would be OK if the Eagles won a game this year instead of losing their last seven? Kotite's gone. Ray Rhodes is in Ricky Watters will beef up the offense. So that means Cunning ham will return to his old, eye-popping, unstoppable form, right? Unfortunately, probably not. Supposedly Cunningham is struggling with the new 49er-style offense an he might have to wait a year (when he leaves Philly) to once again

But wouldn't it be great if Cunningham, Arkansas Fred Barnett, Watters and Calvin Williams lit up every scoreboard in the league e route to a 19-0 season? I know.

3. Da Bears and da NFC Central. My other favorite team has a little more realistic chance of doing something this year. Not only have they improved from an impressive 1994 season with several key additions, but the rest of the NFC Cen-

No, the AFC doesn't have prayer of winning the Super Bowl but the free-for-all 20-week race that leads up to the 49er Bowl might just be something worth talking about.

"It's a clean break, same bone, different location," Dr. Tom Melhoff, Houston's team physician, said Monday.

He estimated it would take four weeks for Bagwell to heal and then change in his batting stance, in another seven to 10 days of rehabilitation, probably in the minors.

"I don't know what to do, honest to God," Bagwell, a new splint around his left forearm and wrist, said at a news conference. "I've got to do something. I can't deal with
